the ordinary (to which Pera is vivally jubicet) and the Sea often fwelled over the shores: the aire no leffe terrified them with comets. The Moone in a cleere night had three circles round about her very great, one of bloud, the middlemost blacke, the vimost of smoake. Lingua a diviner 20 told the Inca; Onely Lord, know that thy mother the Moone adulfeth thee that Pachacamac threatneth the royall bloud, and to fend great plagues on thine Empire; the first circle fignifying the blouds warre which Sall follow when thou art gone to rest with thy Father the Sunne, betwixt thy posteritie, that in few yeares it shall altogether faile: the second shewes the destruction of our Religion and republique and altenation of thy Empire, which shall turne all into smoothe at is signified by the third circle. Inca was troubled, but put it off laying, thou haft dreamed thefe fooleries last night, and failt my Mother hath fent me fuch intelligence. But the Soothfayer answered, he might fee it with his owne eyes, and confult with other diumers, which he did, and found the fame fight and answere: hee yet made feemings not to believe, faying hee did not believe the Sunne would permit that to happen to his progenie. He offered notwithstanding many Sacrifices to him, and appointed the 30 Soothfayers in all parts to confult with their fenerall Oracles, especially with Pachacamac and Rimae, whose answers were coscure and doubtfull. These things I heard of two Captaines of Huayna Capacs guard, then eightie yeares old, and baptifed, speaking hereof with teares. Des Iuan Peshuia, and Chanca Rimachi, as also of Cushhallpa that old Inca, and of my Mother and her Brother Don Fernando Hualloa Tupac Inca. Huayna Capac one day bathing himfelfe came forth cold, and found himfelfe deadly ficke, Huayna Capacs laft will, or freehheiore bis death.

made a testamentall discourse, saying, that he was now going to beauen to rest with his Father the Sunne, which called him out of the bath, ever fince which time be was so indisposed of body: when I am dead you hall burie my body as to veed to be done with Royall bodies, my heart and entrals in Quitu, in token of the love which I beare it; my body you shall carrie to Cozco to lay it with my ancestors. I com- 10 mendyou to my Son Atahuallpa whom I fo much loue, who remaineth for Inca in my place in this Kingdome of Quitu, and in all the rest which be shall conquer by armes to augment his Empire. And for you the Captaines of my armie, I charge you in particular to ferue bim with that fealty & love which you one to your King, in all and enery thing doing what he shall command you, which shall be the same that I shall remeale to bim by order of our Father the Sunne. I likewife commend ante you instice and clemencie towards the Vasfals, that the Title of Louer of the poore given onto us, be not loft; and that in everything you doe like the Incas, Sonnes of the Sunne. Having made this speech to his children and kinimen, he called the rest of the Captains and Coracas which were not of the bloud royall and game them in charge fealty and fernice due to their King, and at last concluded : It is many yeares lince that by The Prophetic renelation of our father the Sunne, we hold that when twelve Kings are passed of his Sonnes, there shall 50 come a new and unknowne people into those parts, and shall gaine and subject to their Empire all our King. domes and many others. I suspect that they shall be of those whom we know to have cone along it the coal of our Sea : they shall be a valiant Nation which every way shall exceede you. We well know that in met is compleat the number of twelve Incas. I certifie you that a few yeares after my departure from you. that new Nation shall come and fulfill that which our Father the Sunne hath spoken, and stall earne our Empire and rule ouer it. I command you that yee obey and serue them as men which enery wer feat have advantage of you: whose Law skall be better then ours, and their armes more mightie and mumerble then yours. I leave you in peace, for I goe to rest with my Father the Sunne which cu bualles his that speech.

cals mee. All this the Indians held in great veneration, and fulfilled every for thereof. I remember that 60 one day that old Inca speaking in presence of my Mother, and rehearfing these things, and the Spaniards entrance, and their conqueit : I asked him how, their Countrey being fo rough, their people so warlike, and their number so many, they lost their Empire to so few Spaniards. Heattwering me, repeated the foretelling or prophetic of the Spanards aforetaid, and faid that the Inca had commanded them to obey and serve them, for every way they should have the advantage of them. And for that objection of cowardile, he answered me. These words which our Inca faid outous, being the last that ener he spake to us, were more powerfull to subject us and quite our Empire. then the armes which thy Father and his companions brought into this Land. Thus died Huayna Capac; Ruayna Capacs his body was embalmed, and carried to Cozco; his heart interred in Quita. His funerall folem- death.

nities and mourning continued a yeare, according to the custome of the Inca Kings. Her lett 2- Indiant hate 10 boue two hundred ionnes and daughters; fome Incas affirme aboue three hundred to exaggerate

Atahualla tot the crueltie of Atabnallpa, which flew them almost all; who therefore was so odious, that causes sollowthe Spaniard, having put him to death, were thought men fent from their God the Sun to take ing.

to vengeance on the destroyer of his seede. And when they brought Cockes and Hens with them Cock conceit, into Pers, they hearing the Cockes crowing faid, that in perpetuall infamie of that tyrant and whereby it apabhominible memory of his name, they pronounced it in their crowing, saying Atabnalipa, and pearein that would answer the Cockes crowing with reckoning the name Atabuallya: wherein the children they had no imitated them in those times, so that if they had heard a Cocke crowe, they would recrow in like tune the name of Aushallpa: a thing which I my felfe and other boyes my Schoolefellowes, children of Spaniards by Indian women haue often done, together with the Indian children. They named likewise on such occasion his principail Captains, whose names were of so many syllables, Challenchims, Quillifeacha and Ruminnani. The Spaniards thought they did this for his honour, faying the Cockes made this honorable mention of him: fo Blas Valera writeth, which received it 20 of the Indians of Quitu his naturall subjects, which applied to a good mention that which those of Cozco denifed in will, for his crueleies there done.

Huanna Capac being dead, his two Sonnes Huascar and Atabaallpa raigned quietly for the space Huascar the of foure or flue yeares, one in Cozco, the other in Quitn. After which Huafcar began to thinke thirtcenth and with himselfe that he had done ill in consenting to his father in the matter of Quitn, which now last transference was his brothers; whereby he was barred vp also from further conquests; the other three waies rour. being locked up by the Antis, the Sea and Chili; fo that his brother might by new conquefts make himfelfe greater then he : and whereas now his file was Capa Inca (onely Lord) in time, the other might both equall and exceede him. Thefe things more and more troubling him, hee Huafcars meffent a Messenger to his brother, saying; that by the ancient constitution of the first Inca Manco Ca- sage to Atabu-

30 pac, the Kingdome of Quitu, and all the Prominces which he possessing the belonged to the crowne and Empire of Cozoo, which howsoener he had quitted to him upon his Fathers command, yet was it more by force then instice, being to the losse of the crowne and presidice of the successors; and therefore neither ought his Father to command it, nor was he obliged to fulfill it. Tet feeing he had given confent, he was content upon these two condition; first that he should adde nothing to his Empire; secondly, that hee Bould doe him homage and fealtie, as his vallall and fendatarie. Atabuallpa received this mellage with great humilitie and feeming fubmition, and three dayes after returned answere, that in his heart he had alwayes reknowledged valiallage; being returned to the Inca by Post, he was much Hisanswer and content, fending reply, that he againe confirmed that estate to his Brother conditionally, that militie.

by luch a time he should make his personall homage at Cozco. Atabnallpa answered hee was a 40 happy man to understand such the Incas pleasure, that he would doe it by the time fet him; but for greater folemnitie, he did befeech his Maiestie to give him leave that all the Provinces of his estate should come with him to celebrate in Cozco the obsequies of Huayna Capac his Father, with rites agreeable to those of Quits and the other Provinces, which ended, hee and his would doe their due homage. All this did Huascar grant, and Atabualla made vse of to his project of soueraigntie. He sent proclamation to all his Prouinces, that all men feruiceable should in such a space make ready to uieth forces to goe to Cozco to celebrate his Fathers obsequies, and to performe the homage to the Monarch affault Hugher Husicar Inca, and that therefore they should fet forth in theirbest ornaments and brauery for voder preice greater folemnitie. But privily he fent to his Captaines to levie the best Souldiers which should of obsequies carry their armes closely; for he more minded executions then exequies. He commanded them to Huapna Ca-50 to march in bands, fine or fixe hundred together, one band two or three leagues after the other: pac. and when they came within ten or twelves dayes journey of Cozea, that they should joyne together, the laft doubling their journies to overtake the former. In this manner Atahuallpa fent aboue 30000, men, most of them old Soldiers of his Fathers, with shoise Captaines, and appointed two Camp-mafters or Generals, Challeuchima and Quizquiz. Husfear relying on the loyal - Husfears fecutie of his Subjects, and his Brothers faire promiles, not onely suspected no treation, but provided ritie. them necessaries. Atahuallpa vied this distimulation, knowing himselfe of vnsussicient power to warre openly on his brother. But some of the experimented Gouernors and Captaines, as they paffed, could not but refent and difguit this courie; and fignified to much to the Inca, who thus 60 awakened out of his dreame, fent to gather forces in the South parts and East and West : to Chinchafurn he fent not, which were the best Soldiers, because of these forces marching thorow their Countrie. The other through long peace were unaccultomed to armes, of which were leuised a. Se'o medicina boue 30000, the rest being too remote for a sudden businesse.

Atahualleas men passed the River Apprimae without contradiction, and embattelled them-

Ill conscience fearefull, and therefore ty-Tacocha.

Dan Melchiae next in bloud

felues in three fquairons, fo marching to Villacunca within fix leagues of Cozco. He himfelfeabode full in the confines of his Kingdome, there to oblerue the fucceffe of this battel, wherein he placed his chiefe truft, by reaton of the negligence of the other fide, & the courage of his old fouldiers. These thought the shortest way the surest, before more forces might be assembled by twist Atabasil. Huslear, and within two or three leagues Weltwards from the Citie was the battell fought, in which one fide fought to get, the other to keepe the Inca, whose vnhappy fate made him prisoner to Atabually as men as he was fleeing thence with 5000, which were all in monner flaine in presence, some by the enemies, some by themselves seeing their Lord prisoner. Many also not willing to enjoy liberty after he was taken, offered themselves priloners. They fet a fure guard about the Emperours person, and sent to proclaime his taking thorow all the Empire, lest other 10 forces should come to his succour; sending word alto to their Master Atabuallya. Hee vied his elyandaidi. victory most cruelly; for distembling that he would restore Huasear to the Kingdom, he summoned all the Incarin the Empire, and all the Rulers and Officers to appeare at Cufco by fuch a day, to capitulate on certaine Articles to be observed betwirt the two Kings, that they might live together in love like brethren. Thus all the Incar, except those whom sicknesse, age, or remotentale hindred, came thither, whom Atabuallya cauled to be put to divers and cru-

For he knowing that he was not of the Incas bloud legitimate, that is, by the Cora or fifter of the King, nor yet of the whole bloud, to to challenge the inheritance by Father and Mother, removed these rubs out of the way of his ambition; yea all those who were of the halfe bloud, 20 though further from claime, yet lest they might imitate his example, he caused also to be slaine. Not contenting himselfe with the death of his two hundred brethien and fifters, the children of Huanna Capac, he proceeded to the Vicles, Coutens, and all, whe her legitimate or baftards; fome he cauled to be beheaded, some hanged, some were cast into Rivers with weights at their neckes, some cast from high precipices. All which were done before he had passed Sansa, nintie leagues off the Citie. Yea they brought forth Huafear to fee thete difmall executions, that he might dye in the death of energy of his kinfmen. The Curacas Captaines and Nobility they brought forth being the rest of the priloners bound, to the Valley of Sacfahnana, and made a long lane of them, thorow which they made poore Huafear to paffe couered with mourning weedes. and having a roapeabout his necke : they feeing their Inea in this cafe, fell downe with criesto 30 doe him reuerence, and were therefore. Il time with Ha chers and Clubs before his face. After this the cruelty passed to the women and children of the bloud royall, Atabuallya commanding to take them all (but those in the house of Virgins) which were brought to the field Tahuarpampa, or blondie field, a name confirmed by the cruell executions, by starting, hanging, and diversihed tortures on that tender fexe, and ignocent age. E ery quarter of the Moone they renewed these cruelties, from which some were yet suffered to escape, of which number were my Mother and her Brother then eleuen yeares of age or vader, which they fent away in difguiled habits of the common people; for all degrees might they be knowne by their habit.

Of the August or Infants Royall which eleaped, were Paullu and Titu the Sonnes of Huayna ry eitheiran. Capar. Den Carlot the fonne of Paulla, married with a Spanish woman, by whom hee had Den 49 Melchior Inca, which in the yeare 1602. came into Spaine to receive rewards promifed for the feruices of his Father and Grandfather in the pacification of Peru, Anne 1604. I received a letkept in Spane. ter of Valladolid that he was allowed 7500. Duckets of reuenue in the Citie of Kingt, and that Atabus fon he must bring his wife to Spaine, that the Indians which are his inheritance shall be fet ouer to the Crowne, and that he shall no more passe to the Indies. This is the chiefe of the bloud of the Incas, by the male line descended of Huayna Capae. Of Ataruallpa I knew one Sonne and two Retity Wifted, Daughters, one of which Donna Angelina by Marquelle Pigarro had a Sonne called Don Irancifco, he died a little before I came co Spaine: the next day, before his buriall many Incas came to my Mothers, and amongst others her old Vnele, who faid that Pachacamae had preferred him many yeares to feeanend of all his enemies; and inflead of mourning much, reioyed; 10 whereof I demanded the reason why we should be glad for the death of our Kinsman! he biting his mancle (which with them is a token of great a ger) laid, What, wouldit thou be the kinfman of an Auca, fonne of an Auca (that is, a tyrant traitor) which destroyed our Empire, killed our linea, confumed our bloud and linage, which did fo many cruelties fo differing from the nature of the Incas! I could cate him raw without sauce now he is dead : for his Father the traitor Ataiwallpa was not the son of Huayna Capac our Inca, but soune of Quitu Indian, which with his mother wrought treason to our King; otherwise he would never have done, no not imagined such things to his enemies, much life to his kindred , Cay not therefore, he is our kinsman, thou wrong ft thy kindred to reckon to it so cruell a tyrant, e. This Francisco whiles he lived, teeing the hatred which the Incas, and all whee Indians bate district Alaba- him, had little to doe with them, and came little abroad, they full calling him Auca. His Fa-60 ther destroyed the Officers and Servants of the Kings house, and the Townes whereof they were, being by Manco Inca priviled ged Incas, of some a third, of others a fifth or a tenth part. Heenamed also and committed great mischiefes on the Cannaries, & slew 70000.0f them, because they would not subject themselves to him at the beginning of his rising, whereby there were said to remaine fifteene times as many women as medCH AP.13. Incas posteritie, their miserie. Friers speech, Atahualpas answer. 1485

In the end of the yeare 1603, the Incas of Peru west to Don Melchior Carlos Inca, and so me, nall their names desiring ws to make supplication to his Maiestie, to command that they should Micrable state he exempted from tributes which they paid, and other vexations which they fuffer no leffe then of the language ocher common Indians. They fent painted in white Chritaffara the Tree royall from Manco Pers. Capac to Huaina Capacs some Paullu, in their ancient habit, with the coloured ribbon of their heads, and eare-rings in their eares, with Partifans instead of Scepters in their hands. Their phrate was much mixt with Spanish for now they are all Spaniolized. They rehearde much mix Tree Royell of Prince was much which cause I doe not here record it. They write with much confidence Incas and their that the King would not onely relieue them, if he were made acquainted, but reward them, as postericellto the posterity of Kings. At the side of enery Kings picture they let those of his posteritie, with wing in April the title Capac Ayllu, or the Royall flocke, diftinguilling each Kings descendents. Of Manco Ca. 1603. pacs posterity there remaine 40. Incas : of Sinchi Roca 64. of Lloque Tupanqui 63. of Capac Tupanani 56, of Maria Capac 25. of Inca Roca 50. of Tahuar Huacac 51. of Viracocha Inca 69. of Pachacutee and his Sonne Tupanqui put together 99. of Tupac Inca Tupanqui 18. of Huayna Capac 22. These two last generations (as neerer the Crowne) Arabuallya with great diligence destroved. The whole summers 567, persons, all descended by the male line; for of the female they made no such account, except they were Sonnes of the Spaniards which conquered the Land; for those they call Inew also, beleeuing that they descended of their god the Sunne. This writing was figned by eleuen Incas, agreeing to the eleuen deicents, each for all of his race.

CHAP. XIIII.

The suppliment of the History of the Incas, briefely collected out of the Authors Second part, or Generall Hiflory of Peru.

Hus have we run thorow the Authors first part, or Commentaries Roiall, of the original and hues of the face. In his fecond part, entitled the General History of Peru, he relates the Spanish Acts, Discoueries, and conquests there; part of which in Benzo, Vaz, and others ye have feene already, and the Spanish Authors haue related the same at large. I will briefely touch a few things to perfect this Friet Vincents our flory of the Incas. In the taking of Atabuallya he relateth at large the Oration of Frier Vincent de valle vnids. First, touching God, his creation of the world, and of man. Secondly, Touching Adams tinne and Christs redemption on the Crosse. Thirdly, his power gi- Note the late uen to the Apostler, and ouer them and all Christians to Peter and his successor the Pope. Fourth- ter part of this ly, the Popes gift of all those Countries to the Emperour, Lord of the world, to the end to bring Friers Oranithem to the Christian faith. Fifthly, the Emperours authorifing Francis Pizarro as his Embal- on : tor which them to the Christian tath. Fitthly, the Emperours authorning transis Fixarro as his Emoalao sador and Lieutenant, that thise Realines might receive that benefit, and that he might begin alliance inserted it at and confederacie betwirt the Emperours Maietie and the Inca, in such fort that his whole Kingdome large. Should become tributarie, and the Inca become his subject and wholly deliner op his Kingdome and renounce the administration thereof, as other Kings and Lords baue done. Secondly, after such peace and friendship, and subjection voluntary or by force, hee was to give obedience to the Pope, and receive the faith of Carilt quite abandoning his superstation of Idols, invented by the Divell. All which, O King, thou art to take well in worth as being very profitable to thee and thine : and if thou deniest, know that thous shalt be compelled by warre, fire and bloudshed, and all thine Idols skall beethrowne downe to the thou shalt be compelled by warre, fire and blondined, and all time lasts feat over involved diwnet to the Strange ground. And we will constraine thee with the Sword, that leaving thy false Religion whether thou will Preaching of or no, thou halt receive our Catholike Faith and pay Tribute to the Emperour giving up thy Kingdome Christianite 50 tohim. But if thou shalt obstinately resist, know for most certaine, God will suffer, as of old Phatao and all his Army perished in the Red Sea, that thou likewise and thine Indians shall bee destroyed by our

This Oration was kept by the tradition of Quipus (or Quippos) which are the knot-records of Caffamarca where the deede was done: the words of trinity and other Christian Mysteries were not well understood, and therefore ill deliuered by the Interpreter : that language still wanting proper tearmes for them, and being forced to Indianize Spanish words for that purpose. Atabuallpas antwere was, with great griefe for thole last words, of Pharas and destruction, lay- Autualless and ing, Atac (an interiection of forrow) and first complained of his Interpreter, and that this mi- fwer, nacing melfage was contrary to the former which they had fent him , that their Prince and they ,60 might feeme tyrants to to goe about destroying the world, killing and robbing those which had done them no wrong ; or elie that they might feeme the feruants of Pachacamac which had fent them to their destruction; which if it be so, he and his were ready to offer themselves to whatfoeuer pleased them, not for feare of their minaces or armes, but to fulfill his father Huayna Ca-

pacs command at the houre of his death, that they should serve a branded Nation more valuant

then they, which was to come and bring them a better Law and Customes. But if this bee so.

Pachacamae is pitifull and mercifull, whom they oughe to imitate, and not to beginne with robberies and cruelties as they had done in Tumpiz, and the confines. It feemed strange, he faid.

to him, that the Emperour should bee Lord of the World, and yet the Pope should make him a new grant; and then also is the Pope greater then he, and Lord of the world. Againe hee had the wed no reason why hee should pay tribute onely to Charles; which rather hee thought was due to God, as Creator, or to Adam the first man, or to Christ the best man, or to the Pope which hath power to give his Kingdome and person to another, of all which he in his speech had difcourfed. And it he had any right ouer him, it had beene meet, fi ft to have fignified it to him. before menacing of warre, fire, and flaughter, &c. The Spaniards impatient of this long diff to course fell to rifling the Indians, others to robbing an Holl Temple of the Silver plates; and com-Faste victorie mine forth to fight, the Inaians raifed a great shout. But the Inca with a great voice commanded that they should not smite nor hurt the Spaniards, though they tooke or killed the King. Frier an i crue'l Soaneards which Unicens made a plautible Speech to the Spiniards, in fauour of the Indians; but they could not heare him for the crie : neither did the King calt the Booke on the ground, or the Frier crie vennot relitting. geance *, as some have written, with other things against the Pope and the death of Christ. Five thousand Indians were flaine, and no Spaniards hurt, but the Generall by one of his owne, flightwhich were there, and Goly, in the taking of Atabualipa. When he had agreed on his ranfome, which was never wholly mara, Benzo, Herr , &cc. but paid, for want of time to accomplish it *: (4605670. Duckers of it came in) Soto and Barco were tent to Cozco, which at Saufa in the way had fight of Huafear, there kept prisoner; who by an the later Inquifiors feem fignes defired aide of the Spaniards to reftore him to his Empire, promifing three times as much as athamed of Atahualipa bad done, better able to performe it, as having and knowing where to fetch the treasures of Vincents furie. bu procentors; whereas Atahuall, a had little treasure but what be tooke from Churches. They answe-See contra, red, that they mult first goe to Cozco whither they were fent and in the meane time Atabnallas can ult. has intelligence of these passages. Hee subtilly to found the Spaniards, how they would take the Busicare Dromifes to the death of his brother, fained himfelfe very forrowfull for that hee had heard one of his Captaines Spannars.

Husfear flaine, had killed him, and refused to eate, making shew of much griefe. Pizarro comforted him, and promifed to right and reuenge the euill on him which had done it. He feeing that Pizarre tooke it in no worse part, sent a speedy Post to dispatch him so suddenly, that the Spaniards could not tell but that it had beene done before. His owne death followed after (a before is recited, and 30 Huafcar at his death foretold) by the unsust instice of the Spaniards, many of which protested by word Atabualloa flaine. and writing against that eruelty, in vaine. His corps were carried to Quitu to be interred, where vnder pretence of more honourable Obsequies, Ruminnam one of his Captaines (following his 2 vanium rui examples) wrought a great treason; made a feast to Quillescache brother of Atahualha, and o-flantines.

Manco Inca. the Empire of Rome with Augullus and Auguffu'u, and of Conflantinosle

Marco Inca Brother of Husscar, came to the Spaniards at Cozco, to demand the repossession of the Empire, by inheritance due to him. They made him faire semblance : and he offered to gan and ended with Monte; as promote the Gospell (according to his Fathers tellament, as a better Law) and the Spanish affaires. Articles were agreed on, and they granted him a Diadem with great folemnitie, bu: fo farre thort of the wonted, that the old men cried as fall for the want of that, as the yong boyes shouted for joy of this. When afterwards he propounded the accomplishment of those Articles which had beene made betwixt the Spaniards and the Indians, that the Naturals might live in quiet, and knowe what service to performe to the Spaniards, with the reall restitution of his Empire : the Gouernour Pizarro, and his brethren excused themselves by the broyles and flires 50 which had growne amongst themselves, which hitherto permitted not the accomplishment. They further expected antiwer from the E pperor their Lord, of whom he might hope for al good, (the Articles being good for both parts) to whom they had given account of the capitulations, his brother Hernando being shortly to returne with answere. But when he was a rived at Tumpiz, the Ma: queffe tooke occasion to rid himselte of the Incar importunitie, and with many faire words intreated him to returne to his Fortreffe till things might be perfected : which he doing, Maxen imprithey held him there Priloner, fearing his haughty courage. The Indians leeing their Inca Priloner, were much grieved, but he comforted them, faying, that he and they ought to obey the Spaniards, for to Huayna Capac had commanded in his Testament, and that they should not be weary till they had feene the laftiflue of thefe things. Hee hoped that this his imprisonment would 60 turne into greater liberalitie with him, thele Unacochar being a Nation comne from Heaten.

ther great men, whom having made drunke vnawares with the drinke Sora, a heady liquour for-bidden by Law, hee flue, with Challenchima the Generall, and the Sonnes and Daughters of Atahwallpa, and all that might stand in the way of his ambition. Hee buried aliue the Chofen Virgins, which smiled at his reports of the Spaniards (interpreting it to lust, being done rather to please him) causing to vindermine and cut the Hills to execute that dismall fate more terribly. After some bickerings with the Spaniards, hee fled to the Antis, and there peri- 40

The Marquelle difmifled himfelfe of the Inca, whole person and guard hee commended to his brethren Iuan and Gonzalo, and went to the Citie of Kings, to people and enlarge it. The Inst Mance with much oblequiousnelle to all the Spaniaras, and many presents of Gold, Silver,

CHAP.14. Mancos speech, atts, against Spaniards, death. Don Diego Inca. 1487

Gemmes, Fruits, &c. making no shew of griese for his imprisonment, obtayned his libertie: which he had laboured the rather, hearing that Hanando Pizarro was comming to gouetne in Manuelen-Within the Marketing of the Rings, to which place he lareement and furmoned his Captaines, and complained of the Spaniards breach of promile, in not performing taking Armes the Capitulations which they had made with Titu Aniauchi, his brother, and that they had laid him in prilon with Iron fetters: that he had perceived their ill mindes from the beginning, but fuffered it to inflifie his cause with God and with the world, that none might object to him the diffurbing of the peace. But now he could no further relie on their vaine promifes, well knowing that the Spaniards thared the Land among it themselves in Cufeo, Rimac, and Tumpiz, whereto by it well appeared that they intended not the restitution of the Empire to him: and that he was loth to make further triall of their fetters, and therefore required their best aduice, intending with Armes to recouer his right, truiting in Pachacamac, and his father the Sun, that they would not herein for lake him. They told him, that he might looke for like reward at the hands of those Strangers as Atabualha had found, not with standing the payment of his ransome: and it was Parbacamaes great grace, they had not dealt with his Royall Person likewise, &c.

Thus Mance railed forces, fo that 200000. Indians came to Cozeo, and shot Arrowes with fire An Armicof on them on all the houses of the Citie generally, without respect of the Royall houses, only they 200000, Indiana referued the Temple of the Sunne, with the Chappels within it, and the house of the Virgins : Coxco burnt which two they ipared (thogh their wealth was gone) not to commit any facrilegious act against

20 their Religion. Three Hals alto they referued wherein to make their feasts in time of raine, one of which was in the houle that had belonged to the first Inca, Manco Capac. (The author proceedes in the particular fights and feege of the Spaniards, too long here to rebearfe.) In divers places they killed feuen hundred Spaniards. But at laft Manco was driven to forfake the Countrey b by the b When Almas inequality of the Spaniards horfes, Guns and other offenfine and defenfine armes, against which go returned they had no experiments to make refistance. In the civill-vacuuill broiles and warres of the Spa- Alugrado with niards in Peru, some of them fled to Manco Inca to avoide the Viceroies feverity, one of which other Spaniards was Genez Perez a cholericke man, which playing at Bowles with the Inca, would fland fo camein, shiftely on measuring of his cast, and the earnest folly of play, that forgetting all good manners, he one day yied the Inca as if he had beene an Indian flane; wherewith the Inca prouoked gave him

30 a blow with his fift on the breaft, whereupon Gomez with his Bowle ftrooke the Inca on the head fo great a blowe, that hee fell downe dead. Whereupon the Indians fet on the Spaniards, Gemez an vin which first fled into the house to defend themselves there, but were fired out; and the Indians grateful proud which first fled into the house to derend themselves there, our were fired out; and the smith special having killed them with enraged furie, had purposed to eaterp their flesh raw: but after left Mento flow them to the birds and wilde beaits, for foode. Thus died Mases by the hands of those whom flaine. hee had preserved from death , and had kindly vied in those wilde Mountaines of Uilca campa, which hee had chosen for his securitie. I was present, when some Incas present at the act, with teares recounted this to my Mother, which came afterwards from their Moun- Sani Tuped taines with the Inca Sayri Tupac, the some of that whfortunate Prince , by order of the Vice- his sonne. ry Mendoza, Marqueffe of Canete. This Vice-roy vied (to perfwade that comming in of 40 the Inca) the Ladie Beatriz his Fathers Sifter, which fo wrought with his Guard, hee being then too young to take the Diademe, that vpon promise of certaine conditions hee came and rendted himselte to the Vice-roy, and after went to Cusco, and was baptifed by the name of Don Diego, together with his wife Cufci Huarcay, grandchilde to Huafcar Inca, Anno 1558. Shee was a faire woman, but somewhat pale, as are all the women of that Countrie, about fixteene yeeres olde. I went in my mothers name to visite the Inca, and to kille his hand, which vied mee contreoufly, and two small vessels of gilt Plate were brought forth. of which he dranke one, I the other. He spent his time, one day visiting one part, and another, another part of the Citie. Hee adored the Sacrament, calling it Pachacamae, Pachacamae. He went thence to the Valley of Tucay, and there remayned till his death, which was about three yeeres 50 after, leauing no issue but a daughter, which was married to Martin Garcia de Loyela. His brother Tupac Amaru tooke the Mountaines. Francisco de Toledo fecond sonne to the Earle of Oropesa, being Vice-roy, determined to bring Tupac Amaru from the Mountaines of Villea campa the Prince Topac Amaru, the lawfull Heire of that Em- his tragedie. pire, after his faid brothers death without iffue male. Hee fought to doe it by faire and gentle perswasions sending Messengers to that purpose, promising him maintenance from his Maiethe for his person and familie. His kindred and friends told him that his brother had received fmall recompense from them, or society with them, and therefore counselled him not to goe, it being better for him to live there, then to die with his enemies. The Spaniards counfelled the Vice-roy to force him, alledging that his Indians robbed the Merchants, hoping also by his imprisonment to recouer the treasures " which his progenitours had hidden. Such robberies were " Him ille le indeed committed in his father Mancos time , but feldome , they being forced thereto of ne- coma. ceffitie for want of victuals , which the Mountaines yeeld not. But after his death there was no fuch matter. The Vice-roy Tene Marin Garcia Loyela, with two hundred and fiftie Souldiers well prouided against the Inches The strength of those passages was abated, and the wayes Hhhhhh

Bloudy Vice-

What became

against the Mestizos begotten of that stocke by the Spaniards, some of which were condemned to be tortured, that so they might finde some clearer matter against them. One of their mothers came to the prilon, and cried out that they had got that reward, for that their Fathers had conquered the Countrey, for which their Children should be all hanged. Why did they not as well kill their Mothers, for whose sinnes Pachacamac had suffered this, which had beene traytors to lo the Inca for love of the Spaniards; with other outcries of vengeance in this world, and the next from Gods hand. Thus went thre crying in the street, which made the Vice-roy surcease his purpole, & he proceeded not to put any to death: but banished them to line a lingring death in divers pares of the world, out of that, which their Fathers had conquered. Some he fent to Chili (one of which was the tonne of Barco aforefaid, which had beene with Huafear) others to the new Kingdome of Granada, to the Iles of Barlonent, to Panama, to Nicaragna, and some hee fent to Spaine, one of which was i wan Arias Maldonado, who hard there an exile ten yeeres, and recounted thefe chings to mee; hee after got leave of the supreme Councell of the Indies to returne to Peru, for three yeeres to recouer his goods, and then to returne to Spaine, there to end his dayes. All the rest perished in ban shment. The Indians of the bloud Royali, which were sixe and thirtie of the principall of the bloud Royall, he exiled and confined to the Citie of Kings, and with them the two tonnes and daughter of the poore Prince, the eldest not ten yeares old; the Arche bishop of Rimac or The Kings, pitied the young girle, and brought her vp : the two fonnes with three and thirtie more died in little aboue two yeeres, comming out of a cold hilly Countrie to the hor Plaines by the Sea. The three remayning were Don Carlos my School-fellow, sonne of Don Christonall Paully, and two others, which were fent home to their houses, but died all in a veere and halfe after. Of Don Carlos sonne we have faid before, that hee came into Spaine in hope of great rewards which in Peruwere promifed him. He died Anno 1610. at Alcala de Henares of griefe to fee himfelfe shut vp in a Monastery, and left one some with three daughters. The sonne died being a childe of little more then a yeere old, and so the Rent granted by the Contra fation house at Simil to his father ceassed.

Don Melchiers the laft Incas

Now for the Prince Tupag aforefaid (to returne to him) they fentenced him to lofe his head, which was executed, the Crier proclayming his treason and tyrannies against the Catholike Maiestie of King Philip the second, King of Spaine, and Emperour of the New Word. They told the inca that he was fentenced to lofe his head, without any particular cause mentioned : hee answered , hee had done nothing worthis of death , that the Vice-roy might fend him prisoner to Spaine, to kiffe the hands of his Soueraigne-King Philip. which would be fecuritie enough. And if his tather were not able with 200000, Indians, to tubicat 200. Spaniards in Cozco, what needed the Vice-roy now feare any new commotion! The religious haitened to instruct him for baptilme, to which he was willing, he faid, his Grandfather Huayna Capae having commended the 10 Christian Law, as better then theirs: He was Christened by the name of Don Philip, with as much griefe of thole which were prefent, as was icy made at the baptifing of Sais Tupae. The Spamigrals did not imagine that the fentence should be executed, being so contrarie to humanitie, and differeeable to the Majethe of King Philip. It was performed on a Scaff Id in the chiefe Street of Cozes. Many fought to petition the Vice-roy, which knowing their errand, would admit none to audience. They let the Prince on a Mule, with a rope about his necke, his hands tied, one going before, to proclaime his treaton. He not understanding Spanifb, asked the Friers, and hearing that he proclaimed him Anca, called him to him, and faid to him, Say not fo, for thou knowest it is a Ire, and I never die or thought treason, as all the world knoweth; but say, that I must die for the Viceroys pleasure, and not for my faults against bim or the King; I appeale to Pachacamae, that this is true. 50 The multitude crying and lamenting, they feared some stirre, there being 200000 feules allembled in the ftreets, they hafted to fet him on the Scaffold. The Priests prayed him to still the clamours and out-cries of the people. Hee stretched out his arme with his hand open, which hee layd on his eare, thence letting it fall by degrees to his thigh; whereupon followed a fudden filence, as if there had not beene a man left in the Citie. Which made the Spaniards to wonder, and the Vice-roy among ft others which flood at a window to fee the execution. Thus died the Inca with great magnanimitie, as the Incas have beene in such cases accustomed, he worthinging the Images of our Saujour, and of the Virgin, as the Priefts taught him.

Leyo'as death.

He is bapti'ed . The Vice-roy returned with great wealth, and with 500000. Pezos in gold and filter, and Philip going to kiffe the Kings hand, he bad him get bun to bis boufe ; be bad not fent him to Peru, to kill 60 Vice-roys Tug: Kings, but to ferue Kings. The Councell of Indies receiving information against him arrested all his treature aforefaid, which filled him with luch griefe that hee died within few dayes af er-Logola, which had taken him, and washusband to his brothers daughter, was ient generall to Chili, where the Araucaus having spies on him, when hee had fent moit of his Souldiers to gar-

CHABAS. Description of Caxamalca, and of Atahuallpa. F. Vincents charity. 1489

rifons, with voices of birds and bearts gaue fignes to their fellowes, which came in with a great Areacan policy power of Indians, and killed him and all his Spaniards. Anno 1603.

Thus have wee fireted the creame of the Incas Historie of the Incas; the Spaniards (whose acts hee principally bandleth in his (econd part) bane enough of them owne to relate their alls, some of which also follow, and others have gone before, to bew how they conquered and weed their conquests of and in the New World. The greatnesse of that State, and strangenesse of the rising, proceeding, and ruine of the Incas, made mee the larger, though all this be not formuch in words, as one of the fenenteene Bookes, one of which it is gathered. It may bee of good use, both to understand the Spanish Indian Historians, as Acolta, & c. and in many things in which for want of Language, and acquaintance with the Incas, they To bane received and delinered errours, to amend them: and in this kinde, for antiquities, is a temeli, such as no other Peru Merchant bath fet to sale. If I have seemed consused, and without exact method, I base followed my Author, who setting forth the former part, Anno 1608, published the other, 1617. basing receined of some later occurrents better intelligence. Wee will now leave this Inca-Spaniard, and bruffy recount from the Spanish Actors and Authors, what passed in those first and great mutations. Ramulio published these three following Discourses at large, which wee have thus contracted.

CHAP. XV.

Briefe Notes of FRANCIS PIZARRO his conquest of Peru, written by 4 Spanish Captaine therein employed.

Certaine Spanish Captaine, whose name is not added to his Tractate writeth, that in Februarie 1531. he went with Pizarro from Panama, who arrived, and flayed three moneths at Tumbez, and thence went to Tangarara, and founded Saint Michaels, where he heard of Atabalipa or Atahnalpa, and his warres with his brother Cufco: who fent a Spie thither, and as hee marched, prefents, to Pizarro. Hee with tortures learned of two Indians what and where Atabalipa was. They marched on (he fayth) to Caxemalce, a Citie foure miles in circuit, entred with two Gates. On caremake or 30 one fide of the Citie is a great Palace walled about, with a great Court planted with trees. This Caffanarea dathey call the Honje of the Sunne, whom they worthip, putting off their Shooes when they enter. And fuch there are in every great Towne. There were two thousand houses, in streets straight as a Line, the walls of strong stone, three paces (or fathoms) high; within are faire Fountaines of water, and in the midft a greater ifreet then any in Spaine, walled about; before which is a Fortreffe of ftone, with staires from the Street to the Fort. On one fide of this Street is the Palace of Atabalipa with Gardens and Lodgings, the houses all painted with divers colours : in. one roome were two great Fountaines adorned with plates of Gold, in one of which runnes water so hote that a man cannot indure his hand therein, the other being very cold. The people are neate, the women are honest, weare a wrought Girdle on their long garments, about that a 40 Mantle which courreth them from the head to the midft of the thigh. The men weare white Frockes without sleeues. The women in a Palace made Chicha for the Armie. After the Armies Chicha is a Frockes without fleeues. The women in a Palace made Chicha for the Armie. After the Armie kind of Drinke approached, a Frier of the Order of Saint Dominite, went and told him that the Christians were mideof Maiz. his friends. The (acique (Arabalipa or Arabualipa) answered, that first hee would have them Frier Vincent. restore all that they had taken in his Land, and after hee would doe as hee should see cause. The This is denied Frier with a Booke in his hand, beganne to speake to him the things of God; hee demanded the by Incavega, booke, and the Father gaue it him, and he threw it downe about his people. The Indian Inter- because (it preter ranne and tooks it vp and gaue it the Father, who fuddenly returned, crying, Cons forth thing teemes Christians, come forth, and fet on these Enemies, Dogs, which will not accept the things of God, whose odious, rather Prince bath throwne on the ground the Booke of our holy Law. Thereupon the Gouernour founded then falle; and the Trumpets, and gaue a token to the Gunner to discharge the Ordnance, and the Spaniards on he might not the Trumpets, and gaue a token to the Gunner to discharge the Grunance, and the Spaniards of tell tales offenfoot and horsebacke rushed on with such surie, that the Indians hearing the dreadfull thunders fine to Spanish of the Artilerie, and seeing the force of the Horses, fled: the Gouernour went directly to the eares:epsecial-Litter in which Atabalipa was whom hee tooke, many Indians whose hands were cut off bea- ly to the Friers ring the same Litter on their shoulders. Sixe or seuen thousand were slaine besides many which which authorihad their Armes cut off, and other wounded.

Atabalipa, by an Indian, fent to the other Indians, that they should not flee, for hee was fill to the prefie, aliue in the Christians hands, whom hee commended for a good Nation, and commanded his to ferue them. He was about thirtie yeeres old, a personable man, somewhat groffe, with thicke Attablis taferue them. He was about thirtie yeeres old, a personable man, somewhat group, with the ken; descripting, and eves incarnate with bloud; his speech grave. The next day the Spaniards got fiftie tion of his personable man, somewhat group, with the spaniards got fiftie them; description of his personable man, somewhat group, with the specific properties of the specific pro 60 thouland Pezos of Gold(each worth one Ducket and two Carolines) and feuen thouland Markes fon. of Silver, and many Emeralds, wherewith the Cacique feemed content : and faid, that he would giue him as much Gold as would fill a roome to luch a marke, higher then a tall man could reach A Marke is in by a spanne, the roome being twenty flue foot long, and fifteene broad. The Gouernour asked these discourhow much Silver hee would give ? he faid, that hee would have tenne thousand Indians, which les 8. ounces.

zed bis Booké

Hhhhhhb 2

. Thefe first ne Cross and chiefe Citie

there.

relation.

should make a partition in the midst of the Palace, and fill it with vessels of Silver of divers forts. all which he would give for his ranfome. The Governour promifed him his libertie on this condition, and to worke no treason against the Christians. Fortie dayes were set, and twentie nasfed in which came no Gold. Then we learned that he had taken his brother Cufco " his brother entiers of Peru by the father, a greater man then himfelfe. He had told fome, that Atabalina promifed the Gold call both Huay which he had, and hee would give the Christians foure times as much as the other had promised: which being told to Atabalipa, he caufed him fuddenly to bee dispatched. Hee killed another of Huster by the his brothers, which had faid he would drinke in Atabalipas skull, but contrariwise he drunke in his; which I my felfe faw, and all that went with Hernando Pizarro. I faw the head with the skinne, the fielh drie, and the haires on, and his teeth closed, and betwixt them a Pipe of Sil- ta uer, and on the top a Cup of Gold fastned to the head, with a hole going into it. His Slaues put Chicha into the Cup, which ranne by the mouth into that pipe, whence Atabalipa drunke. Anno 1933, the Gouernour gaue his brother Hernando leaue to goe with a Companie of Soaniards to Guamachuce, and there he found an hundred thousand Calliglians of Gold, which they brought for Atabalipas ransome. Diego Almagro came with an hundred and fiftie men to our fuccour. Because the Gold came so slowly, Atabatipa willed the Gouernour to send three men to Culco, laying the blame on his imprisonment, which made the Indians not to obey him. These Christians were carried by Indians in Hamacas, a kinde of Litters, and were ferued. They arrived at Nanxa, where was Chilicuchima, a great Captaine of Atabalipa, the fame which had taken Culco, which had all the Gold at his command. He gave the Christians thirty burthens of Gold, an of which each weighed an hundred pounds. They faid it was little, and he gaue them five burthens more, which they fent to the Governour by a Negro, whom they had brought with them. They went on to Cufco, where they found Quizquiz, a Captaine of Atabalipas, which made tourney to differ and gold little account of the Christians. He laid that if they would not restore his Master for that Gold he would give, he would take him out of their hands : and fent them prefently to a Temple of * In the infide, the Sunne, couered with plates of Gold. The Christians without the helpe of any Indias (for In the milde, 8c. See [up. in they refused, faying they should die, it being the Temple of the Sunne) with Pickaxes of Brasse the Inca Vegas disfurnished the same, as they told vs afterwards, and spoyled the Temple. Many Pots and veffels of Gold were also brought (which there they vied for their cookery) for ransome of their Lord Atabalipa. In all the house, there was such store of Gold, that it amaled them. They were 30 amazed to see one leat in their house of Sacrifices which weighed nineteene thousand Pezos of Gold: in another where old Cufco lay buried, the pauement and the walls were covered with plates of Gold and Siluer, which they did not breake, for feare of the Indians displeasure, nor many great earthen Pots there, couered with Gold likewife. In that House were two dead and embalmed, neere to whom stood a woman with a Maske of Gold on her face, which fanned away the winde and Flies. Shee would not let them enter with their shooes on ; they went in and tooke much Gold, but not all, for Atabalina had intreated them, because there lay his Father. They found there a great house full of Pots and Tubs, and veffels of Silver. They would have brought much more then they did, but that they were alone, and aboue two hundred and fiftie leagues from other Christians: but they shut it vp, and sealed it for his Maiestie, and the 40

Poore thifts for horic thooes.

Temple of Pachacamac, in the former relation. This Idell perhaps was that which the Natiues had kentirons before the lacas conqueft. for then they worthinged none, Efeter treatife of this Voyage is in Gouernour Francis Pizarro, and fet a guard on it. Ouer the Rivers as they passed, they found two Bridges together, one open for the vulgar, the other shut for the passage of great men. Hernando Pizarro travelling over the Mountaines with his Horse, where the way was made with hands in many places as a Scale or Staires, which ware off his Horse shooes, commanded the Indians to shooe his Horses with Gold and Silver, and so came to the Citie, bigger then Rome, called Pachalchami *, where in one filthie chamber was an Idoll of wood, which they faid, was their God which gives life to all things, at whole feete were many Emeralds fastned in Gold. They have him in such veneration, that none may ferue nor touch him, nor the walls of the house, but such, as they say, are called by him. It is certanie, that the Deuill there speakes to them, and tells them what they should doe. They come 50 300. leagues off to him, and offer him gold, filuer, and iewels, giving it to the Porter which goeth in and returnes them an answer. They which serue him must be pure and chaste, abstaining from eating, and women. All the Countrie of Catamer payeth him tribute. The Indians feared that the Ideal would have deflroyed the Spaniards: which nevertheleffe entred without fcraple, and brought very little Gold thence, for the Indians had hidden it all; they found the places whence they had carried great store; so that they got not about 30000, Pezos, & of a Cacike 10000, more. Chilicuchima sent them word, that he had store of Gold for them at Xanna, but deceived them.

They brought him and other great men to Atabalipa, which put coarse Cloth on them before their entrance, and did him great reverence, lifting up their hands to the Sunne, with thankes that they had feene their Lord, and came by little and little neerer him, and kiffed his 60 hands and feet, who shewed great signes of Maiestie, and would not looke any of them in the face. They tied Chilicuchima to a stake, and fet fire to him, to extort a confession of old Cuscos Gold from him, which (much burned first) faid that Quizquiz had it in keeping : and that old Cufeo, though dead, was still observed, and had victuals set before him; and told of another Pa-uilion, where were great veffels, from whence the Gouernour fent and fetched much Gold. The Christians came from Casco with aboue an hundred and ninety Indians laden with Gold. Some vessels were so great, that twelve Indians had much adoe to bring them. The Governous melred all the small pieces, which I can well tell, for I was keeper of the house of Gold , and saw it melted, and there were aboue nintie Plates of Gold: there were in that roome two hundred great tankards of Silver and many small, with pots and other peeces very faire. I thinke I *Canterla law weighed of the Silver coooo. Markes. There were also in the same roome eighty tankards of Gold, and other great preces : there was also a heape higher then a man of those places or very fine Gold ; and to fay truth, in all the roomes of the houle were great hils or heapes of Gold 10 and Silver. The Governour put them together and weighed them before the Officers, and then shole some to make the shares for the company. The Gourmour sent the Emperour a present of 100000, peloes in fifteene tankards, and foure pots, and other rich peeces. Euery footman had 4800. peloes of gold, which made 720% Duckets, and the Horfemen twice as much. besides other aduntages. Before the fining he gue Almagor company 25000, 'pefors, and 2000, 'Others fly pefors of Old to thoir which had staid as Saint Methods: and much gold to all that came with 100000. the Captaine, two or three great Cups of gold a peece to the Merchants, and to many which had gotten it, leffe then they deserued. Hay it, for fo it fared with me. Many presently, amongel which I was, demanded leaue to returne to Spaine, and five and twenty obtained it. When Atabalipa heard they would carry the gold out of the Country, he fent for men to come Atabalipas pre-20 and affault the Gouernour A few dayes before two Sounes of old ("for came thither and lodg- tended treaton ed with the Gouernour, one of them was naturall Lord of the Countrey. Vpon newes of for- " Manceces comming, they brought Atabalipa by night to a stake to burne him alive, by the command of the Gouernour; but he faid he would be a Christian; whereupon after Baptitme they thrangled him that night, and the Countrey was quiet. The Governour made the eldest Sonne of old Cufee Lord of the Country, which caufed great toy to the Natines. Wee arrived in Smil, January the fifteenth 1 5 34.

CHAP. XVL

The Conquest of Peru and Cusco, called New Castile, and directed to she Emperour by FRANCISCO de XERES, Secretary to Captaine FRANCIS PIZARRO which conquered them.

Rancis Pixarro lived in Panama which the Governor Pedrarias de Auila had peopled. He was Sonne of Captaine Gonzale Pizarre of Trugille : hee obtaines li- Pizarres bes cence of Pedratias to goe vpon new discourries; and having bestowed a good part ginning, of his effate in a Ship and necessaries, he departed from Panama Nouember the foureteenth 1524, with one hundred and twelve Spaniards, and fome Indians. Land of Ham feuentiedaies after they went on land, which after they named Of Hunger, with gre.

eightie men, the reft being dead, and fent she Ship to the Hand of Pearles neere Panama for victuals, hoping of their returne in twelue dayes, which continued forty feuen, they living on the Seas wilde provisions meane whiles, whereby twenty dyed, and the rest were very weake. A Cow hide which they had for fertice of the Ship, they had shared among it them and eaten before the Ship returned. Then did they proceede on the Voyege, and came to a Towne which the inhabitants had forfaken, where they found ftore of proussions: and the next day the Countrie Pizerro wounpeople fet on them, eafily ouerthrew ours being weake, gaue the Captaine feuen wounds very ded. 50 dangerous, and left him for dead; flew five, and wounded feventeene of the reft : whereupon they returned for Panama, and he stated at Chuchama to refresh and cure himselfe. A little before Diego de Almagro his companion was gone for his fuccour with a Ship and feuenty men; and landing at the place where Pizzero was beaten, was there affaulted and loft one of his eyes; many ded, Christians were wounded, but for all that they fired the towne, and put the enemy to flight: failing thence, they came to a great River which they called Saint Iobus, and found there some thew of Gold, and returned, and found Pizarro in Chuchama. Almagro was sent to Panama, where Pedrarias mill. ked and croffed this designe which had proved hitherto fo vaine; but he with much adoe returned with one hundred and ten men to Pi- Three yeares Zarro, with whom fiftie of the former remained of both companies, one hundred & thirty being troubles. 60 dead. In two Ships they fet forthand fpent three yeares in great trauell; hunger killed the most of them, that fiftie onely remained: not finding neuertheleffe any good Countrie. Then it was their hap to finde great hopes of Gold and riches, comming to Cancebi, and tooke fix men to cack Hand, learne their language. Almagro was fent for more men to Panama, whiles Pizarro flaied at Cock-Hand. But some had written to the Governour to be freed from thence. The Governour

Habbbb 2

Pizarre was fent into Spaine to get graunt of the Countrey, which in large Commission hee obtained, and after his returne departed from Panama with three Ships, and 180.men, and 27. Horfe. In thirteene dayes he arrived at the Port of Saint Matthen, which was as much as before Understand of he could doe in two yeares, and landing there, found all the Country in armes. They marched till they came to a great towne called Coache, which they fuddenly affaulted, and there got in Gold. to the value of 15000. Castellines, and 750 pounds of Silver, and many Emeralds, which they weight, as by mirks eight onner, by Ca-then knew not, and therefore for imall triffes exchanged them with the Indians. Thence the Go-In ounces by Cafillines Peros, vernour fent backe for men and horse to Panama and Nicaragua. He went with his Spaniards to the Isle Puna, rich and populous, which subsected themselves, and because it was winter. staid there. Thole Indians rebelled and railed forces. Hee tooke the Cacique (having vinderstanding hereot) and made great flaughter of the Ilanders, and having beheade ten principall men. he fet free the Cacique to call together the Handers, which had fled to Tumbez, Pizarro went thence to Tumbez, where he found the Indians in armes. Three which had gone in the Boates were robbed and flame, but Tumbez and many other places rued it. May 16. 1532. he departed from Tamber and was well received in many places, to which he gaue notice that he came to bring them in lubiection to the Emperor, and to the knowledge of the holy Catholik fai hito which many of the Caciques yeelded. Comming to a good River, which he found to have a good Port, he planted a Colonie fixe leagues from the Sea, and catted it Saint Michaels. At Chira he found that the Cacique of that Towne, and another of Almotaxe had confired to kill certaine Christians; hee tooke them both with their chiefe men and burned them aline. Sparing the Cacique himselfe of Chira, whose fault was left, and giving him Almotaxe also. This execution was creadfull to the whole Country. There he shared the Gold which the Caciones, and the men of Tumber had given them, and paid the Marriners their traight. He departed thence the foure and twentieth of September 1532 having newes of A: abalipa at Caxamal-Pigaresarmy. 62: 55, abode at Saint Michaels, and with the Governor remained 62, horfemen and 102, footmen,

As he marched he received better intelligence of Atabalips, and of Cufce, in which old Cufce

lay interred in a place which had the roofe and wals coursed with Gold and Siluer. Hee fenta 30 Captaine to Canas and Guaramba, with certaine horse and foote. He learned of the way (which he paffed betwix: thefe two townes, the latter of which had a faire ftone Caftle) that it reacheth from Cufce to Quite aboue 300 leagues, fo broad that fix hertemen may ride abreft, with water paffages all alongit for travellers to drinke, and houses for their lodging every dayes journat with Mishalizar pre- this Captaine returned an Indian with a prefent from Atabalipa, of two Fountaines of flone and two burtness of dried Ducks (which is the fashion of that Country) fignifying his great delire to fee the Governour at Caxamalca. All the way from the River of Saint Michaels to Chimeba is a Vallie well peopled, hath the way made by hands, walled on both fides with trees in many places let for fliadow, made by old Cufes. The people line much after one manner. They a factifice their children, and fprinkle the bloud on their Sepulchers, and daube their Idols faces therewith, 40 Their facrifices goe dancing and finging to their death. The Temples are compaffed with flone wals and feated in the highest part of the Citie. He fent an Indian meffenger to Atabalina with words of greatest kindenesse. Leaning the Chinchs way, he tooke that which goeth to Cassanalauthorderich ed, and alcended a great Mountaine, the horsemen leading vo their horses, sometimes mounting as it were by staires, there being no other way; till they came to a fortresse of Stone, walled with and founded on the rocks. As they proceeded in this Mountaine, they found it very cold. The wafedfuch imputers on the top were very cold that without heating they could not drinke them, and they let up their tents and made fires when they staid, because of the cold.

Here came meffengers with ten Sheep for a prefent from Atabalipa, which told Pizarre of the great victories which he had had against his brother. But hee answered that his Emperour was 50 King of Spaine, and of the Indies, and Lord of the whole world, & had many fernants which were greater Lords then Atabalipa; and be had fent him into these Countries to draw the people to the knowledge of God & to his Subjection; and with thefe few Christians, faid he, I bane ouercome greater Lords then is Atabalipa. If he will have friendship I will belpe bim in bis wars or leave him in bis estate, but if he choose warre, I will doe to him as to the Cacikes of Puna and Tumbez. The Indian which Pizarro had fent returned from Caxamalca and related that Atabalipa there abode with an armie, and would have flame him, had hee not faid that the like should be done to his Messengers, then being with the Spaniards: that he could not speake with him, but an Vncle of his, which had enquired of the Christians and their armes, all which he extolled to the vtmost.

The Gouernor came to Caxamalea the fifteenth of November 1 432. Atabalipa fent other mel- 60 fengers with prefents. Fernando Pizarre was fent to his campe with another Captain, which did his meffage to him, but he did not once looke on him, but was answered by a principall man; till the other Captain fignified that he was brother to the Gouernor; & then the tyrant lifted vp his eyes and obiected the reports of their ill viage of his Casiques, but for his part he would be friend

Saint Michaels founded. Cacite and othersburned.

pounds by

Long high-

before the Incar conqueft. But our Inca ship and Cafu Spaniar de deui . tations of for domy and humane factifices &e to couer their cruelties in ail places.

Caxanaka, Fertinand Pie CHAP. 16. Conferences of Span. with Atabalipa. Battell, prisoner, ransome.

to the Christians, taking them to be good men. They promised helpe against his enemies, He laid, he would employ them against a Cacique which had rebelled, together with his Soldiers. Pizarre answered, ten of their worlemen woul i be enough to deltroy him without helpe of your Indiant. Activities laughed and bad they should drinke, laying he would the next day ice his Brother, They to excute drinking, faid they raited but he importuned them, and women came forth with velicles of gold tull of drinke of Mayz. Hee looked on them without speaking a word, and they went againe and brought greater veifels of gold, whereof they dranke, and were licenced to depart. There feemed to be 30000, men in the Campe; they stood without their tents with lances without fight in their hands, ike to Pikes. The next morning, being Saurday, came a Mefl. nger from Atabali- otthe Indiana. to palisying that he would come to fee him with his people armed. He aniwered, that he should vie Brace bragge his pleature. The Gourmour had placed his horie and foote courtly in great houles that they clemone would In spirature 1 to Social Spirature of the figure being given, and the Orunance thereupon ded phere son discharged) then to rush out suddenly from invers pares & astaule the Indians. And seeing Asabaupa finke this ba flaid to long, till neere night, he lent a M. flenger to him, lignifying his defire to fee him, Hereupon filth store. he moved to the town with his armie in iquadrons, finging & dancing, richly adorned with g.ld diabeter rus and filter. The Governors purpose was to take him altue, or therefore expected his entrance into that walled or closes three of Caxamales, which the Indians had for taken with the fortreffe, & left quited, as Fig. to him.lt was late before he came into the town, and being come into the freete he made a stand. enrichmente The Governor tent Frier Vincent to him with a Creffe in one hand, and a Bible in the other, be- will sin the 20 ingentred where Atabahpa was, he laid by an Interpreter, I am a Prieft of God, and teach the extense, ret Confirms things dune, and come likewife to instruct you that which the great God hath raught thered, & that vs. and is written in this Booke. And therefore on Gods behalfe, and of the Christians, I pray you after they had to become their friend; for God commands it, and it shall be well for you; and come to speake made him a with the Gouernor which expect you. Arabalipa siked for his Booke, which he gave him that. Christian Circle with the Gouernor which expect you. Atabutpa asked for his DOOKe, which he gue him had entil faith that He not knowing which way to open it, the Frier stretched forth his hand to doe it, and he with God until d great didaine bit him on the arme, and at last opened it himselfe. And without wondring at the the Specified; letters or paper, as other Indians vie, cast it away fine or hx pices from him: and to the words for their cruelwhich the Frier had faid to him, he answered with great pride : I well wot what thou hast done ties to the lain this younge, and how thou but handled my Carpurs, and taken away their goods. The First and first and force the but fone Indian without the Government handled and the but fone Indian without the Government handled. did navall 30 (were time Christian have not done this, but some ladious without the Governours knowledge, drafts, all that who knowing it caused them to make rethrusion. Associate replied, I will not depart heace till had had in Athey bring it all to me. The Frier carried this answer to the Godernor, and that he had throwne rabalipes death the holy Scripture on the ground, who prefently fet on the Industriand came to the litter where ded milerably. Atabalpa was, and tooke him by the left arme, crying Saint lames, S. lames. The Ordnance placed fuffered the the trumpets found-dythe horie and foot fet forthy the Indiana fled, the horiemen pursuing & flay- wars, &che na

Biant, Picarro bid his priloner not be amafed at his captinity, for with these Christians, though fiant. Pixarro bid his priloner not be amaled at his captuity, for with these Constraint, though sea, definited few. I have subsected greater Lords then thou are to the Emperor, whose vastall I am, who is Lord whom God 60 of Spaine, and of all the world; a d by his order I am come to conquer these lands that you may plaged for the come to the knowledge of Gou, &c. adding many words of their pitte to the conquered and his rannies to the come to the knowledge or 100, occ. adding many words of the first of the knowledge or 100, occ. adding many words of the first of the knowledge of 100, occ. adding many words of the first of the knowledge of 100, occ. adding many words of the first of the knowledge of 100, occ. adding many words of the first of the knowledge of 100, occ. adding many words of the first of the knowledge of 100, occ. adding many words of the first of the knowledge of 100, occ. adding many words of the first of the knowledge of 100, occ. adding many words of the first of the knowledge of 100, occ. adding many words of the first of the knowledge of the kno the Gouernor thanked God for the bmiracle. The Sun was down before they began, and the batteli lafted halfe an houre, 2000. Indians were killed, besides those which were wounded, and Eftetes dif-3000. taken. In the free of Caxamalca, Pizarro caused to build a Church for the Masse, and fortie course of the fied the place against all occurrents.

Asabaling promifed for his ranfome to fill a roome 22.foot long, and 17.wide, with gold vp as highas the middle of the roome, higher by one halfe then a mans height, in pots and other vellels, plates & peeces ; and the same roome twice filled with filuer, in two moneths space. But so muen Hiras saib, not comming in fo foone, the Gouernor fent three men to Cufco, February 15.1533.commanding that in their

50 one of them in the name of his Maiefty, & prefence of a Notary, to take possession thereof. A Ne. Spatiard valugrowhich went with them returned, Aprill 28. with 107 burthens of gold, and seven of fillor, ed gold of 14. May 25. Fernand Pizarro came to Caxamalca with Chilcucima, May the thirteenth, the Nota carasst 7. and ry returned from Cufco with relation that they had taken possession, & had found 30. great Caties by the abunin the way besides imall. He laid that there was a Pallace with plates of gold, four esquare, each dance thereof fquate containing 350, pales from corner to corner, 700, of which they had taken away, each of which waighed 500. Castilians : from another house the Indians had taken as much as 200000. ming, pride & Castilians, which they reiected because the gold was base. He faid that Chischu was there with other vices; be 30000.men for guard of the Citie. They brought 178, burthens of gold, each as much as foure Is- (aith that the 60 disens bare on their necks, to that it could not come thither in a moneth by reason of requiring to three sent to many Indians to carry it. It was the thirteenth of June before the gold came from Enfes, winth fooles & heir was two hundred burthens & twenty five of Silver. After this came fix ie burthens of bale gold, behaujer caus taken from wals of houtes, it was shared on S. lames his day. The nith being taken out for his fd the Inches Maiefly, every horfeman had 8880. Cathlians in gold, and 362, markes in filter, such marke being to vinde value eight ounces. The tootemen had halfe to much, tome more and tome leffe, as the Gou mour

ing, the footmen killing all in the streete, the Governour got a wound on the hand in sung his methaloces. priloner. In all this hurliburly there was not an Indian which lifted up his armes against the Chrisming, Robleds,

* A Maske is

8. ounces and a Calilian is a

Pez which

containeth in conntation In-

64 Urga 450.

Marauediz: e-

or Caffelianes

being fix Duc-

feuen thillings

Miltrable som

kers: about

this Peru ac-

He fet apart a quantity for those of Saint Michaels, and for those which came with Alma gre, and the Merchants, and all the Marriners, Prices of things were according : a Horfe was commonly told for 1500. Castilians of Gold; a vessell of tix quarts (Bocali) of wine for sixtie Castilians, I paid fortie for foure quares: a paire of shooes for forty, as much, or fiftie for a sword. I paid twelve for halfe an ounce of had Saffron : ten for a sheet of Paper to write; nothing feemed cheape but Gold and Silver, infomuch that they would not fland to weigh their Gold, but gaue it in maffe; and if hee gaue not twice the quantitie, hee cared not. Debtors & went from METY C. PCASS house to house with Indians laden with Gold to pay their debts. Atabalipa beeing accused of to Treason by another Cacique, that he lought to rayle forces in Quito, was therefore sentenced tobe burned, and brought forth to execution, where he faid he would be a Christian, and Frier Vincent baptized him and comforted him at his death; the Gouernour commanded he should not be burne but strangled, which was executed on a Saturday, about the same houre that he was taken. One of his Brothers was made Lord by the Governour in presence of the Caciques, with great solemnitie, they litting up their eyes to the Sunne with thankes for giving them a naturall Lord, Fernando Pizarro was ient to Spaine, and some others had license, many flocking thither, hearing of the Riches there gotten.

Herera Dec. 5.1.3. faith that Atahuallpa had defired bis libertie because his ransome was paid and his promife fulfilled (as Pizarro himfelfe by found of Trumpet acknowledged) which being deferred bis Captaines offered bunto free bim by force. Atahualpa refused and commanded them to forme the Christi. ans. The Yanaconas a flandh hind of people, desiring to free themselnes from the Oreiones and Incas in those broyles rayled fulse news that Armies were rayled to affault the Spaniards. Pizarro feeing the Atahualpa flood in his way, and hindered bis foundation of a Spanish Empire in these parts, which could not be without the diffipation of that of the Incas, nor that without Atahualy as death . Yefto tenia por infto, pues era provechiofo, He beld it suft because it was profuable : Hee fluke to the Inca complaining of insurrection which he answered was but the rumour of his enemies, that he had paid his ransome or Pizziromade frem (diffembling bis purpose) of great feare of the enemies (which caused the Spaniards to verge and important A:abalipas death (and to ipeake as you have read in them) whereupon Pizat-To bad sufficient colour for his Designe, making show that the Treasure paid in name of a ransome ma new for the lnccs libertie, has lest the indians should hade it. Frier Vincent consented also, and so he mu fentenced to be burned, &c. Hee addeth out of Seneca, Profperum ac celix icelus virtus vocatur. Thus the Kings Chronicler , faring alfothat Pernand Pizarro was Atahualpas friend, and his brother did it after his departure. He died in Prifor, and all the rest (of whose names Hereis gineth a Catalogu) were flaine and murthered in ciaill marres, or came to ill ends. Yea, fill the warres continue in Arauco, to the death of many Spaniards, befides the civil marres of Giron, de. in Peru after that of the Pizatrifts. God is inst, and therefore Pizarto the Muntberer of Atahualpa (a cruell Murtherer alle) was murthered, and so bee that murthered Pizarro, and so forwards; the Serpents issue and Generation if Hell proceeds from muriber to muriber, the Deuil bimselfs being a Muriberer from the beginning Ones, Peru alone with Chili (beth subsetts to the Incas Empire) bath more advanced the Spanish Tressure 10 then all the New World besides : neither is there any so likely may to supplant that Cattilian-American greatnesse, as by the Araucos.

CHAP. XVII.

Relations of Occurrents in the Conquest of Peru after FERNAND PIZARROS departure written at XAVXA, Iuly 15. 1534. by PEDRO SANCHO, Notary Generall in the Kingdomes of New Castile, and Secretary to the Gouernour FR. PIZARRO, subscribed by the (aid Gouernour him felfe and others, and Cent to his Maiestie.

Care with Gold, part whereof was melted being final and fine pieces, taken out of the was of a certaine house in Care, being aboue fine hundred wedges or plates of Gold, the small weighting force of Gold, the small weighting force or care. En or twelve dayes after Fernand Pizarros departure, two Spaniards came from of Gold, the imall weighing foure or five pounds a piece, the greater ten or twelve. All the wals of that Temple had beene couered with them. They brought a chaire or throne of most fine Gold, weighing eighteene thousand Pezos, and a Fountayne of Gold of 60 excellent workmanship, and the mould in which it was cast; and many other pieces, pots and veffels : which all mounted to two Millions and a halfe, and beeing melted into most fine Gold came to be one Million 320000. Pezos and vowards : out of which his Maiesties fifth was taken, aboue 260000. Pezos, they made it vp 270000. Of Silver there was coood. Markes, his Maiesties part 5000, the rest was shared among it the company according to their qualities and merits. After this, the Gouernour made an act before a Notary, in which he acquitted Atabalipa of his promife to the Spaniards, for so much as the house would hold, and caused it to bee published in Caxamaloa by the found of a Trumpet, acquainting Atapalipa himlelfe therewith by an Interterpreter, declaring withall that for his Maierties service and security of the Country, he would fill detay ne him with a guard, till more Spaniards came for his fecurity : specially confidering that hee had taken order for leaying of men of warre to affault the Spaniards, which hee had no meanes to avoid but by keeping him fast, and his Captayne Generall Chilichuchuma. A few dayes

after the Indians renealed the Treatons of that Tyrant, notwithstanding all his good viage by the 10 Gouernour and Spaniards, which was preuented by his death: his fentence of burning by reason of his Baptisme being executed with itrangling, and after his death some part of his clothes and flefth were burned. It was late in the Euening, and the next morning he was folemnely buried in the Church, as if he had beene the chiefe Spannard in the Campe : which gaue much iatisfaction to his principali Caciques and Captaines.

This done, in prefence of many Commanders and Cacines he gaue them a Lord in the name of b Other Incas the Emperour, a Sonne of Guaynacaba (Huayna Capac, or as the Spaniards vie to call him Guai- madesone calthe Emperour, a Sonne of Guaynacaba (Huayna Capac, or as the Spaniards vic to call him Guati-nacapae) called Asabalapa, b to whom the Empire was due, and placed him in his Seat, they all to ferue the offering the Rites of validlage to him, to wit, a white feather, according to their custome. The Seaniards turn. new Inca faited three dayes for the deceaffed, thut up from all locietie but his Pages, and after Without them 20 came forth honourably attired and attended with about fifty Cacites and Captaines there pre- (as in the conlent, and did eat to gether on the ground (for they vie no Tables) after which, he offered a white cliffon they Feather in token of his vassallage to the Emperour. The Gouernour received it and embraced could being fo him with much loue, and concluded a peace, taking the names of the Cacikes, and the Countries femoure under their command, and intimated that he was fent by his Emperour to give them knowledge have perfected of the true God, Father, Sonne, and Holy Ghoft, and what they thould observe for their saluation; and that that God and his Vicars left on earth(for he alcended to Heauen their to remayne in wied the Custo glorie) had given those Provinces to the Emperour to take charge thereof, who had fent him to coans again & instruct them in the Christian Faith, and to bring them vinder his obedience : and caused his those of Quito, Commission to bee read and interpreted to them. They all acknowledged the Emperour for and lastly to Commilion to bee read and interpreted to them. I ney all acknowledged the Empirion for the form of their fupreme Lord, and next under him their Lord Atabasipa, and in figne thereof listed up the Spanish (each of them twice) the Royall Banner. All this act was entred into writing with testimonies, subjection. Afand great Feafts were made by them.

At this time the Gouernour ceased the partition of the Gold and Silver amongst the Spaniards, and Atabalipa gaue the Gold of the Fitths Royal to the Treaturer of his Maiefly, which was thing but faicarried to Xauxa where the Gouernour intended to plant a Colonie of Spaniards, having intelligence of the good Countrey thereabouts. He provided him of Indians for carriages, and fent a respurpose be-Captaine with ten Horsemen to inhabit Saint Michaels till ships came, and after that to returne ing aims y by to Xanxa. He heard that some of Asabalipas Captaines had flaine Gariticas his Brother, which any way to cgrieued much both the Gouernour and the present Aisbalipa. He as he marched heard of divers rectithe Spanife 40 which were vp in Armes against him, fine leagues from Xanxa, whereupon he put Chilachachima Second shain chaines, by whose meanes the report was that they had done it. They went and adiouned ring. themsclues to Quizquiz. When he came to Xanxa, none of his Spaniards were willing to abide Garitto flaine: there becaule the Countrey was in Armes, yet he left a Colony of eighty men with Officers. About this time died Atabalipa of sicknesse, of poyson given by Chilichuchima, as was reported, who fought to have the rule remaine in Quite, and not in Cufee. The Governour had them prote free fift, auidea Successor. Calichuchima would have Aticoe Sonne of Atabilipa, but others and the Gouer- sainst Culce: nour liked better of a Brother of Atabalipa (Sonne of Guanacapa.) He came to a Towne where lo after his he found much Siluer in great sheets of twentie foot long and one broad, a finger thicke. They death it was received intelligence of a skirmish with the enemy by another band of Spaniards, in which eighteene horses were hurt and one slaine; in another the Spaniards had the victory. The Governour nued against 50 caused Chilichuchima to be burned, who refuted to become a Christian, and called upon Pachaca- the incide there mac. After this he marched to Casco, which hee entred on Friday the fifteenth of November feeking to ad-1533. And the next day made that Sonne of Gusynacapae their Lord, being the right heire, and commanded the Cacikes to obey him. Incontinently the New Cacie (or Inca) gave order to affemble forces against Quezquiz; in tabalipato the foure dayes fine thousand were comne together well armed, with whom the Gouernour tent a Sourceignite. Captaine with fiftie Horle, remayning himlelfe for the guard of the Citie. These having done Chilichechima fomewhat against the enemy, were forced to returne by the ill mountanous pailages. The Cacique having faited three dayes, and performed and received the Rites of validlage (before mention made Lord. 63 ned in his Predeceffor)at the Gouernours request levied greater forces, fo that above five and twen- Third flaring tie thousand went with the Spaniards, which made a Bridge of three hundred and fixtie focte of gold and long, broad enough for two Horsemen to passe abreast, and passed to Bileas. Some of them went to the fuccour of Xanna which had obtayned good fuccesse against their enemies.

The Governour after this cauled all the Gold to bee melted by experienced Indians, which a ingold, ter which they

about Cufce, &

Josephs & mcB

mounted to 580200. Pezos and spwards of good Gold. The Emperours fifth was 116460. P. zos and vpwards. The Silver was melted, and weighed 215000. Markes, of which 170000 and vpwards was good, in Veffels and Barres, the reft alayed with other Metals. The fifth was deducted thence for his Maieftie. Amongst other things there were sheepe of fine Gold very great. and ten or twelue Statues of women in their iust bignesse and proportion, artificially composed of fine Gold. They performed like veneration to them as if they had been aline, clothing, adoring, gining them to eate and talking with them. There were others of Siluer in the fame thature. All this Treasure was shared betwixt those of Cusco and the Spaniards of Xauva.

In March 1534, the Gouernor affembled all the Spaniards, and made a folemne act of the form-Cufe a Specifi dation of a Towne and poffession taken in the midft of the chiefe ftreet, by the name of the noble and great Citie of Cusco: bounds were set out for a Church , and priviled ges allotted to such as within three yeeres should come thither to dwell. Aboue twelue thousand married Indians were deligned to the Province of Collao, to his Maiesties Mynes of Gold in those parts. After this he departed with the Cacique towards Xanxa. There he had newes of two hundred and fittie comne from Parama to Saint Michaels, seuenty of them horiemen, and of Alnarador landing with foure hundred men, and one hundred and fiftie horfemen, Hauing ouerthrowne his enemies, he tooke order for founding a Church in Xanxa, and fent some Spaniards with an Army of Indians to pursue the enemies. There is a Mountayne of Snow which continueth from Caramalea to X: uxa, where Snow lyeth all the yeere. The people are more civill and better Souldiers. On the other fide the Mountayne (Eastward) they are Sauage people feeding on fruites, having fmall flore of Maiz. All their Tribute was Feathers. From Xauxa to Cufco the Countrey enlargeth it felfe from the Sea. Collao is a plaine Countrey and cold, and hath many Rivers where gold Country de- is taken. The Mountaynes continue from Tumbez to Xanxa, and thence to Cufce, if the way bee not made by hands, footmen could not passe, much lesse horsemen : and they have many houses c Immatonare, full of Bralle to worke cyp the same. All the rough Mountaynes are wrought like staires dof stone. There are some places where soure or fine mens heights, the way is wrought and made up with stone worke; in others it is cut out of the stone. There are places of entertainment ineuery Countrey, and by the way one within two or three leagues of another, made for the Lords which vifit the Countrey : and every twenty leagues principall Provinciall Cities where the tributes of smaller places are kept. All those great Townes have store-houses full of the Countrey to Commodities. There are store of cattle and pastures with their Pastors.

ardsenter Peru.

The Citie of Cufco might be worthy the fight if it were in Spaine, full of great mens houles,

the most part The Fortreffe

Description of all Lords and Caciques, having houses there. The most of those houses are of stone, and some are Cufco, asit was halfe of ftone : the ftreets are ftraight in right croffes, and narrow ; in the midft runneth a Conduit of water inclosed with stone on each side of which a horseman may passe and no more. The Citie issituate on the top of a Hill, and many houses are built on the side of it, and others below on the Plaine. The Market place is square, paued with small stones. About it are source houles of Lords of Hone painted and wrought; the best of which was Guainacabas: the gate is of white and red Marble, and of other colours, and hath faire Terrasses. On the sides of the City ranne two Rivers, which rife a league higher, ouer which are Bridges. Vpon a Hill hard and rough is 40 a very faire Fortrelle of earth and itone, with great windowes towards the City. Withinit are many Roomes, and one principall Towre in the midft of foure or fine circuits e one higher then another; the Lodgings within are small, the stone very fairely wrought and so close loyned that there is no snew of morter, and as imooth as planed boords. It hath to many Roomes and Towres that a man is not able to view them all in a day. Many Spaniards which have beene in Lumbardie and other strange Kingdomes, say that they have never seene such a building as this Fortresle, nor Castle more strong. There may abide within five thousand Spaniards. It cannot be vindermined being feated on a Rocke. On the City fide which is a ragged Hill, is but one wall, on the other fide three, one higher then another, the inmost being highest. The goodliest spectacle are these encompassing circuits, being of stones so great, that no man would imagine them layd 50 there by the hands of men, as great as pieces of stonie Mountaynes and Rockes; some being of the height of thirty f spannes, and and as much in length, and none is so little but it is more 1050.

Acolla faith he then three Cart-lodes. The Spaniards preferre them before the buildings of Hercules or of the Romanes. They are reverfed & that they cannot be battered in plano, but in the flipping h turnagaines which goe outwards, made of the felfe-same stone. Betwixt wall and wall is earth laid to broad that three Carts may goe abreaft. They are made like three fteps, the fecond beginning on the height of the first, and the third on that of the second. All this Fortresse was a h Sguincio de :- Store-house of Armes, Clubs, Launces, Bowes, Arrowes, Axes, Shields, Cotton Mandilions quilted, and other armes and garments for Souldiers, gathered from all parts of the Empire, colours of divers forts and Metals. From this Fortreffe may bee feene many houses. In the Val-60 which is compassed about with Hils are about 100000. houses; many of them houses of pleafure of the Sourreignes Lords and Caciques, others are Store-houses full of Wooll, Armes, Metrals, Clothes and fuch things as the Countrey yeeldeth; there are Horses where the Tributes are kept, and there is one, where are about 100000, dried Birds, of whole Feathers they make

f Seefup. pagmea.ured fome aboue 38. foot long, g Voltati.

earments. And there are many houses for that purpose. There are Shields, Targets, Plates of Braile to couer houles, and incredible ftore of prouitions for Warre. Euery Souereigne Lord deceasted bath his owne house of these goods and Tributes which they had in their life (for by their Law the Successor may not inheret it) their Gold, Silver, and Clothesapart. They worship the Sunne and have made him many Temples, and of all things they offer somewhat to the Sunne. Two Spannards were sent to Colao, and were forty dayes in the journey. They say it is well peopled, mountay nous, and out of measure cold : so inbiect, that having many cattle, no man dates kill any without licente, though neuer fo great. There is a great Lake (Titicaca) in the midft of the Province, in which are two Ilands, in one of which is a Temple of the Sun in great to veneration, where they offer Gold and Silver and other things. There are about fixe hundred Indians which serve there, and a thousand women. The Mynes of Gold are beyond this place, some of ten some twenty, and that of Guarnacabo is forcy fathome deepe, darke and narrow, in which one alone at once, entreth, none following till he be comne forth. Other Mynes they pursue no further then a mans height, that he may reach the earth to another: which made fome lay that all the fields were Gold Mynes. Guainacapa is honoured as if her were aliue, and his bodie is brought forth into the ffreet with Musicke and Dances, and there are fome day and night attending him to chase away the flyes. The Lords that come to the Citie, goe first and salute him, and then the King. To these Fearlts 100000, soules affembled. Had it not beene for the quarrels betwixt those of Quite and those of Cuses, the Spaniards could not have entred into Cuses, nor have Note this 20 it. And the Mountaynes are such that ten men may defend ten thousand. Many Horses fell downe and brake their neckes. The Spaniards themselves maruell at what they have done, and how they are still alue. It hath falne out well that this Sonne of Guainacaba was made their Lord, for whose love other Lords have giuen their obedience to the Emperour. He is very friendly to the Christians. July 15. 1534. in Xanxa Subscribed Francisco Picarre, &c. The end of the seventh Booke. VOY-

OYAGES

LANDTRAVELS IN FLORIDA,

VIRGINIA, AND OTHER PARTS OF THE NORTHERNE AMERICA FRENCH

Plantings, Spanish Supplantings; English VI R-Ilands Azores.

THE EIGHTH BOOKE.

CHAP. I.

30 A Relation of A L W AR O N W N E z called Capo di Vaua, *concerning that which happened to the Fleet in India, whereof PAMPHILO.

NARVAEZ Was Gouernour, from the yeare 1527. Detill the yeere 1 $ 3 6. Who returned onto Small with three of bis companions only: translated out of RAMV-

SIO, and abbreniated.

Their Fleet; and admirable and unheard of tempest: their entrance into Florida : the Lakes, trouble some passages, incounters, disastrous successe, building Boats for returne.

HE fixteenth day of Iune, in the yeare 1527, the Gouernour The Gouernoon Pamphilo di Narnaez departed from the hauen of Saint Lucar of the Fleete. of Barrameda, with power and commandement from your Maiestie to conquer and gouerne the Prouinces, which lye from the River of Palmes vnto the Cape of Florida, all in the firme land. And the Fleete which the Gouernour brought with him The officers o-were five Ships, wherein fix hundred men went. The Officers, uer the Flecte.

because I am to make parti ular mention of them in this Booke, were their : Capo de Vana Treasurer, Agozino Pronost Marti-all, Alonso Enriquez Auditor, and Alonso de Solie Factor, and ouerleer for his Maicfie. And besides, there was for Commil-iary, a Frier of the order of Saint Francis, called Frier Gionanni, Ichn Gottierrez, and with him foure other Friers of the fame Order.

60 We arrived first at the lland of San Dominica, where we stayed but fortie fine dayes, to prouide our felies of certaine necessary things, and principally of Horses. There we lest more then S. Dominue.

an hundred and forty of our men, which would stay by promise and agreement which they of an numered and forty of our men, which would not the Village made with them. Departing thence, we arrived at Saint lago or Giacomo, which is The haucnof an hauen in the Iland of Cuba, and reposing our selues there certaine dayes, the Captaine furnish-S, Lames. ed himfelfe with men, munition, and hories. It hapned in that place, that a Gentleman, called Vafques Parcalle, neere vnto the towne of the Trimtie, which is in the fame Hand, offered the The Tainitie. Governour to give him certaine victuall, which he had in the faid towne of the Trinitie, which is an hundred leagues off from the faid port of Saint Iago. Whereupon the Gouernour departed with all the Fleete, towards that towne. But arriving halfe the way at an hauen which they call the Caue of Santa Cruz, it feemed good vnto the Gouernor to abide there, and fend one Shin Anhauen calonely to receive those vietuals, and so he appointed one Captaine Pantoxa to goe thither with of Saint (193 his ship, and that for the greater fecurity, I also should goe with him, and he remained still there with the foure Ships : we having now gotten another in the Iland of Saint Domenica. Being arrived with our five Ships at the haven of the Trinitie, the Captaine Pantoxa went with Valquez. Porcalle torcceiue the victuals at the towne, which was one league diffant from the hauen. One houre after I was landed, the Sea began to be outragious, and the Northwinde was fo ftrong, or to peff, not that the Boates durit not goe aland, nor could they with the Shippes in any fort put to the table both at Sca and Land. two contrary featons, and with much raine they continued all that day, and the Sunday The night approaching, the Sea and tempest began so much to increase, that it no leffe tormented those on the land then them at Sea; for all the houses fell downe, and all the Churches, and wee were entorced to goe feuen or eight men embracing one another arms in arme together, to be able to relift the winde, that it might not carry vs away, and to avoide the ruine of the houles, flying vnto the Forrest, the trees game vs no lesse cause of feare, then the houses had given vs : because they falling held vs in continual feare, an that they would kill vs. In this tempest and danger wee passed all the night, without finding any part or place, where for one halfe houre onely wee might fland fecure : hur principally, the midnight before wee heard noyles and great crying, and the found of Belies, Flutes, and Drummes, and other instruments, which continued vntill the more ning, that the tempest ceased. In those Countries so fearefull a thing had never beene feene. whereof I caused a testimoniall and true certificate to be made, which I have fent vnto your

the tempest.

On Munday morning we went downe to the hauen, and found not the Ships there, but faw fome of their furniture in the water; whereby we knew that they were cast away. And so we purpoied to goe along the coast, searching if we might finde any thing, but finding nothing, 30 we determined to fearth by the Mountaines, and having gone about a quarter of a league of from the water fide, wee found the Boate of a Ship fet vpon certaine trees: and further beyond. ten leagues along the coast they found two perions of my Ship, and certaine couerings and roofes of houses. And those two men were to actually transfigured and changed with weatherbeating, both of the shore, and of the Sea, that they could not know who they were, we found also a Friers habit, and a Conerlet torne in peeces, and found no other person or thing any more. Threefcore men were loft in those two Ships, and twenty horses, and those that remained aliue were thirty perions onely, who the fame day we arrived in that haven, went aland together with the Captaine Paniona. Wee remained in such manner for certaine dayes, with much trouble and great necessitie, because the sustenance and prouision of that people, was all an loft, and destroyed, with certaine wilde Beatls, and the Countrey remained in such fort that it moved great compassion in the beholders, the trees being falne, the mountaines burned, and remaining without leaves, or graffe, and so we passed untill the fift day of November, that the Gouernour of our Fleete came thither to vs, with his other foure Ships, who also themselves had passed great dangers and torments, and were escaped, because in good time they had retired themselves vnto some place of satety.

Fifth of No-

The men which he had brought with him, and those that he found there, were so much affright ted, and terrified with the loffes and dangers past, that they resolved to imbarke themselves no more in the winter, and befought the Gouernour that he would fuffer them to repose and rest themselves in those places; he perceiving their mindes, and the desire of the inhabitants, did io, 50 and gaue me the charge of the Ships, and the men, which should goe with me to winter at the The hauen of hauen of Xaqua, which is twelve leagues diftant from that place, and to going thither, we stated Sagua, or Xa jua. vntill the twentieth of February following. At this time the Gouernour came thither vnto vs. with a Brigantine which he had gotten at the Trinitie, and brought with him a Pilot, called Miruelo, who (as they laid) was a man very well practifed, and an excellent Pilot for all the coast of the North. Befides that, the Gouernour left on the coaft of the Liffars Captaine Aluaro delle Querda; with a Ship which the Gouernour had procured there, and lett forty men with him, and twelve other with the horfe. Two dayes after the Gouernour came vnto vs, wee imbarked our felues, and were (in the whole) foure hundred men, and fourescore horses in foure Ships, and one Brigantine. The Pi- 60 lot which we had newly taken, brought the Ships through the quicke fands, which they call Canerres, so that the day following we found our felues on dry land, and so remained fine dayes, the keele of the Ships oftentimes friking upon the ground. At the end of those fine dayes, 2

ftorme from the South brought fo much water vpon the lands, that wee might come out, although not without much danger. Departing thence, we arrived at Gnanignanico, where anothough not without in the freely, that we flood in great danger to be loft: at the head of the Guzzigusnico. currents we had another, where we staid three dayes. And these being ouerpassed, we went acurrents we nau another, the same and with a contrary winde, we went till wee came within The Cape of hour the Cape of Saint International and with a contrary winde, we went till wee came within The Cape of bour the Cape of the Hanana, and standing the day following to put in there, a Southerne gale S. Anthon. of winde tooke vs, which droue vs farre from the land, so that wee crossed ouer by the coast of The Hamans. Florida, and arrived the twelfth of Aprill, at the land of Marter; fo coasting the way of Florida, Marten. younholy Thursday in the same coast, we ancored in the mouth of an open roade, at the head whereof we faw certaine houses, and habitations of the Indians. 10 The fame day Alonfo Euriquez the Auditor went out of the Ship, and landed vpon an Iland which is in the same open roade, and called to those Indians, who came and abode with vs a good space, and by way of ransome gaue him fish, and certaine peeces of Deeres flesh. The day following, which was good Friday, the Gouernour imbarked himfelfe with as many men as the Boates could carry, and we went to the Villages or houses of the Indiant, which wee had seene, which we found all emptie and desolate, because that night the people were gone in their Canoes. One of thole houles was very great, and able to containe more then three hundred perfons, the other were much leffer, and there we found a little Bell of Gold within the Nets. The Great houses next day, the Gouernour admanced the Entigene for your Maietty, and tooks position of the whost bould be the Court of the the Court of the whost bould be the Court of the the Court of the the Court of Village in your royall name, and presented the Commissions and was received, and obayed as Golden Bell. 40 Gouernour, according to your Maiefties appointment. And so in like manner, we presented our The full towns other prouitoes vato him, which he accepted, and obeyed according to the contents thereof, and taken in Furthern prefently cauled the rest of the men to be shipped, and the horses, which were not about two da, in the Emand fortie, because the other, through the many tempests, and beating of the Sea, and length of perors name, time, were dead. And these sew that remained, were so weakeand wearied, as at that time we could doe little feruice. The day following, the Indians of those places came vnto vs, and although they spoke vato vs, yet notwithstanding we understood them not.

The Gouernour commanded that the Brigantine should goe coasting the way of Florida, and fearch for the hauen, which the Pilot Mernelo faid he knew, but was now aftenished, and knew not in what part we were, nor where the hauen was; and the Brigantine was appointed, that if 30 they found not the hauen, to croffe ouer to the Hanana, and finde the Ship wherein Alstare della Querda was, and having taken in some victuall, to returne to finde it. The Brigantine being deing departed, we returned to enter into the Village of the same people where we had bin before, with fome other more, and we coasted the gulfe which wee had found, and having gone about foure leagues, we tooke foure Indiani, and shewed them Maiz, because vntill that day wee had not yet feene any token thereof: they faid, they would bring vs where it grew, and so they brought vs to their Village, which was not farre from thence, at the head of the gulfe, and there they shewed vsa little Marz, which was not yet ripe to be gathered. There wee found many chelts of the Merchants of Castile, and in enery one of them was the body of a dead man, all which were covered with Deeres skins painted. The Commissary thought, that it was a kinde 40 of Idolatry, so he burned the chefts with all the bodies. We also found peeces of webs of cloath, and Pennacchi, which they had gotten out of Nona Hift aniela, and certaine * mosters of Gold. Whereupon we demanded of those Indians by fignes, from whence they had fuch things. They Samples by fignes, shewed vs: that very farre from thence there was a Prouince, called Apalachen, where- The Prouince in there was great quantity of Gold. Departing from shence, wee went further, carrying for apalates, guides those foure Indians which we had first taken, and so ten or twelue leagues off from that place, wee found another people of fifteene houses, where was a goodly Plaine sowed with Maiz, which now was ready to be gathered, and we found some also dry. There we abode two

May the first, the Governour caused two pound of Biscuit, and halfe a pound of Forke to be 50 giuen to euery one of them who were to goe with vs, and fo we departed, to enter within the land, The summe of all them who went, was three hundred men in all, among whom was the Commissary Frier lobn Scinarez, and another Frier, called Frier lobn de Palis, and three Clarkes, and the Officers. Forty of vs were on horsebacke, and so with that prouision which wee had brought, wee went fifteene dayes without finding any other things to eate, except Dates, like those of Andaluzia. In all this time we found not any Indian, nor faw any house, nor place inhabited : and in the end we found a River, which wee passed with much danger and trouble, by fwimming, and vpon rafts, and staied a day to passe ouer it, because it ranne with much fury. Having passed to the other side of the River, two hundred Indians came against vs, and the Go-uernour went before, and after he had spoken to them by signes, they made much signes againe 60 vnto vs, that we should in your selues with them, taking fine or fixe, who brought vs vnto their houles which were about halfe a league off, and there wee found great quantity of Maiz, which flaod now ready to be gathered. After some search of the Countrey to the Sea, wee departed from that place, alwayes (as we went) inquiring for that Prouince, which (the Indians faid) was called Apalachen, and brought for guides, them that we had taken, and fo went forward

Iiiiii 2

. Catique gni-

untill the feuenteenth of June, and found no Indians that durft abide our comming. There, a v Cd. eer 1 Lord 2- signe came vnto vs, whom an Indian carried vpon his necke, and hee was couered with a Deerse skinne painted, and brought with him many people, who went before him playing vpon certaine Fittes made of canes, and so came vnto the Gouernour, and abode with him an houre, and we gaue him to vinderstand (by fignes) how that we went to Apalachen, and by those fignes which he made vs, it feemed he ment to fignifie that hee was an enemy to them of Apalachen. and would aide vs against them. We gave him Crownes, Bels, and such other things, and he gave the Gouernour the skin which he wore voon him, and so turned backe againe, and we followed presently after him. That evening we came vnto a River, which was very deepe and very broad. and ran very furiously, and not presuming to passe ouer it vpon rafts, we made a Canoa, and staied one whole day to palle ouer it : fo that if the Indians would have injured vs, they might eafily have disturbed our passage, and yet although they holped vethe best they could, wee had Strong fream, much trouble. One of our Horiemen, called lobu Velasquez, a native of Cuellar, because he would him from his Horse, who catching hold on the raines of the bridle, drowned himselfe, together with the Horse. And those Indians of that Lord, called Dulcancellin, found the Horse, and told ve where we should finde him in the River below : and so they went to search for him, whose death King or Carigue much discontented vs. because vntill that time there was not one man of our company wanting. The Horse gaue many their suppers that night. And so having passed that River, the day following we came vnto the people of that Lord, who fent vs fome of their Maiz. The next day we departed, the Indians being fled. The Gouernour left by the way an ambufcado of certaine Horiemen, which as those Indians passed by, issued out vpon them, and tooke three or foure. who before lerued vs for guides, and they brought vs through a very troublesome Countrey to trauaile, and maruelous to behold, where were huge Mountaines, and very high Trees, whereof not flay, tooke the River with his Horse, and the current of the River being very strong . cast

Toubleforne Countrey.

fo many were fallen to the ground, that they intangled and stopped the way, in such fort that we could not palle without going farre about, to our great trouble; and of those trees that were fal-Trees clefe len, the greater part were clett from one end to the other, through the thunderbolts that fall wich thunderthere, great tempests being alwayes in that place : with this trouble wee marched untill the fix and twentieth day of lune, at which day we came within the fight of Apalachen before they of the Towne perceined vs. We rendered great thankes vnto God, feeing our felues fo neere vn- 30 to that place, and supposing that to be true which had been spoken, and hoping we should there end our great travailes which wee had passed, as well for the long and cuill journey, as for the great famine which we had fuftained. Because, although we fometimes found Maiz, vet for the

Apalachen.

that through hunger and wearinesse had wounded their shoulders with continuall wearing of their armes, besides the other calamities they daily incountered. - The Governour commanded me to take with me nine horse, and fiftie foote, and enter the towne, which the Controler and I did, and found none but little children, and women, because at that time the men were not there, but going a little way from those places, the Indians came, and began to fight, and shoot at vs, and slew the Controllers horse; but in the end they fled, and 40 left vs, There we found great quantity of Maiz which stood ready to be gathered, and had sufficient, of which was Jzy, romaining. We found there many skinnes of wilde beafts taken by hunting, and some garments of thred little and nought worth, wherewith the women couer some most part we went fix or eight leagues without finding any. And there were many amongstvs, parts of their person. They had many Mils to grinde Maiz. Among these people there were forty little houses, low built, and in close places, for feare of the great tempetts to which that Countrey continually is accustomed. The houses are made of straw of stubble, and compassed about with Mountaynes Great temstanding thicke together, and great Trees, and many Scas of water, where so many and so great Trees are false, that they trouble every thing, and cause that no man is able to travell there without great incumberance. The land from the place where we di barked vnto this people of Apalachen, for the most part is plaine, and the foyle confifteth of hard and folid fand, and throughout all the fame many great Trees, and famous Mountaines are found, where Nut trees are, and Labrani, and other, which they call Laguidambares: there are also Cedars, Sauine-trees, Holme-trees, Pines, Okes, and low Palme-trees like those of Cafile. Throughout all that Country there are many great and little Lakes, and fome are very trouble fome to paffe, as well for the great depth thereof, as also by reafon of the many trees, which are fallen there. The ground or bottome of them is fand : and thole Lakes which we found in the Prouince of Apalachen, are much greater then all the other which we had found untill then. There are many fields of their Maiz in this Province; and the houles are scattered through the Plaine, like those of Gerbe. The bealts which we saw there are Deere 60 of three forts, Conies, Hares, Beares, and Lions, and other, among which we faw one, that carrieth her young in a bagge, which shee hath in her belly, where shee carrieth them all the time that they are little, vntill they be able to goe, and feeke their meate themselves. And if by chance

Beafts.

yong in abag, the young stand feeking food without the damme, and people come vpon them, shee flyeth not before the haue gathered them into her bagge. The Countrey is very cold there; and there are many good pastures for flockes.

There are also many lotts of Fowle, Gossings in great abundance, Geele, Duckes, Herons, Fowles, Black-birds, and others of ditters fores and there we faw many Falcons, Ger-falcons, Sparrows hawkes, and many other fores of Birds. Two dayes after we came to Apalachen, the Indians that were fled returned vnto vs in peace, demanding their children, and we gaue them all, except one Cazaque of theirs; whom the Gonernour retayned, which was the occasion to cause them to depart offended; who the day sollowing returned as enemies, and affailed vs with fuch tury and fuddenneffe, that they came to To fee fire to the house where we were : but to foone as wee came forth, they fled and retired themfelues vnto the Lakes, which were very neere thereunto, Whereupon by realon of them, and the Come which was very thicke there, we could not doe them any hurt, face that we killed one man only. The day following, other Indians of another people, which was on the other fide, came to vs and affailed vs after the fame manner , that the other had done before , and fled likewife : and one of them also was flaine. We abode there fine and twentie dayes, in the which we caused three to enter within the Land, and found it very poorely peopled, and hard trauelling; in respect of the troublesome passages, Mountaynes and Lakes which are there. Wee demanded of the Cazigne whom wee had retayned, and of the other Indians whom wee had brought with vs, who were borderers and enemies to them of Apalachen, the qualitie and condition of that 20 Countrey, of the people, the victuall, and other things about it, who all plainly answered vs, that the greatest people of all that Countrey, were they of Apalachen, and that further beyond it was without people, and very poore, that all that Countrey, and theirs were ill peopled, and that the Inhabitants were much difperfed, and that going further forth, exceeding great Lakes are found, Mountaynesstanding thicke together, and mighty Defarts, and without Inhabitants. Wee asked them of the Countrey which lay toward the South, what people and fuffenance it had, who answered vs, that going from thence towards the Sea nine dayes journey, were a people called Aste, and that the Indians of that place had much Maiz, and that there were fmall Pulie, which are like to our Ciches and Gourds, and that being so neere to the Sca, sish was there to be found : and that they were their friends.

30 Seeing the pourty of the Country, we agreed to depart from them, and goe to feeke out the Sea, and that people of Ante, whereof they told vs. And so at the end of five and twenty dayes after we came thither, we departed. The first day we passed those Lakes and troublesome passages, without feeing any Indian. But the fecond day they came vpon vs , at a Lake which was very ill to paffe: lo that the water tooke vs vp to the breaft, and many Trees were falne there, fo that we being in the middelt thereof, the Indians affayled vs, they being hid behind the trees that we might not fee them : and others were voon the trees that were falne, and beganne to shoote at vs in such lort, that they wounded many men and horses, and tooke the guide from vs which we had brought, they suddenly cast themselves into the Lakes and wounded fifteene men and horses. The Gouernour seeing this, commanded them on horsebacke to dismount, and as-40 faile them on foot, and fo they did, and the Auditor difmounted with them, and affayling them put them all to flight, so that they entred into a Lake, and thus wee gained the passage of them. In that skirmish tome of our men (whose good armes they carried prevayled not) remayned Strong arwounded: and some of them swore, that they saw two Okes, each of them as great as a mans .ehret. legge, shot through from side to side with the Arrowes of the Indians. Which therefore is not a thing that wee should wonder at, seeing the force wherewith they deliner them, and I my felte haue seene an Arrow at the foot of an Elme, which entred an handfull in.

As many Indiantas we faw in Florida, vntill wee came to that place, are all Archers, tall of stature, and goe naked, and seeme to them that see them afarre off mighty Giants. They are maruelloufly well fet, pleafant, and of much firength and agilitie. The Bowes they ofe are as thicke Men of rall & as a mans arme, of eleuen or twelue spannes long, and they shoot two hundred paces off, and so rure, good 50 straight and levell, that they never shoote and misse. Having got over that passage, about one archess.

league from thence, we came to another Lake of the fame fort, faue that it was halfe a league long, which was much worfer then the former. This we quietly passed, and without disturbance of the Indians: because they having spent all the munition of their Arrowes, in that first affault, it remayned not in their power to be able to affault vs afresh. The next day following going ouer another fuch passage, I who went in the Vantgard descrived the Sauage people, and gaue intelligence to the Gouernour who came in the Rereward, and so going well ordered and prouided, they could not offend vs, and as soone as we were come forth into the Plaine, they came alwayes following vs. Whereupon turning about and dividing our felues into two parts, we flue two of 60 them. Auellaneda turning about ranne to helpe his boy, the Indians smote him with an Arrow on the tide of the Cuiras, and the flroke was such, that the whole Arrow almost went through behind the head, so that he suddenly dyed, and we carried him dead vnto Ame. We came to Amte, the ninth day after our departure from Apalachen: and found all the people of that place fled, having burned their houles. There we found much Maiz and Gourdes, and certaine Pulie which Jiiiii 3

The River Madelera.

we alto had discourred it as we went, by a very great River, which wee found by the way : and called it the River of Madalina, I was fent to discover the Sea, The day following we departed from Aute, and marched all that day vntill wee came where I had beene before : the way was very troubleiome, because the Hories were neither able to carrie there that were feeble, nor knew we what remedy to take, because they were enery day worse then other. Having proqued many remedies, we all agreed in one indgement, to put a very hard thing in execution, and than was to make Boats for ya to goe from thence. It feemed a thing impossible to all, because some of vs knew not how to make them, and wee had neither Iron Tooles, nor Forge, nor Ockam, 10 Pirch, nor Ropes, nor finally, any thing of to many, which were needfull in fuchan exercise : and about all we had not proution of victuall for to long time while they should be made. The day following it pleased God, that one of our men came, who said, that hee would make certaine Pipes of wood, and that with the skinnes of wild beafts, certaine Bellowes should bee made to blow, And finding vs at a time, wherein what thing foener he would, which had the leaft colour. or shadow of remedie, seemed sufficient; we said, that he should make them, and so we agreed. that of the Stirrops, Spurres and Croffe bowes, and other things of Iron which were among ve. Navles, Sawes and Hatchets should be made; and other Tooles of Iron, seeing they were so need. full. And we tooke for remedie, to have fome food while this should be put in execution, that four entries should be made into Ante, with all the Horse, and others that could goe thither. and that every third day one Horfe should be killed, to be divided among them that wrought in the making of the Boates, and them that were ficke. The entries were made with as many men and horses, as was possible, who brought thence about source hundred Staras of Maiz, although not without controuerfie and contention, with those Indians. We caused many Palmiti alio to be gathered, that with the woolley part and barke thereof, twifting and drawing them in length we might be able to vie them in itead of Ockam for the Boats. And we vied to great diligence therein, that beginning the fourth of August, the twentieth of September next fine Boates were finished, of two and twenty Cubits apiece, and we stopped the chinkes, and calking with Ockam of the Palmiti; and pitched them with a certaine Gumme. which a Greeian called Don Theodoro, brought from certaine Pine-trees, and with the fame barke of the Paimiti, and of the traines, and haire of Horses we made cordage and tackling . and made favles of our fhirts, and of the Sauine trees which were there, we made fuch Oares as we thought necessary : and fuch was that Countrey, whereinto our sinnes conducted vs , that no stones were found there, to ballaft the Boates, nor faw wee any throughout all that Countrey. Wee likewife flayed the whole legges of horses, and sewed the skinne together, to make bottles to carrie water. In this meane time, tome of our men went to gather Tamarindi in the frond of the Sea, where the Indian at two feuerall times wherein they incountred them, flue ten Christians, fo necreto our Tents, that we faw them, and could not helpe them, and found them that through from fide

Hard thife.

Ockam of

Strong fhot.

No ftones,

to fide, with Arrowes, to that although our men had excellent Armour, they were not able to refift their strokes, those Indians shooting with fuch dexteritie and force, as afcresaid. And our Pilots faid and fwore, that from the flat shoare which we called by the name of the Croffe, vnto this place, we frad gone about two hundred and fourescore leagues, little more or lesse, and in all that Miserable sue- Countrey we saw no Mountaines, nor had any notice by any meanes, that there were any, and before that we imbarked, besides those which the Indians had slaine, there were more then forty other men dead through ficknesse and famine.

colle of the Speniards in this Voyage.

The two and twentieth day of September, they ceased to eate horses, so that only one remayned, and on that day wee imbarked in this order. In the Gouernours Boate went nine and fortie men, and in the other which hee gaue to the Auditour and Commissary, went as many more. The third, he gaue to Captaine Alonzo del Castiglio, and Andrea Durante, with eight 10 and forty men, and another he gave vnto two other Captaines, the one called Telles, and the other Pigualofa, with feuen and forty men, and the fift he gaue to the Controller and mee . with nine and forcy men. And after the victuals and furniture, and other things were shipped, they arose no more then a fourth part about the water, and beside this we were so streighted, that we could not guide not turne in the Boats. Necessitie was so powerfull, that it made vs adventure to goe in this manner, and commit our felues vnto fo dangerous a Sea, without having any one amone vs. who knew the art of Nauigation.

Spiaggia de

That flat shoare from whence we departed, is called the Spoare of the Horses, and we went seuen dayes through those gulies with the water vp to the girdle, without feeing any figne of the Coait; and at the end of those seuen dayes, we arrived at an Iland which standeth neere voto the Land. My Boat went before, and we law fine Canowes of Indians comming, who forlooke 60 them all, and left them in our hands feeing vs come towards them. Our other Boates went before, and lighted yoon certane houses in the same Iland, where they found many of their Egges and Thorn-back were dry, and greatly releeued vs in the necessitie wherein we were.

After this, we went further, and two leagues from thence we palled a Strait which that Iland

CHAP. I.S. I.Miferable thirfs. Courteous Indians. Interchange of bostages. 1505 maketh with the Land, and called it the Strait of Saint Michael, because we passed it woon that The Strait of maketh with the Strate of that Strate, were arrived at the Coaft, where with the five Ca- Saint Michael nowes which I had taken from the Indians, we removed fome things out of our Boars, making them fast and joyning them to ours, so that they arose two handfuls aboue water, and therewithall we turned to goe along the Coast by the way of the River of Palmes, thirst and famine al- R. of Palmes. wayes increasing : because the victuals were very scant, and almost at an end, and we wanted water, because the bottles which we had made of the skinnes of horses, became fuldenly purified and mustie, and were good for nothing, and many times wee entred into certaine gulfes and flat shoares, which went farre within the Land, and found them all shallow and dangerous. And so 10 we went thirty dayes, and sometimes found some Indian fishers , a poore and miterable people : and at the end of their therry dayes, when our necessitie for want of water, was extreame, going to the Coalt, one night we perceived a Canow comming, and feeing her wee expected that the would have arrived; but although we called voto her the would not come nor behold vs, and because it was night we followed her not, but held on our course. When day began to appeared we faw a small Iland, and went thither to see if wee would find any water there, but wee labous red in vaine because there was none. While wee staved there, a mightie tempest atose voon vs. whereupon we abode there fixe dayes, not daring to put out to Sea againe, and having paffed fue dayes without drinking, our thirst was so great, that we were forced to drinke the Sca-water, and some dranke so largely that fine of our men dyed suddenly. We went out the same way, 20 which we had feene the Canow goe, the night before we departed thence. This day we faw our Miferable felues many times drowned, and to cast away, that there was none of vs, who did not assure him. felfe of death. But it pleafed our Lord God, who in the greatest necessities vieth to shew his famour, that about Sunne set we weathered a point which the Land maketh, where wee found it very calme and quiet. Heere many Canowes came towards vs, and the Indians that were in them, spake vnto vs, and without wonking at vs returned. They were a people of a great bodie and well fet, and carried neither Bowes nor Arrowes. Some of vs followed them vnto their houses, which stood neere vnto the water side, and leaped aland, and before the entrance of the houses, we found many pots of water, and great quantitle of fish, and the Lord of that Countrey

offered it all wnto the Gouernour, and taking him by the hand, brought him to his houfe (their houses are of Mats very well made.) And after we entred into the house of their Cazaque or Lord, he gaue vs much fish, and we gaue them bread of Corne which we brought, and they eat it in our presence, and demanded more, which we gatte them, and the Gouernour gave the Casigne many small trifles, and abiding with him in his house, about halfe an houre within night, the Indians affaulted vs, and the reft of our men, who road very ill, beeing cast vpon that Coast, they affaulted also the honse of the Cazique where the Gouernour was, and with a stone smote him on the face : and tooke the Cazique. But he having his men to neere escaped away, and left a Mantle of his of the skinnes of the Martinet Sables, which in my judgement are the best of all Rich Furres & the World, and have a fcent whereunto the fcent of-Ambergrife, and Muske is not compara- fweete Mariole ble : and the scent thereof was smelt very farre off. We saw also other but none like vnto that. Zibelline.

Now feeing the Gouernour wounded, we fet him aboord, and caused him to bring with him the greater part of the men vnto the Boats : and fifty of our men only remayned on land, to fight with the Indians, who that night affaulted vs three times, and with fo great violence, that every time they made ve retyrea ftones caft, fo that there was not one of our men, that was not

After this we returned to imbarke our felues, and fayled three dayes: and having taken a little water, as much as the few vefiels we had, were able to carrie, wee returned to fall into the same necessitie wherein we were first. And going on our Voyage, we entred into a Strait, where abiding we law a Canow of the Indians comming, and as we called vnto them, they came, and the Governour to whose Boat they were necrest, demanded water of them, who offered it him 50 if he would give them veffels wherein to carrie it: fo a Greeke Christian, called Theodoro, of whom mention is made before, faid that he would goe with them. And although the Gouernour, and many other laboured to diffwade him, yet he would needs goe thither, and carried a Negro with him, and the Indians left for hoftages two of their men.

Those Indians returned in the Evening, and brought vs our vessels without water, but brought not our two Christians againe: and those two men of theirs, who remayned for pledges, as soone as they spake voto them, would have cast themselves into the water, but our men who had them in the Boat held them, and so the other Indians fled and left vs much confounded and forrowful, for the two Christians which we had loft.

The morning following, many other Canoas of the Indians came vnto vs, demanding their two 60 companions which they left vs for hoftages. The Gouernour answered, that he would give them vinto them, so that they would restore vs our two Christians. Fine, or fixe Lords came with those people, and it seemed to ve, that they were of a very good disposition, and of greater authority, and retinue, then all the reft wee had found hitherto, although they were not of fo tall a fta- Defiption of ture as the other before mentioned. They wore their haire loofe, and very long, and were co-their maians.

1506

Current.

uered with mantles of Martinets, of the same fort whereof we spake before, and some of them were made of a very strange fashion, having certaine laces of the worke of Lions skinines . which feemed very faire. They prayed vs. that we would goe with them, and they would give vs one two Christians, and water, and many other things: and many Canoas came continually voon vs, endeauouring to take the mouth of that passage, and so therefore, because the place was very dangerous, we went out to Sea, where we stayed with them vntill noone, But, not being willing to reflore our Christians, and therefore we also would not reflore their two hostages, they brean to cast stones at vs with slings: making shew also that they would shoot at vs, although we faw not about three or foure Bowes among them. And while wee continued thus: a fresh gale of winde beganne to blowe, and they went their way. So, we fayled all that day vntill the Io evening, at what time my Boat that went before, discovered a point which the Land made, and at the other end I faw a River : then I anchored at a fmall Iland, which maketh that point . to flav for the other Boats. The Gouernour would not come neere it, but put into a flat shoate vety neere thereunto, where many small Ilands were, and there wee all met together, and tooke fresh water within the Sea, because the River ranne into the Sea continually, and with great violence. And that wee might bee able to bake a little Maiz which wee brought, because for two dayes before, we had eaten it raw, we went aland on that Iland, but finding no wood there, we agreed to goe unto the River, which was behind the Point one league from thence. And as wee went, the current of the River was fo great, that by no meanes it suffered vs to arrive, but drove we backe from the Land.

ð. I I.

Mifery pur sues them at Sea, and betrayes them to the Indians: thetr miserable lines and death.

ReEe (ayled foure dayes, enery one eating halfe a handfull of raw Maiz a day by ratement. At the end of these foure dayes, a tempest tooke vs, which made vsrecouer the Boat of Captaine Telles, and through the great mercy which God shewed to some of vs, 30 we were not wholly drowned. And being Winter, and exceeding cold, and so many

dayes wherein we had fustained hunger, with many blowes which wee received from the Sea. the day following the men began very much to faint, in such manner, that when the Sunne went downe, all those that were in my Boar, were fallen one voon the other, so neere vnto death, that few of them had any fense, and among all them there were not five that could stand on their feete, and when night came there remained no more but the Master and my telfe , that could mannage the Boat, and two houres within night the Master said vnto mee, that I should take charge of my Boat, because he was in such case, that he held it for certainty, that hee should die that night. And fo I tooke the rudder, and midnight being past, I went to see if the Master were dead, who faid vnto me, that fuddenly he was better, and that hee would guide the Boat vntill 40 day. Then furely I found my felfe in such state, that much more willingly I would have receiued death, then fee fo many men before me in that manner wherein they were : and after the Master tooke charge of the Boat I rested my selfe a little, but very vnquietly, because at that time nothing was further from me then sleepe. And about the morning me thought that I heard the noise and roaring of the Sea, because being a very lowe Coast it raged much, whereupon when I heard this, I called to the Master, who answered me, that he supposed we were now neere vnto the Land; and founding, we found our felues in feuen fathome, and he thought it fit, that we should abide at Sea vntill the day appeared. And so I tooke an Oare and rowed to the Lands fide, which we found one league diffant, and put the stearne to the Sea. And being neere to the Land, a waue tooke vs, which cast the Boat backe againe into the Sea as farre as a man might 10 well fling a stone, and with the great blowe which it gaue, almost all the men who remained there as dead, received their fenfes againe, and feeing vs fo neere vnto the Land, beganne to arife and goe on their hands and feete. And having landed, wee made fire in certaine trenches, and boyled fome of the Maiz which wee had brought, and found raine-water: and with the heate of the fire, the men beganne to recouer and take ftrength; and the day that we arrived there, was

After the men had eaten, I commanded Lopez de Ouiedo, who was the best able, and itrongest of all the rest, that he should goe close to any tree of them that were there at hand, and climing vp into one of them, he should discouer the Land where we were, and see if hee could have any knowledge thereof. He did fo, and faw that we were in an Iland, and found certaine poore Cot. 60 tages of the Indians, which flood folitary, because those Indians were gone vnto the field. And so he tooke a pot, a young whelpe, and a little Thorn-backe, and returned vnto vs. About halfe an houre after, an hundred Indian Archers came fuddenly vpon vs. who though they were great, yet feare made them feeme to be Giants: and they stood round about vs , where the first chree were. It had beene a vaine thing amongst visto thinke that there were any to defend vs. because there were fearce fixe that were able to nie from the ground. The Controller and I came towards them, and called voto them, and they came neere voto vs, and wee endeauoured the best we could to fecure them; so we gaue them Crownes and Bells, and every one of them gave mee an Arrow, which is a token of friendship, and they told vs by signes that they would returne water vs in the morning, and bring vs fomewhat to eate, because at that time they had nothing.

The next morning at the breake of day, which was the houre whereof the Indians had spoken, they came vinto vs, and brought vs much fish, and certaine Roots which they eate, and are like vato Nuts, fome bigger, and some leste, which they digge valer the water with much trou-10 ble. At the evening they returned againe, and brought vs more fish, and some of the same Roots, and brought also their wives and little children with them that they might see vs : and so they returned rich in Crownesand Bells which we gaue them, and the next day they returned to vi-fite vs with the same things, which they had done before.

Then feeing we were now prouided of fish, of those roots, and water, and other things which we could get, we agreed to embarke our felues, and proceed on our Voyage : fo wee digged the Boat out of the fand, where it was fast moored, and were constrained to strippe our selues naked, and indured great labour to launch her into the water. Being embarked, about two Crof-bow shots within the Sea, there came such a wave of water that it washed vs all, and being naked, and the cold excreme, wee let goe the Oares, and another blowe which the Sea gaue vs , ouerturned the Boat, whereupon the Controller and two other went out to escape by swimming : but the cleane contrary befell them, because the Boat strucke them under water, and drowned Three drowthem. That Coast being very faire, the Sea cast vs all aland on the same Coast, all tumbled in acd. the water, and halfe drowned, so that we lost not a man, but those three, whom the Boat Snote whiler water. Wee which remained aliue were all naked, having lost all that which wee had. which although it were but a little, yet was it much for vs at that time : and being then No-uember, and the cold very extreme, and being in such case, that a man might easily tell all our bones, we feemed to be the proper and true figure of Death. As for my felte, I am well able to fay, that from the moneth of May pait, I had not eaten any other thing then parched Maiz, and fometimes I was in fo great necessitie, that I have eaten it raw, because although the Horses were 30 killed while they made the Boats, yet I could neuer eate them, and I did not eate fish ten times. I speake this, that every one might consider, how we could continue in that case, and above all, the North wind blew that day, to that we were neerer with death, then life. It pleased God, that feeking the brands of the fire which we had made before wee embarked, wee found light there, and so making great fires, we stood crauing mercy from our Lord God, and pardon of our sinnes. with many ceares, every one of vs griening not onely for himfelfe, but for all the reft, that hee faw in the fame state. At the fetting of the Sunne, the Indian supposing that we had not beene gone, came to finde vs, and brought vs somewhat to eate, but when they saw vs thus, in so differing an habite from the first, and in such strange manner, they were so afraid, that they turned backe againe: but I went towards them , and called them , who beheld mee with much feare. 40 Hercupon I gaue them to understand by fignes, that the Boat was cast away, and three men drowned, and there they themselves saw two dead, and the rest of vs that were now remayning were going the high way to death.

The Indians feeing the misfortune which had befallen vs, and the lamentable case wherein we Humanitie of were, with fo great calamitie and miferie, came amongst vs, and through great griefe and com- Sauages. paffion which they had of vs, beganne mightily to weepe and lament, and that from the heart, infomuch that they might be heard farre from thence, and they thus lamented more then halfe an houre. And furely, seeing these men so depriued of reason, and so cruell after the manner of brute beafts, so bewayled our miseries, it caused that in me, and all the rest of our men, the compattion and confideration of our miferies should be much more increased. The mournfull lamen-Tation being Iomewhat appealed, I demanded of the Christians, whether they thought it fit, that I should intreate those Indians to bring vs to their houses, whereunto some of them that were of

Nona Spagna, answered me, that I should not speake a word thereof, because if they brought vs home to their houses, they would have facrificed vs to their Idols. Now feeing there was no other remedie, and that, what other way focuer, death was more certaine and more neere, I cared not for that which they faid, but prayed the Indians, that they would bring vs to their houfes, and they shewed vs, that it pleafed them very well, and that wee should tarrie a little, and they would doe as much as wee defired, prefently thirty of them laded themselves with wood, and went vnto their houses, which were farre from thence : and wee remained with the rest, vntill it was almost night, and then they tooke vs, and conducting vs, we went with much an-60 guish and heaumesse vnto their hou es. And because they feared lest through the extreme coldneffe of the way any of vs should die, or swound and faint, they had prouided, that by the way

foure or five great fires should bee made, fome small space distant each from other, and at every one of them they warmed ve, and when they faw that we had taken a little strength and heate, they brought vs to another, with fo great care, that they did not fo much as fuffer vs to fet our feete on the ground, and after this manner we were brought vnto their houses: where we found that they had prouided an house for vs, & many fires therein, and about one house after we were come thither, they beganne to dance and reioyce, which continued all the night. Although a mongst vs there was neither ioy nor sleepe, expecting when they would have facrificed vs. In the morning they returned to give vs fish, and rootes, and vsed vs so well, that wee somewhat affired our felnes, and loft fome part of the feare of facrificing. In those dayes wherein wee abode there, I faw a small Net, with one of those Indians, and knew that it was not any of them which wee gaue them, and demanding whence they had it. they answered me by signes, that other men, such as we were, gaue it them, who abode behind that place. I feeing this, fent two Christians, and two Indians, to shew them those men, and be- Io ing gone, they met with them very neere, who came to feeke vs out, because the Indians of those places had told them of vs. These men were Captaine Andrea Dorante, and Alonso del Cafielio. with all the men of their Boat. And being come vnto vs, they were afraid to behold vs in that manner wherein we were, and were very forrowfull that they had not any thing to give vs. hea cause they had no other garments, then those which they wore. And they abode there with vs. and told vs, how on the fift day of that fame moneth, their Boat had croffed ouer, one leave and an halfe from thence, and that they had escaped without losing any thing.

Wee all agreed together, to trimme that Boat of theirs, and that all fuch as had ftrengh, and abilitie to doe it, should goe therein, and that the rest should remaine there vntill they recovered: and that when they were able, they should goe along the Coast, and waite there till God should an conduct them with the rest of vs vnto a Land of the Christians. And as we determined, so wee did, and before we lanched the Boat into the water, Tamera an Horseman of our companie died: and the Boat which we thought should carrievs, she also made her end, and was not able to vnhold her felfe, but was fuddenly drowned. Whereupon being in that manner aforefaid, and naked, and the weather so vnseasonable to trauell, and passe ouer Rivers and Gulfes by swimming, and having no victuall, or any fustenance, nor meanes to carrie them, we determined to doe that which necessitie and force compelled vs vnto, that is to say, to winter there. And wee likewise agreed, that foure of our luftieft and ftrongest men should goe to Pannes, supposing it neere vinto that place. And that if it should please our Lord God, that they arrived there, they should give intelligence that we were there, and tell them of our necessitie and miseries. They who went 20 were very great swimmers, the one was called Alnaro Ferrante, a Portugall, who was a Carpenter, and a Mariner, the second was called Mendos, and the third Figeron a native of Toledo, and the fourth wasborne in Zaffra, and they carried an Indian with them of the Iland of Ania. These foure Christians being departed, within few dayes after there came such unseasonable weather of cold and tempetts, that the Indians could not finde the roots, and out of the channels where they were wont to fifth, they digged no fruit at all, and things falling out fo vnhap-pily, many people began to die: and fiue Christians who were in Xamo, ypon that Coast, came to fuch excremitie, that they eate one another, vntill there remained but one onely, because there was none to eate him. Their names are thefe Siera, Diego Lopez, Corral , Palatio, Gonzalo Ruis. The Indians were fo altered through this accident, and tooke fo great an offence, that without 40 doubt, if they had knowne it in the beginning, they would have killed them all, so that all wee had beene in very great danger. Finally, in a small time, of fourescore men (which wee were in care one another, for hun-

The Christians

happened to the Indiani, through the which halfe of them died, and they beleeved that wee were the men that killed them: and holding it for an affured truth, they contended among themselves to kill all those few of visthat were remaining; and now comming to put it in execution, an Indian which I had, faid vnto them, that they should not beleeue that we were those that killed them : for if we had such power, we would have procured, that so many men of our owne should not have died, which they had seene dead, without any abilitie of oursto remedie and helpe them, and that now wee were very few remaining, whereof none had done 50 them any prejudice or harme : wherefore it were better that they fuffer vs to line. Thus it pleafed our Lord God, that the rest followed his counsell and judgement, and so ceased from that purpofe. Wee called this Iland the Iland of Malhade.

they eate roots. At the end of Februarie they goe into other Parts to feeke food : because the roots beginne then to growe, and are not very good. This Nation , about all other parts of the

all) there remained onely fifteene. After this mortalitie, a certaine infirmitie of the stomacke

Iland Malhado.

The people which wee found there, are of a great stature, and well set, and have no other weapons but Bowes and Arrowes, with the which they are exceeding readie and quicke. The men haue one of their paps pierced from the one fide to the other, and there are some who have Pierced paps, them both pierced, and in the hole which they make, they carrie a Cane acrosse, of the length gallantry. of two spannes and an halfe and two fingers thicke. They likewise have the nether lippe bored, and within the fame they carrie a piece of a thin Cane, about halfe a finger thicke. The women indure much drudgerie and labour. The habitation which they make in that Iland, is from Octo- 63 ber vntill the end of Februarie, and their food is the rootes aforesaid, digged under water in Nonember and December. They have Weares, but have no fish but at this time, and before that world, love their children, and viethem beit. And when it happeneth that any one of their worth, some court with a state of the father, mother, and kindred, with all the people lament him, and the mour - Mourning for children dieth, the father, mother, and kindred, with all the people lament him, and the mour - Mourning for ning and lamentation, continueth one whole yeere, fo that every day before the Sunne artifeth, children, the parents beginne first to lament, and after them all the people, and they doe the same at noon, and in the morning : and the yeere being ended, they accomplish their Funerals, and honourable rites of Buriall, which they performe vnto the dead; and then they wash themsclues, and thirall the apparell which they wore. They bewayle all their dead in this manner, except the aged, whom they elterne nor, for, fay they, that they base now paffed their time; and are Age dieffeeno more good torany thing, but occupie the earth, and take away the maintenance from Infants to and little children. They vie to bury the dead, vileffe they be fuch as are Phyficians among them, Phyficians whom they burne, and while the fire flameth they stand all dancing with great joy, and make burned.

The Indians poore life.

powder of the bones : and when the yeere is past, wherein they performe the honourable rites, vnto their dead, they all tumble, and wallow vpon the earth, and give that powder of the bones to the kusfolke, to drinke in water. Euery one haue their proper and peculiar wives. The Phyficians are they that have most libertie, who may keepe two or three wives, and among them there is great friendship and conformitie. When any marrieth his daughter, hee that taketh her, bringeth vnto the wite, whatfoeuer he taketh by hunting or fishing, euen vnto the day wherein he is espoaled vnto her, who carrieth it vnto the houle of the father, without daring to take or eate any thing thereof: and afterward they bring food to the house of the father-in-law for 30 him to eate, and in all this time, neither father-in-law nor mother-in-law enter into their house, nor are they to enter into their house, nor the houses of their kindred. And if by chance they meete each other in the way, they goe a Crol-bow shot off one from the other, and so long time as they thus goe farre off, they hang downe their heads, and cast their eies on the ground; for they hold it a wicked and an euill thing to be feene, and to be spoken vnto. The women haue libertie to conuerse with the fathers-in-law, and other kinsfolke ; and they of that Iland haue Filihie and this custome more then fiftie leagues within the Land.

They have another custome, and that is this, that when any of their brethren or children die, for three moneths they prouide nothing to eate for them of the house where they died, but let them die through hunger, if the kinsfolke and neighbours prouide them not somewhat to eate. 20 Whereupon, at the time that we were there, many people dying, there was very great famine. In the most part of the houses, because they strictly observe their eustomes and ceremonies : and they who prouded food for them, it being a very hard time, could finde but a little. And voon this occasion, those Indians that had mee went out of the Hand, and in their Canoas passed ouer vnto the firme Land, vnto certaine flat shoares, where they had many Oysters : and for three moneths in the yeare they eate no other thing, and drinke very bad water. They have great scarcine of wood, and great multitudes of Flies: their houses are made of mats spread woon the In Ils or Oyiters, and ouer them they sleepe voon the hides of beafts, which yet they have not but by a chance. And so we continued vntill the middle of Aprill, that wee went to the Seacoalt, where wee eate Mulberries all that moneth, wherein they end their sports, and felti-

40 uall iollitie.

In that Iland whereof I have spoken, they would make vs Physicians, without examining They are made vs, or demanding the titles of our profession, and because they heale the infirmitie with blowing Physicians. wpon the difeated , and cure them with that , and with their hands : they would that wee also should doe the like, and serue them in any thing whatsoeuer. But wee laughed thereat, saying it was a left and mockery, and that weeknew not how to heale, whereupon they tooke away our food, vntill we did that which they faid. And feeing our vnbeliefe, an Indian faid vnto me, that I knew not what I faid, because stones and herbes that growe in the fields have vertue, and that he with an hot itone, laying it vpon the stomacke, cured the paine: and that wee who are men, muit of a certaintie haue greater vertue, then all other things of the world. In the end, feeing Learned argue 50 our selues in so great necessitie we were constrained to doe it, yet not hoping to helpe any at all : ment, the manner and meanes which they observe in curing is this, that seeing themselves sicke they fend for the Physitian, to whom (after they are cured) they give all that they have; and besides procure other things from their kindred to give them. The cure which the Phylitians doe vnto them, is to cut certaine gashes where the disease or griefe is, and sucke it round about. They seare Manner of it also with fire, which among them is held a verie profitable thing, and I have proved it and it curing. fucceeded well. After this, blowing in the place where the griefe is, they suppose the disease thereby to be removed. The meanes whereby we cured them, was to bleffe them and blow vpon them, and fay a Pater noster and an Aus Mary, and pray the best we could voto our Lord God, that he would give them their health, and put it into their hearts to vie vs well. It pleafed his

60 mercy that all they for whom he praied, as soone as wee had bleffed and hallowed them, taid vnto the rest that they were found and well : and for this they vied vs verie curteously and left eating themselves to give it vnto vs , and gave vs skins and other trifling things. The famine was to exceeding great in that place, that many times I continued three dayes withou. eating any thing at all , and to did they alto, infomuch as I thought it impefible to bee able to live : although afterward, I found my felfe in farre greater famine and necessitie, as I shall hereafter fpeake.

The Indians who had Alonfo del Caftiglio, and Andrea Dorante and the rest that remayned line : being of another Language, and other parentage, passed ouer to another part of the firme Land, to eate Oysters where they abode vntill the first day of Aprill, and presently after they returned voto an Iland neere voto it about two leagues, for that it yeelded more water, and the Iland is halfea league ouer and five in length. All the people of that Countrey goe naked, and the women only have some parts of their bodie couered with a certaine kind of Cotton which they gather from certains trees, and the Damfels couer themselues with the skinnes of wild beafts. The people differ much one from another in their Garments. There is not any Lord or Cazione to among them, and all they who are of one Family and stocke goe together. Two forts of Langua ges dwell there, one of them that are called Capaques , and the other Han: they have a custome. that if at any time they fee fuch as they know, they fland halfe an houre lamenting, before they fneake : and after that, he that is vifited arifeth first and giveth vnto the other whatforger hee polleffeth, and he receiveth it : and a little after he goeth away with that Garment, and fometimes after they have received it, they depart without speaking a word.

Lamentable falurations.

> After Dorante and Callielie returned to the Hand, they gathered together all the Christians who were fomewhat difperfed, and found them fourteene in all. I (as I faid) abode on the other fide in the mayne Land, whither my Indians had brought me, and where a great fichnesse tooke me. Now when the Christians knew that, they gave the Mantle of Martinets (which weehad 20 taken from the Cazique as aforefaid) vnto an Indian that he might bring them where I was, to fee me : and fo twelve of them came, because the other two were so weake, that they feared to bring them with them. And when they were come to the firme Land, they found another of our men, called France (co del Leon. All these thirteene went along the Coast, and as soone as the Indians who kept me were gone, they adulfed mee, and told mee that Ieronime d' Alaniz, and Lope & Ouiedo, were yet remayning in that Iland. My infirmitie hindered mee that I could not follow them, and to I faw them not otherwise, and I was of necessitie to flaw with those same Indians of the Hand more then a yeere. But by reason of the great trauell and paines whereunto they put me, as also their euill ysage of me, I determined to flye from thence, and passe ouer vnto them, who abide in the Mountaines and firme Land, whom they call the Indians of Corn. 30 so, because I could not induce the life, which I led with the other. For among many other painfull labours, I was compelled to digge Roots under the water, and among the Canes where they grew under the ground. And here with I had my fingers to spoyled, that a firaw that should have touched me, would have drawne bloud; and the Cares being full of folinters tare mee in divers parts, among which I was to goe with the Garment aforefaid, which I wore, Whereupon I endequared to goe from thence vnto those other, and with them I continued somewhat better. And because I made my selfe a Merchant, I was carefull to performe that office with the best knowledge I had. And for this cause they gave mee food, and vied mee well, and prayed mee to goe from place to place for fuch things as they needed, because in respect of the Warres which they continually make among them felues, there is neither trauelling, nor much trading among 40 them : fo that now with my trafficke and Merchandile, I went throughout the whole Countrie as farre as I would, and trauelled along the Coaft, fortie or fifeie leagues. The principall trafficke I had, were pieces of thels of the Sea, and their hides, and thels wherewith they knit a certaint fruit like vnto Beech maft, with the which they prouide for their dancings and festivall sports: and this is the greatest thing of price among them, and crownes of the Sea, and such other like things. And this is that which I carried within Land, I afterward carried hides in exc. ange, and red Ocre with the which they anoint and die their faces, and their haire: I also carried fint flores to make Arrow heads and Glue, and friffe Canes to make Arrowes : and certaine flockes which they make of Decres haire to died, that it remayneth coloured. And this office greatly analed me, because I had libertie to goe whither I would, and was not bound to doe any thing, for I was 50 not a flaue, and whitherfoeuer I went they vied mee well, and gaue mee fomewhat to eate in refpect of my Merchandize, but that which most imported mee, was, that going thus I fearched, and faw how I might see further : and among them I was very well knowne. And fuch as knew mee not defired my company, and procured meanes to know mee for the fame which I had among them. I continued about his yeeres with them in that Countrie alone, and naked as they all goe.

Queuenes and Dragnanes, In-

Igot Lope de Onieda to travell with me to feeke out the Christians : but hearing by the Indians that only three were left of our company, he left me : and I remained alone with those Indians, who were called Quenenes, and they with whom Lope went, were called Dragnanes. Two daies after Lope de Oniedo was gone, the Indians who kept Alonfo del Caffiglio, and Andrea Dorante 60 came vnto the place, as those other Indians had foretold vs to cate of certaine Nuts, wherewith they maintaine themselves, grinding certaine graines with them two monethes in the yeere, without eating any other thing; although they have them not every yeere, because some yeeres they grow, and some not. They are of the bignesse of those of Galiera, and the trees are very great, and are there in great number. Being now neere vnto the place where they lodged, Andrea Dorante came forth to fee who it was, because the Indians had now told him that a (brifti-47 was come. And as foone as he faw me, he remained much aftonished, because they supposed I had beene long fince dead, for to the Indians told them. Wee gave God heartie thankes to fee one another, and that day was one of them, wherein wee had the greatest joy and pleasure

And after comming where Castiglio was, they asked mee whether I would goe, I answered, that my purpole was to passe into the Land of the Christians, and that I went seeking and searching how I might doe it. Andrea Dorante answered, that long since hee intreated Castiglie and to Escusmico, that we might go further, but they durst not venter to do it, because they could not iwimme, and greatly feared the Rivers and Gulfes which they were to passe over, there being many in those Countries. Wherefore seeing it had pleased our Lord God to preserve mee among to many dangers and difeates, and in the end to bring mee into their company, they determined to flie, and that I should carrie them ouer the Rivers and Gulfes which wee found. And they aduetized mee, that by no meanes, I should let the Indians know that I would goe further, because they would presently kill me, and that for this cause I was of necessitie to stay with them fixe monethes, which was the time in the which those Indians went into another Countrie to cate Tune.

Thele Tame are certaine Fruits of the bigneffe of an Egge, red and blacke, and of a very good Tame, fruits of 30 tafte. They eate them three monethes in the yeere, wherein they eate no other thing, and be- India. cause at the time when they gathered them , other Indians beyond would come with Bowes to contract and barter with them, we (when they returned) might escape from our Indians, and goe with them. With this determination I remained there, and yeelded my felfe a flaue vnto an Indian, with whom Derante abode.

These Indians are called Mariane, and Caffiglio remained with other of their Neighbours, called Iquales. And whole we continued there, they reported vnto mee, that after they were come Iquales. out of the Hand of Malbado vpon the Sea Coaft, they found the Boat wherein the Auditor and the Friers croffed ouer, and that paifing thole Rivers which are foure, and very great : the many currents tooke the Boat wherewith they went to Sea, and foure of them were drowned, the reit 30 with much labour passed the Gulfe; and that fifteene leagues surther they found another, and as foone as they met together there, two of their companions died in the time that they had trauelled fixtie leagues, and that all the rest were yet at the point of death, and that all that journie they had eaten nothing but Creui'es and Herbs of the wall, and comming to this last Gulfe, they faid, that they found Indians who flood eating of Mulberies, who when they faw the Chris firms they went vnto the other end, and so they standing still and denising meanes to passe the Gulfe, an Indian and a Christian came vnto them, and being come, they knew it was Figheroa, one of the foure we had fent before from the Hand of Malbado, who recounted vnto them in what manner he and his companions came to that place where two of them and one Indian died all through cold and famine, because they were come thither in the hardest time of the yeere: 40 and that the Indians had taken Figheros himfelfe and Mendes , which Mendes fied afterwards. travelling the best hee could towards Panner; and that the Indians followed after him and flue him, And that abiding thus with those Indians, her enderflood that with the Marianes there was a Christian, who had passed to the other side, and he found him with them whom they call

Queuenes. Which Christian was Gernaudo d' Esquinel, a Native of Badaioz, who came in the company of the Commissary, and that from Elgainell, hee vinderstood what end the Gouernous had, together with the Auditor and the rest: telling them how the Auditor and the Friers had lanched their Boat into the Rivers, and comming along the Coast, the Governour landed his people, and went with his Boat untill they came unto that great Gulfe, where he turned to take in his men, and paffe ouer to the other fide, and returned for the Auditor and the Friers, and all the o reft. And he declared, that being thus imbarked, the Gouernour revoked the authoritie of his Lieutenant, which the Auditor had, and gaue that charge vnto a Captaine that went with him. called Pantoffa, And that the Gouernor stayed that night in his Boat, & would not come on Land, and the Matter abode with him, and one Page who was not well, and they had neither water nor any thing to eate in the Boat : fo about midnight to hard a gale of winde from the North tooke them, that it droue the Boat into the Sea before any one faw it, for he had nothing to releeue him but one flint stone, and they knew not that he had any other thing besides. And when the men who remained on the land faw this, they went along the Coast, and finding the water so rough, they made floats with much trouble and paines, and so piffed ouer vnto the other fide. And going further they came to the point of an Hill at the water fide, and found Indians there, who 60 when they faw them comming put their things into their Canowes, and palled our to the other fide of the Coast. So the Christians seeing what the time was being in November, abode in that Mountaine becaute they found water, wood, and certaine Creuifes there, where through cold and famine, by little and little, they beganne to die. And beside this, Pantoffa who remained

Lieutenant, vied them very ill, and not being able to indure it, the Sergeant Maior Brother of

The Somiards

A crue'l cu-

ftome of he

Indians, who while they

children (as foone as they

cate them, be-

marrie them

to their enemics not to their kindred.

P enurious

ther beaftly

mine which cause they would not

Valquez Porealle, who came in the fleete from Cuba, Master of the Campe, revolted from Pantoll 4, and fmote him with a piece of wood, with the which blow hee died, and fuch as died became the moriels of the other, and the laft that died, was the Sergeant Major, and Elanine did the like, and eating him, maintained himfelfe vntill the first of March, that an Indian one of them who fled from thence came to fee if they were all dead, and after brought Efquinel away from thence with him, who being in subjection to this Indian Figheroa spake with him, and understood all this of him which wee have before declared, and prayed him to come with him. that they might goe together towards Pamico : but Esquinel would not doe it, faying, that hee underflood by Friers that Pamico was behind them, and to he remained there, and Figheroa went to the Coast where he vied to abide.

All this Figheron reported vnto vs, by the relation which Efquinel made vnto him, and to from hand to hand it came vnto me. Whereby hee might fee and know the end which all that fleete had, and the particular mitchances which happened to euerie one of the reft. And hee further faid, that if the Christians at any time should goe through those parts, it might bee, that they thould fee E(quinel, b. caule hee knew that hee was fled from that Indian with whom hee abode, vnto the other which are called Marianes, who were their Neighbours. And to having ended his Discourfe, he and Afteriano, were about to goe vnto the other Indians that were further beyond, but those Indians who kept them perceiving them, went forth and came to give them many Bultinadoes and spoiled Asturane, and wounded him on the arme with an Arrow, but yet in the end they fled, and the other Christians remained : and procured those Indians to take them an for flaues, although abiding with them and feruing them, they were as entity intreased as everany flaues were or other men of the World. Because of fixe which they were, not being contented continually to buffet, and cudgell them, and placke off their beards with the skinne, only for their pultime and recreation and only for going from one house to another, they killed three, who are those of whom I spoke before, to wit, Diego Dorante, Valdeniesse, and Diego de Helma and the other three that remained, expected that they also should make the like end, and not being able to indure that life, Andrea Dorantes fled to the Marianes, who were they with whom Efquinel abode, and they themselves reported that they had kep: Efquinel there, who afterward would have fled, because a woman had dreamed that hee should kill a childe of hers; the Indians purfued him and flue him; and they afterward shewed Andrea Dorante his Sword, 30 Crowne, Booke, and other things which he had.

They have this custome also even to kill the same male children while they sleepe, and when the female children are borne, they leave them for the Dogs to eate, and cast them away in those viero kill their places. And the reason why they doe it is this, because they say that all they of the Country male children are their enemies, and make very great warres with them. Wherefore if by chance they should marrie their Daughters, their enemies should be the more increated, who would subject them, fleep, and caft and hold them all in captinitie. And for this cause, they would rather kill them, then have any borne of themselves to become their enemies. Wee demanded of them why they married them not among themiclues, who answered, that it was a beaffly thing to marrie them voto their kinare borne) to dred, and that it was much better to kill them, then give them for wives vnto their kinsfolke 40 and enemies. And they obterue this custome, and other of their Neighbours also called laguanes, and no other of that Countrie, but they observe the same. And when they take wives, they get the women of their enemies, and the price which they pay is the best Bow that they can get, with two Arrowes. And if peraduenture they have not a Bow, they give a Net of the widenesse of a mans arme, and as much more in length. Dorante abode with them, and not long after fled from them. Caftiglio and Effenamico came into the firme Land to the laquanes. All they are Archers, and well tet, although they be not fo great as the other which we left behind, and have all their paps and their lips pierced like them. Their food principally are roots of two or three forts, which they feeke throughout the whole Countrie, which are very hard and puffe vp fuch as eat them. They flay two dayes to roaft them, and many of them are very bitter, and withall they 50 dig them with much paines, but the famine in those Countries is so great, that they cannot line The Indians in without them 1 and they goe two or three leagues to feeke them. They fometimes kill any will e beast whatsoeuer, and at certaine times take fish, but this is so little, and their hunger so great, Vipers, and o. that they eat Frogs, Ants Egs, Wormes, Lizards, Salamanders, Serpents and Vipers, which with their stinging kill men : they also eat earth, wood, and what souer they can get the dung of wild things, by reabeaits, and other things which I leave to report, and I certainly believe, that if there were flones in that Country they would eat them. They keep the sharpe bones of fishes and Serpents, which continually is they eat to grind them all afterwards, and so eate that powder. The men load not themselves nor carrie bardens, but the old men and women do all this, who are least effeemed among them, they beare no fuch loue to their children as the other doe, whereof I have spoken before. There are fome among them, who wie that finne which is against nature. Their women are very fufficient, and able to indure labour, for of the foure and twentie houres of the day and night, they have but fixe hours of rest, and all the greater part of the night they spend in heating their Ouens, to dry those Rootes which they eate. And when the day beginneth to appeare, they beginne to draw water, and carrie wood vinto their houses, and give order for other things which they want.

CHAP.I.S.2. Nimble Hunters. Troublesome flies. Intendment of flight crossed. 1513

nion they want. The greater part of them are great Theenes, because although among them they are well di- Theones. uided, yet if the Father or the Sonne turne but their heads about, the one taketh from the other whathour he canget. They are great and monthrous Liers and great Drunkards, and for that purpole they drink: a certaine kind of drinke. They are fo well vied to runne, that without rething themselves, or standing still at all, they runne from Morning vntill the Evening following Indians which a Deere, and in this manner they kill many, following them untill they tire them, and forme- runne a whole a Decre, and in this manuser they and many, to nothing usern what they the them yet of the times take them aline. Their houles are of Mars fee vyon foure Arches, and they take them yet of the thousand of the times take them aline. Their houles are of Mars fee vyon nothing at all to be able to pring the manuscript of the times the time haue fruit thereof, and are a very pleasant and cheerefull people, and not with standing the great running, est-hunger they indure, they cease not to dance and sport themselues. The best time which they have is when they eate Tune, because then they have no hunger, himaline in and pale all that time in dancing, and eate day and night all the time they have them. They the chair. wring them, open them, and fet them to dry, and beeing thus dried they hang them up in Garlands like figges, and keepe them to eate by the way, when they returne thence: they also dry Does life. their Pils and make powder of them. Many times while we were with them, it to tell out, that Tune-time, we continued foure daies without eating any thing, because it was not there to be had; to make vs merrie they told vs, that wee should shortly haue Tune, and should eate many of them and 20 drinke their juice, and fill our bellies very well, and that wee should be verie cheereful and contented, and without any hunger. And when they told vs this, it was fue or fixe monethes to the time of Tune. And when the time came, wee came to eate Tune, and by the way wee found many flies of three lorts, very milchieuous and noisome, and all the rest of the Summer they put wato much Fliestroubletrouble, And to defend vs from them we made fires of rotten and moult wood, that it might not some, burne but make a smoake, but this defence put vs to another trouble, for all the night wee did nothing elfe but complaine of the smoake which came into our eyes, and also of the great heate Noiseme rewhich the much fire gaue vs , and wee went out to fleepe by the fide thereof, and if at any time medic. we could fleepe, they remembred vs with their bastinadoes to returne and make the fives burne. 30 They who dwell further within the Land, vie a remedie for these flies, as intollerable as this and worfe, that is to fay, they got with fire-brands in their flands burning the Fields and the Woods and the world wherefoeuer they meete with them, to make the flies to flie away : and fo also they vie to digge wnder the earth for Lizards, and other fuch like things to eare them, they vie allo to sold Deere; compassing them with many fires. Which they also doe to take away food from the beatts, that they might be constrained to goe from thence to find it, where they would have them. For they

40 them to be eaten, and in the fires which they made to hunt the flies, and tarried till the next day to take some thing to carrie with them by the way. When they depart they goe so miserably vexed with flyes, that they seeme to have the disease of Lazarus, and in this manner they expell hunger two or three times in the yeere with fo great paines as hath beene faid : and because I have proved it, I dare affirme, that there is no travell in the World found like vnto this. They found Oxen there and I faw them three times, and eate of them : and (as I thinke, they Oxen of that are of the bignesse of those of Spaine. They have little hornes we the Moresche cattle, and very Countrie. long haire, and some of them are ash-colour, and others blacke, and in my judgement they have better haire and much thicker then those of our Countries. Of those which are not great, they 50 make Garments to couer them, and of the greater they make shooes and Targets and these came from the North further through the Land vnto the Coast of Florida, and extend themselves farre within the Land more then foure hundred leagues. And in all this way, through the Vallies by which they come, the people that dwell there, come downe and eat of them, and fend great ftore of hides into the Countrie. When the fixe moneths were ended, wherein I abode with the Christians, hoping to put the determination made betweene vs in execution, the Indians went to eate Tune, which might bee fome thirtie leagues from thence, and being now readie to flie from them, the Indians with whom we about, fell at variance among themselves about a woman, and beffetted and beate her, and broke her head : and for the great hatred and anger they conceived, they tooke their houses, and 60 every one went vnto their place. Whereupon it was necessarie, that all the Christians who were there, should separate themselves with them, so that by no meanes wee could meet together againe vntill the next yeere : and in this time I passed much miserie, as well for the great famine I indured, as for the cuill viage, and had entertainment those Indians gave mee which was such, that I was faine to flie three times from those Masters that kept me, who all came diligently to Kkkkkk 2

neuer fettle themselves todwell, but where wood and water are, and sometimes they load themfelues all with this prouision, and goe to feeke Deere, which (most commonly) abide where Decretisant there is neither water nor wood : and the day they came thither they killed Deere, and some o- dry placesto ther hunting game fuch as they could get, and confumed all the water and wood in preparing avoid Hunt-dead men. &c.

Bor. faith hec.

that they billed

feeke me that they might kill me, but it pleased our Lord God , not to suffer them to find mee and to preferue me from their hands through his infinite mercie.

As Coone as the time of Tane returned, wee Christians found our selves together agains in the fame place where we werebefore, and having now joyned together to flie from thence, and appointed the day, that very felfe fame day the Indians leparated vs, and every one went voto their place, fo I lad voto the Christians, that I would expect them at the Tune, vntill the Moone were full, and that day when I faid this vinto them, was the first of September, and the prime of the Aloone. And further I affured them, that if they came not within that time, I would go thence alone and leave them. And fo we separated our schees, and every man went with their Indians. and I flaved with mine vntill the thirteenth of the Moone; and my determination was to flie 10 thence vnto the other Indians, when the Moone should be full. On the thirteenth of the faid moneth. Andrea Dorante and Estenamico came vnto me and told me, that they had left Castiglio with other Indians, whom they call Canagadi, who dwelt neere thereabout, and that they had passed many mileries, and had lost their way. And that the day before our Indians removued from their place, and were gone towards the place where Caffielio abode to ioyne themselves with them who kept him, and make themselves friends having beene enemies and at warres, even vn. till that day: and in this manner allo we recovered Caffiglio. In all the time that were eate the Time were were thirstie and for remedie wee dranke the juice thereof, which wee powred in a trench which we made in the Earth, and when it was full, we dranke thereof vntill we were atisfied: it is sweet and pleasant, and of the colour of new wine boyled, and this they doe became there are no other veffels there wherein to put it. There are many forts of Tune, among which fome are verie good, although all feemed good vinto me, and hunger gaue mee no time to bee able ches. For although they have Rivers there, neuertheleffe, because they never have any certaine and fetled place of abode, they have no particular water knowne to them, or appointed place where to take it. Throughout the whole Countrie there are many great and goodly fences, and of excellent pasture for flockes and herds of cattle, and it would be a very fruitfull Countrie if it were manured, and inhabited by a people which had reason and knowledge. We saw no Mountaines in all that Countrie all the time we flayed there. Those Indians told vs , that further beyond there were another people, called Cameni, who live toward the Coast, who had ilaine all the men which came in the Boat of Pigualofa and Telliz, and that they were all so weakeand ficke, that although they killed them, they did not any way defend themfelues, and to they made an end of them all, and they shewed vs their Garments and Wespons, and that the Barke remayned there on the other fide. This is the fift Boat which made up the account, because wee What became have alreadie faid, that the Sea carried away the Boat of the Governour, and that of the Andtour and the Friers was seene cast athwart the Coast, and Efquinel declared the end of them. The two wherein Castiglio, my selfe, and Dorante went, we have alreadic said, that they were

The greatest part of all this Nation drinke raine water, gathered together in certaine Tren-

ò. III.

Their flight from the Indians to others, wonderfull cures, backe and belly cares : their tranells thorow the Countrey, and hungry adventures. Divers peoples and their customes.

drowned at the Hand of Malhado.

Fter we were remoued from the place, about two daies journey from them, wee recommended our felues vnto our Lord God, and went flying thence, hoping that although 30 the time of the yeerewere now late, and the Tune ended, yet with the fruits that remained in the fields, wee should be able to trauell a great part of the Countrie. And io going that first day with much feare that the Indians would have tollowed vs. wee saw certains smoakes, and going towards them after the evening we faw an Indian, who when hee faw vs fled without tarrying for vs. Whereupon we prefently fent the Negro vnto him, who when he faw him alone stated for him. The Negro faid voto him, that we came to feeke out those people that mode those smoakes, so he answered, that their horses were neere that place, and that hee would guide vs thither, and to we followed him and hee went running to give notice of our comming. And about fun-fet we faw the houses, and about two crosse-bow shoots before weecame thicker, we found foure Indians who stated for vs and courteously entertained vs. Wee told them in the language of the Mariames that we came to leeke them, who leemed to be glad of our company, and to they brought vs to their houses, and placed Dorante and the Negro in the house of a Phifitian, and me and Cafinglio, with certaine others. These people have another language, and are called Ausuares, and are they who yied to bring the Bowes vnto those our first matters, and to contract with them: and although they be of another nation and language, yet they understand the language of them with whom we first abode; and they themselues also that selfe same day came into that place with their houses. The people presently offered vs much Tune, because they knew vs both that we had healed them.

The verie fame night that we came thither, certaine Indians came into Castiglio, and told him that they had veriegreat paine in their heads, intreating him that he would heale them : and after he had bleffed them and recommended them vnto God, in the verie same instant they said enat they were well, and that the paine was gone. So they went into their houses and brought Curcavery vs much Tune, and a piece of flesh of a wilde beast, which we knew not what it was. This being wonderfull. 10' published among them, many other diseased people came that night that he should heale them, yet ruc. and eueric one of them brought a piece of Venison, and they brought so many that we knew not Beago (which where to put them. We yeelded great thankes vnto God, who to continually euerie day increa- trauelled tourfed his mercie and his grace towards vs. Thus when the cures were ended, they began to dance the ludies with and fing their rimes, and make their sports vitill the next day at the rifing of the Sunne, and this the Spaniards feltiuall iollitie continued three daies by reason of our comming thither. Afterward wee asked from 1541.) them of the Countrie beyond, and of the people and victualls that are found there, and they an faith that of it fwered vs. that throughout all that Countrie there was much Ture, but that they were now ended and that we should find no people, because after they had gathered the Tune, eueric one company sears returned to their houses, and that it was a verie cold Countrie, and verie few skinnes were by timereumed,

Seeing this, and confidering that the Winter, and cold time of the yeere was come we agreed to winter with them. And at the end of fine daies, after we came thither they departed thence, by breathing and went to leeke other Tune, where other people were of other Nations and divers languages : and having rauelled fine daies journey with much hunger, becaufe neither Time, nor other fruits the fickerained are found by the way, wee came to a River and fet vp our houses there, and after went to seeke to life three certaine fruits of a tree like vnto a fig tree, and there being no high way in all those places, I flaied longer then the rest in finding them, and so they returned to their houses, and I remained alone, and comming to seeke our men that night I had almost lost my selfe: and it pleased God that I pardon me, will found a tree under the which there was a fire, and at that fire I palled the cold of that night. In easter believe ao the morning I loaded my felfe with wood, and taking two fire brands I returned to feeke them.

and went in this manner five daies, alwaies with my fire and burden of wood, because if my fire should have beene extinguished in places where there had been no wood (as in many places there raised hade one is none) I was to kindle other fire brands and not to remaine without fire, because I had no other remedie against the cold, being as naked as ever I was borne. And in the night I had this reme- Ben. 1. 2. 2. 13. die, that I went to any small plat of ground beset with trees neere vnto the Ruer , and there a- I permit ome bode before the Sun went downe and made a trench in the ground and put much wood therein, ons, more tor which they vie to doe of certaine trees, whereof in those places there is great abundance, and knowledge of put many shokes together of such as were falne and drie, and about that trench I made foure fiers the Countrey, a croffe, and thought to come from time to time to renew the fiers, and had made certaine bun-then for credit dels of traw, whereof in those places there is much, and therewith I couered me in that trench, in the Indies. and in this manner defended my selfe from the cold of the nights : and on a certaine night and which you shall the fire lite on the straw which couered mee while I was sleeping in the trench. So the fire befind in Ca/as of gan to burne verie fiercely, and although with much furiel leaped out, yet the token of the dan- another nager which I had passed remained in my haire. In all this time I eate not one morfell nor found ture. These any thing to eate, and going thus fcorched and finged much bloud isfued from my feet, and God vied great mercie towardes mee that in all this time the North winde blew not, for otherwise to connect the there had beene no remedie but I must needs haue died. At the end of my fiue daies I came to a peorlete God, River fide where I found my Indians, who together with my Christians held me for dead, and al. and therefore River lide where I found my Indians, who together with my Constitutes need to dead, and are not like to wates thought that some viper had itting me. And when they found me they greatly rejoyced to have any difee me, but principally the Christians, who faid vnto me, that vntill that time they had trauelled uine begin-50 with much hunger, and for that cause they came not to seeke mee, and that night they gave mee ning, but re of the Tune which they had. The day following we departed thence, and went vnto the place either sally where much Tune was, wherewith we all fatisfied the great hunger which we had, and we Chriflians gave many thankes vnto our Lord God, who left vs not without remedie.

The next day many Indians came to vs in the morning, and brought five ficke men with them, the Father of who were lame and verie ill, and they came to feeke Caffiglio that he might healethem, and eue- fallhood. And ry one of them that were difeased gaue him their Bowes and Arrowes, which he received, and at why may they ry one of them that were diffeafed gaue him their Bowes and Arrowes, which and recording to the fetting of the Sun he bleffed them, and recommended them vnro God, and wee all belought to the Deuill, him with the best denotion we could that he would give them health, seeing wee saw there was either a clies it 60 no other remedie but to doe the best we could that those people might helpe vs, that so we might neuer done so willish Ares to maintaine rapine and superstition, which are here mentioned the eff. Es thereof? Atola tells of a great miracle-Worker in the Ladies, a vicious man, and hanged for knaueries. This Comes-Head the Author is also by Schmidd before, recorded for a bad man in his acts state Riuce of Plate, I will conclude with S. Aug de vnit, Ecc. 16. Removemble ills, wel figures mendations hominum vel pertenta fallacium fpirsenum Ge. Kkkkkk :

1516 Indians cured by Christians. Dead raifed. Diabolical Superstition, LIB, VIII.

be able to get out of that miferable life ; and his infinite goodnesse dealt so mercifully with ve that when the morning came they all arole as found and strong, as if they had neuer had any difeafe. This caused them much to wonder, and likewise to render infinite thankes vnto cor Lord, and that we more entirely acknowledged his great goodnesse, and had assured hope that he would deliner vs, and conduct vs vnto the place where we might better ferue him. And for my felte. I can boldly speake, that I alwaies had an affured trust in his mercie, that hee would raise me from that captiuitie, and to I alwaies faid to my companions. When the Indians were gone. and carried away their ficke men healed, wee went thence, where the other abode eating Tame. and these are called Cacalcuches and Maticones, who are of another language, and together with them were other called Coaiss and Susolas , and on the other fide others called Ataiss, and they In maintaine warres with the Sufolas, and they shot every day amongst them : and because in those places they talked of nothing elfe but of miracles which our Lord God wrought by our meaner. they came from many parts to feeke vs that we might heale them, and at the end of two daies wherein we staied there, certaine Indians of Sufolas came vnto vs and intreated Castiglio that hee would goe to cure one that was wounded and other ficke men, faying, that among them there wisone who was readie to die. Castiglio was a verie fearefull Physitian, especially when the cures were grieuous and dangerous, and beleeued that his finnes would have caused that all the cures should not succeed well. The Indians faid vnto mee, that I should goe to heale them. because they wished mee well, and remembred that I had sometimes healed them where the nots grew, and that for the fame they had given me nuts and hides : and this was when I cameto 10 ioyne my felfe with the Christians; wherefore I agreed to goe with them, and Dorante and Efe. And when we were come neere vnto the Cottages which they have, I saw the sicke man whom we went to cure, who was now dead, and about him stood many people lamenting, and his house plucked downe, which among them is a signe that the master thereof is dead. So when I came I found his eyes distorted, and that he had no pulie, and had all the tokens of a dead man, and as it feemed to mee it was fo, and Dorante affirmed the same vnto me. I tooke vo the matt which he had upon him to couer him, and the best I could I prayed unto the Lord, that he would give mee grace to give health vnto that ficke men, and to all the rest that had need thereof. And after I had bleffed him and blowne vpon him many times, they brought me his Bow and gaze it youto me, and a cheft of Time; and brought me to cure many other who were ill at eafe with gid. dinesse, and gave me two other chests of Tune, which I gave vnto our Indians which came with vs, and having done this wee returned vnto our lodgings : and our Indians to whom I gauethe Tame remained there, and at night returned to their houses also, and faid, that hee who was then dead whom I had cured in their presence, arose vp and was well, and walked, and eate, and spoke with them; and so all the rest which I cured remained found without any seuer, and very cheerges opinion be full. This caused very great admiration and seare, and throughout that whole Countrey they speake of nothing elfe. All they to whom this report went came to seeke vs, that we might healt them and bleffe their children; and when the Indians who abode in the company of our men, who that they killed were the Catalenebi were to go thence, they gave vs all the Tune that they had for their journey, so without leaving any for themselves, and gave vs fire-stones of an handfull and an halfe in length with the which they cut, and among them they are held in great estimation. They intreated vs that we would remember them, and pray vnto God that they might alwaies be in health, and we promifed them to doe it, and with this they went away the most contented men in the world, having given vs all the best of that which they had. So we staied with those Indians Anamares eight moneths, and this account we made by the Moone. In all this time many people came to feeke vs and faid certainly that wee were the children of the Sunne. Dorante and the Negro vntill then had not healed any, but through the great importunitie of fo many people which flocked together from all parts we became all Phylitians, although for the affurance to undertake every cure I was most noted amongst them all, and we never undertooke to cure any who told vs 50 not that hee was found and well: And they had so great confidence in vs, that they thought they could not be healed but by our hands, and they beleeved that as long as wee flaied with them not one of them could die.

or forrit of the Indians.

A dead man

raifed. If Ben-nor rather to he embraced the liuing; as this author alfo

reports of his

in the end of this booke.

Children of the Sunne.

All become

Physicians.

Cataleuches

MATICAREL

Sufalas and Corios.

Ataies.

Indians:

Disholicall

They, and those who are further behind them, declared a very strange matter vnto vs, and by the fignes which they made it appeared that it fell out fifteene or fixteene yeeres fince; and this An euill thing it is, they fay, that a man went about that Countrey (which they call an Enill thing) which was of a little bodie and had a beard, although they could never cleerely fee his countenance. And when he came to any house all their haire, who were within stood vpright and they trembled, and prefently at the doore of the house appeared a flaming fire-brand, and then that man entred into the house and tooke from them what soeuer he would, and gaue them three great cuts vpon 60 the Hanke with a fire-stone very sharpe, as broad as a mans hand, and two handfulls long, and put his hand upon those gathes and drew out their bowells, and cut them about an handfull, and that piece which he cut he put upon the coales to broile : and prefencly gaue them three other cuts in one arme, and then smote them where he had lanced them, and dissoynted their arme and a little after returned to fet it agains and put his hand upon their wounds, and they fay that they became faddenly whole. And that many times while they danced that Emill thing appeared among them, lometimes in the habite of a woman, and at another time like a man. And fometimes he tooke away an house or a cottage, and tooke it vp on high, and a little after fell downe againe together with it and gaue a great blow. Moreover they told vs that they give him mear, but he neuer eateth; and that they asked him whence he came, and in what part his house was; so he shewed them a cleft of the earth , and faid that his house was wnder that. At these things which they told vs we laughed exceedingly, and made a left thereof: who feeing wee beleeued it not they brought vs many of them whom that manhad taken, and we faw the fignes of the cuts Io which he had given them in the places which they had told vs. Wherefore wee faid vnto them that he was a wicked man, and after the best manner we could we gave them to understand, that if they would beleeue in our Lord God, and become Christians as we were, they should not need to feare him, and that he durit not come to doe those things vnto them : and that they should hold it for a certaintie, that while wee staied in that Countrie hee durit not appeare there, with this they remained verie well contented. Thete Indians told withat they had feene Austuriano and Figheroa, with others who abode on the coalt beyond, whom we called those of the Fig-trees. All this Nation knew not the times by the Sunne nor Moone, nor keepe any account of the moneths or the yeere : but know the difference of the times according as the fruits come to be ripe, and by the mouing of the fiftes and Their compa-20 appearing of the Stars, wherein they are verie wise and well experienced. With them we were taxion of times alwaies well intreated, although we were faine to dig that which we had to eate with our owne hands, and carrie our burdens of water and wood. Their houses and sustenance are such as the other have behinde them, although they have much greater hunger, because they have neither Maiz, mait, nor Nuts. We went alwayes in leather like them, and in the night wee courred our selves with Decreskins. Of eight moneths which we staied with them, in fix of them we indured much hunger, because the fish was not yet found. And at the end of that time the Tune began now to grow ripe, and before thole Indians perceived vs wee went further vnto the other, called Maticones. They were one dayes journey from thence, whither I and the Negró came, and at the end of 30 three dayes I tent the Negro to bring Dorante and Castiglio, and when they came wee departed all together, with those Indians, who went to eate certaine small fruites of certaine trees, wherewith they maintaine themselves ten or twelve dayes, vatill the Tame come. And there other Indians joyne with them, called Arbadaes, and among them we found many ficke, weake, and fwollen, info much as we greatly maruelled thereat. And the Indians with whom wee came. returned againe the same way, and we taid we would remaine with those other, for the which they fignified that they were greatly displeased, and so we abode in the field with them. neere wnto those hortes. And when they faw vs, they withdrew themselves, and after they had reasoned a little, every one of them tooke one of vs by the hand, and brought vs to their houses. With Hungers per-them we indured greater hunger then with the other, so that in the whole day we cate but two ambulation. 40 handfuls of those fruits which were greene, and had so much juice, that they burned our mouthes; and therebeing great fearcitie of water, they cauled much thirst to them that eate them. And the famine being fo great, wee were faine to buy two Hogges of them, and in exchange thereof, wee gaue certaine Nettes, and other things, and one skinne wherewith I co-

CHAP.I.S.3 Indians Slaues to Satan Leather babit. Shauing of skins good food. 1517

I have already faid, that throughout all that Countrey we went maked, and not being accustomed vato it before, we changed our skins twice in the yeare, after the manner of Serpents. And Apparell, the Sunne and the weather cauted many great fores to arile voon the brefts & shoulders of some ofvs, which put vs to great paine, in respect of the burdens which wee carried, that were very heavie, and made the cords to flick in our armes. And the earth was forough and lagged, that ma-

50 ny times when we gathered wood, when we had made an end of digging, the blound ran down from many parts of our bodies, by reason of the thornes and briers wherewith wee met, which tore vs whereforeuer they touched vs. On a time I happened to feeke wood, and after it had drawne much bloud from me, I could not carrie it on my shoulder, nor traile it along the ground; when I found my felfe in this torment, I had no other remedy nor comfort, but to thinke on the paffion of our Lord Iesus Christ, and of the bloud which he shed for me, and consider how much greater the torment might be , which hee fuffered through the crowne of thornes, then that which I indured. I contracted with those Indians, making Combes, Bowes, Arrowes, and Nets for them. Wee also made Mats, which are things whereof they have very great neede, and although they know how to make them, they will make none for feeking foode to eate the meane while, for when they fet themselves to worke, they sustaine very grear hunger, At other times they made me shaue skins, and make them thin, and the greatest prosperity that I had among them, was the day when they gaue mee any hide to shaue, because I shaued it much, and eate those shauings, and that sufficed me for two or three dayes; yet it hapned, both with these and the other whom we lett behinde, that when they gave vs a prece of flesh, wee eate it raw,

Famines Dif-

for if wee had boiled it, the first of them that came would have taken it, and eate ir. wherefore wer thought it had not beene well done to put it to that danger; and besides. wee were none of them that would bethinke our felues whether wee should rather eate it fod-

This was the life we led with these Indians, and that little sustenance which we had we one it by [mall trifles which we made with our hands, After we had eaten their Dogs, supposing that we had fome little strength to be able to goe further, we recommended our selues vnto our Lord God, that he would guide vs, and freed our felues from those Indians, who brought vs vnto other of their language, who dwelt neere thereunto; and fo as we went it rained all that day, and beide that, we loft the way, and were to flay at a very great Mountaine, where wee gathered to many leaves of Tune, and bakd them that night in an Ouen which we had made, and put fo much fire to them, that in the morning they were ready to be eaten, and after wee had eaten them, we recommended our felues vnto God, and went from thence, and found the way which we had loft. And having passed the Mountaine, we found other houses of the Indians, and being come thither, we faw two women and certaine little children that went on that Mountaine. who fleing vs were afraid, and fled to call their Indians, who went through the Mountaine, And being come, they staid to behold vs behinde certaine trees, so wee called vnto them, who ranne with much feare, and after we had spoken vnto them, they told vs that they had indured great famine, and that neere vnto that place many of their houses stood, and said, that they would bring vs thither : and so that night we came where fiftie houles were, and they were all amazed to behold vs. and flood aftonished through exceeding feare; and after they were somewhat comforted, they came neere vnto vs, and laid their hands vpon our faces and bodies, and after put them your their owne faces and bodies. So we flaied that night, and when the morning came, they brought the difeated that were among them vnto vs, intreating vs that wee would bl. fie them, and gave vs fuch as they had to eate, which were the leaves of Twee and greene Time rofted or dry, and for the good intertainment they gaue vs, and because they parted with that little which they had willingly, and were contented to be without meate themselves to give it vnto vs, we abode with them certaine dayes. And while we thus staied, other Indians, of them that were farre beyond, came thither, and when they would be gone, wee faid to the former ladians, that we would goe with the other, which much differed them and so we left them 30 forrowing for our departure, at they which they conceived great displeasure.

Sine Cerere & libero friges Venus iucket lithe age of twolug yearcs,

From the Iland of Malbado, all the Indians which we faw in that Countrey, Obferue this for a common custome, that if they perceive their women to be great with childe, they lye not with them, vitill two yeares be paffed, after the children be borne, to the which they give The Indians let fucke, vntill they be of the age of twelve yeares, that they are now of understanding to provide their children foode for themselues. We demanded of them, for what reason they did thus nourish them, who answered vs, that they did it for the great famine which was in that Countrey : where, as wee our felues faw, they were faine to continue fometimes three or foure dayes without eating, and therefore they let them facke, that in that time they might not dye through hunger, and it notwithstanding some should escape, they would become too delicate, and of little strength. If by 40 chance it happen that any among them be ficke, they let them dye in those fields, if he be not a childe, and all the rest that cannot goe with them remaine there, but for a childe, or a brother of theirs, they lay them upon their necke, and so they carry them.

They have all this custome to be seperated from their wives, when there is no agreement betweene them, and that both they and the may marry againe with whom they pleate. And this is viual among the yonger fort; but fuch as have children neuer fortake their wives. And when they contend with other people, or be at variance one with another, they buffet and beate each

Other with cuide is vntill they be very weary, and then they part, and fometimes the women part them, going betweene them, because the men come not in to part them ; and what choller or passion somer they have, they fight not together with their Bowes and Arrowes. And after 50 they have purferted and cudgelled each other, the braule being ended, they take their houses and women, and goe to liue in the fields, seperated from the reft, vntill their anger and choller be past: and when they are now pacified, it is not needefull that others interpose themselves to make peace and friendship, because in this manner they make it themselves. And if they who be at variance have no wives, they goe to other of their neighbours, who although they were their enemies, receive them courteously, and doe them much flactering kindnelle, and give them fuch as they have, fo that when their choller is pail, they returne rich vnto their people. They are all warlike people, and vie as great subtilty to defend them from their enemies, as they would Vicot Horles, dee, if they had bin brought up in lialy, and incontinual warre. The horles are they that onely ouercome the m, and which the Indians generally feare. They who are to fight with them, must be 60 very wary that they know not that they be faint or cowardly, and while the battaile continueth, they are to vie them the worlt they can. For if they perceive them to be timerous or cowards, it is a people that very well knoweth the time to avenge themselves, and to take courage and strength from the feare of their enemies. When they are shot in the warres, and have spent

No deadly

CHAP. I.S.3. Sundry Nations of Malhada. New manner of brewing. Arrowes, they returne every one their way, without any pursuit of the enemy, although the one part be few, and the other many, and this is their cultome. They goe many times away that cleane through with Arrowes, and dye not, if they touch not the bowels or heart, nay, they quickely heale them. They ice and heare, and haue the sharpest sences, I thinke, of any men in Quickesenses, the world. They are very well able to endure hunger, thirft, and cold, as they who are more acquainted there with then any other.

In the Illand of Malbada there are two languages: the one called Causques, and the other Han. Names of the In the firme land, afront that Iland, are others called Carruce, who take their name from the Nitions of In the firme land, arront that Hand, are others called Carrier, who take their mains from the Mountaines where they line. Further, who the coaft are others, called Deguenes, and a Me'ada.

10 front them, are others called Mendica. Farther upon the coast are the Queuenes, and afront Canonas. these within the firme land are the Marsanes, and going further vpon the coast are other, called Garnes. Gustiones, and afront those within the firme land the legunzes, at the end of them are other, cal- Digueses. led Ataus, and behinde them other called Acubadaos, and of these there are many along this Madica. bankefurther. Other called Quitoles, live on the coaft, and afront them within the firme land are the Auguares, and with their the Maliacones vnite themselves, and the Cultalentebes, and other Gamones. called Sufalm, and other called Comos, and further upon the coalt abide the Cumoles, and on the 11941225. fame coalt beyond are others, whom we called them of the Figtrees. All these Nations have ha- Fisies, and bitations, and people, and divers languages. Among them there is one language, in the which, deubedas. bitations, and people, and divers languages. Among them there is one language, in the which, when they lay vato men, looke there, they lay arrace, and to the Dogs, they lay Xo: and in all Ausumer, and 20 that Countrey they make the meleues drunke with a certaine smoake, and give what source they Mailaton's.

Like wife they drinke another thing which they take from the leaves of trees, like voto the Sufakus Comoto Mulberry trees, and baile it in certaine veffels on the fire, and after they have boyled it, they fill Comoits, the veffels with water, and fokeepe it over the fire, and when it hath beene twice boiled, they poure it out into certaine veilels, and coole it with halfe a goord, and when it gathereth much tome, they drinke it as hot as they areable to fuffer it, and while they put it out of the veffell, and entill they drinke it, they stand crying, who will drinke. And when the women perceive these exclamations, they presently settle themselves, not daring once to move, although they finde that they are very well beloued. And if by chance any of them moue, they accompt her 30 shamelesse, and cudgell her, and with much choller and anger cast away the water or drinke which they have made: and if they have drunke it, they vomit it out againe, which they doe very eafily. The reason of this their custome, they say is this, that if when they will drinke of that water, the women moue themselves from the place where they heare that voyce, some bad thing might be put into that drinke, which entring into the body, in fhort space would cause them to dye. And all the time, that that water is boyled, the veffell must be well closed and flut, and if peraduenture it flould stand vncouered, and any woman should come and passe by, they cast it away and drinke no more of it. It is of the colour of Saffron, and they drinke it three dayes without eating, and every day they drinke one * amphora, and an halfe. And when the *A vestell conwomen haue their naturall purgation, they prouide no meate but for themselues, because no o-40 ther person will eate of that which she carrieth. In the time that I continued among them, I saw gallons.

a most brutish and beastly custome, to wit, a man who was married to another, and their be cer- Sodomy. taine effeminate and impotent men, who goe cloathed and attired like women, and performe the office of a woman; they carry no Bowes, but beare very great and waightie burdens : and among them we faw many such effeminate persons, as I haue faid, and they are of greater lims and taller then the other men.

After we departed from them whom wee left lamenting, wee were with the other at their houles, and were very well intertained of them, who brought vs their children that wee should touch their hands, and fo they gave vs much Meale of Mefquiquez. Thefe Mefquiquez are certaine Fruits, which when they are on the Tree are very bitter, and are of the same fort that the fruite of Indian So Carobe are, and they eate them with the earth, and with it they are very fweet and good to eat.

The manner how they prepare them is this; they make a Trench in the Earth of what depth they please, and after they have cast the truit into this Trench they bruize and breake them very well, with a piece of wood as great as a mans legge, and three Cubits long, and after they are mingled with the earth of the Trench, they take other that are fitted, and put them into the faid Trench, and returne to bruize them a little more, and after put them into a veffell like vnto a basket, and cash to much water thereon, as is sufficient to couer it, that the water may rise to the top, and hee that hath bruized them, tafteth them in his mouth, and if hee thinke they be not iweet and pleatant, he demandeth earth and mingleth it therewith. And this he doth vntill he find it sweet, and so afterward they prepare themselves to sit round, and every one putteth in his

60 hand, and taketh as much as he can, and the feeds or kernels of those Fruits, and so the huskes they cast upon certaine hides, and he that hath brussed them gathereth them together, and returneth afterward to put them all in a basket, and cafteth water vpon them, as at the first, and fo they returne to wring out the invce and water to long as it will drop. And likewise they returne to put the feedes and huskes woon the hide, and fo in this manner they doe three or foure

The Toupin

Brailians vie

times for everie bruifing : and they that are found at this banquet, which because it is veriegreat. remaine with their bellies much puffed vp through the earth and water which they drinke; and of this the Indians made vs many great feasts, and vsed much dancing and iollitie among themsclues, for so long time as we stated there. And when we slept in the night, fixe men watched with great diligence and care, at the doore of the cottage where we abode, not ceasing to come in voto some of vs till the Sunne arose. And when we would depart from them, certaine women of other people who lived further beyond came thither, and being informed by them where their houses were, wee departed towards those parts, although they earnestly entreated vs that we would not depart for that day. because those houses were very farre from thence, and that there was no way to goe thither and In that the women who came were weary; but refting themselves vnto the next day, they would afterwards goe with vs, and conduct vs thither. But we dispatched our selues thence, and went away ; and a little after those women who came thither with certaine others of the former Indians, came after vs : but there being no beaten way nor path, we prefently loft our felues, and fo went foure leagues, at the end whereof we came to drinke at a water, where wee found the women that followed vs, who told vs what great paines and trauaile they had taken to finde vs. Departing thence, and bringing those women tor our guides, wee passed a River somewhat late. and the water tooke vs vp to the breft, and might be as broad as that of Simill, and it ranne very Prongly. And at the fetting of the Sunne we came to an hundred houses of the Indians, who before we came, went all forth to receive vs with fo vehement shouting and loud exclamation, 10 that it was a fearefull thing, and gaue great blowes with their hands upon their thighes, and or Racles, and brought hollow guards with stones within them, which is the instrument of their greatest iolhave like con- little & loort, and never vie them but for their dancings, and for medicine; and none dare to take them in his hand but they. And they fay that these guords have vertue and come from heanen, because they grow not in those Countries, nor doe they know from whence they come, valelle the Rivers bring them when they overflow. And the feare and confusion of them was so great, that striuing to come neerest vinto vs and touch vs, they so thrunged vs, that it was a wonder that they had not killed vs : and not fuffering vs to fet our feete on the ground, they carried vs vnto their houses, and bare ve so aboue ground, and the presse of people so thrunged vs, that we > make their festivall sports any more with vs for that night. They passed all that night, among themselves, in sports and dancing, and the day following, at a good houre, they brought vs before all the people of that place, that we might touch and blelle them, as we had done to the rest with whom we abode. And after this, they gave many arrower to the women of another people, who were come with them. The next day we departed thence, and all that people went with vs. And when we came to the other Indians, we were very well entertained, as of the other; and they gaue vs fuch as they had, and Deere which they had killed that day. Among thele Indians we law a new custome, to wir, that they who were first with vs, tooke the Bowes & Arrowes, Shooes and Crownes (if they had any) from them who came to vs to be healed, and after they had thus taken them away from them, they brought them before $0 vs, that we should heale them, and being healed, that we should have them, so they departed verie well contented, and faid that they were whole.

> entred into the houses which they had prepared for vs, and would not confent that they should

After this, we departed from them, and went vnto other, of whom we were verie courteoully received, and they brought vs their difeafed persons, who when we had bleffed them, faid they were cured, and he that was not whole, beleeved that we could cure him, & for that which others told them whom we had healed, they made fuch great sport and dancing, that they suffered vs not to fleepe. Departing from them, we went where many other houles were, and where another new cuftome began, to wit, that entertaining every one of vs very well, they who came with vs, tooke all their substance from them, and rifled their houses, without leaving them any kinde of thing, which displeased vs verie much, seeing them so ill vsed who so curreously received vs, 50 and also fearing that least this might be the occasion of some alteration, or offence among them. But not being able to remedy the fame, and chastise those that did it, wee were then to furfer it, vntill we faw we had more authoritie among them. And so, even they themselves who lost their wealth, seeing we were displeased, comforted vs, saying, that we should not conceine any displeafure therear, confidering they were so well contented that they had seene vs, and that they had bestowed their substance very well, and would hereafter be paid of others who were ex-

Blinde and fquint-tyed

The next day they brought all their people before vs, the greatest part whereof are fquinteyed, and other of the same people are blinde, whereat we greatly maruelled : they are well set, and of good behaulour, and whiter then all the rest that we had seene untill then. There we be- 60 gan to fee Mountaines, which feemed to extend themselves towards the Sea, from the North, and by the relation which the Indians made, I suppose they are fifteene leagues from the Sea. We departed thence with thole Indians towards the Mountaines, whereof I now spake. And they brought vs where some of their kindred were, for they would not bring vs but to their kinsfolk, because they were vinwilling that their enemies should receive so great a benefit, as they thought it was to lee vs. And when wee were come thither, they that came with vs spoiled the other. who knowing the custome had hid certainethings before we came thither. And after they had received vs with much joy and gladnesse; they tooke out that which they had hidden, and prefented it vitto vs, and they were Crownes, Magra, and certaine small plates of Silver. We, according to our custome, gaue them all presently to the Indians that came with vs, and having given ys that which they had, they began their dancing and festivall iollitie, and fent to call other people neere thereabouts, that they might come to fee vs, who came all about the euening, and brought vs Garlands, Bowes, and other trifling things, which for the most part we divided ato mong those other Indians. And the day following, we being desirous to depart, they would all bring vs to their friends, who remained on the top of the Mountaines, laying that there are many houses and people, that they would give vs many things: but because it was out of our way we would not goe thither, and therefore tooke our journey through the plaint neere vnto the Mountaines, which we supposed should not be very farrefrom the coast. All those people are very poore and miferable, wherefore we held it better to croffe ouer the land, because the people that dwelt further into the Countrey were better conditioned, and would views better, and we were certainely perswaded, that we should finde a more populous Countrey, and of better fultenance. And lattly, we therefore did it, because croffing ouer the land, we saw more particularities, so that if it should please our Lord God to bring some of vs out of that Countrey, 20 and to conduct ve into the land of the Christians, wee might be able to make relation and report The Indians seeing that we were determined to goe whither they would not, told vs, that there was neither people nor Tune, nor any other thing to eate, and therefore praied vs that we would flay there for that day, and so we did. Then they fent two Indians to discouer the people that way which we purpoted to goe, and the next day we departed, carrying many of them with vs, and the women went laden with water, and our authoritie was fo great among them, that none durst presume to drinke without our leave. Two of their Phiscians gave vs two Gourds, and from that time we afterward began to carry Gourds with vs, joyning this ceremony to our authority, which among them is very great. They who accompanied vs, rifled the 40 houses: but the houses being many, and they but few, they could not carry all away, but should have bin forced to have loft the halfe, and so we went thence through many Mountaines; entring within the land more then fittie leagues, at the end whereof we found fortie houses, and among other things which they gave vs, Andrea Dorante had a thicke and great Bell of cop. Copper Bell per, with a visage ingrauen in it, which they seemed greatly to efteeme, saying that they had ingrauen. gotten it of their other neighbours : who being demanded whence they had it, they faid, that they brought it from the Northward, and that it was much worth, and greatly effeemed there. Whereupon we knew, that from what place foeuer it came, the art of casting and melting of mettals must needes be there. And hereupon we departed the day following, and croffed ouer a Mountaine of fix leagues; and the itones which were there, were of the scumme of Iron, so and late in the evening we came to many houses, seated on the side of a most pleasant River, and the Lords of the same came into the middle of the high way to receive vs with their clildren in their armes, and gaue vs many small plates of Silver, and Antimonie made in powder, Plates of Plate wherewith they annoint their faces, and gaue vs many garlands, and many mantles of the hides of Kine, and laded all them that came with vs with fuch as they had : they eate Tune, and

They told vs, that in the place where the Bell was made, were many plates of that mettall under ground, and that that Bell among them was a thing greatly effeemed, and that houses were built there, and wee supposed that it was the South Sea, for we alwayes knew that that Sea was alwayes richer then that of the North. So we departed from them, and went South Sea through fo many forts of Nations, and divers languages, that the memory of man is not able to 50 reckon them, and one people alwayes spoyled the other, and so both they that lost, and they who gained remained well contented. Through those Valleyes where we palled, every one of them carried a flicke or cudgell of three handfuls long, and they went all in troopes, and if any Hare arofe, whereof there are many in that Countrey, they turned her fuddenly, and so many Pletfant huscudgels fell upon her, that it was a marueilous matter to behold, and in this manner they made ung. her goe from one to another, fo that in my judgement it was the goodlieft hunting that could be imagined, because sometimes they came even into their hands. And when wee setled our felues at night, we had fo many of them that were given vs, that every one of vs carried eight or ten, and fuch as carried Bowes, appeared not among vs, but went apart through the Mountaines 60 to feeke deere, and when they came in the evening, they brought five, or fix for every one of vs, and many Fowles, and Quailes, and other hunting game; and finally, what focuer all these people tooke, they presented before vs , not daring to touch or take thereof for themselues, although they should dive for hunger (because they accustomed so to doe, since they came with vs) vnlelle they had first bleffed the same. The women carried many Mats, with the which they made

Superflicious fanctitying

When that was done, wee commanded them to bake those Deere and Hares, and whatsoever elfe they had taken; which is very quickly done in certaine ouens which they make for the same purpose. Then we first tooke a little of every thing, and gave the rest to the principall and chiefa men of the people to divide it among them all : and when every one had received his part, they came vnto vs that we should blow vpon it and blesse it, for otherwise they durst not presume to eate thereof. And many times we brought with ve three or foure thousand perions; whereupon it was a great trouble to vs to blow vpon and bleffe the meate and drinke of every one of them : and for every other thing of theirs which they would doe they came to vs to aske leave : whereby it may be confidered how great the incumbrance and trouble was which wee endured. The women brought before vs the Tune, Frogs, Wormes, and what foeuer elie they could get ; because although they should bee readie to die through hunger, they would not have eaten any thing which they had not received from our hands. And to going with them wee passed over a great River which came from the North parts, and having travelled over certaine Plaines of thirrie leagues, wee found many people who came very farre off to receive vs , and came forth ento the way whether wee were to paffe, and received vs after the fame manner that the other From thence forward they observed another manner of receiving vs, as touching saccage and fpoiling. For they that came forth into the high-way to bring vs any thing, were not spoiled of to them who came with vs ; but after we were entred into their houses, they of their owne accord offered vs what locuer they had and the houses also. Wee gaue all vnto the chiefe and principall. to the intent that they should diside it among them; and alwaies they who remained to spoiled followed vs, whereby the number of people greatly encreased through defire to bee satisfied of their loffes. And they faid vnto the relt that they should beware how they hide any thing . because it could not be but we should know it, and cause them all suddenly to die. The teare and frighting wherein they put them were to great, that the first dates they abode with vs they stood alwaies trembling, not preluming to speake, nor to lift vp their eyes to heaven. They Defert Coun- guided vs aboue eightie leagues through a defert Countrey, and very rough mountaines which were fo dry, that there was no hunting game there whereby to fultame our great hunger. In the m end having passed over a very great River, where the water tooke vp to the brest, many of those who came with vs began to lament, through the exceeding great hunger and travell which they had endured through those mountaines, which were extreame rough and troubletome to refle. The same people brought vs vnto certaine plaines, and at the end of those mountaines much people came farre off to receive vs, as the former had done, and gave fo many garments afterward to them that were with vs , that because they could not carry them they left the halfe behinds them; fo that we told those Indians that brought them, that they should take them againe that they might not be loit: who answered, that they would not doe it for any thing, because it was not their custome after they had once given a thing, to returne afterward to take it againe and Foolish libera

Women-

A riper.

Many gar-

fo they fuffered them to be loft. Then we told them that we would goe toward the place where the Sunne went downe, who faid that in those places the people were verie farre off. But wee commanded them to lend to understand that wee were comming, yet they excused themselves the best they could; saying, that they were their enemies, and that they were viwilling we should goe thither; but not daring to doe contrarie to our will, they tent two women thither, whom both the one and the other their enemies kept prisoners. And they sent these, because the women may well negotiate with the men even in the warres : and we followed them, and rested our selves in a place where wee determined to expect them, but they staied fine daies before they returned, and the Indians faid that they should find no people. Wee told them that they should bring vs toward the North, whereupon they gaue vs the same answere, that is to say, that in those places there were no peo- 10 ple but farre off, and that there was nothing there to eate nor water to bee found; yet not withstanding all this we continued obstinate, and faid, that we would goe thither, although they alwaies excused themselues the best they could : and for this cause wee were angrie, to that one night I arose and went out to sleepe in the open fields apart from them, but they came presently where I was, and neuer slept all that night with much feare, and speaking vnto me they faid that if we would not continue any longer angrie, they would bring vs whether we purposed to goe, although they were certainly affured to die by the way. Neuerthelesse wee alwaies fained that we were yet angrie, and because their feare was not remoued, a verie strange accident happened, that is to fay, that on the verie same day many of them became sicke, and the day following eight of them died. Whereupon through all the Countrey where it was knowne, they were to 60 afraid of vsthat when they faw vs they feemed even todie as it were for feare. So they befought vs that wee would not continue angrie any longer, and that wee would not cause any more of them to die, certainly perswading themselves that wee killed them onely with our will and defire. We prayed our Lord God that hee would relieue vs, and so all those that were ficke began to recourt: at which time wee faw a verie maruellous thing, to wit, that the fathers, brethren. and wives of chem that died were exceedingly grieved to fee them fo ficke, but after they were No lamenting dead they showed not any signe or token of sorrow, nor did wee see them lament nor speake one for the dead to the other, nor make any other figne, nor durst they come neere vnto them vntill we commanded them to burie them : And for the space of fifteene daies and more that we abode with them. we neuer faw one speake to the other, nor any of their little children either laughed or cried, and if any of them lamented they carried them verie farre from thence : and with verie sharpe teeth they gashed and cut them from the shoulders to the legs ; so feeing their crueltie and being angrie thereat. I demanded why they did it, they answered me, that they did it to chassise them for la-10 menting before me. Al thele fears which they have of vs, they yet put into the heads of those who came lately to know vs, because they should give vs whatsoever they have, for they know that we tooke nothing for our felues, but gaue euerie thing to them. This was the most obedient people, and best conditioned that we found in all that Countrie, and commonly they are well dispoied. Those that were ficke, being recovered and restored vnto health, and wee having continued there three daies, the women that we had fent came vnto vs, and faid, that they had found verie few people, because they were gone to the kine, which was now their time. Then we commanded them that were weake to remaine behinde, and those that were well to come with vs : and that two daies journey from thence those two women should goe with two of our men. to cause the people to come forth to the highwaies to receive vs. And so the morning follow-20 ing all those that were the lultiest departed with vs, and after three daies journey wee fetled our felues, and the day following Alonfo del Castiglio and Estenanicco the Negro, together with those two women for their guides; and that who was their prisoner brought them vnto a River which ranne within a mountaine where a people abode, among whom their father was ; and these were the first houses that wee saw, which had the forme and manner of Houses artisferences

There Castiglio and Estenaniceo arrived, and after they had spoken with those Indians, at the end of three dayes Castiglio returned to the place where they left vs, and brought five or fixe of those Indians, and faid, That hee had found houses of people and of artificiall 20 building, and that the people eate pulle and gourds, and that hee had feene Maiz there. Mays,

There wee abode one day, and the next wee departed, they bringing vs with them to other built houses, where wee did eate of the same food that they eate. And after from thenceforth there was another custome, that they who knew of our comming came not forth into the high-way to meete vs as the other did ; but wee found them in their houses , and they did nothing elle for vs. And they were all fitting, and all held their faces towards Other Grange the wall, hanging downe their heads with their haire over their eyes, and all their clothes behaulour. were hanged vpaloft in the middle of the house, and from thence forward they began to give vs many mantles of hides, and they had not any thing which they gave vs not. It is a Nation of thebest and goodliest proportion of bodie that euer wee saw there, and of a more Goodly peclively spirit and agilitie, and that vinderstood vs better, and answered vs to whatsoever wee

40 demanded them , and wee call them , The people of the Kine , because the greater part of the Kine which dye in those Countries is neere thereabouts, and vp that River more then fiftie leagues, they goe killing many. These people goe all naked, after the manner of those whom wee found first. The women goe couered with certaine Deere skinnes; and fo doe some few men also, and particularly the aged, who are not serucceable for the warress It is a verie populous Countrey; and being demanded why it did not fowe Maiz, they faid, They did it because they would not leese that which they should sowe for two yeeres since their water failed, and the feafons was fo dry, that they all loft the Maiz that they had fowed, and that they could not by any meanes be affured to fowe, vnleffe first it had rained very much; and they prayed vs to fpeake vnto the Heauens that they might fend downe raine : they

50 boyle pulse in this manner. They fill a great pot halfe full with water, and put many of those stones in the fire, which will quickely burne, and when they feeth them on fire they take them up with certaine tongs of Wood, and cast them into that water in the gourd vntill they make it boyle with that fire of those stones; and when they perceive that the water boyleth, they put in that which they have to boyle, and all this time they doe nothing elie but take out one stone and put in another fired redde hot to make the water

Kkkkkk

d. IIII.

They come to the South Sea, and travell through a plentifull Countrey, till they meet with Spaniards ; whose crueltie and manner of conuerting Sauages is related.

They come to the South Sea.

E went Westward on our journy, & crossed ouer all the land vntil we came forth at the South Sea, and the reason that the state whether and the state of the paffed as furely we paffed it for feuenteen daies together, as they had told vs) was not to paffed as furely we paffed it for feuenteen daies together, as they had told vs) was not to able to divert vs from our intended purpole. Throughout all that Countrey vp the Riner, they gaue vs many Mantles of the hides of Kine, and wee did not eate of those their fruites.

but our sustenance was every day a piece of the fat of Deere, of the bignesse of a mans hand. which for this necessitie wee prouided alwaies to haue in a readinesse, and so wee passed all those fenenteene daies iourney, and at the end of them wee croffed ouer the River, and travelled other feuenteene daies more to the West, through certaine plaines and verie great mountaines which are found there : and there wee met with a people; who the third part of the veere eate no other thing faue the powder of ftraw, and because wee paffed that way at that fealon of the yeere wee also were constrained to eate it, vntill having finished those daies iourney wee found fetted houfes, where there was great quantitie of Maiz, and of that and Maale they gaue vs enough, and Gourds, and Pulie, and Mantles of Bombafin Cot. 20 ton, withall which we laded them whom wee had hyred there, who returned the most contented men in the world. Wee yeelded many thankes vnto God who had brought vs thither. where we found tuch plentie of fustenance.

Among these houses they had some that were of earth, and all the rest were of mats waies found fetled houses and much sustenance of Maiz and Pulse; and they gaue vs many Deeres skinnes and Mantles of Bombafin Cotten , better then those of New Spaine; and gaue vs also many Garlands, and certaine Corall which grow in the South Sea, and focuer they had, and vnto Dorante they gave Emeralds made into Arrow heads, and with those Arrowesthey make their sports and festivall iollitie, seeming to mee very good. I demanded of them whence they had them, who told me that they brought them from certaine very high mountaines, which lye towards the North, and that they got them by exchange and barter for quills and Parrats feathers, and there were many people there and very great houfes. Among them wee faw the women more honourably and honeftly vied, then in any other part of India which wee had feene. They weare certaine smockes of Bombasin Cotton which reach to the knee and ouer them : foft fleeues of certaine folds or plaits of Deereskinnes without haire which touch the ground, and they perfume them with certaine roots which make them very fine, and so they vie them very well : they are open before and tied toge-40 ther with filken strings. They goe shod with shooes. All this Nation came vinto vs, that we should touch and blesse them, and they were so importunate herein that they put vs to much trouble; because the sicke and the whole would all goe from vs blessed : and it often happe-

many Turkie stones which come from toward the North, And finally they gaue vs what- 20

A plentifull Countrey with and from thence wee passed more then an hundred leagues into the Countrey, and alhouses and corne.

People which

line on the powder of

Braw.

Corall and Emeralds.

Defire of the

Conceit that from heauen.

Many Imgua-

ned that of the women that came with vs ; some were deliuered, and as soone as the children were borne they brought them vnto vs, that wee should touch and blesse them. They accompanied vs vntill they left vs with another Nation, and among all these people they held it for a certaintie that wee came from Heauen : because all the things which they have not, and know not whence they come : they fay , that they descend from Heaven. For so long time as wee went with them, wee trauelled all the day without eating vntill night, and wee eate to little that they were aftonied to fee it. They neuer knew vs wearie, and furely wee 50 were so accussomed to trauell that we were neuer weary. We had great authoritie among them, and they held a reuerent opinion of vs, and to preferue the the same wee seldome spake vnto them. The Negro was the man that alwaies spoke and informed himselfe of the way that wee would goe by the direction of the people that were there, and touching enery other thing which we defired to know. We passed through divers languages, and our Lord God favoured vs withall, for they alwaies understood vs and we understood them, and if we demanded any thing of them by fignes they answered vs as if they should have spoken our language and wee theirs. For although we, understood fix languages, we could not thereby preuaile with all, because wee found more then a thousand differences of language. Throughout all these Countries they who have warre among themselues, became suddenly friends that they might come vnto vs and receive vs, 60 and bring vs whatfoever they had. Dorante had fixe hundred Deeres hearts given him, whereupon we called it the people of

:: popole de

Hearts. Through this Countrey, entrie is made into many Provinces which fland vpon the South Sea, and if they that defire to goe thither enter not from hence, they are loft, because the Coast hath no Maiz, to that they are faine to eate the powder of beetes, straw, and fish, which they take in the Sea with flortes, because they have no Canowes, nor any Boat. The women cover their prinities with herbs and straw : they are a people of little understanding and miserable. We supposed that neere vnto the Coast by the way of those people which way wee went, it is more then a thousand leagues of a populous Countrey, and that they have much prouision wherein they Athousand liue, for they sowe Pulle and Maiz three times in the yeere. We saw three forts of Deere there. leagues of a live, for they lowe Pulle and Ball Miles of Castiglia. The houles of all those people for habitation are populous one as great as the biggest steeres of Castiglia. The houles of all those people for habitation are Country. cottages. They have poylon of a certaine kind of tree of the bignesse of an apple trees and they doe no more but gather, the fruit and anoing the Arrow therewith, and if they have no fruit they Great Deerc. to breake of a bough, and with a certaine milkie juyce which it hath they doe the fame. There are many of these trees that are so poylonous, that if the leaves thereof be bruised and cast into any Polionous iree flanding pooleand not running water, all the Deere and whatfoeuer other beait that drinketh thereof fuddenly burit afunder. Wee abode three daies with these people, and about one daies journy from thence there was another people, where such showres of raine came powring downe woon vs, that by reason the River which was there was so growne we could not passe it, and so we continued there fifteene daies.

In this meane time, Castiglio law the buckle of a Spanish girdle about an Indians necke, and an Iron key fewed together with it, which he tooke from him : then we demanded what that thing was, and they answered, that it came from heaven; and questioning further with them who 20 brought them, they answered, that certaine men brought them which had beards like voto vs, who came from heaven; and comming to that river with Horfes, brought Lances and Swords, Newes of and two of them passed ouer with their Lances. Afterward, as cunningly as we could, we asked Spaniardi. them what became of those men, so they answered vs, that they went to the Sea. Wee went through many Countries, and found them all dispeopled and not inhabited, for the countrie people went their way flying through the mountaines, not daring to keepe their houses nor labour for feare of the Christians. It greatly discontented vs, seeing the Countrie verie fruitfull and exceeding pleasant and full of water and goodly rivers, and to see them afterward so solitarie and Speciards. fcorched, and the people so feeble and weake fled away and all hid, and because they sowed not in so great famine, they maintained themselves onely with the barkes of trees and roots. Wee 30 had our part of this famine in all this iourney, because they could not so well prouide for vs being fo enally hired, that it feemed they would all die. They brought vs couerings and beades, which they had hid for feare of the Christians, and gave them vnto vs. and declared how at other times the Christians had entred and passed through that Countrie, and had destroied and burned the people, and carried halfe the men away, and all the women and little children, and that fuch as were able to efeape out of their hands fled away. Wee feeing them fo affrighted that they could not be fecured to fettle them felues in any place, and that they neither would nor could fowe nor labour and manure the Countrie; nay, they rather determined to fuffer themselues to die which feemed better vito them, then to expect to bee so ill intreated with so great crueltie as they had beene untill that time : and they feemed to bee greatly pleafed with vs. Notwithflanding wee 40 feared that being come vnto them who were vpon the Frontiers, and in warre with the Christians least they would vie vs cruelly, and make vs pay for that which the Christians had done vnto them. But God being pleased to conduct vs where they were, they began to feare and reverence vs. as the former had done and formewhat more, whereat we did not a little maruell. Whereby Gentlenesse it may cleerely appeare, that to allure this Nation to become Christians, and make them obedi-ficerthen ent to the Imperial Maieftie, they ought to be gently and curteoufly vied, and this is the onely crueltie. and most certaine way of all other. They brought vs to a people that abode on the top of a mountaine, where they were faine to climbe up by reason of the exceeding roughnesse of those places, where we found many people gathered together for feare of the Christians. These people recei-ued vs with great good will and kindnesse, and gaue vs whatsoeuer they had, and aboue two 50 thousand burdens of Maiz, which wee gaue vnto those miserable and samished people who followed vs and conducted vs thither : and the day following wee dispatched foure Mellengers through the Countrie, as we yied to doe, to the intent that they should affemble and gather together as many people as they could, vinto one people which abode three daies journey off from thence; and having done this, wee departed with all the people that were there, and alwaies found the trackes and tokens where the Christians had lodged, and about midday wee found our Messengers, who told vs that they could not meet with any people, because they were all gone and fled, and hidden in the mountaines, leaft the Christians thould either kill them or make them flaues. And that the night before they had feene the Christians ; they themselves slanding behinde certaine trees to behold what they did, and they faw that they led certaine Indians 60 in a Chaine tied.

From this place, which is called the River of Petman, voto the River where Diego di Guzman P. Petman. arrived, where we understood of the Christians, may be some four efforce leagues : and from thence where the waters flaied vs, twelve leagues ; and from thence to them whom we called the people of the Harts, fine leagues : and from thence to the South Sea, were twelve leagues. Through - De Cart. LIIIII 2 out all that Country whereforeer wee found mountaines, wee faw great flow and tokens of Gold, Iron, Antimony, and Copper, and other mettalls. In those places where the fetled house are, in lumary it is very hot. From thence towards the South of the vnpeopled Country, vnto the North Sen, it is a very naughtie Countrey and poore, where wee endured incredible famine, and they who inhabit there are a most cruell people, and of a very euill nature and behaulour. The Indians that have fettled houses, and the rest also make no account of Gold, nor of Silver, nor know for what purpoie it may ferue.

Shawrs of Cold

1526

He Seak sh with his course

I tooke the Negro and eleven Indians with mee , and following the Christians by the tracke which they found, I went to three places where they had lodged, and the first day I trawelled ten leagues, and in the morning following found foure Christian Horle-men, who wonde- to red much to fee me fo strangely attired, and in the company of the Indians, and when they faw me they made a stand, and beheld me a good space, so much astonished that they dust not speake to me nor aske mee any queltion. Wherefore I spake vnto them, intreating them to bring me where there Captaine was; and to we went about halfe a league where Diego de Alcaraz abode. who was their Captaine, and after I had spoken vinto him, he told me that hee was in verie enill cafe be: aufe he had beene there many daies and could not take any Indian, and that he had not amy prouision to depart, because they began to be in great necessitie and famine there. I told him that Dorante and Castiglio were remaining behinde, who abode ten leagues from thence, with many people who had conducted vs : Whereupon he presently sent three Horse-men, and fiftie Isdians of those they brought, and the Negro returned with them to guide them; but I remained 20 there, and requested him to make me a testimoniall of the yeere, moneth, and day that I came into that place, and so he did. From this River, vnto the people of the Christians called Saint Mi. chael, which pertaineth to the jurisdiction of that Prounce, which they call Nona Galitia, are After fixe daies were past Andrea Dorante, and Arlonzo del Caftiglio came vnto vs, with thole who came for them, and brought about fixe hundred persons with them , which were of them whom the Christians had caused to climbe into the mountaines, and hide themselves in the Countrey; and they, who wntill then were come with vs brought them, and accompanied with the Configuration and they had diffracted away all the other people which they had brought thider, and came where I was. Alers a intreated me that I would fend to call the people who abode at 30 and came where I was. Alers a intreated me that I would fend to call the people who abode at 30 and came where I was. the River fides, and had fled into the mountaines, and that they should command them tobring them victualls although it were not needfull, because of their owne accord they brought vsas much as they could, and so we presently sent our Messengers to call them : whereupon fix hundred persons came who brought we all the Maiz they had, and they brought it in certaine pipkin couered with clay, wherein they had hid it winder ground, and they brought vs whatforuer they had befides: but wee would not take any thing faue victualls to eate, but gave all the rest to the Christians to be duided among them. And after this we had much controuerfie with them; becaste they would have made those Indians slaves whom wee brought with vs : And through this displeature and disdaine at our departure, we left many Twelf Bowes which we brought, and many Budgets and Arrowes, and among them flue of Emerands, which wee remembred not and to fo we lost them. We gave the Christians many Mantles of the hides of Kine, and other things which we brought, and much adoe with the Indians to cause them to returne to their houses, and to secure them and make them sowether Maiz. They were not willing to goe but with ye, vatill they left vs with other Indians as the custome was : for otherwise if they returned without being lest with others, they teared leaft they should die, and comming with vs they feared not the Christians nor their Lances. This thing greatly displeased the Christians, who caused an Interpreser to speake vinto them in their owne language, and tell them that wee were the very lame men, who for a long time had beene terrified and loft, and were a people of meane condition and of small force, and that they were Lords of the Countrey whom they were to serue. But ther that the Christians hed, because we came from the place where the Sunne rifeth, and the other

Corfe ins from the place where the Sunne went downe : and that wee healed the ficke, they killed the n that were found; and that wee went naked and without garments; they clothed on har backe and with Lances, and that wee had not any couetous or infatiable defires: fo that whatto uer was given vs, wee prefently gave it voto others and had nothing our felues : and

Co Christians intend nothing elie, but to rob and steale whatsoever they find and give nothing to any : and after this manner those Indians gave their judgement of vs, centuring allow actions cleane contrary to that which the Christians doe. And thus they answered the Christians in their language, and did the like to others in a language which was among them which we understood, hundred leagues of the Countrey where we transled, fo that we found no other language for the space of four hundred leagues and more. Finally, it was not possible for vs to make those ladient ischeeue that we were any of thole other Christians; yet with much adoe, and through our per-fwation we made them returns vnto their houles, commanding them to rest satisfied, and bring and choice that we twee call Primbatin; which wee hid found yied for about the space of four 62 hou led!

the I do m made lettle no no account of all this, fo that among themselves they said one to ano-19

Ingretefull

. Tric ElC.

be throwne downe under the earth in the company of Dinels , into an exceeding huge fire which never 60 hall have end, but continually and eternally torment them. And besides that, if they will become Christians, and ferue Gid after the manner that we will tell them, the Christians shall hold them for breibren, and whe them very well; and that we would command that they should not doe them any burt, nor take their Countrie from them, but become their good friends. And if they would not doe it, the Chri-Rians frould of them very conelly, and carry them for flanes into farre and remote Countries. To this Littli 2

backe their people to lowe and till the ground, which because it was so desolate, became now full of woods, albeit of it owne nature furely, it were the best Country and more fertile and ahundant then any in all those Indies: for they sowe three times in the yeare, and have many fruites, and many goodly Rivers, and other very good waters. There are many fignes, and great tokens of Mines of Gold and Silver. The people are very well conditioned, and serve the Chrithem, that are their friends, with a very good will: they are much better disposed then the people of Mexico; and finally, it wanteth nothing to make it an absolute Countrey. The Indians being dispatched, they told vs, that they would doe as much as they had commanded and bring backe their people, if the Christians would suffer them to continue: whereupon I said and certo tainely affirmed, that if they did it not, the Christians should be much to blame. And after wee had fent them away, the Christians lent vs with an Alcado, named Zebrero, and with him three other Christians, whereby it appearets how much the imaginations of men were deceived, in that we went to fecke liberty among the Corfians; and when wee had thought to have found it. the oute contrary befell vs, and by seperating vs from the conversation of the Indians, they brought vs through desolate Mountaines, because we should not see what they did, nor their euill yfage; for they had determined to goe to affault the Indians, whom wee fent away fecured Sauage infide and in peace; and so they did activey imagined; they brought va two dayes through those Moun- livy of Christian and in peace; and to they did as they imagined; they brought vs two dayes through those mountaines, without water, and without any beaten way or path, infomuch as we thought we should Inside is and have burit for thirit, whereof feuen of our men died, & many friends which the Christians brought Sauages. 20 with them, could not cometall the next day at noone, where we found water : and we transiled with them about fine and twenty leagues, at the end whereof, we came vnto a people of the /ndians, which were in peace, and there the Alcado, who brought vs, left vs, and went three leagues further to a people called Caliazzan, where Melchier Diaz, the Sergeant Major, and Captaine of that Prounce abode. As soone as he knew of our comming, hee presently came the same night to finde vsout, and lamented much with vs, highly praising our Lord God, for his exceeding mercy cowards vs, and spake vnto vs, and vied vs very well, and in the behalfe of the Gouemour Nunnez di Guzman, and himielte, offered vs whatfoeuer hee had or could procure, and began to speake much of the euill viage wherewith Alearac and the rest had vied vs, fo that we held it for cereame, that if hee had bin there, that which was done vnto vs had not 30 bin done, and that night being passed, we departed for Anhaem, and the Sergeant Major intrea-

CHAP. I.S.4. Fertile Countrey. Great proffers: Hell threatned.

ted we earneitly to stay there, and that wee might doegreat feruite vinto our Lord God, and to wour Maieflie, because the Countrie was desolate, without manuring, and altogether defroyed, and the Indians went and hid chemielues, flying through the Mountaines, vn willing to come and flay with their people, and that we should fend to call them, and command them in the name of our Lord God, and of your Maietty, to come and inhabit the Plain, and till the Countrie. But this feemed a troubletome matter vnto vs to put it in execution, because wee had not any of our Indieas, or those who were wont to accompany vs, to helpe and further vs in such like offices. Notwithstanding we thoughe good to proue two of our Indians which we had prisoners there, who were of the same Country, and were found with the Christian' when we first came among them, 40 and faw the people that accompanied vs, & vnJeritood by them the great authority & dominion which we had had throughout all those Countries, & the miraculous things which we had done in healing the difeafed, and many other things, and with thefe we fent others of the same people which were also with them, to call the Indians that abode in the Mountains, & those of the river Patachan, where we had found the Christians. And we willed them to tell them, that they should come vnto vs, because we would speake with them, and so secure them that went, and the other who should come, we gaue them a great gourd, of those which we caried in our hands, which was a principall token and speciall argument of great state, and with this they went and travailed seuendaies, and in the end came and brought with them three Lords of those who had fled into the Mountaines, who were accompanied with fitteene men, who brought vs Crownes, Turkies, and plumes of Feathers; and the melfengers told vs; that they had not found them of the River

50 from whence we came, because the Christians had caused them to flye into the Mountaines : So Melchier Diaz willed the Interpreter to fpenke vnto thole Indians in our behalfe, and fay vnto them, that we were come from God, who abide thin heaven, and had transiled through the world nine Mannet of yeares, faying vato all them that we found; that they should beleeve im Ood, and ferue him, because he is Spout the action Lord of all the things in the world, and that he gineth a reward and paiment unto the good, and perpetual dins. pumiliment of hell fire water the wicked : and that when the hadd men do the taketh them op mie heaven, where afterwards they had wever do uny more, nor fuffer hunger or cold, by endure any other necessition. sie; but finde there greater flory then can be imagined. And they who will not beleene nor obay him, shall they answered the Interpreter, that they would become very good Christians, and serue God. And demanding of them, whom they adored, and to whom they facrificed, and of whom they asked water for their feede time, and health and fafety for themselues; they answered the they praied voto a man which is in heaven, and being demanded how they called him, they faid Aguar; and they beleeved that he created all the world, and the things therein. Then wee quettioned them further, whence they knew that, who answered, that their Parents told them to, and that of a long time they understood it, and knew that he fent water, and all othersood things. So wee caused the Interpreter to tell them, that hee whom they called Aguar, we called God, and that they also should call him so, and serue him, and adore him, as we had appointed, and they should finde it very good for them. They answered, that they understood all ve- In ry well, and that they would doe fo; wherefore wee commanded them to descend from the Mountaines, and that they should live secure and in peace, and dwell in the Country, and build their houses, and among them make a house for God, and set a Crosse at the entry thereof, like vnto that which we had there: and when the Christians should come, they should goe to meete them with the Crosse, without Bowes and weapons, and conduct them to their houses, and give them such as they had to eate, and so they would not doe them any harme, but would become their friends: and the Captaine gave them some of the Mantles, and yied them very well. So they departed, carrying with them the two Indians, which before were prifoners, whom we had fent as Messengers, and all this was done in the presence of the Secretary of the Gouernour, and many other witnesses. Now when the Indians were returned, all an the rest of that Province, who were friends vnto the Christians, came to see vs. and brought vs Crownes and Feathers, and wee commanded them to make Churches, and fet Croffes there, because vntill then they had not made them, and wee made them bring the children of the principall Seigniory to Baptile them : whereupon the Captaine prefently made a vowe and promile vnto God, neither to make nor cause any entry to be made vpon them, nor take slaves or people in those Countries, which we had secured, and that he would observe this, vntill your Maiefty or the Gouernour Nunez di Guzman, or the Viceroy in his name, should provide better for the feruice of our Lord God, and of your Maiefty. Christianity shall not be so difficult a matter to bring in, because two thousand leagues which we traugiled by land and Sea, and other ten moneths, after we came out of captuitie, we traugiled without flay, and neuer found Sacrifices nor Idolatry. In this time, we croffed ouer from one Sea to another, and by the notice, which through much diligence wee procured to have, from the one coast to the other, wee suppose it to be about two hundred leagues broad and more, and wee understand that on the coast of the South Sea are Pearles and great riches, and that all the best and richest are neere there abouts. We abode in the towne of Saint Michael, vntill the fifteenth of the moneth of May, and the occasion why we staied there so long was this, because from thence vnto the Citie of Compostella, where the Gouemour Namez de Guzman made his te fidence, it was 100.leagues distance; and the Country was not inhabited & enemy, and it was fit, that other people should go with ve to conduct vs, among whom there were forty horsemen, who accompanied vs about fortie leagues, and from thence forward, fix Christians came with vs, who 40 weare apparell brought five hundred Indian flaues, and being come to Compostella, the Governour Nunez receiued vs very curteoutly, and gaue vs fuch as he had to cloath vs, which apparell for many dayes, I was not able to carry, and wee could not sleepe but on the ground. And so after tenne or He also de cri- twelue dayes wee departed for Mexico, and came thither on Saint lanes his euen, where the Viceroy and the Marquelle of the Valley kindely intreated vs , and gaue vs apparell and

To the Reader.

Aptaine Soto was the some of a Squire of Xerez of Badaioz. Hee went into the Spanish Indies when Peter Arias of Auila was Gonernour of the West Indies: And there he was without any thing else of his owne, Sane his Sword and Target : and for his good qualities and valour, Peter Arias made bim Captaine of a troope of horsemen, and by bis commandment he went with Fernando Pizarto to the conquest of Peru: where (as many persons of credit reported, which were there present) as well at the taking of Atabalipa, Lord of Peru, at at the affault of the Citie of Cuico, and in all other places where they found relistance, where some be was present, be surpassed all other Captaines and principall persons. For which cause, besides his part of the treasure of Atabalipa, he bad a good share : whereby in time hee Booke: which gas hered an hundred and fourescore thousand Duckets together, with that which fell to his part; which 60 being no part be brought into Spaine : whereof the Emperour borrowed a certaine part, which he repaired againe with of Florida dil- 60000. Rials of Place in the rent of the Silkes of Granada, and all the reft was delinered bim in the Concouery, I have tractation house of Smil. From Smil be went to the Court, and in the Court, there accompanied him John Danusco of Siuil, and Lewis Moscoso D'aluarado, Nunno de Touar, and John Rodriguez Lobillo.

200, leagues berwixt the coast of the

He could not for many daics nor fleepe on the ground. beth his voiage to Spaine, which is here whatioeuer they had.

Except John Danusco, all the rest came with him from Peru; and enery one of them brought sourceene or Except John Danulco, all the rest came with num from revisions exery one of toem or orongest source tent or None of those of those of those of the source of Pricene county and the rall, yet because that was the first time that he was to shew himselfe in the Court, be which were mainre was not and went accompanied with those which I have named, and with his sermants, and many guilty of Acid pent francis, and come guilty of Alexander with Donna Habella de Bouadilla, daughter of Peter Arias belief or Alexander which referred with Donna Habella de Bouadilla, daughter of Peter Arias belief or Alexander which referred with Donna Habella de Bouadilla, daughter of Peter Arias belief or Alexander which referred with Donna Habella de Bouadilla, daughter of Peter Arias belief or Alexander which are the second with Donna Habella de Bouadilla, daughter of Peter Arias belief or Alexander which are the second with Donna Habella de Bouadilla, daughter of Peter Arias belief or Alexander which are the second with Donna Habella de Bouadilla, daughter of Peter Arias belief or Alexander which Donna Habella de Bouadilla, daughter of Peter Arias belief or Alexander which Donna Habella de Bouadilla, daughter of Peter Arias belief or Alexander which Donna Habella de Bouadilla, daughter of Peter Arias belief or Alexander which Donna Habella de Bouadilla, daughter of Peter Arias belief or Alexander which Donna Habella de Bouadilla, daughter of Peter Arias belief or Alexander which are the second with the Alexander which are the second with the Alexander which are the second with the second with the Alexander which are the second with the ather which reforted unto him. He martied mero Donna Indoen de Bouautto, mangarin of the file of C. ba, and halpas death:
of Auila, Earle of Punno en Roitto. The Emperous made him the Gonernous of the Ifle of C. ba, and but by civil of Aulia, Earte of a united of Florida; with a title of Marquesse of certaine part of the lands that bee wars or otherproma conquer.

The History partly for better knowledge of ibose parts of the world and partly for the profit of Vir.

The History partly for better knowledge of ibose parts of the world and partly for the profit of Vir.

To ginian adventurers, and a senters, I have here published for briefer then the author in Portuguic and in happened to out of him Master Hakluyt) had done; and added this to that of Neruaz. Cabeza de Vaca the Anther of that at this time had come to the Court to beg the conquest of Florida : but seeing Don Ferdi- Cabezade Vaca nando de Soto bad gotten it already for his eather sake, be said, he might tell nothing of that which they was the Gouernando de socio una genera mana offers: and being agreed to goe with him, because he would not give uer of Plate. him money to pay for a Ship, which be had bought, they brake off, and he went for Gonernour to the Rthim money to pay jor a 3 ory, water a same as some and Baltalar de Gallegos went with Soto. Those with Seto into mer of the same and enroled, which Soto liked and accepted of, and did accompany him into Flo- Florida. Trea Tida; which were in all fix hundred min. He had aiready bought senen Shipa, and had all necessary pro- in his large stomisson abourd them.

In the years of our Lord 1538, in the moneth of Aprill, the Adelantado delinered his Shippes to the age containing Captaines which were to goe in them. They arrived at Saint lago in Cuba on Whisfunday. The Citie he had tooo. of lago hath eightie houles which are great and well contrined. The most part have the wals made of men with him. boords, and are covered with thatch; it hath some bonfes builded with lime and stone, and covered with tiles. It bath great Orchards and many trees in them, differing from those of Spaine : there be Figge- Great Figs. trees which beare Figges as big as ones fift, je low within, and of small tafte; and other trees which beare fruite which they call Aranes, in meating and bigneffe the to a small Pineapple : it is a fruit very sweete Ananes. jruite wonco sory can an nance, in among ananymy new on joins a mappie on an join very james. Great Pine, in tafte: the firelbeing taken away, the ternell is the apeece of fresh chiefe. In the granges abroad in apples. the Countrie there are other great Pineapples, which grow on low trees, and are like the " Aloetree: ther are of a very good smell and exceeding good tafte. Other trees die beare a fruite, which they call 30 Mameis of the bigueffe of Peaches. Thu the Islanders doe bold for the best fruit of the country. There Mameis, an

is another fruit which they call Guayabas like Filberds, as bigge as figges. There are other trees as excellentituite bieb as a inseline, beasing one onely flocke without any bough, and the leaves as long as a casting dart: Gusyabas, and the fruit is of the bignesse and fusion of a Cucumber , one bunch beareth twenty or thirty, and as they ripenthetree bendeth downwards with them: they are called in this Countrie Plantanos, and are of a Plantanos. good tafte, and ripen after they be gathered, but thefe are the better which ripen upon the tree it felfe: they beare fruit but once, and the tree being cut downe, there firing up others out of the but, which beare fruit the next yeare. There is another fruit, whereby many people are fustained, and chiefly the saues, which are called Batatas. Thefe grow now in the Isle of Terzera, belonging to the Kingdome of Portugall, Batatas, or and they grow within the carth, and are like a fruit called lname, they have almost the taste of a Chest- Poratos.

40 nut. The Bread of this countrie is also made of rootes which are like the Batatas. And the flocke whereon those rootes doe grow is like an Elder tree : they make their ground in little billocks, and in each of them The Castans they thrust foure or fine flakes; and they gather the rootes a yeare and an halfe after they fet them. If any took one, thinking it is a Batata or Potato root, chauce to eate of it nener fo little, be is in great danger of death; which was feene by experience in a Soldier, which as foone as he had caten a very little of one of those roots be died quickly. Tory prarethele voors and frumpe them, and frumle them on a thing like a preffer the imperitude that comments from shorm to of an emit front. The Bread is of little taite and leffe fulfiance. Of the fruits of Spaine there are Figs and Oranges, & they beare fruit all the yeare, becamfe the foile is very ranke and fruitfull. In this Countrie are many good Horses, and there is greene grasse all the yeare. There be many wilde Oxen and Hogs, whereby the people of the Island is well furnished with slesh : Without the townes a-

50 broad in the Countrie are many fruits. And it bappeneth sometimes that a Christian goeth ont of the way and is loft fifteene or twenty daies, because of the many paths in the thicke grows that croffe to or fro made by the Oxen: and being thus loft they full aine themselves with fruits and palmitos: for there be many great groves of Palme trees through all the Island; they yeelde no other fruite that is of any profit. The Island; of Cuba is 300 leagues long from the East to the West, and is in some places 30 in others 40 leagues from The length North to South. It hath fix towns of Christians : to wit, S. Iago, Baracoa, Bayamo, Puerto de Princi- ot Cuba. pes, S. Elpirito, and Hauana. Enery one bath betweene thirty and forty housholds, except S. Iago and Hauana, whith have about fixtie or eightie houses. They have Churches in each of them, and a Chaplen which confesset bem and faith Masse. In S. 1290 is a Monasterie of Franciscan Friers: it hathbut few Friers, and is well provided of almes, because the Commerce is rich : The Church of S. Iago hash bonest revenew,

60 and there is a Curat and Prebends and many Priests, as the Church of that Citie, which is the chiefe of all the Island. There is in this Countrie much Gold, and few staues to get it: For many have made away themselves , because of the Christians enil vsuge of them in the Mines. A Steward of Valques A wittie stra-Porcallo, which was an inhibitour in that Island, understanding that his slaues would make away themfelues, flated for them with a cudgell in his hand at the place where they were to meete, and told them, that they could neither doe nor thinke any thing, that bee did not know before, and that bee came thisbee to kill him felf: with them, to the end, that if be bad veed them badly in this World, hee might ve them. worfe in the World to come : And this was a meane that they changed their purpofe, and turned home acame to doe that which be commanded them.

This Preface is contained more at large in the fixe fift Chapters of here reduced to a Preface.

CHAP. II.

FERDINANDO de SOTO his Voyage to Florida and Discouerie of the Regions in that Continent: with the I rauels of the Spaniards foure yeeres together therein, and the accidents which befell them: poritten by a Portugall of the Company, and here contracted.

SOTOS entrance into Florida, taking of IOHN ORTIZ one of Naruaz his company, comming to Paracoffy, and divers other Caciques, with accidents in the way.

N Sunday the eighteenth of May, in the yeere of our Lord 1539. the Adelantado or President departed from Hauana in Cuba with his fleet, which werenine vef-

I fels, fiue great shippes, two Carauels, and two Brigantines : They sayled feuen

May 18. 1539. de la Veza hath writ en a fto y of this youage. He faith Soto had with him 950. fouldiers, had enterrais ned for the conquest of Florida, and came with him This Author hath but 600. Towne of Villa

The Towne of Veits. lu..c.

dayes with a properous wind. The five and twentieth day of May, the day de Pasca de Spirito Santo (which we call Whitson Sunday) they saw the Land of 30 Florida; and because of the fhoalds, they came to an anchora league from the shoare. On Friday the thirtieth of May they landed in Floreda, two leagues from a Towne of an Indian Lord, called Vena, They fet on Land two hundred and thirteene Horfes, which they bendes Mari-ners, which he brought with them, to vnburden the ships, that they might draw the lesse water. He landed all his men, and only the Seamen remained in the thips, which in eight daies, going vp with the tide euerie day a little, brought them vp voto the Towne. Affoone as the people were come on shore, he pitched his Campe on the Sea fide, hard you the Bay which went vp vnto the Towne. And relently the Captaine Generall Valques Porcallo with other feuen Horiemen foraged the Countrie halte a league round about, and found fixe Indians, which refifted him with their Arrowes, from Saint La- which are the weapons which they yie to fight with all : The Horfemen killed two of them, 40 and the other foure escaped; because the Countries cumbersome with Woods and Bogs, where the Horses stacke fast, and fell with their Riders, because they were weake with travelling spon the Sea. The same night following the Gouernour with an hundred men in the Brigantines came vpto the lighted vpon a Towne, which he found without people, because, that assoone as the Christians had light of Land, they were descried, and law along the Coalt many smokes, which the Indians had made to give advice the one to the other. The next day Lugs de Moscofo, Master of the Campe let the men in order, the Horsemen in three Squadrons, the Vantgard, the Batalian, and the R-reward : and so they marched that day, and the day following, compalling great Creekes which came out of the Bay : They came to the Towne of Veira, where the Gouernout was, on Sunday the first of June, being Trinitie Sunday. The Towne was of seuen or eight houses. The 50 Lords houte flood neere the shoare vpon a very high Mount, made by hand for strength. At another end of the Towne flood the Church, and on the top of it flood a fowle made of wood with gilded eres. Here we found some Pearles of small value, spoiled with the fire, which the Indians doe pierce and string them like Beads, and weare them about their neckes and hand-wrifts, and they efteeme them very much. The houses were made of Timber, and covered with Palme

From the Towns of Voita the Gouernour fent Alcalde Maior Baltafar de Gallegor with fortie Horièmen and eightie Footmen into the Countrie to fee if they could take any Indoes: and the Captaine lobn Rodriguez Lobillo another way with fiftie Fuotmen. lobn Rodriguez Lobillo returned to the Campe with fixe men wounded, whereof one died, and brought the toure lates 60 women, which Baltafar Gallegos had taken in the Cabbins or Cottages. Two leagues from the Towne; comming into the plaine field, he espied ten or eleuen Indians, among whom was a Cor-Bian, which was naked and foorched with the Sunne, and had his armes razed after the manner of the Indians, and differed nothing at all from them. And alloone as the Horfemen law them they ranne toward them. The Indians fled, and some of them hid themselves in a Wood, and they ouertooke two or three of them which were wounded; and the Christian Seeing an Hosteman ruone vpon him with his Lance, began to crie out, Sirs, I am a Christian, slay here not, northefe Indians, for they have faved my life. And straight way hee called them, and putchem out of feare, and they came forth of the Wood voto them. The Horsemen tooke both the Christian and the Indians up behind them; and toward night came into the Campe with much ioy; which thing being knowne by the Gouernour, and them that remained in the Campe, they were re-

CHAP. 2.S.1. The Indians cruell purpofe. Worshippers of the Deuill.

This Christians name was John Ortiz, and hee was borne in Smill, of Worthspfull Parentage. Inha Ortiz 15. 10 He was twelve yeeres in the hands of the Indians, He come into this Countrie with Pamphila de ued 12 yeeres, Hewas twelle yeares in the lands of the andams, the came into this Country with anyone as among the Names; and returned in the ships to the Hand of Cuba, where the Wife of the Governous Pans-Floridaes of Philipside of the state of the returned backe againe to Florida: and comming to the Port in the fight of the Towne, on the shoare they faw a Cane sticking in the ground, and riven at the top, and a Letter in it and they. Nature, beleeued that the Gouernour had left it there to gine aduertitement of himfelfe, when free resoluted to goe up into the Land: and they demanded it of four or flue Indians, which walked along the Sea shoare : and they bal them by signes to come on shoare for it : which against the will of the rest lobs Ortic and another did. And associated were on the Land, from the houfes of the Towne issued a great number of Indians, which compassed them about, and tooke them

20 in a place where they could not flee; and the other which fought to defend himfelfe, they prefently killed upon the place and tooke lohn Ortiz aline, and carried him to Veita their Lord. And those of the Brigandine fought not to land, but put themselues to Sea, and returned to the the lland of Cuba. Vetta commanded to bind lohn Orize hand and foot vpon foure stakes aloft vpon a rafe, and to make a fire vnder him, that there he might bee burned : But a daughter of his defired him that he would not put him to death, alleaging, that one only Christian could do him neither hurt nor good, telling him, that it was more for his honour to keepe him as a Captine. And Veta granted her request, and commanded him to bee cured of his wounds : and affoone as he was whole, he gaue him the charge of the keeping of the Temple : because that by night the Wolves did carrie away the dead corples out of the fame : who commended himselfe to God and

30 tooke voon him the charge of his Temple. One night the Wolues gate from him the corples of a little child, the Sonne of a principall Indian; and going after them he threw a Dart avone of the Wolves, and strooke him that carried away the corps, who feeling himselfe wounded, left it, and fell downe dead neere the place; and hee not woting what he had done, because it was night, went backe againe to the Temple : the morning being come, and finding not the bodie of the childe, he was very lad. Alloone as Vous knew thereof, he resolued to put him to death; and fent by the tract, which hee faid the Wolues went, and found the bodie of the childe, and the Wolfe dead a little beyond; whereat Voice was much contented with the Christian; and with the watch which heekept in the Temple, and from thence forward effeemed him much. Three yeeres after he fell into his hands, there came another Lord called Mocogo, who dwelleth two

49 daies journey from the Port, and burned his Towne. Vens fled to another Towne that he had in journie from another Sea Port. Thus Iohn Ortizloft his office and fauour that he had with him. These people Vine being worth ppers of the Deuill, are wont to offer vp vnto him the lines and bloud of their indian or of any other people they can come by: and they report, that when hee will have them Humane Sadoe that Sacrifice vnto him, he speaketh with them, and telleth them that hee is athirst, and crifice. willerh them to facrifice vnto him. Iohn Ortiz had noticeby the Damofell that had deliuered him from the fire, how her father was determined to facrifice him the day following, who willed him to flee to Mococo : for the knew that he would vie him well : for the heard fay, that he had asked for him, and faid he would be glad to fee him: and because he knew not the way, she went with him halfe a league out of the Towne by night, and fet him in the way, and returned be-

50 cause the would not be discourred. Iohn Ortiz travelled all that night, and by the morning came A Rivers vnto a River, which is in the Territorie of Mococo. Three or foure Indians carried the newes to their Lord : who came forth a quarter of a league from the Towne to receive him; and was very glad of him. He caused him presently to sweare according to the custome of the Christians, that he would not runne away from him to any other Lord : and promifed him to entreate him very well; and that if at any time there came any Christians into that Countrie, he would freely let him goe, and give himleaue to goe to them : and likewife tooke his oath to performe the fame according to the Indian cultome. He dwelt with Mossos nine yeeres, with small hope of seeing any Christians. Alloone as our Gouernour arrived in Florida, it was knowne to Mococo, and Braightway he fignified to lohn Ortiz, that Christians were lodged in the Towne of Veita. And

60 Mocogo gaue him ten or eleven principal Indians to beare him company and as they went to the P. rt where the Gouernour was, they met with Baltafar de Gallegos, as I have declared before. Affoone as hee was come to the Campe, the Gouernour commanded to give him a fute of appatell, and very good Armour, and a faire Horfe; and enquired of him, whether hee had notice of any Countrie where there was any Gold or Siluer ! He answered, No, because hee neuer went ten leagues compasse from the place where he dwelt : Butchat thirty leagues from thence dwele an Indian Lord, which was called Parocoffi, to whom Mosogo and Veita, with all the rest of thre Goalt payed Tribute, and that he peraduenture might have notice of some good Countrie: and that his Land was better then that of the Sea-coast, and more fruitfull and plentifull of Maiz Whereof the Gouernour received great contentment : and faid that hee defired no more then to find victuals, that he might goe into maine Land, for the Land of Florida, was fo large, that in one place or other there could not choose but bee some Countrie. The Cacique Mococo came to the Port to wifit the Gou mour.

Para:0/1 30. leagues from Parte de Stirito Saute.

The Governour answered him, That although in freeing and sending him the Christian, he had profesued his honour and promise, yet he thanked him, and held it in such esteeme, as it had no Id compariton; and that he would alwayes hold him as his Brother, and would fauous him in all things to the vtmost of his power. Then he gommanded a shirt to be given him, and other thinss wherewith the Cacique being very well contented, to his leave of him, and departed to his - was owne Towne.

From the Port de Spirito Santo where the Gouernour lay, he fent the Alcalde Maier Baltalas

de Gallego: with fitte Horiemen, and thirtie or fortie Footmen to the Prounce of Paracolli, to view the disposition of the Countrie, and informe himselfe of the Land farther inward . and to fend him word of fuch things as he found. Likewife he fent his ships backe to the Hand of Cs. ba, that they might returne within a certaine time with victuals. Vafques Porcallo de Finnera. which went with the Gouernour as Captaine Generall; (whose principall intent was to fend flaues from Flarida, to the Iland of Cuba, where he had his goods and Mynes) having made some In-rodes, and freing no Indians were to be got, because of the great Bogges and thicke Woods that were in the Countrie, confidering the disposition of the same, determined to returne to Ca-64. And sliough there was some difference betweene him and the Governour, whereupon they neither deals nor connerfed together with good countenance, yet notwithstanding with louise words hee asked him leave and departed from him. Baltafar de Gallegos came to the Paracoffi: There came to him thirty Indians from the Cacique, and faid, that their Lord was ill at eale, and therefore could not come, but that they came on his behalfe to fee what he demanded. Hee asked them if they knew or had notice of any rich Country where there was Gold or Silver. They told them they did and that toward the West, there was a Province which was called Cale; and that others that inhabited other Countries had warre with the people of that Countrie, where the most part of the yeere was Summer, and that there was much Gold : and that when those their enemies came to make warre with them of Cale, these Inhabitants of Cale did weare hats of Gold, in manner of Head-pieces. Baltafar de Gallegos, feeing that the Cacique came not, thinking all that they faid was fained, with intent that in the meane time they might fet themfelues in faftetie, fearing, that if he did let them goe, they would returne no more, commanded the thirtie Indians to be chained, and fent word to the Gouernour by eight Horsemen what had puffed whereof the Gouernour with all that were with him, at the Port de Spirito Santo received great comfort, supposing that that which the Indians reported, mght be true. Hee left Captains Calderan at the Port, with thirtie Horsemen and seventie Footmen , with provision for two to weeres, and himselfe with all the rest marched into the mayne Land, and came to the Paracoss. at whole Towne Batafar de Gallegos was : and from thence with all his men tooke the way to Cale. He passed by a little Towne called Acela, and came to another called Tocaste : and from thence he went before with thirtie Horsemen, and fiftie Footmen toward Cale. And paffing by a Towne, whence the people were fled, they faw Indians a little from thence in a Lake; to whom the Interpretor spake. They came vnto them and gaue them an Indian for a guide : and hee came to a River with a great current, and vpon a Tree, which was in the midit of it, was made a Bridge, whereon the men palled : the Horles swamme ouer by a Hawser, that they were pulled by from the otherfide: for one which they drove in at the first without it, was drowned, From thence the Gouernour fent two Horsemen to his people that were behind, to make halle 10 after him; because the way grew long, and their victuals short. He came to Cale, and found the Towns without people. He tooke three Indians which were Spies, and tarried these for his people that came after, which were fore vexed with hunger and evill wayes, because the Countrie was very barren of Maiz, low, and full of water, bogs, and thicke woods; and the victuals, which they brought with them from the Port de Spirito Santo, were ipent. Wheretoeuer any Towne was found, there were some Beets, and he that came first gathered them, and sodden with water and falt, did eate them without any other thing : and fuch as could not get them, gathered the stalkes of Maiz and eate them, which because they were young had no Maiz in them. When they came to the River which the Gouernour had passed, they found Palmitos vpon low Palme-trees like those of Andaluzia. There they met with the two Horiemen which the Go- 62 uernour fent vnto them, and they brought newes that in (ale there was plentie of Maiz; at which newes they all rejoyced. Affoone as they came to Cale, the Gouernour commanded them to gather all the Maiz that was ripe in the field, which was furicient for three moneths. At the gathering of it the Indians killed three Christians, and one of them which were taken told Paracolli. Calc.

> Paratoffi. Astla Totalie.

Another Towne. A Lake. Aiwift Riuer.

Caie.

CHAP, 2. S 1. Arich Province. Sorrowfull newes, Musicall signes of peace. 1533 the Governour, that within feuen dayes journey, there was a very great Province, and plentifull of Maiz, which was called Apalache. And prefently hee departed from Cale with fiftie Horfemen, and fixtie Footmen. He left the Master of the Campe Luys de Moscoso with all the rest of the people there, with charge that he should not depart thence untill he had word from him. And because hitherto none had gotten any slaves, the bread that every one was to eate, hee was faine himfelfe to beate in a Morter made in a piece of Timber with a Pettle, and some of them Trauelline did fift the flowre through their fhirts of Mayle. They baked their bread voon certaine Tile- Souldiers fhifti shares which they set ouer the fire. It is so troublesome to grinde their Maiz, that there were for bread. many that would rather not eat it, then grind it: and did eate the Maiz parched and fodden. The eleuenth day of August 1539, the Gouernour departed from Cale; hee lodged in a little The elementh day of August 1539, the Concernion departed from party in the day at Vinama, and Trava.

Townecalled Tiara, and the next day in another called Posano, and the third day at Vinama, and came to another Towne, which they named the Towne of Easil peace; because an Indian came in Polano. peace, laying, That he was the Cacique, and that he with his people would ferue the Gouernour, The Towne of and that if he would fet free eight and twentie persons, men and women, which his men had ta- Emill peace. the night before, he would command provision to be brought him, and would give him a guide to infructhim in his way : The Gouernour commanded them to befet at libertie, and to keepe him in faferard. The next day in the morning there came many Indians, and fet themselves round about the Towne neere to a Wood. The Indian wifted them to carrie him neere them : and that he would speake vnto them, and affure them, and that they would doe what soeuer he commanao ded them, And when he faw himfelte neere vnto them he brake from them, and ranne away fo (wiftly from the Christians, that there was none that could overtake him, and all of them fled into the Woods. The Gouernour commanded to loofe a Greyhound, which was alreadie fleshed Greyhound on them, which passing by many other Indians, caught the counterfeit Cacique, which had ef- catchesh the capel from the Christians, and held him till they came to take him. From thence the Gouer-fugitive. nour lodged at a Towne called Cholupaha: and because it had flore of Maiz in it, they named it Cholupaha. Villa forta. Beyond the same there was a River, on which he made a Bridge of Timber, and tra- A River. uelled two daies through a defert. The feuenteenth of August, he came to Caliquen, where hee Caliquen. was informed of the Province of Apalache: They told him that Pamphilo de Narvaez had beene there, and that there he tooke shipping, because he could find no way to goe forward: That there 30 was none other Towne at all; but that on both fides was all water. The whole company were verie sad for these newes; and counselled the Gouernour to goe backe to the Port de Spirite Santo and to abandon the Countrie of Florida, left he should perith as Warnaez had done : declaring. that if he went forward, he could not returne backe when he would, and that the Indians would gather vp that small quantitie of Maiz which was left. Whereunto the Gouernour answered. that he would not goe backe, till he had feene with his eies that which they reported : faying, that he could not beleeve it, and that wee should be put out of doubt before it were long. And he fent to Luys de Moscoso to come presently from Cale, and that hee tarried for him heere. Luys de Moscos and many others thought, that from Apalache they should returne backe; and in Calo they buried their Iron Tooles, and divers other things. They came to Calignen with great trouand ble; because the Countrie, which the Gouernour had passed by, was spoiled and destitue of Maiz. After all the people were come together, he commanded a Bridge to bee made ouer a River that paffed neere the Towne. Hee departed from Caliquen the tenth of September, and carried the A River. Cacique with him. After hee had trauelled three dayes, there came Indians peaceably, to visit their Lord, and enery day met vs on the way playing vpon Flutes : which is a token that they yle, that men may know that they come in peace. They faid, that in our way before was there a Cacique, whose name was Vzachil, a Kinsman of the Cacique of Caliquen their Lord , wayting for him with many presents, and they defired the Gouernour that hee would loofe the Cacique. But hee would not , fearing that they would rife , and would not give him any Guides, and fent them away from day to day with good wordes. 60 He travelled fine daies, passed by some small Townes, came to a Towne called Napetnea, the fif- Some small teenth day of September. There were thirtie or fortie Indians flaine. The rest fled to two very Townes. great Lakes, that were somewhat distant the one from the other: There they were swimming, Mapesuca. and the Christians round about them. The Calienermen and Croffe-bowmen shot at them from the banke; but the diffiance being great, and shooting afarre off, they did them no hurt. The Go-uernour commanded that the fame night they should compasse one of the Lakes, because they were to great, that there were not men enow to compaffe them both : beeing belet, afforne as night shut in, the Indians, with determination to runne away, came swimming very softly to the banke; and to hide themselves, they put a water Lilly leafe on their heads. The Horsemen affoone as they perceived it to ftirre, ranne into the water to the Horses breafts, and the Indians fled a-them, that feeing they could not escape, they should yeeld themselves to the Governour : which they did, enforced thereunto by the coldnesse of the water; and one by one, hee first whom the cold did first overcome, cried to loba Ortiz, desiring that they would not kill him, for he came to put himfelfe into the hands of the Gouernour. By the morning watch they made an end of yeel-

6) gaine into the Lake. So this night pailed without any reft on both fides. Iohn Orriz perswaded

Indian Subtlety.

a new Conipiracie.

ding themselves: only twelve principall men, being more honourable and valorous then the rest refolved rather to die then to come into his hands. And the Indians of Faracoff, which were now loofed out of chaines, went fwimming to them, and pulled them out by the haire of their heads, and they were all put inchaines, and the next day were divided among the Christians for their teruice. Being thus in captilitie, they determined to rebell; and gaue in charge to an Indian, which was Interpretor, and held to bee valuant, that assoone as the Gouernour did come to speake with him, hee should cast his hands about his necke, and choake him. Who, when he faw opportunitie, laid hands on the Gouernor, and before he cast his hands about his nocke, he gave him fuch a blow on the notirils, that he made them gush out with bloud, and presently all the rest did rise. He that could get any weapons at hand or the I andle wher withhe Io did grind the Maiz, fought to kill his Mafter, or the first hee met before him : a.d hee that could get a Lance or Sword at hand, bestirred himselfe in such fort with it, as though he had vsed it all his life time. One Indian in the Ma ket place enclosed betweene fifteene or twentie Footmen. made away like a Bull with a Sword in his hand, till certaine Halbardiers of the Gouernor came, which killed him, Another gat vp with a Lance to a loft made of Canes, which they build to keepe their Maizin, which they call a Barbacoa, and there he made fuch a noy fe, as though tenne men had beene there defending the doore : they flue him with a partifan. The Indians were in all about two hundred men. They were all fubdued. And some of the youngest the Gouernour gaue to then which had good chaines, and were carefull to looke to them that they gat not away. All the test becom named to be put to death, being tyed to a stake in the midst of the Market place: 10 and the Lodians of the Paracoffi did shoot them to death.

Ind to 136-0.

A Ruer.

Haralant a creat Forne. VautiL. * Aboberas.

The Gove nour departed from Napetuca the three and twentieth of September : hee lodged by a React, where two Indians brought him a Bucke from the Cacique of Vzachil. The next day he pailed by a great Towne called Hapalaya; and lodged at Vzachil, and found no people in it, because they durit not tarrie for the notice the Indians had of the flaughter of Napetuca. Hee found in that Townt great store of Maiz, French Beanes and * Pompions, which is their food, and that wherewich the Christians there fultained themselves. The Maiz is like course Millet. and the Pompions are better and more fauourie then those of Spaine, From thence the Gouernour fene two Captaines each a fundry way to feeke the Indians. They tooke an hundred men and women : of which aswell there as in other places where they made any inrodes, the Captain 30 chose one or two for the Gouernour, and divided the rest to himselse, and those that went with him. They led thefe Indians in chaines with Iron collars about their neckes; and they ferued to carrie their ftuffe, and to grind their Maiz wand for other feruices that fuch Captines could doe, Sometimes it happened that going for wood or Maiz with them, they killed the Christian that led them, and ranne away with the chaine : orhers filed their chaines by night with a piece of ftone, wherewith they cut them, and vie it in ftead of Iron. Those that were perceiued paid for them selves, and for the rest, because they should not dare to doe the like another time. The women and young boyes, when they were once an hundred leagues from their Countrie, and had forgotten things, they let goe loofe, and so they served; and in a very short space they vaderstood the Language of the Christians. From Vzachil the Governour departed toward Apalach, to and in two dayes sourney, he came to a Towne called Axille, and from thence forward the Indians were carelesse, because they had as yet no notice of the Christians. The next day in the morning, the first of October, he departed from thence, and commanded a Bridge to be made our a Axille. A River. Ditachuco.

Officheras.

Asset Affile.

or the bear C. heie. The Sea.

River which he was to paffe. The Gouernour passed upon Wednesday, which was Saint Francis his day, and lodged at a Towns which was called Vitachneo, fubicat to Apalache: he found it burning; for the Indians had let it on fire. From thence forward the Countrie was much inhabited, and had great flore of Maiz, He pissed by many Granges like Hamlets. On Sunday the five and twentieth of October, he came to a Towne, which is called Ozela, and vpon Tuelday to Anaica Apalace, where the Lord of all that Countrie and Province was refident: in which Towne the Campenalte, whose office it is to quarter out and lodge men, did lodge all the company round about within a league and halte a league of it. There were other Townes, where was great store of Maiz, Pompions, French Beanes, and Plummes of the Countrie, which are better then those of Spans, and they grow in the fields without plantin. The victuals that were thought necessary to passe the Winter, were gathered from these Townes to Anaica Apalache. The Governour was intermed, that the Sea was ten leagues from thence. He presently sent a Captaine thither with Horsemen and Footmen: And fixe leagues on the way he found a Towne, which was named Ochece, and to came to the Sea, and found a great tree felled, and cut it into preces, with stakes fet up like mangers, and law the skuls of horfes. He returned with this newes. And that was held for certains, which was reported of Pamphilo de Narmaes, that there he had builded the barkes where 60 with he was now or the land of Elmid with he went out of the land of Florida, and was cast away at Sea. Presently the Government fent Iohn Danufco with thirty horiemen to the port de Spirita Santo, where Calderan was write order shat they should abandon the port, and all of them come to Apalache. He departed on Saturday the seuenteenth of Nouember. In Ozachil and other towner that stood in the way hee found great flore of people already carelesse. He would take none of the Indians for not hindring himselfe, because it behooved him to give them no leasure to gather themselves together; Hee passed through the Townes by night, and rested without the Townes three or some hours. In The Port de passed through the 1 ownes by night, and letter with him twenty Indian women, spiritus and ten daies he came to the Port de Spirito Santo. Hee carried with him twenty Indian women, ten daies iourwhich he tooke in Teara, and Potano, neere vnto Cale, and fent them to Donna Ifabella, in the two nieftom afa-Carauchs, which he fent from the Port de Spirito Santo to Cuba. And he carried all the footemen Labe. in the Brigandines, and coasting along the shoare, came to Apalache. And Calderan with the horsemen, and some crossebow-men on foote went by land; and in some places the Indians set voon im, and wounded fome of his men. As soone as he came to Apalache, presently the Go-to uernour tent fawed plankes and spikes to the Sea side, wherewith was made a Piragna or Barke, wherein were embarked thirty men well armed, which went out of the Bay to the Sea, looking for the Brigandines. Sometimes they fought with the Indians, which passed along the harbour in their Canoes. Vpon Saturday, the twenty nine of Nouember, there came an Indian through the Watch undiscouered, and fet the Towne on fire, and with the great winde that blew, two parts of it were confumed in a short time. On Sunday the twenty eight of December came lobn Dannico with the Brigandines. The Gouernor fent Francisco Maldonado, a Captain off ootmen, with fiftie men to discouer the coast Westward, &to seeke some Port, because he had determined to goe by land, &difcouer that part. That day there went out eight horfemen by commandement of the Gouernour into the field, two leagues about the Towne to feeke Indians : for they were

20 now so emboldened, that within two croffebow shot of the campe, they came & slew men. They found two men and a woman gathering French Beanes: the men, though they might have fled. yet because they would not leave the woman, which was one of their wives, they resolved to die fighting : and before they were flaine, they wounded three horfes, whereof one died within a few dates after. Calder an going with his men by the Sea-coast, from a wood that was neere the place, the Indians let upon him, and made him for fake his way, and many of them that went with him forfooke fome necessary victuals, which they carried with them. Three or fouredayes after the limited time given by the Governor to Maldonado for his going and comming, being already determined and resolued, if within eight dayes he did not come, to tarry no longer for him, hee came, and brought an Indian from a Province, which was called Ochus, fixty leagues Westward Ochus sixtie

30 from Apalache, where he had found a good Port of good depth and defense against weather. And leagues West because the Gouernor hoped to finde a good Countrie forward, he was very well contented. And he fent Maldonado for victuals to Hanana, with order, that hee would tarrie for him at the Port of Ochm, which he had discouered, for he would goe seeke it by land ; and if he should chance to flay, and not come thither that fummer, that then he should returne to Hanana, & should come againe the next fummer after, and tarry for him at that Port: for he faid he would doe none other thing but goe to feeke Ochus. Francisco Maldonado departed, and in his place for Captaine of the Chap. 11. footemen remained lobn de Guzman. Of those Indians which were taken in Napetuca, the treasurer lebn Gartan had a wong man, which faid, that he was not of that Countrie, but of another far off toward the Sunriving, and that it was long fince he had travelled to fee Countries; and that his 40 Countrie was called Tapaba, and that a woman did gouerne it: and that the Towne where shee

was refident was of a wonderfull bignesse, and that many Lords round about were tributaries to her : and some gaue her clothes, and others Gold in abundance : and he told, how it was taken out of the Mines, and was moulten & refined, as if he had feene it done, or the Divell had taught Abundance of it him. So that all those which knew any thing concerning the same, said that it was impossible Gold. to give fo good a relation, without having seene it: And all of them, as if they had seene it, by the fignes that he gaue, beleeved all that he faid to be true.

On Wednesday the third of March, of the yeere 1540. the Gouetnour departed from ... naice Apalache to feeke Tupaha. He commanded his men to goe prouided with Maiz for fixtie leavies of defert. The horiemen carried their Maiz on their horses, and the footemen at their fides : because the Indians that were for service, with their miserable life that they lead that win- Death of Is-

50 ter, being naked and in chaines, died for the most part. Within foure dayes iourney they came dianstauer. to a great River : and they made a piragua or ferrie boate, and because of the great current, they made a cable with chaines, which they fastened on both sides of the River; and the ferrie boate went along by it, and the horfes fwam over, being drawne with capitans. Having paffed the River, in a day and a halfe they came to a Towne called Capachiqui. Vpon Friday, the eleventh of March, they found Indians in armes. The next day five Christians went to feeke morters, which the Indians have to beate their Maiz, and they went to certaine houses on the backe-fide of the Campe environed with a wood; and within the wood were many Indians which came to fpie vs; of the which came other fine and fet vpon vs. One of the Christi-

60 ans came running away, giving an alarme vnto the Campe: Those which were most ready anfwered the alarme. They found one Christian dead, and three fore wounded. The Indians fled vnto a lake adjoyning neere a very thicke wood, where the hories could not enter. The Gouernour departed from Capachiani, and passed through a detert. On Wednesday the twenty one of the moneth he came to a Towns called Toalli . And from thence forward there was a diffe-Mmmmmm Toalli. Their houses for winter and

A graffe like

Achefe.

rence in the houses. For those which were behinde vs were thatched with straw, and those of Toalli were couered with reedes, in manner of tiles. These houles are very clenly. Some of them had wals daubed with clay, which shewed like a mudwall. In all the cold Countries the Indiana have every one a house for the winter daubed with clay within & without, and the doores is very little; they flut it by night, and make fire within, to that they are in it as warme as in a flone: and fo it continueth all night that they neede not cloathes: and besides these, they have others for Summer; and their kitchins neere them, where they make fire and bake their bread; and they have barbacoas wherein they keepe their Maiz; which is an houle fet vp in the aire vpon fourfiakes, boorded about like a chamber, and the floore of it is of cane hurdles. The difference which Lords or principall mens houses have from the rest, besides they be greater, is, that they have so great galleries in their fronts, & under them feates made of canes in manner of benchest and round about them they have many lotts, wherein they lay vp that which the Indians doe give them for tribute, which is Maiz Deeres skins, and mantles of the Countrie, which are like blankets: they make them of the inner rinde of the barkes of trees & some of a kinde of grasse like voto nettles. which being beaten, is like vnto flaxe. The women couer themselues with these Mantles; they put one about them from the waste downeward; and another ouer their shoulder, with their right arme out, like vnto the Egyptians. The men weare but one Mantle vpon their shoulders after the same manner; and haue their secrets hid with a Deeres skin, made like a linnen breech. which was wont to be vied in Spains. The skins are well corried, and they give them whatcolour they lift, so perfect, that if it be red, it feemeth a very fine cloath in graine, and the blacke is 10 Excellent comost fine : and of the lameleather they make shooes; and they dye their Mantles in the same colours. The Gouernor departed from Todis the foure and twentieth of March : he came on Thurfday at evening to a small River, where a bridge was made whereon the people passed, and Bent Fernandez a Portugall fell off from it, and was drowned. As soone as the Gonernour had passed A fmall Rive the River, a little distance thence he found a Towne called Ache fe. The Indians had notice of the Christians; they leaped into a River: fome men and women were taken; among which was one that understood the youth which guided the Gouernour to Tupaba: whereby that which he had reported was more confirmed. For they had passed through Countries of divers languages, and fome which he understood not. The Gouernour fent by one of the Indians that were taken to call the Cacique, which was on the other fide of the River. He came. The Governour told him & that he was the Soune of the Sunne, and came from those parts where hee dwelt, and travelled through that Countrie, and fought the greatest Lord, and richest Province that was in it. The Ca-Seto preteuds sique told him, that farther forward dwelt a great Lord, and that his dominion was called Ocent. so be the Son He gaue hima guide and an Interpreter for that Province. The Gouernour commanded his Isof the Sunne. dians to be fet free, and trauelled through his Countrie vp a Ruer very well inhabited. Hee de-Mannerof Spa- parted from his Towne the first of Aprill; and left a very high crosse of Wood set up in the midell inhabited. miards praying. delt of the market place : and because the time gaue no more leasure, hee declared to him onely, that that croffe was a memoriall of the same, whereon Christ, which was God and man, and created the heavens and the earth, fuffered for our faluation : therefore he exhorted them that they (hould reuerence it : and they made flew as though they would doe fo. The fourth of 4-49 prill they passed by a Town called Aliamaca, and the tenth of the moneth he came to Ocute. The Cacique lent him two thouland Indians with a prefent, to wit, many Conies, & Partridges, bread of Maiz, two Hens, and many Dogs: which among the Christians were effermed as if they had Conics Partri beene fat Wethers, because of the great want of flesh meate and Salt, and hereof in many place, ges, Hens, and many times was great neede ; and they were so scarie, that if a man fell sicke, there was nothing to cherrish him withall; and with a ficknesse, that in another place easily might have been remedied, he confumed away till nothing but skinne and bones were left : and they died of pure weakenede, some of them saying, If I had a slice of meate, or a few cornes of Salt, I should not dis. And because they were thus scanted of flesh, when six hundred men that went with Sois, came to any Towns, and found thirty or forty Dogs, he that could get one and kill it, thought him-

Cofaqui. Patofa.

Atemaca-

Dogges

Ocuse.

An excellent fitte leagues. Barren Cousto a Province of an Indian Lord, called Patofa. This Countrie, from the first peaceable Cacique, vnto the Pronince of Patofa, which were fiftie leagues, is a fat Countrie, Beautifull, and very fruitfull, and very well watered, and full of good Rivers. And from thence to the Port de Sprito Santo, where we first arrived in the land of Florida (which may be 350, leagues, little more or leffe) is a barren land, and the most of it 60 groues of wilde Pine-trees, low and full of lakes, and in some places very high and chicke groues, whither the Indians that were in armes fled, so that no man could finde them, neither could any felfe no small man : and he that killed it, and gaue not his Captaine one quarter, if he knewit, he frowned on him, and made him feele it, in the watches, or in any other matter of labour that was offered, wherein he might doe him a displeasure. On Monday, the twelth of Aprill, the Gouernour departed from Ocuse: The Cacique gave him two hundred Tamenes, to wit, Indians to carrie burdens : he palied through a Towne, the Lord whereof was name i Cofaqui, and came

In the Towne of Parofa, the youth which the Gouernour carried with him for an Interpte tour and a guide, began to fome at the mouth, and tumble on the ground, as one possessed with the Divell: They faid a Gospell over him; and the fit left him. And he faid, that foure daies journie from thence toward the Sunne rifing, was the Province that hee spake of. The Indians of Parofa faid, that toward that part they knew no habitation; but that toward the Northwest. they knew a Prouince which was called Coco, a very plentifull Countrie, which had very great Townes in it. The Cacique told the Gouernour, that if he would goe thither, he would give him guides and Indians for burdens; and if he would goe whither the youth spake of, that hee would likewife give him those that he needed: and so with louing words and offers of courtesie, they tooke their leaves the one of the other. He gave him feven hundred Indians to beare burdens. He tooke Maiz for foure dayes journie. He trauelled fix daies by a path which grew narrow more and more, till it was lost altogether: He went where the youth did lead him, and passe two Rivers Rivers. which were waded : each of them was two croflebowshot ouer : the water came to the firrops. and had so great a current, that it was needefull for the horsemen to stand one before another. that the footemen might passe aboue them leaning vnto them. He came to another River of a greater current and largeneffe, which was paffed with more trouble, because the horses did swim. Another great at the comming out about a lances length. Having paffed this River, the Governour came to a ter River. groue of Pinetrees, and threatned the youth, and made as though hee would have cast him to the dogs, because he had told him a lye, saying, it was but foure daies journie, and they had trauelled nine every day feven or eight leagues, and the men by this time were growne wearie and weake, and the horses leane through the great scanting of the Maiz. The youth said, that he knew not where he was. It faued him that hee was not cast to the dogs, that there was neuer another whom Ishn Ortiz did understand. The Gouernour with them two, and with some horsemen and footemen, leaving the Campe in a groue of Pinetrees, travelled that day five or fix leagues to feeke a way, and returned at night very comfortleffe, and without finding any figne of way or towne. The next day, the Gouernour fent other foure with as many horsemen that could fwim, to paffe the Ofe and Rivers which they should finde, and they had choife horses the best that were in the Campe. The Captaines were Baltafar de Galleges, which went vo the River: and lobn Danufco, downe the River : Alfonfo Romo, and Iohn Rodriguez Lobillo went into the inward parts of the land. The Gouernour brought with him into Florida thirteene Sowes. The great in-

30 and had by this time three hundred Swine: Hee commanded enery man should have halfe a create of swine bound of Hogs flosh enery day : and this he did three or foure dayes after the Maiz was fpent. With this small quantitie of flesh, and some sodden hearbes, with much trouble the people were fullained. John Danusco came on Sunday late in the evening, and brought newes that hee had foundalittle Towne twelve or thirteene leagues from thence : he brought a Woman and a Boy that he had tooke there. With his comming and with those newes, the Governour and all the rest were so glad, that they seemed at that instant to have returned from death to life. Voon Monday, the twenty fix of Aprill, the Gouernour departed to goe to the Towne, which was called Aymay; and the Christians named it the Towns of Relufe. He left where the Campe had lien at the toote of a Pinetree a letter buried, and letters carued in the barke of the Pine, the 40 contents whereof was this : Digge here at the foot of this Pine, and you shall finde a letter. And this he did, because when the Captaines came, which were fent to feeke some habitation, they might fee the letter, and know what was become of the Gouernour, and which way hee was gone. There was no other way to the Towne, but the markes that Iohn Dannico left made vpon the trees. The Gouernour with fome of them that had the best horses came to it on the Monday : And all the rest inforcing themselves the best they could, some of them lodged within two leagues of the Towne, some within three and soure, every one as he was able to goe, and his strength ferued him. There was found in the Towne a storehouse full of the flowre of parched Maiz; and some Maiz, which was distributed by allowance. Here were source Indians taken, and none of them would confesse any other thing, but that they knew of none other habitation. The Gouernor commanded one of them to be burned; and prefently another confessed, that two daies An Indian burned;

50 iournie from thence, there was a Prouince that was called Cutifa-Chiqui. V pon Wednesday came ned for his the Captaines Baltasar de Gallegos, Alfonso Romo, and John Rodriguez Lobillo: for they had found the letter, and followed the way which the Gouernour had taken toward the towne. As foone as they came, he departed toward Cutifa-Chiqui. In the way three Indians were taken, which faid, that the Lady of that Countrie had notice already of the Christians, and staied for them in a

Within a little while the Lady came out of the Towne in a Chaire, whereon certaine of the principall Indians brought her to the River. She entred into a Barge which had the Sterne tilted ouer, and on the floore her mat ready laied with two cuftions voon it one voon another, where (0 the fat her downe; and with her came her principall Indians in other Barges, which did wait vpon her. She went to the place where the Gouernour was. She prefented vnto him great flore of A great cor. cloathes of the Countrie, which the brought in other Canoes; to wit, Mantles and Skins; and don of Pearles tooke from her owne necke a great cordon of Pearles, and cast it about the necke of the Gouernour; entertaining him with very gracious speeches and courtesie, and commanded Canoes to and hath goodly Medows by the Ruers. Their woods are thin, & full of Walnut trees & Mulberry trees. They (a.d the Sea was two daies journy from thence. Within a league & halfe about this

Mmmmmm 2

Towne were great Townes dispeopled, and ouergrown with graffe; which shewed that they had been long without inhabitants. The ladians (aid, that two years before there was a Plague in that Countrie, and that they removed to other Townes. There was in their store-houses great quantity of Clothes, Mantles of yarne made of the barkes of trees, and others made of Feathers, white.

greene, red, and yellow, very fine after their vie, and profitable for winter. There were also flockings, and shooes. And the Laly perceiuing that the Christians esteemed the Pearles, adni-fed the Gouernour to fend to fearch certaine graves that were in that Towne, and that he should finde many : and that if he would fend to the dispeopled Townes, he might loade all his Horses.

They fought the graves of that Towne, and there tound foureteene rooves of Pearles, and little Babies and Birds made of them. The people were browne, well made, and well proportioned.

and more civill then any others that were seene in all the Countrie of Florida, and all of them went shol and cloathed. The youth told the Gouernour, that he began now to enter into the land which he spake of: and some credit was given him that it was so, because hee vinderstood

the language of the Indians: and he requested that he might be Christened, for he faid he defired him to be loofed from a chaine, in which vntill that time he had gone. This Countrie, as the Indians reported, had beene much inhabited, and had the fame of a good Countrie. And as it fee-meth, the youth which was the Gouernours guide, had heard of it, and that which hee knew by heretay, he affirmed that he had feene, and augmented at his pleasure. In this Towne was found a Dagger and Beades, that had belonged to Christians. The Indians reported, that Christians ans had beene in the hauen, which was two dayes fournie from this Towne, many yeares agoe.

He that came thither was the Gouernour, the Licenciate Lucas Vufquez de Ayllon, which went quarrels and flaughters betweene some principall men which went with him, for the principall paniola. All the Company thought it good to inhabit that Countrie, because it was in a temperate climate: And that if it were inhabited, all the Ships of New Spaine, of Pern, Santa Martha, and Tierra firme, in their returne tor Spame, might well touch there: because it was in their way; and because it was a good Countrie, and fited ht to raise commoditie. The Governour, since his intent was to feeke another treafure, like that of Atabalipa Lord of Peru, was not contra-ted with a good Countrie, nor with Pearles, though many of them were worth their weight in Gold, And if the Countrie had beene divided among the Christians, those which the Indians had fished for afterward, would have beene of more value : for those which they had,

because they burned them in the fire, did leese their colour. The Gouernour answered them, that viged him to inhabit, That in all the Countrie, there were not victuals to furtaine his men one moneth; and that it was needefull to refort to the Port of Ocm, where Maldanado was to flay for them: and that if no richer Countrie were found, they might returne againe to that when locuer they would; and in the meane time the Indians would fow their fields, and it would be better furnished with Maiz. He inquired of the Indians, whether they had notice of any great

Lord farther into the land. They told him, that twelve daies journey from thence, there was a Prouince called Chiaba, fubicet to the Lord of Coga. Prefently the Gouernour determined to feeke that land. And being a sterne man, and of few words, though he was glad to fift and know the opinion of all men, yet after he had deliuered his owne, hee would not be contraried, and ale gouernment: And without knowing any thing of the Countrie, they returned home to Hif. to to become a Christian: He was Christened, and named Peter; and the Gouernour commanded 30 many Deeres skins, with many compartiments traced in them, and some of them made into hofe. Io

They paffe the Riuer. Walnut trees.

Mulbery trees for filke. The Sea two dayes iourn.e Maniles of the backes of trees. Mantles of Feathers. Pearles found in graues,

Three hundred nintic two pounds of Pearles found.

This Towne was but two daicsiournic from the hauen of Santa Helena. In the yeers Itis in 32.deg. to conquer this Countrie, and at his comming to the Port hee died; and there was a dissilion, and a halfe, chiaha rwelue daies journie from Santa He lena: and Coffe feuen daics iournic from Chiaha: at which towns of Cofte, they had an Oxe hide.Chap. 16.

wayes did what liked himselfe, and so all men did condescend vnto his will. 8. II. Sotos fursher Difconeries in Florida and manifold various Aduen-tures till bee came to Tulla.

He Gouernour departed from Carifa Chiqui the third day of May. And because the Indians had revolted, and the will of the Ladie was perceived, that if thre could, thee would depart without giuing any Guides or men for burdens, for the wrongs fort, that for a little gaine doe put themselues and others in danger of vndoing.) The Gourmout commanded her to be kept in lafegard, and carried with him, not with fogood viage as fnee deferued for the good will the shewed. And he carried her on foot with his bond-women to looke which the Christians had done to the Indians: (for there neuer want fome among many of a base 62 Vnto her. In all the Townes where the Gouernour passed, the Lady commanded the Indians to

CHAP. 2. 2. Indians food A Ladies deceit, Medowet fomne with Maiz. come and carrie the burdens from one Towne to another. Wee passed through her Countrie an hundred leagues, in which, as wee faw, thee was much obeyed. For the Indians did all that thee commanded them with great efficacie and diligence. In Seuen dayes space the Governour came Chalaque seven to a Province called Chalaque, the poorest Countrie of Maiz that was feene in Florida. The In. dayes iournie dientfed vpon Roots and Herbes which they feeke in the fields, and vpon wilde beatts. which they kill with their Bowes and Arrowes : and it is a very gentle people. All of them goe naked, and are very leane. There was a Lord, which for a great Prefent, brought the Gouernour two Deeres skinnes : and there were in that . Countrie many wilde Hens. In one Towne they made 700, Hens. him a Prelent of feuen hundred Hens, and so in other Townes they fent him those which they to had or could get. From this Prouince to another, which is called Xualla, hee spent five dayes: here he found very little Maiz; and for this cause, though the people were weared, and the horses very weake, hee stayed no more but two dayes. From Ocute to Cuifa-chiqui may bet dayesoff. fome bundred and thirtie leagues, whereof eightie are Wilderneffe. From Cutifa-chiqui to Xualla, two hundred and fiftie, and it is an Hilly Countrie. The Gouernour departed from Xualla toward Guarule: he passed very rough and high hils. In that rourney, the Lady of Cutifa-chiani (whom the Gouernour earried with him, asis aforefaid, with purpole to carrie her to Guanule, Rough and becaule her Territorie reached thither) going on a day with the bond-women which lead her, high hills went out of the way, and entred into a Wood, faying, thee went to ease her felfe, and fo shee deceized them, and hid her felte in the Wood; and though they fought her they could not find her. 30 She carried away with her a little cheft made of Canes in manner of a Coffer, which they call Peraca, full of vobored Pearles. Some which could judge of them, faid, that they were of great value. An Indian woman that waited on her did carrie them. The Gouernour not to discontent her altogether, left them with her, making account that in Guazule he would aske them of her, when he gaue her leave to returne : which Coffer flice carried away , and went to Inalia with three flaues which fled from the Campe, and one Horseman which remained behind, who falling ficke of an Ague went out of the way, and was loft. This man, whose name was Alimanos, dealt with the flaves to change their euill purpole, and returne with him to the Christians : which two of them did; and Almamos and they ouertooke the Gouernour fiftie leagues from thence in a Province called Chiaba; and reported how the Lady remayned in Xualla with a flave of Andrew 20 de Vasconcellos which would not come backe with them, and that of a certaintie they lived as man and wife together, and meant to goe both to Caufa-chigai. Within fine dayes the Gouer- GuaxaD fine nour came to Guarule. The Indians there gave him a Present of three hundred Dogges, because dayes off. they faw the Christians efteeme them, and fought them to feed on them; for among them they are not eaten. In Guarule, and all that way, was very little Mair. The Gouernour fent from thencean Indian with a mellage to the Cacique of Chiahn, to define him to gather some Maiz thither, that he might reft a few dayes in (biaha. The Gouernour departed from Guazule, and Canalagua two in two dayes fourney came to a Towne called Canafagna. There met him on the way twentie dayes fourney

Indians every one loaden with a baskee full of Mulberies; for there be many, and those very good, Great flore of from Cutifa-chiqui thither, and fo forward in other Provinces, and also Nuts and Plums. And Mulberie recs no the trees grow in the fields without planting or dreffing them, and are as bigge and as ranke, as to make filke. though they grew in Gardens digged and watered. From the time that the Gouernour departed from Canalagna, he journied fine dayes through a Defert; and two leagues before he came to Chiaba, there met him fitteene Indians loaden with Maiz, which the Cacique had fent; and they told him on his behalfe, that he waited his comming with twentie Barnes full of it; and farther, that himfelfe, his Countrie, and subiects, and all things else were at his service. On the fift day of Iune, the Gouernour entred into Chiaba: The Cacique voided his owne houles, in which hee lodged, and received him with much ioy. There was in this Towne much Butter in Gourds melted like Oyle : they faid it was the fat The fat of

of Beares. There was found also great store of Oyle of Walnuts, which was cleere as Butter, Beares. 50 and of a good tafte, and a pot full of Honie of Bees, which neither before nor afterward was Oyle of Walfeene in all the Countrie. The Towne was in an Iland betweene two armes of a River, and was Hopy of Bees, feated night one of them. The River divideth it felfe into those two branches two Crosse-bow Thinks seated shotaboue the Towne, and meeteth againe a league beneath the same. The plaine betweene in an Iland. both the branches is fometimes one Croffe-bow fhot, fometimes two Croffe-bow fhot ouer. The branches are very broad, and both of them may be waded ouer. There were all along them very good Medowes, and many fields fowne with Maiz. And because the Indians stayed in their Towne, the Governour only lodged in the houses of the Cacique, and his people in the fields; where there was ever a tree, every one tooke one for himselfe. Thus the Campe lan separated one from another, and out of order. The Gouernour winked at it , because the Indians were in 60 peace, and because it was very hot, and the people should have suffered great extremitie, if it had not beene fo. The hories came thither fo weake, that for feebleneffe, they were not able to carry their Millers : because that from Cutifa-chiqui, they alwayes travelled with very little Provender, and were hanger-statued and tired ever tince they came from the Defert of Ocate. And be- The Desert of gaufe the most of them were not in case to vie in battell, though need should require, they fent Ocute, chap. 8. Mmmmmm 3 in Chifca 10ward the Hatchets of

Thirtie dayes

Copper hol-

North.

them to feed in the night a quarter of a league from the Campe. The Christians were therein great danger, because that itae this time the Indians had fet voon them, they had beene in emil case to have defended themselves. The Governour rested there thirtie dayes, in which time, becaule the Countrie was very fruitfull, the horses grew fat: A Cacique of a Province called Coffe came to this Towne to vije the Gouernour. After he had offered himfelfe, and paffed with him some words of tendring his service and courtesie; the Gouernor asking him whether he had notice of any rich Countries he laid, year to wit, that toward the North, there was a Pronince has med Chiferand that there was a melting of Copper, and of another metal of the fame colour, fair that it was finer, and of a far more perfect colour, and far better to the fight; and that they wied in not fo much, because it was forter. And the felfe fame thing was told the Gouernour in Chaife. At Mines of Copchiqui; where we law some little Hatchets of Copper, which were said to have a mixture of Gold, But in that part the Countrie was not wel peopled, and they said there were Mountaines, per and Gold which the horfes could not patie; and for that caule, the Gouernour would not goe from Catifachique directly thither : And he made account, that travelling through a peopled Countrie, when his men and horses should bee in better plight, and hee were better certified of the truth of the chigais direct thing, he would return toward it, by Mountaines, and a better inhabited Countrie, whereby he ly North rom might haue better paffage. He fent two Christians from Chiaba, with certain Indians which knew the Countrie of Chilea, and the language thereof to view it, and to make report of that which they should find; where he told them that he would tarrie for them.

In teuen dayes he came to Coste. The second of July he commanded his Campe to be pitched 10 him, there went from the Campe certaine Footmen to the Towne to feeke some Maiz, and not which is with in two daies of Sansa Historia.

Two Christians two Crosse-bow shot from the Towne; and with eight men of his guard he went where hee fent from Chia. found the Cacique, which to his thinking seceived him with great love. As he was talking with ha to lecke Chifca. Coffe feuen daves from Chiaha.chaz.14.

A wife Stra-

Those which were fent to

High Moun-

A little poore

Raines

contented with it, they ranfacked and fearched the houses; and took what they found. With this despite the Indians began to rife and to take their armes : and some of them with sudgels in their hands, ranne vpon five or live Christians, which had done them wrong, and beat them at their pleafure. The Governour feeing them all in an vprore, and himfelte among them with fo few Christians, to elcape their hands vied a stratagem, farre against his owne disposition, being, as he was, very franke and open : and thought it grieued him very much that any Indian should bee so bold, as with reason, or without reason to del pile the Christians, he tooke vp a cudgell, and tooke $ their parts against his owne men ; which was a meanes to quiet them : And prefently hee sent word by a man very fecretly to the Campe, that some armed men should come toward the place. where he was; and he tooke the Cacique by the hand, ving very milde words vnto him, and with some principall Indians that did accompany him, he drew them out of the Towne into a plaine way, and vnto the fight of the Campe, whither by little and little with good discretion the Christians began to come and to gather about them. Thus the Governour led the Canque, and his chiefe men vntill he entred with them into the Campe : and neere vnto his Tent, het commanded them to be put in safe custodie; and told them, that they should not depart without giuing him a guide and Indians for burthens, and till certaine ficke Christians were come, which he had commanded to come down the River in Canoes from Chiaba; and thofeallo which he had fent to the Province of Chifeat (for they were not returned; and he feared that the Indians had flaine the one, and the other.) Within three dayes after, those which were fent to Chife areturned, and made report, that the Indians had carried them through a Countrie fo poore of Maiz, and to rough, and ouer to high Mountaynes, that it was impossible for the Armie to trauell that Seeke Chifca reway; and that feeing the way grew very long, and that they lingred much, they confulted to returne from a little poore Towne, where they faw nothing that was of any profit, and brought an Oxe hide, which the Indians gave them, as thin as a calues skin, and the haire like a foft wool, betweene the course and fine wooll of sheepe. The Cacique gaue a guide, and men forburdens, and departed with the Governours leave. The Governour departed from Coste the ninth of luly, and lodged at a Towne called Tali.

Towne. An Oxe Hide with hairelike wooll. cap. 215. The Cacique commanded prouision necessary for two dayes, while the Gouernour was there, faith foto be brought thither: and at the time of his departure, he gave him foure women and two men, Tali, one day which he had need of to beare burthens. The Gouernour travelled fixe dayes through many from Coffe. Townes Subject to the Cacique of Coca : and as he entred into his Countrie many Indians came Many Townes vnto him every day from the Cacique, and met him on the way with meffages, one going, and of cogs. Cofa. another comming. He came to Coca vpon Friday, the fixe and twentieth of July. The Care Iuly 26. que came forth to receive him, two Croffe-bow fhot from the Towne in a chaire, which his print cipall mengarried on their shoulders, sitting vpon a cushion, and couered with a garment of Marterns, of the fashion and bignelle of a womans Huke: hee had on his head a Diadem of feathers, and round about him many Indians playing vpon Flutes, and finging.

Many great Townes. Many Plum-

There was in the Barnes, and in the fields great store of Maiz and French Beanes: The Countrie was greatly inhabited with many great Townes, and many sowne fields, which reached from the one to the other. It was pleafant, fat, full of good Meadowes voon Rivers. There Were in the fields many Plum-trees, as well of fuch as grow in Spame, as of the Countrig: and wild tall Vines, that runne up the trees; and befides thefe, there were other low Vines with bigge and sweet Grapes; but tor want of digging and dreffing, they had great kernels in them. Two fores of bigge and tweet Grapes, but of the Casiques, because they should not absent themselves, Note. and carried them with him, till he came out of their Countries: because that carrying them along with him, he looked to find people in the Townes, and they gaue him guides, and men to carrie burdens : and before hee went out of their Countries, hee gaue them license to returne to their houses, and to their Porters likewise, assoone as hee came to any other Lordshippe, where they gave him others. The men of Coga feeing their Lord detained, tooke it in euill part, and renolted, and hid themselves in the Woods, as well those of the Towne of the Cacique, as those 10 of the other Townes of his principall subjects. The Gouernour sent out foure Captaines, every one his way to leeke them. They tooke many men and women, which were put into chaines: They feeing the hurt which they received, and how little they gained in abfenting themlelues, came againe, promiting to doe whatforuer they were commanded. The Gouernor rested in Coca fine and twentie dayes. He departed from thence the twentieth 20. of August. of August tofecke a Prouince called Tafcainea: he carried with him the Cacique of Coca. Hee league farcher neere a Brooke. The next day he came to a Towne called Trana, fubiect to Coca. Tima.

CHAP. 2.S. 2. The Gouernors departure from Coca. Women given for carrages. 1541

He stayed there fixe dayes because of a River that passed by it, which at that time was very high; Agreet Rivers and alloone as the River furfered him to paffe, he fet forward, and lodged at a Towne named VI. Villabali. 20 libabali. There came to him on the way, on the Caciques behalfe of that Prouince, ten or twelve principall tadians to offer him his feruice; all of them had their plumes of feathers, and Bowes and Arrowes. The Gouernour comming to the Towne with twelve Horsemen, and some Footmen of his Guard, leauing his people a Crosse-bow shot from the Towne, entred into it, hee found all the Indians with their weapons : and as farre as he could gheffe, they feemed to have fome euill meaning. It was knowne afterward, that they were determined to take the Cacique of Coca from the Gouernour, if he had requested it. The Gouernour commanded all his people villabali walto enter the Towne, which was walled about, and neere vnto it passed a small River. The wall, led about. aswell of that, as of others, which afterward wee faw, was of great posts thrust deepe into the ground and very rough, and many long rates as bigge as ones armes laid acroffe betweene them, and the wall was about the heighe of a Lance, and it was daubed within and without with clay, and had loope-holes. On the otherfide of the River was a Towne, where at that present the Cacique was. The Gouernourient to call him, and he came prefently. After he had passed with the Gouernour fome words of offering his feruices, he gave him fuch men for his carriages as he needed, and thirtie women for flaues. In that place was a Christian loft, called Mangano, borne in Salamanca, of noble Parentage, which went aftray to feeke for Grapes, whereof there is great ftore, and those very good.

The day that the Governour departed from thence, he lodged at a Towne fubicet to the Lord 8000 Gregory of Vllibabali: and the next day hee came to another Towne called Toaf. The Indiane gave the To-A. Gouernour thirtie women, and fuch men for his carriages as hee needed. He trauelled ordinarily 4º five or fixe leagues a day when he travelled through peopled Countries: and going through De- Hee travelled ferts, he marched as fait as he could, to either the want of Maiz. From Toafs, patting through ord at the fome Townes fubicat to a Casique, which was Lord of a Prouince called Tallife, he travelled fine or a leagues dayes : He came to Tallife the eighteenth of September : The Towne was great, and fittuated Tallife a great neere vnto a maine River. On the other fide of the River were other Townes, and many fields Towne. fowne with Maiz. On both fides it was a very plentifull Countrie, and had ftore of Maiz: they Septem. 18. hadvoided the Towne. The Gouernour commanded to call the Cacique; who came, and be. A mine timer tweene them passed some words of loue and offer of his seruices, and he presented vnto him fortie Indians. There came to the Gouernour in this Towne a principall Indian in the behalfe of the Cacique of Tascaluca.

After hee had refled there twenty dayes, hee departed thence toward Tafealuea. That day when he went from Talife, he lodged at a great Towne called Calife. And the next day passed Calife a great by another, and came to a small Towne of Tascalaca; and the next day hee camped in a Wood Towne. two leagues from the Towne where the Cacique refided, and was at that time. And he fent the Mafter of the Campe, Lays de Moscoso, with fifteene Horsemen , to let him knowe how he was comming. The Casique was in his Lodgings under a Canopie: and without doores, right against his Lodgings, in an high place, they thread a Mat for him, and two Cushions one vpon another, where he fate him downe, and his Indians placed themselves round about him, somewhat distant from him, to that they made a place, and a voide roome where hee face : and his chiefest men were necreft to him, and one with a shadow of Deeres skinne, which kept the Sunne from him,

60 being round, and of the hignesse of a Target, quartered with blacke and white, having a rundell in the middeit : aferre off it feemed to be of Taffara, because the colours were very perfect. It was fet on a small staffe stretched wide out. This was the deute which he carried in his warres. He was a man of a very tall stature, of great limmes, and spare and well proportioned, and was much feared of his neighbours and fubiects. Hee was Lord of many Territories and much people:

In his countenance he was grave. After the Matter of the Campe had spoken with him, he and those that went with him coursed their Hories, pranting them to and fro, and now and then toward the place where the Cacious was, who with much gravitie and diffimulation now and then lifted up his eyes, and beheld them as it were with diffaine. At the Gouernours comming , hee made no offer at all to rife. The Gouernour tooke him by the hand, and both of them fate down together on a feate which was under the Cloth of Estate.

Canoas demanded of the Indians. Fine Christians flaine. LIB.VIII

When he departed from thence, he determined to carrie him along with him for some causes. and at two dayes journey he came to a Towne called Piache, by which there passed a great River. A great River. The Governour demanded Canoas of the Indians: they faid, they had them not, but that they The Gouernour demanded Canoas of the American would make Rafts of canes and drie timber, on which hee might paffe well enough: And they to made them with all diligence and speed, and they gouerned them; and because the water went very flowe, the Gouernour and his people passed very well.

Virginia.

From the Port de Spirito Santo to Apalache, which is about an hundred leagues, the Gover-Soios traucis, nour went from East to Welt: and from Apalache to Cutifa-chiqui, which are four hundred whereby it ap- and thirtie leagues, from the South-west to the North-east: and from Cutifa-chiqui to Xualla. perfeth that he iourneved which are about two hundred and fiftie leagues, from the South to the North: and from Xuelle not farre from to Tascaluca, which are two hundred and fittie leagues more, an hundred and ninety of them he travelled from East to West, to wit, to the Province of Coca: and the other fixtie from Coca to Tascaluca, from the North to the South.

Haung passed the River of Piache, a Christian went from his companie from thence to setke a woman-flaue that was runne away from him, and the Indians either tooke him captine or floe him. The Gouernour vrged the Cacique that he should give account of him, and threatned him. that if he were not found, he would never let him loofe, The Cacique fent an Indian from thence to Mauilla, whither they were trauelling, which was a Towne of a principall Indian and his fubiect, faying, that he fent him to aduite them to make ready victuals, and men for carriages. But (as afterward appeared) be fent him to affemble all the men of warre thither, that hee had in his Countrie. The Gouernour travelled three dayes, and the third day he paffed all day thorow a peopled Countrie: and he came to Manilla vpon Monday the eighteenth of October. 13.0f October. He went before the Campe with fifteene Horlemen and thirtie Footmen. And from the Town came a Christian, whom he had tent to the principall man, three or foure dayes before, because in he should not absent himselfe, and also to learne in what fort the Indians were : who told him, that he thought they were in an euill purpose : for while he was there, there came many people

Manilla walled into the Towne, and many weapons, and that they made great hafte to fortifie the wall. Lags de Molcolo told the Governour, that it would bee good to lodge in the field, feeing the Indian were of fuch disposition: and he answered, that he would lodge in the Towne, for he was weary of lodging in the field. When he came neere vnto the Towne, the Cacique came forth to receiue him with many Indians playing vpon Flutes and finging : and after hee had offered him-Three mantles felfe, he presented him with three mantles of Marterns. The Governour, with both the Cariques, and feuen or eight men of his guard, and three or foure Horsemen, which alighted to accompanie him, entred into the Towne, and fate him downe under a Cloth of Estate. The Cacique of Ta. 43 fealuca requested him, that he would let him remaine in that Towne, and trouble him no more with travelling: and feeing he would not give him leave, in his talke hee changed his purpok, and diffemblingly fained that hee would speake with some principall Indians, and rose vp from the place where he fate with the Gouernour, and entred into a house, where many Indians were with their Bowes and Arrowes. The Gouernour when he faw he returned not, called him, and he answered, that he would not come out from thence, neither would hee goe any further then that Towne, and that if he would goe his way in peace, hee should presently depart, and should not feeke to carrie him perforce out of his Countrie and Territorie. Baltafar de Gallegos, which stood by, tooke hold of a Gowne of Marterns which hee had on; and he cast it over his head, and left it in his hands: and because all of them immediatly began 50 to stirre, Baltafar de Gallegos gaue him such a wound with his Coutilas, that hee opened him downe the backe, and prefently all the Indians with a great crie came out of the houses shooting their Arrowes. The Gouernour confidering, that it he taried there, he could not cicape, and if he commanded his men to come in , which were without the Towne, the Indians within the houses might kill their Horses, and doe much hurt, ranne out of the Towne, and before he came out, he fell twice or thrice, and those that were with him did helpe him vp againe; and hee and these that were with him were fore wounded : and in a moment there were fine Christians slaine in the Towne. The Gouernour came running out of the Towne , crying out , that every man th mild thand further off, because from the wall they did them much hurt. The Indians feeing that the Christians retired, and some of them, or the most part, more then an ordinarie pace, shot 60 with great boldnesse at them, and strooke downe such as they could ouertake. The Indians which the Christians did leade with them in chaines, had laid down their burthens neere unto the wall: and alloone as the Governour and his men were retired, the men of Masilla laid them on the Indians backes againe, and tooke them into the Towne, and loofed them presently from their chaines, and gaue them Bowes and Arrowes to fight withall. Thus they poffesfed themselues of all the Clothes and Pearles, and all that the Christians had, which their flaues carried. And All the clothes of all the Ciotnes and Pearles, and are speaceable vntill wee came to this place, some of our men and Pearles of because the Indians had been alwairs peaceable vntill wee came to this place, some of our men and Pearles of because the Indians and becaule the Indian; had been a remained wharmed. And from others that had entred the had cheir weapons in their fardels and remained wharmed. And from others that had entred the wereloft, Towne with the Gouernour they had taken Swords and Holbards, and fought with them. When the Gourmout was gotten into the field, he called for an Horfe, and with some that accompanied him, he returned and flue two or three Indians: All the rest retired themselves to the Towne, and that with their Bowes from the wall. And those which presumed of their nimbleneffe, fallied forth to fight a thones caft from the wall : And when the Chriftians charged them, to they retired themselues at their leasure into the Towne. At the time that the broyle beganne, there were in the Towne a Frier, and a Prieft, and a fernant of the Gouernour, with a womanflace: and they had no time to come out of the Towne: and they tooke an house, and so remained in the Towne. The Indians become Masters of the place, they shut the doore with a field gate: and among them was one Sword which the Gouernours feruant had, and with it he lie himfelfe behind the doore, thrusting at the Indians which fought to come into them : and the Frier and the Priest stood on the other file, each of them with a barre in their hands to beate him downe that first came in. The Indians seeing they could not get in by the doore, beganne to vacouer the houte top. By this time, all the Horsemen and Footmen which were behind, were come to Manilla.

A gowne of

As some as the battell and the rereward were come to Manilla, the Gouernor commanded all A consultation thole that were best armed to alight, and made foure iquadrons of Footmen. The Indians leeing of the Indians those that were best armed to alight, and made toure iquations of Foundation and to the state of faying vnto him, as after it was knowne by certaine women that were taken there, that he was but one man, and could fight but for one man, and that they had there among them many principall Indians, very valiant and expert in feates of Armes, that any one of them was able to order the people there. The Gouernour was informed how there went men out of the Towne, and he commanded the Horfemen to befet it , and fent in every squadron of Footmen one Souldier with a fire-brand to fet fire on the houles, that the Indians might have no defense : all his men being fet in order, he commanded an Harquebuse to be shot off. The figne being given, the foure 30 fquadrons, every one by it felte with great fury, gave the onfet, and with great hurt on both fides they entred the Towne. The Prier and the Priest, and those that were with them in the house were faued, which cost the lives of two men of account, and valiant, which came thither to succour them. The Indians fought with such courage, that many times they draue our men out of the Towne. The fight laited to long, that for wearinesse and great thirst many of the Christians went to a Poole that was neere the wall, to drinke, which was all stained with the bloud of the dead, and then came againe to fight. The Gouernour fesing this, entred among the Pootmen into the Towne on horiebake, with certaine that accompanied him, and was a meane that the Christians came to fet fire on the houses, and brake and overcame the Indians, who running out of the Towne from the Footmen, the Horsemen without draue in at the gates againe, 40 where being without all hope of life, they fought valiantly, and after the Christians came among them to handy blowes, feeing themfelues in great diffresse without any succour, many of them fled into the burning houses, where one vpon another they were smothered and burnt in the fire, The whole number of the Indians that died in this Towne, were two thousand and fine hundred, Thedeath of little more or leffe. Ot the Christians there died eighteene; of which one was Don Carlos, bro- 2500, Indiante ther in law to the Gouernour, and a Nephew of his, and one Iohn de Gamez, and Men Rodriguez Poringals, and loba Vazquez de Villarens de Barca Rosa, all men of honour, and of much valour : the reit were Footmen. Beildes those that were flaine, there were an hundred and fiftie wounded with feuen hundred wounds of their Arrowes : and it pleafed God that of very dangerous wounds they were quickly healed. Moreouer, there were twelue Horses slaine, and seventy hurt, 50 All the Clothes which the Christians carried with them to clothe themselves withall , and the ornaments to fay Maffe, and the Pearles, were all burnt there: and the Christians did fet them on fire themselves; because they held for a greater inconvenience, the hurt which the Indians might doe them from those houses, where they had gathered all those goods together, then the loffe of them. Here the Gouernour understood, that Francisco Maldonado waited for him at the Port of Ochufe, and that it was fixe dayes journey from thence; and he dealt with lobn Orsiz to keepe The Port of it tecret, because hee had not accomplished that which hee determined to doe; and because the Gibuse 6, dayes Pearles were burnt there, which he meant to have fent to Cuba for a flew, that the people hea- journey from ring the newes, might be defirous to come to that Countrie.

From the time that the Gouernour entred into Florida, untill his departure from Manilla, 60 there died an hundred and two Christians, some of ticknesse, and others which the Indians slue. He stayed in Manilla, because of the wounded men, eight and twentie dayes; all which time He stayed in Manilla, because of the wounded men, eight and twentie dayes; all which time Great and he lay in the field. It was a well inhabited and a fat Countrie, there were some great and walled waled to see. Townes: and many houses scattered all about the fields, to wit, a Cros-bow shot or two, the 18 o Nou.mone from the other. Vpon Sunday, the eighteenth of Nouember, when the hurt men were ber, knowne to be healed, the Gouernour departed from Manilla. Every one furnished himselfe with Maiz for two dayes, and they trauelled fine dayes through a Defart: they came to a Province called Pafallara, vnto a Towne, named Taliepatana: and from thence they went to another, called Cabaffo: necre vnto it ranne a great River. The Indians on the other fide cried out, threat-to make a Barge within the Towne, because the Indians should not perceive it : it was finished in foure dayes, and being ended, hee commanded it to bee carried one night vpon fleds halfe a league up the River. In the morning there entred into it thirtie men well armed. The Indiane perceived what was attempted, and those which were neerest, came to defend the passage. They

to the shoare, they fled away into the Groues of Canes. The Christians mounted on Horsebacke.

and went up the River to make good the paffage, whereby the Governour and his companie paifed the River. There were along the River some Townes well stored with Maiz, and French Beanes. From thence to Chicaga the Gouernour trauelled fine dayes through a Defart. He came to a River, where on the other fide were Indians, to defend the pallage. He made another Barge in two daves : and when it was finished, the Gouernour sent an Indian to request the Cacique to accept of his friendship, and peaceably to expect his comming : whom the Indians that were on the other fide the River flue before his face, and presently making a great shout went their nour came to (bicaca, a small Towne of twentie houses. And after they were come to Chicaca, an they were much troubled with cold, because it was now Winter, and it snowed, while mest of them were lodged in the field, before they had time to make themselves houses. This Countrie was very well peopled, and the houles scattered like those of Manilla, fat and plentifull of Maiz.

and the most part of it was fielding : they gathered as much as sufficed to passe the Winter. Some Indians were taken, among which was one whom the Cacique efteemed greatly. The Gouer-nour fent an Indian to fignific to the Cacique, that hee defired to fee him and to have his friend-thip. The Cacique came vnto him, to offer him his person, Countrie and Subjects, and told him, that he would cause two other Caciques to come to him in peace; who within few dayes after came with him, and with their Indians: The one was called Alimanu, the other Nicala. They gaue a present vnto the Gouernour of an hundred and fiftie Conies, and of the Countrie gar- 30

refifted what they could, till the Christians came neere them; and feeing that the Barge came to Talimatava A great River. ning the Christians to kill them, if they fought to passe it. The Governour commanded his men Cananara'es.

Some Towns. A River.

December 17, way. Hauing paffed the River, the next day, being the feuenteenth of December, the Gouer-Chicasa.

Snowe and much cold.

Conies.

A walled Towne.

ments, to wit, of Mantles of skinnes. The Cacique of Chica ca came to visite him many times: and sometimes the Governour sent to call him, and sent him an Horse to goe and come. He complained vnto him, that a Subject of his was rifen against him, and deprived him of tribute, requesting his aide against him, for he meane to seeke him in his Countrie, and to punish him ac-An Indian fira- cording to his defert. Which was nothing else but a fained plot. For they determined , as some as the Gouernour was gone with him, and the Campe was divided into two parts, the one part of them to fet vpon the Gouernour, and the other vpon them that remained in Chicaca. Her went to the Towne where he vied to keepe his residence, and brought with him two hundred Indians with their Bowes and Arrowes. The Gouernour tooke thirtie Horsemen , and eighte Footmen, and they went to Saquechuma (for fo was the Province called of that Chiefe man, 40 which he faid had rebelled.) They found a walled Towne, without any men : and those which went with the Cacique fet fire on the houses, to diffemble their treason. But by reason of the great care and heedfulnesse that was as well in the Gouernours people which hee carried with him, as of those which remained in Chicaga, they durst not affault them at that time. The Governour inuited the Cacique, and certaine principall Indians, and gave them Hogs flesh to este. And though they did not commonly vie it, yet they were to greedy of st, that every night there came Indians to certaine houses a Crof bow shot from the Campe, where the Hogs lay, and killed, and carried away as many as they could. And three Indians were taken in the manner. Two of them the Gouernour commanded to be shot to death with Arrowes; and to cut off the hands of the other; and he fent him so handled to the Cacique. Who made as though it grieved him 10 that they had offended the Gouernour, and that he was glad that he had executed that punishment on them. He lay in a plaine Countrie halfe a league from the place, where the Christians lodged. Foure Hortemen went a stragling thither, to wit, Francisco Oforio, and a servant of the Marqueffe of Afterga, called Reynofo, and two feruants of the Gouernour, the one his Page cale led Ribera, and the other Fuentes his Chamberlaine: and these had taken from the Indians forme Mantles, wherewith they were offended, and forfooke their houses. The Gouernour knew of it, and commanded them to be apprehended; and condemned to death Francisco Oforio, and the Chamberlaine as principals, and all of them to loffe of goods. The Friers and Priefts and other principall persons were earnest with him to pardon Francisco Osorio his life, and to moderate his fentence, which he would not grant for any of them. While he was ready to command them 60 to be drawne to the Market place to cut off their heads, there came certaine Indians from the Cacique, to complaine of them. Iohn Ortiz, at the request of Baltafar de Galleges and other perfons, changed their words, and told the Gouernour, that the Cacique faid, heehad notice how his Lording held those Christians in prison for his fake, and that they were in no fault, neither had they done him any wrong, and that if hee would doe him any fauour, hee should fee them free, And he told the Indians; that the Governout faid, he had them in prilon, and that he would punish them in such fort, that they should be an example to others. Hereupon the Gouernour commanded the prisoners to be loosed. As soone as March was come, he determined to depart from Chicacs, and demanded of the Cacique two hundred men for carriages. Hee fent him anfwere, that he would speake with his principall men. Vpon Tuesday the eighth of March, the March, 1541. Governour went to the Towne where he was, to aske him for the men : he told him, he would fend the next day. As foone as the Gouernour was come to Chicage, he told Luys de Mojes fo the Camp-mafter, that hee milliked the Indians, and that hee should keepe a strong warch that 10 night, which he remembred but a little. The Indians came at the fecond watch in foure fourdrons, every one by it felte, and as toone as they were descried, they sounded a Drum, and gave the affault with a great crie, and with fo great celeritie, that prefently they entred with the foots, that were somewhat distant from the Campe. And when they were perceived of them Character on which were in the Towne, halfe the houles were on fire, which they had kindled. That night his he she three Horsemenchanced to be scouts, two of them were of base callings and the worst men in all the Campe, and the other, which was a Nephew of the Gouernour, which vntill then was held for a tall man, thewed himleffe there as great a coward, as any of them : for all of them ranneaway. And the Indians without any relitance came and let the Towne on fire; and tarted behind the doores for the Christians, which ranne out of the houses, not having any leafure to 20 arme themselues; and as they ranne hither and thither amazed with the noise, and blinde, with the smoke and flime of the fire, they knew not which way they went, neither could they light vpon their weapons, nor faddle their Horfes, neither faw they the Indians that shot ar them. Many of the Horles were burned in the Stables, and those which could breake their hal eregat loofe. The diforder and flight was fuch, that every man fled which way he could, without leauing any to resist the Indians. But God (which chastifeth his according to his pleafire, and in the greatest necessities and dangers sustaineth them with his hand) so blinded the Indians, that they faw not what they had done, and thought that the Horses which ranne look, were men on Horsebacke, that gathered themselves together to fet spon them. The Governour onely rode on Horsebacke, and with him a Souldier called Tapia, and fet voon the Indians, and firiking the 30 first he met with his Lance, the Saddle foll with him, which with haste was evill girde i, and to hee fell from his Horse. And all the people that were on foot were fled to a Wood out of the Towne, and there affembled themselves together. And because it was night, and that the Indiese thought the Horfes were men on horsebacke which came to fer voon them. as I faid before. they fled a and one onely remay ned dead, and that was hee whom the Governour flue with his Lance. The Towne lay alt burnt to athes. There died in this hurliburlie eleven Christians, and fiftie Horles; and there remay ned an hundred Hogges, and foure hundred were burned. It any The increase perchance had faued any clothes from the fire of Manilla, here they were burned, and many were of Hogs. clad in skinnes, for they had no leafure to take their Coates. They indured much cold in this place, and the chiefest remedie were great fires. They spent all night in turnings without sleepe: 40 for if they warmed one fide, they freezed on the other. Some invented the weaving of certaine Mats of drie Iuie, and did weare one beneath, and another aboue : many laughed at this denice, whom afterward necessitie inforced to doe the like. The Christians were fo fooyled, and in such want of Saddles and weapons which were burned, that if the Indians had come the fecond night, they had ouercome them with little labour. They removed thence to the Towne where The Towne the Cacique was wont to lie, because it was in the champaine Countrie. Within eight dayes at. where the Cac ter, there were many Lances and Saddles made. There were Ash-trees in those parts, whereof cique lay. they made as good Lances as in Bifcay. Vpon Wednesday the 15.0f March, 1541. after the Governour had lodged eight dayes in a

CHAP. 2.8.2. Chicaça fired. A great flight. A terrible out-crie.

Plaine, halfe a league from the place which he had wintered in, after he had let vp a forge, and 50 tempered the Swords which in Chicaga were burned, and made many Targets, Saidles, and Lances, on Tuefday night, at the morning watch, many fudians came to affault the Campe in three fquadrons, every one by themselves: Those which watched gave the alarme. The Governour with great speed set his men in order three squadrons, and leaving some to defend the Campe, went out to entounter them. The Indians were ouercome and put to flight. The ground was champaine and fit for the Christians to take the advantage of them; and it was now breake of day. But there happened a diforder, whereby there were not past thirtie or fortie Indians thine: and this it was: that a Frier cried out in the Campe without any infl occasion, To the Campe, To the Campe: Whereupon the Governour and all the rest repaired thither, and the Indians had time to faue them felues. There were fome taken, by whom the Governour informed himfelte

60 of the Countrie, through which he was to palle. The flue and twentieth of Aprill, hee departed Aprill 27. from Chicaga, and lodged at a small Towne called Alimamu, They had very little Maiz, and Alimama. they were to passe a Defart of seuen dayes journey. The next day, the Gouernour sent three Captaines euery one his way with Horiemen and Footmen to feeke prouition to paffe the Defart. And John Danufes the Auditor went with fifteene Horlemen, and fortie Footmen that way that the Gouernour was to goe, and found a strong Fort made, where the Indians staved for him, and many of them walked on the top of it with their weapons, having their bodies. B'acke, white, thighes and armes okered and died with blacke, white, yellow and red, ilriped like vnto panes, so that they shewed as though they went in hose and doublets; and some of them had Plumes. and others had hornes on their heads, and their faces blacke, and their eyes done round about with itreakes of red, to leeme more herce.

red colours.

Iohn Danusco sent three horsemen to advertise the Governour hereof. He came presently for his intent was to drive them from thence, faying, that if he did it not, they would be embold. ned to charge him another time, when they might doe him more harme. Hee made the horsemen to alight, and fet his men in foure Squadrons : The figne being given, they fet vp the In- 10 dians, which made refistance till the Christians came neere the Fort, and alloone as they faw they could not defend them telues, by a place where a Brooke passed neere the Fort, they ran away. and from the otherfide they fhot some Arrowes : and because at that instant wee knew no ford for the horses to passe, they had time enough to get out of our danger. Three Indians were flaine there, and many Christians were hurt, whereof within few dayes, there died fifteene

A Defert of feuen dayes.

A Towne of Quiz 1412

An old Prophelie.

Ano ber Towns. Ri G ande or R de E puill

Aquixe a great Lord on the Weft fide of Rio Grande. 200. Canoes.

> Loaues made ot Prunes.

Goodly great Foure Barges

by the way. The Gouernour was inforced to depart presently toward Quizquiz, He travelled seven daves through a Defeit of many Marithes and thicke Woods : but it might all bee trauelled on horfebacke, except fome Lakes which they fwamme ouer. Hee came to a Towne of the Prouinceof Quizquiz without being descried, and tooke all the people in it before they came out of their an There came to the Campe fixe principal Indians, and faid, they came to fee what people they were, and that long agoe, they had beene informed by their fore-fathers. That a white people should subdue them : and that therefore they would returne to their Cacique, and bid him come prefently to obey and ferue the Gouernour : and after they had prefented him with fixe or feuen skins and Mantles which they brought, they tooke their leave of him, and returned with the other, which waited for them by the Brookes fide. The Carrene neuer came againe nor lent other message. And because in the Towne where the Gouernour lodged, there was small store of Maiz, he removed to another halfe a league from Rio Grande, where they found plentie of Maiz: And he went to fee the River, and found, that neere vnto it was great store of Timber to make Bar- 30 ges, and good fituation of ground to incampe in. Prefently he remooued himfelfe thisher. They made houses, and pitched their Campe in a plaine field a Crosse bow shot from the River. And thither was gathered all the Maiz of the Townes, which they had lately passed. They began presently to cut and hew downe Timber, and to faw plankes for Barges. The Indianicane presently downe the River : they leaped on shoare, and declared to the Gouernour, That they were fubiects of a great Lord, whose name was Aquixo, who was Lord of many Townes, and gouerned many people on the other fide of the River, and came to tell him on his behalfe, that the next day he with all his men would come to fee, what it would pleafe him to command him. The next day with speed, the Cacique came with two hundred Canoes full of Indian; with their Bowes and Arrowes, painted, and with great plumes of white feathers, and many other colours, 40 with shields in their hands, wherewith they defended the Rowers on both sides, and the men of Warre flood from the head to the sterne, with their Bowes and Arrowes in their hands. The Canoe wherein the Cacique was, had a Tiltouer the sterne, and hee fate vnder the Tilt; and so w-re other Canoes of the principall Indians. And from under the Tilt where the chiefe man fat, he gouerned and commanded the other people. All loyned together, and came within a flores cast of the shoare. From thence the Cacque faid to the Gouernour, which walked along the Riuers fide with others that wayted on him, that he was come thither to visit, to honor, and to obey him; because he knew he was the greatest and mightiest Lord on the Earth; therefore hee would fee what he would command him to doe. The Gouernour yeelded him thankes, and requested him to come on shoare, that they might the better communicate together. And with-19 out any answere to that point, bee feat him three Canoes, wherein was great store of fill and loaues, made of the substance of Prunes like vnto Brickes. After hee had received all, hee thankelhim, and prayed him againeto come on shoare. And because the Caciques purpose was, to fee if with diffimulation he might doe fome hurt, when they faw that the Gouernour and his men were in readinesse, they beganne to goe from the shoare : and with a great cry, the Crossebowmen which were ready, that at them, and flue fine or tixe of them. They retired with great order: none did leave his Oare, though the next to him were flaine, and shielding themselves, they went farther off. Afterward they came many times and landed : and when any of vs came toward them, they fled vnto their Canoes, which were very pleafant to behold: for they were very great and well made, and had their Tats, Plumes, Pauefes, and Flagges, and with the mul- 60 titude of people that were in them, they feemed to be a faire Armie of Gallies. In thirtie dayes space, while the Gouernour remayned there, they made foure Barges. Assoone as those that They passe o. passed first, were on Land on the other side, the Barges returned to the place where the Gouttuer Rie Grande, nour was : and within two houres after Sunne rifing, all the people were ouer. The River was almost halte a league broad. It a manstood still on the other side, it could not bee differned, whether hee were a man or no. The River was of great depth, and of a firong current: the water was alwayes muddie: there came downe the River continually many trees and timber, which the force of the water and fireame brought downe. There was great flore of fish in it of fundry forts, and most of it differing from the Iresh water fish of Spaine, as hereafter shall

Haning passed Rio Grande, the Gouernour travelled a league and an halfe and came to a great Towne of Aguixo, which was dispeopled before hee came thither. They eliled thirtie Indians comming ouera plaine, which the Cacque fent to discouer the Christians determination : and to alloone as they had fight of them, they tooke themselves to flight. The Horsemen pursued them, and flue tenne, and tooke fifteene. And because the Towne, whither the Gouernotir went, was neere vnto the River, hee fent a Captaine, with as many men as hee thought fufficient to carrie the Barges vp the Riuer. And because in his travelling by land, many times hee went farre from the Ruer to compalle the creekes that came from it, the Indians tooke occasion to fer voon them of the Barges, and put them in great danger, because that by reason of the great current, they durit not leave the shoare, and from the banke they shot at them. Assone as the Guernour was come to the Towne, hee prefently fent Croffe-bowmen downe the River, which came to refeue them : and vpon the comming of the Barges to the Towne, hee commanded them to be broken, and to faue the Iron for others, when it should be needfull. He lay there 20 one night, and the day following, he fet forward to feeke a Prouince, called Pacaba: which he was informed to bee neere vnto Chifes, where the Indians told him there was gold. Hee passed Pacaba neers through great Townes of Aguixo, which were all abandoned for feare of the Christians. Hee vino Chica. understood by certaine Indians that were taken, that three dayes journie from thence dwele a Great townes, great Cacique, whose name was Casqui. He came to a small River, where a Bridge was made. by which they paffed : that day ti'l Sun-fet, they went all in water, which in some places came to the waste, and in some to the knees. When they saw themselues on dry land, they were very glad, because they feared they should wander vp and downe as forlorne men all night in the water. At noone they came to the first Towne of Cajque: they found the Indians careleffe, be- The first rowne cause they had no knowledge of them. There were many men and women taken, and store of ot cape. 30 goods, as Mantles and skinnes, as well in the first Towne, as in another, which stood in a held halfe a league from thence in fight of it; whither the Horsemen ranne. This Countrie is higher, drier, and more champaine, then any part bor lering neere the River, that vntill then they halleene. There were in the fields many Walnut-trees, bearing foft shelled Walnuts, in fashion Walnut trees like buillets, and in the houses they found many of them, which the Indians had laid up in flore. with loft their The crees diff red in nothing elle from those of Spaine, nor from those which we had seene before. but onely that they have a fraller leafe. There were many Mulberie trees and Plum trees, which bare red Plums like those of Spaine, and other g'ay, fomewhat differing, but farre better. And Many Molbes all the trees are all the yeere to fruitfull, as if they were planted in Orchards and the Woods Plantices. were very thinne. The Gouernour travelled two dayes through the Countrie of Cafqui, before 40 he came to the Towne where the Cacique was ; and the most of the way was alway by Cham-

paine ground, which was tull of great Townes, fo that from one Towne, you might fee two or Many great three. Hee fent an Indian to certifie the Cacique, that hee was comming to the place where hee Towner. was, with intent to procure his friendihip, and to hold him as his brother. Whereunto hee antweeted. That he should be welcome, and that he would receive him with speciall good will, and accomplish all that his Lordship would command him. He fent him a Prefent vpon the way : to wit, skinnes, Mantles, and fish : And after these complements, the Gouernour found all the Townes as he passed, inhabited with people, which peaceably attended his comming, and offered him skinnes, Mantles, and fish. The Cacique accompanied with many Indians came out of the Towne, and stayed halfe a league on the way to receive the Gouernour.

Within a while after both of them vied words of great offers and courtefie the one to the other, and the Cacique requested him to lodge in his houses. The Governour, to preserve the peace the better, excused himselse, saying, that hee would lodge in the fields. And because it was very hot, they camped neere certaine trees a quarter of a league from the Towne. The Ca- The chiefe cique went to his Towne, and came againe with many Indians linging. Afloone as they came to Towneo' the the Gourmour, all of them proftrated themfelues vpon the ground. Among these came two Indians that were blind. The Cacique made a speech : that seeing the Governour was the Sonne of the Sunne, and a great Lord, he belought him to doe him the fauour to give fight to those two blind men. The blind men rose vp presently, and very earnestly requested the same of the Gouernour. He answered, That in the high Heanens was bee that bad power to give them bealth, and Spanish Indian

60 what somer they could aske of him; whose sermant he was : And that this Lord made the Heavens and Preaching. the Earth, and man after his owne likenesse, and that bee suffered upon the Croffe to faue Mankind, and rofe againe the third day, and that he died as he was man, and as touching his Dininute, he was, and is immortall; and that he ofcended into Heaven, where hee standeth with his armes open to receive all Juch as turne unto him : and firatght way bee commanded him to make a very high Groffe of wood which was set up in the highest place of the Towne; declaring unto him , that the Christians worshipped

A Townebelonging to the same in resemblance and memorie of that whereon Christ Suffered. The Gouernour and hu men kneeled downe before it, and the Indians did the like. The Governour willed him, that from thenceforth he should worship the same, and should aske whatsoener they stood in need of . of that Lord that he told him was in Heauen. Then he asked him how farre it was from thence to Pacaba: He faid, one dayes journie, and that at the end of his Countrie, there was a Lakelikea Brooke which falleth into Rio Grande, and that hee would fend men before to make a Bridge whereby hee might paffe. The fame day that the Governour departed thence, hee lodged at a Towne belonging to Casqui: and the next day he passed in fight of other Townes, and came to the Lake, which was halfe a Croffe-bow shot over, of a great depth and current. At the time of to Cefqui.

Other rowners. his comming, the Indians had made an end of the Bridge, which was made of timber, laid one tree after another : and on one fide it had a course of stakes higher then the Bridge, for them that passed to take hold on. The Cacique of Casqui came to the Gouernour, and brought his people with him. The Governour fent word by an Indian to Cacique of Pacaha, that though he were enemie to the Cacique of Cafqui, and though he were there, yet hee would doe him no diferace nor hurt, if hee would attend him peaceably, and imbrace his friendship; but rather wouldintreate him as a Brother. The Indian, which the Governour fent, came againe, and faid, that the Cacique made none account of that which he told him, but fled with all his men out at the other file of the Towne. Prefently the Gouernour entred, and ranne before with the Horfemen, that way, by which the Indians fled; and at another Towne diffant a quarter of a league from thence, and they tooke many Indians : and alloone as the Horiemen had taken them, they delivered them to the Indians of Calqui, whom, because they were their enemies, with much circums pection and rejoycing, they brought to the Towne where the Christians were : and the greatest griefe they had, was this, that they could not get leave to kill them. There were found in the Towne many Mantles, and Deere skinnes, Lions skinnes, and Beares skinnes, and many Cats skinnes. Many came so farre poorely apparelled, and there they clothed them telue : of the Mantles, they made them Coates and Caffocks, and some made Gownes, and lined them with Cats skinnes; and likewife their Caffocks. Of the Decresskinnes, some made them also Ierkins. Shirts, Hose and Shooes: and of the Beare skinnes, they made them very good Clokes: for no water could Targers of raw Pierce them. There were Targets of raw Oxe Hides found there; with which Hides they ar- 30

Ox : hides. Pacaha, a verie great Towne belet with Great walled Townes.

Nets found.

The divers forts of excel-

Oven roward the North of Pacaba. This is like Quinera,

Voon Wednesday the nineteenth of June, the Gouernour entred into Pacaba: He lodged in the Towne, where the Cacique vied to refide, which was very great, walled, and befet with Towres, and many loope-holes were in the Towres and Wall. And in the Towne was great flore of old Maiz, and great quantitie of new in the fields. Within a league and halfe a league were great Townes all walled. Where the Governour was lodged, was a great Lake, that came neere vnto the wall; and it entred into a ditch that went round about the Towne, wanting but a little to environ it round. From the Lake to the great River was made a weare by the which the fish came into it; which the Cacique kept for his recreation and sport ; with Nets that were found in the Towne, they tooke as much as they would : and tooke they never fo much, there 40 was no want perceived. There was also great fore of fish in many other Lakes that were thereabout, but it was loft, and not so good as that which came from the River, and the most of it was different from the fresh water fish of Spaine. There was a fish which they called Bagres: the third part of it was head, and it had on both fides the gils, and along the fides great prickes like very tharpe Aules : those of this kind that were in the Lakes were as bigge as Pikes : and in the River, there were some of an hundred, and of an hundred and fiftie pounds weight, and many of them were taken with the hooke. There was another fish like Barbels; and another like Breames, headed like a delicate fish, called in Spaine Besugo, betweene red and grey. This was thereof most esteeme, There was another fish called a Pele fish : it had a fnowt of a Cubit long, and at the end of the upper lip it was made like a Peele. There was another fish like a Westerne Shad : And all 50 of them had scales, except the Bagres, and the Pele fish. There was another fish, which somtimes the Indians brought vs, of the bigneffe of an Hogge, they call it the Perco fish : it had rowes of teeth beneath and aboue.

From thence he fen: thirtie Horsemen, and fiftie Footmen to the Province of Caluça, to see Gold & Cop- if from thence he might travell to Chifea, where the Indians faid, there was a worke of Gold and Copper. They trauelled feuen dayes journie through a Defert, and returned very wearie, eating greene Plums and stalkes of Maiz, which they found in a poore Towne of fixe or feuen A pooretowne houles. From thence forward toward the North, the Indians faid, That the Countrie was very Great flore of ill inhabited, because it was very cold : And that there were such store of Oxen, that they could keepe no Corne for them : and that the Indians lived vpon their flesh. The Governour 60 feeing, that toward that part the Countrie was to poore of Maiz, that in it they could not bee fuffained, demanded of the Indians, which way it was most inhabited : and they faid, they had notice of a great Protince, and a very plentifull Countrie, which was called Quigante, and it was toward the South.

The Governour tooke his iournie toward Quigante. The fourth day of August, hee came to Quigante. the Towne, where the Cacique vied to keepe his Retidencie : on the way hee tent him 2 Prefent The greater the Lowne, where the Lowne, and not daring to stay for him in the Towne, hee absented him in Florida. felfe. The Towne was the greatest that was seene in Florida.

They tooke many men and women. Now feeing the hurt which they fustained for their Rebellion, they came to see what the Gouernour would command them, and pasted to and from any times, and brought Prefents of Cloth and Fish. The Cacique and his two wives were in the Cloth lodeing of the Gouernour loole, and the Halbardiers of his Guard did keepe them. The Gouernour asked them which way the Countrie was most inhabited? They said, that toward the 10 South downe the River were great Townes and Casiques, which commanded great Countries. and much people : And that toward the North-weit, there was a Prouince neere to certaine College neere Mountaines that was called Coliges. The Governour and all the rest thought good to goe first to to certaine Colleges: faying, that peraduenture the Mountaines would make some difference of toile, and Mountaines that beyond them there might be some Gold or Silver: As for Quigante, Casqui, and Pacaba, they were plaine Countries, fat grounds, and full of good Medowes on the Rivers, where the Indians lowed large fields of Maiz. From Tascainea to Rio grande, or the great River, is about three hundred leagues: it is a very low Countrie, and hath many Lakes. From Pacaba to Qmgente may bee an hundred leagues. The Gouernour left the Cacique of Quigante in his owne

Towne : And an Indian, which was his Guide, led him through great Woods without any way 20 feuen dayes journie through a Defert, where at every lodging, they lodged in Lakes and Pooles in very should water : there was such flore of fish, that they killed them with cudgels; and the A new was to Indians which they carried in chains, with the mud troubled the waters, and the fifth being therewith, as it were, altonied, came to the top of the water, and they tooke as much as they lifted. The Indians of Colleges had no knowledge of the Christians, and when they came so neere the Colleges. Towne, that the Indians faw them, they fled vp a River, which passed neere the Towne, and A River. Some leaped into it; but the Christians went on both fides of the River, and tooke them, There were many men and women taken, and the Cacique with them. And by his commandement within three dayes came many Indians with a Prefent of Mantles and Decres skinnes, and two Oxe hides; And they reported, that five or fixe leagues from thence toward the North, there Two oxe hides were many of these Oxen, and that because the Countrie was cold, it was cuill inhabited : That Store of oxen the best Countrie which they knew; the most plentifull, and most inhabited, was a Protince toward the called Capat, lying toward the South. From Sugnate to Coligea may be fortie leagues. It was a North fat foile and so plentifull of Maiz, that they cast out the old, to bring in the new. There was alfo great plentie of French Beanes and Pompions. The French Beanes were greater , and better then thote of Spaine, and likewise the Pompions, and being roasted, they have almost the taste of Cheffinuts. The Cacique of Coligon gaue a Guide to Cayas, and flayed behind in his owner Towne, We travelled five dayes, and came to the Province of Palifema. The house of the Caci- The Province que was found courred with Deeres skins of divers colours and workes drawine in them, and with of Patiferna. the fame in manner of Carpers was the ground of the house coursed. The Casigne left it so, that 40 the Gouernour might lodge in it, in token that hee fought peace and his friendship. But hee durst not tarrie his comming. The Gouernour, feeing he had absented himselfe, sent a Captaine with Horsemen and Footmen to seeke him : He found much people, but by reason of the roughneffe of the Country, he tooke none faue a few women and children. The Towne was little and feattering, and had very little Maiz. For which cause the Gouernour speedily departed from thence. He came to another Towne called Tatalicoya, he carried with him the Cacique thereof, Tatalicoy which guided him to Cayas. From Tatalicoya are foure dayes journie to Cayas. When he came to Cayas, and faw the Towne scattered; he thought they had told him a lye, and that it was not Cayas the Province of Caya, because they had informed him that it was well inhabited : He threatned the Cacique, charging him to tell him where he was : and he and other Indians which were taken to neere about that place, affirmed that this was the Towne of Cayde, and the belt that was in that Country, and that though the houses were distant the one from the other, yet the ground that was inhabited was great, and that there was great store of people, and many fields of Maiz. This Towne was called Tanco : he pitched his Campe in the best part of it neere vnto a River. Tanico. The same day that the Gouernour came thither, he went a league farther with certaine Horsemen, and without finding any, he found many skinnes in a pathway, which the Caeigne had left there , that they might bee found, in token of peace. For fo is the custome in that

The Gouernour rested a moneth in the Province of Cayas. In which time the horses fattened and thrined more, then in other places in a longer time, with the great plentie of Maiz and the 60 leanes thereof, which I thinke was the best that hath beene seene, and they dranke of a Lake of very hot water, and somewhat brackish, and they dranke so much, that it swelled in their bellies A Lake of hot when they brought them from the Watering. Untill that time the Christians wanted Salt, and and fomewhat there they made good flore, which they carried along with them. The Indians doe carrie it to other places to exchange it for Skins and Mantles. They make it along the River, which when made at Court Nanana 2

it abbeth, leaveth it vpon the vpper part of the fand. And because they cannot make it, with. out much find mingled with it, they throw it into certaine baskets which they have forther purpose, broad at the mouth, and narrow at the bottome, and fet it in the Aire vpon a barre, and throw water into it, and fet a small Veilell under it, wherein it falleth : Beeing strained and fer to Boyle voon the fire, when the water is fodden away, the Sale remayneth in the bottome of the Pan. On both fides of the River the Countrie was full of fowne fields, and there was flore of Maiz.

Many Oxe hides with woo! on them, as foft asfaces wool, Gemara Hifter. Gener. 449.145. Many Oxen toward the North. The great cloquence of the Immediately the Gouernour with certaine Horsemen and fifty Footmen, departed toward Tulla, hee found the Towne abandoned : for the Indians durit not tarrie his comming. The Caerque came, and eightie Indians with him. He brought a Prefent of many Oxe hides: which, to because the Countrie was cold, were very profitable, and serued for Couerlets, because they were very foft, and woolled like theepe. Not farre from thencee toward the North were many Oxen. The Christians law them not, nor came into the Countrie where they were , because those parts were exill inhabited, and had small store of Maiz where they were bred. The Cacique of Tulls made an Oration to the Gouernour, wherein he excused himselfe, and offered him his Country, Subjects, and person. Aswell this Cacique as the others, and all those which came to the Gouernour on their behalfe, deliuered their meffage or speech in so good order , that no Oratour could veter the fame more eloquently.

His departure to Autiamque, ORTIZ his death and disasters following: SOTO takes thought and dieth. Moscosco succeedeth. They leave Florida, and arrive at Panuco.

A winter of

He Governour informed himselfe of all the Countrie round abour; and vnderstood, that toward the West was a stattered dwelling, and that toward the South-east were great to Townes, especially in a Province called Austangue, ten daies south-east witch might be about eightie leagues; and that it was a plentifull Countrey of Maiz. And because Winter came on, and that they could not travell two or three moneths in the yeere for cold, waters, and from ; and fearing, that if they should flay fo long in the scattered dwelling, they could not be sufteined ; and also because the Indians faid , that neere to Aurianque was a great water, and according to their relation, the Gouernour thought it was some arme of the Sea: And because hee now defired to send newes of himselfe to Caba, that some supply of men and horses might be fent vnto him : (for it was aboue three yeeres, fince Donna Ifabella, which was in Ha-Mana, or any other person in Christendome had heard of him, and by this time hee had lost two hundred and fifcie men, and one hundred and fiftie horses) he determined to winter in Autiam- 40 que, and the next Spring, to goe to the Sea Coast, and to make two Brigantines, and fend one of them to Cuba, and the other to Nuesa Effanna, that that which went in fafetie, might give newes of him: Hoping with the goods which he had in Cuba, to furnish himselfe againe, and to attempt the Discouerie and conquest toward the West: for he had not yet come where Cabeca de Vaca had beene. Thus having fent away the two Caciques of Cayas and Tulla, hee tooks his journie toward Antiamque: He trauelled fine dayes over very rough Mountaines, and came to dayes tournie 2 Towne called Quipana, where no Indians could bee taken for the roughnesse of the Countrie: and the Towne being betweene Hils, there was an ambulh laid, wherewith they tooke two Indians; which told them, that Autianque was fixe dayes journie from thence, and that there was another Province toward the South eight dayes journie off, plentifull of Maiz, and very well 50 peopled, which was called Guahate. But because Antiamque was neerer, and the most of the Indians agreed of it, the Gouernor made his journie that way. In three dayes hee came to a Towne called Anaixi. He fent a Captaine before with thirtie Horsemen, and fiftie Footmen, and tooke the Indians carelelle, he tooke many men and women priloners. Within two dayes atter the Gouernour came to another Towne called Catamaya, and lodged in the fields of the Towne. Two Indians, came with a falle meffage from the Cacique to know his determination. He had them tell their Lord, that hee should come and speake with him. The Indians returned and came no more, nor any other message from the Casique. The next day the Christians went to the Towne, which was without people : they tooke as much Maiz as they needed. That day they lodged in a Wood, and the next day they came to Antiamque. They found much Maiz 60 laid up in flore, and French Beanes, and Walnuts and Prunes, great flore of all forts. They tooke fome Indians which were gathering together the stuffe which their wives had hidden. This was a Champaine Countrie, and well inhabited. The Governor lodged in the best part of the Towne, and commanded prefently to make a fence of timber round about the Campe diffant from the hou-

Quipana, fine from Tulla.

Guahate.

Aneixi. Catamaya.

> Autiamque fixe dayesiournie

Nnnnnn 3

ies, that the Indians might not hurt them without by fire. And measuring the ground by paces, he appointed every one his part to doe according to the number of Indians which he had: prefently the timber was brought by them; and in three dayes there was an inclosure made of very high and thicke posts thrust into the ground, and many rayles hid acrosse. Hard by this Towne paffed a River, that came out of the Province of Capus; and above and beneath it was ve. A River. ry well peopled. They flayed in Antiamque three moneths with great plentie of Maiz, French Three months Beanes, Walnuts, Prunes, and Conies: which vntill that time they whew not how to catch, abode in A-And in Autienque the Indians taught them how to take them : which was; with great fpringes, tiamore, which lifted up their feet from the ground: And the fnare was made with a strong string, where-

10 unto was failned a knot of a cane, which ranne close about the necke of the Conie, because they should not gnaw the string. They tooke many in the fields of Maiz, especially when it freezed or fnowed. The Christians stayed there one whole moneth so inclosed with snowe, that they Frost and snow went not out of the Towne: and when they wanted fire-wood, the Gouernour with his Horl- A moneth of men going and comming many times to the Wood, which was two Cref-bow flot from the face. Towne, made a path-way, whereby the Pootmen went for wood. In this meane space, some Indians which went loofe, killed many Conies with their Giues, and with their Arrowes. Thefe Conies were of two forts, some were like those of Spaine, and the other of the same colour and Conies of two fashion, and as bigge as great Hares, longer, and having greater loines.

Von Monday the fixt of March, 1542, the Governour departed from Antiamque to feeke March 6. 20 Niles, which the Indians faid was neere the Great River, with determination to come to the Sea, 1542. and procure some succour of Men and Horses: for he had now but three hundred Men of warre, and fortie Horses, and some of them lame, which did nothing but helpe to make up the number : and for want of Iron, they had gone aboue a yeere vnshod : and because they were vsed to it in the plaine Countrie, it did them no great harme. Iohn Ortiz died in Autiamque; which The death of grieued the Gouernour very much: because that without an Interpreter he feared to enter farre the extra mile into the Land, where hee might bee loft : whereby it often happened, that the way that they of him, being went one day, and sometimes two or three dayes, they turned backe, and went aftray through their Interprethe wood here and there. The Gouernour spent ten dayes in trauelling from Autiamque to a ter. Prouince called Ayays; and came to a Towne that flood neere the River that paffeth by Cayas Ayays.

A River, 30 and Autiamque. There her commanded a Barge to bee made, wherewith hee paffed the River. When he had passed the River, there fell out such weather, that foure dayes he could not travell for Snow. As foone as it gaue over fnowing, he went three dayes sourney through a Wildernesse. Great fnow a and a Countrie so lowe, and so full of Lakes and euill wayes, that he travelled one time a whole bout the twenday in water, fometimes knee deepe, fometimes to the ftirrup, and fometimes they fwamme. He came to a Towne called Tutelpinco, abandoned, and withour Maiz: there passed by it a Lake, Tutelpinco.

that entred into the River, which carried a great streame and force of water. The Gouernour went a whole day along the Lake feeking passage, and could finde none, nor any way that did passe to the other side. Comming agains at night to the Towns he found two peaceable Indians, which shewed him the passage, and which way hee was to goe. There they 40 made of canes, and of the timber of houses thatched with canes, rafts wherewith they pasted Rifts wherethe Lake. They trauelled three dayes, and came to a Towns of the Territorie of Nilco, called with they pare Tianto. There they tooke thirtie Indians, and among them two principall men of this Towne. The Gouernour fent a Captaine with Horsemen and Footmen before to Nileo, because the In- Tianto. dians, might have no time to carrie away the provision. They passed through 3, or 4, great Towns; 3, or 4, great and in the Towne where the Cacique was refident, which was two leagues from the place where Towness the Gouernour remained, they found many Indian; with their Bowes and Arrowes, in manner as though they would have stayed to fight, which did compasse the Towne; and as soone as they faw the Christians come neere them without mifdoubting them . they fet the Caciques house on fire, and fled ouer a Lake that paffed neere the Towne, through which the Horses could not paffe.

The next day being Wedneiday the nine and twentieth of March, the Gouernour came to March age. Nilco: he lodged with all his men in the Caciques Towne, which flood in a plaine field, which Nilco. was inhabited for the space of a quarter of a league : and within a league and halte a league were other very great Townes, wherein was great store of Maiz, of French Beanes, of Walnuts, and Very great Prunes. This was the best inhabited Countrie, that was seene in Florida, and had most store of The best Maiz, except Coca, and Apalache. There came to the Campe an Indian accompanied with o- Countrie of thers, and in the Caciques name gaue the Gouernour a Mantle of Marterns skinnes, and a Cor- Florida. don of Pearles. The Gouernour gaue him a few small Margarites, which are certaine Beades Marterns much esteemed in Peru, and other things, wherewith he was very well contented. He promised A cordon of to returne within two dayes, but neuer came againe: but on the contrary the Indians came by Pearles, night in Canoas, and carried away all the Maiz they could, and made them Cabins on the other

This River which paffed by Nilco, was that which paffed by Cayas and Autiamque, and felt A River falling into Rio grande, or the Great River, which passed by Pachaba and Aquino, neere voto the Propince of Guachoya. Within few dayes the Governour determined to goe to Guachoya, to learne there whether the Sea were neere, or whether there were any habitation neere, where he mishe relieue his companie, while the Brigantines were making, which he meant to lend to the Land of the Christians. He came to Guachera vpon Sunday the seuenteenth of Aprill; hee lodged in the Towns of the Cacique, which was inclosed about, and feated a Crof-bow shot distant from the River. Here the River is called Tamalifen; and in Nilco, Tapatu; and in Coca, Mico: and in the Port or Mouth, Ri. of Kio grande.

1552

Guschora. Foure names

The Cacique of Guachera brought with him many Indians with great flore of Fish, Dogges. Deeres skinnes, and Mantles. Hee asked him whether he had any notice of the Sea. Hee an-Iwered, no, nor of any Townes downe the River on that fide. The Governour thought that the Carious lyed vnto him, to rid him out of his owne Townes, and fent lohn Danufco with eight to Horsemen downe the River, to see what habitation there was, and to informe himselfe, if there were any notice of the Sea. He trauelled eight dayes, and at his returne he faid, that in all that time he was not able to goe aboue fourteene or fifteene leagues, because of the great creekes that came out of the River, and groves of Canes, and thicke Woods that were along the bankes of the River, and that he had found no habitation. The Governour fell into great dumpes, to The Gournor fee how hard it was to get to the Sea : and worfe, because his Men and Horfes every day diminifalleth ficke of fhed, being without fuccour to fustaine themselues in the Countrie : and with that thought hee fell ficke. But before he tooke his bed, he fent an Indian to the Cacique of Quigalta, to tell him. that he was the Child of the Sunne, and that all the way that he came all men obeyed and ferued him, that he requested him to accept of his friendship, and come vnto him; for he would be very glad to fee him: and in figne of loue and obedience to bring fomething with him of that which in his Councrie was most esteemed. The Cacique answered by the same Indian :

A most wirtie cique of Qui-

That whereas he faid, that he was the Childe of the Sunne, if he would drie up the Riner hee would beleene bim : and touching the rest, that he was wont to visit none : but rather that all those of whom fuer of the Ca- bee had notice did vifit bim, ferned, obeyed and paid bim tributes willingly or perferce: therefore if hee defired to fee him, it were best be should come thither: that if he came in peace, hee would receive him with speciall goodwill; and if in warre, in like manner be would attend him in the Towne where he was, and that for him or any other be would not forinke one foote backe.

By that time the Indian returned with this antiwere, the Governour had betaken himselfe to bed, being euill handled with Feuers, and was much aggrieued, that hee was not in case to passe 30 presently the River, and to seek him, to see if he could abate that pride of his, considering the Riuer went now very strongly in those parts; for it was neere halfe a league broad, and 16 fathoms deepe, & very furious, and ran with a great current; and on both fides were many Indians, and his power was not now fo great, but that he had need to helpe himielfe rather by flights then force, The Gouernour felt in himselfe that the houre approached, wherein he was to leave this prefent life, and called for the Kings Officers, Captaines and principalt persons. Hee named Lags de Moscoso de Alnarado his Captaine generall. And presently he was sworne by all that were present, and elected for Gouernour. The next day, being the one and twentieth of May, 1542. Don Ferdinando departed out of this life, the valorous, virtuous, and valiant Captaine, Don Fernando de Soto, Gode Solo, the 21. uernour of Caba, and Adelantado of Florida: whom fortune advanced, as it vieth to doe others, 49 that he might haue the higher fall. Hee departed in such a place, and at such a time, as in his fickneffe he had but little comfort : and the danger wherein all his people were of perifing in that Countrie, which appeared before their eyes, was cause sufficient, why every one of them had neede of comfort, and why they did not visite nor accompanie him as they ought to have done. Luys de Moscoso determined to conceale his death from the Indians, because Ferdinando de Soto had made them beleeue, That the Christians were immortall; and also because they tooke him to be hardy, wife, and valiant: and if they should knowe that hee was dead, they would be bold to fet voon the Christians, though they lived peaceably by them. In regard of their difpolition, and because they were nothing constant, and believed all that was told them, the Adelantado made them beleeve, that he knew some things that passed in secret among themselves, 50 without their knowledge, how, or in what manner he came by them ; and that the figure which appeared in a Glasse, which he shewed them, did tell him whatsoener they practited and went about : and therefore neither in word nor deed durst they attempt any thing that might be pre-

A wittie ftratagem.

> As foone as he was dead, Luys de Moscoso commanded to put him secretly in an house, where he remayned three dayes: and remoung him from thence, commanded him to be buried in the night at one of the gates of the Towne within the wall. And as the Indians had feene him fick, and miffed him, fo did they suspect what might be. And passing by the place where he was buried, feeing, the earth moued, they looked and spake one to another. Luys de Moscoso vnderstanding of it, commanded him to be taken up by night, and to cast a great deale of fand into the 60 Mantles, wherein he was winded vp, wherein he was carried in a Canoa, and throwne into the midst of the River. The Cacique of Guachoya inquired of him, demanding what was become of his brother and Lord, the Gouernor: Luys de Moscoso told him, that he was gone to Heauen, as many other timesche did: Ind because he was to stay there certaine dayes, he had left him in his place.

The Cacique thought with himfelfe that he was dead; and commanded two young and well proportioned Indians to be brought thither; and faid, that the vic of that Countrie was, when any This is also the Lord died, to kill Indians, to waite vpon him, and ferue him by the way: and for that purpose custome of the by his commandement were those come thither : and prayed Luys de Moscoso to command them to be beheaded, that they might attend and serue his Lord and brother. Luys de Moscos told him , that the Gouernour was not dead, but gone to Heauen, and that of his owne Christian Souldiers, he had taken such as he needed to serue him, and prayed him to command those Indians to be looted, and not to vie any such bad custome from thenceforth : straightway he commanded them to be loofed, and to get them home to their houses. And one of them would not goe: to faying, that he would not ferue him, that without defert had judged him to death, but that hee would ferue him as long as he lived, which had faued his life. All were of opinion, that it was best to goe by land toward the West, because Mueus Espan- Their generals was that way; holding the Voyage by Sea more dangerous, and of greater hazard, because maneit by land they could make no ship of any strength to abide a storme, neither had they Master, nor Pilot, Westward. Compas, nor Chart, neither knew they how farre the Sea was off, nor had any notice of it? nor whether the River did make any great turning into the Land, or had any great fall from the Rockes, where all of them might be cast away. And some which had seene the Sea-chart, did finde, that from the place where they were, by the Sea-coast to Nuena Efpanna, might be foure hundred leagues little more or leffe; and faid, that though they went somewhat about by Land n in feeking a peopled Countrie, if some great Wildernesse which they could not passe did not hinder them, by fpending that Summer in travell, finding provision to passe the Winter in some peopled Countrie, that the next Summer after they might come to some Christian Land, and that it might fortune in their trauell by Land, to finde some rich Countrie, where they might doe themislues good. The Gouernour, although he defired to get out of Florida in shorter time. feeing the inconveniences they layed before him, in travelling by Sea, determined to follow that which feemed good to them all. On Monday the fifth of Iune, he departed from Guachoja. The Cacique gaue him a Guide to Iune ?. Chaquate, and stayed at home in his owne Towne. They passed through a Province called Ca- catale. talie : and having passed a Wildernesse of fixe dayes Journey, the twentieth day of the moneth 30 he came to Chaguate. There he was informed of the habitation that was toward the West. They Chaguate. told him, that three dayes lourney from thence was a Province called Agnacay. The Governour came to this Towne on Wednesday, the fourth of July. He found the Towne without people, Aguacay and lodged in it; heftayed there about a day; during which, he made some roades, and tooke many menand women. There they had knowledge of the South Sea.

The next day he came to a small Towne called Pate. The fourth day after his departure from Pate. Angacay be came to the first habitation of a Prouince called Amage. There an Indian was taken, which faid that from thence to Nagnatex, was a day and a halfes lourney; which they trauelled, finding all the way inhabited places. Hauing passed the peopled Countrie of Amaye, on Saturday the twentieth of July they pitched their Campe at noone between Amaye and Nagua-AO tex. The next day he came to the habitation of Naguatex, which was very feattering. Within Noguetex.

foure dayes he departed thence, and comming to the River, hee could not passe, because it was The River growne very bigge; which feemed to him a thing of admiration, being at that time that it was, fable in August and fince it had not rained a moneth before. The Indians faid, that it increased many times after at Naguatax. that manner without rayning in all the Countrie. It was supposed, that it might bee the tide Coniccures that came into it. It was learned that the floud came alway from aboue, and that the Indians of of a Sea to the all the Countrie had no knowledge of the Sea.

Hee departed from Naguatex, and within three dayes lourney came to a Towne of foure or fine houles, which belonged to the Cacique of that Prouince, which is called Niffoone : it was Niffoone euill inhabited, and had little Maiz. Two dayes journey forward the Guides which guided the 50 Gouernour, if they were to goe Westward, guided him to the Bast, and somtimes went up and downe through very great Woods out of the way. The Gouernour commanded them to bee hanged upon a tree : and a woman that they tooke in Niffone guided him, and went backe againe to feeke the way. In two dayes he came to another miferable Towne, called Lacana: an Lacana. Indian was taken in that place, and faid, that the Countrie of Nondacao was a Countrie of great Nandacae habitation, and the houses scattering the one from the other, as they vie to be in Mountaines, and had great flore of Ma z. The Cacique came with his men weeping, like them of Naguatex : for this is their vie, in token of obedience : he made him a present of much fish, and offered to doe what he would command him.

The Gouernour departed from Nondacao toward Soacatina, and in fine dayes journey came to 60 a Province called Aays. That day that the Governour departed from thence, the Indian that Aays. guided him faid, that in Nondacao he had heard fay, that the Indians of Soacatino had feene other Christians, whereof they were all glad; thinking it might be true, and that they might have entred into those parts by Nueua Espanna; and that if it were so, it was in their owne hands to goe out of Florida, if they found nothing of profit: for they feared they should lose themselves

Knowledge of Sozcatine.

Twenty daies trauell toward the South.

Guafce : here they found fome Turkic ftones,& mantles of Cotten wooll.

> The River of Dayces: which feemeth to be Rio del oro.

No trauelling by land without an Interpreter.

Gold, Silver and precious ftones in Fla-

Turkie stones and Mantles of Cotten wooll found in Guafco. 150 leagues betweene the River of Day. cao, and Rio grande. The beginning of December. Raine with Northren winde excee.

ding cold.

in some wildernesse. This Indian led him two dayes out of the way. The Governour commanded to torture him. He faid, that the Cacique of Nondacao, his Lord, commanded him to guide them fo because they were his enemies, and that he was to doe as his Lord commanded him. The Gouernour commanded him to be cast to the dogs: and another guided him to Soacatmo, while ther he came the day following. It was a very poore Country : there was great want of Mair in that place. He asked the Indians whether they knew of any other Christians. They faid that a little from thence toward the South they heard they were. He trauelled ewentie dayes through a Country euill inhabited, where they suffered great scarlitie and trouble. For that little Maiz which the Indians had, they had hidden and buried in the woods, where the Christians, after they were well wearied with trauell, at the end of their journey went to feeke by digging what they Io should eate. At last, comming to a Prouince that was called Guasco, they found Maiz, wherewith they loaded their horfes, and the Indians that they had.

The Indiane told them there, that ten daies journie from thence toward the West, was a River called Darcae: whither they went fometimes a hunting and killing of Deere: and that they had feene people on the other fide, but knew not what habitation was there. There the Christians tooke such Maiz as they found and could carry, and going ten daies journie through a wildernesse, they came to the River which the Indians had told them of. Ten horsemen which the Gouernour had fent before, passed ouer the same, and went in a way that led to the River, and lighted upon a company of Indians that dwelt in very little cabins; who, as foone as they faw them. tooke themselves to flight, leaving that which they had; all which was nothing but mi- 20 ferie and pouertie. The Countrie was to poore, that among them all there was not found halfe a pecke of Maiz. The horsemen tooke too Indians, and returned with them to the River, where the Gouernour staied for them. He sought to learne of them what habitation was toward the West. There was none in the Campe that could vinderstand their language. The Governour affembled the Captaines and principall persons, to determine with their aduice what they should doe. And the most part said, that they thought it best to returne backe to Rio grande, or the great River of Guacheya; because that id Nilce and thereabout was store of Maiz; saying, that they would make Pinnaces that winter, and the next Summer paffe downe the River to the Seaward in them, and comming to the Sea they would goe along the coast to Nuena Elpanna. For though it seemed a doubtfull thing and difficult, by that which they had already alleadged, yet it was the last remedy they had. For by land they could not goe for want of an Interpreter. And they held that the Countrie beyond the River of Dayaco, where they were, was that which Cabeca de Vaca mentioned in his relation that he passed of the Indians, which lined like the Alarbes , hanno no settled place, and fed youn Tunas and rootes of the fields, and wilde beafts that they killed. Which if it were fo, if they should enter into it and finde no victuals to passe the winter, they could not choose but perish. For they were entred already into the beginning of October : and if they flaied any longer, they were not able to returne for raine and howes, nor to fustaine themselves in so poore a Countrie. The Gouernour (that defired long to see himselfe in a place where hee might fleepe his full fleepe, rather then to conquer and gouerne a Countrie where fo many troubles prefented themselves) presently returned backe that same way that he came.

When that which was determined was published to the Campe, there were many that were greatly griened at it; for they held the Sea voyage as doubtfull for the euill meanes they had, and as great danger as the travelling by land : and they hoped to finde fome rich Country before they came to the land of the Christians, by that which Cabeça de Vaca had told the Emperour: and that was this; That after he had found cloathes made of Cotten wooll, hee faw Gold and Silver, and stones of great value. And they had not yet come where hee had beene. For vntill that place he alwayes trauchled by the Sea coast : and they trauelled farre within the land; and that going toward the West, of necessitie they should come where he had beene. For he taid, That in a certaine place he trauelled many dayes, and entred into the land toward the North. And in Guafeo they had already found some Turkie stones, and Mantles of Cotten wooll; which the 50 Indians fignified by fignes that they had from the West: and that holding that course they should draw neere to the land of the Christians. From Daycao, where now they were to Rio grando, or the great River, was one hundred and fiftie leagues : which vnto that place they had gone Westward. They departed from Nilco in the beginning of December; and all that way, and before from Chilano, they endured much trouble; for they paffed through many waters, and many times it rained with a Northren winde, and was exceeding colde, so that they were in open field with water ouer and underneath them; and when at the end of their dayes journey they found dry ground to rest upon, they gave great thankes to God. With this trouble almost all the Indians that served them died. And after they were in Minoya, many Christians also died : and the most part were ticke of great and dangerous difeafes, which had a spice of the lethargie,

As soone as they came to Minoya, the Gouernour commanded them to gather all the chaines together, which every one had to lead Indians in; and to gather all the Iron which they had for their prouision, and all the rest that was in the Campe : and to set up a forge to make mailes, and commanded them to cut downe timber for the Brigandines. And a Portugal of Centa, who having bin a prifoner in Fet, had learned to faw timber with a long Saw, which for fuch purpoles they had carried with them, did teach others, which helped them to faw timber. And a Eugannisan poles they had carried with them, and teach for without him they had never come out of the herbe like Genomes, who in the present about a protect that could make Ships but he) with four or fine other Flax of the Rifaine Carpenters, which hewed his plankes and other timbers, made the Brigandines: And Countries Distance of Genna, the other of Sardinia did calke them with the tow of an hearbe The mighty like Hempe, whereof before I haue made mention, which there is named Enequen. And because increasing of like Hempe, whereon before a naue made mention, wanted there is a same a despete with the Manthere was not enough of it, they calked them with the flaxe of the Countrie, and with the Manthore is more than more than the more th tles, which they rauelled for that purpole. A Cooper made for enery Brigandine two halfe hogs space, towit, Io heads, which the Mariners call quarterers, because foure of them hold a Pipe of water. In the all March and moneth of March, when it had not rained a moneth before, the River grew fo big, that it came Aprillto Nilco, which was nine leagues off : and on the other fide, the Indians faid, that it reached other The grandconto trues, which was the regres on and off second has, the sense have that treached other infrared the nine leagues into the land. In the townse where the Christians were, which was formewhat high Indian against the chart when sold the control to the chart when sold the chart when so ground, where they could best goe, the water reached to the stirrops. They made certaine rates the Coristinas. of timber, and laid many boughes vpon them, whereon they fer their horses, and in the houses Note well. they did the like. But feeing that nothing prevailed, they went vp to the lofts : and if they went Thirty Indians out of the houles, it was in Canoes, or on horseback in those places where the ground was highout of the houles, it was in Canoes, or on horieoack in those places where the ground was might eff. So they were two moneths, 2 | doubt doe nothing, during which time the River decreated have their not. The Indians ceased not to come vinto the Brigantines as they were wont, and came in Ca-right hands 20 noes. At that time the Governour feared they would fet vpon him. He commanded his men to cut off. rake an Indian fecretly of those that came to the Towne, and stay him till the rest were gone : The River inrake an Indian recretiy of choice that came to solve to white, and they tooke one. The Gouernour commanded him to be put to torture, to make him confelle once a yeare whether the Indians did practife any treason or no. Hee confessed that the Caciques of Nilco, whethe snows Guschora, and Taguanate, and others, which in all were about twenty Caciques, with a great doe melt in number of people, determined to come vpon him; and that three dayes before, they would fend March &April, agreat prefeut of fish to colour their great treaton and malice, and on the very day they would A miraculous fen I fome Indians before with another pretent. And these with those which were our slaues, They faile which were of their conspirate also, thould fet the houses on fire, and first of all possesse downe die felues of the lances which flood at the doores of the houles; and the Caciques with all their men Grande from 30 (hould be neere the Towne in ambush in the wood, and when they faw the fire kindled, should Amera 17. should be neere the 1 owne in amount in the wood, and when they are the internal indian to be kept in a daies before come, and make an end of the conquelt. The Governour commanded the Indian to be kept in a daies before they came to chaine, and the selfe same day that he spake of, there came thirty Indians with fish. Hee commanded their right hands to be cut off, and Ikne them fo backe to the Cacique of Guachera, whose thereof. This men they were. He fent him word, that he and the rest should come when they would, for he Author acdefired flothing more, and that he should know; that they taught not any thing which he knew counterhout deired florting more, and that he mound know, that they thought of the they thought of it. Hereupon they all were put in a very great feare: And the Canot before they thought of it. Hereupon they all were put in a very great feare: And the Canot before they thought of it. eign s of Nilco and Tagnanate came to excuse themselves; and a few dayes after came he of Gna. oneth 700, lavchand. The Brigandines being finished in the moneth of June, the Indians having told vs, That ing that he can the River increased but once a yeare, when the Snowes did melt, in the time wherein I mentio- ned with him the Repersence and once a years, when the Showes and having not rained a long time, it pleafrom head already increased, being now in Summer, and Hauing not rained a long time, it pleafrom headed here added by fed God that the flood came up to the Towne to feeke the Brigandines, from whence they car- that I wan Pence ried them by water to the River. Which if they had gone by land, had beene in danger of break- de Leen, the fift ing and splitting their keeles, and to be all vindone; because that for want of Iron, the spikes discourter of were short, and the plankes and timber were very weake. They shipped two and twenty of Fluida, loss were more, and the plantes in the Campe, the rest they made dried fielh of; and dressed the 80, men. Lucas Hoeges which they had in like manner, They departed from Mmoya the fecond day of Valqueiwas al-

There went from Minoya three hundred twenty and two Spaniards in seven Brigandines, with above There went from Minora three hundred twenty and two openiarist in leder of partitions, and Pamphila well made, faue that the plankes were thin, because the nailes were short, and were not pitched, de Naugez nor had any decks to keepe the water from comming in. In flead of deckes they laid plankes, went with acc. 50 whereon the Marriners might run to trim their failes, and the people might refresh themselves Spaniards, of aboue and below. They failed downe the River seventeene dayes; which may be two hundred which noraand fiftie leagnes iourney, little more or lesse: and neere vnto the Sea the River is divided into bour foure efand fiftie leagnes iourney, little more or lette: and neere vinto the Sea the Rider is didded into especi, &c. Don-two armes; each of them is a league and a halfe broad. By the way the Indians fet on them:

flew fome, and wounded many.

The eighteenth of July, they went forth to Sea with faire and prosperous weather for their with criefe. So voyage. They failed with a reasonable good winde that day and the night following, and the fatallhath Flonext day till evening fong, alwaies in fresh water, whereat they wondred much; for they were rida beene to next day till eneming long, alwaies in trelli water, whereat they wonded index, for they were spaint, that (I very farge from land. But the force of the current of the River is 6 great, and the coast there is hope) Directed 60 fo shallow and gentle, that the fresh water entreth farre into the Sea.

They indured an intolerable ftorme first, and after that the torment of an infinite iwarme of greater down Moskitos which fell upon them, which as soone as they had stung the flesh, it so infected it, as for her English

They failed 17. daies down the River, which is about 252. leagues. Fresh water almost two daies failing in the Sea. A swarmer gricuous Moskitoes.

though

They arrined

Panes, 1542.

Septemo. 10.

311 Chriftians

halte on the

Well lide of Cutifachiqui.

Chichs Coro.

and Talife

Talcalues.

Aquixo.

Coligon.

Rio Grande.

Amiemque.

Fl rida.

Ocute.

shough they had been even omous. For the fayles which were white feemed blacke with them. Those which rowed, valette others kept them away, were not able to rowe. Having pasted the feare and danger of the storme, beholding the deformities of their faces, and the blowes which they gave themselves to drive them away, one of them bughed at another. They met all toge-A form of the ther in the creeke, where the two Brigandines were, which outwent their fellowes. There was Sealike Pitch found a skumme, which they call Copee, which the Sea casteth up, and it is like Pitch, wherecalled Copec. with in some places, where Pitch is wanting, they pitch their ships: there they pitched their Brigandines. They rested two dayes, and then eftsoones proceeded on their Voyage. They fai-Another deep led two dayes more, and landed in a Bay or arme of the Sea, where they flayed two dayes.

From the time that they put out of Rio Grande, to the Sea, at their departure from Florida, to in the River of vatill they arrived in the River of Panaco, were two and fiftie dayes. They came into the River of Panuco the tenth of September, 1543. There arrived there of those that came out of Florida.

three hundred and eleuen Christians.

From the Port de Spiritu Santo, where they landed when they entred into Florida, to the arriued at Par Province of Ocute, which may be foure hundred leagues, little more or leffe, is a very plaine Port de Spiritu Countrie, and hath many Lakes and thicke Woods, and in some places they are of wilde Pine. Sanioisin 29. trees; and is a weakefoyle: There is in it neither Mountaine nor Hill. The Countrie of Ocute degrees and a is more fat and fruitfull; it hath thinner Woods, and very goodly Medowes voon the Rivers. From Ocute to Cutsfachiqui may be an hundred and thirty leagues : eightie leagues thereof are Defart, and have many Groues of wilde Pine-trees. Through the Wilderneffe great Rivers doe 24 palle. From Cutifachiqui to Xuala, may bee two hundred and fixy leagues : it is all an hilly Countrie, Cuifachiqui and Xuala stand both in plaine ground, high, and have goodly Medowes on the Rivers. From thence forward to Chiaba, Cogs, and Talife, is plaine ground, drie and fat. and very plentifull of Maiz. From Xuala to Tascaluca may be two hundred and fifty leavues. From Talcaluca to Rio Grande, or the Great River, may be three hundred leagues : the Countrie is lowe, and tull of Lakes. From Rio Grande forward, the Countrie is higher and more champaine, and best peopled of all the Land of Florida. And along the River from Aquixo to Pacaha, and Coligon, are an hundred and fifty leagues: the Countrie is plaine, and the woods thinne. and in some places champaine, very fruitfull and pleasant. From Coligon to Autiamane are two hundred and fifty leagues of hilly Countrie. From Antiemque to Aguacay, may bee two hundred and thirtie leagues of plaine ground. From Aguacay to the River of Daycao an hundred and twentie leagues, all hilly Countrie.

From the Port de Spirita Sante Into Agalache, they travelled from East to West, and North west. From Cuifachiqui to Xuala from South to North. From Xuala to Coca from East to West. From Coca to Tafcaluça, and to Rio Grande, as farre as the Prounce of Quizquiz and Aquixo from East to West. From Aquixo to Pacaba to the North, From Pacaba to Tulla from East to West : and from Talle to Autiamque from North to South, to the Prounce of Guachora and Daycao, &c. This Relation of the discouery of Florida was printed in the house of Andrew de Burgos, Printer and Gentleman of the house of my Lord Cardinall the Intant. It was finished the tenth of 10 February, in the yeare one thousand five hundred fiftie and seven, in the Noble and most loyall Citie of Enera.

CHAP. III.

Divers expeditions from Mexico and other parts of New Spaine and New Biskay, especially to the more Northerly parts of America, by divers Spaniards in a bundred yeares space.

Q. I.
The Relation of NUNNO di GUSMAN written to CHARLES the fift Emperour; translated out of R AM V SIOS third Tome, and abridged.

éted.

Writ fom Mechnacan to your Maiestie (after I had written from Mexico) that I went thence with one hundred and fiftie horsemen, and as many footemen well armed, and with twelve (mall Peeces of artillery, and 7. or 8000. * Indians our 60 friends, and all neceffaries for the discouery and conquest of the Countrey from the Terlichichimechi which continue with New Spaine. I arrived at the River of the purification of Saint Mary, fo called, for passing it on that day. And because that Countrey was of the enemies, I determined to plant there three great Croffes, which I had carried with me, well wrought and of good proportion, which after Maffe faid in Procession with Trumpets, the Captaines and I carried on our shoulders, and planted one on the River, and the second before a Church of the Purification, then begun to be builded, and the third before the way which I was to passe, "to the which Crosses with all denotion wee after made due prayer. "Alle quari to This done, the standerds of the Crosse began to be directed in the land of those infidels, which had or at the not beene done fince the Christians entred those parts. Incontinently some people met vs in which, peace, yeel ling themselues and promiting seruice. Meane while the Church was finished and walled about, that fireeene or twenty horfemen might lodge within. There Mafe was faid, and a Sermon was preached; after which certaine ordinances were red for good orders to be kept in Io the Armie. After this, on the feuenth of February possession was taken in your Maiesties name of that New Discouerie, and on the foureteenth was made the request which is accustomed to

In regard of accusations made against Caconci Lord of Mechancan for rebellion and conspira- csconci Lord cie to haue flaine vs, I marched against him and found the information true, besides other inormi- of Mechanian ties in facrificing Indians and Christians, as he had yfed to doe before he was a Christian, whereupon I condemned him to the fire, as may be feene in the processe made against him. Hauing executed this man and pacified the Countrie, I left a Spaniard in a fortrefle there built by the Indians, and trauelled fix daies in a Countrie not inhabited, three of them downe the River, leauing at every lodging place a Croffe. On the fixt day we came to the Province Chinao, full of Cuinao. 20 good Townes and abounding in victuals. The people had at first armed themselves for relistance. but when I fent Baring against them, they were all fled to the Mountaines. The light horie tooke some of the slowest not without making some defence. I fent them word not to be afraid, but to returne to their houses and give their obedience, which they refusing, I marched against them with three squadrons, and sent the Ouerseer on one part, and Captaine Ognate on the other, and I was at their backes. The Ouerfeer found none but women and children. Ognate incountred with about one hundred men with their Bowes and Arrowes wounded fleightly two horses and three men, but many of them were slaine, others taken with women and children about five hundred, which I caused to be kept together, lest the Indiant should facrifice them after their wont. The Cacique was fled to the next Province, 20 called Cuinaquiro, of another figniorie and language. Because hee came not at my sending, I Cuinquiro. went to feeke him. Entring that Prouince where were many Townes, and great store of Wretchedhold Maiz and Fruites, wee found many people dead, facrificed, which had out of the for- pitality. mer Prouince retired thither for feare of vs, with many peeces of flesh which they vse to eate. I fent many prisoners to their friends to let them see that I came not to slav them. The language of this people none of ours could understand. The Ouerseer encountred three hundred armed with Bowes and Arrowes, which the day before had killed foure of our Indians: they fet vpon ours finging, and killed a Horse, but having lost one hundred of their company, the rest escaped. I found my men cutting the Horse in peeces, that the enemies might fee no figne of him, whereby they might know that a Horse 40 could dye. I fent the Campe Master to discouer the foord : three Indians fet on him, one Coursgious of which had a two hand I word of wood, which gaue him two blowes, but the Indian was Indian. flaine. I moued forwards, and discouered many inhabited places. Another skirmish happened with the Indians wherein aboue one hundred of them were flaine. All the Countrie is full of Maiz, Kidney-beanes, Hens, Parrats, Palmitos: there growes much Cotten, and some shewes appeared of Gold and Silver found with some of the inhabitants.

I procured the Carique to come to me with all his principal men, whom I entertained with Spanishpreachmuch kindnesse, and made a speech to them, giving them to vnderstand what God was, and the ing to convers Pope, and what they ought to doe to be faued : and how the King of Castile was the Minister of God in Infidels. earth, and Lord of all those parts subject to him; and that to me in his royall name they were to yeelde obedience and service; and that they should abstaine from sacresicing & adoration to Idols and Divels which 50 they had bitberto done, because God alone was to be worshipped, feared and served, and after him they ought to ferus and obey on earth the King of Cathile. The Cacique answered that till that houre hee Indian simplihad neuer knowne any thing of that which I had spoken, nor had ever heard of any but me that citie, which I declared; but that he now conceived great pleasure to have understood it, and that from benceforth he would hold for God the King of Caltile, and would worftig him. I answered that hee ought not fo to doe, for the King of Castile was a mortall man as we our selnes are, but that hee was Lord and Soueraigne ouer vs all, and given to vs of God to rule and governe vs, and we were to ferue and obey him. And God aboue, which created heaven and earth, and all things visible and inuitible, is he which ought to be worthipped, feared, and ferued aboue all things, for a fruich (O as he giveth vs, and of his hands we hold the life and being which we have, and he is able to take it from vs at his pleafure. In this manner he stood aduised of that which he ought to doe, although their wit and capacitie be very small, and their will much disagreeing, by reason of their ancient custome of seruing the Diuell. But feeing all things must have a beginning and labour, and herein especially the grace of God is necessary and the holy Ghost to be infused; it is to be beleeved and hoped of his infinite gentleneffe and mercy, that having directed your Maieffie to discouer this place and conquest, in vertue thereof and good fortune, after that of God, all things shall be done profise roully, and he will fuffer to give to this Nation knowledge of the truth. And if it be not fortish denly done, yet the way shall be opened, and the Countrie conversed in, and in abited of Chris fliant, which adore and laud his holy Name, where before, the Deuill was adored with fo many adolatries; and the Baners of his most holy Crosle shall be fixed in all those Countries, that when he shall fend his Grace, those Nations may be prepared to receive it. I gave to that Cacione all the people which I had taken, and they beganne to reinhabite their houses : and after a most fumptious Croffe placed there, and possession of those Prouinces taken in your Maiesties name, I departed by the way of another Prouince called Cuifes, fituate on the other fide of a great Rie ner iffung out of a great Lake, After a battell with this People, wherein we prevailed by our Artillerie, the Cucique fent a Messenger to me, by whom I fent him word, that we came thither to have them our triends, and to take peffession of that Countrie, in the name of the Kine of Caffile. Having obtayned provisions, and passing further, in an Iland in the River happened hard skirmish, in which divers were burt, many of theirs flame and taken, and the rest fled. The last which was taken, and which fought most couragiously, was a man in habite of a woman. Salomite are- which confelled, that from a childe he had gotten his living by that filthingle, for which I canfed him to be burned.

Cuifeo.

Returning to the Campe, I caused the principall Lords of the Countrie to come to me, and pacified them, giving them dothes, reftor ng the prifoners, and bidding them returne to their habitations : gruing them to understand on behalfe of the King of Caffile, That he was Lord and the Minister of God in Earth, in which God, the King and all men of the world are to believe, to adore, feare and ferne bim as God alone, maker and Creator of all things e and on Earth to be vallals, and to obey the commandements of the King of Caltile, as his Minister: and to mee in his Royall name, and that they (hould not wor hip Idols, nor eate mans field. They answered me, that to they would dee. and their facrificing to Idols hitherto grew from hence, that they knew not what God was; and because the Deuill commanded them to observe those formes, and defired fielh and bloud of them, giving them to understand, that he was the Lord of all the world, whereupon for feare they had committed this errour, which henceforth they would ceafe to doe. Great are the finner a of all men buing, feeing God permits to great abominations to bee committed against his di-Normweil this uine Maiestie, and that such a multitude or toules are lost, and remaine blinde as brute beafts, and worfe : for they follow their naturall course, which these have lost : although some not

onely publifu the warre which is made upon them to be uninft, but also seeke to disturbe it, being the mit

Departing toward the Province of Tonola, I fent the Querleer to the Province of Cay-waccare, on the other fide of the River. The Seniory of that Province (for they had no particular Lord) fent Meffengers that they expected mee in peace, and would give mee what I would how to ever Coiula, Coiula, and Cumaccaro, the three neighbour Provinces were fooles, Divinitie.

worthie and holy worke, and of most merit, (with the punishing of that Nation) that noth ng can be die in the fernice of God greater, how feener it be done by the hands of great sinners, and effectally by mit who am the greatest of all, fixce that nothing is hidden from his beate, and as the mercifull and quere all good, I bope in his infinite clemency that he will receive my meane defire, and small paine and labout, the Sword a worthie, holy, in diministion of my finnes: and will permit by his infinite bountie and grace, and because your Maiesta meritorious dith all for the feruice of God which it doth, whole charge it is to quide the enterprise in fuch manner, 40 fansfactory that the beginning be with manifesting his Name, where before, that of the Entmie was serued wholly, worke. and adored. Bee it knowne to your Maseftic, that wherefoener I come, I give all the people to underflandwhat God is, and who your Maiefie is. The Towne about this place or ford of the River is called Guanzebi, where a Crosse was planted.

Guarrebi. Tonela a free State.

Cuinaccara. Coixla, and Coincla.

Valiant Indi-

and refolued upon warre, These fought with vs to valiantly, that some one Indian would turne his head against a Light-horseman, and taking his Lance with one hand, with the other would 50 lay on him with a club which they vie; others would lay hold on the Bridles, and those which haue beene in New Spaine, and other parts, testifie that more couragious Indians haue not brene feene. They vie Bowes, Arrowes, Clubs, and two-hand Swords of wood, a Sling, and fome Targets. The most of them feare the Horses, holding opinion that they would eate them, and a thousand of them have beene afraid of three Horsemen; yet neuerthelesse some are thus hare dy. The Countrie is temperate, they are great Sacrificers, have Silver, and some Gold: but 1 made show not to care for it, and faid I had no need of Gold, but that they should ferue, and not facrifice as before. In the place of the victorie was erected a faire Church called, The victorie of the Croffe, and a Croffe of fixtie foot long there erected. Zapatula received me in peace, Aximocuntly people fled wet fent ftore of victuals, as did also Intallan.

Zaratula. Aximocuntla.

Indian Christiawitie but in name and

Our Indians in our march had flaine and facrificed certaine women and children, the fignes whereof I tound, it being a thing impossible to remedie, notwithstanding all the punishment inflicted, how focuer forme lay, they are good Christians, And let your Maieffle believe, that they doe at this pretent time as they did before, but fecretly. And for this, and for other full caules which I have written to your Maiestie, there ought not so much libertie be given them, nor more then that which is accustomed to their state and lining; for to doe otherwise, is to gue occasion to them to be bad, and especially this People is of such nature, that they must be very much holden under, and made to teare, that they may be good Christans.

CHAP.3. S.I. Embassadors with offers of peace. Croffes eretted.

From Xulps three E mbaffadors came to me, with offer of peace, subiection, and certaine Sil- feare. uer plates, and an Idoll made of Cotton, and full of bloud, and a Raior of itone in the midft. Xalpa. wherewith they facrificed, which was burned in their light, to their great amazement, who thought it would have destroyed all. Against Mandie Thursday a Church was creeted of reeds in a day, and deuout Procellion was then made of more then thirtie Disciplinants. On Eafter Tuef. Bloudy Proto day I departed thence to Tepano, thence by Mount Amee to Teulinebano, a firong place, being Teulinebano all of stone cut round, where every Lord of the Province ought to have a house wherein to iacrifice; there had beenes great Idoll of Gold, destroyed in other warres. The Palaces were of flone engraven, some pieces of eighteene spannes, with great Statues of men, with other things like those of Mexico. The Courts of the Palaces were spacious, and faire, with Fountaines of good water. Thence I fent Captaine Verduge to Xaltenange, thorow a Valley of fixe leagues, but the people were fled to the Mountaines. A Croffe was planted, and Masse said for the service of Xaltenango. God, there where the Deuill had fo long beene ferued, and had received to many Sacrifices. I divided the Armie, one part to goe to Mechuacan (another Province, not that of New Spaine) neere to the South Sea I marched with the other to Guatailan, and there planted a 20 Croffe on a Hill, and thence to Tetitlan, accompanied with the Caciques of the Countrie:

thence to Xalifco. Heere the way was fo bad that in fitteene dayes I rode not three, and many Xalifco.

I fent to the principall Lords of Xalifeo, to whom I made the request accustomed. They were all retired to the Mountaines. Finding my felfe neere the Sea, I tooke poffession thereof for your Maiestie. At Tepique two of the Lords of Xalifeo came to me in peace, and to yeeld obedience. as three other Townes had done neere the Sea, where are faid to bee Mines of Gold. There I made Officers in your Maiesties name, as being a new Discouerie and Conquest separate from New Spane, that there might be some to receive your Maiesties fiths. Two Croffes were ere-Gred in Xalifes and two in Tepeque, a place well watered, and very fertile. In marching from 30 thence a great and dangerous battell was given vs by the Indians wherein we obtained victorie. They wounded fiftie Horses, of which onely fixe died (one Horse I affure your Maiestie, is worth about fourt hundred Pezos) divers of the principall Commanders were wounded alio. The next day I made a Procession with a Te Denn. Thence I passed the great River of the Trinitie, to come to Omitlan, the chiefe of that Province. The Countrie is very hot, and the River full of Crocodiles, and there are many venomous Scorpions. Here was erected one Church, and two Croffes. Aztatlan is three dayes journey hence where they prepare to give mee battell. From thence ten dayes further I shall goe to finde the Amazons, which some say dwell in the Sa, some in Amazonian an arme of the Sea, and that they are rich, and accounted of the people for Goddeffes, and whiter then other women. They vie Bowes, Arrowes and Targets : baue many and great Townes; 40 at a certaine time admit them to accompanie them, which bring vp the males, as these the female iffue, &c. From Omitlan a Prouince of Mecnacan of the greater Spaine, on the eighth of Iuly, 1430.

had thought but for prolimitie, here to have added Aluarados Conquests the other way from Mexico. Pet. Aluarados two of whole Letters are extant in Ramulio. The later of them is dated from the Citie of Saint Letters to Cott lago, which hee founded. Hee writes that bee was well entertained in Guatimala, and puffed alongst tefe which had with divers fortunes, four e hundred leagues from Mexico conquering; and let your Loraship beleene this Discovere mee, this Countrie is better inhabited and peopled then all that which your Lording hath bitherto and Conquestgoverned. In this Prounce I have found a Vulcan, the most dreadfull thing that ever was some Two worst ter-30 which casteth forth stones as great as a house, burning in light stames, which falling, breake in pieces, and coner all that fiery Mountaine. Threescore leagues before wee saw another Vulcan , which sends forth a fearefull smoake, ascending up to Heauen, and the body of the smoake encompassed baife a league. None drinke of the streames which runne downe from it, for the Brimstone sent. And effecially there comes thence one principal River, very faire, but so bot, that certaine of my companie were not able to passe it, which were to make out-roades into certaine places; and search ng a Ford, found another cold River running into it, and where they met together, the Ford was semperate and passable. I beseech your Lordship to grant mee the fauour to bee Governour of this Citie, &c. From Saint I220, Inly 28, 1524.

Christians for

CHAP. 3.5.2. Many horses lost. Oratory for the Denill. Signes of rich Mines.

The Voyages of Frier MARCO de Nica, Don FR. VASQUEZ de Coronado, Don ANTONIO de Espeio, and divers into New Mexico, and the adjoyning Coasts and Lands.

Les Gamers. bit.cen c.112.

Here arolesome strife betwirt Don Antonio de Mendoza Vice-roy of New Spaine, and Cortes, each striuing to exceed the other in New Discoueries, and complaining of each Cortes, each striuing to exceed the other in the billion into Spaine, Mendoza heaother to the Emperour. Whiles Cortex went to that end into Spaine, Mendoza heaother to the Emperour. Whiles Cortex went to that end into Spaine, Mendoza heaother to the Emperour. ring formewhat by Dorantez, one of Narusez his companions in the former inland Difcourries 10 from Florida, tent both Frier Marco de Niça, with Steph. a Negro of Dorantez, and afterwards Captaine Francis Vasquez de Coronado, by Land as likewise Ferdinando Alarchon by Sea. Cortez alfo fent Francis Ollow with a Fleet of three ships for discouerie of the same Sea, commonly called the South Sea. The Voyages Ramufio hath published at large in Italian, and Master Hablent out of him in Enelish. I'shall borow leave to collect out of them and Gomara, and F. Iuan Gon-Lales de Mendoza, and others, some breese heads of things agreeing to our purpose for the berter knowledge of the Northerne America.

Topira.

Francis Valquez de Coron ado Gouernour of Nueva Galicia, Anno 1539. Writes, that hee arriued in the Province of Topira, where the Indians were fled into the Mountaines for feare of the Christians. They have houses of stone; store of Gold, Emeralds, and other Iewels; have strong to armour of Siluer fashioned in shapes of beasts, worship herbs and birds, and sing songs to them. Neere thereto is another Pronince where the people goe naked. Their Priests which they call Chichimechas keepe in the woods without houles, and eate things given of almes by the people. Both men and women goe naked; the men tye their prinie member to the knee; they have Temples couered with itraw, the windowes full of dead mens skulls. They have in a ditch before the Temple the figure of a Serpent of divers metals, with his tayle in his mouth. One every yeere is acrificed by lot, crowned with flowers and layd in that ditch, and fire put to him; which his death he takes patiently, and the yeere following is worshipped with hymnes, and after that his head is fet vp with the rest. They facrifice their prisoners burning them in another ditch without fuch ceremonies. Frier Marco de Niça went from Saint Michael in Culiacan, two hundred leagues from Mexikinde of Vni-

Expedition of

Don Francisco

Sheepe as big as Hories, with huge hornes.

in 30.and an

with Spanifb

Vafquez.

Ill wayes.

Impious pie-

to Norage to co, with Stephen the Negro, and other Indians, and came to Petatian, and thence paffed a Defart foure dayes, and came to certaine Indians, which made much of him, fought to touch his garments and called him Harota, that is, A man comme from Heanen. Thence he trauelled to Vacupa, fortie leagues from the Sea (of California) and thence to Cenola, which in thirty dayes journey : he learned that the people by the Sea have flore of Pearles, and Targets of Kow-hides. By the way An vaknowne he had understanding of the Kingdomes of Tetontene and Acm. They shewed him an hide balle as big againe as the hide of an Oxe, and faid, it was the skinne of a beast which had but one home vpon his fore-head, bending toward his breast, and that out of the same goeth a point forward with which he breakes any thing that he runneth against. The colour of the hide was as 40 of a Goat-skinne, the haire a finger thicke. He passed thorow two Defarts. The men of Censla flie Stepben the Negro. Frier Marke went within fight of it, and fayth it is a faire Citie feated at the foot of a Hill. V pon this newes Captaine Vafquez aforefaid in Aprill, 1540. travelled with 400. Horlemen, and a great Armie of Spaniards and others, many of which died of famine both Indians and Horses. The wayes were so rough, that the Sheepe and Lambes which they carried for their prouision lost their hooses. The fixe and twentieth of May hee arrived in the Valley of Coracones, fine dayes journey from the Westerne Sea, and thence hee went to Chichileale, and Indian embroiwith much fearlitie to Cenola, which is the name of a Prouince in which are feuen Cities neere *I have a Map maneum.mean together: their houles are of stone source or fine stories high; they wie Ladders in stead of staires, and have Cellers under the ground made for Winter in manner of Stoues. The feuen Cities are 10 but small Townes with in foure leagues together. In one were two hundred houses compassed placeth Citala with walls, and some three hundred other vnwalled. They goe for the most part naked, vie halfe, and depainted Mantles, feeme not witty enough to build fuch houses; have good quantitie of Turquefferibeuin New les, some Emeralds also and Granates; great Gunee Corkes; and season (in Summer) as in Me-Mexico, on Rio xico; many bealts, as Tigres, Beares, Lions, Porkespicks, and certaine Sheepe as big as Horses, del Norte about with very great hornes and little tayles. I have feene their hornes fo great that it is a wonder. 50. Townes I have feene the heads of wilde Goats, pawes of Beares and skinnes of wilde Boares. There is names, frangame of Deere, Ounces, and very great Stags, Hares, Conies. He fent the Vice-roy an embroidered garment of Needle-worke wrought by those Indians, and clothes painted by them with the pictures of the beafts of the Countrey. It is very cold in Winter, although it be in 37, de-62 grees and a halfe. The fnow continueth feuen moneths, in so much that the people vie surred Mantles, and other winter prouisions. The Souldiers seeing little here to bee had, were offended with the Friers which had commended Sinola, and loth to returne emptie to Mexico, they proceeded to Acuco, and Cardense with his troope of Horse went thence to the Sea, Vasquez with the rest to Tiguez, on the banke of a great River. There they had newes of Axa and Quinira. They heard of a bearded rich King also called Tatareax, whom they would visit; they burnt a Towne, and lost thirtie Horses in their way, and spent 45. dayes in siege of a Towne, which dranke in owe in itead of water and burned their goods to preuent the Spanish spoyle, then iffuorange move with their wives and children, few escaping: and divers Spaniards also were flaine, and 80, wounded, beildes Horfes. They burnt the Towne and marched to Cience, horfe and men palling ouer the River vpon the Ice being in 37. degrees ; and foure leagues from thence met Strange Kine. with a new kind of Kine wilde and fierce, of which they flue 80, the first day for their prouifion, From Cienie they went to Quinira neere 300. leagues, thorow woodleffe Plaines, making to heapes of Oxe-dung for way-markes against their returne. All that Plaine is as full of bunchbacked Kine as Serena in Spaine of Sheep:, and no other people but the Herd-men. It hailed Great baile. one day (tones as big as Oranges *. At length they came to Quintra and there found King Ta. * Melaneok. tarrax, a hoary man, naked and with a braffe lewell at his necke; whereat not a little vexed to fee themselues gulled with reports of riches, and the Crosse worshipped, and Queene of Heauen, of which they law no figne, they returned to Mexico, and there arrived in March, 1 (42. Valquez fell from his Horse in Tiguez, and withall out of his wits.

and remouals.

Quinira is in 40. degrees temperate, well watered, and hath store of fruits. They are appa- Quinira descrirelled with Oxe hides, and Deeres skinne. They faw thips on the coast with Alcatrazes of Gold bed out of Gerelled with Oxe hides, and Deeres kinne. They law hings on the coan with fixed acts of Solder in their Prowes, which they effected to bee of China, making fignes that they had Ships feene, 20 fayled thirtie dayes. Some Friers returned to Quinira, and were flaine. As for those bunchbacked Kine, they are the food of the Natiues, which drinke the bloud hot, and eate the fat, and often rauine the fleth raw. They wander in companies, as the Alarbes (and Tartars) following the pastures according to the seifons. That which they eate not raw, they rost, or warme rather as a fice of Oxe-dung, and holding the fielh with his teeth, cut it with Rafors of ftone. Thefe The bunch-Oxen are of the bigneffe of our Bulls, but their hornes leffe, with a great bunch on their fore- backed Oxen thoulders, and more haire on their fore-parts then behind, which is like wooll; a mane like a Herfes on their backe bone, and long haire from the knees downward, with flore of long haire at the chinne and throat, a long flocks also at the end of the males tailes. The Horses fied from them, of which they flue tome, being enraged. They are near, drinke, shooes, houses, fire, vefac fels, and their Mafters whole lubstance. Other creatures as big as Horses the Spaniards for their hornes of fines fine wooll called Sheepe; one of their hornes ordinarily weighed fiftie pounds. There are also pounds. great Dogs which will fight with a Bull, able to carrie fiftie pounds weight in their huntings Great Dogs 2

No 1581. Frier Augustine Ruiz, with two other Friers, and eight Souldiers transled Ruiz his Voy-A Non 1,81. Frier o Luguifine Rane, white the from the Mines of Saint Barbara to Los Tiguas, two hundred and fifty leagues Northwards, age to Tiguas. where, vpon occasion of one of the Friers being flaine, the Souldiers returned. The two Friers Anide Efrie 21.1 a Meffizo Itayed. Whereupon the Franciscans carefull of their two Brethren, procured An- his New Mexitonio de Effeio, a rich Mexican, with Frier Bernardine Beltran, and others, licensed to follow him 40 to fet routh on the faid Discouerie, in November, An. 1582. with an hundred and fifteene Horses, and store of prouisions. Hee passed the Conches, and the Passagnates, and Tobesos, and Immanos, (finding many Silver Mines in the way) and then came to people, which for want of Language they could not name, and heard by one of the Conches, of a great Lake, and Townes neere it. with houses of three or foure stories, but went not thither. Fifteene dayes they travelled thorow 'Voods of Pine-trees, and two thorow Woods of Poplars and Walnuts, ftill keeping by the River of the North, as they called it, till they came to a Countrie which they called Now Mexico. They came to ten Townes fituate on both fides the River, which vied them kindly. Their houses are of foure stories, well built, with Stones for Winter: their apparel of Cotton, and Deeres skinnes: both men and women ware Boots and Shooes with foles of Neats leather. Each house had an Oratorie for the Deuill, where they fet him meate, for whose ease (as they so (av) they erect Chappels also in the high-way. Thence they came to Tiguas in which were fixteene Townes: in Poala they had flaine the two Friers, and now therefore fled to the Moun- Friers flaine. taines. They four d many Hennes in the Countrey, and many metals. Hearing that there were Hennes many rich Townes Eastwards, they travelled two dayes, and found eleven Townes, and (as they thought) fortie thousand people. There are fignes of rich Mines. They heard of a Prouince Quires, fixe leagues higher up the River, which they visited, and found five Townes. They faw Quire. there . Pie in a Cage, and certaine tirafuls or shadowes, such as they vie in China, in which were Painted Vathere a Pie in a Cage, and certaine titalols or shadowes, such as they vie in Long, in which were painted the Sunne, Moone and Statres. They found themselves in 37, degrees and a halfe. Four Note thenest. teene leagues more to the North, they came to the Cunames, which had fine Townes; the greanefie of Virginal the people many and more civill then any they had feene. They travelled thence North-westward to a Countrie which had seven great Townes, and in them thirtie thousand soules, Fifteene leagues further Westward they came to Acoma, a Acoma Towns of fixe thousand persons, seated on a Rocke fifty paces high, without any passage to it O 0 0 0 0 0 2

Sheepe with ges had in Frebulbers voyage.

60 teft was Cia, with eight Market places, the houses plaistered and painted with divers colours, nia.

ding neere each other. from 32. to 33. and a little more. But the Prouince of Cicole he ma-

but by flaires hewen in the Rocke; all their water was kept in Ciffernes. They travelled hence foure and twentie leagues Westward to Zuny or Cibola, where Vasquez had beene, and erceted Croffes, ftill flanding. Three Indians of his Armie were full alive here, which told Effeto. of a great Lake fixtie dayes journey thence, voon the bankes whereof were many Townes which had flore of Gold. Whereupon, the reft returning, hee with nine companions determined to goe thither, and came to a populous Prouince, called Mobate, and being well entertained hee perswaded the Indians to build a Fort, to secure them from the Horses, which hee said would otherwise eate them; which they did. Here he left some of his companie, and went to discouer cerraine rich Mines, whereof he had heard, fine and fortie leagues Westward, which hee found rich of Siluer. He had further intelligence also of that great Lake, and having travelled twelve leagues to the Hubstes and Tamos, populous Prouinces, being so few, they returned in Iuly, 1,88, by another way, downe a Riverealled, De las Vaccas, or Ot Kine, an hundred and twenty leagues, fill meeting with flore of those cattell, and thence to Conchos, and fo to the Valley of Saint Rartholmen in New Bilcate

TOw for Cortez his three ships, they set forth from Acapulco, the eighth of July, 1029, and Barthelmen Cane writ from Mexico, in May, 1590, that Rodrigo del Rio, Gouernour of New Cous Letter is Bifcay was fent by the Vice-roy with five hundred Spaniards to the conquest of Cibola. in Maft. Hakl.

Francis de Ulluss Voyage in the South Sea. California, F. Alerchous

layled along it the coast Northwards to Cape Roxo, (as they stilled it, and so to the River of Saint Creffes, which coaft fome thought to bee part of the Continent, others to bee but broken 20 Lands or Ilands: and fayled to farre in the tame, that I am loth to follow them the particulars being both in Ramufo, and Maller Hakluye. Fernando Alarchon, Anno 1540. Was fent by Mendoza the Vice-roy, with two ships, who sayth, hee went to the bottome of the Bay (of Calie formes) and fayled up the River farre into the Countrie. I remit the defirous Reader to the Authours aforefaid. To mee, Ullas the Marquelles Generall feemes to make California nothing but llands, and to have fayled within a great way, and after out of them : this other amulous Discouerer would seeme to finde it a Bay, and therefore goe h vp the River; later Maps make it an Iland, as wee haue faid; a Letter 1:95. from Los Angelos, calleth them Ilands, and fayth, they are rich, and that the Vice-roy fent to conquer them. But I am Sea-ficke, and therefore returne to our Land-discouerers. In which wee haue a lesuite first, to entertaine you, and after 30 that, a Letter of later Newes of Onnates Discoueries in thole Northerne parts of America. All which may be of vie one day, when our Virginian Plantation (which blufheth to fee fo little done after eighteene yeeres continued habitation, with fo much coft, and fo many lives and livelihoods fpent thereon) shall lift vp her head with more viue alacritie, and shake her glorious lockes, and difparkle her triumphant lookes, thorow the inland Countries to the Westerne Ocean. And indeed for Virginias Take wee have to long held you in Spanish discourses, of whose Acts this Chapter had beene the laft , but that the leaven which leaveneth in fo great part the Spanil lumpe may be knowne, to awaken English vigilance to preuent it in themselues (they had a faire caucat 1588.) and to avoide the like with others, I shall adde to these their Discoveries a Spanio Traueller, Frier, Bishop, to discouer their Discouerers ; which shall cast vp the American parcels, 49 the particular relations of which you have had already, and yeeld you the totall jumme for a conclusion to our Spanish-Indian Peregrinations.

S. III.

Extracts out of certaine Letters of Father MARTIN PEREZ of the Societie of Iclus, from the new Misson of the Province of Cinoloa to the Fathers of Mexico, dated in the moneth of December, 1591. With a Letter added, written 1605. of later Disconeries.

July 6. 1590.

Cuimechi wax-

Ince my last Letters, dated the fixth of Iuly, among the Tanteca, on which day wee came into this Province of Cmoloa, being guided by the Governour Roderigo del Rio, we passed and travelled through divers Cattles, Countrie Villages, Mines of Metall, Shepheards houses , Townes of Spaniards, and certaine Signiories, helping our neighbours by our accultomed duties, so that wee were alwaies full of butinesse. Wee passed ouer in eight dayes the rough and hard and painefull Mountaine Tepefnan, feeing no liuing creature, fiue certaine Fowles. The caule whereof is, the force of certaine Muskitos, which trouble Horles, whereof is exceeding abundance in all the Mountaine, which were most noisome to our Hories. 60 There met vs certaine Cuimechs, which are warlike Indians, which offered vs bountifully such as they had, without doing vs any harme. There are almost an infinite number of these, which wander dispersed up and downe, doing nothing else but hunt and seeke their food. And it was told ve, that three thouland of them were affembled in a part of the hill, which befought the Gouernour, that he would cause them to be taught and instructed in the Christian Faith. Their Minister, which was but onely one, came to visite vs. There met vs also a certaine Spanish Captaine, which had the gouernment of fix Castles or Countrie Villages in a part of the Mountane, who knowing well enough what the focietie ment by these missions, wrote vnto the father Vilitor, requelting him to grant him one of the Fathers, by whose travell twenty thousand foules might be instructed, which he would recommend vnto him.

These and other Villages we passed by not without griefe, because it was resoluted already among vs, that we should stay in no other place, but in this Prouince. A few dayes before our comming thither we wrote to fix or legen Spaniards, which dwell there without any Prieft, to and heard Maile onely once a yeare, to wit, when any Prieft, dwelling thirtie or forty leagues off, came vnto them, to confederand absolue them being penitent; who being accompanied off, came vinto them, to conteste and absolute them being pentiene; who being accompanied The towneof with most of the chiefe Indians, met vs with exceeding great toy and gladnesse, about twenty leagues distant from their dwellings, and accompanied vs vnto the second River of this Pro- and Iaced on nince, wherein the towne of Saint Philip and Iacob Handeth. This Province is from Mexico a- the second Riboue three hundred leagues, and is extended towards the North. On the right hand it hath the uer of Ginolea; Mountaines of the Tepefuanes, on the left hand the Medsterrane Sea, or the Gulfe of California: Itis but 190. on another part it fretcheth euen to Cibola and California, which are Provinces toward the leasues indeed West, very great and well inhabited. On one fide, which regardeth the North, new Mexico is but two dayes journey distant from the vetermost River of this Province (as we were enformed 20 by the Gouernour) which is fo famous and renowned, and fo full of Pagan inperfittion, whereof Otten witting divers have often written.

They measure and divide the Province of Cinaloa with eight great Rivers which runne through the same. The reason of that diussion is this, becaute all the Castels and Villages of the inhabitants are fetled neere the bankes and brinkes of the Rivers, which are replenished with fish , and which in short space doe fall into the Mediterrane Sea, or Gulfe of California. The foyle is apt for tillage and fruitfull, and bringeth forth fuch things as are fowne in it. The ayre is cleere and wholefome. The Pefants and husband men reape twice a yeare, and among other things, store of Beanes, Gourds, Maz, and such kinde of Pulfe, whereof wee and they eate to plentifully, that there is no speech of the rising of the price 30 of things, or of Famine; nay rather a great part of the old crop perisherh oftentimes, and they call away then old Maiz, to make roome for the new. They have great thore of Cotten Gotten woolk Wooll, whereof they make excellent cloathes, wherewith they are apparelled. Their apparell is a peece of cloath tyed upon their shoulders, wherewith as with a cloak they couer their whole Their apparel; body, after the manner of the Mexicans.

True it is, that though they be all workemen, yet for the most part of the yeare they are not couered, but goe naked ; yet all of them weare a broad girdle of the faid Cotten cloath cunningly and artificially wrought, with figures of divers colours in the fame, which the thels of Cockles and Oyfters toyned artificially with bones doe make. Moreover, they thrust many threds through their eares, whereon they hang earerings; for which purpose 40 they bore the eares of their children as foone as they be borne in many places, and hang earerings, round Stones, and Corall in them, fo that each eare is laden with fiftie of their Ornaments at least, for which cause they alwayes sleepe not lying on their sides, but with their face vpward. The women are decently courted from their waste downeward, being all the rest naked. The men as well as the women weare long haire to the women haue it Their beire. hanging downe their shoulders, the men often bound up and tyed in diuers knots: they thrust Corals in it, adorned with divers feathers and cockle shels, which adde a certaine beautie and ornament to the head. They weare many round Beades of divers colours about their neckes. They are of great stature, and higher then the Spaniards by a hand- Their great full, fo that as wee fate vpright vpon our horfes, without standing on tiptoe, they Stature. 50 easily could embrace vs. They are valiant and strong, which the warres which they Their valous, had with the Spaniards doe easily flow, wherein though they fuftained no small damages, yet were they not unreuenged, nor without the bload of their aduerfaries. When they would fight resolutely for their vetermost libertie, they denounced and appointed the day of battell. Their weapons are Bowes and poyloned Arrowes, and a kinde of clubbe of Their weapons. hard wood, wherewith they neede not to litrike twice to braine a man. They vie also wertaine short iauelins made of red wood, so hard and sharpe, that they are not inferiour to our armed speares. And as fearefuil and terrible as they be to their enemies, to quiet and peaceable are they among themselves and their neighbours, and you shall seldome finde a quarrellour or contentious person. The Spaniards after certaine conflicts at length made friendship 60 with them, leaving their Countrie to them : but those eight Spaniards, whom I mentio- Eight Spaniards ned before, line quietly among them : and though they be called Lords, yet are they huing in Circcontented with such things as the Indians give them, offering no violence nor molestation loss

Vpon our comming into these Countries, the Indians flirred up with the fame of new men. 0000003

Trancifeans.

hefore.

(flaine there)

twelue veares

Difference of

language.

first occasion, to show how greatly they affected the Christian religion; for assoone as we entred Readineffero into the first Villages of this Prouince, the day following there affembled a great number of old hearethe Gof- and vong folkes to be baptized, which was a great comfort vnto vs; we christened full fourescore boyes and girles; we raised the mindes of the rest with good hopes, that assome as they Fours hundred were instructed with necessary doctrine, they should be partakers of the same Sacrament. Wee fou id foure hundred Christians, which having bin baptized by the Franciscane Fathers, which came into these parts twelue yeares past, when at length they were slaine by the Inhabitants 10 were left destitute of a teacher; neither can all of them be instructed by vs, vnlesse some helpe be fent vs; for belides that the people are many, they also differ in language and tongues. although there be two chiefe and most generall.

We learne two tongues with great celeritie, which albeit they be not fo vulgar and generall yet are they more necessary : and we have profited so much in three moneths, that wee could came by flockes vnto our lodeing, and witheffed their loue, with exceeding great fignification of good will, with falutation and words, which yet we understood not, staying so long with vs till they were friendly difmiffed by vs : neither neglected they the opportunitie offred voon the

Inftruction in the Catechilm

easily understand the Indians when they spake, Wherefore wee began to instuct in the Catechilme, and with godly speeches to exhort the Nation, to keepe them within the compasse of their duetie, and to deliuer them of all feare : when they fee that they receive of vs the ieruice and formes of praying to God, not in a strange but in their owne language; the which together And why doe with the Catechilme they learne with great care and shortnesse of time. And now wee have 10 you teach Ba. Christened aboue fixteene hundred, as well those of yeares as boyes; besides those source hunble in a ft ange biemaft ange yeares neglected, had scarlely any shew of Christendome, but were married with Pagans after their Countrey fashion. From many of them we tooke away their Concubines, because such is the cuitome of this Nation, that they take as many as they are able to keepe. Many of them we praying? Sixteene hunlikewife married. There are also many more which defire to be baptized, but since the people be exceeding madred newly Christ-ned. ny, and the workemen but two onely, we are not able to sustaine the labour. The last of No-

Concubines. Familia-ity

with the Divel ble finnes. Many of them fled into the Mountaines, that their children might not be Christened, because the Diuell had reported abroad, that all they should die that were Baptized. Not with standing in feuen or eight dayes we Christened two hundred and fortie children. Necessitie enforced meto 240, children leave them, and to goe to another place, to helpe our neighbours : yet I am greatly denrous to re-Christened. turne moued with a certaine pitie, because I fee this people so strongly possessed by the Divel uember I visited the people of this tract or River, and in the space of twelve or thirteene miles, there are foure thousand Indians at the least, which vie Bowes and Arrowes, besides # women and children. Among these are certaine of bad name and same, which have samiliari'v and acquaintance with the Diuell, with whom they commit abominable and very horri-

Thirteene Churches in

Cullyuscan.

being viterly ignorant of the faith. There are now thirteene Churches in these three Rivers, besides those which are erected by 4 little and little, neither haue we any more holy Vestments for them, then those which we carry about with vs, and one other furniture of an Altar, which belongeth to the Spaniards : we have neuer a Bell in any of these Churches. We furnished an Alter with one Croffe and certaine paper Images, which were brought hither from Culhnacan, because we want other furniture, which we lookefrom your Reuerencies, and it will be very profitable, fince this Nation is so delighted with outward ornaments. We celebrated the dedication of a Church at Petatlan, on the day of the conception of the Virgin, the Mother of God. In the same I set up a certaine small Image consecrated to the conception of the bleffed Virgin: We went on Procession, wherein the Boyes sang the Te Dewn laudamus in the vulgar language: I added a Prayer, and then red Maffe, because the fingers are yet ignor to rant of Song, and can ling nothing elie but Amen, with a rude and votuned voyce. Many of the Pagans were present, which were inuited to this holy day from other places, and were almost amazed beholding these first beginnings, wishing that the like solemnitie might be kept in their Villages. As farre as hitherto we are able to gather, the Indians the inhabitants of these and the neighbour Pagan Castles, where there is greater ftore of people, and lesse diversitie of languages, are quicke and prompt, tractable, and of easier conversion, then any that I have hitherto feene or knowne. I could with that I might fometime line privately with my felfe, but fuch is the concourse of commers, that they love me not thus quiet, and though I be filent, yet they minister divers speeches, inquiring of our things, and rehearing their owne, and come to vs in the night to prayer. They are ingenious and docile, although they have no teacher, by whole 60 instruction this force of nature should be exercised. They live in Cattles and Countrey villages, in houses ionned neere the one to the other, and builded of chalke and timber, which they adore with Mats and couerings of reedes.

Petatian in as. degrees and a The Christianity there

In the marriages which they make, when they take many wives, it feemeth not inconvenient or indecent vnto them, to take their filter, mother, or daughter, because they thinke that this maketh much for domesticall peace, and that thereby all emulation may be avoided. And though they make no account of affinitie, yet they have exceeding great regard of confanguinitie. They marriages. loue their children most tenderly for a certaine time, and teach them nothing else but such things as they know themselves, and never beate them nor chastife them for any thing, and so The badeduthey live like beafts. They marrie them at their time; and this is the forme of their marriage: cation of their they like like healts. They marrie them at their time; and this is the forme of their marriage. children.

The Parents of each partie meete together, and after conferences had between them, they dance forme of Marriage. according to their Countrie custome, and giving hands returne home; if the Bridegroome or riages. Bride be under age, they stay certaine moneths and sometime a yeare, neuer seeing one the other: afterward at time convenient the Father of the spouse giveth an house to his daughter and son in law, with furniture thereto belonging. They also make the Bridegroome a Knight, if he be of a worthy familie, with divers rites, Their forms whereof these be the chiefest ceremonies: They deliuer him a Bowe, and instruct him how to of making wie his new weapons; and to shew a signe of his industrie and abilitie, he is turned out to some Knights. vone Lyon or wilde heaft, which when he hath killed, he is advanged to some honour and dignitie, whereby he excelleth others which are not Knights. Among the things belonging to policie, this is one which they doe obserue; that they adopt other mens children for their owne; Adoption, but this adoption into another familie hath very feuere and dangerous ceremonies, for they thrust a sticke into their mouthes into the bottome of their throates, wherewith they are almost 20 choaked; if it fall out well, they vomit vp all the meate in their stomacke, and so they passe ouer into the right of another man. Whatfoeuer time remaineth from labour and trauaile they Their quierouer into the right of another main. Whatevoor the figures ignes. They play with exceeding play, which is like to Dice, but confifteth of diversignes. They play with exceeding play. great moderation and patience of minde, being most cunning in this kinde of sport, no oath is heard among them, nor any contentions or brabling word, though they loofe their apparell and all that they have, and goe home naked, as sometime it falleth out.

When they be ficke, if the difeafe be fore and dangerous, they digge a place for their buriall, Their burials. and so netimes it standeth fiue or fixe dayes open, which custome was very profitable to a certaine woman; for when I came into a certaine Village, and faw the ground digged very deeply, 20 knowing what the matter was, I came vnto her lying on her Couch and ficke, and hauing instructed her in the Catechisme which I had written in the vulgar Tongue, in the principles of Christian Religion, I baptised her, but the recourred. Now the cause why they open the places of their burials is this, That prefently they may couer the bodie or aftes of him that is dead (for fomtimes they burne the bodies with all the house and household staffe.) They fprinkle the Sepulchre with a certaine dust, whereof they make a drinke, and bring meate with them, and after they have wept over the Grave, they make themselves drunke, the Kinsfolke of the dead making a Fealt for them that doe a fift them. And these be their Funerals.

The Vicar of the Church of Culiacan, which is fortie two leagues from Cinoloa, where the foresaid Fathers liue, in his Lecters fent to a certaine friend writeth after this manner : In Cina-60 the Fathers labour painfully in the Lord in conuerting the Indians vito the Fath fo fruitfully and happily, that we all hold it for a Miracle. Neither can it be believed, both with what celeritie they have learned and speak the tongue of that Countrie, and with what facilitie and contentment. The Inhabitants come to bee baptized, and defire to bee instructed in the Articles of our faith. Doubtleffe it is the worke of God; wherefore the Dinine Maieffie doth fauour and promote the same.

A Letter written from Valladolid by LVDOVICVS TRIBALDYS To-LETVS to Master RICHARD HAKLVYT, translated out of Latine, touching IVAN de ONATE his Discoueries in new Mexico, fine hundred leagues to the North from the old Mexico.

WHen you shall see the English returned home out of our Spaine, and can finde no Letters sent unto you from us, perhaps, and that worthily you will accuse us of breach of our friendship, and also as little mindfull of our promise. Yet we as free from this fault salute you most willingly. For it is not long fince we arrived here, that is to fay in this Court, a little after the departure of your Countrimen into England. Yet we made our tournie by Sea and by Land indifferent pleasantly and according to our defire. After we had rested our selves a small while, we defired nothing more then to visit An-60 drew Gartia Celpedes, a man for many reflects linked unto us in most fraight bands of friendlip. He greatly resourced of your good will toward him : And Bewed me a certaine briefe yet very perspicuous Their buils, Relation of things atchiened by Don Ivan de Onate, among the Indians of New Mexico.

For therein is written, that he departed from old Mexico in the yeere 1 coo. with an Armie and carriages of fine thousand men, in which number boyes, women, youngmen and Souldiers 5000, lenti 599

Don Ivan de Onate bis frit

con learnes

are included. He carried also great those of victuals with him, flockes of Sheepe and Goates. Herds of Oxen and all things necessarie for life, also Horses and Armour, and other things which in these kind of Expeditions ought to be prouided. Therefore having travelled through divers Countries fine hundred leagues, hee found diners Nations by the way, noble for their builded Townes and reasonable civill manners. All which he received into the friendship of the King of Spaine, and they openly testified the same by publike instruments, and giving of their faith. And when with his company he came vato a Towne very ftrong by fituation of the place, built voon a most high and mightie Rocke, and was freely received by the Inhabitants, giving their right hands to each other, they courteoully supplied them with all things necessarie for their reliefe. and promifed within a while after that they would furnish them with more, fufficient to make Id a very long journie. When Onate had waited for this thing, at the day appointed hee fent his Nephew by his fifter with a few Souldiers, who entring the Towne, came into the Market place. where almost all the multitude of the Townesmen were assembled together. Now while hee with his company was busie in buying of things, suddenly the Traitours from all parts rushed yoon him and his fellowes ynawares, and by most wicked treason cut off the Captaines head and fixe others; the rest being wounded hardly escaped by flight from fo great a multitude thatasfaulted them, yet some of the enemies were flaine and thrust through. When speedily the same hereof came to Onate, taking with him a choice number of Souldiers, in a great turie he came vnto the Towne, befiged it, and after a long fight by maine force he tooke the same, slue most part. tooke the reft, burnt the Towne and razed it to the ground, that no tokens might remaine of fo 16 great a wickednesse committed against him. The Townes name was Acoma: and none of our two third parts men was flaine in the fiege thereof.

Acoma is in 22. degrees, and Treacherous

Another greater Citie. Cibela is in 33. deerces. The Towne of Saint John. Sundry Mynes of gold and filuer newly found.

A fecond Difconerie 1602. The most famous River of Rie mas aue ocho lezuas de The Lake of Conitas, Auia unalag-

пиво Іаго пиу

euade. Anten.

de Espeio.

A faire and goodly Citic.

Cape Califor nia, which ic feemes at this

After this he eafily proceeded forward on his journie as he did before, till he came to a mightie A mighty city. great Citie: he inforced this City with the villages adioyning to fweare obedience to the King of Spaine not altogether vn willing, yet feared by the example and ruine of the towne that was de-Grove 1. From hence he came to a greater Citie, which likewife after hee had obtained it by great friendship he sent certain men from thence to search out the oxen of Cibola, long since known by the report of one, (to wit of Valquez de Coronado) whether they were fuch indeed or no. Who when they had found a great multitude of thefe oxen, and would compatie them about, and force them into certaine inclosures or toiles, their enterprize prevailed but a little : they are so wild and fo fwift. Yet after they had killed many of them, bringing ftore of them with them, as though they had bin Deere, returning to their company and General, to the great admiration of all men, they declared the wildnesse and innumerable number of these Oxen.

A freeward employing of themselves to keepe those things which they had gotten, they builded a Towne, which they called Saint Lobns Towne, and entring into very great friendship with the people which they had lately discouered, after they had found certaine very rich Munesof mous request or the North diff gold and filter, being laden with store of other riches, they determined to line pleasantly and couered. Auto- quietly, and to end their trauels, with fingular profit of the Inhabitants in the Christian Religinie de E fio uno on and abitaring of their Idols, which in former time they worshipped most religiously.

At length within these two yeeres, leauing his fellowes there, Onate undertooke a new Dil- 40 uerie toward that most famous River of the North, which at length he discovered, being everywhere courteously entertained by the Inhabitants. At last he came to the Lake whereof long fince, have gone many reports. This is the Lake of Conibas, on the brinke whereof hee beheld a farre off a Citie feuen leagues long, and aboue two leagues broad. The houses of this Citie were separated the one from the other, and trimly and artificially builded, adorned with many trees and most goodly Gardens; and often divided with streames running betweene them. Yet none of the Inhabitants did appeare. Therefore being not furnished with a sufficient Armie, he kept his Souldiers about him in a throng place, yet he fent certaine Horsemen into the Towne to view it: who after they had ridden by a certaine space through certaine exceeding faire threets of the Citic, and could fee none of the Citizens, at length came to an exceeding great Market place, 50 which was filled with an exceeding great company of men, fortified with Rampiers and other fortifications in minner of a Fortrelle. Therefore perceiuing themselves to be vnequall to is infinite a number, they retired backe to their fellowes without attempting any thing, and so returned home to their owne houses vinder the conduct of Onate, defferring the assaulting of so great a Westerne coast Towne vntill a more connenient time : and now they keepe those places diligently, which they of America dif- haue alreadie found, and doing violence to none of the Inhabitants, they line in all happinelle courted necre and profperitie.

Moreover, other newes is brought from New Spaine, to wit, that by the commandement of the Vice-roy, the Coaits of the South Sea toward Cape Mendocino are diff ouered , and that extimewas more ceeding faire and large Hauens are found neere the Californias, which hithertono man knew, and 60 periedig dif that Cattles are there to be builded and fortified, fit to withfrand the force of the enemie : which coursed to be Haw painted with the precife longitudes and latitudes, annexed voto them.

There is no newes come of the Voyage to the Hand lately found out toward Nova Guines. It Brigs his Map, any newes come, I will carefully advertife you thereof,

It remaineth, that I speake somewhat of the instruction which I promised you and now send vnto you: to wit, that the lame was fent to the West Indies, and that according to the precepts rherein contained, all things are observed very exactly, and written to the Councell of the Indes: and that Cespeder our friend hauing diligently read ouer these Writings , hath written an excellent Volume; but he hath not obtained leaue to publish the same : for they will not have all thefe things particularly to come to light.

And there be the things which I now thought good to write vinto you, my Haklayt, meaning to have written more, if there had beene any fresher things to have written of. Neither have & yet fought out all thole that might informe me of these new Discourries : for I could not yet doe to it by reason of the shortnesse of the time. I hope hereafter I ihall haue leisure : and I know you will commend mee for my friendship towards you. Farewell from Valladolid the Nones of Tuly 160 c.

TO THE READER.

Fter fo many other Spanish Descourses and Descourses, I have added for a Spanish farewell this A of Butnolomew de las Calas a zealous Dominican Frier, after made Biloop of Chiapa, tonching the exceller committed by some Spaniards in the Continent and Ilands of America, from their first 20 Disconerse till the yeare 1542, in which this was written; the rather beere annexed, as our conclusion of Spanish Relations. The occasion (it seemeth) was his godly zeale of connersing soules to lefts Christ from the power of Elimike darkneffe, which was hindered by a worfe darkneffe in those which profesfed them files children of Light, and had the name and Sacraments of Christians. For it beeing then the custome, as von have seen in Soco, and others before, to get so much of the American Regions in Parti-tion, Commandian or a Comm ston from the King (then Charles the stift Emperour) to discover and pacifie, at their ftile bath it, that is, at the Popes Bull preferibeth, to bring into Spanish fibriection, and to convert to the Christian Faith, fo much as their Commission limited, paging the fifth part of whatformer they got to the Crowne; they abusing the Empereurs lensite, and concealing their out-rages, preceeded in connerting, as that word is derined from convertere, not from convertere, and in fach courfe 30 as this Author expresseth, if be and other Dimines which made complaint thereof to the Emperour bee to be credited. Neither is it incredible for the maine part of the Historie (we fee their owne lournals infinnate as much in milder and closer termes floor foener his zeale flings forth fiery tearmes, and paints out their Acts in the blackeft links, and most Hiperbolicall Phrases. The Isue was the alteration of gonerament in the Indies, by the gentlenesse of the Kings of Spaine, which freed them from slauerie, and tocke better order both for their boldy and finitual estate, as before we blue read in Herers. And if any thinke that I publish this in differace of that Nations I answere, Enery Nation (We fee it at bome) hath many enillmen, many Douill men. Agame, I a be whether the Authour (himfelfe a Spaniard and Dinine) intended not the honour and good of his Countrie thereby : which utfowas effected, enil manners producing good Lawes. And indeed it is at much bonour to this Bishop and the Bishop of Mexico, with 40 other Spaniards that flowed their zeale of reformation berein, at alfo to the Kings of Spaine which have effected u; as the doing it is fo ame to other Spaniards, and the generalitie here touched. The like abuses of Sauages in Bralill, you have frene by Portugals, complained of by lefuites, fup 1.7.c. 2. For my part I bounny versue in a Spaniard, in a Frier, in a lesuite : and have in all this voluminous storie not beene more carefull to show the enill acts of Spaniards, Portugals, Dutch in quarrels twist them and vs, then to make knowne what seener good in any of them, when occasion was offered. And so farre am I from delighting to thrust my finger in fores (which yet I doe on necessitie , enen with the English also) that I have left out many many innectines and bitter Epithetes of this Author, abridging him after my wont, and lopping of fuch superfluities, which rather were the fruit of his zeale, then the flowre of his History. I could atto have added the names of those which he here calleth Tyrants , the Captaines in those Expedi-50 times : but he spared them, as then living, and in Herera before you have them, which yet is angry with Ramulio for that wherein this florie doth excuse him, the concealment of their names being best commendation of fuch men. In these prunings and comission of some things (in their owne places, before related) abone a third part is left out, and yet more then enough left to teftific that Mam beart given over 1000netonsnelle or other vice, is a bottomlesse Hell, wicked and deceitfull about all ; who can fearch it? The colours which the Spaniards pretended for such executions, were the Man-entings, Sodomies, Idolatries and other vices of Americans, perhaps made worfe in the telling, and certainly with worfe vices in this fort punished by unsuffest Instice in respect of the Spaniards, whose uninfice is neverthelesse most inst in regard of God, which knoweth how to punish sinne by sinners. This Bookers extant in Spanish, Latine, Dutch, and in English also printed 1 ,82, when as peace was yet betwier England and 60 Spaine, which English Copie I bane followed.

The Prologue of the Bishop Frier BARTHOLOMBW delas CASAS or CASAVS, to the most high and mightie Prince, Our Lord Don PHILIP Prince of Spaine.

Oft high and mightie Lord, as God by his Providence hath for the guiding and commodicie of mankind in this World, in Realmes and Prounces, appointed Kines to be as Fathers, and as Homer nameth them Shepherds, and fo confequently the most noble and principall members of Common-weales: fo can we not justly doubt by reason of the good wils that Kings and Princes have to minister Justice, but that if there be any things a- ta mille, either any violences or injuries committed, he only cause that they are not redressed, is, for that Princes have no notice of the same. For certainly if they kne w of them, they would imploy all diligence and indeuour in the remedie thereof. Whereof it feemeth that mention is mide in the holy Scripture, in the Pronerbs of Solamon, where it is faid, Rex qui fedet in folio In. deci diffipat omne malum intustu fue. For it is sufficien ly to be presupposed even of the kindly and naturall vertue of a King, that the only notice that hee taketh of any mischiefe tormenting his Kingdome, is sufficient to procure him, if it bee possible, to roote out the lame as beeing a thing that he cannot tollerate even one only moment of time.

Confidering therefore with my felfe most mightie Lord the great mischiefes, damages and loffes (the like whereof it is not to be thought, were ever committed by Mankind) of foll regeard an great Kingdomes, or to speake more trucky, of this so new World of the Indies, which Gol and holy Church have committed and commended vnto the King of Castile, to the end they might gouerne, connert, and procure their prosperitie as well temporally as spiritually. I therefore (I fay) being a man of experience, and fiftie y eres of age or more, confidering thefe cuils, as having feene them committed, at my being in those Countries : Also that your Highnesse having information of some notable particularities, might bee mooued most earnestly to delire his Maieste, not to grant or permit to those Tyrants fuen conqueits as they have found out, and which they doe to name, (whereunto if they might bee fuff red they would returne) feeing that of themfelues, and being made against this Indian, peaceable, lowly and milde Nation which offendeth none, they be wicked, tyrannous, and by all Lawes either Naturall, Humane or Diune, veterly ! condemned, det efted and accuried : I thought it belt, least my felfe might become also guiltie, by concealing the loffe of an infinite number both of touls & bodies which are fo committed, to cause a few of their dealings which of late I had felected from among infinite others, and that might truly be reported to be printed, to the end your Highnesse might with more ease peruse and reset them ouer, Alfo whereas your Highnesse Master the Archbishop of Toleto, when hee was Bishop of Carebagena required them at my hands, and then prefented them to your Highnesse: penduenture by reason of such great Voyages as your Highnesse tooke voor you, both by Sea and by Land for matters of Estate wherein you have beene builed, it may bee you have not perufed, the ther have forgotten them, and in the meane time the rash and disordinate defire of those which thinke it nothing to doe wrong, to fined fuch abundance of mans bloud, to make defolate there is 40 large Countries of their natural Inhabitants and Owners, by flaying infinite persons, either to purloine (uch incredible treatures, do daily augment, these Tyrants proceeding vnder al counterfeit titles and colours in their inftant and importunate fute, namely, to have the faid Conquells permuted and granted vnto them : Which in truth cannot bee granted without transgreding the Law both of Nature and of God, and so consequently not without incurring mortall sinne, worthy most terrible and everlasting torments: I thought it expedient to doe your Highnesse seruice in this briefe Summarie of a molt large Historie, that might and ought to bee written of fuch flaughters and spoiles as they have made and perpetrated. Which I beseech your Highnesse to receive and reade over, with that Royall elemencie and courtefie, wherewith you vie to accept and perufe the workes of fuch your feruants, as no other defire, but faithfully to employ them- 50 felues to the common commoditie, and to procure the prosperitie of the Royall Estate.

This Summarie being perused, and the vildnesse of the iniquitie committed against these poore innocent people, in that they are fline and hewed in pieces without defert, only through the auarice ambition of those that pretend to the doing of such execrable deeds, being considered. It may please your Highnesse to desire, and effectually to perswade his Maiestie to denie any who foeuer shall demand or require so hurtfull and dete fable enterprises : yea, even to burie any fuch fuite or petition in the infernall pit of perpetuall filence, thereby flewing fuch terrour and diflike as hereafter no man may bee fobold, as once to name or speake thereof. And this (most mightie Lord) is very expedient and necessarie, to the end God may prosper, preserue and make the estate of the Royall Crowne of Castile for ever to flourish both spiritually and temporally. 60

CHAP. IIII.

A briefe Narration of the destruction of the Indies by the Spaniards : written by a Frier BART. de las CASAS a Spaniard, and Bishop of Chiapa in America.

He Indies were discoursed the yeere 1492, and inhabited by the Spanish the yeere next after enfuing : fo as it is about fortie nine yeeres fithence that the Spaniards fome of them went into those parts. And the first Land that they entred to inhanext after enfuing: 16 as it is about forthe mine years intime that they entired to inha-form of them went into those parts. And the first Land that they entired to inha-bite, was the great and most fertile lie of Hispaniola, which containeth fixe hun-bite, was the great and most fertile lie of Hispaniola, which containeth door, and dred leagues in compasse. There are other great and infinite lies round about, and dred leagues in compasse. in the Confines on all fides: which we have feene the most peopled, and the fullest of their owne native people; as any other Countrie in the World may be. The firme Land lying off from this lland two hundred and fiftie leagues, and somewhat ouer at the most containeth in length on the Sca Coast more then ten thousand leagues: which are alreadie discouered, and daily be discouered more and more, all full of people, as an Emmote hill of Emmots. Infomuch, as by that which fince, vnto the yeere the fortieth and one hath been, discourred : It feemeth that God hath beltowed in that fame Countrie, the gulfe or the greatest portion of Mankind. God created all these innumerable multitudes in every fort, very simple, without subtletie, or craft, without malice, very obedient, and very faithfull to their naturall Liege Lords, and to the Spaniards whom they serve, very humble, very patient, very desirous of peace making, and pracefull, without brawles and strugglings, without quarrels, without strife, without rancour or hatred, by no meanes defirous of reuengement.

They are also people very gentle, and very tender, and of an easie complexion, and which can fuftaine no trauell, and doe die very soone of any disease whatsoeuer, in such fort as the very children of Princes and Noblemen brought vp amongst vs, in all commodities, ease, and delicatenelle, are not more foft then those of that Countrie : yea, although they bee the children of Labourers. They are also very poore folke, which possesse little, neither yet doe so much as desire to have much worldly goods, and therefore neither are they proud, ambitious, nor couetous. Their diet is fuch (as it leemeth) that of the holy Fathers in the Defert hath not bin more scarce. Intercate a non-centering and the many control and many and the many control and when they be clothed, at the most, in is but a of a Mantle of Bombacie of an ell and a halfe, or two ells of linnen fquare. Their lodging is vpon a Mat, and those which have the best : sleepe as it were vpon a Net fastened at the foure corners, which they call in the Language of the Ile of Hift aniela, Hamafas. They have their vnderitanding very pure and quicke, being teachable and capeable of all good Learning , very ant to receiue our holy Catholike Faith, and to be instructed in good and vertuous manners, having leffe incumberances and diffurbances to the attaining thereunto, then all the folfe of the world besides, and are so enstamed, ardent, and importune to know and understand the matters of the faith after they have but begunne once to tafte them, as likewife the exercise of the Sacraments of the Church, and the diuine Seruice : that in truth, the religious men haue need of a fingular patience to support them. And to make an end , I have heard many Spaniards many times hold this as affured, and that which they could not denie, concerning the good nature which they faw in them. Vndoubtedly there folkes should bee the happiest in the World, if onely they knew God. Vpon these Lambes so meeke, so qualified and endued of their Maker and Creator, as hath bin faid, entred the Spanifb incontinent as they knew them, as, Wolues, as Lions, and as Tigres moft cruell of long time familhed : and have not done in those quarters these fortie yeeres past, nei-

So ther yet doe at this prefent, ought elle faue teare them in pieces, kill them, martyr them, afflict them, tormene them, and destroy them by strange forts of cruelties neuer neither seene, nor read, nor heard of the like (of the which fome fhall be fet downe hereafter) fo far forth that of about three Millions of foules that were in the Ile of Hilpansola, and that we have feene, there are not now two hundred natives of the Countrey. The lle of Cuba, the which is in length as farre as Three Millions now two hundred natives of the Country. I have all wafte. Saint Johns Ile, and that of Ia- Historica Ouimayor, both of them very great, very fertill, and very faire are defolate. Likewife the Iles of ede hath but Lucagos, neere to the He of Hiffaniela, and of the North fide vnto that of Cuba, in number being 1600000. aboue threefcorellands, together with those which they call the Iles of Geante, one with another, great and little, whereof the very worst is fertiler then the Kings Garden at Simil, and the 60 Countrie the healthsomest in the World : there were in these same Iles more then fine hundred thouland foules, and at this day there is not one only creature. For they have beene all of them 500000 loft in flaine, after that they had drawne them out from thence to labour in their Minerals in the lie of the Lunger. Hiffaniola, where there were no more left of the Natives of that Iland. A ship riding for the space of three yeeres betwixt all these llands, to the end, after the inning of this kind of Vintage, to gleane and cull the remainder of these folke (for there was a good Christian mound with pittle and compagion, to conuert and win voto Christ such as might be found) there were not found but eleuen persons which I faw: other Iles more then thirty, neere to the Ile of Saint John have likewise bin dispeopled and marred. All these Iles containe aboue two thousand leagues of land, and are all dispeopled and laid waste.

CHAP. 4. Bart. delas Calas bis Booke of Cruelties done in the Indies

As touching the maine firme land, we are certaine that our Spaniards, by their cruelties and cutfed doings have dispeopled and made desolate more then ten Realmes greater then all Spaine comprising also there with Aragon & Portugall, and twife as much or more land then there is from Senil to lerufalem, which are about a thousand leagues : which Realmes as yet vntochis prefere day remaine in a wildernesse and veter desolation, having bin before time as well peopled as the peffible. We are able to yeelde a good and certaine accompt, that there is within the loace of the Lid fortie yeares, by those said yrannies and diuellish doings of the Spaniards, doen Rowards *12.0115 miles infly and tyrannously more then twelve Milions of foules, men, women, and children. And I doe verily believe, and thinke not to militake therein, that there are dead more then fifteene Millions of foules.

The cause why the Spanish have destroyed such an infinite of soules, hath beene onely, that they have held it for their last scope and marke to get Gold, and to enrich themselves in a short time, and to mount at one leape to very high estates, in no wife agreeable to their persons : or to fav in a word, the cause hereof hath beene their avarice and ambition. And by this meanes have died fo many Millions without faith and without Sacraments.

Of the Ile of Hispaniola.

In the He Hisbaniola, which was the first (as we have faid) where the Spaniards arrived began the great flaughters and ipoyles of people: the Spaniards having begun to take their wives and children of the Indies, for to serue their turne and to vie them ill, and having begun to eate their victuals, gotten by their sweate and travell; not contenting themselves with that which the Indians gave them of their owne good will, every one after their abilitie, the which is algates very small, forasmuch as they are accustomed to have no more store then they have ordinarily neede of, and that fuch as they get with little trauell : And that which might fuffice for three housholds, reckoning ten persons for each houshold for a moneths space, one Spaniard would eat 10

Now after fundry other forces, violences, and torments, which they wrought against them: the Indians began to perceive that those were not men discended from heaven. Some of them therefore hid their victuals, others hid their wives and children, some others fled into the Montaines, to separate themselves a farre off from a Nation of 10 hard natured and ghastly conuctfation. The Spaniards buffered them with their fifts and baftonades : preffing allo to lay hands upon the Lords of the Townes. And these cases ended in so great an hazard and desperatentic that a Spanish Captaine durst aduenture to rauish forcibly the wife of the greatest King and Lord of this Ile. Since which time the Indians began to fearch meanes to cast the Spaniards out of & their lands, and fet themselves in armes; but what kinde of armes? very feeble and weake to withfland or relitt, and of leffe defence. The Spaniards with their Horles, their Speares and Lances, began to commit murders, and firange cruelties : they entred into Townes, Borowes, and Villages, sparing neither children nor old men, neither women with childe, neither them that lay In, but that they ripped their bellies, and cut them in peeces, as if they had beene opening of Lambes shut vp in their fold. They laid wagers with such as with one thrust of a fword would paunch or bowell a man in the middeft, or with one blow of a fword would most readily, and most deliverly cut off his head, or that would best pierce his entrals at one siroike. They tooke the little foules by the heeles, ramping them from the mothers dugges, and crushed their heads against the clifts. Others they cast into the Rivers laughing and mocking, and when so they tumbled into the water, they faid, now shift for thy selfe such a ones corpes. They put of thers, together with their mothers, and all that they met, to the edge of the fword. They made certaine Gibbets long and low, in fuch fort, that the feete of the hanged on, touched in a manner the ground, every one enough for thirteene, in honour and worship of our Sautour and his twelve Apoilles (as they yied to speake) and setting to fire, burned them all quicke that were fastened. Vnto all others, whom they vied to take and referue alme, cutting off their two hands as neere as might be, and so letting them hang, they said; Get you with these Letters, to carry tydings to those which are fled by the Mountaines. They murdered commonly the Lords and Nubility on this fashion: They made certaine grates of pearches laid on pickforkes, and made a little fire underneath, to the intent, that by little and little yelling and despairing in thefe tor- 62

Torures,

Ambition.

Cruelty.

ments, they might give vp the Ghoft. One time I law foure or fine of the principall Lords roasted and broyled upon these gredie rons. Also I thinke that there were two or three of these greditons, garnahed with the like furniture, and for that they cryed out pittioully, which thing troubled the Captaine that he could not then sleepe: he commanded to strangle them. The Sergeant, which was worse then the Hang man that burned them (I know his marne and friends in Simil) would not have them firangled, but himfelfe putting Ballets in their mouthes, to the end that they should not cry. But to Dogges. the fire, vntill they were lotely roafted after his defire. I have feene all the aforelaid things and others minite. And foraf nuch, as all the people which sould flee, hid themselues in the Mountaines, and mounted on the tops of them, fled from the men fo withoutall manhood, emptie of all pitic, behaving them as fauage beafts, the flaughterers and deadly enemies of mankinds of they tang ht their Hounds, fierce Dogs, to teare them in peeces at the first view, and in the space that one may fay a Credo, affailed and deungred an Indian se if it had beene a Swine. Thete Dogges to wrought great deftructions and flughters: And fortimuch as fometimes, although feldome, when the Indians put to death fome Spaniards upon good right and Law of dite Heftice they made a Lawe betweene them, that for one Spaniards they had to flay an hundred Indians.

There were in this He Hipaniola, fine great principal Realmes, and fine very mighty Kings, The Realmes vnto whom almost all other Lords obayed, which were without number. There were affe cer- which were in taine Lords of other feuerall Provinces, which did not acknowledge for fourraigne any of these Kings : One Realme was named Magua, which is as much to lay, as the Kingdome of the plaine. This Plaine is one of the most famous and most admirable things of all that is in the world. For it containeth fourescore leagues of ground, from the South Sea vnto the North sea, having in breadth fine leagues, and eight voto ten.

It hath on one fide and other exceeding high Mountaines. There entrethinto it about thirty thousand Rivers and Lakes, of the which twelve areas great as Ebro, and Duero, and Guadalque- Great Rivers mir. And all the Ruers which iffue out of a Mountaine which is towards the West, in number a- in Spaine. bout fire and twenty thousand, are very rich of Gold. In the which Mountaine or Mountaines, richin Gold. is contained the Prouince of Cibas, from whence the Mines of Cibas take their names, and from Cibas. whence commeth the same exquisite Gold and fine of foure and twenty Karrets, which is so renowned in these parts. The King & Lord of this Realme was called Gnavionex, which had vinder him his Vallals & Lieges fo great and mighty, that every one of them was able to fet forth threefcore thousand men of armes for the service of the King Guarianes. Of the which Lords I have knowl forme certain. This Guarionex was very obedient and vertuous, naturally defirous of peace. 30 and well affectioned to the denotion of the Kings of Caffele, and his people gaue by his commandement, every housekeeper a certaine kinde of Drumfull of Gold : but afterwards being not able to fill the Dum, cut it off by the middeft, and gave the halfe thereof full. For the Indians of that He had little or none indultrie or practife to gather or draw Gold out of the Mines. The Cacione presented vnto the King of Castile his service, in causing to be manured all the lands from the Ifabella, where the Spanish first lited, vnto the Towne of Saint Domingo, which are fiftie leavues large, on condition that he should exact of them no Gold : for hee faid (and hee faid the truth) that his Subjects had not the skill to draw it out. As for the manuring which he faid he would procure to be done : I know that he could have done it very eafily, and with great readineffe, and that it would have beene worth vnto the King every yeere more then three Millions of Caltil-Ans, betides that it would have caused, that at this houre there had bin above fiftie Cities greater

The paiment that they made to this good King and Lord, fo gracious and fo redoubted, was to dishonour him in the person of his wife, an euill (bristian, a Captaine raushing her. This King could have actended the time and opportunitie to avenge himfelfe in leaying fome armie; but he adusted to withdraw himfelfe rather, and onely to hide him out of the way, thus being banished from his Realme and state, into a Prouince of the Cignaios, where there was a great Lord his vaffall. After that the Spaniards were ware of his absence, and he could no longer hide himselfe: they make warre against the Lord which had given him entertainment, and make great flaughters through the Countrey as they goe, till in the end they found and tooke him, thrusting him loden with chaines and irons into a Ship, to carry him to Caffile : which Ship was loft upon the The greatest 50 Sea, and there were with him drowned many Spaniards, and a great quantity of Gold, among & peece of Gold the which also was the great wedge of Gold, like vnto a great loafe, weying three thousand which euer fix hundreth Castillans. Thus it pleased God to wreake vengeance of matters so lewel and turallies.

fo enormous. The other Realme was called of Marien , where is at this day the Port at one of the bounds Maries of the plaine, towards the North : and it is farre greater then the Realme of Portugall, and much fertiler, worthy to be inhabited, having great Mountaines, and Mines of Gold, and Copper very rich. The King was called Gnacanagari, which had under him many great Lords, of the

which I have known eard feene fundry. In this Kings Countrey arrived first the old Admirall, 6) when he discourred the Indies, whom at that time that he discourred the Ile, the faid Guacanagari received fo graciously, bountifully, and curteously with all the Spaniards who were with him, in giving him all entertainement and fuccour, for at the very instant was the Ship lost (which the Admirall was carried in) that hee could not have bin better made off in his owner Countrie of his owne Father. This did I understand of the Admirals owne mouth; This King dyed, in flying the flaughters and cruelties of the Spaniards through the Mountaines, being de-Groved and deprined of his efface. And all the other Lords his fubic ets dyed in the tyrannie and fernitude that shall be declared hereafter.

Pppppp

X eratua.

The third Realme and dominion was Magnand, a Countrie also admirable, very healthfull and very fertile, where the best Sugar of the He at this day is made.

The King of this Countrie was named Caenabo, who furpasted all the others in strength and flate, in granitie, and in the ceremonies of his feruice. The Spaniards tooke this King with great fubrilitie and malice, even as he was in his owne house, doubting of nothing. They conveied him afterwards into a Ship to carry him to Castile; but as there attended them fix other Ships in the port, all ready to hose up faile: behold how God by his just just gement, would declare, that it. Io with other things, was an exceeding great iniquitie and vniust, by fending the same night a tempest, which sinke and drenched that Nauie with the Spaniards that were within. There died al-To with them the faid Caonabo, charged with bolts and itons.

The Prince had three or foure brothers valiant men, and couragious like himfelfe, who confu dering the imprisonment of their Lord & brother so against all equitie, together with the waste and flaughters which the Spaniards made in other Realmes, and specially after that they had heard that the King their brother was dead, they put themselves in armes to encounter the Spaniards, and to auringe the wrong; who on the otherfide meeting with them on horfebacke; fo they rage in discomfitures and massacres, that the one moytie of this Realme hath beene thereby defolate and displopled.

The fourth Realme is the fame which is named of Xaragua. This Realme was as it werethe centre or middle point, or to speake of, as the Court of this lile, the diamond over all the other Realmes in language and polified speech, in policie and good manners, the best composed and ordered. For as much as there were many noble Lords and Gentlemen, the people also being the best made and most beautifull. The King had to name Bebeche, which had a fifter called Anacasna. These two, the brother and fifter, had done great services to the Kangs of Castile, and great good turnes to the Spaniards, delivering them from fundry dangers of death.

After the deccase of Bebechio, Anacaona remained fole Soueraigne of the Realme. At a time came into this Realme the Gouernour of this He with threefcore Horfes, and more then three hundreth footemen (the horsemen alone had beene enough to spoyle and ouerrunne not this to Ile alone, but all the firme land withall :) And to him came, being called, more then three hundred Lords under affurance, of whom the chiefest, he fraudulently caused to be conueyed into a house of thatch, and commanded to set to fire. Now on this wife were these Lords burned all aliue: all the reit of the Lords, with other folke infinite, were imitten to death with their Speares and Swords. But the Soueraigne Lady Anacaona, to doe her honour. they hanged. It happened that certaine Spaniards, either of pittie or of couetou neffe, haung taken and detained certaine yong striplings to make them their Pages; because they would not haue them flaine, and fetting them behinde them on their horse backes; another Spaniard came behinde, which stabbed them through with a speare. If so be any childe or boy tombled downe to the ground, another Spaniard came and cut off his legges. Some certaine of thele Indians which 40 could escape this crueltie so vnnaturall, passed ouer vnto a little Ile neere vnto the other, within an eight leagues. The Gouernour condemned all those which had pailed the water, to become flaues ; because they had fled from their butcherie.

The fifth Realme was called Higney, ouer the which raigned an ancient Queene named Hignanama, whom the Spaniards hanged vp. The people were infinite whom I faw burnt shue, and rent in peeces, and tormented diversly and trangely, and whom I faw made slaves, even so many as they tooke alive. And now for as much as there are so many particularities in these Mallacres and destruction of those peoples, that they cannot conveniently be comprised in writing (yea I doe verily beleeue, that of a number of things to be ipoken of, there cannot be disciphered of a thousand parts one :) I will onely in that which concerneth the warres about 90 mentioned, conclude, auerre, and iustifie in conscience, and as before God, that of all others, which I ouerpaffe to speake of, or shall be able to speake of, the Indians neuer gave no more occasion or cause, then might a convent of good religious persons well ordered, why they should be robbed and flaine, and why those that escaped the death, should be retained in a perpetuall captiuitie and bondage. I affirme yet moreouer, for ought that I can belseue or coniecture, that, during all the time that all this huge number of thele Islanders have beene murdered and made away veterly, they neuer committed against the Spaniards any one mortall offence, punishable by the law of man. And concerning offences, of the which the punishment is referred voto God, as are desire of reuengement, hatred and rancour, which these people might beareagainst enemies to capitall as were the Spaniards, that very tew perfons have beene attached with the 60 blemish, and lesse violent and forcible did I finde them, by the good experience I had of them, then children of tenne or twelue yeares of age. And I know for certaine and infallible, that the Indians had euermore most just cause of warre against the Spaniards; but the Spaniards never had any just cause of warre against the Indians, but they were all diabolicall and most varighteous more then can be spoken of any tyrans that is on the whole earth. And I affirme the selfe same for all their other acts and getts by them done throughout all the Indies.

The warres atchieued, and all the men done to death thereby, referued commonly the yong folke, women, and children (the which they departed among them, in giving to one thirtie, to another fortie, and to another an hundreth, or two hundreth, according as every one had the fauour of the head tyrant, whom they called the Gouernour) they gaue them to the Spaniardi voon that condition and colour, that they would teach them the Catholike faith, they themfelues who tooke voon them this charge of foules, commonly all idiots, or vtterly ignorant pertons, barbarous men, extreamely couetous and vicious.

Now the carke and care that their had of them, was to fend the men vnto the Mines, to make them dreine them out Gold, which is an intollerable trauell; and the women they beltowed into the Countrie to their Farmes, to manure and till the ground, which is a fore trauell, even for the very men, the ablest and mightiest. They gave to eate neither to one nor other, nought faue graffes and fuch like things of no substance; in such fort as the milke of the breasts of the wines new delinered of their childebirth dried vp; and thus dried vp in a small season, all the little creatures their yong children. Further, by reaton of the separation and not cohabiting of the men with their wives, the generation ceased betweene them. The men died with toyle and fa- Gens fint gente mine in the Minerals: these the women died of the same in the fields. By these meanes were con- ratione service fumed and brought to their ends so huge a number of the folke of this Island. By the like might

10 be abolished and exterpate all the inhabitants of the world. As touching loding, they laid vpou them fourescore or an hundreth pounds waight, which they should carrie an hundreth or two hundreth leagues: The Spanish also causing themselves to be carried in Lycers upon mens armes, or beds made by the Indians, in fashion of Nets. For they ferried their turnes with them to transport their carriages and baggage as beaits, whereby they had upon their backes and shoulders, whalles and gals as poore galled beafts. Also as touching whippings, bailtonading, buffeting, blowes with the fift, curling, and a thousand other kindes of torments, which they practifed upon them during the time that they transiled, of a truth, they cannot be recounted in a long featon, nor written in a great deale of paper, and they should be euen to affright men withall. It is to be noted, that the destruction of these Iles and lands, began after the decease of the most gracious Queene, dame Ifabel, which was the yeare one thousand fine hundred and foure. For before there were laid wast in this IIe, but certaine Prouinces by vniust warre, and that not wholly altogether, & these for the more part, or in a manner all were conceiled from the knowledge of the Queene (vnto who it may please God to give his holy glory) forasmuch as she had a great delire, and a zeale admirable, that those people might be saued and prosper, as we do know good examples, the which we have seene with our eyes, and felt with our hands. Further note here, that in what part of the Indies the Spanish have come, they have evermore exercised against the Indians, these innocent peoples, the cruelties aforesaid, and oppressions abominable, and inuented day by day new torments, huger and monitrouser, becomming every day more cruell, 40 wherefore God also gaue them ouer to fall headlong downe with a more extreame downfall into a reprobate ienie.

Of the two Iles Saint Iohn, and Iamayca.

THE Spanish passed over the sle of Saint lohn, and to the end of Iamaica which were like Gaz-dens for Bees) 1509, letting before them the same end which they had in the sle Hispaniola, and committing the robberies and crimes aforefaid, adioyning thereunto many great and notable cruelties, killing, burning, rofting and casting them to the Dogs: furthermore, afterwards oppresfing and vexing them in their Minerals and other trauell, vnto the rooting out of these poore in-50 nocents which were in these two Iles, by supputation fix hundred thousand soules ; yea I beleeve Million in S. that they were more then a Million, although there be not at this day in either He two hundred Ism and Is persons, and all perished without faith and without Sacraments.

of the Ile of Cuba.

IN the years 1511, they passed to the He of Cuba (where were great Provinces, and great multi-Ltudes of people) they both began and concluded with them after the failion afore spoken, yea worfe and farre more cruelly. There came to paffe in this Iland matters worth the noting: ACa-60 cique, named Hathney, which had conneied himfelte from the Ile Hift aniola to Cuba, with many of his people, to avoide the calamities & practifes to vnnaturall of the Spanish: when as certain Inof his people, to audice the talkings of place of the state of the sta and befpake them : Now you know that the Spaniards are comming on this fide, and yee know to Gold, allo by experience, how they have entreated such, and such, and the people of Hayti (meaning PPPPPP 2 thereby Hilbaniola) hither they come to doe the like here. Wot yee why they doe it? they and fwered, no, voleffe it be that they are by nature voide of humanitie. He replied: They do it noe onely for that: but because they have a God whom they honour, and doe demand very much and to the end to hauefrom vs as well as others to honour him withall, they doe their vttermost to fibdue vs. He had then by him a little Cheft full of Gold and Iewels, and faid, Behold here the God of the Spaniards, let vs doe to him, if it lo feeme you good, Areres (which are wind. leffes and dances) thus doing, we shall please him, and he will command the Spaniards that they field doe vs no harme: They answered all with a loud voyce: Well faid Sir, well faid. Thus then they danced before it, vntill they were weary, then quoth the Lord Hathney, Take wee heede how ever the world goe, if we keepe him, to the end that he be taken away from vs, in the end to they will kill vs; wherefore let vs caft him into the River: whereunto they all agreed, and fo they calt it into a great River there,

This Lord and Cacique went alwayes flying the Spanish, incontinent as they were arrived at the Jie of Cuba, as he which knew them but too well, and defended himselfe when he met them. In the end he was taken, and onely for because that hee fled from a Nati a so which and cruell, and that he defended himselfe from fuch as would kill him, and oppresse him even voto the death, with all his folke, he was burned aliue. Now as he was fastined to the stake, a religious man of Saint Francis order, a deuou: person, spake to him somewhat of God and of our Faith. which things this faid Lord had neuer heard of, yet might be fufficient for the time which the butchers gaue him, that if he would beleeve those things which were spoken to him, hee should 10 goe to heaven, where is glory and reit everlaiting, that if he did not believe, hee should goe to hell, there to be tormented perpetually. The Lord after having a little pauled to thinke of the matter, demanded of the Religious man, whether that the Spaniards went to heaven; who aniwered, yea; fuch of them that were good. The Cacique aniwered againe immediately without any further deliberation, that he would not got to heaven, but that he would goe to hell, to the end, not to come in the place where such people should be, and to the end not to see a Nationso cruell. Loe here the praises and honour which God and our faith hane received of the Spaniardi, > which have gone to the Indies. One time the Indians came to meete vs, and to receive vs with victuals, and delicate cheere. and with all entertainment ten leagues of a great Citie, and being come at the place, they prefen. # ted vs with a great quantity of fish, and of bread, and other meate, together with all that they could doe for vs to the vttermoft. See incontinent the Divell, which put himselfe into the Speniards, to put them all to the edge of the tword in my prefence, without any cause whatsour. more then three thousand soules, which were set before vs, men, women, and children. Isaw there fo great cruelties, that neuer any man liuing either have or shall fee the like.

His choife to and why.

3000.flaine.

Another time, but a few dayes after the premisses. I sent messengers vnto all the Lords of the Province of Hanana, affuring them, that they should not neede to feare (for they had heard of my credit) and that without withdrawing themselves, they should come to receive vs, and that there should be done vnto them no displeature : for all the Countrie was afraid, by reason of the mischiefesand murderings passed, and this did I by the aduice of the Captaine himselfe. After 40 that we were come into the Prouince, one and twenty Lords and Caciques came to receive vs, whom the Captaine apprehended incontinently, breaking the lafe conduct which I had made them, and intending the day next following to burne them aline, faying that it was expedient so to doe, for that otherwise those Lords one day, would doe vs a shrewd turne. I found my felfe in a great deale of trouble to faue them from the fire; howbeit in the end they escaped. After that the Indians of this lland were thus brought into bondage and calamitie, like vnto those of the lie of Hispaniola, and that they faw that they died and perished all without reme-frying-pan in-

There was in this He an officer of the Kings, to whom they gaue for his share three hundred Indians, of whom at the end of three moneths there died by him in the travell of the Mines, two hundred and fixty: in such for, that there remained now but thirty, which was the tenth part. Afterwards they gave him as many more, and more, and those also hee made hauccke of in like manner, and still as many as they gaue him, so many he slew, vntill he died himselfe, and that the dy: fome of them began to flye into the Mountaines, others quite desperate hanged themselves, and there hung together husbands with their wives, hanging with them their little children. And through the crucitie of one only Spaniard, which was a great tyrant, and one whom I know, 19

there hung themselues more then two hundred Indians: and in this fashion died an infinite

6000, Infants

Divell carried him away. In three or foure moneths (my felfe being prefent) there died more then fixe thouland children, by reason that they had plucked away from them their fathers and mothers, which they 60 fent into the Mines. I beheld also other things frightfull. Shortly after they resolved to climbe after those which were in the Mountaines, where they wrought also ghastly slaughters, and thus laid waste all this lie; which we beheld not long after, and it is great pitie to fee it so dispeopled and defolate as it is.

of Terra Firma, or the firme land.

TN the yeere 1514, there landed in the Maine a mischieuous Gouernour. Hee not onely wasted or diffeeopled the Sea Coalt, but facked also great Realmes and Countries, making hauceks by flaving and murdering of peoples, infinite to be numbred, and fending them to Hell. He ouerranne and harried molt of the places in the Land, from Darien vpward, vnto the Realme and Provinces of Nicaragna within being, which are more then fine hundred leagues of the bett, and most fertile ground in the whole World, where there were a good number of great Lords, with to a number of Townes, Boronghes, and Villages, and thore of gold in more abundance then was to be found on the earth votill that prefent.

This Governour with his men, found out new forts of cruelties and torments, to cause them to discouer and give him gold. There was a Captaine of his, which slue in one walke and course which was made by his commandement, to rob and roote out more then fortie thousand soules, putting them to the edge of the Sword, burning them, and giving them to the Dogges, and tormenting them diversly : which also a Religious man of the Order of Saint Francis, who went with him, beheld with his eies, and had to name Frier Francis of Saint Romane.

The most pernicious blindnesse, which hath alwaies possessed those who have governed the Indians, in stead of the care which they should have for the conversion and salvation came to that paffe, as to command orders to ber fet do wne vnto the Indians to receive the faith, and render themielues vnto the obedience of the King of Caffile, or otherwise to bid them battle with fire and Sword, and to flay them or make them flaues : he commanded (or peraduenture the theeues, whom he dispatched to doe the execution, did it of their heads) when they were purposed to goe a rouing and robbing of any place, where they knew that there was any gold, the Indians being in their Townes and dwelling houses, without miltrusting any thing the wicked Spaniards would goeafter the guize of Theeues, vnto within halfe a league neere fome Towne, Borough, or Village, and there by themselues alone, and by night make a reading, publication, or Proclamation of the faid Ordinances, faying thus, Oyes, Caciques and Indians of this firme Land of fuch God and Kinz aplace: Be it knowne vato you, that there is one God, one Pope, one King of Caltile, which is Lord of abused.

30 theje Lands: make your appearance, all delay fet aside, berote dee him bomage, &c. Which if you hall not accomplish: Be it knowne unto you, that we will make warre upon you, and we will kill you, and make you flaue: Hereupon at the fourth watch in the morning, the poore Innocents, fleeping yet with their wives and children : these Tyrants set upon the place, calting fire on the houses which commonly were thatched, and so burne vp all quicke men, women and children, more suddenly then that they could of a great many be perceived. They maffacred at the inftant those that seemed them good, and those whom they tooke priloners, they caused them cruelly to die voon the Racke, to make them to tell in what places there were any more Gold then they found with them : and others which remained alive, they made them flaves, marking them with a hot Iron. fo after the fire being out and quenched, they goe feeke the gold in their houses. This is then the 40 deportment in these affaires of this person, with all the bond of his vngodly Christians, which he trained from the fourteenth yeere, vnto the one and twentie, or two and twentieth yeere, fending in these Exploits fixe or moe of his Seruants or Souldiers, by whom he received as many shares, ouer and besides his Captaines Generals part, which hee leuied of all the Gold, of all the Pearles, and of all the Iewels which shey tooke of those whom they made their slaues. The felfe-fame did the Kings Officers, euerie one fending forth as many feruants as he could.

The Bishop also, which was the chiefe in the Realme, he fent his feruants to have his share in the bootie: They spoiled more gold within the time, and in this Realme, as farre forth as I am able to reckon, then would amount to a Million of Ducates, yea, I beleeve, that I make my teckoning with the least. Yet will it be found, that of all this great theeuing, they never fent to 50 the King ought faue three thousand Castillans, having thereabout killed and destroyed aboue eight hundred thousand foules. The other Tyrant Gouernours which succeeded after, vnto the yeere thirtie and three, ilue or at least wife confented, for all those which remained to slay them in that tyrannicall fluerie.

Amongst an infinite fort of mischiefes, which this Gouernour did, nor consented vnto the doing during the time of his government, this was one: To wit, that a Cache or Lord giving him, either of his good will, or which is rather to be thought for feare, the weight of nine thousand Ducates : the Spaniards not content withall, tooke the faid Lord, and tied him to a stake, fetting him on the earth, his feet stretched up, against the which they let fire to cause him to give them some more gold. The Lord fent to his house, whence there were brought, yet moreover three 60 thousand Cashillans. They goe afresh to give him new torments. And when the Lord gave them no more, either because he had it not, or because he would give them no more, they bent his feet against the fire, vittill that the verie marrow sprang out, and trilled downe the soles of his feete: to as hee therewith died. They have oftentimes exercised these kinde of torments towards the Lords, to make them gine them gold, wherewith they have also flaine them.

Prpppp 2

Another

Another time, a certaine companie of Spaniards, vling their thefts and robberies, came to2 Mountaine, where were affembled and hid a number of people, having shunned those men to pernicious and horrible: whom incontinent entring vpon, they tooke about three or fourescore. as well women as maids, having killed as many as they could kill. The morrow after, there affembled a great companie of Indians, to pursue the Spaniards, watring against them for the great defire they had to recouer their wives and daughters.

The Spaniards perceiving the Indians to approach so neere upon them, would not so forme their prey, but flabd their Swords thorow the bellies of the wives and wenches, leaning but one alone aline of all the fourescore. The Indians felt their hearts to burit for forrow and griefe which they suffered, yelling out in cries and speaking such words: O wicked men, O yee the cruell to Spaniards: doe yee kill Las Iras: They terme Iras in that Countrie the women : as if they would iav. to kill women, those be acts of abominable men, and cruell as beafts.

There was about ten or fifteene leagues from Joanama, a great Lord named Paris, which was very rich of gold : The Spaniards went thither, whom this Lord received as if they had beene his owne brethren, and made a Present unto the Captaine of fiftie thousand Castillans of hisowne voluntarie accord. It feemed vnto the Captaine and the other Spaniards, that he which gaue fuch a great fumme of his owne will, should have a great treasure, which should be the end and easing of their travels. They pretend in words to depart; but they returne at the fourth watch of the morning, fetting youn the Towne which miltrusted nothing fet it on fire, whereby was burnt and flaine a great number of people, and by this meanes they brought away in the spoile fiftie, or an threefcore thousand Castillans moe. The Cacite or Lord escaped without being slaine or taken, and leuied incontinent as many of his as he could. And at the end of three or foure daies our raketh the Spaniards which had taken from him an hundred and thirtie, or fortie thousand Castillans, and fet upon them valian ly, killing fiftie Spaniards, and recouring all the gold which they had taken from him. The others faued themselves by running away, being well charged with blowes and wounded. Not long after, divers of the Spanfo returne against the faid Cacite, and discomfite him with an infinite number of his people. Those which were not slaine, they put them to the ordinarie bondage : in fuch fort, as that there is not at this day, neither tracke nor token, that there hath beene living there either people, or fo much as one man alone borne of woman within thirtie leagues of the Land, which was before notably peopled and gouerned by 30 divers Lords. There is no reckoning able to be made of the murders which this Caitiffe with his companie committed in these Realmes which he so dispeopled.

of the Province of Nicaragua.

The yeare 1922, or twentie three, this Tyrant went farther into the Land: to bring vader his yoke the most fertile Prouince of Nicaragna, and so in thither he entred in an euill houre. There is no man which is able worthily and sufficiently to speake of the fertilite, healthsomenesse, prosperitie, and frequencie, of those Nations that there were.

He fent fiftie Horiemen, and caused to flay all the people of this Province, (which is greater 4 then the Countie of Roffillon) with the Sword : in such fort, as that hee left alive, nor man, nor woman, nor old, nor young, for the least cause in the World : as if they came not incontinentat his command : or if they did not bring him to many load of Maiz, which fignifieth in that Countrie bread Corne : or if they did not bring him fo many Indians to ferue him and others of his company: for the Countrie lay levell, as was faid, and no creature could escape his horses and deuillish rage. He fent Spaniarde to make out rodes, that is to say, to go a theeuing into other Prouinces : and gaue leave to those Rouers, to carrie with them as many Indians of this peaceable people as they lifted, and that they should serue them, whom they put to the chaine, to theend they should not give over the burdens of three or fourescore pounds weight, wherewith they loaded them, whereof it came to passe oftentimes that of foure thouland Indians, there returned 10 not home to their houses fix alive : but even fell downe starke dead in the high way : and when any were so wearie that they could march no forther for the weight of their burdens, or that fome of them fell ficke, or fainted for hunger or thirst, because it should not need to stand so long as to vnlocke the chaine, and to make the speedier dispatch, hee cut off the head from the shoulders, and to the head tumbled downe one way, and the bodie another. Now confider with your felues, what the other poore foules might thinke the whiles.

He was the caute that the Indians fowed not their grounds one whole yeeres continuance. So as now, when they wanted bread, the Spaniards tooke away from the Indians their Maiz, which they had in store for proussion, to nourish them and their children : whereby there died of famine more then twentie or thirtie thousand soules. And it came to passe, that a woman falne mad with 60 the famine flue her Sonne to eate him.

They have discomfited and oppressed in this Province a great number of people, and hastened their death in caufing them to beare boords and timber vnto the Hauen thirty leagues diffeace, so make thips with : and fent them to go leeke Honie and Wax amiddeft the Mountaines, where the Tigres denoured them : Yea they have laden women with childe, and women new delinered or lying in, with burdens enough for beatts.

The greatest plague which hath most dispeopled this Province, bath beene the licence which the Gourmour gaue to the Spaniards, to demand or exact of the Cacichs and Lords of the countrie flaues. They did give them every foure or five moneths, or as oftentimes as every one could obtaine licence of the Gouernour fitte flues : with threatnings, that if they gaue them not, Tribute flues, they would burne them aliue, or cause them to be eaten with Dogges. Now ordinarily the Indiant dee not keepe flaues, and it is much if one Cacike doc keepe two, three or foure: Wherefore to ferue this turne, they went to their fubicets, and tooke first all the Orphelins, and afterto wards they exacted of him that had two children one, and of him that had three, two: and in this manner was the Cacicke faine to furnish still to the number that the Tyrant imposed, with the great weeping and crying of the people: for they are people that doe loue (as it feemeth) tenderly their children. And for because that this was done continually, they dispeopled from the yeere 23. wnto the yeere 23. all this Realme. For there went for fixe or feuen yeeres space. fine or fixe ships at a time, carryi g forth great numbers of those Indians, for to fell them for flaues at loanama and Peru: where they all died not long after. For it is a thing proued and experimented a thousand times, that when the Indians are transported from their naturall Countrey, they soone end their liues : besides that these give them not their sustenance, neither yet diminish they of their toile, as neither doe they buy them, for ought elsebut to toile. They have 20 by this manner of doing drawneout of this Province of the Indies, whom they have made flaves. being as free borne as I am, more then five hundred thousand soules, And by the Deuillish warres 500000. Indicate being as free borne as I am, more then hue hundred thousand sources. And by the Delinium water transported. which the Spanish have made on them, and the hideous thraidome that they have laid vpon 50000. Same them, they have broughe to their deaths, other fiftie or threefcore thousand persons, and do yet daily make hauocke of them at this present. All these slaughters have beene accomplished within the space of fourteene yeeres. There may be left at this day in all this Provinces of Nicaragua. the number of about foure or fine thousand persons, which they also cause to die as yet every day.

of New Spaine.

peopled in the World, as I have alreadie faid.

IN the yeere 1517, was New Spaine discourred : at the Discourre whereof were committed great diforders and flaughters of the Indians, by those which had the doing of that Exploite. The veere 1418, there went Spanish Christians (as they terme themselves) to rob and flay, not In the some withstanding that they said they went to people the Countrie. Sithence that yeere, 1518. vn. discourse of to this present yeere 1542, the vniust dealings, the violencie, and the Tyrannies which the Spa. Horea, you miards have wrought against the Indians, are mounted to the highest degree of extremitie : those may find the felfe-same Spaniards, having thorowly lost the feare of God, and of the King, and forgotten these first slanthemselues. For the discomfitures, cruelties, slaughters, spoiles, the destructions of Cities, pillages, ters, or as this an violences, and Tyrannies which they have made in formany Realmes, and to great have been fuch Author reckoand so horrible, that all the things which we have spoken of, are nothing in comparison of those neth, supplanand so horrible, that all the things which we have spoken or, are nothing in companion or those errs, which did which have beene done and executed from the yeere 1518. vnto the yeere 1542, and as yet at rather depopulation this time, this moneth current of September, are in doing and committing the most grieuousest, last on per-and the most abominablest of all: in such fort that the rule which wee set downe before is veri-plewhole Profied : That is, That from the beginning they have alwaies proceeded from enill to worfe, and have gone ba.

yand them felues in the most greatest deforders and denills boings.

through bondages and oppretious ordinarily and personall, having beene the Countrey the most

In such wise, as that since the first entring into New Spaine, which was on the eight day of but was loth to Aprill, in the eighteenth yeere vnto the thirtieth yeere, which make twelue yeeres complete: doe more then the flaughters and the destructions have never ceased, which the bloudie and cruell hands of the the Author Spaniards have continually executed in foure hundred and fiftie leagues of Land or thereabout in haddonethen, spannar as naue continuary executed in four engineer and intereseagues of Land of therezood in whiles many of compaffe, round about Maxics, and the Neighbour Regions round about, fuch as the which them lived: might containe foure or fine great Realmes, as great and a great deale farre fertiler then is Spaine. yea his most All this Countrie was more peopled with Inhabitants, then Toledo, and Simil, and Vallodelid, and paffi nace and Sanagoce, with Barcelona. For that there hath not beene commonly in those Cities, nor neuer were fuch a world of people, when they have beene peopled with the most, as there was then in time I have tathe faid Country, which containeth in the whole compalle more then 1800. leagues:during the time of the aboue mentioned twelue yeeres, the Spaniards have flaine and done to death in the Storie, therein faid 450. leagues of Land what men, what women, what young and little children, more then also mollifyfoure Millions of foules, with the dint of the Sword and Speare, and by fire, during (I fav) the ing many 60 Conquests (as they call them.) Neither yet doe I here comprize those, whom they have slaine, Foure Milliand doe flay as yet euery day, in the aforefaid flauerie and oppression ordinarie. Among it other Murders and Maffacres they committed this one which I am now to speake Of New Speins of, in a great Citie more then of a thirtie thousand housholds, which is called Cholula: that is, in particular, that comming before them the Lords of the Countrie and places neere adioyning, and first and gings in the Citie, in the houses and place of the Lord, or other principall Lords of the Citie: the Spaniards admited with themselves to make a massacre, or a chastile (as they speake) to the end, to raile and plant a dread of their cruelties in every corner of all that Countrie.

Now this bath beene alwaies their cultomary manner of doing, in every the Regions which they have entred into, to execute incontinent upon their first arrivall, some notable cruell butcherie, to the end, that those poore and innocent Lambes should tremble for feare which they should have of them: in this wife they fent first to summon all the Lords and Noblemen of the Citie, and of all the places subject vnto the same Citie: who so some as they came to speake with the Captaine of the Spaniards, were incontinent apprehended before that any body might perceive the matter, to be able thereupon to beare tidings thereof vnto others. Then were demanded of them five or fixe thousand Indians, to carry the lodings and carriages of the Spaniards: which Indians came forthwith, and were beltowed into the bale Courts of the Houles. It was a pitifull case to see these poore folke, what time they made them ready to beare the carriages of the Spaniard. They come all naked, only their fecret parts covered, having every one vpon their shoulder a Net with a small deale of victuall : they bow themselves every one, and hold their backes cowreddowne like a fort of the Lambes, prefenting themselves to the Swords: and thus being all astembled in the base Court, together with others, one part of the Spanish all armed befrowe themselves at the gates to hemme them in, whiles the rest put these poore Sheepe to the edge of the Sword and the Speares, in such fort, that there could not escape away one onely person, but that he was cruelly put to death: fauing that after a two or three dayes you might have feene come forth fundry all couered with bloud which had hid and faued themselues under the dead bodies of their fellowes, and now prefenting themselves before the Spaniards, asking them mercy and the fauing of their liues : they found in them no pitie nor compassion any whit at all, but were all he wed in pieces.

All the Lords which were about and underneath, were all bound, the Captaine commanding them to be brent quicke being bound vnto flakes pitched into the ground. Howbeit one Lord, which might be peraduenture the principall and King of the Countrie faued himfelfe, and cast himselfe with thirtie or fortie other men into a Temple thereby, which was as good vnto them 20 as a Fore, which they call in their Language, Qewe: and there he defended himselfe a good part of the day. But the Spaniards, whose hands nothing can escape specially armed for the warre, cast fire on the Temple, and burned all those which were within.

From Cholula they went to Mexico. The King Motenfuma fent to meet them a thousand of presents, and Lords, and people, making ioy and mirth by the way.

After great and abhominable tyrannies committed in the Citie of Mexico, and in other Cities, and the Countrey, ten, fifteene, and twenty leagues compafe of Mexico: this tyrannie and pestilence advanced it selfe forward, to waste also, infect, and lay desolate the Pronince of Panace. It was a thing to be wondred at of the world, of people that there were, and the spoyles and flaughters there done. Afterward they wasted also after the selfe manner, all the Province of 40 Tritepeke, and the Province of ipelingo, and the Province of Column: each Province contayning more ground then the Realme of Leon and Castile.

This Captaine tyrant, with this gorgeous and pretended title, dispatched two other Captaines, as very tyrants and farre more cruell, and leffe pitifull then himfelfe, into great Realmes most flourishing, and most sertile, and full of people, to wit, the Realme of Guatimala, which lieth to the Seaward on the South fide, and the fame of Naco, and Honduras, otherwise called Guaymura, which coafteth on the Sea on the North fide, confronting and confining the one with the other, three hundred leagues distance from Mexico. He sent the one by Land, and the other by Sea: both the one and the other carried with them a many of troopes to fetue on horsebacke

He which went by Sea, committed exceeding pillings, cruelties, and diforders amongst the people on the Sea-coail.

The Provinces and Realmes of Naco and Honduras, which refembled a Paradife of pleasures: and were more peopled, frequented, and inhabited, then any Countrey in the world: now of late, wee comming along thereby, have teene them fo dispeopled and destroyed, that who lo should fee them, his heart would cleaue for forrow, ware hee neuer fo flinty. They have flaine within these eleuen yeeres, more then two millions of soules , having not left in more then an hundred leagues of the Countrey square, but two thousand persons, whom they slav as yet daily in the faid ordinary bondage.

The great tyrant and Captaine, which went to Guatimala (45 hath beene faid, exceeded all) 60 from the Prounces neere to Mexico, (according as himfelfe wrote in a Letter to the principali Tyrane which had fent him) diffant from the Realme of Guatimals foure hundred leagues (keeping the way by him traced) as he went, flue, robbed, burned and deffroyed all the Country; wherefocuer he became, under the shadow of title about mentioned, faying : that they should CHAP. 4. Bart, de las Casas bis Booke of Cruelises done in the Indies.

Submit themselues voto them, in the name of the King of Spaine, who was voto them vonomic themselves which they had neuer heard speake: and which those Nations there effected bellion a sainft more visual and more cruell then they his men were. And the Tyrants giving them no relipite that Prince to of time to deliberate, they fling vpon the poore folke, in a manner as some as the mellage was which hey nedone, putting all to fire and bloud.

of the Province and Realme of Guatimala.

NO fooner arrived hee into this faid Realme: but that hee beganne with great flaughter of to Niche Inhabitants. This notwithstanding the chiefe Lord came to receive him, being carried in a Lighter, with Trumpets and Tabours, reloycings, and difports, accompanied with a great number of the Lords of the Citie of Uhlaran, head Citie of the whole Realme, doing them also fertice with all they had, but specially in giving them food abundantly, and whatsoever they demanded besides. The Spanish lodged this night without the Citie, foratmuch as the same seemed vnto them strong, and there might be thereby danger,

This Captaine called to him the next morrow the chiefe Lord, with other great Lords . who being come as meske theepe, he apprehended them all, and commanded them to give him certaine summes of gold. They answering that they had none, forasmuch as the Countrie yeelded none: he commandeth incontinent to burne them aliue, without having committed any crime

20 whatsoeuer, and without any other forme of Process or sentence.

As the Lords of all these Prounces perceived, that they had burned their source Lords. onely because they gave them no Gold, they fied all to the Mountaines, commanding their Subices to goe to the Spaniards, and to ferue them as their Lords, but that they should not discount them, nor give them intelligence where they were. With this, loe all the people of the Countrey, presenting them, and protesting to be theirs, and to serue them as their Lords: The Captains made answere that he would not accept of them, but that he would kill them if they told not where were their Lords. The Indians answered, they could not tell ought: but as touching themselves they were content, that they should employ them to their service, with their wives and children : and that they should vie their houles, and that there they might kill, or doe what-30 foeuer them pleated.

It is a wonderfull thing, that the Spaniards went to their Villages and Burrowes, and finding there these filly people at their worke, with their wines and children, neither misdoobting any thing, they pierced them with their Boars-speares, and hackled them to pieces. They came to one Burrow great and mighty, which held it felfe more aff red then any other, because of their innocency: whom the Spanib laid defolate in a manner all whole, in the space of two houres. putting to the edge of the fword, children, with women, and aged persons, and all these which could not escape by fleeing.

The Indians aduited betweene them to digge certaine ditches in the middelt of the wayes, to make their Horses tumble into, and piercing their bellies with Pikes sharp led and brent at one 40 end, there bestowed of purpose, and coursed ouer so orderly with greene turfe, that it seemed there was no fuch matter. There fell in Horles once or twice: for the Spaniards afterwards could beware of them. But now to avenge them, they made a Law, that as many Indians as might bee taken alive, should be flung into the fame pits. Hereupon they cast in women with child, and women new deliuered of child-birth, and old folke as many as they could come by, vntill that the ditches were filled vp. It was a lamentable thing to behold the women with their children stabbed with thele pickes. All besides, they sue with thrust of Speares, and edge of Sword. They cast of them alfo to fielh fraunching Dogs, which tare them and devoured them. They brent a Lord at a great fire of quicke flames: faying, they would herein doe him honour. And they perfifted in 50 thefe butcheries fo vnnaturall, about feuen yeeres, from the yeere 24. vntill the yeere 31.

The Indians which escaped, with all other of the Countrie seeing all the mischiefes of the Spanifb, began to affemble, and put themselues in Armes: whereupon the Spaniards worke great discomfitures and saughters, returning to Guatimala, where they builded a Citie, the which Guatimala de-God of a just indgement hath reversed with three overwholmings falling all three together; the ftroyed with one was with water, the other with earth, and the third with stones, of the bignesse of ten or twentie Oxen. By fuch like meanes all the Lords, and the men that were able to beare Armes being flaine: those which remayned, were reduced into the Diabolicall seruntude aforesaid, being made tributary flaues or villaines regardant, but giving for their tribute fonnes and daugha ters, for they will have none other kinde of bond-men. And so the Spaniards sending whole 60 thips laden with them to Pers, to fell them, with their other flaughters, have deftroyed and laid defart an whole Realme, of an hundred leagues square, or aboue, a Countrie the mott bleffetull, and peopled the most that might be in the world. For the Tyrant himselfe wrote hereof, that it was more peopled then Mexico; and herein he faid the truth. He hath done to death, with Foureor fine his conforts and confreres, more then foure or five millions of foules in fifteene or fixteene yeeres millions fluxe

The Mexicani.

cruclries are

before related. and therefore here omitted.

Shambles of

Soo. Indians

giuen for a

mans fleib.

This Tyrant had a custome, when as he went to make warre vpon any Citie or Province: to carrie thither of the Indians already under-yoaked, as many as hee could, to make warre your the other Indians: and as he gaue vnto a ten or twentie thousand men which hee led along no fustenance, he allowed them to eate the Indians which they tooke : And so by this meanes hee had in his Campe an ordinary fhambles of mans flesh, where in his presence they killed and rofled children. They killed men onely to have off from them their hands and their feete, which parts they held to be the daintieft morrels.

He was the death of an infinite fort of the Indians in making of thips, the which hee transported after this rate great itore of Artilerie, which hee loded upon the shoulders of these poore folke going naked: whereby I have feeue very many fall downe in the high way, by reason of their great burdens. He vidid whole housholds, by taking from the men their wives and daughters : the which afterwards he dispersed in gifts to his Mariners and Souldiers to please them withall, who led them along with them in their Nauies. Hee stuffed all the ships with Indians, where they died for thirst and hunger. He made two Nauies, either of a great number of ships. with the which he consumed as with fire and lightning flashing from Heauen all those peoples.

Of new Spaine, and Panuco, and Xalisco.

Fter the exceeding cruelties and flaughters aforefaid, and the others which I have omitted. 20 Awhich have beene executed in the Provinces of New Spaine and Pangeo: there came to Panuco another Tyrant, cruell and vnbrideled, in the yeere 1 25. Who in committing very many cruelties, and in branding many for flaues, after the manner aforefaid, which were all free, and in fending very many thips laden to Cuba, and Hiffaniola, where they might belt make merchandife of them, he atchieued the defolation of this Pronince.

And it hath come to passe in his time, that there hath beene given for one Mare, eight hundred Indians coules partakers of reason. And this man from this roome was promoted to be Prefident of Mexico, and of all the Prouince of New Spaine, and there were promoted with him other Tyrants, to the offices of Auditorships: in the which dignities they set forward also this to Countrie into fo extreme a desolation, that if God had not kept them by meanes of the refi-Rai ce of the religious men of Saint Francis Order, and if that there had not beene prouided with all speed a Court of Audience, and the Kings Counsell in those parts friend to all vertue, they had layd waite all New Spaine, as they have done the He of Nifaniola, There was a man, amongst those of the companie of this Captaine, who to the end to enclose a Garden of his with a wall: kepe in his workes eight thousand Indians, without paying them ought, nor giuing them to eate, in manner that they died, falling downe suddenly, and hee never tooke the more thought for the matter.

After that the chiefe Captaine which I spake of, had finished the laying waste of Panuco, and that hee vinderstood the newes of the comming of the Kings Court of Audience : hee aduled 45 with himselfe to proceed farther into the innermost parts of the Realme, to search where hee might tyrannize at his eafe, and drew by force out of the Pronince of Mexico, fifteene or twentie thousand men, to the end, that they should carrie the loades and carriages of the Spaniards, which went with him, of whom there never returned against wo hundred, the others being dead on the high-waves.

He came at the Province of Mechuacham, which is distant from Mexico fortie leagues, 2 Region as bliffefull and full of Inhabitants, as is that of Mexico. The King and Lord of the Countrey went to receive him with an infinite companie of people, which did voto them a thousand feruices and currefies. He apprehended him by and by, for that he had the bruit to be very rich of Gold and filuer : and to the end, that he should give him great treasures . he beganne to give 50 him the terments, and put him in a paire of flockes by the feet, his body firetched out, and his hands bound to a stake, he maketh a stashing fire against his feet, and there a boy with a basting fprinkle loked in Oyle in his hand, stood and basted them a little and a little, to the end to well roft the skinne. There was in one fide of him a cruell man, the which with a Crof bow bent, aymed right at his heart, on the other fide another which held a Dog fnarling, and leaping vp 25 to runne vpon him, which in leffe then the time of a Credo, had beene able to have torne him in pieces: and thus they tormented him, to the end hee flould discouer the treasures which they defired, vntill fuch time as a religious man of Saint Francis Order tooke him away from them, notwith Panding that hee died of the same torments. They cormented and slue of this fallion very many of the Lords and Cacikes in these Provinces: to the end that they should give them 60 Gold and Silver

At the tame time a certaine tyrant found, that certaine Indians had hid their Idols , as thele which had never beene better inflitected by the Spaniards of any better God, bee apprehended and detayned priloners the Lords, vntill fuch time as that they would give them their Idols,

CHAP. 4. Bart, de las Cafas his Booke of Cruelties done in the Indies.

supposing all this while they had beene of Gold or of Silver! how beit they were not fo, wherefor he chaltifed them cruelly and vniufily. But to the end he would not remayne frultrate of his intent, which was to poyle, he conftrayned the Casiles to redeeme their faid Idols; and they redeemed them for such Gold and Silver as they could finde, to the end, to worthin them toe redeemed them for usen Gold and Shoel as they come introc, to the entry, to worning them for Golds, as they had beene wont to doe aforetime.

This great Captaine passed farther from Mechidachims to the Province of Xalifeo, the which Xalifeo.

wis all whole most fult of people, and most happie. For it is one of the most fertileft and most admirable Contrue of the Indiet, which had Burrowes consayning in a manner feuen leagues. As he entred this Countrey, the Lord with the Inhabitants, according as all the Indians are accuto flomed to doe, went to receive him with prefents and toyfulneffe. Her began to commit his cruelties and mischienousnesse, which hee had learned, and all the rest had beene accustomed to pra-Bile, which is to heape up Gold, which is their God. Hee burned Townes, hee tooke the Cacikes prilioners, and gave them torments. Hee made flaues all that hee tooke. Whereof there died an infinite number tyed in chaines. The women new delfuered of child-birth, going laden with the stuffe of will Christians, and being not able to beate their owne children bea cause of tranell and hunger, were faine to cast them from them in the wayes, whereof there died

An euill Christian taking by force a young Damsell to abuse her, the mother withstood him s an infinite: and as thee would have taken her away, the Spaniard drawing his Dagger or Rapier, cut off her 20 hand, and flue the young girle with flashes of his weapons: because shee would not confent to his appetite. Amongst many other things, he caused variably to be marked for slaues, foure thousand and fine hundred foules as free as they, men, women, and fucking babes, from of a yeereand a halfe old, vato three or foure yeeres old: which not withflanding had gone before them in perceito receine them with an infinite number of other things that have not beene fet downe in writing. His Stewards flue very many of the Indians, hanging them and burning them alive, and cafling some voto the Dogs, cutting off their feet, hands, head and tongue, they being in peace.

onely to bring them into a feare, to the end they should serue him

It is faid of him, that he hath deftroyed and burned in this Realme of Xalifeo, eight hundred 800. Towned 30 Burrowes, which was the caule that the Indians being fallen delperate, and seeing those which destroyed. remayned flow they perified thus cruelly: they lift wo themselves, and went into the Mouna taines, flaving certaine Spaniards: howbest by good night. And afterwards because of the wickednedesand outrages of other tyrants now being, which passed by that way to destroy other Provinces (that which they call discouring) many of the Indiane allembled, fortifying thema selves voon certaine Rockes. Voon the which Rotkesthe Spanish hauemade, and yet at this prefent, and afresh doe make so many cruelties, that they almost made an end of laying desolate all this great Countrey, flaying an infinite number of people.

of the Realme of Yucatan.

He yeare one thousand fine hundred twenty and fix, was deputed oner the Realme of Tucatan another caitiffe Gouernour, and that through the lies and false reports which himfelfe had made vnto the King : in like manner as the other tyrants vntill this prefent, to the end there might be committed vnto them offices and charges, by meanes whereof they might rob at their pleasures. This Realme of Tucatan was full of inhabitants; for that it was a Countrie in euery respect wholesome, and abounding in plentie of victuals, and of fruites more then Mexico; and fingularly exceeded for the abundance of Honie and Waxe there to be found, more then in any quarter of the Indier, which hath beene seene vnto this present. It containeth about three hundred leagues compasse. The people of that Countrie were the most notable of all the In-50 dier, as well in confideration of their policie and prudencie, as for the vprightnesse of their life, verily worthy the training of the knowledge of God : amongit whom there might have beene builled great Cities by the Spanish, in which they might have lived as in an earthly Paradile, if to be they had not made themselues vnworthy, because of their exceeding couetousnesse, hard hartednesse, and heinous offences: as also vinworthy they were of other moe blessings a great many, which God had let open in thele Indies. This tyrant began with three hundred men to make warrevpon these poore innocent people, which were in their houses without hurting any body : where be flew and ranfacked infinite numbers. Aud for because the Countrey yeeldeth no Gold, for if it had yeelded any, he would have confumed those fame Indians, in making them to toyle in the Mines; to the end he might make Gold of the bodies and foules of thole for whom 60 Iefus Christ suffered death, he generally made slaues of all those whom he slew nor, and returned the Ships that were come thither, vpon the blowing abroad and novice of the felling of flaues, full of people bartered for Wine, Oyle, Vinegar, powdred Bacons flesh, Garments, Horses, and that that every man had neede of, according to the Captains estimate and judgement. He would les choose amongst an hundred or fittie yong Damosels, bartering some one of the fairest, and of the best complexion, for a Caske of Wine, Oyle, Vineger, or for Porke powdred. And in like manner he would let chools out a young hantome Strinling among it two or three hundred for the forelaid Merchandize. And it bath better feene, that a youth feeming to beethe Sonne of fome Prince, hath beene bartered for a Gheefe, and an hundred persons for an Horse. Hee corri mued in thefe doings from the yeere twentie fixe, vntill the yeere thirtie three,

As these Spaniards, want with their mad Dogges a foraging by the tracke, and hunting our the Indian men and women : An Indian woman being ficke, and feeing the could not afcape there Dogges, that they floudd not rent her as they did others since tooke a chard and hanged her felfa at a beams, having faltened at her foot a child the had of a weere old, and the had no inoner done behold thefe Curres, which come and dispatch this infant, howbeit that before it died, a Reliant

When the Spanish parted out of this Realme, one among to others faid to a Sonne of a Lord of fome Cicie or Prouince, that he should goe with him : the Boy answered, and faid, he would not forfake his Countrie, The Spannard replied : Goe with me, or elfe I will ent off thme cares. The young Indian perfitted in his hift taying, that he would not forfake his Countrie. The Spaniard drawing out his Dagger, cut oil first one, and then his other eare. The youngman abiding by it full that he would not leave his Countrie : he mangled off also his Note, with the vppermoft of his line: making no more formula fitie of the mater, then if he had given him but a philip. This danger ble wetch magnified himselfe, and vaunted him of his doings villanously vinto a reuerend Religious person, laying : that hee tooke as much paines as hee could, to beget the Indian women in ... great numbers with child, to the end, he might receive the more money for them in felling them great with childe for flaues.

In this Realme, or in one of the Prouinces of New Spaine, a certaine Spaniard went one day with his Dogges on hunting of Venison, or ele Conies, and not finding game, hee minded his Dogges that they should bee hungrie, and tooke a little tweet Babie which hee bereaued the mother of, and cutting off from him the armes and the legges, chopped them in small gobbets, giuing to every Dogge his Liverie or part thereof, by and by after these morsels thus dispatched be caff also the rest of the bodie or the carkasse to all the kenell together.

Being now departed the Realme all the Deutlish Tyrants, blinded with the courtousnesses the riches of Pers, that reverend Father, Frier lames, with foure other Religious of Saint Fran ! cit, was moved in spirit to goe into this Realme to pacific them, and for to preach to them, and to winne vnto lefus Christ those which might bee remayning of the Butcheries and Tyrannos Murders, which the Spanish had beene perpetrating feuen continually eeres. And I below that these same were those Religious persons, the which in the yeere thirtie soure, certaine is dians of the Province of Mexico, feeding before them Meffengers in their behalfe, requested them that they would come into their Countrie, to give them knowledge of that one only God, who is God, and very Lord of all the wold : according in the end to admit them with condition, that they should enter thems lues alone, and not the Spaniards with them, that which the Religious promifed them. For it was permitted them, yea commanded them fo to doe, by the Vice-toy of New Spaine, and that there should bee no kind of difficature bee done vnto them by the Spa-40 miards. The Religious men preached vinto them the Gotpell of Christ, as they are accustomed to doe, and as had beene the holy intention of the Kings of Caffile, that should have beene done. Howbeir, that the Spaniards in all the feuen yeares space past, had never given them any fuch notice of the truth of the Gospell, or so much as that there was any other King saving himselfe, that so eyrannized over them, and destroyed them. By these meanes of the Religious, after the end of fortie dayes that they had preached vnto them, the Lords of the Countrie brought vnto them, and put into their bands their Idols, to the end that they should burne them. Afterallo they brought vinto them their young children, that they flould catechife them, whom they loue as the Apple of their eye. They made for them also Churches, and Temples, and houses. Moreouer, some other Proninces sent, and innited them, to the end that they might come to them al- 50 fo, to preach, and give them the understanding of God, and of him whom they faid to beethe great King of Castide. And being perswaded and induced by the Religious, and did a thing which neuer yet before hath beene done in the Indus. Twelve or fifteene Lords, which had very many fubiccts and great dominion, affembling enery one for his owne part his people, and taking their aduite and confent, of their owne voluntarie motion, yeelded themselves to the subjection, and to be under the domination of the Kings of Caftile: admitting the Emperour as King of Spaine, for their Liege Souereigne. Whereof also they made certaine Instruments , by them configned, which I keepe in my charge, together with the Testimonies thereunto of the said

The Indians being thus onward in the way of the faith, with the great toy, and good hope of 60 the Religious Brethren, that they should be able to winne vnto Jesus Christ all the people of the Realme that were the refidue, being but a small number of the flaughters, and wicked wars Falsed : There entred at a certaine Coaft, eighteene Spaniards Tyrants on horiebacke, and twelve on foor, drining with them great loades of Idols, which they had taken in the other Promines of the Indians. The Captaine of those thirtie Spaniards called vnto him a Lord of the Countrie therabouts as they were entred, and commandeth him to take those Idols, and to disperse them throughout all his Countrie, felling euery Idoll for an Indian man, or an Indian woman, to make flaurs of them, with threatning them, that if he did not doe it, he would bid them battaile. That faid Lord being forced by feare, distributed those Idols throughout all the Countrie, and commanded all his subjects, that they should take them to adore them, and that they should returne in exchange of that ware Indies and Indiffes tomake flaues of. The Indians beeing affraid. those which had two chluren, gaue him one, and hee that had three gaue him two. This was the end of this Sacrilegious Trafficke : and thus was this Lord of Cacique, faine to content thele 10 Spaniards : I fay not Christians.

One of their abominable Chafferers, named lobu Garcia, being ficke, and neere his death, had under his bed to packs of Idols, and commanded his Indif Maid that ferued him, to looke to it that the made not away his Idols, that there were for Murlimens, for they were good fruffe; and that making vent of them, thee thould not take leffe then a floue a piece for one of them with another ; and in fine, with this his Testament and last Will thus denifed, the Catiffe died.

The Indians perceiving that, that which the Religious had promifed them, was as good as nothing : namely, that the Spaniards should not enter those Prouinces : and feeing the Spaniards which had laded thither Idols from other places, there to make vent of them, they having put all their Idols afore into the hands of the Friars, to the end they should bee burned, and to the end 20 the true God should be by them adored, all the Country was in a mutinie, and a rage against the Religious Friars, and the Indians comming vnto them, fay : Why have you lied unto us. in promifing us by deceits that there should not enter any Spaniards into these Countries? And why bane ron burnt our gods, feeing the Spaniards doe bring viother Gods from other Nations? Were not our Gods as good, as the Gods of other Proninces ? The Friars pacified them in the best manner that they could. not knowing what to answere them : and went to seeke out those thirty Spaniards, to whom they declared the cuill which they had done, praying them to get them thence : which the Spaniards would not doe, but faid to the Indians, that those Religious men had caused them to come thither themselves of their owne accord, which was rightly an extreme maliciousnesse. In the end the Indians deliberated to kill the Religious men: By occasion whereof, the Friers fled away o in a night, having advertisement of the case by some of the Indians.

Of the Pronince of Saint Martha.

He Province of Saint Martha, was a Countrie where the Spaniards gathered Gold in all I plentie: the Land being with the Regions adiacene very rich, and the people industrious to draw out the Gold, Wherefore alto infinite Tyrants have made thither continually with their fhips, ouer-running, and ranging along the Country, killing and spoyling those the Inhabitants. and ramping from them that gold that they had, with speedie returne ever to their thips, which went and came oftentimes. And so wrought they in those Provinces great wasts and slaughan ters, and cruelties horrible, and that most commonly on the Sea-coast, and certaine leagues within the Country. At what time there went Spanib Tyrants to inhabite there. And for as much as the Country was exceeding rich as hath beene faid, there ever fucceeded Captaines one in anothers roome, euery one more cruell then other : in fuch fort that it fremed that every one inforced himselfe, for the masterie in doing of euils. The yeere 1529, there went a great Tyrant. very resolute, with great troupes : but without any feare of God, or compassion of the nature of man, who wrought such wastes and slaughters so great, that he exceeded all others that had gone before him, himfelfe robbing for the space of fixe or seven yeeres that he lived, great Treafures : after being deceassed without confession, and fled from the place of his residence ; there fucceeded him other murdering Tyrants and Theeues, which made an end of the rest of the people : that from the yeere 1 , 29. vnto this day, they have reduced into a Wilderneffe in those same to quarters more then 400. leagues of Land, which was no leffe peopled then the other Countries which we have spoken of,

Verily if I had to make a bed-roll of the Vngraciousnesses, of the Slaughters, of the Desolations, of the Iniquities, of the Violencies, of the Massacres, and other great Insolencies which the Spaniards have done, and committed in those Prounties of Saint Martha, against God, the King, and against those innocent Nations : I should write an Historie very ample. But that may bedone if God spare me lite, hereafter in his good time : onely I will set downe a few words of that which was written in a Letter by a Bishop of this Prosince, to the King our Souereigne : and the Letter beareth date the twentieth of May, 1541. The which Bishop amongst other 61 Words Speaketh thus : I fay , facred Maustie, that the way to redresse this Countrie, is that his Ma- Bishop of S.

sessie deliner benout of the power of Stepfathers, and give unto her an huft and which may intreate her Mathallet. as is reason, and according as spee deserveth: otherwise, I am surchereaster as the Tyrants which now ter to Charles base the government, doe torment and tormogle ber, he will soone take an end, Oc. And a little below the fith. be faith: Whereby, your Missite Shall know cleerely, how those which gonerne in those quarters doe deferue to be dismounted, and deposed from their gonernment, to the end, that the Common-weales may be relieved. That if that be not done, in mine aduise, they can never be cured of their diseases. His Maieitie fall understand moreoner, that in those Regions, there are not any Christians but Denils , that there are no Sernants of God and the King, but Trasters to the flate, and their King. And in trush the greatest incumbrance that I find in reducing the Indians, that are in warre, and to set them at peace. and to lead those which are at peace to the knowledge of our faith, is unnatural and cruell entreate. and to lead troje work of ear person of the Spanish, being so deeply altered, and launced, that they base nothing in more hatred and borror, then the name of Christians, the which in all these Countries ther call in their Language, Yares, that is to fay, Deuils. For the acts which they committed bere, are neither of Christians, nor of men which have the vie of reason: but of Deuils, Whereof it commethe 19 passe, that the Indies which doe see these behaviours to be generally so farre oftranged from all humanite, paye, tons to the control of the beads as in the members: they effected, that the Christians do bold the le things for a Law, and that their God, and their King are the Authors thereof. And to endenour to per [wade them otherwise, were to endenour in vaine, and to minister unto them the more ample matter, to deride and scorne lesiu Christ and his Law. The Indians that are in war, feeing the intreatie vied toward the Indians that are in peace: would choose raiber to die once for all, then to endure sundrie deaths beeing under the command of the Spanish. I know this by experience, most victorions Calar . che.

refar, Oc. from the flaughters of the mischieuous Spaniards. And hee calleth the Indians in peace, those which after having loft an infinite of their people, by the Maffacres , have beene thralled into the Tyrannicall and horrible seruitude aforesaid, and whereof in the end they haue beene fined out, desolated, and slaine, as appeareth by that which hath beene faid by the Bishoppe, which notwithstanding speaketh but little, in comparison of that which they have juffered.

The Indians in that Countrie have accustomed to say, if when they are travelled and driven vo the Mountaines loden, they happen to fall downe, and to faint for feeblenefle, and for paine: for at that time they lay on vpon them blowes with their feet and with their flaues, and they breake their teeth with the pummels of their Swords, to make them rife, and march on without taking of breath, with these words, Out open thee, what a Villaine are thou? they ! (Ifay) the Indians, for their parts are wont to fay, I can no more: will me bere right. I doe desire to die heere : and this they say with great fighes, and being scarce able to speake, for having ther heart drawne together, declaring a great anguish and dolour.

of the Pronince of Carthagene.

His Province of Carthagene, is situate vnder, and a fiftie leagues distant from the same of Saint Martha, towards the West, confining with the Province of Cen, vnto the Gulph of Araba: which are a hundred leagues all along the Sea-side, and is a great Countrie within Land towards the South. Their Protinces lince the yeare 1458 or ninetic nine, vis.) till now have beene euil entreated , martyred , massacred , desolated like vnto that of Saint Martha.

of the Coast of Pearles, and of Paria, and of the Ile of the Trinitie.

Rom the Coalt of Paris, vnto the Gulfe of Parisfields, without forth, which are two hundred leagues: the Spanish have wrought great and strange destructions, rioting you that people, and taking aline as many as they could, to the end they might fell them for flaves: and oftentimes making them prifoners against the afforance and the promile of friendship made vn-to them. It cannot be well told, nor particularly exprest, the stundie kindes and greinous vexations, wrongs, hurts, and spoiles, which those people, indured at the Spaniards hands, from the yeere 1510. vntill this present. I will onely rehearse two or three acts, by the which it may be judged of the rest, innumerable and excessive, and worthy all torments and fire.

In the He of the Trinute, which is farre greater and more fertile then the He of Sicile, and ioyneth with the firme Land of the Coaft of Paria, and where the people are the best disposed, and most enclined to vertue in their kind, of all the Indians, as they went, there a Captaine Rouer in the yeare, 1510. accompanied with fixtie or feuentie other pettie Theeues well appointed: they published among the Indians by Proclamations, and other publishe Summons, that they should come and dwell and line with them in that Ile. The Indians received them as their owne bowels and babes : and as well the Lords as Subjects serued them with exceeding readintle, 62 bringing them to eate from day to day, as much as might fuffice to feed, as many moe people. For this is the liberalitie of all thefe Indians of the new World, to bestow on the Spaniar droi all that they have in great abundance.

The Spanish build a great house of Timber in the which the Indians should dwell alrogether.

for the Spanish would have it so, that there should bee one only house for all, and no more to compaffe that, which they had alreadie premeditate to doe, and did it. When they laid the Thatch you the binding stages or sparres, and had alreadie couered to the height of two mens length, to the end that those that were within might not see those that were without, vnder colour to halten forward the worke, that it might bee the fooner dispatched, they fet a great number of people within, the Spaniards deciding themselves, the one part of them being beflowed without, compatting the house round about with their weapons, because of those that might get forth, the other part of them presse into the house : Thus laving hands on their Swords, they beganne to threaten the Indians naked as they were, to kill them if they did to firre, and then bound them. And those which fled they hewed them in pieces : Howbeit some of the Indians which fled, both of the hurt and not hurt, with others that had not come within the house, tooke their Bowes and Arrowes and assembled themselves in another house, about an hundred or two hundred persons : And as they kept the gate, the Spaniards fet fire on the house, and burned them aliue. After with their purchale, which might bee of an hundred or fourescore persons of them which they had bound: they get them to the lle of Saint Ibbn, where they fold the one moitie, and thence to the lle of Hispaniola: where they sold the other moitie. As I reprehended the Captaine for this notable Treason, at the same time, and at the samelle of Saint lobn, he made an answere: Sir, quiet your selfe for that matter. So haue they commanded me to doe, and given me instruction which sent me : that if I could not take them by warre, 20 I should take them under countenance and colour of peace. And in truth the Captaine told mee that in all his life, he neuer had found Father nor Mother, but in this Ile of Trinitie, in respect of the friendly courselies the Indians had shewed him.

At another time, the Religious Friars of Saint Dominickes Order, beeing determined to goe preach, they received them as Angels conne from Heaven : and heard with great affection, attention, and willingnefle such words as the Religious at that time were able to give them to vnderstand, more by tignes then otherwise, for they knew not the tongue. It came to passe that there arrived there another ship, after that the ship in which the Religious men came was departed thence, and the Spanift in this Veffell, keeping their Deuillish cultome, by suttletie without the knowlede of the Religious, carried away the Lord of the Countrie called Alfonfo: were it

30 that Friars had given him this name, or else others. For the Indians love and defire to beare the name of the Christians, defiring incontinent that it may be given them even before they know any thing, that they may be baptized. They induced fraudulently this Don Alfonfo to come aboord their thip with the Ladie his wife, and other persons, making semblance to goe about to feath them. In the end there entred seventeene persons, together with the Lord and his Ladie: the Lord truiting that the Religious persons being entred into his Countrie, would keepe the Spaniards from doing any wrong : for otherwise hee would never have put himselfe in the hands of the Spanish. The Indians therefore thus being in the ship, the traiterous Spaniards hoised failes, and away they went to Hiftaniola with them, there felling them for flaues. All the Countrie feeing that their Lord and Ladie were carried away, they runne to the Religious men, purpo-40 fing to kill them. The poore men appealed the Indians in the best manner they could, saying that they would write to them at Hilpaniela by the first ship that went, and would take such care and order in the matter, that their Souereigne should bee restored them againe with those that were in his company. God fent immediately a ship thither, and they wrote to the Spanish Relia gious men that were in the Ile of Hispaniola. They cry out, and call Heauen and Earth witnesse against them, both first, and fundrie times after: But the Iudges of the audience, would neuer give them audience to doe them Iustice, for becaute themselves had part in the bootie of the In. dians, which the Tyrants had so against all right and reason taken. The two Religious men, which had promifed the Iudians of the Countrie, that their Lord Don Alfonso, with others should come home with the rest within foure moneths, seeing that they came not neither in foure 50 nor eight made themselues readie to the death, and to give their life, which they had gaged before they came out of Spaine, if neede should bee, and in that fore the Indians tooke vengeance on them in killing them infilly, notwithstanding that they were innocent: Searill Friera for because that they thought, that the Religious men had beene the occasion of this killed for o-

Another time, by reason of the great Tyrannies and execrable acts of the cursed ones,

bearing the name of Christians, the Indians slue other two Religious men of Saint Dominickes Order, and one of Saint Francis. Whereof I can be a good witnesse for that I escaped at the time miraculously from the same death, of the which it should be a hard matter to intreat, and would be to amaze men, by reason of the grieuousnesse and horriblenesse of the case. Wherefore I will 60 not lay it abroad (for being too testious) untill his time, and at the day of sudgement it shall bee more euident, when God thall take vengeance of the Theeueries fo horrible and to abominable as are done by those which beare the name of Christians against the Indians.

Another time in those Prounces at the Cape of the Codera, (as they call it) there was a Towns, the Lord whereof was named Higneroto a name either proper to the person, or it may Qqqqqq 2 be common to the Lords of the place. This Lord was so bounteous, and his people so verticone and feruiceable, that as many Spaniards as came thither by flip, they found there good entertainment, meate, lodging, all cheering, and refreshing. This taid Lord had also delivered many from death of those which were fled thither out of other Prouinces, where they had rioted and tyrannized, and come thither ficke, and halredead for hunger, whom they refreshed, and afterward fent them away fafe, to the Ile of Pearles, where there were Spansards, and might have flaine them if he had would, without that euer any should have knowne it. And shortly to fav the Spanish did call the Subjects of Higurroto, the House and Harbour of every body. A Catiffe Tyrant adulted himselfe to out-rage that people also, when as they thought themselves sure enough : and getting him to a ship , he had there innited a great number of people to come a 10 boord her as they were accustomed to doe, and to trust the Spaniards. A great number of people being entred into her, men, women, and children, hee hoyfed failes, and went to the The of Saint John, where he fold them all for flaues. I came at the fame inftant to the He of Saint John, and I faw the Tyrant, and vinderstood what he had done. He had destroyed all that Townthin; whereby he did great harme to all other his fellow Tyrants, wonted to rob, and roue all along those Coasts, intomuch as they had in abomination this act to hideous, being bereft there. by of their Harbour, and house of retire, as ordinary and familiar viito them as it had beene their owne home and house.

Two Millions of itolnel n-

They have fingled out at times from all this Coaft, the which was very well peopled wnto the Iles of Saint John and Hifpaniola, aboue two Millions of foules, feifed vpon by their purchases in 20 theening and robbing : which also every one of them they have flaine not long after, by thrufling them into the Minerals and other tormoiles, bendes the great numbers there were therealreadie before time, as we have abouefaid. It is a tried case, that they neuer conuey away their shippings of Indians so robbed and pur-

fage at Sea,

chafed as I have laid, but that they cast the third part into the Sea, besides those which they slay, when they will fort them to themselves for their chaffer. The cause is, that when as they will by all meanes attaine to the end which they have proposed to themselves: they have need of a great number of people, for to draw a great deale of money, according to the quantitie of the flanes; and they prepare but a very small deale of sustenance and water, to serue but a few perfons ; to the end that those Tyrants whom they cal Purneyours of the Prips should not spend them 30 much. And there is but even scarse enough, faue to serve the Spaniards turne which goe a roung and robbing : and there is alwaies wanting for the poore Indians. Wherefore also they die for hunger and thirst : and then there is none other remedie but to east them ouer the boord into the Sea. And verily a man among them did tell me, that from the Ile of Lucayos, where had beene wrought great flaughters in this manner, vnto the I fle of Hilpaniela, which are fixtie or feuentie leagues there trended a ship all alongst, without that it had enther Compasse or Mariners Card being guided onely by the tracke of dead Indians carkasses floating upon the Seas, of them which had bin cast in. And after they be landed in the lle, whither they bring them to make sale of them it is to make a heart to yearne of whofosuer, have he never fo lit le compation to behold them naked and famished, fall downe and faint for hunger and thirst, women, and aged men, and 40

Manner of

Afterwards they soone after separate them, as it were Lambes, the fathers from the children, and the wives from the husbands, in making troupes of them of ten or twentie persons, and so cast lots on them, to the end, thole Purneyours should take their share, which are those who doe rigge and furnish two or three ships for the Nauie of those Tyrants, seasing upon all they come by, and pulling the poore men out of their owne housen. And looke when the lot falleth woon the flocke where there were among them any old or ficke person, the Tyrant to whom the same the north white the Denil take the old Graybeard, why does thou give him nee, to the end I should see the close to the send I should see him? And this sick Rasad, what have I to doe that hee should fall out to my let: 10 (3)

the end, I (bould be his Physician to cure him? The tyrannie which the Spanish exercise over the Indians, to fish for Pearles, is one of the cruelleft things that is in the World. There is no hell in this life, nor other desperate state in this Pearle-fifting. World, that may be compared vinto it: although that the Trade of Gold finding, be in his kind, very grieuous, and very miterable. They let them into the Sea, three, foure, or fine fathome forth downeright under water, from the morning vatill Sun-fet, where they are continually flitting without flint, to plucke Oyfters, in the which are engendred the Pearles. They lurge vp aboue the waters, with a Net full of Oysters to take breath : where standeth readic a Spenish Tormentor, in a little Cocke Boate, or a Brigantine, and if the poore wretches flay neuer jolittle while to rest themselves: they all to be buffet them with their fists, and draw them by the haire into the water to returne to their fifting. Their fullenance is fift, and the fame very file 60 which containeth the Pearles, and the bread Cacabi, or some Maiz, which are the kinds of bread of that Countrie : the one of very flender nourishment, the other is not easie to bee made into bread, of the which also, they neuer gue them their belly full. The beds that they lodge them in a nights, is to fet them by the heeles, their bodies recovling on the cold ground, in a paire of flockes for feare of running away. Sometimes they are drowned in the Sea, and at their fifthing and travell picking of Pearles, and never rife vp againe about the water; because the * Bunches * Sharker and whirlepooles doe kill them and eate them.

It is impossible, that men should be able to live any long season winder the water without taking breath, the continual cold piercing them, and to they die commonly, parbraking of bloud at the mouth, and of the bloudy fluxe, caufed by the cold. Their baires, which by nature are cole blacke, alter and become after a branded ruffet, like to the haires of the Sea-welues. The Salta peter preaketh out of their shoulders, in such fort, that they seeme to bee a kinde of monsters in the shape of men, or elfe some other kinde of men. They dispatched in ridding about this in-10 Supportable travell, or rather to Speake rightly, this devilish torment, all the Lucatan Indians which were in the lies, having favoured this gaines, and every Indian was worth whto them a fittie, or an hundred Castillans. They made an open Marc of them, notwithstanding it were inhibited them, by the Magistrate otherwise vimercifull : for the Lucasens were good swimmers. They also, about these things have slaine a number of the people of other Provinces.

of the River Yuia pari.

Here runneth through the Province of Paris, a River named Tais Pari, more then two hundred leagues within land from the head. There entred the fame River, an volucky tyrant, a 20 great many leagues voward, in the yeare 1 c29, with four hundred men, or more : which there wrought great flaughters, burning aliue, and putting to the edge of the fword, an infinite fort of Indians, which were in their lands and houses, doing hurt to no creature, and therefore secures and miltruling nothing.

In the end hee died an evill death, and his Nauie was disparaged : aloeit that other tyrants there were which tucceeded him in his mischieuousnesses and tyrannies; and vet at this day this ther they goe, destroying, and flaying, and plunging into Hell the foules for whom the Sonne of God fhed his bloud.

Of the Realme of Venefuela.

He yeere 1 526, the King our Soueraigne, being in uced by finister informations and per-I (wallons damageable to the State, as the Spaniards have alwaies pained themselves to conseale from his Maiette the damages and di honours which Gol and the foules of men, and his State doeth receive in the Indies: granted and committed a great R alme, greater then all Spaine (Venefuela, with the government and entire jurifdiction) vnto certaine Dutch Merchants, with certaine capitulations and conventions accorded betweene them.

These same entring the Countrey with three hundred men : they found the people very amiable, and meeke as Lambes, as they are all in those parcs of the Indies, vntill the Spanish doe outrage them. These set upon them without comparison a great deale more cruelly, hen any of the other tyrants, of the which wee have spoken before: shewing themselves more vanaturall and fierce, then raging Tigres, or Wolves, or ramping Lions. There have layd defolate and deffroyed more then foure hundred leagues of most terrile land, and therein of Prounces exceeding and wonderfull, faire Valleyes to the breadth of forty leagues, and Bournes very great, full of prople and of Gold. They hau: flaine, and wholly discomfitted great and divers Nations, fo farre forth as to abolish the Languages wonted to bee spoken, not leaving alive that could skill of them: valeffe some one or other, who had hid themselves in the caues and bowels of the earth, ficeing the dint of the fword, fo raging and plaguing. They have flaine destroyed, and fent to Hell by divers and strange manners of cruelties and vngodlinesies, more (I suppose) then foure or fine millions of foules : and yet at this present they ceaffe not to doe the same by in- Foure or fine 50 finite outrages, spoyles and slaughters, which they have committed, and doe commit daily vnto in Venezuela.

They tooke the Lord Soueraigne of all the Province, without all cause, onely to be reaue him of his Gold, giving him also the torture: which Lord vinbound himselfe, and escaped from them into the Mountaines, wherefore also the Subjects rose, and were in a mutinie, hiding themselves vpon the Mountaines, among it the hedges and bushes. The Spaniards make after to chale them, and having found them, commit cruell maffacres, and as many as they take alive, they fell them in port fale for flaues. In Jiuers Provinces, yea in all where they became before that they tooke the Soueraigne Lord, the Indians went to receive them with longs, and dances, and with prefents of Gold in great quantitie. The payment made them, was, to bee put to the edge of the o fword, and hewen in pieces. One time, as they went to receive the Spanish in the fashion abouefaid : the Dutch Captaine tyrant caufed to bee put in a thatched house a great number of people, and hakled in pieces. And being on high, neere the top of the house, certaine beames, which divers had got vpon, avoyding the bloudy hands and fwords of those people (O mercia leffe beaits) the deuilish man, fent to put to fire, whereby as many as there were, were burned Qqqqqq 3

aliue. By this meanes the Countrie remayned very defart, the people fleeing into the Mountaines, where they hoped to faue themselves.

They came into another great Province, in the confines of the Province and Realme of Saint Martha, where they found the Indians peaceable in their Burroughs, and in their houses, doing their bulinelle: they continued a long time with them, eating their store, and the Indians ferued them, as if they had to receive of them their life and fafeguard, supporting their continual oppreffions, and vivall outragiousnelles, which are intolerable : belides that one Spanis glutton, eateth more in one day, then would fuffice an whole houshold of more then ten Indians. They gave them at that time, a great quantitie of Gold, of their owne good-will, over and befides, other feruices innumerable, which they did voto them. At the end as thefe tyrants would in depart the place, they admifed to pay them for their lodging, in this manner.

The Almaine tyrant Gouernour, commanded to take juch Indians as they could, with their wives and children, and that they should shut them vp within an inclosure, letting them know. that who fo would come forth, and be let goe free, that he should redeeme himselfe at the pleafure of the vniuft Gouernour: in giving so much Gold for himselfe, so much for his wife, and fo much for every poll of his children. And yet to prefe them the more, he commanded to give them nothing to eate, virill fuch time as they had performed the quantitie of Gold inflicted them for their ransome. Many sent to their houses for Gold, and bought out themiclues as they were able, and those same were deliuered, and went abroad about their businesse to get their liuing. The tyrantient certaine Spanish thieues and robbers, to goe take them againe the second 20 time, after they had beene redeemed. They are carried to the percloie, and there wrung with hunger and thirit, to the end, that they should yet once againe pay for their freedome, And there were many amongst them, which were taken and rantomed two or three fundry times. Others which had not to gue, for because they had all they had, hee let them within the toyle die for hunger. And in this manner hath beene destroyed a Pronince very rich of people and gold, the which hath a Vale or Bourne of fourtie leagues, where hath beene brent a Burrough of the receit of a thouland housholds.

This Tyrant resolued with himselfe to pierce farther into the Countrey, with a great defire to discouer on that side, that Hill of Pers. By occasion of which accurred Voyage both hee and others carried forth with them, Indians infinite, loden with two or three quintals 30 weight, and being enchained. If any were weake and weary, fainting for hunger, or travelling, they cut incontinent his head off euen with the collar of the chaine that yoked them: because they should not need to vnhamper the others that went with the same collars about their neckes, and so tumbled the head on the one side, and the body on the other. And the lock of him that had fofayled was distributed and bestowed upon others. To tell of the Prouinces, which hee hath layed defart, and the Townes and places which hee hath brent, for all the houles are thatched, and to number the Nations which hee hath slaine, and the cruelties, and murders particular, which hee had committed by the way, it would bee a thing scarse credible: howbeit very true and wonderfull. In this tame very course and steppes marched sithence the other tyrants, who came from the laid Venefuela, and others of the Province of Saint Marba, 40 with the selfe same holy intention to discouer the same sacred golden Palace of Peru: and found the whole Countrie in length more then two hundred leagues fo burned, dispeopled, and spoyled, having beene before most notably peopled, and most fertile, as hath beene faid, that themselves as very tyrants and sauage beasts as they were, wondered and stood aftonished to see the trackes of the destructions so lamentable, wheresoeuer he had passed.

All these things have beene given in evidence with the depositions of many witnesses the Attorney of the Councell of the Indies, and the euidences are kept amongst the Records of the fame Councell: and yet have they never burnt alive, any of those execrable tyrants. Those Provinces of Venesacla with the others which they have laid waste, and dispeopled more then foure hundred leagues forthright, as hath beene faid, is a region the molt bliffetull, and the richeft 50 of Gold, and was the best peopled of any in the world: in such fort, that they have disturned from the Kings Coffers, and occasioned the lose in this Realme of about two millions of rent, within feuenteene yeeres fithence by palt, that these enemies of God and the King have begunne to destroy it : neither is there any hope that ever those losses will be repaired.

These seventeene yeeres they have tent by Sea a great number of thips loden and stuffed with Indians, to make file of them as flaues at Saint Marsha, at the lles of Hiff aniola, and of lamages. and at Saint lobus Ile, moe then one million: and doe lend daily, as now this yeere 1542; the Court of the Audience Royall not withflanding established, for, and at Hispaniela, tight well ier ing all this, and diffimuling to fee it, yea, favouring and supporting all the matter: as likewife they have had their eyes blinded at all the other tyrannies and ranlackings infinite, which have 60 beene done in all this coaft of the Firme land which are about four hundred leagues, the which have beene and now are vinder their jurifdiction, like vinto Venefuela, and Saint Marcha; all which the faid Court might very well have empeached and remedied.

Of the Proninces of the firme land, or quarter that is called Florida.

men were an TNto these Provinces went three tyrants at three divers times since the yeere 1510. or 1511. Lithhere Atthere to put in vie the acts which others, and two of them from among themselves have com- ter firm Lucas Ithere to put in vie the acts which others, and two of them from along them to the pet to the indians: to the end to afpire to high degrees, in no respect conmitted in other perions, higher then their merits in the Common-wealth could conceine, with Pampbilo de the bloud and destruction of their neighbours: and they are dead all three of an euill death, and Norance with their houses likewile have beene destroyed with them, the which they had builded in times past, 400. And their nomes macwire markind, as I can be a fufficient witnesse of all three, and their memory is tourthly Fedinardo de Solo now abolished from of the face of the earth, as if they had neuer beene in this world.

The fourth tyrant, that came last in the yeere 2538. cunningly adulted, and being fully fur- formelay, and nished; it is three yeeres since there is no tidings concerning him. Sure he is one of the notori- they which is, oufest and beit experimented amongst them that have done the most hurts, mischieues, and de le. st, 600 cn. fructions in my Realmes with their conforts : wherefore I beleeue that God hath giuen him whole flories like end vnto the others.

of the River of La Plata, that is to fay, Of Silver.

20 C Ithence the yeere, one thousand five hundred, and two or three and twenty : certaine Cap-Draines made three or foure Voyages vp the River of Plata, where there are great Provinces Secheforein and Realmes, and Nations well ordered and endued with understanding. In generall wee vn- schmidel. derstood, that they have made there great butcheries and invisions: but like as this Counter is farre discoasted from the Indies most samous, so we are not able, to quote the notablest points in particular.

Of the mighty Realmes, and large Prouinces of Peru.

TN the years 1531, went another great tyrant with certain other conforts, to the Realmes of 1) Pers, where entring with the fame title and intention, and with the fame proceedings as all the rest before gone, foral much as he was one of them, which had of long time been exercised in all kindes of cruelties and murders, which had beene wrought in the firme land, fichence the veere 1510. hee tooke encouragement to accrue in cruelties, murders, and robberies: being: a man without loyal tie and truth, laying waste Cities and Countries, bringing them to nought. and etterly vindoing them by flaying the Inhabitairts, and being the cause of all the euils, which enfued in that Countrie.

He flue and laid waste at his first arrivall with a mischiefe certaine boroughes, from whom he pillaged a great quantitie of Gold. In an lland neere to the same Provinces, named Pagna, well peopled and plealant, the Lord thereof with his people received them as it had beene Angels 40 from heaven : and fix moneths after, when as the Spanish had eaten vp all their prouision : They discovered also vnto them the corne which they kept vnder ground, for themselves, their wives. and their children, against a dry time and barren : making them offer of all, with trees plentituil to fpend and eate at their pleasure. The recompence in the end which they made them, was to put to the edge of the Sword and Lance, a great quantitie of those people. And those whom they could take aliue, they made flaues : with other cruelties great and notable which they committed, dispeopled as it were all that Ile.

From thence they make to the Prouince of Tumbala, which is in the firme land, where they flay and destroy as many as they could come by. And because all the people were fled as affrighted by their horrible acts, they faid that they made an infurrection, and rebelled against the King of Spaine. This tyrant had this policie, and kept this order of proceeding, that vnto all to those whom he tooke, or vato others which presented him with Gold and Silver, or other things which they had : he commanded them to bring more, vntill such time as he perceived that either they had no more, or that they brought him no more. And then he would fay, that he accepted them for the vallals and lieges of the King of Spaine, and made much of them : and would cause it to be proclaimed at found of two Trumpets, that from thenceforth they would take them no more, and that they would doe them no manner harme at all: fetting it downe for good ande lawfu!!, all whatfoeuer he had robbed from them.

A few dayes after the King and Emperour of those Realmes, named Atabaliba, came accompanied with a number of naked people, bearing their ridiculous armour, not knowing neither 6) how Swords did carue, nor Speares did pierce, nor Horles did run, nor who or what were the Spaniards. Hee commeth to the place where they were, taying: Where are these Spaniards? Let them come, I will not stirre a foote, till they fatisfie me for my Subjects whom they have flaine, and my boroughs which they have dispeopled, and for my wealth, which they have bereaued me.

Iuan Ponce de men were all ven haue betore. Ot Sote was no newes 41.1542, when

A million of flaucs.

The Spaniards fet against him, and slew an infinite fort of his people: they tooke him also in person, who came carried in a Litter borne vpon mens shoulders. They treate with him, to the Fifteene Milli- end that he should ransome himselfe. The King offereth to performe foure millions of Castillans. and performeth fifteene, they promife to release him: notwithstanding in the end, keeping nor Atsbalips ran- faith nor truth (as they never kept any in the Indies, vnto the Indians) they laid to his charge altogether vntruely, that by his commandement the people affembled. The King answered, that in all the Countrie there moved not a leafe of a tree, without his good will : that if there affembled any people, they were to believe that it was by his commandement, and as touching himtelfethat he was prisoner, and they might slay him.

All this notwithstanding, they condemned him to be burnt aliue: but at the request of some 10 certaine, the Captaine caused him to be strangled; and being strangled, hee was burned. This King vn lerstanding his sentence, said : Wherefore will you burne we? What trespaffe baue I done yee? Did not you promise me to set me at libertie, if I game you the Gold? And have I not performed more then I promifed? Seeing you needes will have it fo, fend me to your King of Spaine: fpeaking other things, to the great confusion and detestation of the great wrongfulnesse that the Spaniards vied, whom in the end they burned. Here let be confidered the right and title of this warfare, the imprisonment of this Prince, the sentence, and the execution of his death, and the conficience, whereby they possesse great treasures, as indeede they have robbed in those Realmes from this King and other fenerall Lords infinite.

As touching the innumerable cruelcies, and notable, for the mischiefes and enormities withall 20 committed in the rooting out of those peoples by them, who call themselves Christians: I will here rehearle some certaine, the which a Frier of Saint Francis order saw at the beginning, and the same certified voider his name and signe: sending them into all those quarters, and amongst others into this Realme of Caftile, whereof I retaine a Copie in my keeping, in the which it is mer Ilands.

Teftimony of Frier Marke touching Pi-3079 and the

I Frier Marke, of the order of Saint Francis, commissivic oner the other Friors of the Same Order in the Provinces of Peru, and who was one of the first religious men, which entred unto the said Provinces with the Spaniards : doe fay, bearing true testimonie of certaine things, the which I have seene with mine Spanior swhich eyes in that Countrie, namely, concerning the entreatie and conquests made over the natural inhabitants firft entred Per of the Countrie: firft of all I am an ere witneffe, and have certaine knomledge, that those Indians of Peru, & are a people the most kinde bearted that hath beene seene among all the Indians, being courteous in conner fation, and friendly unto the Spaniards. And I fam them gine to the Spanish in abundance, Gold. Silver, precious stones, and all that was asked them, and that they had, doing them all kinde of service lawfull. And the Indians never reclied forth to warre, but kept them in peace fo long time, at they game them not occasion, by their enill entreating of them and their cruelties, but contraring received them with all amitie and honour in their boroughes, in giving them to ease, and as many flaves manifind and womenkinde, as they demanded for their fernice.

Item, I am witneffe, that wethout that the Indians gaue occasion : the Spanish as foone as they were entred the land, after that the great Cacique Atabalipa, had given to the Spanish more then two millions of Gold, and had put into their power the whole Countrie without resistance, incomment they bur- 40 ned the faid Atabalipa, which was Lord of the whole Countrie. And after him they burnt his captains generall Cochilimaca, who had come to the Governour in peace with other Lords. In the like manner also a few dayes after they burned a great Lord named Chamba, of the Province of Quito, without any fault at all, and without having given the least occasion that might be. In like manner they burned oniustly Schappera Lord of the Canaries ". Also they burnt the feete of Aluis a great Lord among stall * A people of those which were in Qitto, and caused him to endure fundry other torments, to make him tell where was the Gold of Atabalipa : of the which treasure, as it appeared, be knew nothing. good warriors, Alfo they burnt in Quito Cofopanga, who was Gouernour of all the Provinces of Quito, which upon not of the Can the request to him first made by Sebastian of Bernalcafar, Captaine under the Conernour, was come to them in peace : and onely because he gave them not Gold so much as he demanded of him they harned him 30 with very many other Caciques and principall Lords. And for ought that I can understand, the intent of the Spaniards was, that there hould not be left aline one Lord in the whole Countrey.

Item, I certifie, that the Spaniards caused to affemble a great number of Indians, and locked them up in three great boufes, as many as could be pored in, and festing to fire, they burned them all, mubeut that they had done the least thing that might be, or had given to the Spanish the least occasion thereof · what soener. And it came to passe, that a Priest, who is named Ocanna, drew a yone Boy out of the fire, in the which he burned, which perceiving, another Spaniard tooke from out of his hands the Boy and flung him into the middest of the flames, where he was resolved into ashes together with others. The which Spaniard returning the same day to the Campe, fell downe dead suddenly, and mine admict was, be

Item, I affirme, to have feene with mine owne eyes, that the Spanish have cut the bands, the nofes, and the eares of the Indians, and of their women, without any other cause or surpose, saue onely that so it came into their fantaste, and that in so many places and quarters, that it fould be too tedious to tebearfe. And I have feene, that the Spanish have made their Mastives runne upon the Indians to rest them in pieces. And moreover, I have seene by them burnt so many houses, and whole boroughes, or townthiss, that I am not able to tell the number. Alfost is true, that they violently plucked the little infants fron the Mothers dagges, and taking them by the armes, did throw them from them as farre as thes could: Together with other enormities and cruelties without any canfe which gaue me aftonil ment to behold them, and would be to long to rehearfe them.

Item, I saw when they sent for the Caciques and other principall Indians, to come see them in prace, and affurance to them made, promising them [afe conduit : and incontinent as they were arrived, they burned them. They burned two whiles I was present the one in Andon and the other in Tumbala : and I could never prevaile with them to have them delivered from burning, preached I unto them never fo much. And in God and my conscience, for ought that ener I could perceine, the Indians of Peru, nener lift themselves up, nor never rebelled for any other cause, but for the entill entreating of the other side. at is manifelt unto enery one, and for infl cause : the Spaniarus destroying them tyrannoully against all reafon and suffice, with all their Countrie, working upon them fo many outrages, that they were determined to die, rather then to suffer much another time. Item, Ifay, that by the report of the Indians themselmes, there is yet more Gold bidden then is come to light, the which because of the wninstices and cruelties of the Spaniards, they would not discouer, neither ener will discouer, so long as they stall be so enill entreated, but will choose rather to dye with their fellowes. Wherein God our Lord bath beene highly trespassed against and the Kings Maiestie enill served, having beene defrauded in that, that his bigbnesse hath If (uch a Countrie, as hatb beene able to reelde suftenance to all Caltile : for the recoverie of which Coun-

20 trie, it will be a matter of great difficultie, dispence, and charges. All these hitherto are the formall words of the fand religious person : the which are also rati- Bishop of Mexfied by the Bilhop of Mexico, which witneffeth that the reuerend Father hath to his know- ico tift mony. ledge affirmed all the about faid. It is here to be confidered, that the good Father faith, that he faw those things. For tha , that he hath beene fiftie or an hundred leagues vp into the Countrie, for the space of nine or ten yeares, and at the very beginning, when there were not as yet but very few of the Spaniards : but at the ringing of the Gold, there were quickely gathered and Bocked this her foure or five thousand, which shed themselves forth over many great Realmes and Prounces, more then five hundred or fixe hundred leagues, the which Countrey hath beene throughly destroyed, they executing still the felfe same practites, and others more bat-20 barous and cruell.

Of a veritie, from that day vinto this present, there hath beene destroyed and brought to desolation moe foules then he hath counted ; and they have with leffe reverence of God or the King. and with leffe pittie then before, abolished a great part of the linage of mankinde. They have flaine voto this day in these same Realmes (and yet daily they doe flay them) moe then foure FoureMillions Millions of foules. Certaine dayes pailed, they pricked in shooting with darts of reedes to death flaine in Pers, a mightie Queene, wifcof Eling, who is yet King of that Realme, whom the Spaniards by laying &c. hands vpon him compelled to rebell, and in rebellion he perfifteth. They tooke the Queene his wife, and to as hath beene faid, flue her against all reason and instice, being great with childe as the was, as it was faid onely to vexe her husband withall.

of the new Realme of Granado.

VI thin the yeare 1539: there tooke their flight together sundry tyrants, flocking from Venesuela, from Saint Mariba, and from Cartbagene, to search for the Perous: and there were allo others which came downe from Pers it felfe to affay, to make a glade farther into the Countrie : And they found from beyond Saint Marthas and Carthagene three hundred leagues vp into the Countrie, fertile lands, and admirable Prounces, full of infinite people, kinde hearted like the rest, and very rich, as well of Gold as of precious stones, which they call Emeralds. Vnto the which Prouinces they gave the name of New Granado: for because that the tvrant which came first into this Countrey, was a Granadan, borne in our Countrey. A Gouer-

50 nour, for as much as he which robbed and flew in the new Realme of Granado, would not admit him for confort with him to rob and flay as did he : he procured an enquirie, and thereby euidence came in against him with fundry witnesses upon the fact of his slaughters, disorders, and murders which he had done, and doth as yet vnto this day, the processe of which enquirie, together with the euidences was read, and is kept in the Records of the Countell of the Indies.

The witnesses doe depose in the same enquirie, that the said whole Realme was in peace, the Indians feruing the Spaniards, giving them to eate of their labour, and labouring continually, and manuring the ground, and bringing them much Gold and precious stones, such as are Emeralds, 60 and all that which they could or had the Townes, and the Lordinips, and the people being diitributed among it the Spaniards every one his share : which is all that they studie for, for that, that it is their meane way to attaine to their last end and scope, to wit, Gold. And all being subdued to their tyrannie and accustomed bondage, the tyrant the principall Captaine which commanded ouer that Countrey, tooke the Lord and King of the Countrey, and detained him priBart, de las Casas his Booke of cruelties done in the Indies. LIB.VIII

foner fix or feuen moneths, exacting of him Gold and Emeralds without cause or reason at all. The faid King, who was named Bogata, for feare which they put him in , faid that hee would give them an houle full of Gold: noping that he should escape out of the hands of him which tormented him. And he fent Indians which should bring him Gold, and by times one after annther, they brought in a great quantitie of Gold and precious stones. But because the King did not give an whole house full of Gold, the Spaniards bid kill him : fithence that he did not accomplish that which he had promifed.

King Buzata tentenced. executed.

The tyrant commanding that this King should be arraigned before himselfe: They sommon and accule in this order the greatest King of all that Countrie, and the tyrant giveth sentence condemning him to be racked and tormented, if he doe not furnish forth the house full of Gold. In They give him the torture and the strapado with cords; they fling burning fewer vpon his naked belly; they lay on bolts vpon his feete, which were fastened to one stake, and gird his necke fast vnto another stake, two men holding both his hands, and so they set fire vnto his feete : and the tyrant comming vp and downe now and then, willeth him to have his death giuen him by little and little, if he made not ready the Gold. Thus they dispatched and did to death that Noble Lord in those torments, during the execution whereof, God manifelled by a figne, that those cruelcies displeased him, in confurning with fire all the towne where they were committed. All the Spaniards to the end to follow their good Captaine, and having none other thing to doe, but to hackle in peeces those poore innocents doe the like, tormenting with divers and fauge torments enery Indian, both Cacique or Lord of every people or peoples, with all their an flockes, that were committed to their charges: those faid Lords with all their subjects sening them, and giving them Gold and Emeraulds as many as they could, and as much as they had: Tormenting them onely to the end they should give them more Gold, and rich Minerals: thus they broyled and dispatched all the Lords of that Countrie.

For the great seare of the notorious cruelties that one of the pettie tyrants did vnto the Indiant, there transported immielfe voto the Mountaines, in flying so great crueltie, a great Lord name. Dayrama, with many of his people. For this they hold for their last remedy and refuge, if it might have prevailed them ought: and this the Spaniards call infurtection and rebellion. Which the Capraine head tyrant having knowledge of, he fendeth supplie of Souldiers vnto the faid cruell man (for whose cruelties sake, the Indians that were peaceable, and had endured in great tyrannies and muchiefes, were now gone into the Mountaines) to the end he should purfire them. Who, because it sufficeth not to hide them in the entrals of the earth, finding there a great multitude of people, flue and dispatched them, aboue fine hundred soules, what men, what women, for they received none to mercy. Also the witnesses depose, that the said Lord Datama, before that the Spaniards put him to death, came to the cruell man, and brought him foure or five thousand Castillans, the which notwithstanding he was murdered as a-

Another time many Indians being come to serue the Spaniards, and seruing them with humilitie and simplicitie, as they are accustomed to doe, reputing themselves affured : behold the Captaine of the towne where they ferued, who commeth by night, commanding that those Indian 40 should be put to the edge of the sword, when they had supped, and whiles that they were a fleepe, taking their rest after the toyle which they sustained the day time. And this he did, for that it feemed him necessary to doe this massacre, to the end to engrave an awe of himself in the hearts of all the peoples of that Countrie.

Another time the Captaine commanded to take an oathe of the Spaniards, to wit, how many every one had in his feruice of the Caciques, and principall Lords, and Indians of the meaner for; that incontinent they should be brought to the most open place of the Citie, where he commanded that they should be beheaded : thus were there at that time put to death foure or five hundred foules. Moreoverthese witnesses depose concerning another of the pettie tyrants, that he had exere 10 cifed great cruelties in flaying, and chopping off the hands and nofes of many persons, aswell men as women, and destroying very much people. Another time the Captaine sent the selfe same cruell man with certaine Spaniards into the Province of Bogata, to be informed by the inhabitants what Lord it was, that was successour vnto the chiefe Lord , whom hee had made to die that cruell death in those torments spoken of before : Who running along the Countrie throughout many places, tooke as many Indians as he could come by, And for that he could not learne of them, what he was that succeeded that Lord, he mangled off some hands, he bid cast others, men and women vnto hungrie Mastiues, who rend them in peeces. And in this manner have beene delitroyed very many Indians, and Indiffes. One time, at the fourth watch of the night, he went to overrun Caciques or Governours of the land, with many of the Indians, which were in peace, 60 and held themselves affured (for he had given them his faith, and allorance that they should receiue no harme nor damage) vpon credit whereof, they were come forth of their holes in the Mountaines, where they had beene hill, to people Plaine, in the which food their Citie: thus being common without suspition, and trusting the affurance made, he tooke a great number, as well men as women, and commanded to hold out their hands stretched against the ground, and himfelfe with a woodknife cut off their hands, telling them that he did on them this chastifement, for that they would not confesse where their new Lord was, which had succeeded in the charge of government of the Realme.

narge or government.

Another time for that the Indians gaue him not a coffer full of Gold, that this cruell Captaine required them: he fent men to warre vpon them: who cut off the hands and nofes of men and women without number. They cast others before their dogs being hunger bitten, and vied to the feare of feeding on flesh, the which dispatched and deuoured;

Another time the Indians of that Realme perceiving that the Spaniards had burnt three or 10 foure of their principall Lords, they fled for feare vp into a Mountaine, from whence they might defend themfelues against their enemies so estranged from all humanitie. There were of them by the testimonie of the witnesses foure or fine Indiant. This aboue said Captaine sent a great and notable tyrant, which exceeded farre most of those to whom he had given the charge to ransacke and waste, together with a certaine number of Spaniards, to the end that they should chastile the Indian rebels; as they would feeme to make them for that they were fled from a pestilence and flaughter fo intollerable. Well, so it is that the Spanife by force prevailed to get up to the Mountaine: for the Indians were naked without weapons. And the Spaniards cryed peace vnto the Indians; aftering them, that they would doe them no harme : and that they of their parts should not warre any longer. Streight way as the Indians stinted from their owne defence, the vile cru-20 ell man sent to the Spaniards to take the forts of the Mountaine, and when they should get them to enclose within them the Iudians. They fet then like vnto Tygers and Lyons, voon these lambes so meeke, and put them to the edge of the sword, so long that they were faine to breath and rest themselves. And after having rested a certaine season, the Captaine commanded that they should kill and cast downe from the Mountaine, which was very high, the residue that were aliue; which was done. And these witnesses say, that they saw as it were a could of Indians call downe from the Mountaine, to the number by estimation of seven hundred men together, where they fell battered to peeces.

And to atchieue all his great crueltie, they fearched all the Indians that were hid among ft the bulhes : and he commanded to cut off their heads, at blockes ends; and fo they flue them and caft 30 them downe the Mountaines: yet could not be content himselfe with those faid things so cruell, but that he would make himfelfea little better knowne, augmenting his horrible finnes, when as he commanded that all the Indians men and women, which some private persons had taken aline (for every one in those massacres is accustomed to cull out some one or other mankinde and womankinde, to the end to become his feruants) should be put into a strawen house, saving and referring those, which seemed necessary to be employed in their service, and that there should be put to fire thus were there burned fortie or fiftie. Hee caused the reft to be flong to the carrion dogs, which rend them in peeces, and deuoured them.

Another time the selfe same tyrant went to a Citie called Cotta, and tooke there a number of Indians, and caused to be difmembred by his dogges, a fifteene or twenty Lords of the principall. 40 and cut the hands of a great multitude of men and women : which faid hands he hanged one by another on a pole, to the end the other Indians might fee that which hee had done vnto them. There were to hanged one by another threescore and ten paire of hands. Hee slifed off besides from many women and children their nofes.

No creature living and reasonable, is able to decipher the mischieses and cruell dealing of this fellow, enemy of God. For they are without number, neuer otherwise heard of, nor feene : those, I meane, which hee hath done in the land of Guatimala, and all about where he hath

The witnesses say for a surcharge, that the cruell dealings and slaughters which have beene committed, and are yet in the faid Realme of new Grenado, by the Captaines themselues in gerto fon, and by their confents given vnto all the other tyrants, wasters, and weeders of the nature of man, which were in his company, and the which hath laid all the Countrie wilde and waste, are such and so excessive, that it his Maiestie doe not take some order therein in some time (albeit that the flaughter and discomfirure of the Indians is done onely to bereaue: nem of their Gold, the which they have none of, for they have furrendred all that which they had) they will in a short time make an end of them so in such fort, that there will be no more Indians to inhabit the land, but that it will remaine in a wildernesse without being manured.

There are other great Prouinces, which bound vpon the faid Realme of new Grenado, which they call Popayin and Cali, and three or foure others, which contains more then fine hundred leagues of ground, which they have destroyed and desolated in the ame manner, as they have 60 done others, robbing and flaying with torments, and the enormities afore spoken of. For the land is very fertile, and those that come from thence now daily, doe report, that it is a ruefull thing to fee formany goodly Townes burned and laid defolar, as they might behold paffing vp and downe that way : to as there, where there was wor to be in one towne a thousand or two thousand households, they have not found fiftie, and the rest veterly ransacked and dispeopled.

And in some quarters they have found two or three hundred leagues of Land dispeopled and burned, and great Cities deliroyed. And finally, by that , that fithence into the Realmes of Peru. of the Province file of Quito, are entred farre into the Countrey fore and fell tyrants, as farre ac to the faid Realme of Grenado, and of Popayan, and of Cali, by the coast of Caribagene, and Arabe, and other accurred tyrants of Caribagene have gone to affault Quite, and moreover, afterwarde of the Rivers fide of Saint lobn, which is on the South fide, all the which have met to ione hands together in this exploit: they have rooted out and dispeopled about fixe hundred leagues of land, with the loffe of an infinite of foules , doing still the felfe fame to the poore wretches that remaine behinde, howfoeuer innocent they appeare to be.

After the ends of the flaughters and maffacres of the warres, they bring the people into the horrible bondage aboutlaid, and give them to the commandement of Deuils, to one an hundred Indians, to another three hundred. The commander Deuill commandeth, that there come before him an hundred Indians, which incontinent prefent themselves like Lambes. He causing forty or fifty among ft them to haue their heads cut off: fayth vnto the other there present, I will ferue you of the fame fauce, if you doe not me good feruice, or if fo be, that you goe out of my fight without my leave. That for the honour of God, all they that have read this piece of worke. or shall give it a reading, consider now, whether this act, so hideous, fell and vnnaturall, doe not exceed all cruelty and inequitie, that may bee imagined, and whether the Spaniards have any wrong offered them when a man calleth them Diuels, and whether were better, to give the Indians to keepe to the Deuils in Hell, or the Spaniards which are at the Indies.

After this I will rehearse another denilish part, the which I cannot tell whether it beelesse 20 cruell and voide of manhood, then are those of fauage beatts: that is, that the Spanifb which are in the Indies, dee keepe certaine Dogs most raging, raught and trained wholly to the purpose,to kill and rend in pieces the Indians. That let all those that are true Christians, yea, and also those which are not fo, behold, if ever there were the like thing in the whole world : that is, to feed thole Dogs, they leade about with them wherefoeuer they goe a great number of Indians in chaines, as if they were Hogs, and kill them, making a shambles of mans flesh. And the one of them williay to another, Lend mee a quarter of a villaine, to give my Dogs some meate, vntill I kill one next, allogether as if one thould borrowe a quarter of an Hogge or Mutton. There be others which goe forth a hunting in the morning with their curres, the which being re- to turned to eate, if another aske him: How have yee fped to day! they answere, Very well: for I have killed with my Dogs to day, fifteene or twenty Villacoes. All these diabolicall doings, with others like haue beene proued in the fuits of Law, that the tyrants haue had one of them against another. Is there any case more ougly or vnnatural!

I will here now deport me of this discourse, vitill such time, that there come other newes of things, in vngraciouinesse more notorious and remarkable (if it so bee, that there can beeany more grieuous) or vntill fuch time as we may returne thicher to behold them our felues anew, as we behold them for the space of two and forty yeeres continually with mine owne eyes : proteffing in a good conscience before God, that I doe beleeve, and I hold it for certaine, that the damages and loffes are io great, with the deftractions and ouerthrowes of Cities, maffacres and murders, with the cruelties horrible and ougly, with the rauins, iniquities and robberies, all the which things have beene executed amongst those people, and are yet daily committed in those quarters: that in all the things, which I have spoken and deciphered, as I was able the netrest to the truth: I have not said one of a thousand, of that which has h beese done, and is daily a doing at this prefent, bee it that you confider the qualitie, or bee it, that yee confider the quantitie. And to the end that all Christians have the greater compassion of those poore innocents, and, that they complaine with me the more their perdition and destruction, and that they detell the greedineffe, loftineffe, and felneffe of the Spamb: that all doe hold it for a most vincounte veri-What conuer- tie, with all that hath beene abouelaid, that fithence the first Discouerie of the Indies untill now, 50 fions & know- the Indias, neuer did harme vnto the Spanifo in any place wherefoeuer, vntill fuch time, that ledge of God they first received wrongs and iniuries, being robbed and betrayed: but indeed did repute them to be immortal, supposing them to be descended from Heauen, and they received them for such, untill fuch time as that they gaue it forth manifeltly to be knowne by their doings, what they were, and whereto hey tended.

I will adioune hereunto this, that from the beginning unto this houre, the Spaniards have lad no more care to procure hat vnto those people should be preached the Faith of lefus Christ, then as if they had beene Curredogs, or other beatls : but in lieu thereof, which is much worldthey have forbilden by expressen eanes the religious men to doe it, for because that that feemed vnto them an high rance likely to be, to the getting of their Gold, and there riches which their 60 anarice foreglutted in. And at the day there is no more knowledge of God throughout the Indies, to wit, whether he be of timber, of the aire, or the earth, then there was an hundred yeeres agoe, excepting New Spaine, whither the religious men haue gone, which is but a little corner of the Indies : and to are they perished, and doe perish all with Faith, and without Sacraments.

I brother Bartholomen de las Cafas or Cafass, religious of the Order of Saint Dominicke, which by the mercy of God am come into this Court of Spaine, to fue that the Hell might bee withdrawen from the Indies, and that thefe innumerable foules, redeemed by the bloud of Iefus Christ. fhould not perifh for euermore without remedie, but they might know their Creator and be faned; also for the care and compassion that I have of my Countrey, which is Castile to the end that God destroy it not for the great sinnes thereof, committed against the Faith and his honour, and against our neighbours: for certaine mens sakes notably zealous of the glory of God. touched with compassion of the afflictions and calamities of others, followers of this Court: howbeit, that I was purposed to doe it, but I could not so some have done it, because of my con-10 tinual occupations, I atchieued this Treatife and Summarie at Valencia, the eight of December, teas, the force being mounted to the highest type of extremitie, and all the violences, tyrannies, deiolations, anguishes, and calamities abouefaid, spred ouer all the Indies, where there are Spaniards, although they be more cruell in one part then they be in another, and more fausge

Mexico and her confines are leffe euill intreated. In truth, there they cannot execute their outrages openly, for that there and not ellewhere, there is some forme of inflice, as slender as it is. For because that there also they kill them with deuilish tributes : I am in good hope, that the Emperour and King of Spaine, our liege Soueraigne Lord, Don Charles the fift of that name, who beginneth to have videritanding of the mitchiefes and treafons that there have beene . and 20 are committed against those poore people, against the will of God, and his owne, (for they have alwaies cunningly concealed the truth from him) will roote out those euils, and take some order for this new world that God hath given him, as vnto one that loueth and doeth justice : whose honour and prosperous estate Imperiall, God almightie vouchsafe to blesse with long life, for the benefit of his whole vniuerfall Church, and to the faluation of his owne Royall foule. Amen.

After having couched in writing the premises, I understood of certaine Lawes and Ordinances, which his Maiestie hath made about this time at Barcellone, Anno 1 42. in the moneth of Nouember, and the yeere following at Madrill: by the which Ordinances, there is order fet downe, as the case them seemeth to require : to the end, to cut off the mischieses and fins which are committed against God and our neighbours, tending to the veter ruine and perdition of this 30 new world, His Maiestie hath made these Lawes, after having holden many assemblies of persons of authoritie, of learning and confeience, and after hauing had disputations & conferences in Valladelid : and finally with the affent and admite of all those others which have given their admite in writing, and have beene found neerest approaching vnto the Law of Iefus Christ, and withall free from the corruption and foyle of the treasures sobbed from the Indians: the which treasures have foyled the hands, and much more the foules of many, overwhom those treasures and avarice have got the mafterie, and where hence hath proceeded the blinding, which hath caufed for to marre all without remorfe. These Lawes being published, the creatures of those tyrants, who then were at the Court, drew out fundry copies thereof (for it grieued them at the hearts : for that it leemed them that thereby there was a doore flut vp vnto them against their rauine and 40 extortion afore rehearfed) and dispersed them into divers quarters of the Indies. Those which had the charge to robbe, root out, and confume by their tyrannies, (euen as they had neuer kept any good order but rather disorder, such as Lucifer himselfe might have held) as they read those copies before the new Judges might come to execute their charge, knowing it (as it is faid, and that very credible) by those who vntill this time have suported and maintayned their crimes and outrages, to be likely that fuch execution should be vied of those Lawes: they ranne into a mutinie in such wife, as that when the good Iudges were come to doe their duties, they adulfed with themselves (as those which had lost the feare and love of God) to cast off also all shame, and obedience which they owe to the King, and so tooke vnto them the name of name of open and arrant traitors, behaving themselves as most cruell and gracelesse tyrants: and principally, 50 in the Realme of Pern, where presently this yeere 1442. are committed acts to horrible and frightfull, as neuer were the like, neither in the Indies, nor in all the world belides, not onely against the Indians, the which all or in a manner all are slaine, all those Regions being dispeopled: but also betwixt themselves by a just judgement of God, who hath permitted that they should be the Butchers one of an other of them. By meanes of the Support of this rebellion , none of the Samiards. all the other parts of this new World would obey those Lawes: But under colour of making supplication to his Maiesty to the contrary, they have made an insurrection as well as the others. For that it irketh them to leave their estates and goods which they have vsurped, and to vabinde the bands of the Indians, whom they detaine in a perpetuall captiuitie. And there where they 60 ceale to kill with the fword, readily and at the inftant, they kill them a little and a little, by perfonall flaueries, and unjust charges and intolerable. That which the King could not hitherunto let: for because that they all, great and little, roue and robbe, some more, some lesse: some ouertly, and some couertly, and under the pretence of serning the King: dishonour God, and robbe the King.

Refer

Part of a Letter written by one which faw things mentioned.

Ee gave licence to put them to the Chaine, and in bondage: That which they did: and the Cap.
Laine led after hims three or foure drones of these persons enchained: and in this doing, he procu. red not that the Countres (hould bee inhabited and peopled (as had beene consenient should have done) but robbing from the Indians all their victuals they had, the inbornes of the Country were reduced to (such an extremetie, that there were found great numbers dead of famine in the high-wayes. And the Such an extremitie, that there were joining great mainter with the carriage of the Spaniards, hee was the Indians comming and going to and fro the coast, laden with the carriage of the Spaniards, hee was the To howfand death by thefe meanes of about ten thoufand. For not one that arrived at the very coast escaped death : by reason of the excessive beate of the Countrey.

After this, following the same traft and way, by the which Iohn of Ampulia was gone , bee sent the Indians which be had purchased in Quito, a day before him, to the end they should discouer the bourges of the Indians, and foodld pillage them, that when be came with bis maynie be might finde bis bootie ready. And those Indians were his owne mates : of the which such a one had two hundred, such a one three hundred, and fuch a one a bundred : according to the baggage that every one of them bad: which indians came to yeeld themselues to their Masters with all that they had robbed.

After that the faid Captaine was returned from the coast, hee determined to depart from Ouito. and to goe feete the Captaine Iohn de Ampudia, leaning thereto moe then two hundred of Footmen and Horsemen, among it whom were a great many Inhabitants of the Citie of Quito. Unto those Inhabitants tants the Captaine cane licence to carrie with them the Cacikes, that were escheated them in sharing. with as many Indians as they would. That which they did: and Alfonio Sanches Nuita carried forth with him his Cacike, with moe then an hundred Indians besides : and in like manner Peter Cibo. and bis Cousin: and they led out more then an hundred and fifty with their wines : and sundry also feed out their children, because that in a manner every one died for hunger. Also Moran Inhabitant of Popayan, sarried out moe then two bundred persons. And the like did all the rest, Citizens and Souldiers, enery one after his abilitie: the Souldiers crawing that they might base licence ginen them to captine these Indians men and women, which they carried forth: the which was granted them untill the death of the faid captimes, and those deceased, to take as many more.

When they departed out of the Pronince of Quito, they carried out moe then fixe thousand Indians. men and women, and of all those there never returned home into their Countrie twenty persons. For they died all through the great and excessive travell, which they made them indure in those broyling Comm tries contrary to their nature. It bappened at that sime, that one Altonfo Sanches, whom the fuld Captaine fent for Chieftaine ouer a certaine number of men into a Pronince there, met with a good company of women, and young boyes laden with villuals : who flaved waiting for them without moning from the place to give them of that which they had, and having so done, the Captaine commanded that they build be put to the Sharpe of the Sword.

It came to passe also, that at the time that the faud Captaine came into the Province of Lili, to a Towne called Palo, neere unto the great Riner, where hee found the Captaine Iohn de Ampudia, 40 which was gone before to discouer, and pacifie the Countrie : the faid Ampudia kept a Citie by him promided of a Garrison, in the name of his Maiestie, and of the Marques Francis of Pizarro: and had fet oner them for Governours ordinary, one Petre Solano of Quennoues, and eight Connsellours, and all the rest of the Countrie was in peace, and shared out amongst them. And as bee knew that the faid Captaine was in the faid River, bee came to fee him, with a great number of the Inbabr sants of the Countrie, and peacefull Indians, laden with victuals and fruits. Shorely after also all the neighbour Indians came to fee him, bringing him food. There were the Indians of Xamundi, and of Palo, and of Soliman, and of Bolo.

Now because that they brought no Mahis which he would have, he sent a great number of Spaniards with their Indians, to goe fourch for Mahis: commanding them to bring some where some they found so any. So went they to Bolo, and to Palo, and found the Indians men and women in their houses in peace and the faid Spaniards with those that were with them, tooke them, and robbed their Mahis them Gold, and Conerings, and all that they had, and bound many.

Wherefore, they seeing that the Captaine kept no Faith with them: all the Countrie arose and revolsed from the Spanish, whereof enfued great damage, and God and the Kings Maiestic offended: and by this meanes the Countrey remayned dispeopled: for that the Olomas and the Manipos their enemits, which are Mountaine people, and warlike, descended daily to take and robbe them, when they perceived the Citie and places of their abode left defitiute. And amongst them bee who was the firinger, aid Cruell famine. eate up his fellow, for all ded for famine. This done, the Captaine came to the Citie of Ampulia, where he was received for Generall. From this place they goe to a Citie called Tukilicui, from whence the Ca-60 cike of the place reelded forth incontinent in peace, a number of Indians going before him. The Captaine demanded Gold of him and of his Indians. The Cacike told him that hee had but a small deale, and that which he had should be given him: and immediatly all beganne to give him all that they had.

Whereupon the faid Captaine game unto energy of them a ticket, with the name of the faid Indian, for a testimonialithat he had genen him Gold: affirming that hee which should have never a ticket, should a estimation of the Doggesto bee denoused, because be gave him no Gold. Whereupon the Indians for feare that they were put m, gaue him all the Gold that they were able: and those which had none fled into the Mountaines and other Townes, for feare to bee flame. By reason whereof perished a great number of the native Inhabitants of the Countries. And Shortly after, the fuel Captaine commanded the Cacike to fend two Indians to another Citie named Dagna, to will them that they foodld come in peace, and bring bim Gold in abundance. And somming to another Citie, bee fent that night many Spaniards to take the Indians, and namely of Tulilicui. So at they brought the next morrow abone an bundred per fons : and all those which could be are burdens, they tooke them for themselves, and for their To Souldiers, and put them to the chaine, whereof they died all. And the faid Captaine game the little children unto the fast Cacike Tutilicus, that bee should este them: and in truth, the skinnes of those children are kept in the house of the land Cacike Tulilicui full of albes: and so departed hee from thence without an Interpreter, and went towards the Proninces of Caltile, where bee soyned himselfe unto the Captaine Iohn de Ampudia, who had fent him to discouer another way, doing both of them creat outrages, and much mischiefe unto the Inhabitants of the Countrie where they became. And the faid Iohn de Amoudia came to a Citie, the Cacike and Lord whereof called Bitacut, had caufed to make certaine Duches to defend himfelfe, and there fell into the same two Horses, the one of Antonie Rodondos, the other of Marc Marqueiss. That of Marcos Marquis died, the other not. For which cause the faid Ampudia commanded to take all the Indians men and women that might be : and thereupon take and 20 layed together more then an hundred persons, whom they cast aline into those Ditches and fine them. and brent withall more then an hundred boufes in the faid Citie. And in that manner met in a great

Citie, where without summoning (the Indians being at peace, and without any pokesman to goe betweene them) they five with their Speares a great number of them, making on them mortall warre, And wit is (sid foone after they were met, the faid Ampudia told the Captaine what he bad done in Bitaco, and bow he cast formany into the Ditches: and the faid Captaine answered, that it was well done, and that he for his part had done as much at the Risser Bamba, when hee entred the same, which is in the Prounce of Quito, and that he had flung into the Ditches moe then two hundred persons; and there they flared warring on all the Countrie. Soone after he entred into the Promince of Bitu, or Anzerma: in making cruell warre with fire and blond till they came as farre as unto the Salt-boules. And from 30 thence he fem Francis Garcia before him to pillage, who made cruell warre on the natural Inhabitants of the Countrie as he had done before bim. The Indians came onto him two and two, making fignes. that they demanded peace on the behalfe of the whole Countrie: alledging that they would affoord him, all that be could reasonably demand, were it Gold, or Women, or Victuals, onely that they would not kell them, as indeed it was a troth. For themfelues afterwards confessed it to bee fo. But the faid Francis Garcia bid them get them packing : telling them moreoner, that they were a fort of drunkards . and that beeunderstood them not, and foreturned bee to the place where the faid Captaine was, and they made a complet, to ouerranne all the Prosince, making criell warre on all the Countrie, in sposling, robbing and flaying all: and with the Souldiers, which bee brought with him, drew thence mee then two thousand faules, and all those died in the chaine. Before departing the place which bee had peopled, they 40 flue more then fine hundred per fous. And fo returned to the Pronince of Calili. And by the way if any lade or Indesie, were weary, in such fart, that they could not passe any further, they did incontinently bead them, paring it off from the Shoulders even with the chaine, to the end not to take the paines to open the locke thereof: and to the end that others which went the fame way bould not make wife to bee sicke, and by this meanes died they all: and in the high-wayes were left all those people which hee made his purchase of out of Quito, and of Pallo, and of Quilla Cangua, and of Paxa, and of Popayan, and of Lili, and of Cali, and of Anzerma, and a great unmber of people died. Alfo immedeatly upon their returne to the great Citie, they entred into it, flaying all that they could: taking in that day moe then three bundred per fons, &c.

Mong divers the remedies by Friat De les Cafee Bishop of the Royal Towns called Chiana, 50 Apropounded in the assemblie of fundry Prelates named Parsons, by his Maiesties commandement gathered together in the Towne of Valladolid, the yeere of our Lord 1542, for order and reformation to be observed in the Indies: the eighth in order was this enfuing, which comfifteth vpon twentie reasons and motions. The eight Remedie, is among all other principall and most in force, as without which all the rest are to no purpose, for that they all have relation thereunto, as every motion to his proper end, in whatfoeuer toucheth or is of any importance vnto your Maieftie, which no man can exprese; in as much as thereupon dependeth at the least the whole loffe or preferuation of the Indies. And the remedie that I speake of is this, that your Maiestie doe determine; decree, command , and 60 folemnely in your fourraigne Courts ordaine by pragmaticall Sactions and Royall Statutes, that all the Indies as well already fubdued, as hereatter to be fubdued, may be inferted, reduced, and incorporate into the Royall Crowne of Castile and Leon, to be holden in chiefe of your Maiette as free fubiects and vaffals, as they are. Likewife that they be not given in commendant unto the Spaniards: but that it stand as an inviolable constitution, determination and Royall Law, that they never, neither at this time, neither hereafter in time to come, may bee alienated or taken from the faid Royall Crowne, neither that they be given, commanded, demiled in fee farme, by deposit, commandement or alienation, either under any other title or manner whatsoeuer, and be difmembred from the Royall Crowne, for any whattoeuer the feruice or defert of any, either voon any necessicie that may happen, or for any cause or colour whatsoever that may be pretended. For the inviolable obleruation, or establishment of which Law, your Maiestie shall formally fweare by your Faith, and on your Word and Royall Crowne, and by all other facred things. whereby Chriftian Princes doe vitually fweare, that at no time neither your felfe, neither vour fuccessours in their ten Dominions, or in the Indies, so farre as in you shall he, shall renoke the fame : and you shall further set do wne in expresse words in your Royall Will and Testament that Io this decree be ever kept, maintayned, and vpholden: also that to farre as in your felfe or in them shall lie, they shall confirme and continue the same. And for proofe of the necessitie hereof there bee twenty reasons to be alledged : out of which twenty we have drawne and put in writing so many as may feeme to ferue to our purpofe.

the feeond reafon.

The Spaniards through their great avarice and covetouinelle to get, doe not permit any re. ligious persons to enter into their Townes and Holds which they possesse, alledging that they receive double losse by them. One and the principall is, that religious persons doe keepe the ledies occupied when they gather them together to their Sermons, fo as in the meane time their worke is omitted, while the Indians being idle, labour not : yea, it hath fo fallen out, that the Indians being in the Church at the Sermon, the Spaniard comming in, in the face of al the people, 20 hath taken fitty, or an hundred, or so many as he hath needed to carrie his baggage and stuffe, and fuch as would not goe, he hath loden with stripes, spurning them forth with his feet, thereby, to the great griefe both of the Indians, and of the religious perfons troubling and molesting all

Out of the third reafon.

The Spaniards are charged to instruct the Indians in our holy Catholike Faith: whereupon on a time when we examined Iohn Colmeners of Saint Martha, a fantasticall, ignorant, and foolish man, who had gotten a great Towne in commendam, and had a charge of foules, he could not tell how to bleffe himfelfe : and asking him what doctrine he taught the Indians committed to his charge, he faid, he gaue them to the Deuill : also that it was enough for him to say, Per figning fanctin Cruces. How can the Spaniards that travell to the Indies, how noble or valuant focuer they be, have any care of the soules, when the most of them are ignorant of their Creede and ten Commandements, and knowe nor the matters percayning to their owne faluation, neither doe travell to the Indies for any other purpose but to satisfie their owne defires and covetous affections, being for the most part vicious, corrupt, vinhonest, and disordinate persons: so as hee that would weigh them in an equall ballance, and compare them with the Indians, should find the Indians without comparison, more vertuous and holy then them. For the Indians what infidels focuer they be, doe neuertheleffe keepe them to one and their owne wife, as nature and neceffitie teacheth, and yet we fee fome Spaniard have fourteene or more, which Gods Commandements doe forbid. The Indians devoure no mans goods, they doe no man wrong : they doe not vexe, trouble, or flay any, where themselves doe see the Spaniards commit all finnes, iniquities, 40 and treacheries, that man can commit against all equitie and instice. To be briefe, the Indians doe not believe any thing, but doe mocke at all that is shewed them of God, being in truth fully rooted in this opinion of our God, that he is the worft, and most vniust, and the most wicked of all Gods, because he hath such servants : also concerning your Maiestie, they thinke you the most vniust and cruell of all Kings, because you doe both fend thither and keepe here such euill Subiects, supposing that your Maiestie doth feed upon humane fiesh and bloud. .

Our of the

The Spaniards having authoritie to command, or particular interest in the Indies, cannot by reason of their great couetousnesse abitaine from afflicting, troubling, disquieting, vexing, or oppreffing the Indians, taking away their goods, lands, wives, or children, and ving among them many other kindes of iniquitie, for the which they can have no redreffe, fanction, or warrant at 50 your Maiesties chiefe Iustice, because the Spaniards doe make them afraide : vea sometimes doe kill them left they should complaine. They doe night and day moorne after their Gods , thinking them to be better then ours at whom they fulfaine fuch harmes, while contrari wife of their owne they reape there so many commodities: and there is nothing that troubleth them so much as the Christians.

Out of the fifth reasons

Wee can show to your Maiestie ; that the Spaniards have within eight and thirty or fixty yeers flaine of just accompt, about twelve millions of your Subjects: I will not fay how mightely this world of people might have multiplied. This Countrey being the fertilest, whether for cattell, or mankinde, that is in the world t the foyle being for the most part, more temperate and fauoitrable to humane generation. All these innumerable persons, and all these 60 people have the Spaniards flaine, to the end to heare fway, governe, and command over the relt: and when in visual warres they have flaine them; then doe they vie the reft, who juftly have withthood them, in drawing Gold and Silver, yoking them together like healts, to make them carrie their burdens.

What plague of petitience, or mortalitie could there have fallen from heaven that had beene able to confume or make waste aboue 2500. leagues of flat Country, replenished with people, and would not have lett either travailer or inhabitant ?

The Spaniards onely for their temporall commoditie, have blemished the Indies with the Out of the preatest infamie, that any man even among the most horrible and villanous persons in the world, fixed reason. could be charged withall, and whereby they have fought to take them out of the degree of mankinde : namely that they were all polluted with the abominable finne against nature : which is a wretched and falle flander. For in all the great Hes, Hifpaniola, Saint lohn, Cuba, and Lamaica: Also in the fixtie Iles of Lucayos, which were inhabited with an infinite number of people, the fame was neuer thought vpon; in some other part there is a voice of a few: for whole lakes neuertheleffe all that world is not to be condemned. We may fay as much of the eating of mans flesh, which likewise those places that I have named are free of; although that in other places thy doe it indeede. They be also charged with their Idolatrie. The Spaniards have purposely and effectually hindered the teaching of the Law of God and Ielus Christ: with all other vertues among the Indians, and driven away the Religious persons out of Townes and Fortrelles, least they should see and disclose their tyrannies ; yea, they have by their suill example, infected and correspeed the Indies, teaching them many odious behaviours and vices, which before they knew not, as blasp'eming the name of Ielus Christ, practifing of vsurie, lying, and many other abhominations wholly repugnant to their nature.

inations wholly repugnant to their nature.

The Spaniards doe sucke from the Indians the whole substance of their bodies, because they unshreason. have nothing else in their houses. They make them spit bloud: They exhibite them to all dangers: They lay vpon them fundry and intollerable trauailes: and more then all this, They loade them with torments, beatings, and forrowings: To be briefe, they spoile and consume a thoufand manner of waves.

Befiles all that the Indians doe indure in feruing and pleasing the Spaniards, there is yet a Out of the butcher or cruell hangman, to keepe them in awe appointed in every Towne and place, and is eight reason. tearmed Estanciers or Calpifque: who hath authoritie to lay his clawes voon them, and to make them labour, and doe what the Lord Commander or chiefe thiefe will. So 2s if in hell there were no other torment, yet were this incomparable. This hangman whippeth them, he ladeth them 20 with stripes, he batteth them with scalding grease, he afflicteth them with continual torments and travels, hee forceth and defloureth their daughters and wives, dishonouring and abosing them : he deuoureth their Hens, which are their greatest treasure, not because themselves doe eate them, but that of them they offer presents and service to their greatest Lord and chiefe tyrant : he vexeth them with innumerable other torments and griefes : and least they should complaine of fo many injuries and miferies, this tyrant putteth them in feare, faying ; that hee will accuse them, and say that he see them commit Idolatry. To be briefe, they must please and contencaboue twenty difordinate and vnreasonable persons; so as they have foure Lords and Masters. Your Maiestie, their Cacique, him that hath them in commendam, and the Estanciero of whom I last spake, which Estanciare is to them more grieuous to beare then a quintall of lead, a-40 mong which we may also in truth adde all the Mochaches and Moores, that doe serue the Commander and Mafter, for they all doe moleit, oppresse, and rob these poore people.

It is greatly to be feared, least God will lay Spaine desolate, even for those horrible sinnes that Out of the this Nation hath committed in the Indies, whereof we doe euidently behold the fourge, and all tenth reasons the world doth fee and confesse that already it hangeth ouer our heads, wherewith God doth afflict and thew that he is highly offended in those parts through the great deftruction and waste of those Nations, in that of so great treasures have bin transported out of the Indies into Spaine (the like quantitie of Gold and Silver, neither King Salomon, neither any other worldly Prince euer had, iaw, or heard of) there is none left, belides that of that that was here before the Indies Note. were discouered, there is now none to be found, no neuer a whit. Hereof it commeth that things are thrife dearer then they were, the poore that have want doe fuffer great miferies : and your Maiestie cannot dispatch matters of great importance.

So long as Lares bare fway and ruled, that was nine yeares, there was no more care of teaching Out of the eleor bringing the Indians to faluation, neither was there any more labor employed, or once thought uenthreafon, of to that purpose, then if they had beene Trees, Stones, Dogs, or Cats. He wasted great townes and fortrelles, he gaue to one Spaniard a hundred Indians, to another fiftie, to another more or leffe, as every man was in liking or favour, and as it pleafed him to grant. He gave children, and old men, women with childe, and in childebed, men of countenance and commons, the naturall Lords of the Townes and Countries, he parted them among those to whom hee wished most wealth and commoditie, ving in his Letters of command this speech following : To you such a 60 man, are ginen fo many Indians with their Cacique, them tou fe in their Mines and affaires. So as all, great and small, yong and old, that could stand on their feete, men, women with childe, or in childebed, one or other, trauailed and wrought fo long as they had any breath in their bodies. He gaue leave to take away married men, and to make them draw Gold, tenne, twenty, thutie, tortie, or eightie leagues, or farther. The women remained in farme houses and granges, in great labours. So that the man and wife should not see one another in eight or ten moneths or a whole years. And at their meeting they were fo worne with labour and hunger, that they had no minde of cohabitation, whereby their generation ceased, and their poore children peruhed. because the mothers through hunger and trauaife had no milke wherewith to nourish them: This was a cause that in the Ile of Cuba, one of vs being there, there perished in the space of three moneths for hunger 7000, shildren, tome desperate women strangled and killed their owne children, others finding themselues with childe, did eate certaine hearbes thereby to loose their fruit, so that the men died in the Mines, the women perished in the farme houses, their whole generation in a short space decayed, and all the Countrey lay desolate. The said Gouernour, to the end without release to keepe them in continual labour, still gaue them away, and yethe- 10 fides their great labors he suffered them rigorously, and very austerely to be misuted. For the Soa. niards that had them in command, appointed certaine hangmen over them, some in the Mines. whom they tearmed Miniers, others in the Farmes, that were called Eftanciers : vnnaturall and pittileffe persons that beate them with staues and cords, boxing them, pricking them with needles, and still calling them dogges: neither did they ever shew any signe of humanity or clemencie, but all their dealings did confift of extreame seueritie, riot, and bitternesse.

Recerra

The Governour had also in the Spanish Townes and Forts, certaine of the most honorable and principall persons about him, whom he called Vilitors, vnto whom also besides their other ordinary portions that he had given them, he gave in respect of their offices one hundred Indians to ferge them. Thefe in the Townes were the greatest executioners, as being more cruell then the 20 reft. before whom Athuaziles del camoo brought all fuch as had bin taken in this chafe. The accufer, he that had them in command, was prefent, and accused them, saying ; Thu Indian. or those Indians are dogs, and will doe no fermice, but doe daily run to the Mountaines, there to become lotterers and vagabonds: and therefore required that they might be punished. Then the Visitor with his owne hands bound them to a Pale, and taking a pitched cord, in the Gallies called an Eele, which is as it were an iron rod, gaue them fo many itripes, and beate them fo cruelly, that the bloud running downe diuers p.rts of their bodies, they were left for dead. God is witnesse of the cruck-ties committed among those lambs.

Throughout the yeare they never knew holiday, neither might be suffered from labour little or much, Besides that during all this toyle, they never had sufficient food, no not of Cacabi. Some $ there were that through niggardlineffe wanting meate to give them, would fend them two or three dayes abroad into the fields and Mountaines, to feede where they might fatisfie themfelnes with such fruite as hang on the trees, and then you the force of that which they brought in their guts, would force them to labour two or three dayes more without gining them any one morfell to eate. The Gouernour commanded they should be paid their day wages and expenses for any labour or feruice that they should doe to the Spaniard, and their wages was three blankes every two dayes, which in the yeare amounted to halte a Caffelin. Thus grew they into fickenesse through long and grieuous trauailes, and that was soone caught among them. When the Spaniards perceived the fickeneffe increase, so as there was no profit or fervice to be looked for at their hands, then would they fend them home to their houses, gaing them to spend in some 49 thirty, forty, or eightie leagues trauaile, some halte dozen of Radish or Reforter, that is a kinde of namet roote, and a little Cagabi, wherewith the poore men travailed not farre before they should desperately dye, some went two or three leagues, some ten or twenty, so desirons to get to their owne home, there to finish their hellish life that they suffered, that they even fell downe dead by the wayes; fo as many times we found fome dead, others at deaths doore, others groning and pittifully to their powers pronouncing this word, bunger, bunger. Then the Gouernour feeing that the Spaniard had in this wife flame halfe or two third parts of thele Indians, whom hee had given them in command, he came a fresh to draw new lots, and make a new distribution of Indians: still supplying the number of his first gift, and this did hee almost Pedrarias entred into the firme land, as a Wolfe that had long beene statued doth into a flocke of quiet and innocent Sheepe and Lambs: and as Gods wrath and fcourge, committing infinite flughters, robberies, oppressions and cruelties, together with those Spaniards whom he had leuied, and laid waite to many Townes and Villages, which before had bin replenished with people, as it were Ant hils, as the like was never feene, heard of, or written by any that in our dates have deale in Histories. He robbed his Maiestie & Subiects with those whom he tooke with him, and the harme that he did amounted to aboue foure, yea fix Millions of Gold : hee laid aboue fortic leagues of land delart, namely from Darien, where he first arrived, vnto the Province of Nicaraga, one of the fruitfullest, richest and best inhabited lands in the world. From this curfed wretch sprang first the pestilence of giving the Indians in command, which afterward hath infected all 62 thole Indies where any Spaniards doe inhabit, and by whom all these Nations are consumed; so that from him & his commands have proceeded the certaine walte and detolation that your Maiestie haue fultained in these so great lands and dominions, since the years 1:04.

When we shall fay that the Spaniards have wasted your Maiesties, and laid you desolate form

Kingdomes bigger then Spaine, you must conceine that we have seene them wonderfully peopled; and now there is no body lefe, because the Spaniards have slaine all the naturall inhabitants by meanes aforeignd, and that of the Townes and Houses there remaines thought the bare wals: even as if Spains were all dispeopled, and that all the people being dead, there remained onely the wals of Cities, Townes and Caftels.

Your Maiestie have not out of all the Indies one marvedy of certaine perpetuall and set rent, Our of the but the whole reuenewes are as leaves and thraw gathered upon the earth, which being once gathered vp doe grow no more : euen fo is all the rent that your Maiestie hath in the Indies. vaine and of as small continuance as a blaft of winde, and that proceedeth onely of that the Spaniards 10 have had the Indians in their power; and as they doe daily flay and roft the inhabitants, so must be necessarily ensue that your Maiesties rights and rents doe wast and diminish.

The Kingdome of Spaine is in great danger to be lost, robbed, oppressed and made desolate by forraigne Nations, namely by the Turkes and Moores, because that God who is the most just. true, and foueraigne King ouer all the world, is wroth for the great finnes and offences that the Spaniards have committed throughout the Indies. But had chosen Spaine as his minister and infrument, to illuminate and bring them to his knowledge, and as it had bin for a worldly recompence, besides the eternal reward, had granted her so great naturall riches, and discouered for her fuch and fo great truitfull and pleafant lands,&c.

In as much as our life is short, I doe take God to witnesse with all the Hierarchies and thrones 20 of Angels, all the Saints of the heavenly court, and all the men in the world; yea, even those that shall hereafter be borne, of the certificate that here I doe exhibite: also of this the discharge of my conscience, namely that if his Maiestie granteth to the Spaniards the aforesaid divellish and tyrannous partition, not with Handing what locuer lawes or flatutes shall be deuised, wet will the Indies in first space be laid desarcand dispeopled, even as the He of Hipaniola is at this present, which otherwise would be most fruitfull and fertile; together with other the lles & lands aboue 2000 leagues about, besides Hispaniola it selfe and other lands both farre and neere. And for those finnes, as the holy Scripture doth very well informe, God will horribly chaftize, and peraduenture wholly lubuert and roote out all Spains. Anno 1542.

The summe of the disputation betweene Fryer BARTHOLOMEVY de las CASAS or CASAVS, and Doctor SEPVLVEDA.

Octor Sepulueda, the Emperours chronographer, having information, and being perfwa? Deed by certaine of those Spaniards, who were most guiltie in the slanghters and wastes committed among the Indian people, wrote a Booke in Latine, in forme of a Dialogue very eloquently, and furnished with all flowers, and precepts of Rhetoricke, as indeede the man is very learned and excellent in the faid tongue : which Booke confifted vpon two principall conclusions; 40 the one, That the Spaniards warres against the Indians, were as concerning the cause and equitie that moved them thereto, very just : also, that generally the like warre may and ought to be continued. His other conclusion, that the Indians are bound to submit themselves to the Spaniards, government, as the foolish to the wife : if they will not yeelde, then that the Spaniards may (as he affirmeth) warre voon them. These are the two causes of the losse and destruction of so infinite numbers of people : also that aboue 2000, leagues of the maine land, are by fundry new kindes of Spanish cruelties and inhumaine dealings bin left desolate in the Ilands : namely by Conquests and Commands as hee now nameth those which were wont to be called

The faid Doctor Sepulneda coloureth his Treatile, under the pretence of publishing the title which the Kings of Castile and Lean doe challenge in the government and universall loveraigntie of this Indian world; fo feeking to cloake that doctrine which he endeuouteth to differie and featter as well in thefe lands, as also through the Kingdomes of the Indians. This Booke he exhibited to the royall Councell of the Indies, very earnestly and importunately lying upon them for licence to print it, which they fundry times denied him in respect of the offence, dangers, and manifest detriment, that it seemed to bring to the Common-wealth.

The Doctor feeing that here he could not publish his Booke, for that the Counfell of the Inder would not suffer it, he dealt so farre with his friends that followed the Emperours Courc, that they got him a Patent, whereby his Maiestie directed him to the royall Counsell of Castile, who knew nothing of the Indian affaires : voon the comming of these Letters the Court and 60 Cou sell being at Aranda in Due"o, the yeare 1547. Fryer Bartholomen de las Cafas or Cafain, Bishop of the royall towne of Chiapa, by hap arrived there, comming from the Indians, and hauing intelligence of Doctor Sepulneda his dritts and deuifes, had notice also of the Contents of his whole Booke : but vinderitanding the Authors permitious blindenesse, as also the irrecoverable loffes that might endue upon the printing of this Booke, with might and maine with flood it, diffeouring and reuealing the poyfor wherewith it abounded, and whereto it pretended.

The Lords of the Royall Countaile of Castile, as wife and just ludges, determined therefore to fend the faid Booke to the Vuiuersities of Salamanca and Alcala, the matter being for the most part therein Theologically handled, with commandement to examine it, and if it might bee printed, to figne it : which Vniuerfities after many exact and diligent disputations, concluded that it might not be printed, as contavnius corrupt doctrine.

The Doctor not so fatisfied, but complaining of the Vniuersities aforesaid, determined, notwithflanding to many denials and repulles at both the Royall Countailes, to fend his Treatile to his friends at Rome, to the end there to print it, having first transformed it into a certaine App. logie written to the Bilhop of Segonia, because the same Bilhop having peruled the Treatie and Booke aforesaid, had brotherly and charitably as his friend by Letters reprooued and counsailed him. The Emperour vnderstanding of the Impression of the faid Booke and Apologie, did im. mediately dispatch his Letters Patents, for the calling in and suppression of the same, comman. ding likewife to gather in againe all Copies thereof throughout Cafile. For the faid Doctone had published also in the Castilian Language a certaine abstract of the said Booke, thereby to make it more common to all the Land : and to the end do that the Commons, and fuch as you derstood no Latine, might have some vie thereof, as being a matter agreeable and toothsometo fuch as coueted great riches, and fought wayes to clime to other estates, then either themselves, or their Predeceffors could neuer attaine vnto without great coft , labour, and cares, and oftentimes with the loffe and destruction of divers.

Which when the Bishop of Chiapa understood, hee determined also to write an Apologie in 2 the vulgar tongue, against the said Doctors summarie in defence of the Indies, therein impugning and undermining his foundations, and answering all reasons, or whatsoeuer the Doctor could allease for himselfe, therein displaying and setting before the peoples face the dangers, incomeniences and harmes in the faid doctrine contained.

Thus as many things patied on both fides, his Maiestie in the yeere 1550, called to Valadeld. an Affembly of learned men, as well Diuines as Lawyers, who beging joyned with the Royall counfaile of the Indies should argue, and among them conclude, whether it were lawfull without breach of Iustice, to leuie warres, commonly tearmed conquests, against the Inhabitants of those Countries, without any new offence by them committed, their infidelity excepted, Dector Sepulneda was fummoned to come and fay what he could, and being entred the Counfaile Chamber, did at the first Seision veter his whole minde. Then was the faid Bishop likewist called, who for the space of fine dayes, continually did reade his Apologie : but being somewhat long, the Divines and Lawyers there affembled, befought the Learned and Reverend Father Deminicke Soto his Maiesties Contestor, and a Dominican Friar, who was there present . to reduce it into a Summary, and to make to many Copies as there were Lords, that is fourteene, to the end they all having fludied upon the matter, might afterward in the feare of God fay they mindes.

The faid Reu-rend Father and Master Soto, set downe in the faid Summary, the Doctors resfons, with the Bishops answeres to the same. Then had the Doctour at his request a Copie deli- in uered him to answere : out of which Summarie he gathered twelue against himselfe, whereto he madetwelve answeres, against which answeres the Bishop framed twelve Replyes.

Doctor Sepulueda his Prologue to the Lords of the Affembly, beganne thus. Most worthy and Noble Lords, fith your Lordships and Graces have as Judges for the space of five or fixe dayes heard the Lord Bishop of Chiapa reade that Booke, whereinto he hath many yeeres laboured to gather all the reasons that either himselfe, or others could invent to prove the conquest of the Indies to be vniuit, as feeking first to subdue barbarous Nations before we preach the Gospell vntothem, which have beene the viuall course correspondent to the grant made by Pope Alexander the fixt, which all Kings and Nations have hitherto taken and observed: it is meete, and I doe so defire you, that I who take upon me to defend the grant and authority of the Apostolike Sea, together 50 with the equitie and honour of our Kings and Nation, &c.

Out of which Replies, here followeth the Abstract of two that stand vs insteed. The report is vntrue that the Indians did yeerely facrifice in New Spaine twenty thousand persons : either one hundred or fiftie. For had that beene fo, we could not now have found there fo much people; and therefore the Tyrants have invented it, thereby to excuse and instifie their Tyrannies : alio to detaine so many of the Indians as escaped the oppression and desolation of the first Vintage, in bondage and tyrannie. But we may more truely fay, that the Spaniards during their abode in the Indies, have yeerely facrificed to their so deerely beloued and reverend Goddelle Courton frest more people, then the Indians have done in a hundred yeeres. This doe the Heavens, the Earth, the Elements, and the Starres both testifie and bewaile: the Tyrants, yea, the very Ministers of 60 these mischiefes cannot deny it. For it is euident how greatly these Countries at our first entric iwarmed with people, as also how wee have now laid it waste, and dispeopled the same : wee might euen blush for shame, that having given over all feare of God, wee will yet nevertheleste feeke to colour and excuse these our so execrable demeanours : considering that only for getting

CHAP. S. Many Soules destroyed. Psllareretted. Two Serpents. wealth and riches, we have in fortie five or fortie eight yeeres, wasted and confirmed more Land then all Ewope, yea and part of Asia, doe in length and breath containe, robbing and vurping which we have feene well inhabited with hu- Twenty Milwhen the warm whom there have been flaine and deftroyed twentie "Millions of foules. lions deftroid In the welfto and last Reply as followeth, The Spaniards have not entred into India for any de-In the twellto and tast Kept as Journets, a 100 production, either to fauour, and procure the lions, which is fire to exalt Gols honour, or for zeale to Christian Religion, either to fauour, and procure the lions, which is faluation of their Neighbours, no, neither for their Princes seruice, whereof they doe fo vainely tobe voderbrigge : but Couetouneffs bath brought them, and Ambition hath allured them to the perpetu- flood of fome all dominion ouer the Indies, which they as Tyrants and Deuils, doe court to bee parted among greater part,

an dominion one the American hardy, doe feeke no other but to expell and drue the Kings of not of all the to them; and to speake plainly and flatly, doe feeke no other but to expell and drue the Kings of Indies, Yea, Laftle out of all that World, and them felues leizing thereupon, by Trannie to viurpe and take only in Now ypon them all Royall Sourrementie.

ras. Guatimala. Venefuels, Peru, and the Cooft of Peris, he reckoneth about 20. Millons: befides three Millions in Hispaniels, halfe a Mullion in the r organa cara, and tallion in lamate, and Saint least Hands: 800000 in Tora Firms, in Nicarque, $5,0000, that I men-Lucques, 0.00000. Of talue multitudes in Cube, Fanuce, Florida, Talifes, Tacatan, Saint Mariba, Car. bagens, New Granads , River of tion not the innumerable multitudes in Cube, Fanuce, Florida, Talifes, Tacatan, Saint Mariba, Car. bagens, New Granads , River of CHAP. V.

Notes of Voyages and Plantations of the French in the Northerne America : both in Florida and Canada.

F the French Plantation in that part of Brafill by Villagaynon, which therefore Frier Themet called France Antartike, you have feene alreadie in Leriau. Befides the Erench have almost from the first beginnings of the Spanish Plantation, with the Eroseo have almost from one mix neglicitings of the Symple ratheron, with As cut of Onimen.of. warre haunted those Coasts, and taken many Spanish prifes. The French Agency of have allo made other Discourries, and settled some habitation for a time in the in before ob-Northerne parts of the New World.

John Verranano a Florentine was ient. Anno 1524. by King Francis the first, and Madame Regent his Mother, who is faid to have discourred from the eight and twentieth to the fitteth degree; (alt which and much more had long before beene discouerd by Sir Sebastian Cabos for the Sir Seb, Cabos; King of England, who was the first that fet foote on the American Continent in behalfe of any Chriftian Prince Anne 1496, or 45 otheses 1497, and therefore the French reckoning tallet he fhort, fome of which Nation von Verazante Discourry challenge I know not what right to all that Coult, and make their New France neere as great as all Europe. Toleaue that, we are to do them Historicall right in relating their actions in those parts. The Rives and Customes of Florida are related at large by Rene Laudenniere, by Master Haklant translated, and in his Workes published. Laudonniere was fent by that famous Admirall Chaffillon with John Ribalt, Anno 1562: who ar- Cap, Ribalt. 40 rived at Cape François in Florida in thirtie degrees and there erected a Pillar with the French Armes. The River they called the Rauer of May, having entred it on May day. In the Woods they found great store of red and white Mulberie Trees, and on their tops an infinite number of Silk-wormes, Eight other Rivers they diffcouered to which they gave the names of Seine, Sem- Sike-wormes me, Lopre; Cherente, Garonne, Gironde, Belle, Grande, and after that Belle a Voire, and Port Royal; pore Royal in In this last they anchored; the River at the mouth is three French leagues broad : hee sayled vp 32. degrees. many leagues, and erecited another like Pillar of ftones. Ribat having built a Fort and furnished it wichtprouifions, called it Charles Bort, and left a Golome there vider Captaine Albert. Thefe found great kindnelle with their Indian Neighbours, till differeion happened amongst themfelues, the Captaine for a small fault hanging a Souldier and exercising feveritie were the reft, Mutinie, Capt 50 which thereupon in a mutinie flue him, and having cholen a new Captaine, they built a Paintife Albert flaine. and furnished it alwell as they sould to returne for France, but furprized in the way with calmes, and expence of their prouition, they first did eare their shoes and Buffe lerkins, and yet continuing familhed, they killed one of their fellowes called La Chere, and made cheere of him, and after mer with an English Barke which releeved them, and fetting someon Land, brought the rest to Queene Elizabeth. The cause of their not relecting according to promise was the Civil warres, which beeing compounded the Admirall procured the King to tend three Stips to Florida under the command of the Author Rene Landonniere, which let taile in Aprill 1564. He went on howest Dominica, The fecond in which lland his men killed two Serpents nine foote long, and as bigge anamant logge, The Golonie. 60 two and twentiethof Iune, they landed in Floritanten leagues about Capa Plangues; and after in the River of May, where the Indians very toy tothly welcommed them, and sthe Bone Piller & Stone Piller rected by Ribalt was crowned with bayes and baskers of Mill or Marz fet at the foot, and they worthipp d. killed the lame with great reusence. One of Paracouff (or the King) his Somica prefence scale , Captain with a wedge of filter. With another Parceally they law one old Father Wild with tage,

Note, the Popes Bull is pretended: which, and our answere to it. Men nigh 500. veeres old. The Vaffals are petty N'e-Lords of Vilbut living, and of his loines fixe generations descended, all present, so that the Sonne of the eledeft was imposed two hundred and fiftie yeeres old. They planted themselues on this River of May, and there built a Fort which they called Carolina of their King Charles. Landonniere fent Outroni his Lieutenant to fearch out the people called Tomages, whence that filter wedge had comme, and there heard of a great King Olata Ouae Utina, to whom fortie Kings were veliale. Seturiona was laid to have thirtie, and to be enemie to Vina.

A tearefull lightning happened which burned fine hundred acres of ground, and all the fowler after which followed fuch a hear, that as many fish were dead therewith at the mouth of the River, as would have laden fiftie Carts, and of their putrifaction gricuous diseases. The Sanger had thought the French had done it with their Ordnance. He got some prisoners of Vimas fish to iects which Saturiona had taken and fent them to him, fome of his men affiffing Vina in his warres against Poranon one of his enemies, and returning with some quantitie of Silver Murinies.

-lages.

Whiles things continued in good termes with the Sanages Mutinies and Conspiracies fell out among it the French, fome confpiring to kill the Captaine, others running away with the Barke one of which robbed by S.a, and after was driven by famine to feeke to the Spaniards at Hanne and when two other Barkes were a building, a third Contpiracie feized on the Captaine, detain ned him Pritoner, and forced him to subscribe their passe with these two Barkes. Away they went and the next division was among the hem selves, one Barke departing from the others, One of them after divers Piracies came backe, and the chiefe mutinies were executed. Francis less 10 one of the other Barke was he which after brought the Spaniards thither to deftroy them. The Indians vie to keepe in the Woods Ianuarie, Februarie, and March, and live on what they take The Virginians in hunging; fo that the French neither receiving their expected reliefe from France, nor from the a o bau luch Sanages which had no Corne, having before fold them what they had, fuffered grieuous famine: they retolued to build a vetfell able to carrie them into France, the Sauages making Aduntages of their necessities (according to the wonted perindiouinesse of those wilde people) whereupon they tooke King Vina Pritoner with his Sonne to get food for his ranfome. The famine was fo

a cuft-m:-

Civell famine. Tharpe that it made the bones to grow thorow the skinne, and when the Maiz by the and of May came to some ripenesse, food it selte ouercame their weake stomacks. Some reliefe they had by Sit lobn Hawkens who came thicher with foure thips, guided by a man of Deepe which had been ! there in Ribalts Voyage, who also offered to transport hum, and fet them all on land in France. This he refuted, but made good aduantage hereof with the Sanages, telling them that this was his brother which brought him great reliefe and plentie, whereupon all fought his friendfhin. His men at last generally fearing to continue in that milery, wanting both apparell and victual, and meanes to returne, to wrought with him, that not daring to give the Silver, and fuch things ashe had gotten in the Countrie (which might bring an English Plantation into those parts) he bought a flup of Sir John Hawkens, who partly fild and partly gave them provisions also of apparell and victuall for their returne; and as Laudonniere acknowledgeth like a charitable man, faued

Whiles thus they were preparing to fet faile. Captaine Ribals came into the River with feven 40

faile foure greater and three leffe (whom the Admirall had fent, hearing that Landomiere lorded

but in swiftnesse of faile, whereby they escaped the pursuite of the Spaniards, and observed their

I as his oreat kindnefle. Third Flor dan Vovage by C.

and domineered in cyrannicall and infolent manner) and svas folemnely welcommed in the end of August 156c. A while after, when as the Indians had filled Captaine Ribals with golden hopes Gold Mynes of the Myries at Apalatei, some proofes whereof were found to be perfect gold, fixe great ships of Spaniards same into the River on the fourth of September, and madefaire thew to the French, which trulted them neuer the more, but let flip their Anchors and fled; being no way matchable

Maffacre. Cap. Dome !T

Three Forts Spansb.

courie fending word thereof to Captaine Ribatt. The High Admiral Chaftillon also had in his the French and last Letters written to Ribale, that he had intelligence out of Spaine, of Don Pedro Melender plantin Flati- his Expedition to Florida, suft before his comming from France, Captaine Ribals embarkes him- 50 leite the eighbor September, pretending to goe feeke the Spaniards, which foone after came to Reke the French at their Fott, guided by Francis lean, before a Mutiner . now also a Traytour, who showed the Captaine to the Spaniardi. Notwithstanding their assault, Laudonniere made an escape with some others over the Marishes into the ships, and so returned first into England. and after into France. Captaine Ribalt was surprized with a Tempest which wracked him vpon the Coast, and all his ships were castaway, himselfe hardly escaping drowning, but not escaping the more then Rockie Spaniards which madacred him and all his companie. This butcherin was revenged in a fourth Floridan Voyage made from France , by Captains Gaurgues, Anna 1567, who borrowed and fold to fee forththree thips, and entring the River Tasanecours (which site Erench called Seine) he made league with eight Sausee Kings, which had 60 each thereof with swelue hundred Souldiers in them well prouded for Munition.

beene much supighted by the Spaniards, and were growne as diffigurential to them. The Spaniards were accounted foure fundred iftong, and had divided themselves into three Forts vpon the River of Many she greateit begun by the French; two fmaller nerrer the Rivers mouth to forthe

In Aprill 1568, he tooke their two Forts and flue all the Spaniards, the vindicative Sanages giung him vehement and eager affiftance, especially Oloscara, Nephew to Saintiona. As they went to the Fort, he faid, that he should die there, and therefore defined Gonrewes to give that to his wife which he would have given himfelfe, that it might bee buried with himfor his better. Why the Sassa his wire with the volume to the Village of the Sonies departed. This Fort was taken, the Spaniards forme flame, goods interred others taken, and hanged on the same trees on which the French hung; flue of which on of these with them. Spaniards: confessed he had hanged, and now acknowledged the Diuine Instice. In steed of the Writings which Melendes had hanged over them, I doe not this as to Frenchmen but as to Lutherans, Gourgues let vp another, I doe not this as to Spaniards or Mariners, but as to Traitors, Robbers Inflrequitall, to and Muriberers. The Forts he razed, not having men to keepe them, and in Iune following arrived in Rockel. Comming to the King with expectation of reward, the Spanift King had to poffessed him, that he was faine to hide himselfe. This Dominicke de Gourgnes had beene an old Souldier, once imprisoned, and of a Captaine made a Gally-flaue by the Spaniards, and grew for his feruice in reputation with the Queene of England : he died Anno 1582. And thus much of the French Voyages in Florida, for Voginias lake worthy to be knowne of the English. Now for their more Northerne Voyages and Plantations. Mafter Haklurs hath published the Voyages of laques Cartier, who in Aprill 1534. departed from Saint Malo with two ships, and in May arrived at Newfoundland. On the one and twentieth of May they came to the Iland of Birds a league about, to full of Birds as if they were fowel and there, and a hundred times as many hourring about it, some as bigge as layes, blacke and white liand or finds with beakes like Crowes, lying alway on the Sea; their wings not bigger then halic ones hand, in 49 degrees which makes that they cannot fle high. In leffe then halfe an houre they filled two Boats with 40, minutes, them. These they named Aporatz; another lesse Port, which put them elues under the wings of others greater, they called Godeta, a third, bigger and white, byting like Dogges they called Margauly, Though the lland be fourteene leagues from the Continent, Beares come thither to Margauly feed on those Birds. One white one as bigge as a Kow they killed in her swimming, and found feeme to be her good meate. Three such Bird Hands they also discourred the fine and twentieth of June, which Pengmins. they called the llands of Marganix. There also they found Morfes, Beares and Wolues, But thele Northerne Coasts are better knowne to our Countrymen : then that I should mention his to French names, which from Cabets time almost forty yeeres before had beene knowne to the English. The next yeere Cartier fet forth with three ships to Saint Lawrence his Bay, and so to the Ria uer of Hochelaga. They went to Canada, and to the Towne of Hochelaga. They faw the great and fwift fall of the River, and were told of three more therein. The Scorbute that Winter killed fine and twentie of their men in their Fort: the rest recoursed by the vie the sip and leanes of a tree called Hameda, which was thought to be Saffafras. These reports of Canada, Saguenas, and Hochelaga, caused King Francis to fend him againe, Arno 1540. purpoting also to fend lobn Francis de la Roche, Lord of Robewall to be his Lieutenant in the Countries of Canada, Saguenay, L. of Rebenell, and Hochelaga. Hee went Anno 1542, his chiefe Pilot was lobn Alphonso of Xantongne, whose 8) Notes, as also the Relation of that Voyage with three shippes, and two hundred persons, men, women and children, Matter Hablust hath recorded. He built a Fort and wintered there: and then returned. These were the French beginnings, who have continued their Trading in those parts by yeerly Voyages to that Coast to these times, for fishing, and sometimes for Beauers skinnes and other Commodities. One Sanales is faid to have made two and forty Voyages to those parts. Sanaless 42. Marke Lescarbos hath published a large Booke called Nona Francia, and additions thereto, part Voya, esto of which we have here for better intelligence of those parts, added with Champleins Discourries. Newfounding.

CHAP. VI.

The Voyage of SAMVEL CHAMPLAINE of Brouage, made unto Canada in the yeere 1603. dedicated to CHARLES de Montmorencie, dre, High Admirall of France.

Edeparted from Honflew, the fifteenth day of March 1602. This day we put in- Their Voyago to the Roade of New Haum, because the winde was contrary. The Sunday fol. to Tadaular, lowing being the fixteenth of the faid moneth, we fet faile to proceed on our Voy. the fail to the faid moneth, we fet faile to proceed on our Voy. age. The feuenteenth day following, we had fight of lersey and Tarnsey, which are Hes between the Coaft of Normandie and England. The eighteenth of the laid moneth, wee discryed the Coast of Britame. The nineteemth, at seven of the clocke at night, we made account that we were thwart of Ulhent. The one and twentieth, at feuen of clocke in the morning, we met with leuen ships of Hollanders, which to our sudgement came from the

S.Marie.

about cight

Camption. Gashepe.

The River

Mantanne.

The Pike.

ter on the

Indies. On Eafter dav, the thirtieth of the faid moneth, wee were encountred with a great for ne, which feemed rather to be thunder then winde, which lasted the space of seuenteene dayes, but not to great as it was theewe first dayes; and during the faid time we rather lost way then gained.

The fix: eenth day of Aprill the ftorme began to cease, and the Sea became more calme then before, to the contentment of all the Company; in such fort as continuing our faid course vatill the cighteenth of the fail moneth, we met with a very high Mountaine of Ice. The morrow A banks of lee after we discried a banke of Ice, which continued about eight leagues in length, with an infinite A same of the mamber of other smaller peeces of Ice, which hindred our passage. And by the indgement of our long in 45.de- Pilot, the faid flakes or Ice were one hundred or one hundred & twenty leagues from the Coun- Io grees and two try of Canada: and we wereing degrees and two third parts; & we found paffage in Addes. The frond of May, at eleuen of clocke of the day, we came vpon The Banke in 44. degrees one third The Ranke in and deer, one part. The fixt of the faid moneth, we came to neere the land that we heard the Seabeateagainst the shore, but we could not descrie the same through the thicknesse of the fogge, whereunto thele coails are lubiret; which was the cause that we put farther certaine leagues into the Sea. fubica to fogs. vntill the next day in the morning, when we descried land, the weather being very cleere, which The Cape of was the Cape of Saint Marie. The twelfth day following we were overtaken with a great flaw of winde, which lafted two dayes. The fifteenth of the faid moneth, wee descried the Isles of The Isles of S. Saint Peter. The fewenteenth following we met with a banke of Ice neere Cape de Raie, fixe leagues in length, which caufed vs to ftrike faile all the night, to avoide the danger we might in- 20 A broke of Le course. The next day we fet faile, and deforied Capelle Raie, and the Illes of Saint Paul, and Cape 6.1:21 ues long de Saint Laurence, which is on the South fide. And from the faid Cape of Saint Laurence vnto Cape ac Raie. Cape de Raie, is eighteene leagues, which is the breadth of the entrance of the great Gulfe of Canada.

The fame day, about ten of the clocke in the morning, we met with another Hand of Ice, which was about eight leagues long. The twentieth of the faid moneth, we discried an Ille, Antland of Ice which containeth fome five and twenty or thirty leagues in length, which is called the Isle of Assumption, which is the entrance of the River of Canada. The next day we descried Gachepe which is a very high land, and began to enter into the faid River of Canada, ranging the South The lie of A/coaft vnto the River of Mantanne, which is from the faid Gachepe fixtie fine leagues; from the faid River of Mantanue we failed as farre as the Pite, which is twenty leagues, which is on the South fide alfo: from the faid Pike we failed ouer the River vnto the port of Tadoufac, which is fifteene leagues. All these Countries are very high, and barren, yeelding no commoditie. The foure and twentieth of the faid moneth we cast anker before Tadonfae, and the fix and twentieth Gache cooleg we entred into the faid Port, which is made like to a creeke in the entrance of the River of Saquenay, where there is a very firange current and tide, for the fwiftneffe and depth thereof. where The description formetimes strong windes do blow, because of the cold which they bring with them; it is thought on or the hat that the faid River is five and forty or fiftie leagues vnto the first fall, and it commeth from the Tadoufac from North North-west. The faid Port of Tadoufac is little, wherein there cannot ride about tenor The River of Sagenay falle h twelve Ships : but there is water enough toward the East, toward the opening of the said River 40 of Sagenay along by a little hill, which salmost cut off from the maine by the Sea: The rest of into Camada. the Countrie are very high Mountaines, whereon there is little mould, but rockes and fands full This of Sagenav is in Lefcar. of woods of Pines, Cypreffes, Fir-trees, Burch , and fome other forts of trees of small price. bots Mapex-There is a little Poole neere vnto the faid Port, enclosed with Mountaines couered with woods. prefied to en-At the entrance of the faid Port there are two points, the one on the West fide running a league into the Sea, which is called Saint Matthewes point; and the other on the South-east fide, North fide of Canada about containing a quarter of a league, which is called the point of all the Dinels. The South and South 51.01 40, trom South-east, and South South-west windes doe strike into the faid hauen. But from Saint Matthence to the Sca shore of themes Point, to the said Point of all the Deuels, is very neere a league : Both these Points are dry Canadais about at a low water.

which entring into the Sca, hath 100 miles, and up to the fals (which Voyage followeth) continue in a marucilous breadth, fo that it may be for greatnesse reputed greater then any other River in our world or in the Northerne parts of the New sfull allo of Lakes and Hands for greater magnificence,

The great Sa-THe feuen and twentieth day we fought the Sauages at the Point of Saint Matthew, which gamo, their is a league from Tadoufac, with the two Sauages whom Monfieur du Pour brought with t-- As & wars. him, to make report of that which they had seene in France, and of the good entertainement The Iraceis. which the King had given them. As foone as we were landed we went to the Caban of their Two Sauages great Sagamo, which is called Anadabijou, where we found him with some eightie ora hundred brought out of of his companions, which were making Tabagie, that is to fay, a Feath. Hee received vs very 60 well, according to the custome of the Countrey, and made vasit downe by him, and all the Sauages fat along one by another on both fides of the faid Cabine. One of the Sauages which we or one of the found that brought with vs began to make his Oration of the good entertainement which the king had given them, and of the good viage that they had received in France, and that they might affine we brought themselves that his said Maiestie wished them well, and defired to people their Countrey, and to make peace with their enemies (which are the Irecois) or to fend them forces to vanguish them. man peace which they had feene, and The Investiges, Houses, and people which they had feene, and The Investiges our manner of liuing. He was heard with to great filence, as more cannot be vetered. Now when nemies to de our manner or monte, as was neared within gives interior as more cannot be vetteren. Prove within he had ended his Oration, the faid grand Sagne Anadobies, having he area him attentively additions.

Began to take Tobacco, and game to the faid Monfieur da Pons Grans of Saint Male, and to mee, and to certaine other Sagamos which were by him : after he had taken store of Tobacco, he beean to make his Oration toall, speaking diftinctly, resting sometimes a little, and then speaking againe, faying, that doubtlefle they ought to be very glad to have his Maiestie for their great The Oration in friend: they answered all with one voyce, ho, ho, ho, which is to say, yea, yea, yea, He proceeding forward in his speech, faid, That he was very well content that his faid Maleftie should people their Countrey, and make warre against their enemies, and that there was no Nation in the world to which they willied more good, then to the Franch. In fine, hee gaue them all to understand what good and press they might receive of his faid Maiestie. When hee had ended his foeeth, we went out of his Cabine, and they began to make their Tabagie or Feaft, which they make with the fleft of Origuac, which it like an Oxe, of Beares, of Seales, and Beuers, which are the most ordinary victuals which they have, & with great flore of wilde Fowle. They Beaft has a had eight or ten Kettels full of meate in the middelt of the faid Cabine, and they were fet one Oze. from another some fix paces, and each one woon a seuerall fire. The men sat on both sides the to houle (as I faid before) with his dift made of the barke of a tree: and when the meate is fodden. there is one which deuideth to every man his part in the fame diffies, wherein they feede very filthily, for when their hands be fattie, they rub them on their haire, or elfe on the haire of their dogs, whereof they have flore to hune with, Before their meate was fodden, one of them role vp, and took a dog, & danced about the faid Kettels from the one end of the Cabin to the other: when he came before the great Sageme, he cast his dog perforce voon the ground, and then all of them with one voice, cried, ho, ho, which being done, he went and fat him downe in his place; then immediately another role vo and did the like, and fo they continued untill the meate was fodden. When they had ended their Feaft, they began to dance, taking the heads of their enemies in their hands, which hanged you the wall behinde them; and in figne of ioy there is one or two to which fing, moderating their voice by the measure of their hands, which they beate woon their knees, then they reft fometimes, and cry, ho, he, ho; and begin againe to dance, & blow like a man that is out of breath. They made this triumph for a victory which they had gotten of the Ireceit, A videole con of whom they had flaine some hundred, whose heads they cut off, which they had with them for ten of the Irithe ceremony. They were three Nations when they went to war; the Effectioning, Algorimequins, and Mountainers, to the number of a thousand, when they went to war against the freese, whom they encountred at the mouth of the River of the land Irocon, and flew an hundred of them. The war which they make is altogether by furprifes, for otherwise they would be out of hatt; & they The Riner of feare the faid Irocoic very much, which are in greater number then the faid Mountainers. Efteche- the total mins and Algommequins. The twenty eight day of the (aid moneth, they encamped themselves The Irosen at 40 in the forefaid haven of Tadonfas, where our Ship was jat the break of day their faid great Sagamo in great number. came out of his Cabine, going round about all the other Cabins, and cried with a loud voice that they should dislodge to goe to Talenfac, where their good friends were. Immediately enery man in a trice tooke down his cabin, and the faid grand Captain, fift began to take his cance, & carried it to the Sea, where he embarked his wife and children, & flore of furs; and in like manner did well neere two hundred canowes, which goe ftrangely; for though our Shallop was well manned, yet they went more swift then we. There are but two that row, the man and the wife. Their Ca- Two hundred nowes are some eight or nine pases long, and a pace, or a pace & a halfe broad in the middest, and Canowes, grow sharper & sharper toward both the ends. They are very subject to ouesturning, if one know not how to guide themsfor they are made of the barke of a Birch tree, firengthned within with little circles of wood well & handsomely framed, and are so light, that one man will carry one of them eafily and enery Canowe is able to carry the weight of a Pipe; when they would paffe ouer any land to goe to some River where they have busines, they carry them with them. Their Cabins are low, made like Tents, couered with the faid barke of a tree, and they leave in the roofe about a Their Cabins foot spacevncoueted, wherby the light commeth in; and they make many fires right in the midit madel ketches of their Cabin, where they are sometimes ten housholds together. They he vpon skins one by an- and couered other, and their dogs with them. They were about a thouland persons, men, women and children. with the backs The place of the point of S. Matthew, where they were first lodged, is very pleasant; they were at thebottome of a little hill, which was ful of Fir & Cypreffe trees: vpon this point there is a little Cypreffe trees leuel plot, which discouereth far off, & vpon the top of the faid hill, there is a Plain, a league long, 60 and halfe a league broad, couered with trees; the foile is very landy, and is good pasture; all the reft is nothing but Mountains of very bad rocks: the Sea beateth round about the faid hil, which is dry for a large halfe league at a low water.

CHAP.6. Faire Caftles. Manner of Dancing, Point of Saint Mathew.

THe ninth day of June the Sauages began to make merzie together, and to make their feaft, as bumors, tamin A Thate faid before, and to dance for the aforefaid victory which they had obtained against fuperfittion & cher

Theheriumaka

France. Anadabijon, The Oration with ve.

their enemies. After they had made good cheere, the Algoumequins, one of the three Nations went out of their Cabins, and retired themselves apart into a punishe place, and caused all their women and girles to fit downe in rankes one by the other, and sood themselves befinde, then finging all mone time, as I have faid before. And Juddenly all the women and mandens began to endure great

Porke-pike.

famine

minging an mone time, as a mane ran oction, and many the young and their Mantis of skins, and Hippper themselves, and their Mantis of skins, and Hippper themselves, which are participles oddered with Manietis, which are participles and chaines enterlaced made of the har of the large them has re of the Porkelpoke, which they due of divers colours. After they had made an end of their themselves are of the Porkelpoke, which they due of divers colours. longs, they cried all with one voyce, ho, lio, ho; at the lame inftant all the women and maidens coursed the melus with their Mantels, for they lye at their feete, and reft a thort while; and then effloore, beginning against o fing, they let fall their Mantels as they did before. They goe 19 Their manner not out of one place when they dance, and make certaine gestures and motions of the body, first o' dance.

ifting yp one foot and then another, thamping ypon the ground. While they were dancing lifting yp one foot and then another, thamping ypon the ground. While they were dancing the second to the second the secon game of the 44- and why im, perfect evolution, practices the new part of the configuration of the choice we trickyc for fee and made a peech and fail to the Mountainers and Englementary to fee the few we trickyc for the widory which we have obtained of our enemies ye must doe the like, that we may be continued to the configuration of the confi tented: then they all together cred, ho, ho, ho, Alloone as hee was returned to his place, the great Sagamo, and all his companions cast off their Mantels, being starke naked saue their printties, which were congred with a little skin, and tooke each of them what they thought good, as Mitachias, Hatchets, Swords, Kettels, Fat, Flesh of the Orignac, Scales, in briefe, euery one 20 had a prefent, which they gave the Algonmeguire. After all these ceremonies the dance cealed and the faid Algound quint both men and women carried away their prefents to their lodgings. They chole out allo two men of each Nation of the belt disposition, which they caused to run, and he which was the swiftest in running had a present, All their people are of a very cheerefull complexion, they laugh for the most part, henertheleffe they are formewhat melancholly. They speake very diffinedly, as though they would make themselues well understood, and they stay quickely bethinking themselues a great while, and then they legin their speech againe : they often vie this fashion in the middell of their Orations in counfaile, where there are none but the principals, which are the ancients : the women and in contains, where there are hone on the principals without are the ancients are women and children are not prefers. All these people flowerimes column for great carriery, what they are all 30 most colifficiated to cate one another, through the great colds and inowes; for the Beats and These Sauzges Fowles whereof they fure, retire themselves into more hot climates. I thinke if any would teach them how to live, and to learne to till the ground, and other things, they would learne very well; for I silure you that many of them are of good judgement, and answere very well to the purpole to any thing that a man shall demand of them. They have one naughty qualitie in them, Their had quar which is, that they are given to revenge, and great lyars, a people to whom you must not give too much credit, but with reason, and standing on your owne guard. They promile much and performe little. They are for the most part a people that have no Law, as farre as I could fee and enforme my felfe of the faid great Sagano, who told me, that they constantly believe, that there The beliefe of is one God, which hath made all things: And then I faid vnto him, fince they believe in one 40

red me, that after God had made all things, he tooke a number of Arrowes, and stucke them in

They beleene Son one Mother and the

God onely, How is it that he cent them into this world, and from whence came they? he answethe ground, from whence men and women grew, which have multiplied in the world vntill this prejent, and had their originall on this fathion. I replied vnto him, that this which hee faid was talle; but that indeede there was one God onely, which had created all things in the earth, and in the heavens : leeing all thele things to perfect, without any body to governe this world beneath, he tooke of the flime of the earth, & thereof made Adam our first Father. As Adam fl.pt, God tooke a rib of the fide of Adam, & thereof made Euc, whom he game him for his companion; and that this was the truth that they and we had our originall after this marrier, and not of Arrowes as they believed He faid nothing voto me, faue, that he believed rather that which I faid, 10 then that which he told me. I asked him also, whether he beleeved not that there was any other but one God onely, He sold me, that their beliefe was, That thete was one God, one Sonne, one one God, one Mother, and the Sunne, which were foure ; yet that God was about them all : but that the Son was good and the Sunne in the firmament, because of the good that they received of them; but that the Mother was naught, and did eate them, and that the Father was not very good. I he wed him his errour according to our faith, wherein he gaue mee some small credit. Idemanded of him, whether they had not feere nor heard fay of their ancellors, that God came into the world. He rold me, that he had neuer seene him, but that in old time there were five men which went toward the Sunne fetting, which met with God, who asked them, Whither goe ye They faid, we goe to feeke our liuing : God answered them, you shall finde it here, They went far- 60 thet, without regarding what God had faid unto them : which tooke a flone, and touched wo of them with it, which were turned into a stone: And hee said againe vnto the other three, Whither goe yee? and they answered as at the first : and God faid to them againe, Goe no further, you shall finde it here. And feeing that nothing came unto them, they went further: and God tooks two states, and touched the two first therewith, which were turned ther; and God asked him againe, whither go-into flaves; and the fitt flaved and would goe no turther; And God asked him againe, whither goeft thou! I goe to feeke my living : flay and thou shalt finde it. He stayed without going any further, and God giue him meate, and he did eaternereof; after he had well fed, hee returned with other Sauages, and told them all the former frome. He told them also, That another time there was a man which had itore of Tobacco (which is a kinde of hearbe, whereof they take the smoake.) And that God came to this man, and asked him where his Tobacco pine was? The man tooke his Tobacco pipe and gaue it to God, which took: Tobacco a great while : after hee had taken fore of Tobacco, God broke the faid pipe into many peeces : and the man asked him, why to haft thou broken my pipe, and fieit that I have no more? And God tooke one which hee had, and gaue it him, and tata vnto him; loe here I gue thee one, carry it to thy great Sagamo, and charge him to keepe it, and if he keepe it well he shall neuer want any thing, nor none of his companions. The faid man tooke the Tobacco pipe, and gaue it to his great Sagamo, which as long as he kept, the Sauages wanted nothing in the world. But after that the faid Sagame loit long as he kept, the Sauages winted nothing in the works. Surfection the rate among amount of this Tobacco pipe, which was the occasion of great famine, which to meet mest they have a mong time increase. this 1 obacco pro- whither he beleeued all this? he faid yea, and that it was true. This I beleeue is more the Sarthem. I asked him whither he beleeued all this? he faid yea, and that it was true. This I beleeue is more the Sarthem. the cause wherefore they say that God is not very good. But I replied and told him, that God uses.

CHAP.6. The Divell appeareth to the Indians. Their Ceremonie in Marriage. 1609

was wholly good; and that without doubt this was the Diuell that appeared to these men, and that if they would believe in God as we doe, they should not want any thing needefull. That 30 the Same which they beheld, the Moone and the Startes were created by this great God, which hath made heaven and earth, and they have no powerbut that which God has h given them. That we believe in this great God, who by his goo in the hath tent ve his deare Sonne, which being conceived by the holy Ghoit, tooke humaine figh in the Virginall wombe of the Virgin

Marie, having bin thirty three yeares on the earth, working infinite miracles, railing up the dead, healing the ticke, cafting our Diucls, giving fight to the blinde, teaching men the will of God his Father, to terue, honour, and worthip him, did thed his bloud, and fuffred death and patfion forys, and for our tinnes, and redeemed mankinde, and being buried, he rote againe, he oefcended into hell, and ascended into heasen, where he sitteth at the right hand of God his Father. That this the beleefe of all the Christians, which beleeue in the Father, the Sonne, and he 30 holy Ghoft, which neuertheleffe are not three Gods, but one onely, and one onely God, and one

Trinicie, in the which none is before or after the other, none greater or leffe then another. That the Virgin Mary the Mother of the Sonne of God, and all men and women which have lived in this world, doing the commandements of God, and f. ffring martyrdome for his name lake, and by the permission of God have wrought miracles, and are Saints in heaven in his Paradite, doe all pray this great divine Maieftie for vs, to pard in vs our faults and our linnes which we doe againft his Law and his Commandements : and fo by the prayers of the Saints in heaven, and by our prayers which we make to his diurne Mareftie, he giveth that which we have neede of, and the Divell hatn no power over vs, and can doe vs no harme: That if they had this beliefe, they should be as we are, and that the Divell should be able to doe them no hurt, and should never wont 40 any thing necessary. Then the faid Sagamo told me, that he approued that which I faid. I asked him what ceremony they yied in praying to their God? He told me, that they yied none other ceremonies, but that every one praied in his heart as he thought good: This is the cause why I beleeue they have no law among them, neither doe they know how to worthip or pray to God, and line for the most pare like brute beasts, and I thinke in short space they would be brong it to begood Chriftens, if their Countrie were planten, which they delire for the moil part.

They have among them certaine Sauages which they call Polocona, which speak with speak with the Diuell, which telleth them what they muit doe, as well for the warre as for other things; the Diuella and if he should command them to put any enterprise in execution, either to kill a French man, orany other of their Nation, they would immediately obey his commandement. Also they 50 beleeue that all the dreames which they dreame are true : and indeede there are many of them, which fay that they have feene and dreamed things which doe happen or shall happen. But to speake truely of these things, they are visions of the D well, which doth deceive and seduce them. Loe this is all their beliefe that I could learne of them, which is brutish and bestiall. All these people are well proportioned of their bodies, without any deformitie, they are well fet, and the They paint women are well shapen, fat and full, of a tawnie colour by abundance of a certaine painting with an Oliue wherewith they rubbe themselves, which maketh them to be of an Oliue colour. They are colourapparelled with skins, one part of their bodies is couered, and the other part vincouered; but in the winter they couer all, for they are clad with good Furres, namely with the skins of Originac, of skins.

Otters, Beuers, Lea-boores, Stagges, and Deere, whereof they have flore. In the winter when 60 the Snowes are great, they make a kinde of racket which is twice or thrice as bigge as one of Adeliceto go ours in France, which they fasten to their feete, and fo goe on the Snow without linking; for on the snow otherwise they could not hunt nor trauaile in many places. They have also a kinde of Marriage, with a Racker. Which is, that when a Milde is foureteene or fifteene yeares old, fhee shall have many fernants Themarriage and friends, and the may have carnall company with all those which the liketh, then after five of the Savages.

Sausges which

or fix yeares, the may take which of them the will for her husband, and to they thall live tooether all their life time, except that after they have lived a certaine time together and have no children, the man may forfake her and take another wife, faying that his old wife is nothing worth, to that the Maides are more free then the married Women. After they be married they be chafte, and their husbands for the most part are lealous, which give presents to the Father or Parents of the Maide, which they have married: loe this is the ceremonie and fashion which they vie in their marriages.

Their buriels after the Tar-They beloeue

Touching their burials, when a man or woman dieth, they make a pit, wherein they put all the goods which they have, as Kettels, Furres, Hatchets, Bowes and Arrowes, Apparell. and other things, and then they put the corps into the grave, and cover it with earth, and fet flore 10 of great peeces of wood ouer it, and one stake they set up on end, which they paint with red on the top. They believe the immortality of the Soule, and fay that when they be dead they soe into other Countries to reloyce with their parents and friends. my of the louic.

He eleventh day of Iune, I went fome twelve or fifteene leagues vp Saguenay, which is a faire River, and of incredible depth; for I beleeue, as farre as I could learne by conference whence it should come, that it is from a very high place, from whence there descendeth a fall of water with great impetuolitie : but the water that proceedeth thereof is not able to make fuch a River as this; which neuertheleffe holdeth not but from the faid course of water (where the which space are fortie fine or fiftie leagues, and it is a good league and a halfe broad at the most, and a quarter of a league where it is narrowest, which causeth a great current of water. All the Countrie which I faw, was nothing but Mountaines, the most part of rockes couered with woods of Fir-trees, Cypreffes, and Birch-trees, the foyle very unpleasant, where I found not a league of plaine Countrey, neither on the one fide nor on the other. There are certaine hils of Sand and Illes in the faid River, which are very high aboue the water. In fine, they are very Defarts voide of Beafts and Birds; for I affure you, as I went on hunting through places which feemed most pleasant vnto mee, I found nothing at all, but small Birds which are like Nightingales, and Swallowes, which come thither in the Summer; for at other times I thinke there are none, because of the excessive cold which is there; this River com- 30 meth from the North-west. They reported vnto me, that having passed the first fall, from whence the currant of water commeth, they passe eight other sants or fals, and then they trauaile one dayes journey without finding any, then they passe ten other fants, and come into a Lake, which they paffe in two dayes (euery day they trauaile at their eafe, fome twelue or fifteene leagues :) at the end of the Lake there are people lodged : then they enter into three other

Rivers, three or foure dayes in each of them; at the end of which Rivers there are two or three kinde of Lakes, where the head of Saguenay beginneth : from the which head or fpring, vnto the faid Port of Tadonfac, is ten' dayes iournee with their Canowes. On the fide

N Wednedday the eighteenthday of Iune, we departed from Tadonfae, to go to the Sauli:
we palled by an Ile, which is called the Ile du lieure, or the Ile of the Hare, which may be fome two leagues from the Land on the North fide, and some seuen leagues from the said Tadonfac, and fine leagues from the South Coast. From the Ile of the Hare we ranged the North Coast about halfe a league, vnto a point that runneth into the Sea, where a man must keepe farther off. 50

The faid point is within a league of the Ile, which is called the Ile du Coudre, or the Ile of Filberds, which may be some two leagues in length: And from the faid Ile to the Land on the North fide is a league. The faid Ile is somewhat euen, and groweth sharpe toward both the ends; on the West end there are Medowes and Points of Rockes which stretch somewhat into the River. The faid He is somewhat pleasant, by reason of the Woods which enuiron the same. There is store of

Slate, and the foyle is somewhat grauelly: at the end whereof there is a Rocke which stretcheth into the Sea about halfe a league. We passed to the North of the faid Ile, which is distant from first fall is) unto the Port of Tadonfac, which is the mouth of the faid River of Saguenay, in 20

The River of Saguenay, & his Ch20 4. A violent fall o, water.

the immortali-

A Mountainous Country.

The report of the beginning of the River of Ѕациенау.

A Lake two daies iournie long. Three other Riuers. Two or three Likes, where n of the faid Rivers are many lodgingings, whither other Nacions come from the North, to trucke with the faid Mountainers, for skins of Beuers and Marterns, for other Merchandiles, which the the head of French Ships bring to the faid Mountainers. The faid Sauages of the North fay, that they fee a Saguenay be-Sea, which is falt. I hold, if this be fo, that it is some gulfe of this our Sea, which disgorgeth it selfe ginneth. That is, 120. by the North part between the lands; and in very deede it can be nothing else. This is that which leagu es. I have learned of the River of Saguenay. People of the North. Afalt fea.

Iourney to the fall and to certaine llands, arriual at Duebec. Chap.s. The Ifle of the Hare. The Ide of Filberds.

the He of the Hare twelve leagues. The Thursday following we departed from thence, and anchored at a dangerous nooke on the Northfide, where there be certaine Medowes, and a little River, where the Saunger lodge 60 tometimes. The faid day wee still ranged the Coast on the North, vnto a place where wee put backeby reasons of the winds which were contrary vnto vs, where there were many Rockes and places very dangeous : here we stayed three dayes wayting for faire weather. All this Coast is nothing but Mountaynes as well on the South fide as on the North, the most part like the Coast of the River of Saguenay. On Sunday the two and twentieth of the faid moneth wee departed to goe to the le of Orleans, in the way there are many Iles on the South shoare, which are low and couered with trees, shewing to be very pleafant, contayning (as I was able to iudge) fome two leagues, and one league, and another halfe a league. About thele lles are nothing but Rocks and Flats, very dangerous to passe, and they are distant some two leagues from the mayne Land on the South.

And from thence wee ranged the Ile of Orleans on the Southfide : It is a league from the The Ile of Or-North shoare, very pleasant and leuell, contaying eight leagues in length. The Coast on the Leane. South shoare is low land, some two leagues into the Countrey : the faid lands begin to be low oto uer against the faidlle, which beginneth two leagues from the South Coast : to passe by the North fide is very dangerous for the bankes of Sand and Rockes, which are betweene the faid lle and the mayne Land, which is almost all dry at a low water. At the end of the faid lle I saw a fall of water, which fell from a great Mountaine, of the faid River of Canada, and on the top of the faid Mountaine the ground is levell and pleafant to behold, although within the faid Countries a man may fee high Mountaynes which may bee fome twenty, or fine and twenty leagues wichin the Lands, which are neere the firit Saule of Saguenay. We anchored at Quebec, which Queben is a Strait of the faid River of Canada, which is some three hundred pales broad : there is at this Strait on the North fide a very high Mountayne, which falleth downe on both fides : all the reft is a leuell and goodly Countrey, where there are good grounds full of Trees, as Okes, Cypreffes, 20 Birches, Firre-trees and Afpes, and other Trees bearing fruit, and wild Vines: So that in mine opinion, if they were dreffed, they would be as good as ours. There are along the Coast of the Dismants. faid Quebec Diamants in the Rockes of Slate, which are better then thofeof Alonfon. From the faid Quebec to the Ile of Condre, or Filberds, are nine and twenty leagues.

1611

N Munday the three and twentieth of the faid moneth, we departed from Quebec, where the River beginneth to grow broad sometimes one league, then a league and an halfe or Of the point of the River beginned to grow broad sometimes one league, then a league and an halfe or Of the point of the River beginning to the River b two leagues at most. The Countrey groweth still fairer and fairer, and are all low grounds, of S. Craix, of without Rockes, or very few. The North Coast is full of Rockes and bankes of Sand : you must Batillon, of the take the South tide, about some halfe league from the shore. There are certaine small Rivers which Rivers, Rocks, 30 are not nauigable, but only for the Canowes of the Sauges , wherein there be many fals. Wee les, Lands, anchored as high as Saint Croix, which is diftant from Quebec fifteene leagues. This is a low Trees, Fruits, point, which rifeth vp on both fides. The Countrey is faire and levell, and the foyles better then Countries, in any place that I have feene, with plenty of wood, but very few Firre-trees and Cyprelles, which are trong There are in these parts great store of Vines, Peares, imall Nuts, Cheries, Goole-beries, red and Quebe voto greene, and certaine small Roots of the bignesse of a little Not, resembling Musheroms in taste. The 3. Kiners. greene, and certaine imali Roots or the bignesse or a little wat, retembling number of the Chap 6.
Which are very good roaded and fod. All this foyle is blacke, without any Rockes, faue that Saint Croix, there is great flore of Slate : The foyle is very fott, and if it were well manured it would yeeld 14. leagues. g eat increase. On the Northilde there is a River which is called Basiscan, which goeth farre in- Ground Nuts. to the Countrey, whereby fometimes the Algenmequins come downe : and another on the fame The Ruce Ed-40 file three leagues from the faid Saint Croix, in the way from Quebec, which is, that where Iac- ifcan gust Quarter was in the beginning of the Discouery which he made hereof, and hee passed no Anosher Rises farther. The faid River is pleafant, and goeth farre vp into the Countries. All this North Coaft is very levell and delectable.

On Tuesday the source and twentieth of the faid moneth, wee departed from the faid Saint Cross, where we stayed a tyde and an halfe, that we might passe the next day following by day light, because of the great number of Rockes which are thwart the River (a strange thing to behold) which is in a manner dry at a low water : But at halfe flood, a man may beginne to paste fafely; yet you must take good heed, with the Lead alwayes in hand. The tyde floweth heere Agoodly almost three fathomes and an halfe : the farther we went, the fairer was the Countrey. We went fome fine leagues and an halfe, and anchored on the North fide. The Wednelday following wee 50 departed from the faid place, which is a flatter Countrey then that which we paffed before, full of great store of Trees as that of Saint Croix. We passed hard by a little lle, which was full of Vines, and came to an Anchor on the South fide neere a little Hill: but beeing on the top thereof Vines.

There is at other little He three leagues from Saint Croix, toyning neere the South shore. Wee departed from the faid Hill the Thurlday following, and passed by a little He, which is neere the Sixe (mall) North shoare, where I saw fixe small Rivers, whereof two are able to beare Boats farre vp, and Rivers. another is three hundred pases broad : there are certaine llands in the mouth of it; it goeth farre vp into the Countrey; it is the deepest of all the reit which are very pleafant to behold, the foyle 6) being full of Trees which are like to Walnut-trees, and have the same smell : but I saw no Fruit, which maketh me doubt : the Sanages told me that they beare Fruit like ours. In passing further we met an Ile, which is called Saint Eley, and another little Ile, which is hard by the North shoare : we passed betweene the faid He and the North shore, where betweene the one and the other are some hundred and fiftie paces. From the faid Ile we paged a league and be planted.

Another fmall

A betrer tempermuce. 15 leagues.

A great Lake. The head of Saguetay 106. leagues off.

the North fide is very good, one may palle freely there, yet with the Lead in the hand, to avoid certaine points. All this Coast which we ranged is mouing Sand; but after you be entred a little into the Woods, the foile is good. The Friday following we departed from this Ile, coafting fill the North fide hard by the shoare, which is low and full of good Trees, and in great number as farre as the three Rivers, where it beginneth to have another temperature of the feafon , fomewhat differing from that of Saint Croix : because the Trees are there more forward then in any place that hitherto I had feene. From the three Rivers to Saint Croix are fifteene leagues. In this River are fixe Ilands, three of which are very small, and the others some five or fixe hundred a lland fi to paces long, very pleasant and fertile, for the little quantitie of ground that they containe. There to is one lland in the middest of the land River , which looketh directly upon the passage of the River of Canada, and commandeth the other Ilands which lye further from the shoare, as well on the one fide as on the other, of foure or fine hundred paces : it rifeth on the South fide, and falleth fomewhat on the North fide. This in my judgement would be a very fit place to inhabit; and it might bee quickly fortified : for the situation is strong of it selfe,, and neere vnto a great Lake. which is about four leagues diffant, which is almost iny ned to the River of Saguenay, by the report of the Sauages, which travell almost an hundred leagues Northward, and passe many Saules. and then goe by Land some flue or sixe leagues, and enter into a Lake, whence the faid River of Sagnener receiveth the best part of his Spring, and the faid Sauages come from the faid Lake to Tadoufac. Moreover, the planting of The three Rivers would be a benefit for the liberty of certaine Nati-an halfe, on the South fide neere vnto a River, whereon Canowes might goe. All this Coaff on ons, which dare not come that way for feare of the faid Irocois their enemies, which border vpon all the faid River of Canada. But this place being inhabited, we might make the Irocois and the other Sauages friends, or at least wife under the fauour of the faid Plantation, the faid Sauages might paffe freely without feare or danger : because the said place of The shree Riners is a pallage. All the foyle which I faw on the North shoare is fandy. Wee went vp aboue a league A great course into the faid River, and could passe no further, by reason of the great current of water. We took a Boate to learch vp further, but we went not past a league, but we met a very Strait full of water, of some twelue paces, which caused vs that we could not passe no further. All the ground which I faw on the bankes of the faid River rifeth more and more, and is full of Firre-trees and 30 Cypresse Trees, and hath very few other Trees.

Great Lake described and River of the The Lake of Arzolefme. 15. leagues.

N the Saturday following, we departed from The three Riners, and anchored at a Lake, which is foure leagues diffant. All this Countrey from The three Riners to the entrance of the faid Lake is low ground, even with the water on the North fide; and on the South fide it is somewhat higher. The faid Countrey is exceeding good, and the most pleasant that hitherto we had frene: the Woods are very thinne, to that a man may trauell eafily through them. The next day being the nine and twentieth of Iune, we entred into the Lake, which is some fifteene leagues in length, and some seuen or eight leagues broad : At the entrance thereof on the South-A great River, fide within a league there is a River which is very great, and entreth into the Countrey some fix. 40 Another small tie or eightie leagues, and continuing along the same Coast, there is another little River, which pierceth about two leagues into the Land, and commeth out of another small Lake, which may containe some three or foure leagues. On the North fide where the Land sheweth very high, a man may fee some twentie leagues off; but by little and little the Mountaynes beginne totall toward the West, as it were into a flat Countrey.

The Sauages fay, that the greatest part of these Mountaynes are bad foyle. The faid Lake hath some three fathoms water whereas we passed, which was almost in the middest: the length lieth East and West, and the breadth from North to the South. I thinke it hath good fish in it, of fuch kinds as we have in our owne Countrey. Wee passed it the very same day, and anchored about two leagues within the great River which goeth vp to the Sault : In the mouth whereof 50 Two leagues. are thirtielmall llands, as farre as I could difcerne; some of them are of two leagues, others a 30. ma! Ilands. league and an halfe, & some lesse, which are full of Walnut-trees, which are not much different from ours; and I thinke their Walnuts are good when they bee ripe : I faw many of them under the Trees, which were of two forts, the one small, and the others as long as a mans Thumbe, Wal nuts of Store of Vines, but they were rotten. There are also store of Vines upon the bankes of the said Ilands. But when the waters be great, the most part of them is couered with water. And this Countrey is Good Counyet better then any other which I had feene before.

tins. The River of of fortification with flakes.

The last day of Iune wee departed from thence, and passed by the mouth of the River of the Irocois; where the Sauages which came to make warre against them, were lodged Their manner and fortified. Their Fortresse was made with a number of posts let very close one to ano. 62 ther, which loyned on the one fide on the banke of the great River of Cinada, and the other on the banke of the River of the Irecois : and their Boates were ranged the one by the other neere the shoare, that they might flie away with speed, if by chance they should bee further fed by the Irocois . For their Fort is couered with the barke of Okes , and ferneth them for nothing elic, but to have time to embarke themselves. We went up the River of the Irocois some fine or fixe leagues, and could passe no farther with our Pinnasse, by reason of the great course of nue or the respect, and also because we cannot goe on Land, and draw the Pinnasse for the multitude of Trees which are vpon the bankes.

CHAP. 6. Wholfome River. Many Iles and fruitfull trees. Low Land.

Seeing we could not passe any further, we tooke our Skiffe, to see whether the current were more gentle, but going vp fome two leagues, it was yet stronger, and wee could goe no higher. Being able to doe no more we returned to our Pinnasse. All this River is some three hundred or foure hundred paces broad, and very wholfome. Wee faw fue Ilands in it, diffant one from the other a quarter or halfe a league, or a league at the most : one of which is a league long, which is 10 the necreit to the mouth, and the others are very small, All these Countries are coursed with Fine I and Trees and low Lands, like those which I had seene before; but here are more Firres and Cyptesfesthen in other places. Neuerthelesse, the foile is good, although it bee somewhat fandy. This Ruer ronneth in a manner South-west. The Samages lay, that some fifteene leagues from the place where we were vp the Riuer, there is a Sault which falleth downe from a very steepe place, where they carry their Canowes to paffe the same some quarter of a league, and come into a Lake; most Southat the mouth whereof, are three Ilands, and being within the fame they meete with more Iles: weft. This Lake may containe some fortie or fiftie leagues in agth, and some fine and twentie leagues A Lake some in breadth, into which many Rivers fall, to the number of tea, which carrie Canowes very far fortie or fitte in preading into windin many the end of this Lake, there is another fall, and they enter againe in-20 to another Lake, which is as great as the former, at the head whereof the Irocon are lodged. They of the Irocon.

fay moreouer, that there is a River, which runneth vnto the Coast of Florida, whether it is from The goodnesses the faid laft Lake some hundred, or an hundred and fortie leagues. All the Countrey of the Iro- and short with the faid last Lake some hundred, or an hundred and rortic leagues. All the Country of the 1702 terof the cost is somewhat Mountaynous, yet not with standing exceeding good, temperate, without much Country of Winter, which is very short there.

Fter our departure from the River of the Irosess, wee anchored three leagues beyond the Their arrival A fame, on the North fide. All this Countrie is a lowe Land, replenished with all forts of at the Sault or trees, which I have spoken of before. The first day of July we coasted the North fide, where the Fallof the Riwood is very thinne, and more thinnethen wee had feene in any place before, and all good land uer of Canada, wood is very thinne, and more thinne then wee had feene in any place perfore, and an good fand the defeription for tillage. I went in a Canoa to the South shoare, where I law a number of Iles, which have thereof. Cha. 8.

many truitfull trees, as Vines, Wal-nuts, Hafel-nuts, and a kinde of fruit like Cheft-nuts, Che-Fruitfull Trees ries, Oskes, Aspe, Hoppes, Ashe, Beech, Cyprelles, very few Pines and Firre-trees. There are of many lores. alio other trees which I knew not, which are very pleafant. Weefound there flore of Strawberries, Raso-berries Goof-berries red, greene, and blue, with many small fruits, which growe there among great abundance of graffe. There are also many wilde beafts, as Orignas, Stagges, Orignas are be-Does, Buckes, Beares, Porkepickes, Conies, Foxes, Beaners, Otters, Muske-rats, and certaine fore faid to bee other kindes of beafts which I doe not knowe, which are good to eate, and whereof the Sauages haps Buffes. line. Wee passed by an Ile, which is very pleasant, and containeth some source leagues in length, Lesartor, that and halfe a league in breadth. I faw toward the South two high Mountaines, which shewed Orignaes are 40 some twentie leagues within the Land. The Sanages told mee, that here beganne the first fall Ellans. of the foresaid Ruer of the Irocou. The Wednesday following wee departed from this place, Apleasant Ile, of the foreign Ruler of the 17000. The vocalities and fayled fome five or fixe leagues. Wee faw many Ilands: the Land is there very lowe, and Many Ilands. these lies are couered with trees, as those of the River of the Irocass were.

The day following, being the third of July, we ranne certaine leagues, and passed likewise by July ?. many other Ilands, which are excellent good and pleasant, through the great store of Medowes Many more which are thereabout, as well on the shoare of the maine Land, as of the other llands: and all llands. the Woods are of very small growth, in comparison of those which wee had passed. At length We came this very day to the entrance of the Sault or Fall of the great River of Canada, with The entrance fauourable wind; and wee met with an Ile, which is almost in the middest of the said entrance, of the Sault or 50 which is a quarter of a league long, and passed on the South side of the said lie, where there was Fall. not past three, foure or fine foot water, and sometimes a fathome or two, and straight on the Anile. fudden wee found agains not past three or foure foot. There are many Rockes, and small Hands, whereon there is no wood, and they are even with the water. From the beginning of the forefaid Ile, which is in the middeft of the faid entrance, the water beginneth to runne with a great force. Although we had the wind very good, yet wee could not with all our might make any rentor water. great way: neuertheleffe wee paffed the faid He which is at the entrance of the Sault or Fall. When wee perceived that wee could goe no further, wee came to an anchor on the North shoare ouer against a small Hand, which aboundeth for the most part with those kinde of fruits which I have spoken of before. Without all delay wee made ready our skiffe, which wee had made of 60 purpose to passe the said Sault: whereinto the said Monsteur de Pont and my selfe entred, with Monsteur du certaine Sauages, which we had brought with vs to flew vs the way. Departing from our Pin- Pont na Monnace, we were fearfe gone three hundred paces, but we were forced to come out, and caule certain four du Cham. Mariners to goe into the water to free our Skiffe. The Canoa of the Sauages palled eatily. Wee plane fearch met with an infinite number of small Rockes, which were even with the water, on which wee the Sank, touched oftentimes.

Two great Hands

A kind of Lake

3. 5t 4. Mountaines on the South fide. Two Rivers.

The furie of the fall of w.rer.

The Spale a league broad.

rer about the Ten Saules Temperate The Sault is in 45 degrees and certaine mi-A drau he of the Sauages. The first rethe Head of the River. A Riuer runtri: of the Algeumequins. A Like of 15. kanues.

Another Lake of 4. lengues. Five other Saults. A Lake of 80. leagues long. Brack ih water Ir feemeth hereby to trend fonthward. 60, leagues long, very brackish.

There be two great Hands, one on the North fide, which containeth some fifteene leagues in length, and almost as much in breadth, beginning some twelve leagues vp within the River of Canada, 2011g toward the River of the Irocon, and endeth beyond the Sault. The Hand which is on the South fide is fome foure leagues long, and fome halfe league broad. There is also another lland, which is neere to that on the North fide, which may bee some halfe league long, and fome quarter broad: and another small Hand which is betweene that on the North fide, and another neerer to the South shoare, whereby wee passed the entrance of the Sault. This entrance being paffed, there is a kinde of Lake, wherein all thefe Hands are, some five leagues long and almost as broad, wherein are many small Ilands which are Rockes. There is a Mountaine neere almost as proad, wherein are into the Countrie, and a little River which falleth from In the faid Mountaine into the Lake. On the South fide are some three or foure Mountaines, which feeme to be about fifteene or fixteene leagues within the Land. There are also two Rivers : one. which goesh to the first Lake of the River of the Irocois, by which fometimes the Alsoumagains injude them : and another which is necrevato the Sault, which runneth not faire into

LIBVIII.

At our comming neere to the faid Sault with our Skiffe and Canoa, I affure you, I neuer faw any threame of water to fall downe with fuch force as this doth; although it bee not very high, being not in some places past one or two fathoms, and at the most three: it falleth as it were steppe by steppe : and in enery place where it hath some small heigth, it maketh a strong boyling with the force and iteragin of the running of the water. In the breadth of the faid Sault, 20 which may containe fome league, there are many broad Rockes, and almost in the middest, there are very narrow and long llands, where there is a Fail as well on the fide of the faid Iles which are toward the South, as on the North fide : where it is fo dangerous, that it is not polfible for any man to palle with any Boat, how small soener it be. We went on land through the Woods, to fee the end of this Sault : where, after wee had trauelled a league, wee faw no more The swift cur. Rockes nor Falls . but the water runneth there fo swiftly as it is possible : and this current larent of the was freth for three or foure leagues : fo that it is in vaine to imagine, that a man is able to passe the faid Saults with any Boats. But he that would paffe them, must fit himselfe with the Canoas of the Sauages, which one man may eafily carrie. For to carrie Boats is a thing which cannot be done in to fhore time as it should bee to bee able to returne into France, vnleffe a man would 20 winter there. And beside this firit Sault, there are ten Saults more, the most part hard to passe. aire, and good So that it would be a matter of great paines and travell to bee able to fee and doe that by Boat which a man might promife himselte, without great cost and charge, and also to bee in danger to travell in vaine. But with the Canoas of the Sauges a man may travell freely and readily into all Countries, as well in the imall asin the great Rivers: So that directing himfelfe by the meanes of the faid Sauages and their Canoas, a man may fee all that is to be frene, good and bad, within the space of a yeere or two. That little way which wee trauelled by Land on the side of the faid Sault, is a very thinne Wood, through which men with their Armes may march eafily, without any trouble; the aire is there more gentle and temperate, and the foyle better then in portor the place that I had feene, where is store of fach wood and fruits, as are in all other places be- 40 fore mentioned: and it is in the latitude of 45, degrees and certaine minutes,

When we law that we could doe no more, we returned to our Pinnace; where we examined the Sauages which we had with vs, of the end of the River, which I caufed them to draw with into the Count their hand, and from what part the Head thereof came. They told vs, that beyond the first Stult that we had seene, they travelled some ten or fifteene leagues with their Canoas in the Riuer, where there is a River which tunneth to the dwelling of the Algoumequins, which are some fixty leagues diffant from the great River; and then they paffed five Saults, which may containe from the first to the last eight leagues, whereof there are two where they carrie their Canoas to palle them : euery Sault may containe halfe a quarter or a quarter of a league at the most. And then they come into a Lake, which may be fifteene or fixteene leagues long. From thence they 50 enter againe into a River which may be a league broad, and travell tome two leagues in the same; and then they enter into another Lake some source or fine leagues long : comming to the end thereof, they passe five other Saults, distant from the first to the last some five and twenty or thirty leagues; whereof there are three where they carrie their Canoas to palle them, and thorow the other two they doe but draw them in the water, because the current is not there so ftrong, nor so bad, as in the others. None of all these Saults is so hard to passe, as that which we faw. Then they come into a Lake, which may containe fome eighty leagues in length, in which Another Lake are many llands, and at the end of the same the water is brackish, and the Winter gentle. At the end of the faid Lake they passe a Sault which is somewhat high, where little water descendeth: there they carrie their Canoas by land about a quarter of a league to paffe this Sault. From 60 thence they enter into another Lake, which may be some fixty leagues long, and that the water thereof is very brackish: at the end thereof they come vnto a Strait which is two leagues A Strait of 2. Another migb- broad, and it goeth farre into the Countrie. They told vs, that they themfelues had pasted no farther; and that they had not feene the end of a Lake, which is within fifteene or fixteene leagues of the farthest place where themselves had beene, nor that they which told them of it. has knowne any man that had feene the end thereof, because it is so great that they would not hizard themselves to sayle farre into the same, for feare lest some storme or gust of winde should hazara enemieraes to ay that in the Sammer the Suame doth fet to the North of the faid Lake, The fourherne and in the Winter is fetteth as it were in the middest thereof: That the water is there excee- fination of a falt, to wit, as falt as the Sex water. I asked them whether from the last Lake which they had great Lake, frene, the water deliended alwaies downe the Riter comming to Gafeberay? They told me, no: here, the water determined Lake onely it descended to Gaschepay: But that from the last Sault, water. which is fomewhat high, as I have fail, the water was almost still; and that the faid Lake

10 might take his course by other Rivers, which passe within the Lands, either to the South, or to Many Rivers the North, whereof there are many that runne there, the end whereof they fee not. Now, in running found the North, whereor there are many that runne there, the end whereor they remote Avow, in and north, my judgement, if so many Rivers fall into this Lake, having so small a course at the said Sault, Hadson River my rues it must needs of necessitie fall out, that it must have his issue forth by some exceeding great River. may be one of But that which maketh me beleeue that there is no River by which this Lake doth iffue forth thefe. (confidering the number of formany Rivers as fall into it) is this, that the Sauages have not An exceeding feene any River, that runneth through the Countries, faue in the place where they were. Which great River. maketh me beleeue that this is the South Sea, being falt as they fay : Neuertheleffe we may not The fouth Sea. giue so much credit thereunto, but that it must bee done with apparent reasons, although there be some small shew thereof. And this affuredly is all that hitherto I have seene and heard of the 20 Sauzees, touching that which we demanded of them.

VV Ee departed from the faid Sault on Friday the fourth day of July, and returned the Of Conda, and it have day to the River of the Irocois. On Sunday the fixth of July wee departed from or the Fals and or the Fals and thence, and anchored in the Lake. The Monday following wee anchored at the three Rivers. Lakes which it This day wee fayled fome foure leagues beyond the faid three Rivers. The Tuesday following passethby. we came to Quebec; and the next day wee were at the end of this Ile of Orleans, where the Satages came to vs, which were lodged in the maine Land on the North fide. Wee examined two July 4. or three Algoumiquins, to lee whether they would agree with those that wee had examined touching the end and the beginning of the faid River of Canada. They faid, as they had drawne Another reout the shape thereof, that having passed the Sault, which wee had seene, some two or three port of the Al-leagues, there goeth a River into their dwelling, which is on the North fide. So going on for- goumequin Saward in the faid great River, they passe a Sault, where they carrie their Canoas, and they come uages. to paffe fine other Saults, which may containe from the first to the last some nine or ten leagues, and that the faid Saults are not hard to passe, and they doe but draw their Canoas in the most part of the faid Saults or Falls, fauing at two, where they carrie them: from thence they enter into of the laid Saults or Falls, fauing at two, where they carrie them. Home fixe or feuen leagues: A River or a River or feuen leagues: A River or Lake 600 7. and then they passe five other Falls, where they draw their Canoas as in the first mentioned, 12- leagues long, uing in two, where they carrie them as in the former: and that from the first to the last there are some twenty or fine and twenty leagues. Then they come into a Lake contaying some ALake 150.

hundred and fifty leagues in length: and foure or fine leagues within the entrance of that Lake leagues long. there is a River which goeth to the Algoumequins toward the North; and another River which A River on the goeth to the Irocois, whereby the said Algoumequins and Irocois make warre the one against the ing toward the other. Then comming to the end of the faid Lake, they meete with another Fall, where they Alzewinequine carrie their Canoas. From thence they enter into another exceeding great Lake, which may A Riser on containe as much as the former: They have beene but a very little way in this last Lake, and the south fide. have heard fay, that at the end of the faid Lake there is a Sea, the end whereof they have not Anotherexfeene, neither have heard that any have feene it. But that where they have beene, the water is Lake. not falt, because they have not entred farre into it; and that the course of the water commeth A Sea, the end from the Sun-fetting toward the East; and they knowe not, whether beyond the Lake that whereof the

they have seene, there be any other course of water that goeth Westward. That the Sunne set- Sauages never teth on the right hand of this Lake: which is, according to my inagement, at the North-west, It seemed to little more or leffe; and that in the first great Lake the water freezeth not (which maketh mee lie fouthward. judge that the climate is there temperate) and that all the Territories of the Algoumequins are lowe grounds, furnished with small store of wood: And that the coast of the Irocois is Mountainous, neuertheleffe they are excellent good and fertile foyles, and better then they have feene any where elfe: That the faid Irocois relide some fifty or fixty leagues from the faid great Lake. And this affuredly is all which they have told mee that they have feene: which differeth very little from the report of the first Sauages. This day wee came within some three leagues of the The Ile Coudres

He of Condres or Filberds. On Thursday the tenth of the said moneth, wee came within a league and an halfe of the Liture of Of Ile Du Lieure, or Of the Hare, on the North fide, where other Sauages came into our Pinnace, the Bare. among whom there was a young man , an Algonmequin, which had travelled much in the faid The thirdregreat Lake. Wee examined him very particularly, as wee had done the other Sauages. Hee told port made by vs, that having pasted the faid Fall which wee had seene, within two or three leagues there is a agreat Travel-

Сн л р. б.

lea_ues long.

Avery great Whole falt A great and maine Sea. A River which goeth to the Alcoumequias.

River, which goeth to the faid Algoumequins, where they be lodged; and that passing vo the great River of Canada, there are five Falls, which may containe from the first to the last some eight or nine leagues, whereof there bee three where they carrie their Canoas, and two others wherein they draw them : that each of the faid Falls may be a quarter of a league long : then they come into a Like, which may containe some fitteene leagues. Then they palle fine other Falk, which may containe from the the first to the last some twenty or fine and twenty leagues; where there are not past two of the faid Falls which they p. ff: with their Canoas, in the other three they doe An exceeding but draw them. From thence they enter into an exceeding great Lake, which may containe great Like 300 fome three hundred leagues in length : when they are passed tome hundred leagues into the said Lake, they meet with an Iland, which is very great; and beyond the faid Iland the water is In brackish: But when they have passed some hunared leagues farther, the water is yet falter: and Brockshwater, comming to the end of the faid Lake, the water is wholly falt. Farther he faid, that there is a More brackift Fall that is a league broad, from whence an exceeding current of water descendeth into the faid Lake. That after a man is piffed this Fall, no more land can be feene neither on the one fide nor on the other, but so great a Sca, that they never have seene the end thereof, nor have heard tell. that any other haue i cene the fame. That the Sunne fetteth on the right hand of the faid Lake: and that at the entrance thereof there is a River which goeth to the Algoumequins, and another River to the Irocois, whereby they warre the one against the other. That the Countrie of the Irocoss is somewhat mountainous, yet very fertile, where there is store of Indian Wheat and other fruits, which they have not in their Countrie: That the Countrie of the Algoumequins 20 is lowe and fruitfull. I enquired of them, whether they had any knowledge of any Mines! They told vs, that there is a Nation which are called, the good Irocois, which come to exchange for merchanules, which the French thips doe give to the Algoumequins, which lay, that there is A Mine of fine toward the North a Mine of fine Copper, whereof they shewed vs certaine Bracelets, which they had received of the faid Good Irocon; and that if any of vs would goe thither, they would bring them to the place, which should bee appointed for that butinesic. And this is all which I could learne of the one and the other, differing but very little; faue that the fecond which were examined, faid, that they had not tafted of the falt water : for they had not beene so faire within the faid Lake, as the others : and they differ some small deale in the length of the way, the one fort making it more short, and the other more long. So that, according to their report, from 10 the Sault or Fall where wee were, is the space of some soure hundred leagues wnto the Salt Sea. which may be the South Sea, the Sunne fetting where they fay it doth. On Friday the tenth of the faid moneth we returned to Tadoufae, where our ship lay.

leagues from the first Sault to the South

Their Voyage from Tadoufac to the lle rercee: of many forts of Mines.

Chap. 10. to Fadoufac. Armouchides The description of the Port of Garbe-

The Bay of aduenture.

The Bay of Heate.

The River of Mautanne. Trearcand Mi The Kiuer Sou-A Mine of Copper.

Sloone as wee were come to Tadoufac, wee embarqued our felues againe to goe to Gachesas, A which is dittant from the faid Tadoufac about some hundred leagues. The thirteenth day of the faid moneth we met with a companie of Sauges, which were lodged on the South fide, almost in the mid-way betweene Tadonfae and Gaebapa. Their Sagamo or Captaine which led and Courries, them is called Armouebides, which is held to be one of the wifeft and most hardy among all the Sauages: Hee was going to Tadoufac to exchange Arrowes, and the flesh of Orignars, which 40 found foundry they have for Beauers and Marterns of the other Sauages, the Mountainers, Effechemans, and Algoumequins.

The fifteenth day of the faid moneth we came to Gachepay, which is in a Bay, about a league from Gaberer and a halfe on the North fide. The faid Bay containeth tome feuen or eight leagues in length, and at the mouth thereof foure leagues in breadth. There is a Ruer which runneth fome thirty leagues vp into the Countrie : Then we faw another Bay, which is called the Bay des Mollus, or the Bay of Cods, which may be some three leagues long, and as much in bredth at the mouth, From thence we come to the He Percee, which is like a Rocke, very fleepe rifing on both fides, wherein there is a hole, through which Shalops and Boats may paffe at an high water: and at a lowe water one may goe from the maine Land to the faid Ile , which is not pait foure or fine co hundred paces off. Moreouer, there is another Hand in a manner South-east from the lle Perces about a league, which is called the Ile de Bonne-aduenture, and it may bee some halfe a league The II de Bost long. All thefe places of Gachepay, the Bay of Cods, and the Ile Percee, are places where they make dry and greene Fish. When you are possed the lle Percee, there is a Bay which is called they Bay of Heate, which runneth as it were Well South-well, some source and twenty leagues into the land, containing some fifteene leagues in breadth at the mouth thereof. The Sauages of Canada fay, that up the great River of Canada, about fome fixtie leagues, ranging the South coaft, there is a small River called Mantanne, which runneth some eighteene leagues vp into the Countreys and being at the head thereof, they carrie their Canowes about a league by land, and they come into the faid Bay of Heate, by which they goe sometimes to the Isle Percee. Also 60 they goe from the faid Bay to Tregate and M. famichy. Running along the faid coast we passe by many Rivers, and come to a place where there is a River which is called Souricona, where Monfieur Prenert was to difcourr a Mine of Copper. They goe with their Conowes up this River three or foure dayes, then they passe three or foure leagues by land, to the faid Mine, which is hard vpon the Sea thoate on the South fide, At the mouth of the faid River, there is an Inara vpou un mot into the Sea; from the faid Illand vnto the Isle Perces, is some fixtie or fe- An lland. nanu yang a scill following the faid coast, which trendeth toward the East, 901 meete A Scian bewente a serait, which is two leagues broad, and fine and twenty leagues long. On the Extitude of Cape Breisa with a strain, and in called the like of Saint Laurence, where Cape Breton is; and in this place a Na- and the maine tion of Sauages, called the Sauricais, doe winter.

Paffing the Strait of the lies of Saint Lawrence, and ranging the South-west Coast, you come to a Bay which is yneth hard vpon the Myne of Copper. Pailing farther there is a River, which muncth threaffere and currence leagues into the Country; which reacheth necreto the Lake of numeral variables and stated and be an exceeding great-benefit, if these might be found a paling on the Coast of Florida Heese to Images make the land great Lake, where the warter is tale; siwell for the Manigation of thips, which thousand the land great Lake, where the warter is tale; siwell for the Manigation of thips, which thousand bet librect to lo many penils anthey are in Canada, se for the thortning of the way about three handred leagues. And ac is must cerame, this chee are Riters on the Goaff of Florids, which minute to the followined, which pierce up into the Gountries, where the followine exceeding good and ment on the fertile, and very good Hauene. The Country and Coaft of Florida may had another temperature of the featon, and may be emore tertile in abundance of fruites and other things, then that or Pagaine. which I haur feene : But at cannot haue more euen nor better fayles, then those which we have feene.

30 The Sauages say, that in the sore said greet Bay of Hest there is a River, which runneth up A River.

A Like twenty we fome twentie leagues into the Coun rey, at the head whereof there is a Lake, which may be leagues in about twentie leagues in compaile, wherein is lighte flore of water, and the Summer it is dried compaffe. 40, where n they find, about a foot and an halfe under the ground a kind-of Metall like A merall like to iduer, which i showed theme, and that in another place neers the laid Lake there is a Myne of Silver. Copper. And this is that which I learned of the forefind Savages.

L departed from the the Borger the sinteenth day of the faid moneth to returns to Ta- Our course douber. When we were avening three lengues of Capele Vifuse, or the Biffuop Cape, present Tawe were encountred with a florme which latted two dayes, which forced vs to put roomer with dame, with 30 agreat creake, and to flay for faire weather. The day following we departed, and were encounted determined tred with another florme : Being tosh to parroome, and thinking to gaine way wee touched on of the le the North shore the eight and twentieth day of Laty the creeke which is very bad, because of the edges of Rockes which lie there. This creeke is in 98, degrees and certaine minutes. The next dy we anchored neuera Riuer, sehich is called Sant (Meganier Riuer, whiter at a fall fea is Baye, and fone three fathomes water, and a fathome and an halfe at a low outers this Riuer goeth faire by. Shoalds which into the Land. As facre as I could fee within the Land on the Baft fhoare, there is a fill of water which entreth into the faid River , and falleth fome fiftie or fixtie fathomes downe, from whence commeth the greatest part of the water which descended downe. At the mouth thereof there is a banke of Sand, whereon at the abbe is but halte a fa home water. All the Coaft to- shoare. 40 ward the East is mousing Sanda there is a point somehalfe league from the faid Riuet, which The River of ftretcheth nalfea league inco the See : and toward the Weft there is a fmall lland: this place is in Same attageret tretcheth nattea leggue into the set : and toward the west deer is a traditional time passes of the fittle degrees. All chefe Countries are exceeding bad, full of First-trees. The Land here is some very bash. what high, but notio high as that on the Southfide. Some three leagues beyond we palled neere Countries. vato another River, which feemed to be very great, yet barred for the most part with Rockes; Some eight leagues farther there are Pount which runneth a league and an halfe into the Sea, Toolist that where there is not paft a fathome and an halfe of water. When you are paffed this Point, there funnoch into is another about foure leagues off, where is water enough. All this Coast is low and landie. Foure the fealeagues beyond this there is a creeke where a River entreth : many thips may paffe heere on the A good Creek, Well fide : this is a low point, which runneth about a league into the Seasyou must runne along where many the Easterne shoare some three hundred paces to enter into the same. This is the best Hauen ships may rider

50 which is all along the North moare; but it is very dangerous in going thither, because of the flats and sholds of fand, which lye for the most part all along the theare, almost two leagues into the Sea. About fix leagues from thence, there is a Bay where there is an Isle of fand; all this Bay is A Bay. very shallow except on the East file, where it hath about four fathoms water : within the channell which entreth into the faid Bay, some foure leagues up, there is a faire creeke where a River ACreeke. entreth. All this coalt is low and sandie, there descende tha fall of water which is great. About fine leagues farther is a Point which ilretcheth about halfe a league into the Sea, where there is a creeke, and from the one point to the other are three leagues, but all are should, where is little water. About two leagues off, there is a strand where there is a good hauen, and a small River,

60 wherein are three Illands, and where Ships may harbour themselves from the weather. Three leagues beyond this, is a fandie point which runneth out about a league, at the end whereof there Two little for is a small Islet. Going forward to Lefquenius, you meete with two little low Islands, and a little Hands. rocke neere the shoare : these fard Hands are about halfe a league from La/quenims, which is a ve- Lessagn a ry bad Port, compassed with rockes, and dry at a low water, and you must fetch about a little very bad Port,

Souricois. A great River weft coaft

Crecks, Potts

The River wh re he rales hill the whales. of Augus.

point of a rocke to enter in, where one Ship anely can passe at a time. A little higher there is a River, which runneth a little way into the land. This is the place where the Basks kill ele Whales: to fav the truth, the haven is starke naught. Wee came from thence to the forelaid has Our arrivall at uen of Tadonfac, the third day of August. All these Countries before mentioned are low toward Tadouf whe 30 the shoare, and within the land very high. They are neither so pleasant nor fruitfull as those on the South, although they be lower. And this for a certaintie is all which I have feene of this Nore

Of the A: moughiceis Sauages and of their monftrous thape. The difcourfe of Men-Gest de Present of Saint Male, touching the diffeuerie of the South well Coaft. Cb.12. The Ceremonies which they vie before they go to the

A Tour comming to Tadonfac, we found the Sanages which wee met in the River of the Ire-A cois, who met with three Canowes of the Iracon in the first Lake, which fought against tenne others of the Mountayners; and they brought the heads of the Iracon to Tadonfac, and there was but one Mountayner wounded in the arme with the fhot of an Arrow, who dreaming of fomething, all the other tenne must feeke to content him, thinking also that his wound thereby would mend if this Sasage die, his Parents will reuenge his death, either vpon their Nation or voon others, or at least wife the Captaines must give Presents to the Parents of the dead, to content them; otherwife as I have faid, they would be revenged : which is a great fault amone them. Before the faid Mountayners fet forth to the Warre, they affembled all, with their richett apparell of Furres, Beauers, and other Skinnes adorned with Pater-noffers and Chaines of diners colours, and affembled in a great publike place, where there was before them a Sagame whose to name was Begenrat, which led them to the Warre, and they marched one behind another, with retired themselves into their Cabines, and the Sanages went to warre against the Irocois.

Their deparcure from Tadesta: Armon:hicois deformed Satinges.

The Souricois

The Relation of the Copper Myne on the South Coaft.

Blacke pain-An He wherein another kind of Metall is found, which is white being

> Other Mynes. The description of the the faid Myne falleth almost in the mid way of that whereby Monsieur Preners returned, and there are as it their Bowes and Arrowes, Mafes and Targets, wherewith they furnish themselues to fight and they went leaping one after another, in making many gestures of their bodies, they made many turnings like a Snaile : afterward they began to dance after their accustomed manner, as I have faid before : then they made their Feast, and after they had ended it, the women stripped themfelues starke naked, being decked with their fairest Cordons, and went into their Canowes thus maked and there danced, and then they went into the water, and strooke at one another with their Oares, and beate water one upon another ; yet they did no hurt, for they warded the blowes which they strooke one at the other. After they had ended all these Ceremonies, they The fixt day of August we departed from Tadoufac, and the eighteenth of the faid moneth we arrived at the He Perges, where wee found Menfezer Presers of Saint Male, which came from the Myne, where he had beene with much trouble, for the feare which the Sanager had to mett with their enemies, which are the Armonebicon , which are Sauges very monffrous, for the shape that they have. For their head is little, and their body short, their armes small like a bone. and their thigh like; their legges great and long, which are all of one proportion, and when they fit woon their heeles, their knees are higher by halfe a foot then their head, which is a ftrange thing, and they seeme to be out of the course of Nature. Neverthelesse, they be very valuant and resolute, and are planted in the best Countries of all the South Coast : And the Souriesis do greatly feare them. But by the incouragement which the faid Monfieur de Prenert gaue them, hee An brought them to the faid Myne, to which the Sanages guided him. It is a very high Mountaine, riling fomewhat over the Sea, which gliftereth very much against the Sunne, and there is great ftore of Verde-greafe illuing out of the faid Myne of Copper. He faith, that at the foot of the faid Mountayne, at a low water there were many morfels of Copper, as was otherwise declared Another Mine vnto vs, which fall downe from the top of the Mountaine, Paffing three or foure leagues further toward the South, there is another Myne, and a imall River which runneth a little way vo into the Land, running toward the South, where there is a Mountaine, which is of a blacke painting, wherewith the Sauages paint themselues : Some fixe leagues beyond the second Myne, toward the Sea, about a league from the South Coast, there is an Ile, wherein is found another kind of Metall, which is like a darke browne : if you cut it , it is white, which they vied in old time 50 for their Arrowes and Kniues, and did beate it with flones. Which maketh me beleeve that it is not Tinne, nor Lead, being so hard as it is; and having shewed them silver, they faid that the Myne of that He was like ynto it, which they found in the earth, about a foot or two deepe. The faid Monfieur Prenert gave the Sanages Wedges and Cizers, and other things necessarie to draw out the faid Myne; which they have promifed to doe, and to bring the same the next years, and give it the faid Monfieur Presert. They fay also that within some hundred or one hundred and twentie leagues there are other Mynes, but that they dare not goe thither unleffe they have Frenchmen with them to make warre vpon their enemies, which have the faid Mynes in their possession. The said place where the Myne is, standeth in 44. degrees and some few minutes, neere the South Coast within fine or fixe leagues : it is a kind of Bay, which is certaine leagues 62 broad at the mouth thereof, and somewhat more in length, where are three Rivers, which fall into the great Bay neere vnto the He of Saint lobe, which is thirtie or five and thirtie leagues long, and is fixe leagues distant from the South shoare. There is also another little River, which were two kind of Lakes in the faid River. Furthermore, there is yet another small River which goeth toward the Mountaine of the painting. All thefe Rivers fall into the faid Bay on the South-east part, neere about the faid lie which the Sauages lay there is of this white Metall. On A good Hauen the North fide of the fard Bay are the Mynes of Copper, where there is a good Hauen for flips, at the Copper and a small Hand at the mouth of the Hauene the ground is Oze and Sand, where a man may run his ship on shoare. From the said Myne to the beginning of the mouth of the said Rivers is some fixtis or eightie leagues by Land. But by the Sea Coaff, according to my judgement, from the pallage of the Ile of Saint Laurence and the Firme Land, it cannot be past fiftie or fixtie leagues to the faid Myne. All this Countrey is exceeding faire and flat, wherein are all fores of trees, which wee law as wee went to the first Saule vp the great River of Canada, very small store of to Firre-trees and Cypreil's. And this of a truth is as much as I learned and heard of the faid Mon-

The Efore we departed from Tadonfac, to returne into France, one of the Sagamoz of the Moun- Their returned Drayners named Bechourat, gaue his Sonne to Monsteur du Pont to carrie him into France, Chap.13. and he was much recommended vato him by the Great Sagamo Anadabijon, praying him to vie him well, and to let him fee that, which the other two Sauages had feene which we had brought backe againe. We prayed them to give vs a woman of the Irocois, whom they would have eaten: whom they gave voto vs, and we brought her home with the forelaid Sanage. Monsteur de Prenert in like manner bronght home foure Sanages, one man which is of the South Coalt, one 30 Woman and two children of the Canadians. The foure and twentieth of August, we departed from Gachepay, the ship of the said Monfenr Present and ours. The second of September, we counted that wee were as farre as Cape Rafe. The fift day of the faid moneth we entred vpon the Banke, whereon they vie to fill. The Banke. fixteenth, we were come into the Sounding, which may be some fittle leagues distant from the inclounding, Ulhant. The twentieth of the laid moneth we arrived in New Hanen by the grace of God to all Vfhant. our contentments, with a continuall fauourable wind.

CHAP. VIL

The Patent of the French King to Monsieur de Monts for the inhabiting of the Countries of La Cadia Canada, and other places in New France.

Entry by the grace of God King of France and Nauatte. To our deare and well beloned the Lord of Monts, one of the ordinarie Gentlemen of our Chamber, greeting. As our greatest care and labour is, and hath alwayes beene, fince our comming to this Crowne, maintaine and conferue it in the ancient dignitie, greatnesse and splendour thereof, to ex-tend and amplisse, as much as lawfully may bee done, the bounds and limits of the same. We being, of a long time, informed of the fituation and condition of the Lands and Territories of La Cadia, moved abone all things, with a fingular zeale, and denout and constant resolution. which we have taken, with the helpe and affistance of God, Author, Distributour, and Protectour of all Kingdomes and Estates, to canse the people, which doe inhabit the Country, men (at this present time) Barbarous, Atheists, without Faith, or Religion, to be connerted to Christianitie, and to the Beliefe and Profession of our Faith and Religion: and to draw them from the ignorance and unbeliefe wherein they are. Having also of a long time knowne by the Relation of the Sea Captaines, Pilots, Merchants and others, who of long time have haunted, frequented and trafficked with the people that are found in the Said places, how fruitfull, commodious and profitable may be unto us, to our Estates and Subjects, the 50 Dwelling, Possession, and Habitation of those Countries, for the great and apparent prosit which may be drawne by the greater frequentation and habitude which may bee had with the people that are found there, and the Trafficke and Commerce which may be, by that meanes safely treated and negotiated. We then for these causes fully trusting on your great wisdome, and in the knowledge and experience that you bane of the qualitie, condition and situation of the faid Countrie of La Cadia : for diners and fundry Nanigations, Voyages and Frequentaions that you have made into those parts, and others reere and bordering aponit: Affuring our selves that this our resolution and intention, being committed anto you, you will attentimely, diligently, and no leff-couragiously and valorously execute and bring to such perfection as we defire : Haus expresty appointed and established you, and by these Presents, signed with our owne hands, doe commit ordaine, make, constitute and establish you, our Lieutenant Generall, for to represent 60 our person, in the Countries, Territories, Coasts and Co fines of La Cidia Tobegin from the 40. degree unto the 46. And in the seme distance, or part of it, as farre as may bet done, to establish, extend and make to be in me our N me, Might and Authoritie. And under the same to subject, submit and bring to obedience all the people of the faul Land and the Borderers thereof: And by the meanes thereof. and all lamfull majes, to call, make, instruct, provoke and incite them to the knowledge of God, and to the

The rest of

here for bre-

with the Pro-

uifoes, &c.

And let not

Englishmen

roome for feare want of habitations;

thefe being

other Carle

many interruptions, and of Trade with

Sauages then otherwife, I

haue omitted many digref-

fions and dif-

the Authour;

fumme of his moft ample Worke. His

Map but for coft, I would baue here added. I haue

diurrs by me which I take more exact, I am fure with many many

particulers

wanting in courles of

ged by the French in Way worthy the

CHAP.7. Bay fortic leagues in length. Spaniar de exceeding cruelties, light of the Faith and Christian Religion, to establish it there : And in the exercise and profession of the same, keepe and conferne the said people, and all other Inhabitants in the said places, and there to command in peace, reft and tranquillise, as well by Sea as by Land : to ordaine, decide, and canfe to bee executed all that which you hall indee fit and nesessarie to be done, for to maintaine, keepe and conferue the faid places under our Power and Authoritie, by the formes, wayes and meanes prescribed by our Lawes. And for to have there a care of the lame with you, to appoint, establish, and constitute all Officers. as well in the affaires of Warre, as for Instice and Policie, for the first time, and from thence forward to name and present them vato vs : for to be disposed by vs, and to give Letters, Tules, and such Provisors as Shall be necestarie. &c.

Ginen at Fountain-Bleau the eight day of Nonember : in the yeere our Lord 1603. And of our 10 Resone the fifteenth. Signed Henry : and underneath by the King, Potier; And fealed upon finale labell with yellow Waxe.

The Voyage of Monsieur de Monts into New France, written by MARKE LESCARBOT.

A Onfieur de Monts having made the Commissions and Prohibitions before said , to Mbee proclaimed thorow the Realme of France, and especially thorow the Ports and maritine Townes thereof, cauled two shippes to bee rigged and surnished, the one 20 thi Parentis under the conduct of Captaine Timothy of New-bauen , the other of Captaine Morell of Honfleur. In the first , hee shipped himselfe , with good number of men of account , as nitie omitted : well Gentlemen as others. And for as much as Monfieur de Pourrucourt was, and had beene of a long time, delirous to tee those Countries of New France, and there to finde out and choose fome it place to retire himfelfe into, with his Family, Wife and Children, not meaning to be the last that should follow and participate in the glorie of so faire and generous an enterprize, would needs goe thither, and shipped himselfe with the said Monsieur de Monts, carrying with him tome quantitie of Armours and Munitions of Warre; and fo weighed Anchors from New-French Plantabauen the feuenth day of March 1604. But being departed fomewhat too foone, before the Win- 20 mons or Sauage ter had yet left off her frozen Weed, they found there of Icie bankes, against the which they very thin, the were in danger to strike, and so to be cast away.

The Voyage was long by reason of contrarie winds, which seldome hapneth to them that set out in March for the New-found lands, which are ordinarily carried with an East or Northerne ing, or planta- winde, fit to goe to the fe Lands. And having taken their course to the South of the lie of tion, having to Sand or Sablon, or Sand, for to shunne the faid Ices, they almost fell from Caribdas into Sey da, going to frike towards the faid Ile, during the thicke mists that are frequent in that Sea. In the end, the fixt of May they came to a certaine Port, where they found Captaine Roffignol of New-bauen, who did trucke for skinnes with the Sauages, contrary to the Kings Inhibitions, more frequenwhich was the cause that his ship was conficated. This Port was called Le Port du Roffignol, ha- 10 uing (in this his hard fortune) this onely good, that a good and fit Harborough or Port, in those Coaits beareth his name.

From thence coasting and discouring the Lands, they arrived at another Port, very faire, which they named Le Port de Moutton, by reason that a Mutton or Weather hauing leaped o. uer-board and drowned himselfe came aboard againe, and was taken and eaten as good prize. Neere the faid Montton Port there is a place so replenished with Rabbets and Conies, that they almost did eate nothing elfe. During that time Monsieur Champlem was fent with a shallop to feeke farther off a fitter place to retire themselues, at which Exploit he carried so long, that deonly for knowliberating upon the returne, they thought to leave him behind: for there was no more victuals: ledge of those parts, prefenand they ferued themselues with that, that was found in the faid Rossignols ship, without which so ting the briefe they had beene forced to returne into France, and to to breake a faire enterprize at the very birth and beginning thereof; or to starue, having ended the hunting of Conies, which could not still

All New France in the end being contained in two ships, they weighed Anchors from Port du Montton, for to imploy their time, and to discouer Lands as much as might before Winter. Wee came to Cape de Sable, or the Sandie Cape; and from thence we failed to the Bay of Saint Marie, where our men lay at Anchor fitteene dayes, whileft the Lands and passages as well by Sea as by River might be descried and knowne. This Bay is a very faire place to inhabit, because that one is readily carried thither without doubling. There are Mynes of Iron and Siluer; but in no great abundance, according to the triall made thereof in France. A Priest losing his way in the Woods 60 was mitting fixteene dayes. Whereupon a Protestant was charged to have killed him be-both his Mapp: and Discourse show that the French discoursed not so neers Virginia, as Hudsons River; and that the French P'anazione bute beene more Northerly farre, then our Northerne Virginia, and to the Southerne, not a finadow in compaifin of and numbers.

cause they quarrelled sometimes for matters of Religion. Finally, they sounded a Trumpet thorow the Forreit, they shot off the Canon divers times, but in vaine: for the roaring of the Sea, stronger then all that, did expell backe the found of the faid Canons and Trumpets. Two, there and foure dayes palled he appeareth not. In the meane-while the time haftens to depart, so having tarried so long that hee was then held for dead, they weighed Anchors to goe further, and to fee the depth of a Bay that hath some fortie leagues length. and fourteene (yea eighteene) of breadth , which was named La Baye Francoife, or the Language Francoife

In this Bay is the passage to come into a Port, whereinto our men entred, and made some 10 abode, during the which they had the pleasure to hunt an Ellan, or Stagge, that croffed a great Lake of the Sea, which maketh this Port, and did swimme but early. This Port is ennironed with Mountaines on the North fide : Towards the South bee small Hills, which (with the faid Mountaines) doe powre out a thousand Brookes, which make that place pleasanter then any other place in the World : there are very faire talles of waters, fit to make Milles of all forts. At the East is a River betweene the taid Mountaines and Hilles, in the shippes may faile fifteene leagues and more, and in all this diffance is nothing of both fides the River but faire Medowes , which River was named L' Equille , because that the first fish taken therein was an Equille. But the faid Port, for the beautie thereof was called Port Royall, Monfieur The River of de Pontrincourt having found this place to bee to his liking demanded it, with the Lands L'Equille. 20 thereunto adiopning, of Monsieur de Monts: to whom the King had by Commission, before inferted, granted the distribution of the Lands of New France from the fortieth degree to the fixe and fortieth. Which place was granted to the laid Monsieur de Poutrincourt, who fince hath had Letters of confirmation for the same of his Maiestie, intending to retire himselfe this ther with his Family, and there to establish the Christian and French Name, as much as his power shall stretch, and God grant him the meanes to accomplish it. The Port contayneth eight leagues of circuit, besides the River of L' Equillo. There is within it two Iles very faire and pleasant: the one at the mouth of the faid River, which I deeme to bee of the greatnesse of the Citie of Beauvais: The other at the fide of the mouth of another River, as broad as the River of Oife, or Mane, entring within the faid Port: The faid lie beeing almost of the greatnesse of the other: and they both are wooddie. In this Port, and right ouer against the former Ile, wee dwelt three yeeres after this Voyage. We will speake thereof more at large

From Port Royall they failed to the Copper Myne, whereof wee have spoken before else- A Copper where. It is a high Rocke betweene two Bayesof the Sea, wherein the Copper is coniouned Myae, with the stone, very faire and very pure, such as is that which is called Rozette Copper. Many In the all and with the itone, very faire and very pure, fuch asis that winder is called Roberts Supply and 19. Chap, of Gall-smithes have seene of it in France, which doe say that winder the Copper Myne there is second might bea Golden Myne : which is very probable. For if those excrements that Nature expelleth forth be so pure, namely, small pieces that are found vpon the gravell at the foote of the whole Volume Rocke, when it is low water, there is no doubt that the Metall which is in the bowels of the vniranflated. 40 earth is much more perect, but this is a Worke that requireth time. The first myning and working is to have Bread, Wine and Cattle, as we have faid elfe-where. Our felicitie confifteth not in Mynes, specially of Gold and Silver, the which serne for nothing in the tillage of the ground, on, nor to Handicrafts vie. Contrariwise, the abundance of them is but a charge and burthen, that keepeth man in perpetuall verquiet, and the more he hath thereof, the leffe rest enioyeth he, and his life leffer affured voto him.

Before the Voyages of Peron great riches might have beene set vp in a small place, in stead Note. This that in this our age by the abundance of Gold and filter the fame is come at no value nor effeeme. French Author One hath need of huge Chefts and Coffers to put in that , which a small Budget might haue was a Romifb contained. One might have travelled with a Purse in ones sleeue, and now a Cloke-bagge and a which yes To Horse must expressly be had for that purpose. Wee may suffly curse the houre that greedie Aua- head for that purpose. rice did carrie the Spaniard into the Welt, for the wofull events that have enfued thereof. For freely of the when I consider that by his greedinesse he hath kindled and maintayned the Warre thorow all Seamands. Christendome, and his onely studie hath beene how to destroy his Neighbours (and not the Turke) I cannot thinke that any other but the Deuill hath beene the Authour of their Voyages. And let not the pretence of Religion be alleaged vnto mee : for (as wee haue faid elfewhere) they have killed all the of-fpring of the Countrey with the most inhumane torments that the Deuili hath beene able to excogitate. And by their cruelties have rendred the Name of God odious, and a name of offence to those poore people, and have continually and daily blafphemed him in the midft of the Gentiles as the Prophet reprocheth to the people Efay 22.00163. 60 of Ifract. Winessehim that had rather bee damned, then goe to the Paradise of the Spa-

Among these Copper Rockes there is found sometimes small Rockes covered with Diamonds fixed to them. I will not after them for time, but that is very pleating to the fight. There are allo certaine flinning blue itones, which are of no leffe value or worth than Turkie Stones. Turkie flones, Tttttt 2

Monsieur de Champdore our guide for the Navigations in those Countries, having cut within a Rocke one of those stones, at his returne from New France hee brake it in two, and gaue one part of it to Monsieur de Monts, the other to Monsieur de Poutrincourt, which they made tobe put in Gold, and were found worthy to be presented the one to the King by the faid Poutrincourt, the other to the Queene by the faid de Monts, and were very well accepted. I remember that a Goldsmith did offer fiteene Crownes to Monsieur de Pontrincourt for that hee presented to his

New France, Bay of Saint Marie. Common place. LIB.VIII.

Vines.

The commoditte of Vovaging by the

This River is one of the fairest that may be seene, having store of Hands, and swarming with filhes. This last yeere 1608, thy laid Monfieur de Champdore, with one of the faid Monfieur de Monte his men, hath beene tome fiftie leagues vp the laid River : and doe witneffe that there is great quantitie of Vines along the shoare, but the Grapes are not so bigge as they be in the Countrie of the Armonchiquou: There are allo Onions, and many other forts of good hearbs. Asfor Great Grapes among the deamong the deof Cedar Trees. Concerning fishes the faid Champdore hath related vinto vs, that putting the Abundance of Kertle ouer fire, they had taken fish sofficient for their Dinner before that the water was bot. Moreover this River, firetching it felte tarre within the Lands of the Savages doth marvellously thorten the long travels by meanes thereof. For in fixe dayes they goe to Gafbepe , comming to the Bay or Gulte of Chaleur, or heate, when they are at the end of it, in carrying their Canowes fome few leagues. And by the fame River in eight dayes they go to Tadonfac by a branch of the firme which commeth from the North-well. In such fort that in Port Royall one may have within fifteene or eighteene dayes newes from the Frenchmen, dwelling in the great River of Canada, by these wayes: which could not be done in one moneth by Sea, nor without danger.

The He of S. leagues from S. Johns Riner.

L-auing Saint Johns River, they came following the Coast twentie leagues from that place, to a great River (which is properly Sea) where they fortified themselves in a little Iland seated in the middett of this River, which the faid Champleine had beene to discouer and view. And seeing it throng by nature, and of easie defence and keeping, besides that the season beganne to slide away, and therefore it was behoouefull to prouide of lodging, without running any farther, they resolued to make their abode there.

As they began to vitit and fearch the Hand, Monfieur de Champdore (of whom we shall henceforth make mention, by reason he dwelt source yeere in those parts, conducting the Voyages 20 made there) was fent backe to the Bay of Saint Mary, with a Mine-finder, that had beene car-Remove to the ried thither for to get fome Mynes of tiluer and Iron , which they did . And as they had croffed Bay of S.M. 7, the French Bay, they entred into the faid Bay of Saint Marie, by a narrow Straite or passage, man was foul which is betweene the Land of Port Royall, and an Iland called the Long lle: where after some abode they going a filhing, Monfieur Anbri (the Priest before lost) perceiued them, and beganne The Long le. with a feeble voice to call as loud as he could; and put his Handkercher, and his Hat on a states end, which made him better to be knowne. During thele fixteene daies hee fed himfelfe but by (I know not what) small fruits, like vnto Cheries, without kernell (yet not so delicate) which are fearfly found in those Woods. They gave him food by measure, and brought him backe againe to the company at the lland of Saint Croix, whereof every one received an incredible ioy 40 and confolation. Before we speake of the ships returne into France, it is meete to tell you how hard the lle of Saint Croix.

The fruitfulneffe of the

The Iland in compatie.

Muicles.

on of the leof Saint Croix is to bee found out, to them that were never there. For there are fo many lles and great Bayes to goe by, before one be at it, that I wonder how ever one might pierce to farre for to finde it. There are three or foure Mountaines, imminent aboue the others, on the fides: But on the North fide, from whence the River runneth downe, there is but a sharpe pointed one, aboue two leagues diffant. The Woods of the maine Land are faire and admirable high and well growne, as in like manner is the graffe. There is right ouer against the Hand fresh water brooks, very pleasant and agreeable, where divers of Monsseur de Monts, his men did their bulinesse, and builded there certaine Cabanes. As for the nature of the ground it is most excellent and motta- 50 bundantly fruitfull. For the faid Monsieur de Monts, having caused there some piece of ground to bee tilled, and the same sowed with Rie (for I have seene there no Wheate) hee was not able to tarrie for the maturitie thereof to reape it; and notwithstanding, the graine, fallen, hath growne and increased so wonderfully that two yeeres after we reaped and did gather of it as faire, bigge and weightie, as in France, which the foile had broughe forth without any tillage : and yet at this prelint it doth continue still to multiply every yeare. The faid Hand containeth some halfe halte a league a league of circuit, and at the end of it on the Sea lide, there is a Mount or fmall Hill, which is (as it were) a little He leuered from the other, where Monfieur de Monts his Canon was placed: There is also a little Chappell built after the Sauage fashion. At the foot of which Chappell there is such store of Muscles as is wonderfull, which may bee gathered at low water, but they 60 are imall.

Now let vs prepare and hoife vp failes. Monfieur de Poutrincourt made the Voyage into theile parts with some men of good fort, not to winter there, but as it were to seeke out his feate, and find out a Land that might like him. Which he having done, i ad no need to foiourne there any longer. So then the ships being ready for the returne, he shipped himselfe, and those of his companie, in one of them.

one, in one of the contraction, Monsteur du Monts his people did worke about the Fort; Poutsmoute During the foresaid Nauigation, Monsteur du Monts his people did worke about the Fort; Poutsmoute which he leated at the end of the Illand, opposite to the place where he had lodged his Cannon. into France. Which was wifely confidered, to the end to command the River vp and downe. But there was an The building Which was writely connected, to the end to command the court of all own thou any shelter, but of the at the lie of inconvenience, the said Fort did lie towards the North, and without any shelter, but of the s. Croix. trees that were on the Ile shoare, which all about he commanded to be kept, and not cut downe. The most vegent things being done, and hoary snowy Father being come, that is to say, Win- Three discom-

ter, then they were forced to keepe within doores, and to live every one at his owne home: du-modities in to mag which time, our men had three special discommodities in this Iland, videlices, want of S. Croix. wood, (for that which was in the faid lle was spent in buildings) lacke of fresh water, and the continuall watch made by night, fearing some surprise from the Sauages, that had lodged themfelues at the foot of the Lid Hand, or some other enemie. For the malediction and rage of ma- Wickednesse ny Christians is luch, that one mult take heed of them much more than of Infields. A thing of many thriwhich erieueth me to ipeake: would to God I were a lyar in this respect, and that I had no caule to freake it! When they had need of water or wood, they were confirmed to croffe ouer the River, which is thrice as broad of every fide, as the River of Seine. It was a thing painfull The River of and tedious, in fuch fort, that it was needfull to keepe the Boat the whole day, before one Roan. might get those necessaries. In the meane while the cold and snowes came vpon them, and the 20 Ice fo ftrong, that the Sider was frozen in the veffels, and every one his measure was given him Vnknown fickout by weight. As for Wine it was distributed but at certaine dayes of the weeke. Many idle neffes, vir. the fluggish companions dranke snow-water, not willing to take the paines to crosse the River. Scorbute or Briefly, the voknowne fickneffes like to those described voto vs by lames Quartur, in his Rela-Scuruse, the Briefly, the volknowne ficknesses like to those described vinto vs by sames Marter, in his Actagreatest plague tion, affailed vs. For remedies there was none to bee found. In the meane while the poore ficke of Nauigations creatures did languith, pining away by little and little, for want of fweet meates, as Milke or and new Planfpoon-meate for to fustaine their fromackes which could not receive the hard meates, by reason tations, Fortiof let, proceeding from a rotten flesh which grew and ouer-abounded within their mouthes; fications and of let, proceeding from a rotten nem which grew and ouer-abounded within their incommends beand when one thought to root it out, it did growe againe in one nights space more abundantly fieed, where than before. As for the tree called Annedda, mentioned by the faid Quartier, the Sauages of these wantof fresh 30 Lands knowe it not. So that it was most pitifull to behold every one, very few excepted, in diet and of bathis miferie, and the miferable ficke folkes to die, as it were full of life, without any possibilitie dily labour, or this miterie, and the miterable ficke roikes to die, as it were out or inc, without any pointonite who had to be fuccoured. There died of this fickneffe thirty fixe, and thirty fixe or forty more that were too much a tobe fuccoured. The recoured themselves by the helpe of the Spring, as foone as the comfortable thing, which is the recoured themselves by the helpe of the Spring, as foone as the comfortable thing, which is the recourse of the spring as fooders. feason appeared. But the deadly season for that sicknesse is in the end of Ianuary, the moneths grosse aires in of February and March, wherein most commonly the sicke doe die, enery one at his turne, ac- the Countries cording to the time they have begunne to be ficke; in fuch fort, that he which beganne to be ill ouergrowne cording to the time they have begunne to beneke: in nutrior, that he which beganne to with wood, or in February and March, may escape, but he that shall ouer-haste himselfe, and betake him with marifies, to his bed in December and Ianuary, he is in danger to die in February, March, or the beginning bogs and vn-

Monsieur de Poutrincours made a Negro to be opened, that died of that sicknesse in our Voy- ters are chiefe age, who was found to have the inward parts very found, except the stomacke, that had breederstherewrinkles, as though they were vicered.

As for the food, this ficknesse is caused by cold meates, without juyce, grosse and corrupted, and for must then take heed of falt meates, smoothy, musty, raw, and of an entil sent, likewise of of this disease, dried fishes, as New-found-Land fish, and stinking Rayes : Briefly, from all melancholy meates, the chiefe which are of hard digefting, are easily corrupted, and breed a grosse and melancholy bloud. I points whereof would not (tor all that) bee so scrupulous as the Physicians, which doe put in number of grosse pressed for the and melancholy meates, Beeues shelh, Beares, wilde Boares and Hogs shelh (they might as well benefit of our adde vnto them Beauers flesh, which notwithstanding wee have found very good) as they doe English Coloto among fifther the Tons, Dolphins, and all those that carrie Lard: among the birds, the Hernes, in which it is Duckes, and all other water birds: for in being an ouer-curious observator of these things, one duction manufaction in the behavior of those and the properties of the state of th might fal into the danger of staruing, and to die for hunger. They place yet among the meats that ny hundreds are to be shunned Bisket, Beanes and Pulse, the often ving of Milke, Cheese: the grosse and harth boue hereby Wine, and that which is too small, white Wine, and the vie of Vinegar: Beere which is not fertified well fodden, nor well feummed, and that hath not Hoppes enough. Alto waters that runne thowell folden, nor well fourmed, and that hath not Hopper enough. Also waters that runne those of the dead row rotten wood, and those of Likes and Bogges, still and corrupted waters, such as is much in and sicke. Holland and Frizeland, where is observed that they of Amsterdam are more subject to Palites and Dangerous fliftning of finews, then they or Roserdam, for the abouefaid caute of flill and theepy waters: which moneths, besides doe ingender Dropties, Dysenteries, Fluxes, quartaine Agues, and burning Feuers, swel- The opening 60 lines, vicers of the Lights, flortheffe of breath, ruptures of children, (welling in the veines, body. fores in the legges : finally, they wholly belong to the Jifeale whereof we speake, being drawne What food by the Spleene, where they leave all their corruption.

Sometimes this fickneffe dothalto come by a vice which is even in waters of running Foun-lind difeate, taines, asif they be among, or neere Bogges, or if they issue from a muddy ground, or from a Badwaters. Tttttt 3

Plin.li.25.6.3.

Stomaccacè.

Scelatitie.

an herbe.

place that hath not the Sunnes afpect. So Plinie reciteth that in the Voyage which the Prince Cafar Germanicus made into Germanie, having given order to his Armie to paffe the River of Rhore, to the end to get full forward in the Countrie, he did fet his campe on the Sea shoare. vnon the coast of Frizeland, in a place where was but one onely Fountaine of fresh water to hee found, which not withflanding was to pernicious, that all they that dranke of it loft their teeth in leffe than two yeeres space, and had their knees so weake and disionnted, that they could not beare themselves. Which is verily the sicknesse whereof wee speake, which the Physicians doe call Stomaccace, that is tolay, Monthes fore ; and Scelotyrbe, which is as much to fay, as the flaking of thighs and legges. And it was not possible to finde any remedie, but by the meanes of an herbe called Britannica, or Scuruy grafe, which besides is very good for the sinewes, against Io Britannica, or Scuruy graffe, the fores and accidents in the mouth: against the Squinancie, and against the biting of Serpents. It hath long leaurs, drawing in colour a darke greene, and produceth a blacke roote. from which liquor is drawne, as well as from the leafe. Strabo fayth, that the like cafe happened to the Armie that Elius Gallus brought into Arabia, by the commission of Augustus the Emperour. And the I ke also chanced to King Saint Lemes his Armie in Egypt, as the Lord de lomuille reporteth Other effects of bad waters are feene neere vnto vs, to wit,in Sauor, where

Strabo. Monfieur de

The Gouitres of Saunte When the is

Windes,

Next to waters, the aire is also one of the Fathers and Ingenderers of this ficknesse, in boggy against health and watrish places, and opposite to the South, which is most often ramy. But there is yet in New 20 France another bad qualitie of the aire, by reason of Lakes that be thicke there, and of the great rottennesse in the Woods, whose odour the bodies having drawne vp, during the raines of Autumne and Winter, early are ingendred the corruptions of the mouth, and iwelling in the legges before ipoken, and a cold entreth vnfenfibly into it, which benummeth the limbes, flifneth the finewes, constraineth to creepe with crutches, and in the end, to keepe the bed. And for as much as the windes doe participate with the aire, yea are an aire running with a more vehement force than ordinary, and in this qualitie have great power over the health and ficknesses of men, This noisome qualitie of winde proceedeth (in my judgement) from the nature of the Countrie thorow which it paffeth , which (as wee haue faid) is full of Lakes, and those very great, which bee (as it were) flanding and flill waters. Whereto I adde the exhalation of the rottenwest part is great, large and spacious.

the women (more than men, because they are of a colder constitution) have commonly swellings in their throats, as bigge as Bottles.

Scalons.

The leafons are also to be marked in this difease, which I have not seene nor heard of, that it begins to worke, neither in the Spring time, Summer nor Autumne, vnleffe it be at the end of it, but it Winter. And the cause thereof is, that as the growing heate of the Spring maketh the humours closed up in the Winter to disperse themselves to the extremities of the body, and so cleareth it from melanchely, and from the notione humors that have beene gathered in Winter: fo the Autumne, as the Winter approacheth, draweth them inward, and doth nourish this melancholy and blacke humour, which doth abound specially in this season, and the Winter being come sheweth forth his effects at the costs and gricte of the poore patients. I would adde willingly to all the aforeful causes the bad food of the Sea, which in a long Voi-age brings much corruption in mans body. This ficknesse proceeding from an indigestion of sude, eroffe, cold and melancholy meates, which offend the flomacke, I thinke it good (fubmitting

Badford and di commodities of the Sea. Aduice for the fickneffes of New France.

Good Wine.

Herbes in the Spring time.

Stoues. Beddington in Survie. at Sir

my telfe to better judgement and aduice) to accompany them with good lawces, be it of Butter, Oyle, or Fat, all well spiced, to correct as well the qualitie of the meate, as of the bodie inwardly waxen cold. Let this be faid for rude and groffe meates, as Beanes, Peafe, and fish: for he that shall eate good Capons good Partridges, good Ducks, and good Rabets, may be affured of his health, or else his body is of a bad constitution. We have had some sick, that have(as it were) raised yp from death to life : for having eaten twice or thrice of a coolice made of a Cocke, good Wine taken according to the necessitie of nature, is a soueraigne preservative for all sicknesses, and particularly for this. The young buds of herbs in the Spring time be also very soueraigne. And as for that which concerneth the exteriour parts of the body, we have found great good in wearing woodden Pantaphles, or Patins with our shoots, for to avoide the moistnesse. The houles neede no opening nor windowes on the North-west side, being a winde very dangerous: but rather on the East fide, or the South. It is very good to have good bedding (and it was good for mee to have carried things necessary co this purpose) and above all to keepe himselfe neate. I would like well the vse of Stoues, such as they have in Germanie, by meanes whereof they feele no Winter, being at home, but as much as they pleafe. Yea, they have of Gardens. Such them in many places, in their Gardens, which doe so temper the coldnesse of Winter, that in Thauescene at this rough and sharpe season there one may see Orange-trees, Lymmon-trees, Fig-trees, Pom- 60 granat-trees, and all such forts of trees, bring forth fruit as good as in Prouence.

The Sauages vie Iweatings often, as it were every moneth, and by this meanes they presente themselues, driving out by sweate all the cold and evill humours they might have gathered. of the Sausges But one fingular prefervative against this perfidious ficknesse, which commeth so stealingly, and which having once lodged it felfe within vs, will not bee put out, is to follow the counfell of which nature on the wife, who having confidered all the afflictions that mangine to A mery heart him that is wife amonit the wife, who having confidered all the afflictions that mangine to himfelieduring his life, hath found nothing better then to reiore himfelfe, and doe good, himselfeduring his life, hath found nothing better then to reinjee himselfe, and doe good, a tree pre-mainer take plasses in his owne worker. They that have done fo, in our companie, have found themselves against me well by it: contrariwite tome al waies grudging, repining, neuer content, idle, have beene found Scurue. out by the same disease. True it is, that for to enjoy mirch it is good to have the sweetnesse of fresh Ectel (3, 12,22) meates, Flefies, Fiftes, Milke, Butter, Oyles, Fruits, and fuen like, which wee had not at will much (I mean the common fort: for alwais some one, or other of the companie did furnish Mon. fieur de Pontrincourt, his Table with Wilde-fowle, Venison or fresh Fish) Andit wee had halfe to a dozen Kine, I beleeue that no body had died there. Necessia Anna, a Defect time, necessary for the accomplishment of mirth, and to the end one may Necessias. of take pleasure on the worke of his hands is every one to have the honest companie of his law- having women full wrife: for without that, the cheere is neuer perfect; ones minde is al waies vpon that which into the Counone loues and defireth; there is still fome forrow, the body becomes full of ill humours, and fo trey. the fickneffe doth breed. And for the last and soueraigne remedie, I send backe the Patient to the tree of life (for fo one may well qualifie it) which lames Quartier doth call Anneda, yet vn- Treeof life. knowne in the coalt of Port Royall, valetie it bee, peraduenture the Safafras, whereof there is Safafras. quantitie in certaine places. And it is an assured thing, that the faid tree is very excellent. But Monsser chanses Monsteur Champlain, who is now in the great River of Canada, passing his Winter, in the this present 30 same part, where the said Quartier did winter, hath charge to finde it out, and to make proui- yeere 1609. in

THe rough season being passed, Monsseur de Monts, wearied with his bad dwelling at Saint The discourse Craix, determined to leeke our another Port in a warmer Countrie, and more to the South: of new Lands And to that end made a Pinnace to bee armed and furnished with victuals, to follow the coast, by Monstear de And to that end made a Pinnace to bee armed and turnined with victuals, to route with Mount; fabrand discourring new Countries, to seeke out some happier Port in a more temperate aire. Hee lous tales and made in this Voyage but about an hundred and twenty leagues, as wee will tell you now. From reports of the Saint Croix to fixty leagues forward, the coast lieth East and West: at the end of which fixty Riverand saileagues is a River, called by the Savages Kumbeki. From which place to Malebarre it lieth ned Towneof 30 North and South, and there is yet from one to the other fixty leagues, in right line, not follow - Norembega North and South, and there is yet from one to the other many leagues, in right line, northing Kinibeli axy ing the Bayes. So farre firetcheth Monfisur de Monts his Voyage, wherein hee had for Pilot kagues from in his Vessell, Monsieur de Champdore. In all this Coast so farre as Kunbeki, there are ma- S. Croix. ny places where shippes may bee harboured amongst the llands, but the people there is not so frequent as is beyond that : And there is no remarkable thing (at least that may bee seene in the outlide of the Lands) but a Ruer, whereof many have written fables one after another.

I will recite that which is in the last Booke, intituled, The univerfall Historie of the West Indies, Printed at Donay the last yeere 1607, in the place where hee speaketh of Norombega: For in reporting this, I shall have also faid that which the first have written, from whom they haue had it.

CHAP.7.

Moreouer, towards the North (layth the Authour, after bee had spoken of Virginia) is Norom- Fabulous sales bega, which is knowne well enough, by reason of a faire Towne, and a great River, though it is not of the River found from whence it hath his name: for the Barbarians dee call it Aguncia : At the mouth of Nerombeta. this Riner there is an Iland very fit for filbing. The Region that goeth along the Sea, doth abound in filb, and towards New France there is great number of wilde heafts, and is very commodious for hunting ; the Inhabitant: doe line in the fame manner as they of New France.

If this beautifull Towne hath euer beene in nature, I would faine knowe who hath pulled it downe : For there is but Cabins heere and there made with pearkes , and couered with barkes of trees, or with skinnes, and both the River and the place inhabited is called Pempte- Pemptegon, goet, and not Agguncia. The River (fauing the tide) is scarce as the River on that coast, be-

30 cause there are not Lands sufficient to produce them, by reason of the great River of Canada, which runneth like this coaft, and is not fourescore leagues distant from that place in croffing the Lands, which from elfe-where received many Rivers falling from those parts which are towards Norombega : At the entrie whereof, it is so farre from having but one Iland, that rather the number thereof is almost infinite, for as much as this River enlarging it selfelike the Greeke Lambda A, the mouth whereof is all full of Iles, whereof there is one of them lying very farre off (and the formost) in the Sea, which is high and markable about

But some will say that I equiuocate in the situation of Norombega, and that it is not placed Objection where I take it. To this I as I wer, that the Author, whose words I have a little before alleaged, is in Aniwer. 60 this my fufficient warrant, who in his Geographicall Mappe, hath placed in the mouth of this River in the 44. degree, and his supposed Towne in the 45. wherein we differ but in one degree, which is a small matter. For the River that I meane is in the 45. degree, and as for any Towne, there is none. Now of necessity it must be this river, because that the same being passed, and that of Kinibeti, (which is in the fame high) there is no other River forward, whereof account should be made, till one come to Virginia. I say furthermore, that seeing the Barbarians of Norombeed doe live as they of new France, and have abundance of hunting, it must be, that their Province be sean our new France; for fiftie leagues farther to the South-west there is no great game, bethe woods are thinner there, and the Inhabitants fetled, and in greater number then in No.

Kinibeki.

The Bay of Marchin, 1607. Chest hoes. The ground manured. Vines.

Malebarre. Exechemins.

The Armouchiof the Armon-

The arrivall of Monfieur du Point. 1605.

Trafficke with the Sauages. Beuers Otters,

Hand Mile.

The River of Norombega being passed, Monsieur de Monts went still coasting, vntill he came to Kinibeki, where a River is that may shorten the way to goe to the great River of Canada. There is a number of Sauages Cabined there, and the land beginneth there to be better peopled. From Kinibeki going farther, one findeth the Bay of Marchin, named by the Captaine his name that commandeth therein. This Marchin was killed the yeare that we parted from New France 10 1607. Farther is another Bay called Chonakoet, where (in regard of the former Countries) is a great number of people : for there they till the ground, and the region beginneth to be more temperate, and for proofe of this, there is in this land ftore of Vines, Yea, euen there be Ilands full of it (which be more fubicat to the inturies of the winde and cold) as we shall fav hereafter. There is betweene Chonafoet and Malebarre many Bayes and Iles, and the Coast is fandy. with shallow ground, drawing neere to the faid Malebarre, fo that scarce one may land there

The people that be from Saint lobus River to Kinibeki (wherein are comprised the Rivers of Saint Croix and Norombega) are called Etechemins. And from Kinibeki as farre as Malebarre and and realtons farther, they are called Armonebiquois. They be traitors and theeues, and one had neede to take 20 heede of them. One of them from a man of Saint Males tooke a Kettell, and ran away speedi-The twifmede by with his bootie. The Malonin running after, was killed by this wicked people : and although the fame had not hapned, it was in vaine to purfue after this theefe ; for all thefe Armonchiquois are as (wife in running as Grayhounds; as we will yet further lay in fpeaking of the voiage that Monsieur de Pontrincourt made in the same Country, in the yeare 1606.

The Spring feafon being paffed in the Voyage of the Armonchiquois, Mounfieur du Pont, fur-

named Grane, dwelling at Honflenr, did arrive with a company of some forty men, for to eale the faid Monfieur de Monts and his troope, which was to the great toy of all, as one may well imagine; and Canon thots were free and plentifull at the comming, according to custome, and the found of Trumpets. The faid Monfieur de Pont, not knowing yet the ftate of our French men, did 10 thinke to finde there an affured dwelling, and his lodgings ready : but confidering the accidents of the strange sicknesse, whereof we have spoken, he tooke advice to change place. Monsieur de Monts was very defirous that the new habitation had beene about 40. degrees, that is to fay 4. degrees farther then Saint Croix : but having viewed the Coast as farre as Malebarre, and with much paine, not finding what he defired, it was deliberated to goe and make their dwelling in Transmigrati. Port Royall, vntill meanes were had to make an ampler discouery. So every one began to packe on from S. Croix up his things: That which was built with infinite labour was pulled downe, except the Storehouse, which was too great and painefull to be transported, and in executing of this, many voyages are made. All being come to Port Royal they found out new labours: the abiding place is chofen right ouer against the Hand, that is at the comming in of the River L'Esquille, in a place 40 where all is covered over, and full of woods as thicke as possibly may be. The Moneth of September did already begin to come, and care was to be taken for the villading of Monsieur du Pont his Ship, to make roome for them that should returne backe into France. Finally, there is worke enough for all. When the Ship was in a readinesse to put to failes, Monsieur de Monts having feene the beginning of the new habitation, shipped himselfe for his returne with them that would follow him. Notwithstanding many of good courage (forgetting the griefes and labours paffed) did tarry behinde, amongst whom were Monsieur Champlaine and Monsieur Champdore, the one for Geographie, and the other for the conducting and guiding of the volages that should be necessary to be made by Sea.

The Winter being come, the Sauages of the Countrey did affemble themselues, from farre to 10 Port Royall, for to trucke with the Frenchmen, for such things as they had, some bringing Beauers skins, and Otters (which are those whereof most account may be made in that place) and also Tabagua is a Ellans or Stagges, whereof good buffe be made: Others bringing flesh newly killed, wherewith fausge tearmes they made many good Tabagies, or feafts, living merrily as long as they had wherewithall. They never wanted any Bread, but Wine did not continue with them till the feafon was ended. For when we came thither the yeare following, they had beene about three Moneths without any Wine, and were very glad of our comming, for that made them to take agains the tafte of it.

The greatest paine they had, was to grinde the Corne to have Bread, which is very painfull with hand-mils, where all the ffrength of the body is requifite. This labour is fo great, that the 60 Sauages (although they be very poore) cannot beare it, and had rather to be without bread, then to take to much paines, as hath beene tried, offering them halfe of the grinding they should doe, but they choosed rather to have no corne. And I might well beleeve that the same, with other things, hath beene great meanes to breede the ficknesse spoken of, in some of Monsieur du Pont his men : for there died fome halfe a dozen of them that winter. True it is, that I finde a The number defect in the buildings of our Frenchmen, which is, they had no ditches about them, whereby the of the deadwaters of the ground next to them did run vinder their lower-most roomes, which was a great Fault in their waters of the ground next to them did tun vider then lower thorizont foomes, which was a great buildings, hindrance to their health. I adde besides the bad waters which they vsed, that did not run from a quicke fpring, but from the neerest brooke.

CHAP.7. An enterprise atchieued. The Bay of Hoate, Mists and Colds.

The winter being passed, and the Sea naugable, Monsieur du Pont would needes atchieue the The furniture The winter being palied, and the Sea naugable, Moniteur an Pont Would needed a territor the of Mouleur and Pont would need a territor for some source per terrorife begun the years before by Monfieur de Monts, and to goe fecke out a Port more Source Pont to some to therly, where the ayre might be more temperate, according as he had in charge of the faid Monfieur de Monts. He furnished then the Barke which remained with him to that effect. But be- of new lands. ing fet out of the Port, and full ready, hoilted up failes for Malebarre, he was forced by contrary windetwice to pur backe againe, and at the third time the faid Barke strake against the rocks The wracke at the entry of the faid Port. In this diffrace of Neptune, the men were faued with the better part of prouision and merchandise; but as for the Barke it was rent in peeces. And by this mishap the Voyage was broken, and that which was so desired intermitted. For the habitation of Port Royall was not judged good. And notwithstanding it is, on the North and North-west sides, Gauses of dea well sheltered with Mountaines, distant some one league, some halfe a league from the Port and lay in establish the River L'Efquelle. So we fee how that enterprises take not effect according to the delires of ing the dwelmen, and are accompanied with many perils. So that one must not wonder if the time be long ling place of in establishing of Colonies, specially in lands foremote, whose nature, and temperature of aire the itenchment an is not knowne, and where one must fell and out downe Forrests, and be constrained to take heed, not from the people we call Sauages, but from them that tearme themselues Christians, and yet haus but the name of it, curied and abhominable people, worse then Wolues, enemies to God

This attempt then being broken, Monfieur da Pont knew not what to doe, but to attend the fuccour and fupply that Monfieur de Monts promifed parting from Port Royall, at his return into France, to fend him the yeare following. Yet for all events he built another Barke and a Shallop for to feeke French Ships in the places where they vie to dry fifh, fuch as Campfean Port, Englib Port, Misamichis Port : the Bay of Chaleur (or Heat) the Bay of Mornes or Coddes, and others in great number, according as Monsieur de Monts had done the former yeare, to the end to 30 Ship himfelfe in them, and to returne into France, in case that no Shippe should come to suc-

Bout the time of the before mentioned Shipwracke, Monfieur de Monts being in France, The third vor-A knowing Monfieur de Pontrincourt his defire, he wrote voto him, and fent a man of purpole age made by to give him notice of the Voyage that was in hand, Which the faid Monfieur de Pontrincourt ac. Monfieur de cepted of. He was no fooner come to Paris, but that he was forced to depart, not having fearle Poutrineurt. time to prouide for things necellary. And I having had that good hap to be acquainted with him some yeares before, he asked me it I would take part in that bu'ineste?

Being come to Rochell, we found there Monfieur de Monts, and Monfieur de Pontrincourt, that 40 were come in Poste, and our Ship called the Ionas, of the burthen of one hundred and firtie tuns. ready to passe out of the chaines of the Towne, to tarry for winde and tide. The tyde I fay, be- Ruchel cause that a great Ship laden, cannot come to sea from Rochell, but in spring tydes, vpon the new and full Moone, by reason that in the Towne roade there is no sufficient depth. I believe, that after so many trials, none would have ventured to goe plant Colonies in those parts, that Countrey being fo ill spoken of, that every one did pittie vs, considering the accidents happened to The courage them that had beene there before. Notwithitanding Monfieur de Monts and his affectates, did of Monfieur de beare manfully this loffe.

The Saturday, Whitson eue, the thirteenth of May, we weied our anckers, and failed in open Sea, so that by little and little we lost the fight of the great Towers and Towne of Rochell, 13. of May then of the lles of Rez and Oleron, bidding France fare-well. It was a thing fearefull for them that were not yied to fuch a dance, to fee them carried ypon so moueable an element, and to be at every monent (as it were) within two fingers breadth to death. We had not long failed, but Meetings of that many did their endeuour to yeelde vp the tribute to Neptune. In the meane while we went full forward, for there was no more going backe, the planke being once taken up. The fixteenth of May we met with thirteene Holanders, going for Spaine, which did inquire of our voiage, and io held their course.

About the eighteenth day of Iune, we found the Sea-water, during three dayes space, very warme, and by the same warmth, our Wine also was warme in the bottome of our Ship, yet the ayre was not hotter then before. And the one and twentieth of the faid Moneth, quite contra- Great cold. 60 ty, we were two or three dayes to much compatted with Miftes and Coldes, that wee thought our felues to be in the moneth of lanuary, and the water of the Sea was extreame cold. Which continued with vs vntill we came upon the faid Banke, by reason of the faid Mists, which outwardly did procure this cold voto vs. When I feeke out the cause of this Antiperistase, Lattribute cause of the L it to the Ices of the North, which come floting downe vpon the Coast and Sea adioyning to ces of New.

Ments and his

New-found-land, and Labrador, which we have faid ellewhere, is brought thither with the Sea. by her naturall motion, which is greater there, then elfewhere, because of the great space it bach to run, as in a gulie, in the depth of America, where the nature and lituation of the vinuerial earth doth beare it eafily. Now these Ices (which sometimes are seene in bankes of ten leagues length, and as high as Mountaines and hils, and thrice as deepe in the waters) holding, as it were, an Empire in this Sea, drive out farre from them, that which is contrary to their coldnesse, and confequently doe binde and close on this fide, that small quantity of milde temperature that the Summer may bring to that part, where they come to feate and place themselves.

Before we come to the Banke, which is the great Banke where the fishing of greene Codneerethe great fishes is made (to are they called when they are not dry, for one must goe aland for the drying of 10 them) the Sea-faring-men, belides the computation they make of their courfe, have warnings when they come neere to it, by Birds, which are knowne : euen as one doth them of these our parts, returning backe into France, when one is within one hundred or one hundred and twenty quets, flaploies leagues neere it. The most frequent of these Birds, towards the said Bankes, be Godes, Fouquets, and other called Happe foyes. The Banke whereof we speake, are Mountaines grounded in the depth of the waters, which are raifed up to thirty, fix and thirty, and forty lathams, neere to the upperface of the Sea. This Banke is holden to be of two hundred leagues in length, and is eighteene, twenty, and twenty foure leagues broad, which being paffed, there is no more bottome found out, then in these parts, vittill one come to the land. The Ships being there arrived, the failes are rowled up, and there 20 filling is made for the greene-fish. There is farther off, other Bankes, as I have marked in the faid Map, when the which good fishing may be made ; and many goe thither that know the places. When that we parced from Rochel, there was (as it were) a Forreit of Ships lying at Chef de Boie (whereof that place hath taken his name) which went all in a company to that Country, preuenting vs (in their going) but onely of two daies.

The filling of

Haning seene and noted the Banke, we hoisted up failes and bare all night, keeping still our Coast to the West. But the dawne of day being come, which was Saint lohn Baptists Eue, in Gods name we pulled downe the failes, paffing that day a fishing of Cod-fish, with a thoufand mirths and contentments, by reason of fresh meates, whereof we had as much as we would, having long before wished for them. Monsieur de Pontrincourt, and a yong man of Retel named 30 Le Flerre, who by reason of the Sea-ficknelle were not come out from their beds nor Cabines, Hap foy's, why from the beginning of the Nauigation, came vpon the hatches that day, and had the pleasure not onely of fishing of Cod, but also of those Birds, that be called by the French Marriners Hapfoyes, that is to fay, Liuer-catchers, because of their greedinesse to denoure to liners of the Codfishes that are cast into the Sea, after their bellies be opened, whereof they are so couetous, that though they fee a great Powle ouer their heads, ready to frike them downe, yet they aduenture themselues to come neere to the Ship, to catch some of them, at what price soeuer. And they which were not occupied in filhing, did paffe their time in that sport. And so did they, by their diligence, that we tooke fome thirty of them.

In this filhing, we iometimes did take Sea-dogs, whole skins our Ioyners did keepe carefully 40 Sea dogsskins to smooth their worke withall. Item, fishes called by Frenchmen Merlus, which be better then Cod, and fometimes another kinde of fish, called Bars : which diversity did augment our delight. They which were not buile in taking neither Fishes nor Birds, did passe their time in gathering the hearts, guts, and other inward parts (most delicate) of the Cod-fish, which they did Excellent fawmince with lard and spices, and with those things did make as good Bolonia Sauliges, as any can figes made The weather in those Se 18 contrary then in ours.

The causes of Mift, on the Well Seas.

wards of Cod. be made in Paris, and we did care of them with a very good stomacke. From the eighteenth of Iune vntill we did arrive at Port Royal, we have found the weather quite otherwise to that we had before. For (as we have already faid) we had cold milts or fogs, before our comming to the Banke (where we came in faire sunshine) but the next day, we fell to the fogs againe, which (a farre off) we might perceine to come and wrap vs about, holding vs 30 continually priioners three whole dayes, for two dayes of faire weather that they permitted vs : which was alwayes accompanied with cold, by realon of the Summers absence. Yea euch divers we have frene our telues a whole fennight, continually in thicke fogges, twice without any thew of Sunne, but very little, as I will recite hereafter, And I will bring forth a reason for fach effects which feemeth vinto me probable. As wee fee the fire to draw the moistingle of a wet cloth, opposite vnto it; likewife the Sunne draweth moistnesse and vapours both from the Sea and from the land. But for the diffoling of them, there is here one vertue, and beyond those parts another, according to the accidents and circumstances that are found. In these our Countries it raileth vp vapours onely from the ground, and from our Rivers: which eartily vapours, groffe and waighty, and participating lefte of the moift ellement, doe cause vs a hot are, and the 62 earth discharged of those vapours, becomes thereby more hot and parching, From thence it commeth, that the faid vapours, having the earth on the one part, and the Sunne on the other, which heateth them, they are easily dissolved, not remaining long in the ayre, volesse it be in winter. when the earth is waxen cold, and the Sunne beyond the Equinoctial line, farre off from Va

From the same reason proceedeth the cause why Mists and Fogs be not so frequent, nor so long in she French Seas, as the New-found-land, because that the Sunne, passing from his rising, about the grounds, this Sea, at the comming thereof, receiveth almost but earthly vapours, and by a long foace retaineth this vertue to diffolue very foone the exhalation it draweth to it felfe. But when is commeth to the middelt of the Ocean, and to the faid New-found-land, having elevated and affumed in fo long acourse a great abundance of vapours, from this moist wide Ocean, it doth not fo cafily diffolue them, as well because those vapours be cold of themselves, and of their nature, as because the element which is neerest under them, doth simpathize with them, and presetueth them, and the Sunne beames being not holpen in the diffoliung of them, as they are vpon the to earth. Which is even seene in the land of that Countrie, which (although it hath but small heate, by reason of the abundance of woods) notwithstanding it helpeth to disperse the Miss and Fogges, which be ordinarily there, in the morning, during Summer, but not as at Sea, for about eight a clocke in the morning they begin to vanish away, and ieroe as a dew to the round.

The eight and twentieth day of Inne, we found our felues vpon a small banke (other then the great Banke whereof we have (poken) at forty fathams. From that time forward, we began to The discourt defery land-markes (it was New-found-land) by hearbes, mosses, showers, and peeces of wood, of S. Peters L. that we alwaies met, abounding the more, by io much wee drew neere to it. The fourth day of lands. Lily, our failers, which were appointed for the last quarter watch, descried in the morning, ve- Plane disco-Lity, our railers, which were appointed to the fail quarter water, deterred in the monthly are usery of the 20 ry early, every one being yet in bed, the Iles of Saint Peter. And the Friday the fewenth of the Land. faid Moneth, we discourred, on the Larboord, a Coast of land, high raised vp. Euen our Dogs did thruit their nofes out of the Ship, better to draw and fmell the iweet ayre of the land, not being able to containe them selves from witnessing, by their gestures, the joy they had of it. We dread within a league neere vnto it, and (the failes being let downe) we fell a fishing of Cod, the fibure of the Binke beginning to faile, They which had before vs made voyages in thoseparts, did sudge vs to be at Cipe Breton. The night drawing on, we flood off to the Sea-ward : the Cap Breton next day following, being the eight of the faid moneth of July, as we drew neere to the Bay of Campleau. Campfeau, came, about the evening, milts, which did continue eight whole dayes, during the Eight daies. which we kept vs at Sea, hulling still, not being able to goe forward, being resisted by West and Which were twindes. During their eight dayes, which were from one Saturday to another, God Gods fauous (who hath alwayes guided these voyages, in the which not one man hath been lost by Sea) shewin danger. ed v: his speciall fauour, in sending vnto vs, among the thicke fogges, a clearing of the Sunne, which continued but halfe an houre : And then had we fight of the firme land, and knew that we were ready to be call away vpon the rockes, if wee had not speedily stood off to Sea-ward. Fin ally, vpon Saturday, the fifteenth of July, about two a clocke in the afterdoone, the skie began to falute vs, as it were, with Cannon shots, shedding teares, as being forry to have kept vs Calm weather. folong in paine. So that faire weather being come againe, we law comming ftraight to vs (we Morueilous obeing foure leagues off from the land) two Shallops with open failes, in a Sea yet wrathed. This dours comthing gaue vs much concent. But whill we followed on our course, there came from the land ming from the 40 odors vincomparable for sweetnesse, brought with a warme winde, so abundantly, that all the land. Orient parts could not procure greater abundance. We did stretch out our hands, as it were to take them, so palpable were they, which I have admired a thousand times since. Then the two Shallops did approach, the one manned with Sanages, who had a Stagge painted at their failes, The boording the other with Frenchmen of Saint Maloes, which made their fishing at the Port of Camfeau, but the Sanages were more diligent, for they arrived first. Having meuer feene any before, I did ad- The Sanages mire, at the first fight, their faire shape, and forme of visage. One of them did excuse himselfe, for goody men. that he had not brought his faire beuer gowne, because the weather had beene foule. He had but one red peece of Frize vpon his backe, and Matachiaz about his necke, at his wrifts, aboue the Matachiaz be elbow, and at his girdle. We made them to eate and drinke. During that time they told vs all carkanets, nekthat had passed, a yeare before, at Port Regal whither we were bound. In the meane while they laces bracelets 50 of Saint Malos came, and told vs as much as the Sanages had. Adding that the wednesday, when girdles. that we did fhun the rockes, they had feene vs, and would have come to vs with the faid Sauages, but that they left off, by reason we put to the Sea : and moreover that it had beene alwayes miliar Sea, it faire weather on the land : which made vs much to maruell : but the caule thereof hath beene is faire weather shewed before. Thete Frenchmen of Saint Maloe were men that did deale for the associates of on land, Monfieur de Monts, and did complaine that the Baskes, or men of Saint lohn de Lu (against the King his Inhibitions) had trucked with the Sanages, and carried away about fix thousand Beauers skins. They gaue vs fundry forts of their fifthes, as Bars, Marlins, and great Fletans. rs skins. They gaue vs jungry lorts of their fifties as Bars, Marins, and great rietans.

At the parting, fome number of ours went aland at the Port of Campleau, as well to fetch vs of feme or our 60 some wood and tresh water, whereof we had neede, as for to follow the Coast from that place company, goto Port Royall in a Shallop, for we did feare least Monsieur de Pont should be at our comming this ing aland. ther already gone from thence. The Sanages made offer to goe to him thorow the woods, with The Sanages do promife to be there within fix dayes, to aduercife him of our comming, to the end to cause his ways mall thay, for as much as word was left with him to depart, vnleffe hee were fuccoured within the time.

fixteenth day of that moneth, which he failed not to doe : notwithflanding our men defirous to fee the Land neerer, did ninder the fame which promited vs to bring vnto vs the next day the faid wood and water, if wee would approch neere the Land, which wee did not, but followed Mifts. Calmes.

Port ou Mou-

Tuefday the feuenteenth of July, wee were according to our accustomed manner, surprized with milts and contrarie wind. But the Thursday wee had calme weather, so that whether it Port of Roffe, were milt or faire weather wee went nothing forward. After this calme wee had two daves of fogges. The Sunday the three and twentieth of the faid moneth, wee had knowledge of the Port Du Roffignoll, and the same day in the afternoone, the Sunne shining faire, we call Ancher at the mouth of Port du Menton, and we were in danger to fall vpon a should, being come to two hargewee fathomes and a halfe depth. We went aland seuenteene of vs in number, to teach the wood and to in the Landar water, whereof we had need. There we found the Cabins and Lodgings, yet whole and unbroken, that Monfieur de Monts made two yeeres before, who had foloutned there by the space of one moneth, as we have faid in his place. We faw there, being a fandy Land, store of Okes. hearing Acornes, Cypreffe trees, Firre-trees, Bay-trees, Muske-rofes, Goofe-berries, Purflen, Rafpies, Fernes, Lylimachia, (a kind of Sammonee) Calamus odoratus, Angelica, and other Simples, in the space of two houres that wee tarried there. Wee brought backe in our ship wilde Perze, which we found good. We had not the leiture to hunt after Rabets that be there in great numher not farre from the Port, but we returned abourd as foone as we had laden our felius with water and wood : and fo hoifed up failes. Tuesday the flue and twentieth day we were about the Cap de Sable, in faire weather, and 20 made a good journey, for about the evening we came to fight of Long Ile, and the Bay of Saint

Marie, but because of the night we put back to the Seaward. And the next day we cast Anchor at the mouth of Port Royall, where wee could not enter by reason at was ebbing water, but we gaue two Canon that from our thip to falute the faid Port, and to aduertize the Frenchmen that out much difficultie, for that we had the wind contrarie, and gufts of wind from the Mountains, which made vs almost to strike vpon the Rockes. And in these troubles our ship bare still con-neffe of it, and the Mountaines and Hils that interoned it, and I wondred how fo faire a place did remayne defert, being all filled with Woods, feeing that fo many pine away in the World, which might make good of this Land, if onely they had a chiefe Governour to couduct them thither. We knew not yet, if Monsieur du Pont was gone or no, and therefore wee did expett that hee should send some men to meete vs; but it was in vaine : for hee was gone from thence twelve dayes before. And whilest we did hull in the middest of the Port Memberson, the grea-

What! You fland here a dining (for it was about noone) and doe not fee a great ship that com- 40

meth here; and we know not what men they are: Suddenly these two men ranne vpon the Bulwarke, and with diligence made readie the Canons, which they furnished with Pellets and touch Powder. Memberton, without delay, came in a Canow made of Farkes of trees, with a Daughter of his, to view vs : And having found but friendship, and knowing vs to be Frenchmen, made no alarme. Notwithstanding one of the two Frenchmen left there, called La Taile, came to the shoare of the Port, his match on the cocke, to know what we were (though he knew it well enough, for we had the white Banner displayed at the rop of the Mast) and on the folden four evolley of Canons were floot off, which made innumerable echoes: And from current, the Fort was faluted with three Canon shots, and many Musket shots, at which time our Trumpe-uing God thankes, in feeing the Sausges Cabins, and walking thorow the Medowes. But I cannot but praife the gentle courage of these two men, one of them I have alreadie named, the other is called Miquelet : which deterue well to be mentioned here, for basing to freely exposed their lives in the confernation of the welfare of New France. For Monfieur du Port haung but one

Barke and a Shallop, to feeke out towards New-found-land, for French shippes, could not charge himselfe with so much furniture, Corne, Meate, and Merchandiles as were there : which he had bin forced to cast into the Sea(and which had bin greatly to our prejudice, and wedid feare it ve-ter was not flacke of his dutie. Then we landed, viewed the house, and we passed that day ingi- 50

Thursday the seuen and twentieth of July, we came in with the sloud, which was not withtrarie, the Poopebefore, and sometimes turned round, not being able to do any other thing else. 20

Le cap de Sable. Long Iland. The Bay S. Mary. to Port Roral.

Difficulties in comming in.

we were there.

The beautie of Finally, being in the Port, it was vnto vs a thing maruellous to fee the faire diffance and large-

Sagames figniteelf Sagames of the Souriques (fo are the people called with whom we were) came to the French fieth Capraine Fort, to them that were left there, being only two, crying as a mad man, faying in his Language;

Praises of the two Frenchmen Fort of Port Rozall.

The tilling of the ground.

du Pent.

ry much) if thefe two men had not adventured themselves to tarrie there, for the preserving of those things, which they did with a willing and toyfull minde. The Friday, next day after our arrivell, Monfieur de Poutrincourt affiched to this Enterprize, 60 as for himselfe, put part of his people to worke in the tillage and manuring of the ground, whileit the others were employed in making cleane of the Chambers, and every one to make readie that which belonged to his Trade. In the meane time those people of ours that had left vs at Campfeau, to come along the Coaft, met (as it were miraculoully) with Monfeur du Pont, among Hands, that bee in great number in those parts. The faid Monfiem du Pont, at this hanpic and fortunate meeting, returned backg so fee we in the Port Royall, and to ship himselfe in the longe, to returne into France. As this chance was beneficiall vnto him, fo was it vnto vs , by the meaner of his thips that hee left with vs. For without that, wee had beene in tuch extremitie that we had not beene able to goe nor come any where, our thip being once returned into France. Hee arrived there, on Monday the last of July, and tarried set in Port Royall, vntill the eight and twenty of August. All this moneth we made merry.

At the very beginning, we were delicous to fee the Countrie up the River, where wee found Medowes, almost continuall about twelve leagues of ground, among which, brookes doe runne to without number, which come from the Hills and Mountaines adjoyning. The Woods very thicke on the water shoates, and so thicke, that fometimes, one cannot goe thorow them. In the passage to come forth from the same Fort, for to gonto Sea , there is a Brooke, which talleth from the high Rockes downe, and in falling disperseth it selfe into a small raine, which is very delightfull in Summer , bequife that at the foore of the Rockethere are Caues , wherein one is courted, whilst that this raine falleth fo pleafantly : And in the Caue (wherein the raine of this Brooke falleth) is made, as it were, a Rain-bowe, when the Sunne fhineth : which hath The forme of & given me great cause of admiration.

Within fifteene leagues of our dwelling; the Countrey, thorow which the River L'Eaville der a Cauc. paffeth, is all plaine and euen. I have feene in those parts many Countries , where the land is an all even, and the fairest of the world. But the perfection thereof is , that it is well watered.

And for witnesse whereof, not onely in Port Royall, but also in all New France, the great River Greatest of of Canada is proofe thereof, which at the end of foure hundred leagues is as broad as the grea- Genada 400. tell Rivers of the world, replenished with Iles and Rockes innumerable: taking her beginning leavues from from one of the Lakes which doe meete at the streame of her course (and so I thinke) so that it the mouth. hath two courses, the one from the East towards France: the other from the West towards It springs from the South Seas which is admirable, but not without the like example found in our Europe, a Lake. For the River which commeth downe to Trent, and to Verone proceedeth from a Lake which produceth another River, whole courle is bent opposite to the River of Line, which falleth into the River Danbe. So the Nile iffueth from a Lake that bringeth forth other Rivers, which dif-30 charge themfeluesinto the great Ocean.

Let vis returne to our tillages for to that must wee apply our selves : it is the first mine that Which is the must bee fought for, which is more worth than the treatures of Atabalina : And hee that hath first mine, Corne, Wine, Cattell, Woollen and Linnen, Leather, Iron, and afterward Cod-fish, he needeth nanther treatures, for the necessaries of life. Now all this is (or may be) in the Land by vs described : vpon which Monsieur de Pontrincourt having cauled a second tiliage to be made, in fifteene dayes after his arrivall thither, he fowed it with our French Corne, as well Wheat and Rie, as with Hempe, Flaxe, Turnep feed, Radice, Cabages, and other feeds : And the eight day following, he faw that his labour had not beene in vaine, but rather a faire hope, by the production that the ground had already made of the feedes which thee had received. Which being shewed 40 to Monfieur du Pont, was vinto him a faire subject to make his relation in France, as a thing altogether new there. The twentieth day of August was already come, when these faire shewes August 20. were made, and the time did admonish them that were to goe in the Voyage, to make ready.

after many peales of Ordnance, they weighed anchor to come to the mouth of the Port, which is commonly the first dayes iourney.

Monsieur de Monts being desirous to reach as farre into the South as he could, and seeke out a Cause of the place very fit to inhabite, beyond Malebarre, had requested Monsieur de Poutrincourt to passe Voyage made farther than yet he had done, and to feeke a convenient Port in good temperature of aire, making no greater account of Port Royall than of Saint Croix, in that which concerneth health. mouchinguis.

Whereunto they beganne to give order, fo that the five and twentieth day of the same moneth,

50 Whereunto the faid Monfieur de Pontrincourt being willing to condescend, would not tarrie for the Spring time, knowing he should have other employments to exercise himselfe withall. But freing his fowings ended, and his field greene, refolued him felfe to make this Voyage and Difcouerie before Winter. So then hee disposed all things to that end, and with his Barke anchored neere to the lands, to the end to get out in companie.

The eight and twentieth day of the faid moneth each of ve tooke his course, one one way, Parting from and the other another, diverfly to Gods keeping. As for Monfieur du Pont he purposed by the Port Royall. Way to let vpon a Merchant of Roam, named Boyer, who (contrary to the Kings inhibitions) was in those parts to trucke with the Sauages, notwithstanding hee had beene deliucred out of prison in Rochell, by the consent of Monsieur de Poutrincours, under promite hee should not goe thither; but the faid Bojer was already gone. And as for Monfieur de Poutrincourt, hee tooke his course for the Ile of Saint Croix, the Frenchmens first abode, having Monsieur de Champdore for Mafter and Guide of his Barque: but beeing hindered by the winde, and because his Barque did leake, hee was forced twice to put backe againe. In the end hee quite paffed the Faire Ric Bay Françoife, and viewed the faid He, where hee found ripe Corne, of that which two yeeres found at before S.Creix.

Rain-how vo

Vuuuuu

Their meaning is to plant beyond Malebarre to the louthward. A ditch profitibly made. What flore of workmen and lab arers in Muffels, Lobfters, Crabs. Good prouifignof wilde

What quantity of Bread and Wine.

* A kinde of Stag, or red Deere. The liberall nature of the Sausges. What carth is in the Medowes.

Ellans in the

not, if there bee any ground, there are Woods. Et vs returne to Monfieur de Pour incourt, whom we have left in the Ile Saint Croix. Having 50 made there a reuiew, and cherished the Savages that were there, hee went in the space of foure dayes to Pemptegoet, which is that place fo famous vnder the name of Norombega. There needeth not fo long a time in comming thither, but hee tarried on the way to mend his Barke: for to that end he had brought with him a Smith and a Carpenter, and quantitie of boords. Hes crossed the Iles, which bee at the mouth of the River, and came to Kimibeki, where his Barke was in danger, by reason of the great streames that the nature of the place procureth there. This was the caule why hee made there no stay, but passed further to the Bay of Marchin, which is the name of a Captaine of the Sauages, who at the arrivall of the faid Monfieur de Poutrincourt, beganne to crie out aloud Ho He: whereunto the like answere was made vnto him. Hee replied, asking in his Language, What are yee? They answered him, Friends: And thereupon 60 Monsteur de Pourrincoure approaching, treated amitie with him, and presented him with Knines, Hatchets, and Matachiaz, that is to fay, Scarles, Karkenets and Bracelets made of Beades, or Quills made of white and blue Glaffe; whereof hee was very glad , as also for the confederacy Confederacy that the faid Monfieur de Poutrincours made with him, knowing very well that the fame would before was fowed by Monfieur de Monts, which was faire, bigge, weighty, and well filled Hee fent voto vs some of that Corne to Port Regall, where I was requested to stay, to looke to the house, and to keepe the rest of the companie there, in concord. Whereunto I did agree (though it was referred to my will) for the allurance that wee had among our felues, that the veere following wee should make our habitation in a warmer Countrie beyond Malebarre, and that wee should all goe in companie with them that should bee fent to vs out of France. In the meane while I employed my felie in dreffing the ground, to make inclosures and partitions of Gardens, for to fowe Corne and Kitchin herbes. Wee caused also a Ditch to bee made all about the Fort, which was very needfull to receive the waters and moiftneffe , that beforedid runne viderneath among the rootes of trees, that had beene fallen downe: which peraduenture did make the place valuealthfull. I will not fland in describing heere, what each of our other workmen and labourers did particularly make. It sufficeth, that wee had store of Ioyners, Carpenters, Maions, Stone-caruers, Lock imithes, Tzylors, Boord-fawyers, Mariners, &c. who did Their exercise exercise their Trades; which (in doing their duties) were very kindly vsed, for they were as and manner of their owne libertie for three houres labour a day. The ouerplus of the time they bestowed it. in going to gather Mussels, which are at lowe water in great quantitie before the Fort, or Lobfters, or Crabbes, which are in Port Royall, under the Rockes in great abundance, or Cockles. which are in every part in the oze, about the shoares of the faid Port: All that kinde of fish is taken without Net or Boat. Some there were that fometimes tooke wilde-fowle, but not being skilfull, they spoyled the game. And as for vs , our Table was furnished by one of 20 Monficur de Monts men, who provided for vs in fuch fort that wee wanted no fowle , bringing vnto vs, fometimes halfe a dozen of birds, called by Frenchmen, Outards (a kinde of wilde Geefe) fometimes as many Mallards, or wilde Geefe, white and gray, very often two or three dozen of Larkes, and other kindes of birds. As for Bread, no body felt want thereof, and euery one had three quarts of pure and good Wine aday. Which hath continued with was long as wee have beene there, fauing that, when they, who came to fetch vs, in Read of bringing commodities vnto vs, helped vs to spend our owne. For our allowance, wee had Peale, Beanes, Rice, Prunes, Raifins, drie Codde, and falt Fleih, besides Oyle and Butter. But whensoeuer the Sauages, dwelling neere vs, had taken any quantitie of Sturgions, Salmons, or imall fiftes; Item, any Beuers, * Ellans, Carabous (or fallow Deere) they brought vnto vs halfe of it: and 20 that which remained they expoled it sometimes to sale publikely, and they that would have any thereof did trucke Bread for it. Wherein is to be noted a thing that now I remember. It is, that being necessary to cut turfes to couer the Piles of wood, heaped to make the faid Coales, there was found in the Medowes three foote deepe of earth, not earth, but graffe or herbes mingled with mudde, which have heaped themselues yeerely one vpon another from the beginning of the world, not having beene mooued. Neuerthelesse the greene thereof serueth for pasture to the Ellans, which wee have many times seene in our Medowes of those parts, in herds of three or foure, great and small, fuffering themselues sometimes to bee approached, then they ranne to the Woods: But I may fay moreouer, that I have feene, in croffing two leagues of our faid Medowes, the fame to bee 43 all troden with trackes of Ellans, for I knowe not there any other clouen footed beafts. There was killed one of those beafts, not farre off from our Fort at a place where Monfieur de Monis having cauled the graffe to bee mowed two yeeres before, it was growne againe the fairest of the world. Some might matuell how those Medowes are made, seeing that all the ground in those places is couered with Woods. For Letisfaction whereof, let the curions Reader knowe, that in high Spring tides, specially in March and September, the floud couereth those shoares, which hindereth the trees there to take roote. But enery where, where the water overfloweth bee a great aide and support vnto him. Hee distributed to some men that were about him, amono a great number of people, the Prefents that the faid Monfieur de Poutrincourt gaue him. to whom hee brought store of Originac, or Ellans fielh (for the Baskes doe call a Stagge, or El- Originac or Ellan, Orignac) to retresh the companie with victuals. That done, they fet fayles towards Cho- lan Champlein nation, original visual of Captaine Olmachin is, and where the yeere following was made the like Oxen. warre of the Souriquois and Etechemins, vnder the conduct of the Sagamos Memberton, which The River of I have described in Verses, which Verses I have inserted among the Muses of New France. At Olmechin. the entry of the Bay of the faid place of Chonakoet there is a great Hand, about halfe a league Port De Chonacompasse, wherein our men did first discouer any Vines (for although there bee some in Ansland of 10 the Lands neerer to Port Royall, notwithstanding there was yet no knowledge had of them) Vines, which they found in great quantitie, having the trunke three and foure foote high, and as biose as ones fift in the lower part, the Grapes faire and great, and some as big as Plummes, or leffer : but as blacke , that they left a staine where their liquour was spilled : Those Grapes, I fav. lying ouer bushes and brambles that growe in the same Iland, where the trees are not so thicke as in other where, but are fixe or feuen rods distant assunder, which causeth the Grapes to be ripe the fooner; having befides a ground very fit for the fame, gravelly and fandy. They tarried there but two houres : but they noted, that there were no Vines on the North fide, even as in the Ile Saint Croix are no Cedar trees, but on the West fide.

Pautrincourts discouery. Pemptegoet the true name of the fabulous Norombega. Kiniveki.

The Bay of

From this lland they went to the River of Olmechin, a Port of Chanakoet, where Marchin The River of 20 and the faid Olmechin brought to Monsieur de Pontrincourt a prisoner of the Souriquois (and there-Olmechin, fore their enemy) which they gave vnto him freely. Two houres after, there arrived two Sa- The galantuases, the one an Eteshemin, named Chhondun, Captaine of the River Saint Iohn, called by the neife of the Sauages Organdi: The other a Souriquois, named Messamoet, Captaine or Sagamos of the River of Port De la the Port De la Heue, where this priloner was taken. They had great store of Merchandises Beet. trucked with Frenchmen, which they were comming to veter, that is to fay, great, meane, and small Kettles, Hatchets, Kniues, Gownes, short Clokes, red Waste-coates, Bisket, and other things: whereupon there arrived twelve or fifteene Boats, full of Savages of Olmechine fubie. The Savages ction, being in very good order, all their faces painted, according to their wonted custome, when they will feeme faire, having their Bow and Arrow in hand, and the quiver, which they laved faces.

30 downe aboord. At that houre Messamoes beganne his Oration before the Sauages: shewing The Oration them, how that in times pait, they often had friendship together : and that they might easily of Meffamoti. ouercome their enemies, if they would have intelligence and ferue themselves with the amitie of the Frenchmen, whom they saw there present to knowe their Countrey, to the end to bring commodities vnto them hereafter, and to fuccour them with their forces, which forces he knew. and hee was the better able to make a demonstration thereof voto them, by so much that hee which spake, had before time beene in France, and dwelt there with Monsieur de Grandmont. Gouernour of Bayonne, Finally, his speech continued almost an houre with much vehemency and affection, with a gesture of body and armes, as is requisite in a good Oratour. And in the end Messamos afhe did cast all his merchandises (which were worth about three hundred crownes, brought into festion to the 40 that Countrie) into Olmechin his Boat, as making him a prefent of that, in assurance of the loue Frenchmen. hee would witnesse vnto him. That done the night hasted on, and every one retired himselfe. and liberality But Meffamoet was not pleased, for that Olmechin made not the like Oration vnto him, of Meffamoet, nor requited his present: For the Sauages have that noble qualitie, that they give liberally, ca- The Sauages fling at the feet of him whom they will honour, the Prefent that they give him : But it is in be liberall. hope to receive some reciprocall kindnesse, which is a kinde of contract, which wee call, without name, I give thee, to the end thou shouldest give mee. And that is done thorow all the world. Therefore Meffamoet from that day had in minde to make warre to Olmechin. Notwithstan. A Corn-counding, the next day in the morning he and his people did returns with a Boate laden with that trie, Beance, Pumpions, and which they had, to wit, Corne, Tabacco, Beanes and Pumpions, which they diffributed here Grapes, 50 and there. Those two Captaines Olmechin and Marchin have fince beene killed in the warres. In whose stead was chosen by the Sauages, one named Beffabes, which since our returne hath Beffabes. beene killed by Englishmen: and in stead of him they have made a Captaine to come from within the Lands, named Asticou, a grave man, valiant and redoubted, which, in the twinkling of Asticou, an eye, will gather up a thousand Sauages together, which thing Olmechin and Marchin might alfodoe. For our Barkes being there, presently the Sea was seene all couered ouer with their Boates, laden with nimble and lufty men, holding themselues vp straight in them: which wee cannot doe without danger, those Boates being nothing else but trees hollowed. From thence Canoas, Monsteur de Poutrincourt following on his course, found a certaine Port very delightfull, which Avery good had not beene seene by Monsieur de Monts: And during the Voyage they saw store of smoke. Port. 60 and people on the sheare, which inuited vs to come aland: And seeing that no account was made of it, they followed the Barke along the fand, yea most often they did outgoe her, so swite. The applies of are they, having their Bowes in hand, and their Quiners vpon their backes, alwaies finging and the Ann withdancing, not taking care with what they should live by the way.

Monsieur de Poutrincourt hauing landed in this Port, behold among a multitude of Sa-

uages a good number of Fifes, which did play with certaine long Pipes, made as it were with Canes of Reedes, painted ouer, but not with fuch an harmonie as our Shepheards might doe: And to flew the excellency of their arte, they whilled with their nofes in gambolling, accorand as this people did runne headlong, to come to the Birke, there was a Sauage which hurt ding to their fashion.

A Sausse wounded.

himselfe grieuoully in the hecle against the edge of a Rocke, whereby hee was enforced to remaynem the place. Monfieur de Poutrincourt his Chirurgion, at that inflant would apply to this hurt that which was of his Arte, but they would no permit it, vntill they had first made their mouthes and mops about the wounded man. They then layed him downe on the ground, one of them holding his head on his lappe, and made many bawlings and tingings, whereunto to Their mouthes the wounded man answered but with a Ho, with a complayning voice, which having done they bout him that veelded him to the cure of the faid Chirurgion, and went their way, and the Patient alfoatter hee had beene dreffed: but two houres after he came againe, the most focund in the world, hauing put about his head, the binding cloth, wherewith his heele was wrapped, for to leeme the The day following, our people entred farther into the Port, where being gone to fee the Cabins of the Sauages, an old woman of an hundred or fixfore yeeres of age, came to caft at the

was hurt.

and mops a-

The Prefents of a Sauage woman. Hempe very taite. Beanes. Quantitie of

feete of Monfien de Poutrincourt, a loafe of bread, made with the Wheat called Mabis, then very faire Hemps of a long growth; Item, Beanes, and Grapes newly gathered, because they had ieene Frenchmen eate of them at Chanakeer. Which the other Sauages feeing, that knew it not, 20 they brought more of them than one would, emulating one another; and for recompence of this their kindnesse, there was set on their foreheads a Fillet or Band, of paper, wet with spittle, of The imputity which they were very proud. It was fiewed them, in preffing the Grape into a Glaffe, that of that we did make the Wine which wee did drinke. Wee would have made them to eate of th-Grape, but having taken it into their mouthes, they spitted it out, so ignorant is this people of the best thing that God hath given to Man, next to Bread. Yet notwithstanding they have no want of wit, and inight be brought to doe some good things, if they were civilized, and had the vic of Handy-craus. But they are lubtile, theeuish, traiterous, and though they bee naked, yet one cannot take heed of their fingers , for if one turne neuer to little his eyes afide, and that they fpie the opportunitie to steale any Knife, Hatchet, or any thing elie, they will not miffe not 10 fayle a it; and will put the theft betweene their buttockes, or will hide it within the land with their foot to curing y, that one shall not perceive it. Indeed I doe not wonder if a peoture of the dr. ple poore and naked be treenth, but when the heart is malicious, it is vie xcufable. This people is fully that they mult be a hindled with retrour: for if through loue and gentleneffe one gue them too free access, they will practife some surprise, as it hath been knowne in divers occafions heretotore, and wall yet here-after he feene. And without deterring any longer, the fecond day after our comming thither as they law our people busie awashing Linnen , they came some fitty, one tollowing another, with Bowes, Arrowes and Quiners, intending to play some bid part, asit was consect ared upon their man er of proceeding; but they were presented, some of our men going to meet them, with their Muskets and Matches at the cocke, which made some 40 them and hims out more game, to meet make them, the manufacture of them runne away, and the others being compaffed in, hauing put downe their weapons, came them, may ruth mem, may trutt to the control of the manied to trucke the Tabacco they had for our merchandifes.

The next day the Coptaine of the faid place and Port, came into Monsseur de Pontrincourts

Barke to feehim: wee did martiell to see him accompanied with Olmechin, feeing the way was maruellous long to come thither by Land, and much therter by Sea. That gaue cause of had iuspicion, albeit hee had promised his love to the Frenchmen. Notwithstanding they were gently received. And Monsieur de Poutrincourt gave to the laid Olmechin a complete garment, wherewith being clothed, hee viewed himfelfe in a Glaffe, and did laugh to fee himfelfe in that order.

hee was returned unto his Cabins, he distributed it to fundry of his men, to the end that one alone ffould not be overpeffered with it. Now during the time of the laid Monfieur de Pourin-

court was there, but g in doubt whether Monstew de Monts would come to make an habitation on that Coast, as her wished it, her made there a piece of ground to be tilled, for to lowe Come

Bit a little while after, teching that the same hindred him, although it was in October, when 90

Note how the Armouchiquois muft by deals withali This the only way to ciuilize throat, as in the Virginian maffacre ap. pear-th. Sufpicion for the comming of Gimechin.

mouchiqueis.

of garments.

Corne fowed, and Vines planted.

and to plant Vines.

100 Boats of

As they were a deliberating to palle farther, Olmeebin came to the Barke to fee Monfieur de Pontrincours, where haung carried certains hours, either in talking or eating, hee faul, that the next day an hundred Boates should come, contayining every one fixe men; but the comming of fach a number of men, being but troublefore, Monfieur de Poutrinceurs would not tarrie ter them; but went away the fame day to Malebare, not without much difficultie, by realist of 50 Peni of holds the great threames and thoulds that are there. So that the Barke having touched at three foot of the Chalco meaning and monats that are there so that the Darke nating followed at three works, we thought to be call away, and wee beganne to virlade her, and put victuals into the Chalco meaning the Cha the Shalop, which was behind, for to face vs on Land: but being no rull Sea, the Barke came aflore within an houre. All this Sea is a Land operflowed, as that of Mount Saint Michaels, a fanday ground, in which, all that refleth is a plaine flat Countrey as farre as the Mountaines. which are seene fifteene leagues off from that place. And I am of opinion, that as fare as Virginia. Note. it is all alike. Moreouer, there is here great quantity of Grapes, as before, and a Country very Great antiquifull of people. Monfieur de Monts being come to Malebarre in an other leason of the yeare, ty of Grapes, eathered onely greene Grapes; which he made to be preferued, and brought some to the King. But it was our good hap to come thither in October, for to fee the maturity thereof. I have here Hereupon before shewed the difficulty that is found in entering into Malebarre. This is the cause why chap.7. Mantieur de Pontrincourt came not in with his Barke, but went thither with a Shallon onely.

which thirty or forty Sauages did helpe to draw in ; and when it was full tide (but the tide doth 10 not mount here but two fathams high, which is feldome feene) he went out, and retired himfelfe Two fathames into his faid Barke, to passe further in the morning, as soone as he should ordaine it.

He night beginning to glue place to the dawning of the day, the failes are hoifed vp, but it was but a very perilous naugarion. For with this small Vessell they were forced to coast Danger. the land, where they found no depth : going backe to Sea it was yet worfe : in fuch wife that they did ftrike twice or thrice, being raifed vp againe onely by the waves, and the rudder was broken, which was a dreadfull thing. In this extremity they were conftrained to cast anker in the Sea, at two fathams deepe, and three leagues off from the land. Which being done, Daniel Har (a man which taketh pleasure in shewing forth his vertue in the perils of the Sea) was sent 20 towards the Coast to view it, and see if there were any Port. And as he was neere land he saw a Sauage, which did dance, finging, yo, yo, yo, he called to him to come neerer, and by fignes ask- Oigoudi, or Si ed him if there were any place to retire Ships in, and where any fresh water was. The Sauace Johns River. basing made figne there was, hee tooke him into his Shallop, and brought him to the Barke. Sauages of wherein was Chkondun Captaine of the River of Oigouds, otherwise Saint Johns River: who undryNavone being brought before this Sausge, he vnderstood him no more than did our owne people: true it one another, is, that hy lignes he comprehended better then they what he would fay. This Sauage shewed the places where no depth was, and where was any, and did fo well indenting and winding here and there, alway the led in hand, that in the end they came to the Port shewed by him. 20 where small depth is; wherein the Barke being arrived, diligence was vied to make a forge A force and for to mend her with her rudder, and an Ouen to bake Bread, because there was no more an ouen sade. Bicket left.

Fifteene dayes were imployed in this worke, during the which Monfieur de Poutrincourt, ac. A croile fet ip cording to the laudable cultome of Christians, made a Crosse to be framed and set up young greene Banke, as Monsieur de Monts had done two yeeres before at Kinibeki and Malebarre. Now among these paineful exercises they gave not over making good cheere, with that which both the Sea and Land might furnish in that part. For in this Port is plenty of Fowle in taking of which many of our men applied themselves: specially the Sea Larkes are there in so great flights that Monsieur de Poutrincourt killed eight and twenty of them with one Caliuer shot. Abundance of As for fishes, there be such abundance of Porpeles, and another kinde of fish, called by Frenchmen Larkes & fishes 40 Soufleurs, that is to fay, Blowers, that the Sea feemes to be all couered ouer with them. But they had not the things necessary for this kinde of fishing, they contented themselves then with shel-fish, as of Oysters, Skalops, Periwincles, whereof there was enough. The Sauges of the Shel-fish.

After certaine daves, the faid Monfieur de Poutrincourt, seeing there great assembly of Sausges. came ashoare, and to give them some terrour, made to march before him one of his men, flourish- The triall of ing with two naked iwords. Whereat they much wondred, but yet much more when they faw Trenth weathat our Muskets did pierce thicke peeces of wood, where their Arrowes could not fo much as pons before fcratch. And therefore they neuer affailed our men, as long as, they kept watch. And it had beene

so good to found the Trumpet at enery houres end, as Captaine lames Quartier did. For (as Mon- Good influence) sent de Pourrincourt doth often (ay) One must never lay bait for theenes; meaning, that one must don. neuer give caufe to any enemy to thinke that he may furprife you: But one mult alwayes fliew that he is mistrusted, and that you are not asleepe, chiefely when one hath to doe with Sauages, which will neuer fet you him that resolutely expects them; for soone after they killed soure of Our men which were careleffe. They named this Port, Port Fortune.

Counfell being taken, it was refolued to returne into Port Royall: Monsieur de Pontrincourt befides all this, being yet in care for them whom he had left there, fo they came agains for the third time into Port Fortune, where no Sauage was feene. V pon the first winde, the faid Monsieur de Pontrinconrt weighed anker for the returne, and being mindfull of the dangers passed he fai-60 led in open Sea : which shortned his course, but not without a great mischiefe of the rudder, Petilla which was againe broken; in such fort, that being at the mercy of the waves, they arrived in the end, as well as they could a monght the Hands of Norombega, where they mended it. Monsten The arrivallof de Pourrincours artiued in Port Rayall the foureteenth day of November, where we received him Monteur de tide onely.

other fide did Bring fish, and Grapes within baskets made of rushes, for exchange with some of Grapes.

R folution for Postrincourt.

The state of their winter. Coales. The vie of the Compaffe in land voiages.

The inflitution of the Order Bontemps

ner, or fuch a Cooke place in London.

> Store of Stur-Betore in gions. chap.113. The viage of: the Sauzges.

The Sauages haue care of the Frenchmen.

Bad winde.

The state of Win et wea-

Snow is profi-

Frofts when they are.

uer it be, the Snow is very profitable for the fruits of the earth, to preferue them against the iroft, And as the skie is seldome coursed with clouds towards New-found-lands in Winter time, so

The publike reloycing being finished, Monsieur de Pontrincourt had a care to see his corne, the greatest part whereof he had sowed two leagues off from our Port, by the River L'Esquelle; and the other part about out faid Pore : and found that which was first fowen very forward, but not the last, that had beene fowed the fixth and tenth dayes of Nouember, which notwithstanding How they feet did grow under the Snow, during Winter, as I have noted it in my fowings. It would be a tedious thing to particularife all that was done among it vs during Winter: as to tell how the faid Monfieur de Poutrincourt caused many times coales to be made, the forge-coale being spent : That he caused waies to be made thorow the woods: That he went thorow the Forrests by the guide of the Compaile, and other things of fuch nature. But I will relate that, for to keepe vs merry and clenly concerning victuals, there was an order established at the Table of the said Monstear to de Poutrincourt, which was named L'ordre de bon temps, the order of good time (or the order of mirth) at first invented by Monsieur Champlein, wherein they (who were of the same table) were every one at his turne and day (which was in fifteene dayes once) Steward and Cater. Now his care was that we should have good and worshipfull fare, which was so well observed, that (although the Belly-gods of their parts doe often reproach vnto vs that we had not La Rue aux Ours of Paris with vs) we have ordinarily had there, as good cheere as we could have at La Rue of Beare firet aux Ours, and at farre leffer charges. For there was none, but (two dayes before his turne came) or Bearetiteet was carefull to goe abuncing or fifting, and brought some daintie thing, besides that which was of our ordinary allowance. So well, that at breaktaft we neuer wanted some modicomor other. of fish or field; and at the repail of dinners or suppers, yet lesse; for it was the great banquet, 20 where the Gouernour of the feath, or Steward (whom the Sauages doe call Atollegi) nauing made the Cooke to make all things ready, did march with his Napkin on his shoulder, and his staffe of office in his hand, with the colour of the order about his necke, which was worth aboue foure crownes, and all of them of the order following him, bearing every one a dish. The like allo was at the bringing in of the Fruit, but not with lo great a traine. And at night after grace was faid, he refigned the Collar of the Order, with a cup of wine, to his fuccessour in that charge, and they dranke one to another. I have heretofore faul that we had abundance of Fowle, as Mallards, Outards, Geele gray and white, Partridges and other Birds: Item, of Ellans or Stage fielh, of Caribous or Deere, Beuers, Otters, Beares, Rabbets, Wilde-cats or Leopards, Nibsches, and fuch like, which the Sauages did take, wherewith we made as good diffies of meate, as in the 30 Cookes shops that be in La rue aux Ours, Beare streete, and greater store; for of all meates none is fo tender as Ellans flesh (whereof we made good pasties) nor so delicate as the Beauers-taile. Yea, we have had sometimes halfe a dolen Sturgions at one clap, which the Sauages did bring to vs, part whereof we did take, paying for it, and the rest was permitted them to sell publikely, and to trucke it for Bread, whereof our people had abundantly. And as for the ordinary meate brought out of France, that was distributed equally, as much to the least as to the biggett. And the like with Wine, as we have faid. In fuch actions we had alwayes twenty or thirty Sauages, men, women, girles and Boies, who beheld vs doing our offices. Bread was given them gratic, as we doe here to the poore. But as for the Sagamos Memberton, and other Sagamos (when they came to vs) they fat at table eating and drinking as we did : and wee tooke pleafure in feeing 40 them, as contrariwise their absence was irkesome vnto vs; as it came to passe three or soure times that all went away to the places where they knew that game and Venison was, and brought one of our men with them, who lived some six weekes as they did without Salt, without Bread and without Wine, lying on the ground vpon skins, and that in snowie weather. Moreover they had greater care of him (as also of others that have often gone with them) than of them-felies, faying, that if they should chance to dye, it would be laid to their charges to have Such government as we have spoken of, did serve vs for preservatives against the Country dif-

Preterration against Scury cafe. And yet four of our died in February and March, of them who were of a freefull conditional cafe. on fluggish. And I remember I observed that all had their lodgings on the West side, and looking 30 towards the wide open Pore, which is almost four pleagues long, shaped ouale-wife, besides they

We had faire weather almost during all the Winter: for neither raines nor fogges are so frehad all of them ill bedding. quent there as here, whether it be at Sea or on the land : The reason is, because the Sun-beames, by the long distance, have not the force to raise vp vapours from the ground here, chiefely in a Countrey all wooddy. But in Summer it doth, both from the Sea and the Land, when as their and Mills be force is augmented, and those vapors are diffolied finddenly or flowly, according as one approachheaftein whater eth to the Equinoctiall line. Raines being in those parts rare, in that sealon, the Sunne likewife flineth there very faire, after the fall of Snowes, which we have had feuen or eight times, but it is easily melted in open places, and the longest abiding haut beene in February, Howist 60 and to ferue them as a for gowne. are there morning frolts, which doe increase in the end of Ianuary, February, and in the beginning of March, for vntill the very time of Ianuary, we kept vs still in our doublets: And I reming or March, St. And I fe-member that on a Sunday, the foureteenth day of that moneth, in the afternoone, wee forted our felues finging in Municke vpon the River L'Efquelle, and in the same moneth were went to fee our returning in Flore our Fort, and did dine merrily in the Sun-shine : I would not for all Conformity Contermity that fay that all other yeares were like vnto this, For as that winter was as milde in these parts, of weather in thefe laft Winters of the yeares 1607. 1608. have beene the hardest that ever was seene; it hath East and West also been alike in those Countries, in such fort, that many Sauages died through the rigour of the France. also beene alike in those Countries, in ucustort, that many saturdes after through the The great weather, as in these our parts many poore people and trauellers have beene killed through the Frost 1607. Samehardnesse of Winter weather. But I will say, that the yeare before we were in New France, to the Winter had not beene fo hard, as they which dwelt there before vs haue testified vnto me. Let this suffice for that which concerneth the winter season. But I am not yet fully satisfied in Let this time to that within the felfesame parallell the season is in those parts of New Wherefore is France more flow by a moneth than in thefe parts, and the leaves appeare not vpon the trees but the feation late towards the end of the moneth of May: valeffe wee lay that the thickneffe of the wood and greatnesse of Forrests doe hinder the Sunne from warming of the ground; Item, that the Country where we were is iovning to the Sea, and thereby more fubicat to cold, And befides that, this land having never beene cilled is the more dampish, the trees and plants not being able easily to as we have heretofore fooken. 20 The cold being passed, about the end of March the best disposed amongst vs strided who should Dressing of best till the ground, and make Gardens, to sowe in them, and gather fruits thereof. Which was Gardens, to very good purpole, for wee found great difcommodity in the Winter for want of Garden to very good purpose, so wee todaid good ero hearbes. When every one had done his towing it was a marueilous pleafure in feeing them daily from the grow and fpring vp, and yet greater contentment to vie thereof io abundantly as wee did: io ground. that this beginning of good hope made vs almost to forget our native Countrie, and especially when the fish began to haunt fresh-water, and came abundantly into our brookes, in fuch innu- Abundance of merable quantity that we knew not what to doe with it.

draw fap from their mother the earth. In recompence wherof the Winter there is also more flow.

Whilelt fome laboured on the ground, Monsteur de Poutrincourt made fome buildings to be The care of prepared, for to lodge them which he hoped should succeede vs. And considering how trouble- Monsieur de 30 Some the Hand-mill was, he caused a Water-mill tobe made, which caused the Sauages to ad- Pour recourt in fome the Hand-mill was, he caused a water-mill tope made, which came not into the spirit of men from the prouising for mire much at it. For indeede it is an invention which came not into the spirit of men from the the that should first ages. After that, our workmen had much rest, for the most part of them did almost nothing. the that should first ages. But I may fay that this Mill, by the diligence of our Millers, did furnish vs with three times The building more Herrings then was needefull vnto vs for our fustenance. Monsteur de Pontrincourt made of a water-miltwo Hogheads full of them to be falted, and one hoghead of Sardines, or Pilchers to bring into Abundance of France for a flew, which were left in our returne at Saint Maloes, to some Merchants.

Among all their things the faid Monsieur de Poutrincourt did not neglect to thinke on his returne. Which was the part of a wife man, for one must neuer put so much trust in mens promifes, but one must consider that very often many disafters doe happen to them in a small moao ment of time. And therefore, euen in the Moneth of Aprill, he made two Barkes to be prepared, a great one and a small one, to come to seeke out French-ships towards Campseau, or Newfound-land, if it should happen that no supply should come vnto vs. But the Carpentry-worke being finished, one onely inconvenience might hinder vs, that is, we had no Pitch to calke our Great ouct-Vessels, This (which was the chiefest thing) was forgotten at our departure from Rochel. In fight. this important necessitie, the said Monsieur de Pontrincourt aduised himselfe to gather in the Monsieur de woods quantity of the gumme issuing from Firre-trees. Which he did with much labour, go. Pour incourt ing thither himselte, most often with a Boy or two: so that in the end hee got some hundred his inuention. pounds weight of it. Now after these labours, it was not yet all, for it was needefull to melt and purifie the same, which was a necessary point and voknowne to our ship Master Monsieur de Champ-dore, and to his Marriners, for as much as that the Pitch we have, commeth from Nor-

50 moge, Suedland, and Danzick. Neuertheleffe the faid Monfieur de Poutrincoure found the meanes to draw out the quintessence of these Gummes and Firre-tree barkes : and caused quantity of Brickes to be made, with the which he made an open furnace, wherein he put a limbecke made with many kettles, joyned one in the other, which hee filled with those gummes and barkes: Then being well coursed, fire was put round about it, by whose violence the gumme enclosed within the lembecke melted, and dropped downe into a bason; but it was needefull to be very watchfull at it, by reason that if the fire had taken hold of the Gumme, all had beene loft. That was admirable, especially in a man that neuer faw any made. Whereof the Sauages being aftenied, did fav in words borrowed from the Basques, Endis chaue Normandia, that is to fay, that ges call ali 60 the Normans know many things. Now they call all Frenchmen Normands, except the Baf. French men ques, because the most part of fishermen that goe afishing there, be of that Nation. This remedie No mands. Came very fiely vnto vs, for those which came to feeke vs were fallen into the fame want that of the Letters written to Monfuur de

Newes out of

The contents

and why.

ronsieur de

The Eaglib

10 Virginia

ATTIMEOUT!

Poutrincours.

The focietie

He Sunne did but beginne to cheere the earth, and to behold his Mistris with an amorous a spect, when the Sagamos Memberton (after our Prayers solemnely made to God, and the their returne. break-falt distributed to the people, according to the custome) came to give vs advertisement that he had seene a sayle vpon the Lake, which came towards our Fort. At this joyfull new es every one went out to fee, but yet none was found that had fo good a fight as he, though he be aboue a 100, yeeres old; neuerthelesse we spied very soone what it was. It was onely a small Bark vnder the charge of a young man of Saint Maloes, named Chenalter, who beeing arrived at the Fort, deliuered his Letters to Monsieur de Poutrincourt, which were read publikely. They did write vato him, that for to helpe to laue the charges of the Voyage, the fhip (being yet the lonau) should stay at Campleau Port, there to fish for Cods, by reason that the Merchants affociate 10 with Monfeur de Monts, knew not that there was any fishing farther then that place: Notwirh. standing if it were necessary he should cause the ship to come to Port Reyall. Moreover, that the focietie was broken, because that contrary to the King his Edict, the Hollanders, conducted by of Monsteur de a traiterous Frenchman, called La lennesse, had the yeere before taken up the Beuers and other Mants broken, Furres, of the great River of Canada. Notwithstanding, after that Monstean de Pourrincourt, had a long while mused hereupon, he said, that although he should have no bodie to come with him. but onely his family, hee would not forfake the enterprize. It was great griefe vnto vs to abanhas resolution. don (without hope of returne) a Land that had produced vnto vs fo faire Corne, and fo many faire adorned Gardens. All that could be done untill that time, was to find out a place, fit to make a Nation going fetled dwelling, and a Land of good tertilitie. And that being done, it was great want of courage to giue ouer the enterprise, for another yeare being passed, the necessitie of maintayning an with a zealous habitation there, should be taken away, for the Land was sufficient to yeeld things necessarie tor intent to plant true religion & life. This was the cause of that griefe which pierced the hearts of them which were desirous to fo to increase fee the Christian Religion estabished in that Countrey. But on the contrary, Monsieur de Christs bleffed Monts, and his affociates, reaping no benefit, but loffe, and having no helpe from the King, it flock,no doubt wasa thing which they could not doe, but with much difficultie to maintayne an habitation in he will bee their leader.

Monsteur de Monts is enuied.

Robbing from

The Sauages

Salmons.

Affembly of Sauages a Filtny trading.

those parts. Now this enuie for the Trade of Beauers with the Sauages, found not onely place in the Hollanders hearts, but also in French Merchants, in such fort that the priviledge which had beene given to the faid Monfieur de Monts for ten yeeres was revoked. The vnsatiable avarice of men 30 is a strange thing, which have no regard to that which is honest, so that they may rifle and catch by what meanes locuer. And thereupon I will fay moreouer, that there have beene fome of them that came to that Countrey to fetch vs home, that wickedly have prefumed so much as to strip the dead, and steale away the Beauers, which those poore people doe put, for their last benefit, you them whom they bury, as we will declare more at large in the Booke following. A thing that maketh the French name to be odious, and worthy ditdaine among them, which have no fuch fordid qualitie at all.

Fifteene dayes after, the faid Monfieur de Pourrincourt fent a Barke to Campfeun, with part of our Workmen, for to beginne to pull downe the house. In the beginning of lune the Sauges, about foure hundred in number, went away from the dwelling that the Sagamos Memberson had 49 newly made, in forme of a Towne, compared about with high pales, for to go to warres against the Armonchiquois, which was at Chonakoes some eightie leagues distant from Por: Royall, from whence they returned victorious.

Monsieur de Pourrincours being not willing to depart thence, vntill hee had seene the issue of his expectation, that is to fay, the ripenesse of his Corne, hee deliberated, after that the Sauges were gone to warres, to make Voyages along the Coast. And because Chandler was desirous to the Coalt of ather forme Beuers, he fent him in a small Barke to the River of Saint Isbn, called by the Sauages, Onigondi, and to the He Saint Cross: And he, the faid Monsteur de Poutrincourt, went in a Shallop to the Copper Myne. I was of the laid Chenalier his Voyage : we crosted the French Bay to goe to the fad River, where, as ioone as wee arrived, halfe a doozen Salmons newly takin, jo were brought to vs : we folourned there foure dayes, during which, we went into the Cibins of Sagamos (bkondun, where we law some eightie, or a hundred Sauages, all naked except their prinie members, which were a making Tabagy (that is to fay, a banquetting) with the meale that the faid Cheualier had trucked with them for their old skinnes full of Lice.

The Towne of Onigondi (to I call the dwelling of the faid Chondur) was a great inclosure vpon an Hill, compassed about with high and small Trees, tied one against another, and within it many Cabins, great and small, one of which was as great as a Market Hall, wherein many housholds retired themselves: And as for the same where they made their Tabage, it was somwhat leffe. A good part of the faid Sauages wete of Gachepe, which is the beginning of the great Ruer of Canade; and they told ve, that they came from their dwelling thirder in fixe dayes, which 60 made me much to maruell, feeing the distance that there is by Sea, but they thorten very much their wayes, and make great Voyages by the meanes of Lakes and Rivers, at the end of which being come, in carrying their Canowes three or four leagues, they get to other Rivers that have a contrary courfe. All these Sauages were come thither to goe to the warres with Membertonagainit the Armonebiquois.

When we returned to our Barke, which was at the comming in of the Port, halfe a league off from thence, sheltered by a causis that the Sea hath made there, our men, and specially Capitaine Champdore, that conducted vs, were in doubt, lest some mischance should happen vnto vs. and haunge seene the Sauages in armes, thought it had beene to doe vs some mischiefe, which had beens very easie, for we were but two, and therefore they were very glad of our returne. After Thesubiltie which, the next day came the Wizard or South-fayer of that quarter, crying as a mad man to- of an Autment wards our Barke. Not knowing what he meant, hee was sent for in a Cock-boat, and came to or Sauge parley with vs, telling vs that the Armouchiqueis were within the Woods, which came to affaile Southfayer, paney, and that they had killed some of their folkes that were a hunting: And therefore that we to should come aland to assist them. Having heard this discourse, which according to our judgement, tended to no good, we told him that our journies were limited, and our victuals also, and that it was behouefull for vs to be gone. Seeing himselfe denied, he said that before two yeeres were come about, they would either kill all the Normans, or that the Normans should kill them. We mocked him and told him that we would bring our Barke before their Fort to ranfack them all: but we did it not, for we went away that day : And having the wind contrarie, we sheltred our selues vnder a small lland, where we were two dayes : during which, some went a shooting at Mallard for prouition; others attended on the Cookerie: And Captaine Champdore and my felfe. went along the Rockes with Hammers and Chiffels, feeking if there were any Mynes. In doing whereof we found quantitie of Steele among the Rockes, which was fince molten by Monfieur 20 de Poutrincourt, who made wedges of it, and it was found very fine Sceele, whereof he caused a Knife to be made, that did cut as a Razor, which at our returne he shewed to the King.

From thence we went in three dayes to the Ile Saint Croix, being often contraried with the winds. And because we had a bad coniecture of the Sauages, which we did see in great number, at the River of Saint lobn, and that the troupe that was departed from Port Royal was yet at Menane, (an Ile betweene the faid Port Royall and Saint (row) which we would not truft, we Menane. kept good watch in the night time: At which time wee did often heare Seales voyces, which Good watch. were very like to the voice of Owles: A thing contrarie to the opinion of them that haue faid Seales voices, and written that fishes have no voice.

Being arrived at the Ile Saint Croix, we found there the buildings, left there all whole, faving The arrivall in Being arrived at the He Saint Grown, we found there the buildings, left there are whosey wants the He of Saint 70 that the Store-house was vincouered of one fide. Wee found there yet Sacke in the bottome of a Croix. Pipe, whereof we dranke, and it was not much the worfe. As for Gardens, wee found there The flate of Coale-worts, Sortell, Lettuces, which we vied for the Kitchin. Wee made there also good Pa- the fame, sties of Turtle Doues, which are very plentifull in the Woods, but the graffe is there so high that Turtles. one could not find them when they were killed and fallen in the ground. The Court was there, full of whole Caskes, which fome ill disposed Mariners did burne for their pleasures, which thing when I saw, I did abhorre, and I did iudge, better then before, that the Sauages were (being lesse civilized) more humane and honester men, then many that beare the Name of Christians, having The Sausgen civilized) more humane and honeiter men, then many that over the traine of Chineses, statute of the trained of better naduring three yeeres, spared that place, wherein they had not taken so much as a piece of Wood, ture then manor Sale, which was there in great quantitie, as hard as a Rocke. Going from thence, we cast Anchor among a great number of confused Iles, where wee heard Anumber of some Sauages, and wee did call to make them come to vs. They answered vs with the like call. Hes, Whereunto one of ours replied, Onen Kiran? that is to fay, What are yee? they would not difcouer themselues. But the next day Oagimons, the Sagamos of this River, came to vs, and wee knew it was he whom we heard. Hee did prepare to follow Memberton and his troupe to the warres, where he was grieuously wounded, as I have said in my Verses vpon this matter. This Osomont hath a Daughter about eleven yeeres old, who is very comely, which Monsieur de Poutrincourt defired to haue, and hath oftentimes demanded her of him to give her to the Queene, promiting him that he should never want Corne, nor any thing elfe, but he would never condit- The love of cend thereto. Being entred into our Barke he accompanied vs, vntill wee came to the broad Sea, where hee towards their put himfelfe in his shallop to returne backe; and for vs we bent our course for Port Royall, where Ariual linto we arrived before day, but we were before our Fort, iust at the very point that faire Aurora be- Post Royall. gan to thew her reddie cheekes upon the top of our wooddie Hils; every bodie was yet afleepe, and there was but one that role vp, by the continual barking of Dogges; but wee made the reft soone to awake, by Peales of Musket-shots and Trumpets found. Monsieur de Poutrincourt was but the day before, arrived from his Voyage to the Mynes, whither we have faid that hee was to goe, and the day before that, was the Barke arrived that had carried part of our Workmen to Campleau. So that all being affembled, there rested nothing more then to prepare things necesfary for our shipping. And in this butinesse our Water-Mill did vs very good feruice , for other- vices a Vis wise there had beene no meanes to prepare Meale enough for the Vovage, but in the end wee tor mil had more then wee had need of, which was given to the Sauages, to the end to have vs in re-

Vpon the point that we should take our leane of Port Royall, Monsieur de Pontrincourt fent his. The description Whon the point that we should take our rease or Port words, his point at 1 our men, one after another, to find out the ship at Campfean, which is a Port being between fewer decompless.

taire Cod

The Rain-bow appearing in the water.

Port Saualet. 42, Voyages made in New-Sund-land. Good filbing.

Exceeding faire Corne. Faire Wheate.

The Sauages returne from the warres. The Saurges teares at the going away of the Frenchmen. Meale left behinds.

Monsieur de Poutrincourt his going away.

The departing from New

> The fight of the Corlingues. Ha ueft of New France, thewed to the

Being at Paris, the faid Monsieur de Poutrincourt presented to the King with the fruits of the Land from whence he came, and especially the Corne, Wheate, Ric, Barley and Oates, as being or eight Hands where ships may be sheltered from windes : and there is a Bay of aboue fifteene leagues depth, and fixe or feuen leagues broad. The faid place being diffant from Port Royall aboue one hundred and fiftie leagues. For victuals, wee wanted for no fish, for in halfe an houres Abundance of fishing we might take Cod enough for to feed vs a fortnight, and of the fairest and fattest that euer I faw, being of the colour of Carpes; which I have never knowne nor noted, but in this part of the faid Cap de Sable; which after we had pasted, the tide (which is swift in this place) brought Port dela Hene vs in fhort time as farre as to the Port De La Hene, thinking that wee were no further then the Port de Monton. There we tarried two dayes, and in the very same Port wee faw the Codsbite at the Hooke. We found there store of red Gooseberies, and a Marcaffite of Copper Myne: we also made there some trucking with the Sauages for skinnes.

From thence forward we had wind at will, and during that time it happened once, that being you the hatches, I cried out to our Pilot Monsieur de Champdore, that we were readie to strike. thinking I had feene the bottome of the Sea; but I was deceived by the Rain-bow which did appeare with all his colours in the water, procured by the shadow, that our Boare-spright savle did make ouer the same, being opposite to the Sunne, which assembling his beames, within the hollownelle of the same sayle, as it doth within the Cloudes, those beames were forced to make a reperberation in the water, and to thew forth this wonder. In the end wee arrived within foure leagues of Campfeau, at a Port, where a good old man of Saint lohn de Lus, called Captaine Saualet, received vs with all the kindnesse in the World. And for as much as this Port (which is little, but very faire) hath no name, I have qualified it in my Geographicall Mappe, with the 20 name of Squalet. This good honest man told vs that the same Voyage was the two and fortieth Voyage that he had made into those parts, and neverthelesse the New-found-land-men doe make but one in a yeere. He was maruelloufly pleated with his fifthing; and told vs moreouer that hee tooke every day fittie Crownes worth of fish, and that his Voyage would bee worth one thoufand pounds. He payed wages to fixteene men, and his veffell was of eightie tuns, which could carrie 100000 dry filhes. Wee were foure dayes there, by reason of the contrary wind. Then came we to Camplean, where we tarried for the other Barke, which came two dayes after vs. And as for Monfieur de Postrincourt, as foone as he faw that the Corne might be reaped, he pulled vp fome Rie, root and all, for to shew here the beautie, goodnesse and vnmeasurable height of the same. Hee also made 30 gleanes of the other forts of Seeds, as Wheat, Barley, Oates, Hempe, and others for the same purpole, Delighting my selfe in this exercise, God hach bleded my poore labour, and I haue had in my Garden as faire Wheate as any can be in France, whereof the faid Monfieur de Poutrincourt gaue ynto mee a gleane, when hee came co the faid Port de Campfeau. Hee was readie to depart from Port Royall, when Memberton and his company arr ued, victorious ouer the Armonchiquois. At the instant request of the faid Memberton he tarried yet one day. But it was pitious to fee at his depirting, those poore people weepe, who had beene alwayes kept in hope that some of ours should alwayes tarrie with them. In the end promise was made vinto them, that the yeere following housholds and families should bee sent thither, wholly to inhabit their Land, and teach them Trades for to make them line as wee doe, which promise did somewhat comfort them. 49 There was left remayning ten Hogs-heads of Meale, which were given to them, with the Corne that we had fowed, and the possession of the Manour if they would vieit, which they have not done. For they cannot be constant in one place, and line as they doe. The eleventh of August the faid Monsieur de Poutrincourt departed, with eight in his compa-

nie, from the faid Port Royall, in a shallop to come to Camplean : A thing maruellously dangerous to croffe fo many Bayes and Seas in fo small a veffell, laden with nine persons, with victuals neceffarie for the Voyage, and reasonable great quantitie of other stuffe. Being arrived at the Port of Captaine Sanalet, he received them all as kindly as it was possible for him: And from thence they came to vs. to the faid Port of Campfeau, where we tarried yet eight dayes. The third day of September, we weighed Anchors, and with much adoe came wee from among the Rockes, 50 that be about the faid Camplean. Which our Mariners did with two shallops that did carrie their Anchors very farre into the Sea, for to vphold our ship, to the end she should not strike against the Rockes. Finally, being at Sea, one of the faid shallops was let goe, and the other was taken into the Ionas, which belides our lading, did carrie 100000, of fish, as well drie as greene. Wee had reasonable good wind untill we came neere to the Lands of Europe: But we were not overcloyed with good cheere, because that they who came to fetch vs, presuming we were dead did cramme themselues with our refreshing commodities. Our Workemen dranke no more Wine, after we had left Port Royall: And we had but small portion thereof, because that which did ouer abound with vs; was drunke merrily in the company of them that brought vs newes from France. The fixe and twentieth of September wee had fight of the Sorlingnes, which bee at the 63 Lan is end of Cornewall in England, and the eight and twentieth thinking to come to Saint

the most precious thing that may be brought from what Countrey socuer. The said Monsienr de Postrincourt had bred tenne Outards, taken from the fhell, which hee thought to bring all into France, but five of them were loft, and the other five he gave to the King . who delighted much in them , and they areat Fountaine Bellean; Vpon the faire shew of the fruites of the faid Coun- Outerds, of trey, the King did confirme to Menseur de Monte the priviledge for the Trade of Beuers with wild Geefe the Sauages, to the end to give him meanes to establish his Colonies in New France. And by this the King. occasion he lent thither in March last, Families, there to beginne Christian and French Common. Privilege of wealths, which God vouchfafe to bleff: and increase. The faid thips being returned, we have had report by Monfieur de Champdore, and others, of

I ne san imps seung returnen, we naue nan reportoy manneur ac thempare, and others, in the the contrie which we had left, and of the wonderful beautie of the Contrie that if the fail Monfier de Pourtmoner had lowed before his departure, together of the grifting that the fallen in the Gardens, which have so increased that it is an increasible thing. Monfiertand like the News from ther fix or feuen barrels of the Corne that we had fowed and had we one left, which he referred New France for the Frenchmen, whom he looked for, who arriving hee faluted with three Muskiet flors and fince our come Bonfires. When it was laid to his charge that he had eaten our Pidgeons; which wee left there, thence. he fell a weeping, and embracing him that told it him, faid, that it was the Macharas, that is to It is very dam fay, the great Birds which are Eagles, which did eate many of them . while wee were there, gerousto Moreourr, all great and small, did inquire how we did, naming every one by his owne name, teach the Sawhich is a witnesse of great loue.

From Port Royall, the faid Chempdore went as fatte as Chonahouer, the beginning of the Armouchiquois Land, where hee pacified that Nation with the Ereshemins, which was not done without folemnitie. For as hee had begun to speake of it, the Captaine, who is now insteed of Olmechin, named Aftikon, a grave man and of a goodly presence, how savage soever hee be , dez manded, that some one of the faid Etechemins should be sent to him, and that he would weat with The Saugus him. Quemont, Sugamos of the River Saint Croix, was appointed for that purpose, and he would wisdome. not truft them, but vuller the affurance of the Frenchmen, he went thither. Some Prefents were made to Aitkon, who, voon the speech of peace, began to exhort his people and to shew them the causes that ought to induce them to hearken vinto it. Whereunto they condifcended, making an exclamation at every Article that he propounded to them. Some five yeeres agoe Monfient 30 de Monte had likewise pacified those Nations, and had declared unto them, that he would bee enemie to the first of them that should begin the Warre, and would pursue him. But after his returne into France, they could not containe themselves in peace. And the Armonebiquou did kill a Souriquois Sauage, called Panoniae, who went to them for to trucke Merchandize, which he tooke at the Store, house of the faid Monsieur de Monts. The Warrenbour mentioned happened by reason of this faid murther, under the conduct of Saganos Memberton: the faid Warre was Monteur China made in the very same place, where I now make mention, that Monstour de Champdore did treate pleis is now in great and vncomparable River, and of the Countries which it washeth on both sides, by the diligence of the faid Champlem. As for Monsieur de Pontrincourt, his desire is immutable, in this resolution to inhabit and a- Monsieur de dorne his Prouince, to bring thither his family, and all forts of Trades necessary for the life of his resolution. man. Which, with Gods helpe hee will continue to effect all this prefent yeere 1609. And, 1602. as long as hee hath vigour and firength, will profecute the fame, to live there under the Kinga obeviance.

The Author hath written another large Booke of the Rites of the Sanages of those parts, which I baue omitted , partly because Champlein in the former Chapiter bath ginen us large instructisons of the same, and because in our Virginian, and New England, and New-found-land, our men will relate the like; and because I seeke to bee short, howsoener my Subject causeth mee to bee voluminosu.

Benera confinmaces the wie the peace this yeere. Monlieur Champlein is in another place, to wit, in the great River of Canada, the River of neere the place where Captaine Iames Quartier did winter, where hee hath fortified him felfe. Canada. having brought thither housholds, with Cattle and diversionts of fruit-trees. There is store of Entittrees no Vines, and excellent Hempe, in the same place where he is, which the earth bringeth forth of it Vines. felfe. He is not a man to be idle, and we expect thortly newes of the whole Discouerie of this Hempe.

CHAP. VIII.

Collections out of a French Booke, called Additions to Nona Francia: containing the Accidents there, from the yeere 1607. to 1611.

Onsieur de Monts hauing his priviledge prorogued for one yeare, with some affoci-place of the Riute of Conside, which the Savages call Kebee, some fortie leagues about the Riuer reason, the place is commodious to command, through all that great River. Monfier Cham-plein, else Kings Geographer, very skilfull in Sea matters, and who delighteth maruellouffy in chesenterprises, tooks vpon him the charge of conducting, and gouerning this first Colonie.

fent to Kebec. Where being arrived, it was needefull to make houses for him, and his compame; wherein there was no toyle wanting, fuch as we may imagine, as was the labour of Cap- 20

taide lacques Quartier, at his arrivall in the place of the faid River, where he wintered and fo

Mensieur de Monts, in the Ile of Saint Croix; whereby did islue vnknowne sicknesses, which tooke away many men: for there was not found any Timber ready to be put in worke, norany huildings to lodge the workemen in : they were driven to fell downe the wood by the roote, to cleare the ground, and to lay the first foundations of a worke, which (with the helpe of God) shall among thefe, which did confpire against the faid Champlein their Captaine, having deliberated to put him to death, first by poilon, afterwards by a traine of Gunpowder; and after, hauing

But as our Franchmen haue oftentimes bin found mutinous in fuch actions; fo there were some piltered all, to come to Tadonfue, where Barkes and Rechel Ships were, to make their retuine in qu them to these parts. But the Apothecary, of whom the poylon was demarked, disclosed the

The people being lodged stone store of Corne was fowed, and a number of Gardens were made, where the ground did reftore plentifully, the feedes received. This Land bringeth forth, naturally, Grapes in great quantity: the Walnut-trees are there in abundance, and Chestnut-trees alio, whole fruite is in the forme of an halfe moone; but the Walnuts are with many corners or edges, which be not divided. There is also great store of Pumpions, and very excellent fift, as any other River in the world. It is thought, that Bevers, are not here fo good, as you the coast of the Etechemins and Souriquois; yet notwithstanding, I may say very well, that I have

Hempe, wherewith the Sauages make fifthing lines. The River there doth abound with as much 40

The winter being come, many of our Frenchmen, were found greatly afflicted with the ficke-neffe, which is called the Scuruie, whereof I haue fpoken elfewhere, Some of them died thereof, for want of present remedy. As for the tree called Annedda, so much renowned by lacques matter. Whereupon, Information being made, one of them was hanged, and some others con-aces, fent vato his Gouernment three Ships, furnished with men and vietuals.

and for the delige that Monferer de Monte hath to pierce through the Land to the Welterne Sea coast, to the end he should not be an hinderance visto him, and to be able thereby to reach one day, to China, he determined to fortifie himselfe in a

And foral much as Monfieur de Pourrincourt hath taken his part on the maine Sea. 10

his lending of

Note the intention of the French.

Kebee 40. leag. aboue Saguenay of Sagnenay. There it is narrower, being no broader then a Canon will carry : and fo, by that

A conspiracy.

be the fubiect of many wonders.

du Pone of Honficur was Commander.

Exemplary pur demand to the Gallies, which were brought backe into France, in the Ship, wherein Monfress nishmens.

The naturall

Blacke Fox:s. feene skins from thence of blacke Foxes, which feeme to exceede Sables, or Marterns.

Quartier, it is not now to be found. The faid Champlein made diligent fearch for the fame, and could have no newes thereof: and notwithstanding his dwelling is at Kebec, neighbouring on the place, where the faid Quartier did winter. Whereupon, I can thinke nothing elie, but that the people of that time, have bin exterminated by the Iroqueis, or other their 50 The Spring time being come, Champlein having had a long time a minde to make new discoueries, was to choose, either to make his way to the Iroquou, or to goe beyond the fall of the great River, to discouer the great Lake, whereof men ion hath bin made heretofore. Notwithstanding, because the Southerly Countries are more pleasant, for their milde temperature; he resolued himselfe, the first yeare, to visite the Iroquou. But the difficulty confisted in the going thither; for we are not able of our felues to make those Voyages, without the affiffance of the Sauages. These Countries are not the Plaines of Champaigne, nor of Vatan, nor the ingratefull wood of Limofin. All is there couered with woods, that leeme to threaten the clouds. And at that time his company of men was but weake, as well by reason of the former mortality, as of 62 the infirmities of fickneffes, which were yet continuing. Notwithstanding, being a man, who is aftonished with nothing, and of a gentle conversation, knowing wisely how to acquaint, and accommodate himfelfe with thole people, after having promifed them, that when the land of the Iroqueis, and other Countries should be discouered, the great French Sagamor (meaning

Champleins

CHAP.S. River of the Irocois. Challenge to combat. Agreement with Captaines. 1643

our King) would give them great rewards : he invited them to goe to warre against the faid Iroquous, promiting (tor himfelfe) that he would take part with them. They (in whom the defire quant, promining doct, and who delight in nothing more then in warre) paffe their word vnto him. and arme themselves about one hundred men, for that effect, with whom the said Champlein venand affice them. So they the shimfelfe, accompanied with one man, and one of Monfieur de Monts his footemen. So they tures minitures, and their voyage in the Sauges Barkes, and Canoes, along the great River, as farre as the to the Ireauch. entring into the River of the Iroquois : wherein being entred, within certaine dayes, they went yn vnto the Lake of the faid Iroquois. But one may demand with what did fo many people line. in a Countrie where no Innes are? I wonder as much at that as others doe; for with them there to is not any meanes of hung, but by hunting; and in that, they doe exercise themselves through the woods in their trausiles. Champleir and his men, were forced to hue after their manner. For although they had made prouision of Bread, Wine, and Meate, out of the storehouse, the same Their arrival could not have ferued them, to make accompt of, Finally, being come into the faid Lake, they at the Lake were many dayes a croffing of it (for it is about fixtie leagues of length) without giving know- which is fixtie ledge of their being there, and so the said Champlein had time to view their Tillage, and the faire leagues long. llands, that ferue for an ornament to their great extension of water. These people are much like Faire llands in Ilands, that letue for an ornament to their great extension of water, I here people are marked that to the Armouchiquois, in their fashion of liung. They fowe Indian Maiz and Beanes, and haue the Indian Maiz and Beanes, and haue quantity of faite Grapes, whereof they make no vie and very good rootes. Euery Family have another exertheir ground round about their dwellings; Fores also, yet no Townes, made with buildings of cife. 20 three or foure stories high, such as they have in new Mexico (a Countrie situated much farther Houses of

In the end, our men being discouered, the alarum was given among the Iroqueis, who affem- The alarum abled themselves. And as the Iroquois did approach, Champlein, who was armed with a Musket. mong the Irocharged with two bullets, would have fet himfelfe forward to aime, to make at one of the forwarded of the Iroquois, who did braue it, challenging his enemies to the combat. But the Sa- The Prudence nages of Kebec told him in their language, no, doe not fo, for if they once difcouer you, not beof the Saugees. ing accustomed to see such folkes, they will forthwith runne away, and make no stand; so shall we loofe the glory which we expect of this charge; withdraw your felfe therefore behinde our formost ranke, and when we shall be neere, you shall advance your selfe, and shoote at those two 30 feathered fellowes, whom you fee the formost, in the middeft of the troope; which was found good, and executed by the fail Champlem, who with one shot laid them both to the ground, as the lathrelated vato vs. He, who affilted him, did also his duetie. But on a sodaine, all was in Flights ne nautrement vince a fuch a noile, and death so vnexpected. V pon this feare, the men of Ke-disorder, astonished at such a noile, and death so vnexpected. V pon this feare, the men of Ke-fer looling no occasion, followed earnestly their enemies, and killed about fiftie of them, whose selection of the strong state of the s heads they brought backe, to make therewith merry feafts, and dances, at their returne, according to their cultome. These things so passed, Champlein tooke againe his course towards ancient France, where he arrived in October 1609. having left the government of New France to a good reverent old man called Captaine Pierre. And for as much as the accidents of the former ficknesse, were stared to Capt. Pierre. 40 come; the winter following, Captaine du Pont of Honfleure (a man very well worthy to hold Captain Page. ranke among the Heroes of the laid Prounce, for haung bin the first that came to the Fals of the great River, after lacques Quartier, having also wintered in Port Royall, and almost every yeare, made voyages to those parts, for the reliefe of them that were there) gaue aduse, that wood should be ready cut downe, for those that should tarry there all the winter, and thereby to free them from painfull toyles. That helpe hath bin of fuch force, that befides this, having their buildings made, they have left no infirmitie nor mortality. So he returned, and with him the faid None died, nor Champlein, and those that would returne. In the meane while, preparations were made for another voyage, against the returne of the faid Champlein, to the end to profecute his discoueries, and confequently, to relieue the faid Captaine Pierre. He tooke againe for the fecond time the Lieutenancy of the faid Monfieur de Monts, new Voyago. 50 for the government of Kebec, and fetting out in the beginning of March, was forced divers times to turne backe, by reason of contrary windes; which made him to arrive late, as did also Monfeur de Poutrinconrt, of his part. And neuertheleffe, in that fmall time, which hee had in those A Lake of an parts, he exploited a great pecce of worke, hauing gone this yeare, as farre as a great Lake, hundred lengof an hundred leagues in length, which is beyond the Fals of the great Riuer of Canada eigh-Having then reviewed the state of all things at Kebee, and learned what occurrences had past. Agreement to fed there, fince his departure; he made an agreement with the Captaines of the faid place, and with them of Tadoussac, to goe on warfare about the Fall of the said River, promising them to great Like. 60 procure an hundred Frenchmen, to affift them in the extirping of all their enemies; and that they should have as many of their owne men, of their side, which they liked very well. But the day appointed being come, and the Frenchmen not come, he excused the matter vpon the weather, which had beene boiltrous for Sailers: and for want of whom, hee told them, that himselie would goe with them, and follow their fortunes. They feeing they could doe no better, accepted

champlein his

1614 Lake 100 leag, in length Beasts great and small Sauages Baptized. LIB. VIII.

of his offer, and went together with some other Frenchmen more, along the same faire River : the Sauares still hunting for proussion for the kitchin. And they travailed so farre, that after having paffed the Fals, they crossed some Lakes, and in the space of eighty leagues, came to that other Lake, which we have faid to be of an hundred leagues in length: where (as the faid Champlein A Battell.

plein had received a blow on the chine bone, whereof he is not yet fully healed. Since, he made a confederacy with other Nations of those parts, farther diffant from the mouth of the Lake, who promifed him, that the next yeare following (which is this yeare 1611.) they would conduct him with all afforance, as for as the fartheit end of the fail Lake. He, for his part, promifed them to faire, and shewed them as well as he could, the greatnesse of our King, and of his Kingdome; and for to make them certaine thereof, be tooke with him a yong man, fonne of a Captaine of those parts, called Sanignon, a man of a good shape, strong, vigorous, and of great courage, whom he hath brought into France, to make report, vpon his returne, of that which he hath feene. This Country(by the report of the faid Champlein) is one of the fairest Countries of the world, much tilled. A faire Coun- abounding with chafe Deere, and Fish, Vines, Hempe, good Roots, Walnut-trees, Cheftnut-trees.

Bouers burnt.

Plantrees and others.

Hories.

Maniellous

Hone for the Ballage to China. Some great the Westerne

Sea. Sca.

A confpiracy.

Their arrivall heutholdftuffe

Sagamos doth

hath recited vnto me) they were prefently fet vpon by the Sauages of the Country, and it was behoonefull vinto them, to fland in good order, & well to derend themselves, after the said Cham-

burne Hogges : and to by that meanes, that haire and wooll, which we goe fo farre of and with fo many perils to leeke for, is loft. There are Beat's great and small, differing from ours, and Hor- 20 fes, as the faid Sanignon hath shewed vs, by the neighing. But I dare not give for current that which Monfieur de Monts hath recited vinto me, that thefe Nations have tame Beares, which they teach, to carry them upon trees for want of ladders. They have Forts, such as they of Vir-Forts & towns nia haue, which are great inclosures with trees, loyned together in forme like a Pale, and within those inclosures are houses made, two or three stories high. The lower and higher parts doe ferue for the men when they must defend themselves from the assalts of their enemies. For in the flories.
Strong bowes. lower parts there are big Bowes, for the bending of which, the strength of six men is required, and they have Arrowes, that knocke downe men. Aboue, they have murthering holes, or battlements, from when e to fling or cast stones, and also to shoote with Bowes, when they will hit their enemies a farre off. In the middle roomes are the women, which faile not in doing 30 that helpe which their fexe may affoord. And in this middle flory, they lay up their Corne and other prouisions. Champlein promileth vs neuer to give over vntill he have pierced as farre as to the Western Sea. or that of the North, to open the way of China; in vaine by for many thought for. As for the Western Sea, I beleene that at the farther end of the greatest Lake, which is very far beyond that River running whereof we foake of in this Chapter, there will be found fome great River, which will fall into Westward into the same, or office from it (as doth that of Canada) and never into the said Westerne Sea. And as for the Northerne Seathere is hope to come neere to it by the River of Saguenay, there being but The Northern small distance from the head of the faid River, to the faid Sea.

There are flore of Beuers along this Lake, but the Inhabitants doe burne them, as here wee

It is now fit to speake of Monsieur de Poutrincourt, a Gentleman of long time resolute in these 40 actions, who having made his preparation at Diepe, fet faile the 25. of February 1610. with a Atedious Na- number of honeit men, and Artificers. This Naugarion hath bin very tedrous and trouble tome; for from the beginning they were driven within light of the Azores, and from thence, almost continually beaten with contrary windes, by the space of two moneths; during which time (as idle people doe commonly occupie their (pirits in ea: II) some, by secret practises, durst conspire against their Captaine, whom notwithstanding, the faid Poutrincourt, according to his accultomed clemency, did pardon.

Having made a review of that coast, he came into Port Royall, where he brought much conat Por Roal. folation to the Sauages of that place. As for the buildings, they were found all whole, except the Buildings and courring, and every parcell of houshold stuffe, in the same place where they were left.

The first care that the fand Monsteur de Pourrincourt ha , was for the tillage of the ground, and to dispose it to receive the seede of corne, for the yeare following; which being finished, hee would not neglect that which belonged to the (pritualty, and whereunto the chiefest aime of his trangiles did tend, which was, to procure the faluation of those poore fangue and barbabarous The fift Chris people. After necessary instruction given, they were baptized upon Saint John Baptist his day, figures made the four and twentieth of Iune, 1610, to the number of one and twenty perions; to every one in New France. of which was given the name of some great or notable person of these parts.

1. Membertou great Sagamos, being aboue an hundred yeares of age, was baptized by Sir leffe Fleche Priette, and named by Monsieur de Poutrincourt, Henry, after the Kings name. Prince, Ruler, 2. Actaudinech, third Sonne of the laid Henry Memberton, was by the faid Pourrincourt, named 60 or Castaine.

The King was Paul, after the name of Pope Paul. 3. The wife of the laid Henry, was named by the hid Pour trincourt, after the Q renes name, that is to lay Marie. 4. Mombertocoichie, alias Iudas, elier forme to Memberton, being about fixety yeares old, was also captized, and by Monfigur de Buncour, named Lewes, after the name of my L ra the Daulphin, &cc.

Memberton, chiefe Sagamos of these Countries, moued with a religious zeale (but without knowledge) faith, that he will denounce open wars against all them that will refuse to become

Shorely after these spiritual regenerations, Monsieur de Poutrincourt his son was sent backe. A returne in-Christians. into France to take a new charge : In doing whereof, he certified the Queene, what had bin done to France, in those Christenings; whereby she received a marueilous contentment. But this one things is to in those distributed the Nauigation were tedious in going, yet in the returne it was very short; for being come to the fishing banke, which is fiftie leagues on this side New-found-land, he was brought in a fortnight into France, in which time they commonly make their returne. Vpon the To Banke they heare the newes of our good Kings death, whose soule resteth with God, and whose posterity we pray God to blesse.

The Author reports another Voyage 1611. by the Lord of Sant Iust; but I have hafte to the English Plantation for whole lake thele are published: there being no great matter of history of thole parts therein. As for the Articles of a Societie concluded, and the names of those which entred therein, till we have greater effect thereof, I shall not trouble you with the recitall thereof.

CHAP. IX.

The first plantation of English Colonies in Virginia briefely mentioned.

Ir Walter Raleigh, a man more famous then happy, had obtained of Queene Elizabeth, of glorious memory, a Patent for discouering and peopling of vnknowne The first Voyparts not actually possessed by any Christian Prince, dated March 25, A. Reg. 26, and possessed by the 27 of Aprill 1584 he let forth two Barkes wider the command of Matter taken. Phillip Amadas, and Master Arthur Barlow, which arrived on that part of A- Virginia namerica, which that Virgin Queene stiled Virginia, and thereof in her Maiesties med so by Q.

20 name tooke possession July 12, and having taken view and liking of the Country, and had con- Elizabeth. ference and trade with the Sauages, obseruing aboue foureteene seuerall sweete smelling timber trees, and many other commodities; they returned with two of the Sauages, Wanchefe and Manteo, and arrived in England in September.

Aprill 9. 1587. Sir Richard Greeneuile was fent by Sir Walter Raleigh with a fleete of feuen Second Voyfaile, which landed in the Ile of Saint John Port Ricco, May 12. and there fortified themselves, age and built a Pinnace. The Spaniard promifed to furnish them with victuals, but did not, where- Sir R. Greenkile. upon they tooke two Frigates. In Hispaniola they had friendly greetings and trade June 26 they anchored at Wocoken, where by the vulkilfulnesse of Fernando the Master, their Admirall strooke on ground and funke. In the 20, of July, the Generall returned for England, and tooke a Spanish Ship of three hundred tunne richly laden by the way, boording her with a Boate made of the boords of Chefts, which as foone as hee had boorded her fell in funder and funke at the Ships fide. In the Comtrie was a Colonie, left under the gouernment of Master Ralph Lane, viz., Master Phillip Amadas, Malter Hariot, Malter Alton, Malter Edward Stafford, Malter Prideox, Captaine Vaughan, and aboue a hundred others. Master Lane writ from his new Fort in Virginia, that if Virginia had Kine and Horses in reasonable proportion, no Countrie in Christendome were comparable to it. They discourred from Roaneak to the Chesepians, aboue one hundred and thirty miles, to Chamanock North-Well as farre. The Sanages confpired against the English, the principall was Pemisapan, who loft his head in the quarrell, in the beginning of June 1586, and Sir Francis Drake 50 comming thither from the facke of divers Spanish Townes, to visite the Colony, on the nineteenth, tooke the Colony with him in his victorious Fleete, and brought them into Engla d. The fame yeere had Sit Walter Raleigh prepared a fhip of a hundred tun, fraught with provision Third Voyage. for the Colonie, which fetting forth late, arrived at Hartoraske immediatly after the departure of the Colonie, which having fought in vaine, the returned with her provisions for England. About a fortnight after her departure, Sir Richard Greeneuile, Generall of Virginia, accompanied with three Ships arrived there, and neither hearing of the Ship, nor of the Colonie which he had left there the yeare before, after long and vaine learch, he left fifteene men to hold polestion of the nic. Countrie, in the Ile of Rosmosk, furnished for two yeares, and returned, by the way making spoyle on the Townes of the Azores, and there taking divers Spaniards. Master Thomas Hariot Master Themas 6) writa large History of the Men, Beatle, Fishes, Fowles, Plants, and Commodities of Virginia, Heriot, fubscribed allo by Mafter Ralph Lane, extant in Mafter Hacklun his third Tome. In the yeare 1587. Sir Walter Raleigh, continuing his purpose of Plantation, sent another Co. Fifth Voyage lonie of one hundred and fiftie persons, vnder the government of Mafter Iohn White; to him he and third Coappointed twelue Affiffants, vn:0 whom he gaue a Charter, and incorporated them by the name lonic.

CHAP.II. Saint Maries Hand, Sauages shew themselues; store of fish.

1647

of Gonernour and Affiftants of the Citie of Raleigh in Virginia, Thefe arrived on July 22. at Hatoraike, where they went on thore to feeke the fitteene men left there the yeare before, withintent after to plant at the Bay of Chelepiok, according to Sir Walter Raleigh his directions, there to make their feate and Fort, By Mantes they learned how the Sauages had fecretly affalted the fitteene English, and flaine fome, the other being forced to flee, it was not knowne whither. Mantes was Christened, and by Sir Walter Raleighs direction, made Lord of Roanoak, Miftris Dare the Gouernours daughter was delivered of a daughter, which was baptifed by the name

En: !fbborne thate.

The Company were very important with the Gouernour, to returne for England, to Supply their detects; to which, with much vn willing neffe he yeelded, Aug. 27. and Octob. 16. arrived 10 in Ireland, and after in England.

Anno 1590, the faid Matter lohn White put to Sea with Ships, and two Pinnaces, with purpose Si: a Voyage. for Virginia, where they anchored at Haterask in 36. 20. Aug. 15. They found some of the goods (fuch as the Sauages could not make vie of) and tokens as if they were at Croatoan; but the winds violence permitted no further fearch, and they returned to the Azores, and after to England, arriving at Plummouth, Octob. 24.

Maffer BARTHOLOMBUV GOSNOLDS Letter to his Father, touching his first Vorage to Virginia, 1 602.

MT duetie remembred, &c. Sir, I was in good bope that my occasions would have allowed mee so much libersie, as to have come unto you before this time; otherwise I would have written more at Large concerning the Countrie from whence we lately came, then I did: but not well remembring what I baue already written (though I am affured that there is nothing fet downe disagreeing with the truth) I thought it fittest not to goe about to adde any thing in writing, but rather to leave the report of the rest till I come my (elfo , which now I hope shall be shortly , and fo some as with conveniency I may. In the meane time, not with flanding whereas you feeme not to be fatisfied by that which I have already writen, concerning some especiall matters. I have here briefely (and as well as I can) added these few lines for 30 your further fattifaction: and first as touching that place where we were most resident, it is in the Latitude of 41 degrees, and one third part; which albeit it be fo much to the Southward, jet is it more cold then those parts of Europe, which are scitnated under the same paralell: but one thing is worth the noting, that notwithstanding the place is not fo much subject to cold as England is, yet did me finde the Spring to be later there, then it is with us here, by almost a moneth : this whether it hapned accidentally this last Spring to be fo, or whether it be fo of course, I am not very certaine; the latter seemes most likely, whereof also there may be ginen some sufficient reason, which now I omit : as for the Acornes we saw gathered on heaves, they were of the last yeare, but doubtlesse their Summer continues longer then ours. We cannot gather by any thing we could observe in the people, or by any triall we had thereof our selves but that it is as healthfull a Climate at any can be. The Inhabitants there, as I wrote before, being of tall 40 stature, comely proportion, strong, altine, and some of good yeares, and as it sould seeme very healthfull, are sufficient proofs of the healthfulnesse of the place. First, for our selves (thankes be to God) we had not a man ficke two dayes together in all our Voyage; whereas others that went out with vs, or about that time on other Voyages (especially such as went upon reprisall) were most of them insetted with sicknesse, whereof they lost some of their men, and brought home a many sicke, returning notwithstanding long before ws. But Verzzzano, and others (as I take it, you may reade in the Books of Discouries) doemore particularly intreate of the Age of the people in that coast. The Sasafras which we brought we had upon the Hands ; where though we had little disturbance, and reasonable plenty : yet for that the greatest part of our people were imployed about the fitting of our house, and such like affaires, and a few (and thise but eafie labourers) undersooke this worke, the rather because we were informed before our going forth, that 50 a tunne was sufficient to clor England) and further, for that we hadrefolued open our returne, and taken view of our victuall, we sudged it then needefull to vice expedition; which afterward we had more certaine proofe of ; for when we came to an anker before Portsmouth, which was some foure dayes after we made the land, we had not one Cake of Bread, nor any drinke, but a little Vinegar, left : fr:hefe and other reasons, we returned no otherwise laden then you have heard. And thus much I hope shall suffice sill I can my selfe come to give you further notice, which though it be not so some as I could have wish, yet I hope it shall be in convenient time. In the meane time chaning your pardon, for which the vergent occasions af my stay will pleade, I humbly take my leane. 7. Septemb. 1602.

Your dutifull Sonne,

BARTH. COSNOLD.

CHAP. XI.

The Relation of Captaine Gosnots Voyage to the North part of Virginia, becanne the fixe and twentieth of March, Anno 42. ELIZABETHE Regina 1602. and delivered by GABRIEL ARCHER, a Gentleman in the faid Voyage.

He faid Captaine did fet fayle from Famonib, the day and yeere aboue written accompanied with thirtie two persons, whereof eight Mariners and Saylers, twelue purpofing upon the Discouery to returne with the ship for England, the rest remayne there for population. The fourteenth of Aprill following, wee had fight of Saint Maries an Hand of the Afforis.

The three and twentieth of the same, beeing two hundred leagues Westwards from the faid lland in the latitude of 37, degrees. The water in the mayne Ocean appeared yel- Ocean seelow, the space of two leagues North and South, where founding with thirtie fadome Line, wee ming yellow, found no ground, and taking vp some of the faid water in a bucket, it altered not either in colour or taite from the Sea Azure.

The feuenth of May following, we first saw many Birds in bignesse of Cliffe Pidgeons; and 20 after diners other as Pettrels, Cootes, Hagbuts, Pengwins, Murres, Gannets, Cormorants, Guls, with many elle in our English Tongue of no name. The eight of the same the water changed to a yellowish greene, where at seuentie fadome we had ground. The ninth, wee had two and twentie fadome in faire landie ground, hauing voon our Lead many glittering Stones, somewhat heavie, which might promise some Minerall matter in the bottome, we held our selves by computation, well neere the latitude of 43. degrees.

The tenth wee founded in 27. 30. 37. 43. fadome, and then came to 108. fome thought it to be the founding of the Westermost end of Saint lohns Hand, vpon this banke we saw sculs of fish in great numbers. The twelfth we hoyled out halfe of our shallop, and sounding had then eightie fadome without any current perceiued by William Strete the Master, one hundred leagues Westward from Saint Maries til we came to the foresaid foundings continually passed fleeting by we reward from Saint 27 and to have their moueable course towards the North-east, a matter to set sea-oare. fometubile inuention on worke, for comprehending the true cause thereof. The thirteenth, wee founded in feuentie fadome, and obterued great beds of weedes, much woode and divers things effe floating by vs, when as we had smelling of the shoare, such as from the Southerne Cape and Smell of the Andulazia in Spaine.

The fourteenth, about fix in the morning we descried Land that lay North, &c. the Northerly part we called the North Land, which to another Rocke vpon the fame lying twelue leagues Weit, that wee called Sauage Rocke, because the Sauages hift shewed themselues there, fine Sauage Recke. leagues towards the faid Rocke is an out Point of woodie ground, the Trees thereof very high 40 and ifraight, from the Rocke East North-east. From the faid Rocke, came towards vs a Bifeay shallop with faile and Oares, having eight perions in it, whom we supposed at first to bee Chrifians diffressed. But approching vs neere, wee perceived them to bee Savages. These comming Savages. within call hayled vs , and wee answered. Then after signes of peace , and a long speech by one of them made, they came boldly aboord vs being all naked, fauing about their shoulders certaine loofe Derre-skinnes, and neere their wastes Seale-skinnes tyed fast like to Irih Dimmie Troufes. One that feremed to be their Commander wore a Wastecoate of blacke worke, a paire of Breeches, cloth Stockings, Shooes, Hat, and Band, one or two more had also a few things made by some Christians, thete with a piece of Chalke described the Coast thereabouts, and could Their behauis name Placentia of the New-found-land, they spake divers Christian words, and seemed to voider- our. 50 fland much more then we, for want of Language could comprehend. These people are in colour fwart, their haire long votyed with a knot in the part of behind the head. They paint their bodies, which are frong and well proportioned. These much defired our longer stay, but finding our selves short of our purposed place, we set faile Westwards, leaving them and their Coast. About fixteene leag es South-west from thence, wee perceiued in that course two small Ilands, the one lying Eastward from Sanage Rock, the other to the Southwards of it, the Coast we left was full of goodly Woods, faire Plaines, with little greene round Hils aboue the Cliffes appearing

vnto vi, which are indifferently railed, but all Rockie, and of shining stones, which might have perfwaded vs a longer flay there. The fifteenth day wel ad againe fight of the Land, which made a head being as wee thought 60 an Hand, by readin of a large found that appeared Westward betweene it and the Mayne, for comming to the West and thereof, we did perceive a large opening, we called it Shole-hope: Necre Shile-hope. this Cape we came to Auchor in fifreene fadome, where wee tooke great store of Cod-fish, for which we altered the name, and called it Cape Cod. Here wee faw fouls of Herrings, Mackerels Cape Cod. and other thail fich in great abundance. This is a low fundie shoare, but without danger, also wee came to Anchor againe in fixteene fadome, faire by the Land in the latitude of 42. degrees. This Cape is well neere a mile broad, and lieth North-east by East. The Captaine went here ashoare and found the ground to be full of Peafe, Strawberies, Hurtheries, &c. as then vnripe, the fand alfo by the floare fomewhat deepe, the fire-wood there by vs taken in was of Cypreffe, Birch. Wich-hazell and Beech. A young Indian came here to the Captaine, armed with his Bow and Arrowes, and had certaine plates of Copper hanging at his Eires, hee shewed a willingnesse to helpe vs in our occasions.

The fixteenth, we trended the Coast Southerly, which was all champaine and full of graffe.

Poin, care,

but the Hands fornewhat wooddie. Twelve leagues from Cape Cod, we descried a point. with some breach a good distance off, and keeping our loffe to double it, wee came on the furden into to shoale water, yet well quitted our selues thereof. This breach wee called Tuckers Terror . voon his expressed feare. The Point we named Point Care, having passed it wee bore vp againe with the Land, and in the night came with it anchoring in eight fadome, the ground good. Thefee uenteenth, appeared many breaches round about vs, fo as wee continued that day without remooue.

Gilberts Point. Diuers Ilinds. Sausgen

Pengwins.

The eighteenth, being faire we fent forth the Boat, to found ouer a Breach, that in our course lay of another Point, by vs called Gilberts Point; who returned vs foure, five, fixe and feuenfadome ouer. Alfo a Discouery of divers Ilands which after prooved to bee Hils and Hummocks. dittinct within the Land. This day there came vnto the thips tide divers Canoas; the Indiani apparelled as aforefaid, with Tobacco and Popes Heeled with Copper, Skins, artificiall ffrings and 20 other trifles to barter, one had hanging about his necke a plate of 11th Copper in length a foot, in breadth halfe a foot for a breft-plate, the Eares of all the reit had Pendants of Copper. Also one of them had his face over painted, and his head stucke with feathers in manner of a Turkey Cocks traine : There are more timerous then those of the Sau ge Rocke, yet very theeuilh.

The nineteenth, we passed over the breach of Gilberts Point in source or fine fadome, and anchored a league or somewhat more beyond it; betweene the last two Points are two leagues, the interim, along shoale water, the latitude here is 41. degrees two third parts.

The twentieth, by the ships side we there killed Pengwins, and law many sculs of fish. The Coast from Gilberts Point to the supposed Hes lyeth East and by South. Here also we discovered two Inlets which might promife fresh water, inwardly whereof we perceived much imoake, as 30 though some population had there beene: This Coast is very full of people, for that as we tren-ded the same Sauages Hill runne along the shoare, as men much admiring at vs. The one and twentieth, we went coasting from Gilberts Point to the supposed Iles, in tenne, nine, eight, seuen, and fixe fadome close aboord the shoare, and that depth lyeth a league off. A little from the supposed Hes appeared vnto vs an opening, with which we stood sudging it to bee the end of that which Captaine Gofnell descrieth from Cape Cod, and as hee thought to extend some thirtie or more miles in length, and finding there but three fadome a league off, we omitted to make further discouerie of the same, calling it Shole-hope.

From this opening the Mayne lyeth South-welf, which coafting along we faw a difinhabited Manhabit From this opening the Mayne lyeth South-welf, which coafting along we faw a difinhabited Manhabit Fire and named it Marthau Frequent, 40 from Shole-hope it is eight leagues in circuit, the Hand is fine miles, and hath 41. degrees and one quarter of latitude: the place most pleasant; for the two and twentieth, we went ashoare, and found it full of Wood, Vines, Goofeberie bushes, Hurtberies, Raspices, Eglentine, &c. Heere we had Cranes, Hearnes, Shoulers Geefe, and divers other Birds which there at that time vpon the Cliffes being fandie with some Rockie stones, did breed and had young. In this place we law Deere, heere we rode in eight fathome neere the shoare, where wee tooke great store of Cod, as before at Cape Cod, but much better.

The three and twentieth wee weyed, and towards night came to Anchor at the Northwest part of this lland, where the next morning off, red vnto vs fast running thirteene Sauages apparelled as aforefaid, and armed with Bowes and Arrowes without any teare. They brought 10-50 bacco, Deere skins and some sodden fish. These offered themselves vnto vs in great familiaritie, who feemed to be well conditioned. They came more rich in Copper then any before. This Iland is found, and hath no danger about it.

Elizabethi Ile.

The four and twentieth, we fet faile and doubled the Cape of another Iland next vnto it, which wee called Douer Cliffe, and then came into a faire Sound, where wee roade all night, the next morning wee fent off our Boate to discouer another Cape, that lay betweene vs and the Mayne, from which were a ledge of Rockes a mile into the Sea, but all aboue water, and without danger, we went about them, and came to Anchor in eight fadome, a quarter of a mile from the shoare, in one of the stateliest Sounds that ever I was in. This called wee Gofnolls Hope; the Northbanke whereof is the Mayne, which stretcheth East and West. This lland Captaine Gof- 60 noll called Elizabeths Ile, where we determined our abode : the distance betweene every of these Ilands is, viz. from Marthaes V meyard to Douer Cliffe, halfe a league ouer the Sound, thence to Elizabeths Ile one league diffant. From Elizabeths Ile vnto the Mayne is foure leagues. On the North fide neere adjoyning voto the lland Elizabeth, is an Ilet in compasse halfe a myle full the Mayne appeareth another the like, that I called Haps Hill, for that I hope much hap may be Haps Hill. expected from it. The five and twentieth, it was that we came from Gofnolls Hope. The fix and twentieth, we trimmed and fitted vp our Shallop. The feuen and twentieth, there came vnto vs an Indian and ewo women, the one we supposed to be his Wife, the other his Daughter, both cleane and strate hodied, with countenance iweet and pleafant. To these the Indian gaue heedfull attendance for that they shewed them in much familiaritie with our men, although they would not admit of a-

CHAP. 10. Haps Hill. In-creekes or fundie Coues. Skins of wild bealts.

of Cedars, by me called Hills Hap, to the Northward, of which in the mouth of an opening on Hill Hen.

ny immodest touch. The eight and ewentieth we entred counfell about our abode and plantation, which was concluded to be in the West part of Elizabeths Iland. The North-east thereof running from out our ken. The South and North standeth in an equall Parallel. This Iland in the Westernde admitteth fome Increekes, or fandie Coues, fo girded, as the water in some places of each fide meeteth , to which the Indians from the Mayne doe oftentimes refort for fishing of Crabs. There is eight fadome very neere the shoare, and the latitude here is 41. degrees 10. minutes, the tread h nom Elecabets ! Sound to Sound in the Welter part is not palling a mile at moit, altogether vnpeopled and dilinhabited. It is ouer-growne with Wood and Rubbish, viz. Okes, Ashes, Beech , Wal nut, 10 minut : Weech-halfe, Saffafrage, and Cedars, with divers other of vnknowne names. The R . With is contribute.

wild Pezze, young Saffafrage, Cherie trees, Vines, Eglentine, Goose-berie bushes, Hawtmorne, so Honiliuckles, with others of like qualitie. The herbs and Roots are Strawberies Rafes. Ground Nuts, Alexander, Surrin, Tanie, &c. without count. Touching the fertilitie of the levele by cur owne experience made, we found it to be excellent for fowing fome English pulse it sprowted out in one fortnight almost halte a foot. In this Iland is a stage or Poud of tresh water, in circuit two miles, on the one fide not distant from the Sea thirtie yards, in the Centre whereof is a Rockie Islet, contayning neere an Acre of ground full of wood, on which wee beganne our Fort and Fort legin place of abode, disposing it selfe so fit for the same. These Indians call Gold Wasfador, which argueth there is thereof in the Countrey. The nine and twentieth, we laboured in gerting of Saffafrage, rubbishing our Ittle Fort or Islet, new keeling our shallop; and making a Punt or Flat bottome Boate to passe to and tro our 20 Fortouer the fresh water, the powder of Saffafrage in twelue houres cured one of our Company that had taken a great Surfet by eating the bellies of Dog-fish , a very delicious meate.

The thirtieth, Captaine Gofnoll with divers of his company went voon pleafure in the falllop towards Hills Hap to view it, and the Sandie Coue, and returning brought with him a Canca that foure Indians had there left being fled away for feare of our English which we brought into

The one and thirtieth, Captaine Gofnoll desirous to see the Maine, because of the distance, hee fet tayle ouer; where comming to anchor, went ashoare with certaine of his companie, and immediatly there prefented vn to him men women and children, who with all curteous kindnesse entertayned him, giving him certaine skinnes of wilde beafts, which may be rich Furres, Tobac-4000, Turtles, Hempe, artificiall Strings coured, Chaines, and fach like things as at the innant The rethey had about them. These are a faire conditioned people: On all the Sea coast along we found Muffell shells that in colour did represent Mother-of-pearle, but not having meanes to dredge, could not apprehend further knowledge thereof. This Maine is the goodlieft Continent that ener we faw, promifing more by farre then we any way did expect: for it is replenished with faire fields, and in them fragrant Flowers, also Medowes, and hedged in with stately Grones, being furnished also with pleasant Brookes, and beautified with two maine Rivers that (as wee judge) may haply become good Harbours, and conduct vs to the hopes men fo greedily doe thirst after. In the mouth of one of thele Inlets or Rivers lieth that little Ile before mentioned, called Happer Hill, from which vnto the Westermost end of the Maine, appearing where the other Inlet is, I account some fine leagues, and the Coast betweene bendeth like a Bow, and I yeth East 50 and by North. Beyond thefe two Inlets we might perceive the Mayne to beare up South-week. and more Southerly. Thus with this tafte of Discouery, we now contented our felues, and the fame day made returne vnto our Fort, time not permitting more sparing delay.

The first of lune, we employed our felues in getting Sassafrage, and the building of our Fort. The fecond, third and fourth, we wrought hard to make readie our house for the provision to bee had ashore to suffaine vs till our ships returne. This day from the Mayne came to our ships side a Canoa, with their Lord or chiefe Commander, for that they made little itay only pointing to the Sunne, as in figne that the next day hee would come and visit vs, which hee did accordingly. 60 The fifth, wee continued our labour, when there came vnto vs ashoare from the Mayne sittle Sauages, flout and lustie men with their Bowes and Arrowes, amongst them there seemed to be one of authoritie, because the rost made an inclining respect vinto him. The ship was at their comming a league off, and Captaine Gofnoll aboord, and so likewise Captaine Gilbert, who almost neuer went alhoare, the company with me only eight persons. These Indians in hastie manner came towards vs, fo as we thought fit to make a stand at an angle betweene the Sea and a fresh water, I mooued my telfe towards him feuen or eight steps, and clapt my hands first on the sides of mine head, then on my breaft, and after prefented my Musket with a threatning countenance. thereby to fignifie vnto them, either a choice of Peace or Warre, whereupon hee vfing mee with mine owne fignes of Peace, I stept forth and imbraced him, his company then all fate downe in manner like Grey-hounds vpon their heeles, with whom my company fell a bartering. By this time Captaine Gofnell was come with twelve men more from aboord, and to shew the Sauage Seignior that he was our Captaine, we received him in a guard, which he passing thorow, saluted the Seignior with ceremonies of our falutations, whereat he nothing mooned or altered himselfe. Our Capraine gaue him a ftraw Hat and a paire of Kniues , the Hat awhiles hee wore , but the IO Kniues he beheld with great maruelling, being very bright and sharpe, this our courtese made them all in loue with vs. The fixt being raine, we fpent idlely aboord. The feuenth, the Seignior came againe with all his troupe as before, and continued with vs the most part of the day, we going to dinner about noone, they fate with vs and did eate of our Bacaleure and Mustard, dranke of our Beere, but the Mustard nipping them in their noses they could not indure : it was a sport to behold their faces made being bitten therewith. In time of Dinner the Sauages had stolnea Target wherewich acquainting the Seignier, with feare and great trembling they restored it againe, thinking perhaps we would haue beene reuenged for it, but feeing our familiaritie to continue, they fell a fresh to roasting of Crabs, Red Herrings, which were exceeding great, ground Nuts, &c. as be- 20 fore. Our Dinner ended, the Seignier first tooke leave and departed, next all the rest saving foure that stayed and went into the Wood to helpe vs digge Sassafrage, whom we defired to goe abourd vs, which they refused and so departed.

Their purpole

The eighth wee divided the victuals, viz. the thips fore for England, and that of the Planters. which by Captaine Gilbert: allowance could be but fixe weekes for fixe moneths, whereby there fell out a controuer sie, the rather, for that some seemed secretly to vinderstand of a purpose Captaine Gilbert had not to returne with supplie of the iffue, those goods should make by him to be carried home. Besides, there wanted not ambitious conceits in the mindes of some wrangling and ill disposed persons that ouerthrew the stay there at that time, which vpon consultation thereof had, about fine dayes after was fully refolued all for England againe. There came in this 30 interim aboord vnto vs, that flayed all night, an Indian, whom wee vied kindly, and the next day fent ashoare hee shewed himselfe the most sober of all the rest, wee held him sent as a Spie. In the morning he filched away our Pot-hookes, thinking he had not done any ill therein; being ashoare wee bid him strike fire, which with an Emerald stone (such as the Glasiers vie, to cut Glasse) he did. I take it to be the very same that in Latine is called Smiris, for striking therewith vpon Touch-wood that of purpose hee had, by meane of a mynerall stone vsed therein, sparkles proceeded and forthwith kindled with making of slame. The ninth, wee continued working on our Store-house for as yet remayned in vs a defired resolution of making flay. The tenth, Captaine Gosnos fell downe with the ship to the little life of Codars, called Hill happe, to take in Cedar wood, leauing mee and nine more in the Fort, onely with three meales meate, 40 ypon promise to returne the next day. The eleventh, he came not, neither sent, whereupon I commanded source of my companie to feeke out for Crabbes, Lobsters, Turtles, &c. for fustayning vs till the ships returne, which was gone cleane out of fight, and had the winde chopt vp at Southewest, with much difficulty would shee haue beene able in short time to haue made returne. These foure Purveyers, whom I counselled to keepe together for their better safety divided themselves, two going one wayes and two another, in fearch as aforefaid. One of these petie companies was assaulted by foure Sauage affault Indians, who with Arrowes did shoot and hurt one of the two in his side, the other a lufty and nimble fellow, leapt in and cut their Bow-strings whereupon they fled. Being late in the euening, they were druten to lie all night in the Woods, not knowing the way home thorow the 50 thicke rubbish, as also the weather somewhat stormie. The want of these forrowed vs much, as not able to coniecture any thing of them vnlesse very enill.

The twelfth, those two came vnto vs againe, whereat our joy was encreased, yet the want of our Captaine, that promifed to returne, as aforefaid, ftrooke vs in a dumpish terrour, for that hee performed not the same in the space of almost three dayes. In the meane wee sustayned our selues with Alexander and Sorrell pottage, Ground-nuts and Tobacco, which gave nature a reafonable content. Wee heard at last, our Captaine to lewre vnto vs, which made such musike as fweeter neuer came vnto poore men.

The thirteenth, beganne fome of our companie that before vowed to flay, to make renolt: whereupon the planters diminishing, all was given over. The fourteenth, fifteenth, and fix. 63 teenth wee spent in getting Salafrage and fire-wood of Cedar, leaving Houle and little Fort by ten men in nineteene dayes sufficient made to harbour twenty persons at least with their neces-

The feuenteenth, we fet fayle, doubling the Rockes of Elizabethi Iland, and paffing by Douer

CHAP.11. Cranes, Hernsbowes, and Geese. Lakes of fresh water.

Cliffe, came to anchor at Marthaes Vineyard being fine leagues diftant from our Fort, where we went ashoare, and had young Cranes, Herneshowes, and Geete, which now were growne to pretie bigneffe.

The eighteenth, we let layle and bore for England, cutting off our Shalop, that was well able Returned to land fine and twenty men, or more, a Boate very necessary for the like occasions. The winds doe raigne most commonly vpon this coast in the Summer time, Westerly. In our homeward course wee observed the forelaid fleeting weeds to continue till we came within two hundred leagues of Europe.

The three and twentieth of July we came to anchor before Exmouth.

CHAP. XI

Notes of the same Voyage taken out of a Tractate written by I A M E S Ro. SIER to Sir WALTER RALEIGH, and of MACES Vovage to Virginia.

Lizabeth: Ilaud is full of high timbred Oakes, their leanes thrice fo broad at ours; Ce. Oaken Cedatel aurs, firaught and stall; Beech, Elme, Holle, Wal must trees in adundance, the finit as Beech, Elme, bigge as ours, as appeared by those wee found under the trees, which had less all the trees, year our athered; Halfe-must trees, Cherrice trees, the leafe, have and bypaesse our trees. A callerium from ours in E. valout, has the stable heaves has helistimus as a callerium from ours in E. valout, has the stable heaves has helistimus as called. differing from ours in England, but the stalke beareth the blossomes or fruit at the end thereof, like a cluster of Grapes, fortie or fiftie in a bunch; Saffafras trees great plen. Saffafrastrees, tie all the Ilandouer, a tree of high price and profit; also divers other fruit-trees, some of them with Divers other frange barkes, of an Orange colour, in feeling foft and smooth like Velnet: in the thickest parts of these trees.

Woods, you may fee a furlong or more round about.

On the North-west side of this Iland, neere to the Sea-side, is a standing Lake of fresh water, almost On the North-west fide of this Iland, neere to the Sea-fide, is a francing Lave of frew muer, aimoss three English miles in compasse, in the miast whereof stands a woody ground, an acre in quantitie, or not miles about; 10 aboue: this Lake is full of small Tortoifes, and exceedingly frequented with all sorts of fowles before rebearfed, which breed, some lowe on the bankes, and others on lowe trees about this Lake in great abundence, whose young ones of all forts wee tooke and eate at our pleasure: but all these fowles are much Abundance of dance, whose young ones of an loves were tooke and oute at our presumer; but an toole founds are much bigger than ours in England. Also, in enery lland, and almost enery part of enery lland, are great bigger than hore of Ground-nuts for the together on a string, some of them as bigge as Hennes egges; they growe not ours in Engtwo inches under ground : the which Nuts wee found to bee as good as Potatoes. Alfo, diners forts of land. hell-fifb, as Scalops, Muffels, Cockles, Lobsters, Crabs, Oisters, and Wilkes, exceeding good and very Ground nuts. treat. But not to cloy you with particular rehearfall of fuch things as God and Nature bath bestowed Shell inh. on these places, in comparison whereof, the most fertile part of all England is (of it selfe) but barren; wee went in our Light-borfman from this lland to the Maine, right against this Iland some two miles 40 off, where comming allocare, wee flood a while like men ranished at the beautie and delicaty of this sweet The exceeding inle; for befides diners cleere Lakes of freih mater (whereof wee fam no end) Medowes very large, beauty of the logic; for behave ainers cleere Lager of fich mater (whereof we faw no end) Orecannes very large, maine Land. and full of greene graffe; even the most wooddy places (I fpeake onely of such as I saw) doe growe so Great Lakes. and that of greene grays; exemine most nouncy present of first and apart, one tree from another, upon greene or affect ground, somewhat higher than the Plainet, Large Medows diffinit and apart, one tree from ansieer, upon greene graph greene the standard of the standa and comming up to them, at first they expressed some feare; but being emboldned by our courteous vlage, and some trifles which we gave them, they followed us to a necke of Land, which wee imagined had beene senered from the Marnet but finding it otherwise, wee perceined abroad Harbour or Riners mouth, A broad Riverwhich came on into the Mayne; and because the day was farre spent, we were forced to returne to the Iland from whence we came, leaning the Disconery of this Harbour, for a time of better lessure. Of A good Har-10 the goadnesse of which Harbour, as also of many others thereabouts, there is small doubt, con-bout. sidering that all the Hands, as also the Maine (where wee were) is all Rockie Grounds and broken

Now the next day, wee determined to fortifie our felues in a little plot of ground in the middest of the Lake abone mentioned, where wee built an honfe, and concred it with (edge, which grew about this Lake in great abundance; in building whereof, wee spent three weekes and more: but the second day after our comming from the Maine, wee estied eleven Canoas or Boats, with fifty Indians in them., 11. Canoas comming toward us from this part of the Maine, where wee two dayes before landed: and being louth with so Indiane they should discouer our fortification, wee went out into the Sea side to meets them; and comming some- in them. what neere them, they all fate downe upon the stones, calling aloud to us (as wee rightly ghessed) to doe the like, a little distance from them : having (ate a while in this order, Captaine Goincle willed mee to goe unto them; to fee what countenance they would make; but as foone as I came up unto them. one of them, to whom I had given a Knife two dayes before in the Maine, knew mee (whom I also very well remembred) and (miling upon me, spake somewhat unto their Lord or Captaine, which sate in the midst Their Captain of them, who presently rose up and tooks a large Bener skinne from one that stood about him, and gane

came towards vs, fo as we thought fit to make a stand at an angle betweene the Sea and a fresh water. I mooued my felfe towards him feuen or eight steps, and clapt my hands first on the fides of mine head, then on my breaft, and after prefented my Musket with a threatning countenance. thereby to fignific vnto them, either a choice of Peace or Warre, whereupon hee vfing mee with mine owne fignes of Peace, I stept forth and imbraced him, his company then all fate downe in manner like Grey-hounds voon their heeles, with whom my company fell a bartering. By this time Captaine Goffoll was come with twelve men more from aboord, and to shew the Sauge Seignior that he was our Captaine, we received him in a guard, which he passing thorow, saluted the Scienier with ceremonies of our falutations, whereat he nothing mooued or altered himfelfe. Our Captaine gaue him a straw Hat and a paire of Kniues, the Hat awhiles hee wore, but the 10 Kniues he beheld with great maruelling, being very bright and sharpe, this our courtesemade them all in love with vs.

The fixt being raine, we fpent idlely aboord. The feuenth, the Seignior came againe with all his troupe as before, and continued with vs the most part of the day, we going to dinner about noone, they fate with vs and did eate of our Bacaleure and Mustard, dranke of our Beere. but the Mustard nipping them in their noses they could not indure : it was a sport to behold their faces made being bitten therewith. In time of Dinner the Sanages had itolnea Target wherewith acquainting the Seignier, with feare and great trembling they restored it againe, thinking perhaps we would haue beene reuenged for it, but feeing our familiaritie to continue, they fell a tresh to roalting of Crabs, Red Herrings, which were exceeding great, ground Nuts, &c. as be- 20 fore. Our Dinner ended, the Seignier hift tooke leave and departed, next all the reft fauing foure that stayed and went into the Wood to helpe vs digge Sasiafrage, whom we defired to goe abourd vs, which they refused and so departed.

The eighth wee divided the victuals, viz. the thips fore for England, and that of the Planters, which by Captaine Gilberts allowance could be but fixe weekes for fixe moneths, whereby there fell out a controuer sie, the rather, for that some seemed secretly to vinderstand of a purpose Capa taine Gilbert had not to returne with supplie of the iffue, those goods should make by him to be carried home. Besides, there wanted not ambitious conceits in the mindes of some wrangling and ill disposed persons that ouerthrew the stay there at that time, which upon consultation thereof had, about five dayes after was fully resolved all for England againe. There came in this 30 interim aboord vnto vs, that flayed all night, an Indian, whom wee vied kindly, and the next day fent afhoare hee fhewed himfelfe the moft fober of all the reft , wee held himfent as a Spie. In the morning he filched away our Pot-hookes, thinking he had not done any ill therein; being ashoare wee bid him strike fire, which with an Emerald stone (such as the Glasiers vie, to cut Glaffe) he did. I take it to be the very fame that in Latine is called Smiris, for firiking therewith vpon Touch-wood that of purpose hee had, by meane of a mynerall stone vsed therein. sparkles proceeded and forthwith kindled with making of flame. The ninth, wee continued working on our Store-house for as yet remayned in vs a delired resolution of making stay. The tenth, Captaine Gosnos fell downe with the ship to the little llet of Cedars, called Hill happe, to take in Cedar wood, leaving mee and nine more in the Fort, onely with three meales meate, 40 wpon promife to returne the next day. The eleuenth, he came not, neither sent, whereupon I commanded source of my companie to feeke out for Crabbes, Lobsters, Turtles, &c., for fustayning vs till the ships returne, which was gone cleane out of fight, and had the winde chopt up at Southwest, with much difficulty would shee haue beene able in short time to haue made returne. These foure Purveyers, whom I counselled to keepe together for their better safety divided themselves, two going one wayes and two another, in fearch as aforesaid. One of these petie companies was assaulted by foure Sauage affault Indians, who with Arrowes did shoot and hurt one of the two in his side, the other a lusty and nimble fellow, leapt in and cut their Bow-strings whereupon they fled. Being late in the euening, they were driven to lie all night in the Woods, not knowing the way home thorow the 30 thicke rubbish, as also the weather somewhat stormie. The want of these forrowed vs much, as not able to coniecture any thing of them valefie very enill.

The twelfth, those two came vnto vs againe, whereat our joy was encreased, yet the want of our Captaine, that promised to returne, as aforesaid, strooke vs in a dumpish terrour, for that hee performed not the same in the space of almost three dayes. In the meane wee sustayned our felues with Alexander and Sorrell pottage, Ground-nuts and Tobacco, which gave nature a reafonable content. Wee heard at last, our Captaine to lewre vnto vs, which made fuch musike as sweeter neuer came vnto poore men.

The thirteenth, beganne fome of our companie that before vowed to flay, to make revolt: whereupon the planters diminishing, all was given over. The fourteenth, fifteenth, and fix. 63 teenth wee spent in getting Sasafrage and fire-wood of Cedar, leaving House and little Fort by ten men in nineteene dayes sufficient made to harbour twenty persons at least with their necesfary prouifion.

The feuenteenth, we fet fayle, doubling the Rockes of Elizabeth Iland, and paffing by Douer

CHAP.11. Cranes, Hernsbowes, and Geese. Lakes of fresh water.

Cliffe, came to anchor at Marthaes Vineyard being fine leagues diftant from our Fort , where we went ashoare, and had young Cranes, Herneshowes, and Geete, which now were growne to pretie bigneffe.

retie Dignetie.

The eighteenth, we let layle and bore for England, cutting off our Shalop, that was well able Returned to land fine and twenty men, or more, a Boate very necessary for the like occasions. The winds doe raigne most commonly upon this coast in the Summer time, Westerly. In our homeward course wee observed the forelaid fleeting weeds to continue till we came within two hundred leagues of Europe.

The three and twentieth of July we came to anchor before Exmonth.

CHAP. XI.

Notes of the same Voyage taken out of a Tractate written by I A M E S Ro-SIER to Sir WALTER RALEIGH, and of MACES Voyage to Virginia.

Lizabeths lland is full of high timbred Oakes, their leaves thrice fo broad as ours : Ce_ Oakes.Cedatil Leaenthis ilana is jud op toght immored Autes, their leaunes torrice fo broad as own; Ce. Diskenk-dirich dars, firaght and tail; Beech, Elme, Hollie, Fall mit treis in abundance, the first as Beech, Elme, the buge as own; as appeared by those wee found under the trees, which bud lien all the trees, which bud lien all the trees. On the same of the period of the same trees, the leafe, barbe and byought not trees. Cherric trees, the leafe, barbe and byought not trees. Cherric trees, the leafe, barbe and byought not trees, differing from our in E. Ighand, but the fluid beauth to be followed or faith at the end thereof, they a cluster of graper, further on fifthe in a bunch; Sallifans tree; great plan. Salfiras trees, other than the salf and the trees of the bunch was and motion. All human the first trees, the trees of the first trees, the first trees of the first trees, the first t tie all the Handouer, a tree of high price and profit; also diners other fruit-trees, some of them with Diners other frange barkes, of an Orange colour, in feeling foft and smooth like Veluet: in the thickest parts of these Woods, you may fee a furloug or more round about.

Weeds, you may see a privage we were voin account.

Outshe Noth welf she of this Island, were so the Sea-side, is a standing Lake of fresh water, almost three lines English miles a compass, on the miss shours of many accounts, we ware in quantitie, or not miles about the standing of th bearfed, which breed, some lowe on the bankes, and others on lowe trees about this Lake in great abundance, whose young ones of all forts wee tooke and eate at our pleasure: but all these fowles are much Abundance of dance, whose young ones of all sorts wee tooke and sale at our pleasure; but an toole justes are much fowles, much bigger than ours in England. Also, in enery iland, and almost enery part of enery iland, are great bigger than fore of Ground-nuts fortie together on a string, some of them as bigge as Hennes egges; they growe not ours in Engtwo inches under ground: the which Nuts wee found to bee as good as Potatoes. Alfo, diners forts of land. Bell-filb, as Scalops, Muffels, Cockles, Lobsters, Crabs, Oisters, and Wilkes, exceeding good and very Ground nuts. meat. But not to cloy you with particular rehear fall of fuch things as God and Nature bath bestowed Shellfish, on these places, in comparison whereof, the most fertile part of all England is (of it selfe) but barren; wee went in our Light-borfman from this lland to the Maine, right against this Iland fome two miles off, where comming alhoure, wee flood a while like men ranifoed at the beautie and delicary of this sweet The exceeding Inle; for besides diners cleere Lakes of fresh water (whereof wee Saw no end) Medowes very large, beauty of the logic; for beinder diners cleere Lakes of freid mater (moereof me fam no end) Cricamus very large, maine Land, and full of greene graffe; enen the most wooddy places (I speake onely of such as I saw) doe growe so Great Lakes. indful of greene graffe; eurs the mail woods places (I speake ours) of you as a sure you we know the continues of the state of the state. I sage Medows as f Nature would form ber faife about her power, artificial. Hard by we eithird fewn Indians. Secuen Indians. and comming up to them, at first they expressed some feare; but being emboldned by our courteous vsage, and some trifles which we game them, they followed us to a necke of Land, which wee imagined had beene fewered from the Mayne; but finding it otherwise, wee perceined abroad Harbour or Rivers mouth, A broad River which came up into the Mayne : and becanse the day was farre spent, we were forced to returne to the I. land from whence we came, leaving the Discouery of this Harbour, for a time of better lessure. Of A good Har-10 the goadnesse of which Harbour, as also of many others thereabouts, there is small doubt, con-bout. sidering that all the Hands, as also the Maine (where wee were) is all Rockie Grounds and broken

Now the next day, wee determined to fortifie our felues in a little plot of ground in the middest of the Lake abone mentioned, where wee built an honfe, and conered it with sedge, which grew about this The English Lake in great abundance; in building whereof, wee spent three weekes and more: but the second day after our comming from the Maine, wee espied eleven Canoas or Boats, with fifty Indians in them, 11, Canoas comming toward us from this part of the Maine, where wee two dayes before landed: and being loath with so. Indiane they should discouer our fortification, wee went out into the Sea side to meete them; and comming some in them. what neere them, they all fate downe upon the stones, calling aloud to us (as wee rightly ghe fed) to doe the like, a little distance from them : baning fate a while in this order, Captaine Golinoli willed mee to goe unto them; to fee what countenance they would make; but as foone as I came up unto them one of them, to whom I had given a Knife two dayes before in the Maine, knew mee (whom I also very well remembred) and smiling upon me, spake somewhat unto their Lord or Captaine, which sate in the midst Their Captain of them, who prefently rose up and tooks a large Beuer skinne from one that stood about him, and gaue

o flav bruken off.

CHAP.II.

it unto me, which I requited for that time the best I could: but I, pointing towards captaine Gosnold made fignes unto him, that hee was our Captaine, and defirous to bee his friend, and enter league with bim, which (as I perceived) be understood, and made signes of iny: whereupon Captaine Gosnold, with the rest of his companie, being twenty in all, came up unto them; and after many signes of gratulations (Captaine Goinold presenting their Lord with certaine trifles which they wondred at, and highly skee. med) wee became very great friends, and sent for meat abourd our Shalop, and game them such meater as wee bad then ready dreffed, whereof they misliked nothing but our Mustard, whereat they made many a Cours face. While wee were thus merrie, one of them had conneighed a Target of ours into one of their Canous, which wee suffered, onely to true whether they were in subjection to this Lord, to whom we made lienes (by bewing him another of the same likenesse, and pointing to the Canoa) what one of his com- to name had done: who suddenly expressed some feare, and speaking angerly to one about him (as wee perceined by his countenance) cansed it presently to be brought backe againe. So the rest of the day wee thent in trading with them for Furres, which are Beaners, Luzernes, Marterns, Otters, Wilde-cat skinnes, very large and deepe Furre, blacke Foxes, Conie skinnes, of the colour of our Hares, but somewhat leste. Deere skinnes very large, Seale skinnes, and other beafts skinnes to us unknowne.

They have also great store of Copper, some very red, and some of a paler colour; none of them but have Chaines, Eare-rings, or Collars of this metall: they head some of their Arrowes berewith much like our broad Arrow heads, very workmanly made. Their Chaines are many hollow pieces semented together, each piece of the bigneffe of one of our reeds, a finger in length, ten or twelve of them toos.

Bandelieres a bandfull broad, all bollow pieces, like the other, but somewhat shorter, foure hundred vieces

Sculls, and other thinne plates of Copper, made much like our Boare-speare blades, all which they so little elterme, as they offered their fairest Collars and Chaines for a Knife, or fuch like trifte, but wee seemed little tores and it; net I was desirous to understand where they had such store of this mettall, and made lianes to one of them (with whom I was very familiar) who taking a piece of copper in his hand, made a hole with bis finger in the ground, and withall pointed to the Maine from whence they came. They fire fire in this manner; enery one carrieth about him in a Purse of tend Leather, a Minerall stone (which I take to be their Copper) and with a flat Emerie stone (wherewith Glasiers cut glasse, and Cutlers glass blades)

two, a parke fallet b upon a piece of Touch-wood (much like our Spunge in England) and with the least parke he maketh a fire presently. Wee had also of their Flaxe, wherewith they make many strings and cords, but it is not fo bright of colour as ours in England : I amperfraded they base store growing op-

on the Maine, at also Mines, and many other rich commodities, which we, wanting both time and meanes

our llund two or three miles from our Fort : but the fourth day they returned to the Maine, pointing

they would come from the Maine to us againe: but being in their Canoas a little from the shoare, they made buge cries and shouts of soy unto us, and wee with our Trumpet and Cornet, and casting up our 40

caps into the aire, made them the best farewell wee could: yet fixe or fenen of them remayned with us behinde, bearing us companie enery day in the Woods, and belped us to cut and carrie our Sassafras, and

These people as they are exceeding curteous, gentle of disposition, and well conditioned, excelling all others that we have seene; so for shape of body and louely famour, I thinke they excell all the people of America; of flature much higher than wee; of complexion or colour, much like a darke Oline; their eye-browes and baire blacke, which they weare long, tyed up behinde in knots, whereon they pricke feathers of fowles, in faltion of a Crownet: Some of them are blacke thinne bearded; they make beards of the haire of beafts: and one of them offered a beard of their making to one of our Saylers, for his that and close about their neckes. They pronounce our Language with great facilitie; for one of them one

Thus they continued with vs three dayes, enery night retiring themselves to the furthermost part of tied fait to the end of alittle flicke, gently bee friketh upon the Minerall flone, and within a froke or 30

ther on a String, which they weare about their neckes; their Collars they weare about their bodies like 20

Red Copper in abundance. Chaines.

Scuerall fores

Furres.

Collars. Drinking cups in a Collar, very fine and enenly set together. Besides these, they have large drinking Cups made like of Copper.

Mines of Flaxe.

could not possibly disconer.

Come of them lay abourd our (hip.

fine or fixe times to the Sunne, and once to she Maine, which we under flood, that within fine or fixe dayes > grew on bis face, which because it was of a red colour, they indged to be none of his owne. They are quicke 50 eyed, and stedfast in their lookes, fearelesse of others barmes, as intending none themselves; some of the Their apparell. meaner fort given to filching, which the very name of Sauages (not weighing their ignorance in good or enill) may easily excuse: their garments are of Deere skinnes, and some of them we are Furres round day jitting by mee, upon occasion I fake smiling to him these words: How now, firrha, are you so fawcy with my Tobacco : which words (without any further resettion) be suddenly pake fo plame and distinctly, as if hee had beene a long Scholer in the Language. Many other such trials wee had, Their women. which are here needlesse to repeat. Their women (such as wee sam) which were but three in all, were but lowe of stature, their eye-browes, haire, apparell, and manner of wearing, like to the men, fat, and very well-fanoured, and much delighted in our companie; the men are very dutifull to-60 wards them. And truly, the wholfemnesse and temperature of this Climate, doth not onely argue this people to be answerable to this description, but also of a perfect constitution of body, active strong, health-The goodnesse full, and very wisty, as the fundry toyes of theirs cunningly wrought, may easily witnesse.

Indians apt for fervice. Saffafras. A goodly people, and of good condi-

of the Climate For the agreeing of thu Climate with vs (I freake of my selfe, and fo I may infly doe for the rest of our companie) that we found our health and strength all the while we remayned there, so to renew and encrease, as notwethstanding our diet and lodging was mone of the best, yet not one of our companie (Ged be thanked) felt the least grudging or inclination to any disease or sicknesse, but were much fatter, and in better bealth than when we went out of England : but after dur Barke had taken in fo much Saffafras, Cedar, Furres, Skinnes, and other commodities, at were thought connenient; some of our companie that had promifed Captaine Gosnold to stay , having nothing but a saving voyage in their mindes. made our companie of Inhabitants (which was small enough before) much smaller ; so as Captaine Golnolu feeing his whole strength to confist but of twelve men, and they but meanly provided , determined to returne for England, leaving this Iland (which be called Elizabeths Iland) with Their returne, to as many true for rowfull eyes, as were before defirous to fee it. So the eighteenth of lune, being Fridar, we weighed, and with indifferent faire winde and weather came to anchor the three and twentieth of luly, being alfo Friday (in all, bare fine weekes) before Exmouth.

Your Lordships to command. IOHN BRERETON.

A briefe Note of fuch commodities as we faw in the Countrie, notwithstanding our small time of stay.

Rees. Saffafras trees, the roots whereof at three shillings the pound are three hundred thirty 10 I fixe pound the tunne. Cedars tall and ftraight, in great abundance : Cypres trees, Oakes, Wal-nut trees great ftore, Elmes, Beech, Hollie, Halle-nut trees, Cherrie trees, Cotton trees, and other fruit-trees to vs vnknowne. The finder of our Sassafras in these parts, was one Master Robert Meriton.

Fonles, Eagles, Hernshawes, Cranes, Bitters, Mallards, Teales, Geese, Pengwins, Ospreis and Hawkes, Crowes, Rauens, Mewes, Doues, Sea-pies, Black-birds with carnation wings. Beefts. Deere in great flore, very great and large; Beares, Luzernes, blacke Foxes, Beauers, Otters, Wilde-cats very large and great, Dogs like Foxes, blacke and sharpe noted; Conies.

Fruits, Plants, and Herbes. Tabacco, excellent tweet and ftrong; Vines more plenty than in France, Ground-nuts, good meate and also medicinable; Strawberries, Ralp-berries, Goofeberries, Hurtleberries, Peafe growing naturally, Flaxe, Iris Florentina, whereof Apothecaries make (weet balls : Sorrell, and many other herbes wherewith they made Sallets.

Fibes. Whales, Tortoiles, both on Land and Sea; Seales Cods, Macketell, Breames, Herrings, Thornbacke, Hakes, Rock-fish, Dog-fish, Lobsters, Crabbes, Mussels, Wilkes, Cockles, Scallons, Oviters.

Snakes foure foot in length, and fixe Inches about, which the Indians cate for dainty meate, the skinnes whereof they vie for girdles.

Colours to die with, red, white, and blacke.

courfe may come to light.

Messals, and Stones. Copper in great abundance, Emerie stones, for Glasiers and Cutlers, Alabafter very white, Stones elittering and thining like Minerall itones; Stones of a blue met-40 talline colour, which we take to bee Steele oare; Stones of all forts for buildings; Clay, red and white, which may proue good Terra Sigillata.

A briefe Note of the fending another Barque this present weere 1602. by Sir WALTER RALEIGH, for the fearching out of his Colonie in Virginia.

C Annuel Mace of Weimouth, a very fufficient Mariner, an honest sober man, who had beene at Ourginia twice before, was employed thither by Sir Walter Raleigh, to finde those people which were left there in the yeere 1587. To whole fuccour he hath fent fine fenerall times at his owne charges. The parties by him let forth, performed nothing; some of them following their owne profit elsewhere; others returning with friuolous allegations. At this last time, to anoide all excuse, hee bought a Barke, and bired all the companie for wages by the moneth : who departing from Weimouth in March last, 1602. fell fortie leagues to the South-westward of Hataraske, in 34. degrees or thereabout; and having there spent a moneth; when they came song the coast to lecke the people, they did it not, pretending that the extremitie of weather, and losse of some principall ground-tackle, forced and seared them from searching the Port of Hataraske, to which they were fent. From that place where they abode, they brought Saffa-60 fras, Radix Chine, or the China Root, Beniamin, Caffia lignes and a rind of a tree more itrong than any Spice as yet vnknowne, with divers other commodities, which hereafter in a larger dif-

CHAF.

CHAP. XII.

A Voyage fet out from the Citie of Bristoll at the charge of the chiefest Merchants and inhabitants of the faid Citie with a small Ship and a Barke for the discourie of the North part of Virginia, in the yeere 1603. under the command of me MARTIN PRINGE.

Pon many probable and reasonable inducements, vsed vnto sundry of the chiefest 1a Merchants of Briftoll, by Malter Richard Habluyt Prebendary of Saine Anonfines the Cathedrall Church of the faid Citie, after divers meetings and due confultation they resolved to set forth a Voyage for the farther Discouerie of the North part of Onguina. And first they fent the said Master Haklust accompanied with one Matter John Angell, and Matter Robert Salters (which had beene in the faid Discouerie the yeere before with Captaine Bartholomew Gosnold) to obtaine permission on of Six Walter Raleigh (which had a most ample Patent of all those parts from Queene Elizabeth) to entermeddle and deale in that action. Leave being obtained of him vnder his hand and now a Mieffer Seale, they speedily prepared a small ship called the Speed-well in burthen about fiftie tunnes, and bath both manning the same with some thirtie men and Boyes, wherein went for Master and chiefe Com- 26 mander in the Voyage one Martin Pring, a man very sufficient for his place, and Famund longs his writing to mee teffified his af- Mate, and Robert Salterne about mentioned, as their chiefe Agent, with a Barke called the Diffedion to Vir. couerer, of fix and twentie tunnes or thereabout, wherein went for Mafter William Browne, and Samuel Kirkland his Mate, both good and skilfull Mariners, being thirteene men anda Boy in ginia. M.Priag whole all in that Barke. The aforelaid ship and Barke were plentifully victualled for eight monethes, Voyage to the East Indies are and turnished with slight Merchandizes thought fit to trade with the people of the Country, as Hars of divers colours, greene, blue and yellow, apparell of coarie Kersie and Canualle readie made, Stockings and Shooes, Sawes, Pick-axes, Spades and Shouels, Axes, Hatchets, Hookes, Kniues, Sizzers, Hammers, Nailes, Chiffels, Fish-hookes, Bels, Beades, Bugles, Looking-glasses, Thimbles, Pinnes, Needles, Threed, and such like. They set faile from Kingrode the twentieth 30 day of March. April 10, 1603.

M. Salterne vet

liueth neither

ie hiezeale

dead to this

Tome.

We set faile from Milford Hauen (where the winds had flayed vs a fortnight, in which space we heard of Queene Elizabeths death) the tenth of Aprill 1603. In our course we passed by the Iles of the Agores, had first fight of the Pike, and afterward of the Hand of Cherno and Flores, and after we had runne some fine hundred leagues, we fell with a multitude of small slands on the of lune, which Ilands wee North Coait of Virginia, in the latitude of 43 . degrees, the They discouer found very pleasant to behold, adorned with goodly graffe and fundry forts of Trees, as Cedars, Spruce, Pines, and Firre-trees. Heere wee found an excellent fishing for Cods, which are better many linds. then thole of New-fsund-land, and withall we faw good and Rockie ground fit to drie them vp-Good fifting on : also we fee no reason to the contrary, but that Salt may bee made in these parts, a matter of 40 no small importance. We sayled to the South-west end of these Ilands, and there rode with our ships under one of the greatest. One of them we named Foxe Iland, because we found those kind of beafts thereon. So palling through the rest with our Boates to the mayne Land, which lieth for a good space North-east and South-west, we found very tafe riding among them, in fixe, seuen, eight , ten and twelue fathomes. At length comming to the Mayne in the latitule of 43. degrees and an halfe, we ranged the same to the South-west. In which course we found foure Inlets, the most Easterly whereof was barred at the mouth , but having passed over the barre, wee ranne vp into it fine miles, and for a certaine space found very good depth, and comming out againe, as we failed South-westward, wee lighted vpon two other Inlets, which vpon our search we found to pierce no: farre into the Land, the fourth and most Westerly was the best, which 50 we rowed up ten or twelue miles.

place.

In all their places we found no people, but fignes of fires where they had beene. Howbeit we beheld very goodly Groues and Woods replenished with tall Okes, Beeches, Pine-trees, Firre-trees, Haiels, Wich-haiels and Maples. We faw here also fundry forts of Beafts, as Stags, Deere, Beares, Wolues, Foxes, Lusernes, and Dogges with sharpe noses. But meeting with no Saliairas, we left these places with all the foresaid Hands, shaping our course for Sanage Rocke, discouered the yeere before by Captaine Gofnold, where going vpon the Mayne we found people, with whom we had no long convertation, because here also we could find no Sallafras. Departing hence we hare into that great Gulfe which Captaine Gofnold ouer-flot the yeere before coasting and finding people on the North fide thereof. Not yet fatisfied in our expectation, we left them 60 and failed ouer, and came to an Anchor on the South fide in the latitude of 41. degrees and odde minutes: where we went on Land in a certaine Bay, which we called Whisfon Bay, by the name of the Worshipfull Master lobn Whitfon then Maior of the Citie of Briffoll, and one of the chiefe

Aduenturers, and finding a pleasant Hill thereunto adiovning, wee called it Mount Alaworth, Sautge Rocke.

for Master Robert Aldworths sake a chiefe furtherer of the Voyage, aswell with his Purie as with his trauell. Here we had sufficient quantitie of Sassafras.

At our going on shore, vpon view of the people and fight of the place, wee thought it conuenient to make a small baricado to keepe diligent watch and ward in, for the adurrizement and fiscour of our men, while they should worke in the Woods. During our abode on shore, the The people people of the Countrey came to our men sometimes ten, twentie, fortie or threescore, and at one vifit them, rime one hundred and twentie at once. We vied them kindly, and gaue them divers forts of our meanest Merchandize. They did eat Pease and Beanes with our men. Their owne victuals were most of fish.

mout of amile to We had a youth in our company that could play vpon a Gitterne, in whose homely Musicke The Samees they tooke great delight, and would give him many things, as Tobacco, Tobacco-pipes, Snakes take great deskinnes of fixe foot long, which they vie for Girdles, Fawnes skinnes, and fuch like, and dan- light in muf ke ced twentie in a Ring, and the Gitterne in the middest of them, ving many Sauge gestures, finging Io, Ia, Ia, Ia, Ia; him that first brake the ring, the rest would knocke and cry out vpon. Dances. Some few of them had plates of Braffe a foot long, and halfe a foote broad before their breafts. Their weapons are Bowes of fine or fixe foot long of Wich-hafell, painted blacke and yellow, Weapons the ftrings of three twifts of finewes, bigger then our Bow-ftrings. Their Arrowes are of a yard and an handfull long not made of Reeds, but of a fine light wood very fmooth and round with three long and deepe blacke feathers of some Eagle, Vulture, or Kite, as closely fastened with 20 some binding matter, as any Fletcher of ours can glue them on. Their Quiuers are full a vard long, made of long dried Rushes wrought about two handfuls broad aboue, and one handfull beneath with prettie workes and compartiments, Diamant wife of red and other colours.

We carried with vs from Brissoll two excellent Mastines, of whom the Indians were more a. The great rie fraid, then of twentie of our men. One of these Mastines would carrie a halfe Pike in his mouth. And one Master Thomas Bridges a Gentleman of our company accompanied only with one of these Dogs, and passed fixe miles alone in the Countrey having lost his fellowes, and returned fafely. And when we would be rid of the Sauages company wee would let loose the Mastines, and faddenly with out-cryes they would flee away. These people in colour are inclined to a fwart, tawnie, or Chestnut colour, not by nature but accidentally, and doe weare their haire brayded in foure parts, and truffed vp about their heads with a small knot behind : in which haire of theirs they flicke many feathers and toyes for brauerie and pleasure. They couer their Ornaments, prinities only with a piece of leather drawne betwixt their twifts and fastened to their Girdles behind and before : whereunto they hang their bags of Tobacco. They feeme to bee somewhat italous of their women, for we faw not past two of them, who weare Aprons of Leather skins before them downe to the knees, and a Beares skinne like an Irih Mantle ouer one shoulder. The men are of stature somewhat taller then our ordinary people, strong, swift, well proportioned, and given to treacherie, as in the end we perceived.

Their Boats, whereof we brought one to Bristoll, were in proportion like a Wherrie of the River Thefathion of of Thames, seuenteene footlong and soure foot broad, made of the Barke of a Birch-tree, farre their Boats, 40 exceeding in bigneffe those of England: it was sowed together with strong and tough Oziers or twigs, and the fearnes couered ouer with Rozen or Turpentine little inferiour in fweetneffe to Excellentfweet

Frankincense, as we made triall by burning a little thereof on the coales at fundry times after Rozen and our comming home: it was also open like a Wherne, and sharpe at both ends, saving that the beake was a lirtle bending roundly vpward. And though it carried nine men standing vpright, yet it weighed not at the most aboue fixtie pounds in weight, a thing almost incredible in regard of the largenesse and capacitie thereof. Their Oares were flat at the end like an Ouen peele, made of Ash or Maple very light and strong, about two yards long, wherewith they row very swiftly : Passing vp a River we law certaine Cottages together, abandoned by the Sauages, and not farre off we beheld their Gardens and one among the rest of an Acre of ground , and in Their Gardens the same was sowne Tobacco, Pompions, Cowcumbers and such like; and some of the people Corne and had Maiz or Indian Wheate among them. In the fields we found wild Peafe, Strawberries very plants. faire and bigge, Goole-berries, Raipices, Hurts, and other wild fruits.

Hauing spent three Weekes upon the Coast before we came to this place where we meant to flay & take in our lading, according to our instructions given vs in charge before our setting forth, we pared and digged up the Earth with shouels, and sowed Wheate, Barley, Oates, Pease, and fundry forts of Garden Seeds, which for the time of our abode there, being about feuen Weeks, although they were late fowne, came vp very well, giving certaine testimonie of the goodnesse of the Climate and of the Soyle. And it feemeth that Oade, Hempe, Flaxe, Rape-feed and fuch like which require a rich and fat ground, would prosper excellently in these parts. For in divers places here we found graffe about knee deepe. As for Trees the Country yeeldeth Saffafras a plant of fourreigne vertue for the French Poxe, and as some of late have learnedly written good against the Plague and many other Maladies; Vines, Cedars, Okes, Ashes, Beeches, Birch trees, Cherie trees bearing fruit whereof wee did eate, Hafels, Wich-hafels, the best wood of all other to make Sope-ashes withall, Walnut-trees,

Maples,

Maples, holy to make Bird-lime with, and a kinde of tree bearing a fruit like a small red Peareplum with a crowne or knop on the top (a plant whereof carefully wrapped vp in earth, Mailer Robert Salterne brought to Briftoll.) We found also low trees bearing faire Cheries. There were likewise a white kind of Plums which were not growne to their perfect ripenesse. With diuers other forts of trees to vs vnknowne.

The Beafts bereare Stags, fallow Deere in abundance, Beares, Wolues, Foxes, Lufernes, and (iome fay) Tygres, Porcupines, and Dogges with sharpe and long nofes, with many other forts of wild beafts, whole Cales and Furres being hereafter purchased by exchange may yeeld no smal gaine to vs. Since as we are certainly informed, the Frenchmen brought from Canada the value of thirtie thouland Crownes in the yeere 1 604. almost in Beuers and Otters skinnes only. The 12 most vivall Fowles are Eagles, Vultures, Hawkes, Cranes, Herons, Crowes, Gulls, and great store of other River and Sea-fowles. And as the Land is full of Gods good bleffings, fo is the Seareplenified with great abundance of excellent fifh, as Cods sufficient to lade many ships, which we found vpon the Coast in the moneth of Iune, Seales to make Oile withall, Mullets, Turbuts, Mackerels, Herrings, Crabs, Lobsters, Creuises, and Muscles with ragged Pearles in them. By the end of July we had laded our small Barke called the Discouerer, with as much Sastafras as we thought sufficient, and sent her home into England before, to give some speedie conten; ment to the Aduenturers : who arrived lafely in Kingrode aboue a fortnight before vs. After their departure we fo bestirred our selues, that our shope also had gotten in her lading, during which time there fell out this accident. On a day about noone tide while our men which vied 20 to cut downe Sallafras in the Woods were alleepe, as they vied to doe for two houres in the heat Danger of the of the day, there came downe about feuentcore Sauages armed with their Bowes and Arrowes, and enuironed our House or Barricado, wherein were toure of our men alone with their Muskets to keepe Centinell, whom they fought to have come downe vnto them, which they vtterly refuied, and stood voon their guard. Our Master likewise being very carefull and circumspect having not past two with him in the shippe put the same in the best defence he could , left they should have invaded the same, and caused a piece of great Ordnance to bee shot off, to give terrour to the Indians, and warning to our men which were fast asleepe in the Woods: at the noyfe of which Peece they were a little awaked, and beganne a little to call for Foole and Gallent, their great and fearefull Mastines, and full quietly laid themselues downe againe, but beeing 30 quickned vp eftsoones againe with a second shot they rowsed vp themselues, betooke them to their weapons and with their Mastines, great Foole with an halfe Pike in his mouth drew downe to their ship : whom when the Indians beheld afarre off, with the Mastine which they most feared, in diffembling manner they turned all to a ieft and sport, and departed away in friendly manner : yet not long after, euen the day before our departure, they fet fire on the Woods where wee wrought, which wee did behold to burne for a mile space, and the very same day that wee weighed Anchor, they came downe to the shoare in greater number, to wit, very neere two hundred by our estimation, and some of them came in their Boates to our ship, and would have had vs come in againe : but we fent them backe, and would none of their entertainment.

Barke fent

About the eighth or minth of August, wee left this excellent Hauen at the entrance whereof 40 we found twentie fatkomes water, and rode at our ease in seuen fathomes being Land-locked, the Hauen winding in compasse like the shell of a Snaile, and it is in latitude of one and forty degrees and five and twentie minutes. This by the way is not to be forgotten, that our Captaine fell fo much to the Northward because he would find high grounds, where commonly the best Hauens are: which also fell out to his expectation. We also observed that we could find no Sassatias but in landie ground, In our returne we brought our selves into the latitude of eight and thirtie degrees about the Acres for certaine causes, and within five weekes space came from our Port of Virginia, into the Soundings of England, but there being long encountred with Easterly winds, we came at length into Kongrade, the fecond of October 1603. The Difcouerer was out fine moneths and an halfe. The 30 Speedwell was out fixe moneths upon the Voyage.

A Relation of the Voyage made to Virginia, in the Elizabeth of London, a Barke of fiftie tunnes by Captaine BARTHOLOMEW GILBERT, in the yeere 1603. Written by Master THOMAG CANNER a Gentleman of Bernards Inne his companion in the same Voyage.

VPon Wednelday in Easter weeke, the seuenteenth of Aprill after, I had taken my leave of fome few of my louing and deere friends in Bernards Inne, I rode toward Southampton, there to bespeake Bisket and some ocher promition for our Barke, wherein Master Bartholomes Gilbert went as Captaine, which had beene in Virginia the yeere before with Captaine Baribalomen Gofnold. After our bufineffe was dispatched here, wee carae into Plimmonth, from whence wee out forth the tenth of May. And the fix and twentieth of the same, we were in the latitude of 22. degrees, hoping to haue had fight of the Ile of Madera, whereof we miffed, in which course we met with two or three English men of watre.

The first of Iune, we were in the latitude of 27. degrees, and haled ouer toward the llands. of the Welt Indies, and the fifteenth of this moneth toward night wee faw Land. Mafter Gilbert and the Master Henrie Suite dwelling within the Iron Gate of the Towre of London, tooke it to be the Bermudas: being very neere the shore they founded many times and had no ground, at the last they found good ground in fourteene or fifteene fathomes. There weecast Anchor. In to the morning we weighed, and founded still as we trended by the shoare : but after wee were past a Cables length from our Road, we had no Land againe in forty or fifty fathomes : we kept full by the shore not yet being certaine what Iland it was. The sixteenth in the morning, wee spied the people comming from the shore, who when they came neere, cried out for barter or trade: when they came close aboord, they made fignes and cried out to fee our colours, which we prefantly put forth in the maine top, and told them we were Ingleses, Amigos, and Hermanos, that is, Englishmen, their friends and brothers. Afloone as they understood we were Englishmen, they were bolder to come neere: we threw them a Rope, and one came aboord vs: wee traded with them for some Tobacco, Pine-apples, Piantanes, Pompions and such things as they had : wee gave them Bugles, Kniues, Whittles, and fuch toyes. Here we kept close by the shore. When this 30 Canoa had traded with vs, and vttered all they had and drunke of our Beere, beeing kindly vied they departed: and then prefently after divers Canoas came, we traded and vied them as the first. They trade as One of them told vs that Iland was Santa Lucia, We bestowed all that forenoone shaking in the Santa Lucia. wind (for we had no ground to Anchor) neere the shore to trade with them. Then wee set our course for Saint Vincent, but finding a current against vs and the wind very scant, we doubted we should not fetch it, and that if we did, peraduenture we might bee put to the leeward of Dominica, and to consequently of Menis or Nienes; for which Iland we were specially bound for to cut Lienum vita, in the fame. Therefore Mafter Gilbert thought good to let Saint Vincent alone, although in it is the best Tobacco of all the llands, yet in the end hee put roomer for Dominica. whereof we had fight the fenenteenth of June, and came close to the shore; and presently one

30 Canoa came aboord, as at Santa Lucia, being fent with two men belike to discouer vs, and to see what entertainment they should have, we vied them kingly and so dismissed them. There came more full of men, with divers of their commodities. The nineteenth in the morning being Sunday, we anchored in a good Road at Menis, and af Menis. ter went on shore to feeke Lignum vitz, Master Gibert, with the Master and divers of the company fought farre into the Woods, but found none but one little Tree, and here and there where one had bin cut : fo we were in doubt to find enough heere to load our ship, a just plague vnto vs for prophaning the Sabbath in trauelling about our worldly bufineffe, when there was no neceffitie. This day in the Euening some went out with the Boate vnto the shore, and brought on boord a Tortoyle fo big that foure men could not get her into the Boate but tied her fast by one Great Tor-Dege water the Boat, and fo towed her to the ship, when they had her by the ship, it was no easie toyle.

matter to get her on boord.

young one.

The next day we went on shore agains to fearch another part of the wood for Lignum vita: Lignum vita. and then God be thanked we found enough. This day at night we opened our Tortoyle, which had in her about 500. Egges, excellent (weet meate, and so is all the whole fish. Vpon Tuefday in the morning we went all on thore fauing the Carpenter and Thomas , and Matter Gilberts man to fell wood, and this day we felled good fore. All the reft of this moneth and three dayes more we continued here every day labouring fore, first in fawing downe the great trees, and fawing them againe into logs, portable out of the thicke wood to the Sea-shoare, so in the Boates, and so to the flup : where M. Gilbert his paines profited double as well in example as in worke, for hee 59 was neuer idle, but either fearthing out more trees, or fetching drinke for the Labourers, or doing one thing or other : fo that in this just fortnight that wee stayed here, wee had gotten on boord some twenty tuns. Within a few dayes after the Tortoyle was eaten God fent vs another. One of these fishes were sufficient meat for twentie men for three or foure dayes if it could bee preserued, but in that Climate no falting can preferue it about two dayes, hardly to long. Now the wood growing thinne, and hardly to be found on this Iland, he thought it best to stay no longer here, but to goe for Virginia, to learch for better ftore. And fo voon Sunday the third of July in the afternoone we weighed Anchor, and failed North-west and by North, and that night passed by Saint Christopher, and another little Hand. Manday the fourth in the morning we had light of S. Christopher. the Hand, we went into the Woods to fearch for Lignum vite, but found none but one tree, which he cut and went on boord, we fought also for fresh water, but found none : At Euening went on Abundance of shore into the bottome of the Bay to dray the Net; and there we gat good store of fine iresh fish, Tortoyics. and much more, enough to have laden our Boat we should have gotten, if at every draught we had not had in the Net a Tortoyle, which fill brak through and so carried away the fifth with mem. At one draught among the reft we had two in the Net, a yong one and an old on : the Net held the CHAP. 12. Store of Munition. Dangerous Rockes, Miraculous deliuerance.

1650

They diffem-

Wee weighed and went through betweene the two Ilands into the mayne Ocean, toward our long deired Countrey Unginia, distant three hundred and fiftie leagues from vs. Wee favled North North-weit.

The feuenth, we ran ftill North-west and North and by West. The eight, weekept the same course. The ninth, we kept flill the same course. The winde beganne to vere some thing to the Southward, which had beene constant still, from the Ilands of the Canaries, vnto the Ilands of The Westerne the West Indies. And now began the winde to draw towards the West, and then is it as conwinds begin. frant there. The reason I deferre to longer consideration. The current setteth out of the Gulfe of Mexico, and from the mayne shore. Sunday the tenth, we kept still the same course, and had now but a small gale almost becalmed. In The eleuenth, we continued the same course with the same small gale we went North. Tuesdaw the twelfth we kept the same course, if any at all, for, for the most part we were becalmed.

Poore lohn.

Wednesday the thirteenth, the calme continued, the Sunne being extremely hot in the calme. Thursday the fourteenth, the calme continued as hot as before. These dayes we ayred our Newland, fish called Poore lobn. which proued ill done. For after it was ayred, it rotted the sooner being burnt in the fame. On Friday the fifteenth, God fent vs a reasonable gale. The fixteenth and feventeenth, the calme came againe. Munday, we had a good gale, and went North and by West, and North North-west. The nineteenth, twentieth, and one and twentieth, we had an excellent gale, and ranne North North-west. Then we cast out the Lead and looked our for land. but found no ground nor faw no land, and therefore we much doubted that the current had fet vs 20 very farre to the leeward of the place which wee were bound for, being the Chefepian Bav: but Ground in 30. that could not be knowne till it pleated God to bring vs to land. In the afternoone about fixe of the clocke we cast out the Lead againe, and had ground in thirtie fathomes, whereof we were glad and thanked God, knowing we could not be farre from land.

Saturday the three and twentieth in the morning, about eight of the clocke wee law land in the height of 40. degrees and odde minutes, very fine low land, appearing farre off to bee full of tall Trees, and a fine landie shoare, but a great siege : we saw no Harbour, and therefore coasted along to feeke one to the Northward, the wind being at West.

Sunday the foure and twentieth, the wind being about the North-east we beat hard to fetch An Headland, an Head-land, where we thought we faw an Harbour : but when we came up with it, weeper- 10 ceiued it was none, and all our labour loft. And therefore the wind beeing now more full in our teeth at the North-east, wee considered it were better to put roome, so that if the winde should ftand, then we should fetch the Bay of Chefepian, which Master Gibert so much thirsted after, to feeke out the people for Sir Walter Raleigh lett neere those parts in the yeere 1587, if not, perhaps we might find some Road or Harbour in the way to take in some fresh water : for now wee On Munday the fine and twentieth of July at night wee came neere the mouth of the Bay!

the Chefein but the wind blew jo fore, and the Sea was fo high, that the Master durst not put in that night into the Sea : and so continued next day.

On Wednesday the seuen and twentieth, at night the winde came faire againe, and wee bare 40 againe for it all night, and the wind prefently turned againe. Thursday the eight and twentieth, considering our extremitie for water and wood, victuals and beere likewese consuming very fast, They departed we could no longer beate for it, and therefore ran roomer, determining for this time to feeke it the Indiant.

Eagward from the mouth of the Chefepioc grance of a Ri-

Captaine Gil-

Friday the nine and twentieth, being not farre from the shoare, which appeared vnto vsexceeding pleasant and full of goodly Trees, and with some shew of the entrance of a River, our Captaine Bartholomew Gilbert accompanied with Malter Thomas Canner a Gentleman of Bernards Inne, Richard Hartfon the Mafters Mate, Henry Kenton our Chirurgion , and one Derricke a Dutchman, went on shore in the Boate from the ship which lay aboue a mile from the land, and with their weapons marched up into the Countrey, leaving two youths to keepe the Boate : but 50 shortly after the Indians set wpon them, and one or two of them fell downe wounded in fight of our yong men that kept the Boat, which had much a doe to faue themselves and it. For tome of the Indians roming downe to them, would have haled it on thore, which notwithstanding they faued, and with heavie hearts gat vnto the ship with the losse of their Captain and foure of their principall men. Thus being but eleuen men and Boyes in all in the ship, though our want of water and wood were great, yet wee durst not aduenture the losse of any more of our small company in this place; Therefore our Master Henry Suie tooke his course home for England by the Ies of the Acores, and fell first with the Pike, and afterward entring into our Chanell, had first fight of Portland, and thence came up the River of Thames unto Rateliffe, about the end of September 1603. finding the Citie most grieuously infeded with a terrible plague.

CHAP. XIII.

Extracts of a Virginian Voyage made An. 1605. by Captaine GEORGE WAYMOVTH, in the Arch-angell. Set forth by the Right Honorable HENRY Earle of South-hampton, and the Lord TMOMAS ARVNDEL, written by TAMES ROSIER.

Pon Easter day, the last of March, the winde comming at North North-east: 2- March. bou: fiue of the clocke after noone, we weighed anchor and put to Sea from the Eafter day wee Downes, [in the Name of God] being very well included, and furnished with put o Sea. Munition and all necessaries whole companie being nine and twenty persons, of whom I dare boldly say, few Voyages have beene manned forth with heart Sea. better Sea-men generally, in respect of our small number.

Munday the thirteenth of May, about eleven of the clocke in the fore-noone, our Captaine judging we were not farrefrom Land, founded; and we had loft oze in an hendred and fixty fa- Sounding wee thome: at foure of the clocke after noone wee founded againe, and had the like oze in an hun-found ground, dred fa: home.

From ten a clocke that night till three a clocke in the morning, our Captain tooke in all Sayles 20 and lay at hull, being defirous to fall with the Land in the day time, because it was an voknown Coast, which it pleased God in his mercy to grant vs, otherwise furely we had runne our Shippe vpon the hidden Rockes, and perished all: for when we set sayle, we sounded in an hundred fathom : and by eight a clocke, having not made aboue five or fixe leagues, our Captaine vpon a fulden change of water, supposing verily he saw the said : prefently sounded, and had but fine May 14. Land fathome : much maruelling because we faw no Land, he sent one to the top, who descried a whitilh fandy Cliffe, which bare West North-west about fixe leagues off: but comming neerer within three or foure leagues, we faw many breaches still neerer the Land. At last we espied a great breach ahead vs right along the shoare, into which, before we entred, our Captaine thought best to hoise out his Ship-boat and sound it : which if hee had not done, wee had there ended our 30 Voyage, together with our lives: for he bare vp the Ship as neere as he could after the Boate, vntill Master (am his Mate being in the Boat, weffed and called to him to winde about and fland off, for in this breach he had very shoald water, two sathome vpon Rockes, and sometime they supposed they saw the Rocke within three or foure foot, whereon the Sea made a very high strong breach, which we might discerne (from the top) to rusine along as wee sayled by it, fixe or feuen leagues to the Southward : and we law no end thereof. Wherefore we were constrained to put backe againe from the Land; and founding (the weather being faire) wee found our felues embayed with continual Shoalds and Rocks, in a most vincertaine ground; as by judge- A dangerous ment of our Captaine and whole companie, they had neuer knowne the like; from fine and fixe place of rocks farhome, at the next cast of the Lead wee should have fifteene and eighteene fathome all hard and shoolds. 4c Rocke ouer many which (by the vnfpeakable goodnesse and mercy of God towards vs) wee pas-

fed. For if we had bare in with it but the day before (which was exceeding tempeftuous) or in the night, we could by no meanes have escaped the danger. But God so blessed vs, that we had weather and winde as faire as poore men could wish, in this diffrese, whereby we both perfectly differned enery breach, and with the winde were able to turne, where wee faw most hope of fatest passage. Thus we parted from the Land, which wee had not so much before defired : and at the first fight rejoyced: as now wee all joyfully praifed God, that it had pleafed fam fo miraculoully to deliver vs from lo imminent danger of death before our eyes. Our Captaine Latitude 41. found himfelfe in the latitude of 41 degrees and an halfe. Here we found great store of filh, and degrees and hw many Whales, as we had done two or three dayes before.

Wee flood off that night and all the next day, being Wedneflay: but the winde fill conti-So ming for many dayes betweene the points of South South-west and West South-west, so as we could not by any possible meanes make any way to the Southward in regard of our great want of water and Wood (which was now Ipent) wee much defired Land, and therefore fought for it, where the winde would bett fuffer vs to re resh our felges.

Thursday the fixteenth day of May, we stood directly in with the Land : and we much martelled that we deferred it not : wherein wee found our Sea Charts very falle laying our Land Sea-charts where none was, for though we bare in directly with it according to them: yet in almost fifty talle. leagues running we found none.

Friday the feuenteenth of May, about fixe a clocke at night, wee deferred Land, which have 60 from vs North North-east: but because it blew a great gale of winde, the Sea very high and neere night, not fit to come vpon an vnknowne co.ft, our Captaine flood off till two of the clocke in the morning being Saturday and Whition Ete: then flanding with it againe, wee de- Land descried. foried it by eight a clocke in morning, bearing North-east from vs. It appeared a meane high made it claud-Land, as we after found it, being but an Iland of no great compasse; but I hope the most fortunate Үууууу 3

Great plenty of fifh.

Voon Wille funday wee came into an

Pentecol Har-

Clay.

Our Pinnace Lanched. Varietie of Wee fished.

The frairs of the Hands.

Trees. Turpentine plentifull, for that euer men discouered, as shall appeare by the sequell. About twelve a clocke that day, wee came to an anchor on the North tide of this Iland in forty fathome water, about a league from shoare. This Iland is woody, growne over with Firre, Birch, and Beech, as farre as we saw along Our Captaine the shoare, and so likely to be within. On the Verge growe Gooseberries, Strawberries, wilde Peale, and wilde Rose bushes. The fresh water issued down the rocky Cliffes in many places : and much towle of fundry kindes breed vpon the shoare and Rockes. While wee were at shoare our men aboord with a few hookes got about thirty great Cod and Haddocke, which gaue was a taffe of the great plenty of fish which we found afterward, wherefoeuer we went vpon the coast.

From hence we might discerne many Hands, and the maine Land, from the West South-west to the East North-east; and North North-east from vsa great way as it then seemed (and as we 10 the Maine and after found it) vp into the Maine, we might discerne very high Mountaines, although the Maine feemed but lowe Land, which gaue vs a hope, that it might pleafe God, to direct vs to the Difcourry of some good, although wee were driven by windes tarrefrom that place, whether both by our direction and delire, we euer intended to thape the course of our Voyage.

The next day being Whitfunday, because we rode too much open to the Sea, and windes, wee wayed anchor about twelue a clocke, and came along to the other Ilands more adioyning to the Maine, and in the Road directly with the Mountaines, about three leagues from the first Hand where we anchored. When we came neere vnto them (founding all along in a good depth)our Captaine manned his Ship-boat, and fent her before with Thomas Cam one of his Mates, whom he knew to be of good experience, to fearch and found about and between the Hands for a place 20 fafe for our ship to ride in. In the meane while we kept aloofe at Sea, having given order to them in the Boat, by a token to weffe in the ship if he found a convenient Harbour, which it pleased God to fend vs, farre beyond our expectation in a most fafe birth, defended from all windes in an excellent depth of water for ships of any burthens in fix, seuen, eight, nine and ten fathome voon a clay oze, very tough, where is good moring, even on the Rocks vpon the Cliffe fide.

We all with great admiration praised God, who had from so apparent danger miraculously delivered vs, and directed vs vpon this day (vpon which he fent the chiefe promifed Director of all goodnesse vnto his Apostles and Disciples)into such a place, wherof here before we reade none to goodnesse vato his Apolities and Direction, and then which neither our felues could wish, or Nature affoord more secure. In remembrance whereof, our Captaine named it Pentecost Harbour.

Whitfun Munday the twentieth day of May, by three a clocke in the morning, our Captaine caused the Shalop to be carried ashoare: where while some were busied about her, himselfe set others to worke in digging Wels to receive the water, which we found isluing downe out of the Land in many places, and rifing amidft the rocky Cliffes. In digging (amongst other things) we found in some places (and not deepe) clay ground, blue, red and white, to make Bricke or Tile, fit for building. This day our Pinnace was fitted together and lanched, in small time with two or three hookes were fifted fufficiently for our whole companie three dayes, with great Cod, Hadocke, and some Thornbacke. Towards night we drew with a small Same of 20, fathom just by the hoare, where we got about 30. very good Lobiters, many Rockfish, some Plaise, and other Small fishes very good; and fishes called Lumpes, very pleasant to taste. And this wee generally 40 observed, that all the fish of what kind soever we tooke, were well fed, fat, and in tast very sweet.

Wednesday the two and twentieth of May, our Captaine went ashoare with our men, where wee felled and cut wood for our thips vie, cleanfed and fooured our Wells. Wee likewite digged a small plot of ground, wherein among some Garden seeds (which most the birds destroyed) we fet Peale and Barley, which in fixteene dayes grew eight inches, and fo continued every day growing more than halfe an inch: although this was but the crust of the ground, and farre inferiour to the mould we after found in the Maine.

All the next day we labored hard to make vp our wood, because our Captaine intended not to fore, or spend any more time in that of our Voyage. This day our Boat fished againe as before, because wee still were much retreshed with the fresh fish.

Friday the foure and twentieth of May, after we had made an end of cutting wood, and carrying some water aboord our ship. Our Captaine with sourteene shet and Pike marched about, and thorow part of two of the Ilands, one of which we gheifed to be foure or fine miles in compasse, and a mile broad.

Along the shoare, and some space within where the wood hindereth not, growe plentifully, Rashberries, Gooseberries, Strawberries, Corane trees, Rose bushes, wilde Vines, Angelica a loueraine herbe, many other fruits wee knew not. All within the Hands, growe wood of fundry forts, some very great, and generally all tall : Beech, Birch, Ash, Maple, Spruce, Cherrie tree, Ewe, Oake great and firme, with fo fine graine and colour, as our Captaine, and men of best experience, had neuer seene the like. But the First trees great and small are most abundant, which 65 I name last, as not the least of excellent profit : for from it issueth Turpentine in maruellous plenty, and so sweet as our Chirurgeon and others affirmed they neuer faw so good in England. Wee pulled off much Gumme congealed on the outfide of the Barke which gave an odour like Frankincense. This would be a very great benefit for making Tarre and Pitch.

We staied the longer in this place, not onely because of our good Harbour (which is an excellent comfort) but alio because euery day we found the Hand, more and more to discouer vnto vs his pleasant fruitfulnesse, inlomuch, as many of our company wished themselves settled here.

Alfo our men found abundance of great Mussels among the Rockes; and in some of them ma. Pearle. ny small Pearles. In one Mussell (which we drew vp in our Same) was found sourceene Pearles. ny man valer of one was of pretty bigneffe and orient, in another aboue fifty small Pearles; and if one had had a Dragge, no doubt we had found some of great value, seeing their did certainely shew that here they were bred: the shels within all glistering with mother of Pearle.

Thursday the thirtieth of May, the Captaine with thirteene departed in the Shallop, leauing

10 the Ship in a good harbour.

Divers Canoas of Sauages came to vs. The thape of their body is very proportionable, and Their thane of well countenanced, not very tall, nor bigge, but in flature like to vs; they paint their bodies body. with blacke, their faces some with red, some with blacke, and some with blew. Their closwith olacke, then laces older skins, hanging downe to their knees before and behinde, made thing. falt together vpon the shoulder with a leather string; some of them weare sleeues, some buskins of leather tewed very thin and foft. Some weare the haire of their skins outward, some inward; they have besides a peece of skin, which they binde about their waste, and betweene their legges to couer their prinities. They fuffer no haire to grow vpon their faces, but vpon their head very long and very blacke, which behinde they binde vp with a ftring on a long round knot, fome 20 of them have haire all curled naturally. They feemed all very civill and very merry, thewing tokens of much thankfulneffe for those things we gaue them; which they expresse in their lan- Of good eakens or muon enanktuinene to those stated. We found them then (as after) a people of very pacity and vaguage by these words, sb, bo, often repetated. We found them then (as after) a people of very pacity and vadursanding.

good invention, quicke vnderstanding, and ready capacity. on macricion, quiese vinestranians, and Beech, strengthned within with ribbes and hoopes of Their Canass wood, in fo good falhion and with fuch excellent ingenious art, as our men that had beene often very artificially in the Indies, faid they farre exceeded any that ever they had seene. The chiefe of them told me by fignes, that they would goe fetch Furres and Skins, and pointed to be with vs againe by that time the Sunne should come somewhat beyond the midst of the firmament. About ten a clocke this day we descried our Pinnace returning towards vs. Our Captaine had 30 in this small time discouered wpa great River, trending all almost into the Maine. Vntill his re- Triffes left can turne our Captaine left on shoare where they landed, in a path (which seemed to be frequented) shoare, a Pipe, a Brooch, and a Knife, thereby to know if the Sauzges had recourfe that way, because they could at that time see none of them, onely a Beast a farre of, which they thought to be 2 Deere.

The next day being Saturday, and the first of June, wee traded with the Sauages all the fore. Weemaded none you the Shoate, where were eight and twenty Sauges, and because our Ship rode nigh, with the Sauges were but the or fixe, where for Kniues and other triflet to the value of foure or fine the first when the saugest sau we were but fine or fixe, where for Kniues and other trifles, to the value of foure or fine shillings, we had forty good Skins, Beuers, Otter, and other which we knew not what to call them. Our trade being ended, many of them came aboord vs, and eate by our fire, and would be very merry

49 and bold, in regard of our kinde viage of them. Our Captaine shewed them a strange thing which they wondered; His Sword and mine having beene touched with the Loadstone, tooke They wondered vo their Knife and held it falt when they plucked it away; and made their Knife turne being arther fed of laid on a blocke : and giving their Knife a touch with his Sword, made that take vp a Needle, the Loadstone which they much marueiled at. This we did to cause them to imagine some great power in vs. and for that to love and feare vs.

When we went a Shoare to trade with them in one of their Canoas, I faw their Bowes and Arrowes, which in their fight I tooke vpand drew an Arrow in one of them, which I found Their Bostes to be of a reasonable strength, able to carry an Arrow fine or fix score strongly; and one of them tooke it and brew as we draw our Bowes, not like the Indians. Their Bowe is made of Beech in

50 fashion of our Bowes, but they want nocks, onely a string of leather put through a hole at one end, and made fast with a knot at the other. Their Arrowes are of a much greater fize then our and longer, feathered with three feathers tyed on, and nocked very artificially, headed with a long shanke bone of a Deere, made very sharpe, and some Iron heads, with two sangs in manner of a harping Iron. They haue likewise Darts headed with sharpebone, one of which I darted Darts, among the Stones and it brake not. Thefe they vie very cunningly to kill Fish . Fowle,

They gave vs the best welcome they could, spreading Deere skins for vs to sit on the ground Tobacco exby their fire, and gaue vs of their Tobacco in our Pipes, which was most excellent, and so gene- cellent the Sarally commended of vs all to be as good as any we ever tooke, being the simple Leafe without unger gave vs to any composition, very strong and of a pleasant sweete taste: they gave vs some to carry tocur

Captaine, whom they called our Balhabe, neither did they require any thing for it; but we would receive nothing from them without remuneration. Here we faw their women, who flood behinde them, as defirous to fee vs, but not willing to Wefawihi:

be leene, for before when locuer we came a Shoare, they retired into the woods; whether it Women were it regard of their owne naturall modelty being naked, or by the commanding isloufie of their husbands, which we rather infpected; for it hath beene an inclination noted alwayes generally in Sauages, wherefore we would by no meanes feeme to take any special notice of them.

They were very well fauoured, low of stature, and exceeding fat; they had two little children very far, and of good countenance, which they love tenderly, all naked, except their legges.

which were couered with thin leather buskins, failned with flraps to a Girdle about their waite.

which they gird very streight, and is decked round about with little round peeces of Copper. To there we gaue Chaines, Bracelets, and other trifles, which the Sauages feemed to accept with

At our comming away, we would have had those two that supped with vs to goe aboord and In fleepe, as they had promifed our Captaine; but it appeared their company would not fuffer great kindneffe.

them, whereat we might easily perceive they were much grieved ; but not long after our denarture they came with three more to our Ship, figning to vs, if one of our Company would goe lye a Shoare with them, they would flay with vs. Our Captaine would command none : but Griffin, one of them we were to leave in the Countrey, by their agreement with my Lord the Right Honorable Count Arundell (if it should be thought needefull or convenient) went with them in We brought their Canoa; and three of them stayed abourd vs. Whom our Captaine and whole Company them home avery kindely vied, himfelfe faw their lodging prouided, and them lodged in an old Saile vpon the Orlop, and because they most feared our Dogs, they were tyed vp whensoener any of them

Ceremonies of the Sauages

gaine.

Griffin which lay on Shoare, reported vinto me their manner, and (as I may tearme them) the Ceremonies of their Idolatry, which they performe thus. One among them (the eldeft of the company as he indeed) rifeth right up, the rest fitting still, and todainely cryed, Bomb, wanth; then the women fall downe, and lye vpon the ground, and the men altogether answering the fame, fall a stamping round about with both feete as hard as they can, making the ground shake, with fundry loud outcries, and change of voyce and found; many take the fire thickes and thrust them into the earth, and then relt filent a while, of a fudden beginning as before, they looke round about, as though they expected the comming of fomething (as lice verily supposed) and continue stamping till the yonger fort fetch from the Shoare Scones, of which every man take one, and first beate upon them with the fire sticks, then with the Stones beate the ground with 30 all their (trength : and in this fort (as the reported) they continued about two houres. In the time of their Pauole, our watch aboord were finging, and they figned to him to doe fo, which he did, looking and lifting up his hands to heaven : then they pointed to the Moone, as if they imagined hee worshipped that, which when he with fignes denied, they pointed to the Sunne riling, which hee likewife difliked, lifting up his hands againe, then they looked about, as though they would fee what Starre it might be, laughing one to another. Afterithis ended, their wines fe- they which have wines take them a part, and withdraw themselves severally into the wood all night. The next morning, as soone as they saw the Sunne rise, they pointed to him to come with them to our Sup, and having received their men from vs, they came with all their Canoas and 40 company houering about our Ship, to whom (because it was the Sabbath day, I signed they should depart, and at the next Sunne rising wee would goe along with them to their houses, which they understood (as we thought) and departed : three of their Canoas coursing about the Iland, and the others towards the Maine. This day about fine a clocke afternoone, came three Their Tobacother Canoas from the Maine, of which some had beene with vs before, and they came directly aboord vs, and brought vs Tobacco, which we tooke with them in their Pipe, which was made of earth very strong, but blacke and short, containing a great quantity. Some Tobacco they gaue to our Captaine, and some to me, in very civill kinde manner : we requited them with Bread and Peafe. When we came at Shoare, they all most kindely entertained vs, taking vs by the hands, as they had observed we did to them abourd in token of welcome, and brought vs to 50 They gaue vs fit downe by their fire, where fat together thirteene of them. They filled their Tohacco Pipe, Tobacco in a which was then the short claw of a Lobster, which will hold ten of our Pipes full, and we dranke Pipe of a Lob. of their excellent Tobacco as much as we would with them; but wee faw not any great quantity to trucke tor, and it seemed they had not much left of old, for they spend a great quantity yearely by their continual drinking : they would figne vnto vs that it was growne yet but a fters Claw. little aboue ground, but it would be high, with a leafe as broad as both their hands; and of-

cretly.

co Pipe.

and Griffia.

(whom wee take to be their King, or some great Commander) had plenty of Furres and much Tobacco. At our departure they made figne, if any of vs would flay there a shoare, some of them would 60 goelye abourd with vs : at which motion Mafter Booles, leruant to the Right Honorable Count Arundell, being defirous to fee the manner of the torelaid Ceremonies, stated with them, and Maiter Booles had Griffin with him ; and three of the Sauages lodged with vs, in manner as the night before.

ten would (by pointing to one part of the Maine Eastward) figne vnto vs that the Bashabe

Early the next morning being Munday, the third of June, when they had brought our men 2

boord, they came about our Shippe, earnestly by signes desiring we would goe with them along to the Maine, for there they had Furres and Tobacco to traffique with vs. Wherefore our Captaine manned the Shallop, with as many men as he could well, which was but fifteene with the Rowers, and we went along with them: two of their Canoas they fent away before, and they which were abourd vs all night kept company with vs to direct vs. This we noted as we went along, they in the Canoa with three Oares, would at their will goe a head of vs and about vs, when we rowed with eight Oares strong: such was the swittnesse by reason of the lightnesse, and exquisite composition of their Canoa and Oares. When we came neere the point, where we faw their fires, where they intended to land, and to where they imagined some few of vs should come on Shoare with our merchandise, as wee had accustomed before : when they had often numbred our men very diligently, they scoured away to their company, not doubting we would have followed them. But when wee perceived this, and knew not either their intents, or number of Sauages on the Shoare, our Captain after confultation flood of and weffed them to vs, determining that I should goe a Shoare first to take a view of them, and what they had to traffique, if he whom at our first light of them seemed to be of most respect, and being then in the Canoa, would stay as a pawne for me. When they came to vs (notwithstanding all our former courtelies) he veterly refused, but would leave a yong Savage. and for him our Captaine lent Griffin in their Canoa, while we lay hulling a little of. He at his returne reported, they had there affembled together, as he numbred them, two hundred foure-20 feore and three Sauages, enery one his Bowe and Arrowes, with their Dogges, and Wolves which they keepe tame at command : and not any thing to exchange at all, but would have 1835 suages which they keepe tame at command: and not any thing to exchange at an, out would have allembled in a drawne vs farther vp into a little narrow nooke of a Riner, for their Furres as they trecherie.

We began to alter our opinion of them, and to joyne them in the ranke of all Sauges, who Difposition of have beene by all travailers and in all discouries found very treacherous, neuer attempting mil- Sauages in the chiefe, vnrill (by some remisnesse) fit opportunity affordeth them certaine ability to execute the Purman Mafame. Wherefore we humbly gaue God chankes, who had ginen vs vnderstanding to preuent heir dealness this, and thereby warning to foresee and prepare our selves against the like danger. And after found courses 200d aduife taken, our Captaine determined, to soone as we could to Ship some of them, least (be-36 ing furpicious we had discoursed their plots) they should absent themselves from vs, which surely they had done, if we had not laid hold of the next occasion. Tuesday came to the Ship, there were two Canoas, and in either of them three Sauages, of whom two were below at the fire, the other flaied about the Ship for victuall : and because we could by no meanes entice them aboord, we gaue them a Can of Peate and Bread, which, they carried to the shoare to eate, but one of them brought backe our Can againe presently, and staied aboord with the other two, for he being yong of a ready capacitie, and one wee most desired to bring with vs into England, had received exceeding kinde vlage at our hands, and therefore We caught has was much delighted in our company: we shipped him, and foure others, two Canoas, with all Canoas, and their Bowes and Arrowes, which is the chiefe substance they possesse: Saturday the eight of Iune, our Captaine being defirous to finish all businesse about this Harbour, very early in the morning with the Pinnace coafted fine or fixe leagues about the Hands ad- Qur Captaine joyning, and founded all along whereforer he went: helikewife diligently fearched and foun- founded aded along before the mouth of the Harbotr, shout the Rocks which flow themselves at all times, Rockes and are an excellent breach of the water in as makes concerned in to offend the Markov This. and are an excellent breach of the water, fo as no Sex can come in to offend the Harbour. This mouth of die he did to instruct himselfe, and thereby able to direct others that shall happen to come to this Harbout. place : for every where both neere the Rockes and in all founding about the Ilands, wee never found leffe water then foure or fine fathome, which was very feldome, but feuen, eight, nine, and ten fathome, is the continual founding by the shoare, in some places much deeper, woon clay

Oaze or foft Sand. This day about one a clocke afternoone, came from the Eastward two Canoas abourd vs, Two Canoas wherein was he that refused to stay with vs for a Pawne, and with him fix other Sauges, whom come about we had not feene, who had beautified themselues after their manner very gallantly, though their vatrem the cloathing was not different from the former, yet they had newly painted their faces very deepe, Balance fome all blacke, some red, with stripes of blew over their vpper lip, note, and chin. One of them ware a kinde of Coronet about his head, made very cunningly of a substance like stiffcharte, co- Their Ornaloured red, broad, and more then a handfull in depth, which he fo much effeemed, as he would ments of galnot for any trucke exchange the fame : other weare the white feathered skins of fome Fowle round about their head, Iewels in their eares, & Bracelets of httle white round bone, faltened together upon a leather fitting. These made not any show that they had notice of the other before ta-60 ken but we understood them by their speech & fignes, that they came fent from the Baltabe, and that his defire was, we would bring up our Ship (which they call a Quiden) to his houle, being as they pointed upon the Maine towards the East, from whence they came, and that he would exchange with vs for Furres and Tobacco: but because we had no desire to discouer any further that way, and now making what speede we could up the River; wee let them understand; that if their Balbabe would come to vs, hee should be very welcome, but wee would not remove Tuefday, the elementh of June, we paffed up into the River with our Ship about fix and tweninto the River ty miles; of which (were it not of necessitie I must report somewhat) I had much rather not to with our Ship. Write, then by my relation to detract from the worthinesse thereof, not being sufficient in words to expresse the abundant vtilitie and sweete pleasantnesse it yeeldeth. For the River besides that it is thise of hereafter by Shipping to bring in all traffiques of Merchandife.

The first and chiefest thing required for a Plantation, is a bold Coast, and faire Land to fall

The profits of with. The next, a fafe Harbour for Ships to ride in. the River.

The first is a speciall attribute to this Shoare, being most free from Sands or dangerous Rockes. Io Saint Georges in a continuall good depth, with a most excellent Landfall as can be defired; which is the first Hand, named Saint Georges Hand. For the fecond, by judgement of our Captaine, who knoweth most of the Coast of England, and most of other Countries (having beene experienced by implyments in discourries and trauailes from his childehood) and by opinion of others of good judgement in our Ship. Here are more good Harbours for Ships of all burthens, then all England can afoord : And farre more secure from all windes and weathers, then any in England, Scotland, Ire-Lind, France, Spaine, or any other part hitherto discouered, whereof we have received any relation: for the files without the River in the channell and Sounds about the Ilands adjoyning to the Mouth thereof, no better riding can be defired for an infinite number of thips) the River it felfe as

The breadth of the River and Carine Ships.

Salmons and fore of filb. The Land.

The Wood.

This River

We marched

vp into the land about three miles.

it runneth up into the Maine very nigh fortie miles towards the great Mountaines, beareth in 20 for almost 40, breadth a mile, fometimes three quarters, and halfe a mile is the narrowest, where you shall neuer have vider foure or five fathom water hard by the Shoare, but fix, feuen, eight, nine, and ten The ground is fathom at a low water. And on both fides, every halfe mile, verie gallant Coues, some able to Dize & Clay. containe almost a hundred Sayle, where the ground is excellent foft caze with a tough clay voder for Anker hold; and where Ships may lye without either Anker or Cable onely mored to the Shoare with a Hazur. It floweth, by their judgement, fixteene or eighteene foote at a high wa-Docksto grave ter. Here are made by nature most excellent places, as Dockes to grave and Carine Ships of all burthers, fecured from all windes, which is such a necessary incomparable benefit, that in few places in England, or in any other parts of Christendome. Art with great charges can make

It yeeldeth plentie of Salmons, and other fishes of great bignesse, and assuredly great probabilitie of better things therein to be found, feeing about the Ilands wee had fuch certaine hope of Pearle and Oare. Besides all these commodities innatine to this River, the bordering Land is a most rich neighbour trending all along on both sides, in an equall Plaine, neither Mountainous nor Rockie, but verged with a greene bordure of graffe, doth make tender vnto the beholder of her pleafant fertility, if by clenfing away the woods, fine were connected into Medow. The Wood it beareth is no fhrubbifh, fit onely for fewell, but good tall Firre , Spruce, Birds, Beech, and Oake, which in many places is not fo thicke, but may with small labour be made feeding ground, being plentifull like the outward Hands with fresh water, which streameth downe in many places.

As we passed with a gentle winde vp with our Ship in this River. Any man may conceine with what admiration wee all confented in ioy; many who had beene erauellers in fundry Countries, and in the most famous Rivers, yet affirmed them not comparable to this they now beheld. Some that were with Sir Walter Raleigh, in his Voyage to Guiana, in the Discourry of presentations the River Orienoque, which eccoed fame to the worldseares; gave reasons why it was not to be Before the Ri. compared with this, which wanteth the dangers of many Shoakls and broken grounds, whereperorette Ri. with that was encombred. Others preferred it farre before that notable River in the West Indias, called Rio Grande: some before the Rivers of Burdana, Orleance, and Brest in France, Naunce, and the River of Rhoane : which although they be great and goodly Rivers, yet it is no detraction from them to be accounted inferiour to this, which not onely yeeldeth all the aforefaid pleafant 50 profits, but also appeared infallibly to vs free from all imagined inconveniences. I will not pre-Ferre it before our River of Thames, because it is Natale folum, Englands richeit treasure, but wee all did wish those excellent Harbonrs, good Drepes, in a continuall convenient breadth, and fmall tide gates, to be as well therein for our Countrie good, as wee, found them, here (beyond our hopes) in certaine for those to whom it shall please God to grant this Land for habitation: which if it had with the other inseperable adherent Commodities here to be found; then I would boldly affirme it to be the most rich, beautifull, large, and secure harbouring River that the world affordeth; for if man should wish, or Art invent, a River subject to all conveniencies, and free from all dangers, here they may take a view in a Plat-forme framed by Nature, who in her perfection farre exceedeth all Arts inuention.

Wednefday the twelffth of fune, our Captaine manned his Shallop with feuenteene men, and on the total Code of the Rune, where united his ran vp to the Codde of the River, where we landed, leaving fix to keepe the Shallop till our returne, Ten of vs with our Shot, and some armed, with a Boy to carry Powder and Match, marched vp into the Countrie towards the alcuntaines, which we deferied at our first falling with the Land, and were continually in our view. Vnto some of them the River brought vs so neere, as we judged our felues when we landed, to have beene within a league of them, but we found them not, having marched well nightfoure miles up in the Maine, and paffed three great hils; wherefore because the weather was parching hot, and our men in their Armour not able to travell farre and returne to our Pinnaffe that night, we resolved not to passe any further, being all very weary of fo tedious and labourfome a trauell.

To this marchive puffed ouer very good ground, pleasant and fertile, fit for pasture, having Good Posture. but little wood, and that Oake, like tands left in our Pattures in England, good and great fit timber for any vie; fome small Birch, Hazell and Brake, which might in small time be clinfed with few men, and made good errable Land; but as it is now will feede Cattell of all kindes with Fodder enough for Summer and Winter. The foyle is good, bearing fundry Hearbes, Graffe, and Stawberries, in many places are low thickets, like our Copiffes of small Wood: And it doth all resemble a flately Parke, wherein appeare some old trees with high withered tops, and other floorthing with huing greene boughes : till we came to the Hils vpon which doe grow excee- Timber trees ding tall, itreight, and excellent great timber of fundry kindes, mast for Ships of foure hundred tunnes, and at the bottome of every hill, a little run of fresh water; but the furthest and last we came untoran with a great streame able a driue a small Mill. Wee might see in some places, Deere. where Deere and Hares had beene; and by the rooting of ground we supposed wilde Hogs had Hares. ranged there, but we could defery no Beaft, because our noise still chased them from vs.

We were no fooner come aboord our Pinnasse, returning towards our Ship, but wee espied a Canoa comming from the further part of the Cod of the River Eastward, which hasted to vs; wherein with two others was he whom we accounted chiefe of his Company; and his comming was very earnestly importuning to have one of our men to goe lye with their Balhabe or Captaine (as they now tearmed him) who was there ashoare (as they figned) and then the next A plot of the morning he would come to our Ship with Furres and Tobacco. This we perceived to be onely a Sausges, meere device to get possession of any of our men, to ransome all those we had taken; which their naturall pollicy could not foshaddow, but we did easily discouer and preuent.

These meanes were by this Sauage practised, because we had one of his kinsmen prisoner, as we judged by his most kinde viage of him, being aboord vs together. 10 Thursday, the thirteenth of Iune, by two a clocke in the morning / because our Captain would take the helpe and advantage of the Tide) in the Pinnace with our Company well provided and furnished with Armour and Shot both to defend and offend : we went from our Ship vp to that We searched part of the River which trended West into the Maine, to search that, and wee carried with vs part of the Ria Crosse to erect at that point; which, because it was not day-light, we left on shoare vntill our uer, returne backe, when we fet it vp in manner as the former. And this we diligently observed, that Weser vp and in no place either about the llands, or vp in the Maine, or along the River, wee could differne other Croffe. any token or figne that ever any Christian had beene before; which either by cutting wood, digsine for water, or fetting vp Croffes (a thing neuer omitted by any Christian travailours) wee figure that the

should have perceived some mention left. 80 But to returne to our River, vp into which we then rowed by estimation twenty miles. What before profit or pleafure is described and truely verified in the former part of the River, is wholly doubled in this; for the breadth and depth is fuch, that any Ship drawing feuenteene or eighteene foote water might have passed as farreas we went with our Shallop, and by all our indgements much further, because we left it in so good depth; which is so much the more to be esteemed of greater worth, by how much it trendeth further vp into the Maine : for from the place of our Ships riding in the Harbour, at the entrance into the Sound, to the furthest point wee were in this River, by our estimation was not much lesse then threescore miles. From each Banke of this River, are divers branching streames running into the Maine, whereby is afforded an vnspeakea- Conveniency ble profit, by the conveniency of easie transportation from place to place, which in some Countion. tries is both very chargeable, and not fo fit, by Carriages on Wane or Horlebacke, Here wee faw

50 ftore of Fifth, some leaping about water, which we judged to be Silmon, for they were great. All Salmon and along is an excellent mould of ground, the wood in most places, especially on the Easterne side, great plenty very thin, chiefely Oake and Imall Birch, bordering low vpon the Riuer, all fit for Meddow and pleasant Pasture ground. And in that space wee went, wee had on both sides the River many plaine places of cleere Meddow, some of three or foure acres, some eight or nine, so as we judged in the whole to be betweene thirty and forty acres of good graffe, and where the Armes ronne into the Maine, there likewife went a space on both sides of the cleare graffe, how farre we knew not. In many places we might see pathes Bealts had made to come downe to watering. And we all concluded (as I verily thinke we might rightly) that we should never see the like River in 60 euery degree equall, vntill it pleafed God we beheld the fame againe : for the further we went, the more pleafing it was to every man, alluring vs fill with expediation of better; fo as our men (although they had with great labour rowed long, and eate nothing) for we carried with vs We were all no victuall but a little Cheefe and Bread, yet they were fo refreshed with the pleasant beholding thereof, and so loath to tortake it, as some of them affirmed, they would have continued this Ruce.

veonthe Hils-

Hogges.

1665

The Hand

where we wa-

Infula Sanfie

fect oblerus-

Temperature

tion on the

of climate.

Rocke.

willingly with that onely fare and labour two dayes; but the Tide not fuffering vs to make any longer itay (because we were to come backe with the ebbe) and our Captaine better knowing what was fit, then we; and better what they in labour were able to endure, being very loath to make any desperate hazard, where so little necessitie required, thought it best to make returne. because whether we had discouered, was sufficient to conceiue that the River ranne very farre into the Land : for we passed fixe or seuen miles altogether fresh water (whereof we all dranke) forced up by the flowing of the Salt, which after a great while ebbe where we left it, by bredth and depth of Channell was likely to runne by estimation of our whole companie an vnknowne way further. And as our Captaine verily thought (although hee then concealed it) might polfibly make a paffage into (or very nigh) the South Sea: which hee neither had commission nor Io time now to scarch, but hath left that till his next returne : if it shall so please God to dispose

Friday the fourteenth of June early, by foure a clocke in the morning with the Tide, our two Boats, and a little helpe of the winde, we warped our shippe do wne to the Riuers mouth: and there came to an anchor about about eleuen a clocke. Afterward our Captaine in the Pinnace. fearched the founding all about the mouth and comming into the River, for his certaine infirm-Gion of a pertect delcription.

The next day being Saturday, we weighed anchor, and with a briefe from the Land, we favled un to our watering place, and there stopped, went ashoare, and filled all our empty caske with rered is named Our Captaine vpon the Rocke in the middest of the Harbour made his certaine observa-Crucis, becaufe there wer let tion by the Sunne, of the height, latitude, and variation exactly upon all his Instruments: our firth Croffe 1. Aftrolabe. 2. Semitphere. 3. Ring-inftrument. 4. Croffe staffe. 5. And an excellent Com-Our Gapcaine pas, made for the variation. The latitude he found to be 43. degrees 20. minutes, North. The variation, 11. degrees 15. minutes, viz. one point of the Compas Westward. And it is fo much made his perin England at Lime-bouse by London, Bastward. The temperature affoorded to vs no speciall alteration from our disposition in England: somewhat hotter vp into the Maine, because it lieth open to the South, but scarse yeelding a sensible difference to any of vs. The aire so wholsome, as I suppose, not any of vs found our selues at any time more healthfull, more able to labour, nor with better flomachs to fuch good fare, as we partly brought, and partly found.

Sunday the fixteenth of lune, the winde being faire, and because wee had fet out of England vpon a Sunday, descried the Hands vpon a Sunday, and (as we doubted not) by Gods appointment, happily fallen into our Harbour vpon a Sunday : fo now befeeching him with like prosperitie to blesse our returne into England: and from thence (with his good-will and pleasure) to hallen and fortunate our next arrivall here. Wee fet sayle and quit the Land vpon a Sunday.

Tuesday the eighteenth day of June, being not runne aboue fine and thirty leagues from Land, and our Captaine for his certaine knowledge how to fall with the Coast, having founded every watch, and from fifty fathom had come in good deeping to feuenty, and fo to an hundred. This day, the weather being faire, after the foure a clocke watch, when he thought not to haue found ground, before founding in aboue a hundred fathom, we had ground in foure and twenty fathom. 40 Wherefore our Sayles being downe, one of our men presently cast out a hooke, and before hee indged it at ground was fished and haled wp an exceeding great and well fed Cod: then there were cast out three or foure hookes more, the fish was so plentifull and so great, as when our Captaine would haue fet fayle, we desired him to suffer them to take fish a while, because wee were fo delighted to feethem catch fish so great, so fast as the hooke came downe, some playing with the hooke they tooke by the backe. And one of the Mates, with two hookes at a Lead, at fine A fifty banke. draughts together haled up ten fifthes all were generally very great, some were measured. This cauled our Captaine not to maruell at the shoalding: for he perceived it was a fish-banke, which (for our farewell from the Land) it pleased God in the continuance of his bleffings to give vs knowledge of.

Sunday the fourteenth of July about fix a clocke at night we were come into founding in our Channell: but for want of fight of the Sunne and Starre, to make a true observation: and with contrary windes we were constrained to beate up and downe till Tuesday the fixteenth of July, when by fine a clocke in the morning wee made Sylly: from whence hindred with calmes and small windes. Vpon Thursday the eighteenth of July about foure a clocke wee came to anchor fafe ly in Dartmonth, which Hauen haply (with Gods affiftance) wee made the laft and firk Harbour in England, as the Termini of our Voyage.

A briefe Note of what profits we found the Countrie yeeld: in the small time of our stay there.

Trees. Oake, of an excellent graine , flaight, and great timber ; Elme , Beech , Birch , very tall and, great of whole Barque they make their Canoas; Nut-halle, Halle, Alder, Cherry tree, Ath, M. ple, Ewe, Spruce, Atp, bir in great abundance; many other fruit trees which we know not. Forder, Eagles, Hernshavies, Cranes, Duks great; Geefe, Swans, Penguins, Shark, Crow, Rauen, Kite, Soga, Mewes, Douts, Tortles, birds of fundry colours; and many other fowles vnknown.

Reafis, Deere red and fallow, Beare, Wolfe, Beauer, Otter, Hare, Conie, Matterns, Sables, Hoes, Porkelpines. Polcats, Cats, wilde great, Dogs some like Foxes, some like our other beasts the Sanager ligne votto vs with hornes and broad eares; which we take to be Olkes or Loshes.

Filhet, Whales, Porpoile, Seales, Cod, very great; Haddocke, great; Herring, Plate, Thornbacke, Rock-fish, Lobster, great ; Crabbe , Mussels , Cockles , Wilks , Cunner-fish , Lumpe-fish, Whiting: the Sauages figne voto vs that they have Tortoife very great.

Plants, Fruits, Herbs. Tobacco, excellent, Sweet and Strong; Vine, wilde; Strawberries, Raspherries, Gooleberries, Hurtleberries, Corane trees, in abundance; Role bushes; Peale, which the Sauges figne to be very great in the Maine; Ground-nuts; Angelica, a most foueraigneherbe : and an herbe that spreadeth like Camomell, and smelleth like sweet Marjoram, great plenty, Good Dies, which appeare by their painting, which they carrie with them in bladders, Words which I learned of the Sauages, in their Language Sunne or Moone, Kefus. Cod-fish, Biskeiore. A fish with hornes, Manedo. Lobster, Shoggab. Rock fish, Shagarocke. Cockle-fish, Hesucke. Muskell, Shoorocke. Cunner-fish, Tattaucke. Crabbe. Wulforaha, Porpoite, Mulcopeinck, Plaile, Anego. Tortoile, Romcanecke. Peale, Uhcomono. Tobacco, Tomoch. A leafe, Mebeere. A weed, Calherufb. A Firre tree, Seteoch. A stone, Nabscurt. 20 A Bowe, Shoanor. An Arrow, Tobood. Barke of a tree, Mashquere. Water, Shamogoon. Sand, Cheemsch. Crowe, Cagagoofe, Haire, Meffer or Meris. A board, Nicowur. A Beare, Rog foo. Beauer, Paneah. Otter, Nymemano. Rat, Sanuke. Polcat, Pocamka. Cat, Pushnek. Fallow Deere, Coribo, Hogge, Madofo, Red Deere, Moofurr. They tell vs of other beafts, which they call, Ta-(anus, Pilho, Narsim. Teeth, Ibider. A hand and finger, Breecke. A Naile of the hand, Cushe. Janus, 1908, Codd. A foot, Muffette. Plum-tree, Epiegan. Strawberry, Phos. Gooleberry, Schwa-ner, Cherry tree, Efregenoum. Corant tree, Afreemena, Rashberrie, Kietemy, A tippe, Me-ner, Cherry tree, Efregenoum. toan, Fire, Squida. The maine Land, Bemoquiducke. Sea, Shonbbe. Father, Wado. Sonne, Ufto. Wane of the Sea, Tobooge, Pitch and Tallow, Poco. Wilde Role, Minusbeck, Birch, Pasquar. Sword, Edagamancke. Mountaine, Machoucke. Winde, Puckchamsen. Bloud, Pagagocun. Red Paint, Woroman. Blacke Paint. Cogolho. A Dogge, Remgofe. A Ship or Boat, Quiden. An Oare, Wattoboganor. A Garnepo Fly. Chuffuab. Bread, Paune, Raine, Soogoran. A note, Peech-ten. An Axe or Hatchet, Tomaheegon, A Knife, Quodogon, Oake Askabeffe, White Bone, whereof they have Chaines, Girdles , Bracelets , Speefone. The Checke, Canoah. A Shirt or Coat, Tenoganuke, The Chinne, Queb, An Eye, Sheefack, Eylid, Momon. Forchead, Scottoquab. An Eare, Famwucke. A fish-hooke, Makeecon. A Rainbow, Shemogon.

The Names of their chiefe Governours, whom they call Sacomob. 1. Balhabez. 2. Abatuckquifte. 3. Bdahanedo, one of them we have. 4. Abokeefuffick. 5. Sburokinit. 6. Pfaheno. 7. Menteelmet, 8. Ageemobuck. 9. Mawermet. 10. Chanacoboin. 11. Amilquir. 12. Muasacoromoneete. Thefe dwell vpon the Maine, and weare an ornament of white bone vpon their head; and Chaines, and Bracelets, and Girdles, and have their skinne garments laced with them.

The Names of our Verginians. Edahanedo , Brother to the Bashabes. Amooret, his Erother. Satacomoah . Maneduck . Scikaworrowfe.

Thus have I given thee the proceedings of Virginia and New Englands Discourrie: for the originall beginning of the Discourrie, Sir Sebattian Cabot was the first Discourrer both of it and the rest of the Continent of America. The first Plantation was more Southerly by the charges of Sir Walter Raleigh: as before is showed. The next yeare New Patents were obtained of his Maiestie, for a donble Plantation in these parts. I trouble not the Reader with the whole Patent, both because it hath sustained diversified alteration, division and subdivision, and because I more minde things there done, than bere; for which cause I have also omitted the Articles and instruction two dayes after dated, signed, 50 and fealed, with the Prince Seale for the government of the faid Plantation, of both which I baue the Copies by mee; I onely bere gine thee the beginning of the first Patent, Aprill 10. 1606.

CHAP. XIIII.

The description of the Ilands of Acores, or the Flemish Ilands, taken out of Linschoten, with certaine occurrents, and English acts.

He Iles of Açores, or the Flemish Ilands are seuen, that is, Tercera, Saint Mary, Linstote. 07. Saint Gorge, Gratofa, Pico, and Faind. There are yet two Hands called Flores me limits and Corne, which are not contained under the name of of cores: but yet at this W yealed day are under the government of the fame llands fo that they are in all account days. day are under the government of the fame Hands, fo that they are in all, accoun- Agorts. ted nine llands. They are called Acores, that is to fay, Sparhawkes or Hawkes, because that in their first discouery, they found many Sparhawks, in them, wherof they hold the name, although at this day there is not any there to bee found. They are allo called the Flemish Hands, that is, of the Netherlanders, because the first that inhabited the same. were Netherlanders, whereof till this time there is a great number and off fpring remayning, that in manner and behausour are altogether like Netherlanders, and there is yet in the fame Iland a running water, that iffueth out of a Hill, and fo runneth into the Sea, whereas ver those islues or off-springs of Nesherlanders inhabite, and is called Aribera dos Frameneos, that is the Flemilo River.

Teregra. Angra.

The principall Hand of them all, is that of Tercera, called Infula de Iefu Christin of Tercera. It is betweene fifteene or fixteene miles in compaste, and is altogether a great Cliffe of Land, whereby in it there is little roome: for it is as it were walled round about with Cliffes: but where any ftrand or fand is, there standeth a Fort. It hath no Hauens nor entrance of waters. Io for the fecuritie and fafety of the shippes, but onely before the chiefe Towne called Angra. where it hath an open Hauen, which in forme is like a Halfe-moone, by the Portugals called Angra, whereof the Towne hath her name. It hath on the one fide in manner of an elbow flicking forth, two high Hills, called Brefil, which stretch into the Sea, so that afarre off they feeme to bee divided from the Iland. Those Hills are very high, fo that being vpon them. a man may fee at the leaft tenne, or twelue, and fometimes fifteene miles into the Sea, being cleare weather. Vpon their Hills there iland two fmall ftone Pillers, where there is a Centinell placed, that continually watcheth to fee what shippes are at Sea, and so to aduertise those of the Iland : for that as many thippes as he feeth comming out of the West, that is from the Spanish Indies, or Brasilia, Cabo verde, Guinea , and the Portugal Indies, and all other wayes ly- 20 ing South or Welt, for every shippe bee setteth a Flagge vpon the Pillar in the West, and when the shippes which hee descrieth, are more than fine, then hee setteth vp a great ancient, betokeping a whole Fleete of shippes. The like hee doth vpon the other Pillar , which standeth in the East, for such shippes as come from Portugall, or other places out of the East or North parts, these Pillars may bee easily seene in all places of the Towne, by reason of the highnesse of the Hills, fo that there is not one shippe or sayle that is at See, or maketh towards the Iland , but it is presently knowne throughout all the Towne, and ouer all the whole Hand : for the watch is not holden onely upon those two Hills jutting into the Sea, but also upon all corners, Hills and Cliffes throughout the Iland, and as foone as they perceive any shippes, the Governour and Rulers are presently advertised thereof, that they may take such order therein as neede requireth. 30 Vpon the furthest corner into the Sea Standeth a Fort, right against another Fort that answer reth it : fo that those two Forts doe shut and defend the Mouth or open Hauen of the Towne, where the shippes lie in the Road, and so no shippe can either goe in or come forth, without the licence or permission of those two Forts. This Towne of Angra is not onely the chiefe Towne of Tercera, but also of all other Townes within the Hands thereabouts. Therein is resident, the Bishop, the Gouernour for the King, and the chiefe place of Judgement, or tribunal Seate of all the Hands of Acores. Three miles from this Towne lieth another Towne towards the North, called Villa de Praya,

(for Praya is as much to fay, as Strand) because it lieth hard by a great strand, and for that cause there is little traffique thither, as not having any convenient place for shippes to come at 40 it : yet sometimes there commeth some one, that by reason of contrary winde cannot get be-Angra descried forethe Towne of Angra, and so by constraint discharge their goods in that Towne, which from thence are carried by Land to Angra, and yet some part thereof is spent and vfed there. It is walled and well housed, but not many people in it, and such as are in it, doe get their liuings most by husbandry : for there are very faire Corne lands. The lland is Wines small, likewife very fruitfull and pleasant, it hath much Corne and Wine, but the Wine is not very good to carry into other Countries thereabouts, because it is small and will not long continue, fo that it is vied in the Countrey by the common people : but fuch as are of wealth, for the most Commodities. Part drinke Wines of Madera, and Canaria. It aboundeth in Flesh, Fish, and all other necessaries and meates for mans bodie, wherewith in time of need they might helpe themselues. Oyle 50 there is none, but it commeth out of Portugall. Also Salt, Pots, Pans, and all kind of earthen Veffells, Chalke, and such like are brought thither out of other places, for there they are not to bee found : for fruits they have (befides Peaches of divers kindes, and in fo great abundance that is is strange) Cherries , Plums, Walnuts, Halle-nuts, Cheinuts, but those not very good : of Apples, Peares, Oranges and Lemons, with all fuch like fruits there are fufficient. Of all forts of Hearles and Plants, as Coleworts, Radishes, and fuch like they have at their certains times of the yeere. They have likewife in that Iland a certaine fruit that groweth under the earth, like Radishes or other roots, but the Leaues or Plants are Trees like Vines, but different leaues, and groweth longwise vpon the ground : it beareth a fruit called Batatas, that is very good, and is fo great that it weigheth a pound, some more, some leste, but little esteemed : and 60 yet it is a great sustenance and food for the common sort of people. It is of good account in Portugall, for thither they vie to bring it for a Present, and those of the Hand by reason of the great abundance doe little esteeme it. There is also another kind of stuffe that is sowed like

Corne, and is a fruit : it groweth upon the root of the graffe or leaues, and is round and as bigge

Batatas.

Fruits,

as a great Peale, but not fo round : in eating it tasteth like Earth-nuts, but harder to bite : it is likewise a good meate, and much esteemed in other places: but by reason of the great quantitie thereof, it is most vied to facten their Hogges, and is called funfai. There is also in the Iland a certaine Plant, which is found in all places thereof in the open fieldes: it groweth as high as a man, and beareth no fruit, onely the roote thereof is a fubftance, of the thicknesse of A roote fit to a mans two fifts, and in thew as if it were naturall golden haire, and in handling like foft Silke, be worth. which is vied there to stuffe and fill their Beddes in stead of Wooll and Feathers : and I doe certainly believe, if any man of understanding would take it in hand, it would well be would The principallest traffique of this Iland, is their Woade, such as wee vie for dying (where-10 of much is made in that Iland, and is fetched from thence by Englishmen, Scott, and Frenchmen, in barter for Cloathes and other wares, who continually traffique into that Iland: and although by reason of the warres, the Englishmen are forbidden to traffique thither, yet under the names of Scots and Frenchmen, they have continuall trade there. The Hand hath not any wilde beafts or fowles, but very few, fauing onely Canary birds, which are there by thoufands, canary birds. where many Birders take them, and thereof make a daily living, by carrying them into divers places. It hath also wonderfull many Quailes , which they call Codornifen: of tame fowles, as Hennes, and Gynnie Hennes are there likewise great store. Hunting is there little vsed, but onely for Conies, which are very great: Hares, Harts, Partridges, Venilon, and such like, are not there to be found, because of the little respect and care the Inhabitants have to breed any such 30 things. Fish is very plentifull, and of divers kindes, and very good: in Summer there is great flore taken, for in Winter they can hardly brooke the Seas. The chiefe moneths of Winter Winter. weather for raine and stormes are, Ianuarie, Februarie, March and Aprill, and also the moneth of September is commonly very flormy : all the other moneths it is commonly good weather. The Countrey is very hilly, and in some places wooddy, full of bushes and trees: it is hard to trauell, because their wayes for the most part are stony, so that for a mile, or a mile and a halfe together, men can fee no ground, but onely stones, which for sharpnesseand fashion shew like Stones. pointed Diamants, whereby one can hardly treade vpon it, left it should cut through both shoes and feet : and yet it is all planted with Vines , fo full and thicke , that in Summer time you can hardly see through it, for that the rootes thereof doe growe betweene the stones : so that a man 30 would thinke it impossible that any thing should growe therein; and which is more, in some places it feemeth impossible for a man to treade voon it, being so wilde and desart as it sheweth, and nothing but hard itones and Rockes. On good ground their Vines will not growe, but onely in the wilde and stony places: and for that cause they are much esteemed.

The good groundes and plaine fieldes, which in some places are very many, especially by Villa da Praya, are fowed with Corne and Woade, and they have fo much Corne, that they neede not bring any from other places: although that besides their Inhabitants, and naturall borne Handers, they have continually with them fourteene Companies of Spaniardi, which are all fedde and nourished by the Corne that groweth in the Countrey , vnlesse there chance to come a hard and unfruitfull yeere, as oftentimes it doth, for then they are forced to helpe so themselves with forraine Corne, and that especially because of the Souldiers that lie in the Iland: and yet it is strange, that the Corne, and all other things in the Iland continue not about one yeere, and that which is kept aboue a yeere is naught, and nothing worth. And therefore Corne willian to keepe their Corne longer than a yeere, they are forced to burie it in the earth for the space of but a yeere. foure or fine moneths together, to the which end every Townesman hath his Pit at one end of the Towne in the common high-way, which is appointed for the purpole, and every man fetteth his marke voon his Pit-stone: the Corne is but lightly buried in the earth: the holes Corne busied. within are round, and the toppes thereof fo wide that a man may creepe in, whereunto there is a stone purposely made to couer it , which shutteth it vp very close. Some of the Pittes are so great, as that they may hold two or three lastes of Corne, some greater, and some smaller, as 50 every man hath his provision: and as soone as the Corne is reaped, and fanned (which is in July) euery man putteth his Corne into those Pittes, laying flraw under and round about it, and then they fill it full, or but halfe full, according as their quantitie is, and fo ftep it vp with the stone, which they couer with earth, and so let it stand vntill Christmas, when every man that will fetch home his Corne: some let it lie longer, and fetch it by little and little, as they wie it: but the Corne is as good when they take it out, as it was at the first houre that they put it in : and although that Carts, Horses, and men doe commonly passe ouer it, and also that the raine raineth vpon it, yet there entreth not any drop of raine or moulture into it: and if the Corne were not buried in that manner, it would not continue good aboue foure moneths together, but would be spoiled : and when it hath beene thus for a long time buried in the earth, it will continue the 60 whole yeere through, and then they keepe it in Chiffs, or make a thing of Mats, like a Ccope, to preserue it in, not once stirring or moouing it, and so it continueth very good. The greatest commoditie they have in the Land , and that scrueth their turnes best, is their

Oxen: and I beleeue they are the greatest and fairest that are to bee found in all Christendome, Great Oxen - with Calledbyth, it with vomeafurable great and long hornes. Every Oxe hath his feuerall namelike men, and althoug's there bee a thouland of them in a heard, and that one of them bee called by his name. he pretently commeth forth voto his mafter that calleth him. The Land is very high, and asie feemeth hollow : for that as they palle over a Hill of itone, the ground foundeth under them as if it were a Seller, fo that it feemeth in divers places to have holes under the earth, whereby it is much fubic Ct to Earthquakes, as also all the other Hands are : for there it is a common thing, and all those Ilands for the most part have had Myne of Brimstone, for that in many places of Tera cera, and Saint Michael, the imoake and fauour of Brimstone doeth shill islue forth of the ground. Ho: Springs. and the Countrey round about is all findged and burnt. Allo there are places wherein there are Fountainer and Wells, the water whereof is so hot that it will boyle an egge, as well as if it hung ouer a fire.

Brimffone.

Gualua Spring ming wood interftone.

In the Hand of Tercera, about three miles from Angra, there is a Fountaine in a place cal-Ird Gualua, which hath a propertie, that all the wood which falleth into it, by length of time converteth into flone, as I my felfs by experience have tried. In the fame Fountaine by the roote of a tree, whereof the one halfe runneth under that water, and is turned into as hard ftone as if it were Steele: and the other part of the roote (which the water toucheth not) is fill wood and root, as it should be. The Hand hath great store and excellent kinds of wood, free cially Cedar trees, which growe there in in great numbers, that they make Scutes, Carts, and other groffe workes thereof, and is the commonest wood that they vie to burne in those Countries, whereby it is the wood that with them is least efteemed, by reason of the great quantity 20 thereof. There is another kinde of wood called Sanguinbo, and is very faire of a red colour and another fort that they call white Wood, being of it felfe as white as Chalke: other that is perfect yellow, and all naturall without any dying; and therefore there are divers good worke-

Sanguinbo wood. White and vellow woods.

Cedars com-

men in Tercera, that are skilfull in loyners Occupation, and make many fine pieces of worke, as Deskes, Cupboords, Chiffs, and other fuch like things, whereof many are carried into Ports. gall, and much efteemed there, as well for the beauty of the wood, as for the workmanlh p. And specially the Spanish Fleet, which ordinarily refresh themselves in that Iland, doe carrie much of it from thence; for it is the best and finest that is made in all Spaine and Portugall, although it bee not compar ble to the Deskes , and fine workmanship of Nurembergh, and thole Countreves: but for Wood is excelleth all other Countreves, for that they have in the Spanift 30 Fleete, besides their owne kindes of woods, at the least a thousand forts of wood of all colours that man can imagine or deuife, and so faire, that more fairer can not bee painted. There is a certaine kinde of wood in the Iland Pico, fituate and lying twelve miles from Terce-Teixo a kind of ra, called Teixo, a most excellent and princely wood, and therefore it is forbidden to bee cut, but onely for the Kings owne vie, or for his Officers. The wood is as hard as Iron , and hath a colour within, as if it were wrought, like red Chamlet, with the same water, and the older it is, and the more vied, the fairer it is of colour, fo that it is worthie to bee efteemed, as in Inhabitants.

Souldiers.

Strangers.

truth it is. All those Ilands are inhabited by Portugals: but fince the troubles in Portugal, there have beene divers Spanift Souldiers fent thither, and a Spanift Governour, that keepe all the For's and 40 Castles in their polieshous, although the Portugals are put to no charges, nor yet hardly vied by them , but are rather kept fhort, fo that not one Souldier dareth goe out of the Towne, with out licence; and therefore men may quietly travell throughout the Iland, both day and night, without any trouble. Likewise they will not suffer any stranger to travell to see the Countrey : and this order was not brought up by the Spaniards, but by the Portugals themselves, before their troubles, (for they would never permit it:) and which is more, all strangers that came thither were viually appointed a certaine streete, wherein they should sell their wares, and might not goe out of that fireete. Now it is not to fireightly looked vnto, but they may goe in all places of the Towne, and within the Iland, but not about it, to view the Coast: which notwithstanding was granted vnto vs , by the Gouernour himselfe , who lent vs his 50 Horses to ride about, and gaue vs leave to see all the Forts, which at this time is not permitted to the naturall borne Handers, neither are they so much credited. Wee rode twice about the Hand, which hee granted vs I-aue to doe, by meanes of certaine particular friendship wee had with him : neither could the Partugals hinder vs therein , because were in the Kings feruice, as Factors for the Kings Pepper, and for that, they accounted vs as naturall borne Portugals: for the Gouernour would willingly have had mee, to have drawne a plot of the whole Iland, that hee might have fent it to the King : wherein I excuted my felfe : yet I made him the Towne with the Hauen, comming in, and Forts of Angra, which heefent vnto the King, the like whereof you may in this Booke behold ; for the which the Gouernour was greatly affected voto mee, and thewed mee much friendship. Wee had in our Lodging a French Mer- 60 chant and a Scot, that willingly would have gone with vs, to fee the Iland, but could not be fulfered : for the Portugals thinke that they would take the proportion thereof, and to teeke to defeate them of their right.

But returning to our matter, the Hands are very good, and holesome ayre, and the diseases that are most common in those Countries, though not very plentifull, but onely here and there that are mort common and of Ar, that is, a kinde of bad agre that taketh them, and maketh The agre. 4 one, are one nonnease and and their limmes, or of fome one limme : and another fick-difease. sieffe, that is called O Sange, that is, a certaine bloud, that haftely commeth spon a man as a fwelling in the eyes, or other places of the face, or of the body, and is as red as bloud, for (as they (av) it is nothing elle but meere bloud : these are two difeases like the plague, and are commonnel fickneffes in those Countries, which grow by reason of the great windinesse of the Hands. that are subject to all stormes and foule weathers, and are infeatonable morst, which is one of 10 the principal causes of these diseases : for the windes are there to strong and dangerous, that they Strong windes continue both the Iron and the Steele of their houses, and bring them into powder: for I have feene Iron grates in the Kings Custome house, as thicke as a mans arme, and the windowes of hard free stone, which were to confumed by the winde, that the Iron in some places was become as thin as a ftraw, and the ftone in like fort; and therefore in those Countries they wie to make their Roofes and Painthoufer of itones, which they digge in the water, out of fands woon the Sea coatt of those Hands, whereon the winde hath not fo great a power to confirme it : and yet that Customehouse had not beene made aboue fix or seuen yeares before, at the most.

In this Iland belides the two Townes, there are divers great Villages, as Saint Sebalians. Saint Barboran, Altares, Gualua, Villa noua, with many other Parifhes and Hamlets: fo that for the 20 moit part it is built and inhabited, fauing onely the places that are wilde and full of Woods, which can hardly be trauelled, much leffe inhabited. Their most traffique is (as I said before) the wood that groweth in those Countries, I meane for such as deale in Merchandise, and the workemen that make it : but the rest waite for the flee:es that come and goe to and from the Spanish and Portugall Indies, from Brafilia, Cabo, Verde and Guinea : all which Countries doe commonly come vnto Tercera to refresh themselues, as lying very fitly for that purpose : so that all the inhabitants doe thereby richly maintaine themselues, and fell all their wares, as well handy workes as victuals vnto those Ships : and all the Hands round about doe as then come vnto Tercera with their wares, to fell it there. For the which cause the Englipmen and other firangers keepe continually about those Hands, being affured that all Ships for want of refreshing must of 10 force put into those llands, although at this time many Ships doe avoide those Hands, to the great discommodity of the Ilands and the Ships. Fion Tercera Southeast, about feuen and twenty or eight and twenty miles, lyeth the Iland of Saint Michael, which is about twenty miles long, and is likewife full of Townes and Villages Southerly inhabited by Portugals, for ayre and all other things like vnto Tercera. The chiefe Towne is called Punta del Gada, where there is great traffique of English, Scots, and Frenchmen, onely (as in Tercera) because of the woad, which is more abundant in that Iland, then in all the rest of them: for that every yeare there is made above two hundreth thousand Quintals of Wood. It hath likewife great abundance of Corne, fo that they helpe to victuall all the Hands that are round about them. It hath neither Hauens nor Rivers, but onely the broad Sea, and haue leffe fafegard and 40 defence then those which are of Tercera: but there they lye not vader the commandement of any Fort : fo that many fet fayle with all the windes, and put to Sea, which in the road of Tersera they may not doe: and therefore the strangers Ships had rather fayle to Saint Michaels, for there they can not be constrained to doe anything, but what they will themselues to doe, There is also a company of Spaniards in a Castle that standeth by the Towne of Punta del Gade.

which is made by the Spaniards for the defence and maintenance of the fame towne. Prom the Hand of Saint Michaels Southwards twelve miles, lyeth the Island Santa Maria, Saint Me which is about ten or twelue miles compasse, & hath no traff que but onely of pot earth, which the other Ilands fetch from thence. It hath no Woad, but is full of all victuals like Tercera, and inhabited by the Portugals. There are no Spaniards in it : because it is a stony Country, like Ter-50 errs, and hard to boord : whereby the inhabitants themselves are sufficient and able enough to defend it. While I remained in Tercera, the Earle of Cumberland came thither, to take in fresh water, and some other victuals; but the inhabitants would not suffer him to have it, but wounded both himfelfe and divers of his men, whereby they were forced to depart without having any

From Tercera North Northwest about seuen or eight miles, lyeth a little Iland called Gratis. fa, and is but five or fixe miles in compaffe, a very pleafant and fine Iland, full of all truits and all other victuals, fo that it not onely feedeth it felfe, but also Tercera, and the other Ilands about it, and hath no other kinde of Merchandife : it is well built and inhabited by Portugals, and hath no Soldiers in it, because it is not able to beare the charge. The Earle of Cumberland while lay Earle of Cum 60 in Tercera, came vnto that Iland, where himfelfe in person, with seuen or eight in his company berland. See went on land, asking certaine Beafts, Hens, and other Victuals, with Wine and fresh water, which full fact. they willingly gaue him, and therewith he departed from thence, without doing them any here: for the which the inhabitants thanked him, and commended him for his curtefie, and keeping of his promife.

LIB.VIII.

Saint Gemze.

1672

From Tercera West North-west, eight or nine miles, lyeth the Hand of Saint George. It is about twelve miles long, but not about two or three miles at the furthest in breadth at is wooddy and full of hils: it hath no speciall traffique, but onely some Woad, and yet very ligile of it. The inhabitants line most by Cattell and tilling of the Land, and bring much victuals to fell in Tercera : it hath likewife many Cedar trees, and other kindes of wood, that from thence are brought vnto Tercera, and fold vnto the Loyners, which for that occasion dwell onely in Tercera.

Farael.

From Saint George Well South-well feuen miles, lyeth the Iland called Fayael, which is feuenteene or eighteene miles in compaffe ; it is one of the beit llands next vnto Tercera, and Saine Michaels e it aboundeth in all forts of victuals, both flesh and fish, so that from this Iland the most part of victuals and necessaries commeth by whole Carnels vnto Tercera: it hath likewise to much Wood, fo that many English Ships doe traffique thither, The principall road and place is the Towne called Vitta dorta: there the Ships likewife doe lye in the open Sea vader the Land. as they doe before all the other llands by this Towne there lyeth a fortrelle, but of fmall importance: and because the inhabitants of themselves doe offer to defend the Iland against all enemies, the Soldiers discharged from thence, which before that time lay in the Fort, complaining that they were not able to maintaine nor lodge them. The fame time that the Earle of Cumber. land was in the Iland of Gratiofa, he came likewife to Fayael, where at the first time that hee came, they began to refift him, but by reason of some controuersie among them, they let him land where he rafed the Castle to the ground, and sinke all their Ordnance in the Sea. taking with him certaine Caruels and Ships that lay in the road, with provision of all things that hee 20 wanted; and therewith departed agains to Sea. Whereupon the King caused the principall actors therein to be punished, and fent a company of Souldiers thither againe, which went out of Tercera, with all kinde of warlike munition, and great that, making the Fortrelle up againe, the better to defend the Hand, trufting no more in the Portugals. In that Hand are the most part of the Netherlanders off-fpring, yet they vie the Portugals language, by reason they have beene so long conversant among them, and those that vsed the Dueb tongue are all dead : they are greatly affected to the Netberlanders and strangers.

Farael taken taken by Earle Cumberland.

Pice.

Tercera South-west and by West twelve miles, lyeth the Iland called Pico, which is more then fifteene miles in length. It is so named of a high Mountaine that standeth therein called Pico, 30 which is to high, that some thinke it is higher then the Pico of Canaris. When it is cleare weather, it may as perfectly be seene in Tercera, as if it were not halfe a mile from thence, and yet it lyeth about twenty fine miles from it : for it is at the furthest end of the Iland towards Fayael. The top of it is seene cleare and bright, but the nether part is coursed with clouds, and with the Horizon, whereby the Hand is much spoken of. It is very fruitfull of all kindes of victuals, like Fayael, and hath great store of wood, as Cedars & all other kindes, and also the costly wood Teixo. There they build many Caruels and small Ships; and from thence, by reason of the abundance of wood, they ferue the other Ilands with wood. It is also inhabited as the rest are, their chiefe traffique being Cattle & husbandry. It hath much Wine, & the best in all those Ilands, and it hath the fauorest & pleasantest Oranges that are throughout all Portugall: so that they are brought into 40 Tercera for a present, as being there very much esteemed, and in my judgement they are the best that ever I tafted in any place, Angra, in the Hand of Tercera is the chiefe Towne and Ruler over

From Fargel Southeast three miles, and from Saint George South-west foure miles, and from Pleafant Oranges.

Corne.

From Tercera Westward to the Iland named Flores are seventy miles: it is about seven miles compasse, it is also inhabited by Portugals, & hath no speciall merchandise, but onely some wood, it is full of Cattle, and other necessary prouitions, and lyeth open to all the world, & to whoseuer will come thither, as well Englishmen as others : for that the inhabitants have not the power to refift them. A mile from thence Northward, lyeth a little Iland of two or three miles in compaffe called DeCorno. The inhabitants are of the same people that dwell in Flores. Between those two Ilands and round about them, the Englishmen doe commonly stay, to watch the Ships that 50 come out of the West: for those are the first Ilands, that the Ships looke out for and descry, when they faile vnto Tercera, wherby the inhabitants do but little prosper, because they are at the pleafure & commandment of all that will come vnto them, and take their goods from them, as oftentimes it hapneth. Yet for all their pouerty, not to loofe both lands and goods, they must content themfelues, and faile with enery winde,

The Ile of Tercera lyeth under thirty nine degrees, in the same height that Lisbone lyeth; and is diftant from Lisbone lying right East and West two hundred and fifty Spanish miles.

Of certaine notable and memorable accidents that happened during my continuance in Tercera: in which are related many English fleetes, Sea-fights and Prizes.

He fecond of October Anno 1589, at the Towne of Villa dan Praya, in the Iland of Tercera, two men being in a field hard without the towne were killed with lightning. The ninth of the fame month there arrived in Tercera 14. Ships, that came from the Spanifb Indies, laden with Cochenile, Hides, Gold, Silver, Pearles, and other rich water. They were fifty in company, when they departed out of the Iland of Hanana, whereof, in their comming out of the Channell, eleuen funk in the fame Channell by foule weather, the reit by a fforme were scattered & seperated one from the other. The next day there came another Ship of the lame company, that failed close vnder the Hand, lo to get into the Road; where the met with an English Ship, that had not about three call Peeces, & the Spaniard twelve. They fought a long time together, which we being in the Iland might flan! & behold: wherupon the Gouernor of Terera ient two Boats of Musketiers to helpe the Ship; but before they could come at her, the English Ship had those her under water, and to we law her linke into the Sea, with all her failes vp, and not arry thing feelie of her about the water. The Englishmen with their Boate laued the Captaine and about thirty others with him, but not one peny worth of the goods, & yet in the Ship there was at the leaft to the value of 200000. Dicats in Gold, Silver, and Pearles, the rest of the men were drowned, which might be about to persons, among the which were some Friers and women, which the Englishmen would not saue; Those that they had faued they set on land; & then they failed away. The 27.0f the fame month, the faid 14. Ships having refreshed the clues in the Iland, departed from Tercera to wards Simil, and comming vobs the coalt of Spaine, they were taken by the Englift Ships, that lay there to watch for them, two onely excepted which escaped away, & the rest were wholly carried into England. About the same time the Earle of Cumberland, with one of the Queenes Ships, and fine or fix

20 more, kept about those Hands and came oftentimes so close under the Hand, and to the Road of Angra, that the people on land might easily tell all his men that he had aboord, and knew such as walked on the Hatches: they of the Hand not once flooting at them, although they might easily have done it, for they were within Musket shot both of the Towne and Fort. In these places he continued for the space of two Moneths, and failed round about the Hands, and landed in Gratiofs and Farael, as in the description of those Ilands I have already declared. Here he tooke divers Ships and Carvels, which he fent into England: fo that those of the Hand durft not once put forth their heads. At the fame time about three or foure dayes after the Earle of Cumberland had beene in the Iland of Fayael, and was departed from thence, there arrived in the faid Iland the number be of Fayael fix Indian Ships, whose Generall was one luan Dorym: and there they discharged in true. to the Iland fortie Millions of Gold and Silver. And having with all speede refreshed their Ships, fearing the comming of the Englishmen, they fet faile, and arrived fafely in Saint Lucas, not meeting with the enemy, to the great good lucke of the Spaniards, and hard fortune of the Englishmen; for that within leffe then two daies, after the Gold and Silver was laden again into the Spanilb Ships, the Earle of Cumberland failed againe by that Hand; fo that it appeared that God would not let them haue it, for if they had once had fight thereof, without doubt it had beene theirs, as the Spaniards themselves confessed.

brought the newes, but the reft were drowned.

In the moneth of November, thereamized in Tercera two great Ships, which were the Admirall and Viceadmirall of the Fleete laden with Silver, who with flormy weather were seperated from the Fleete, and had beene in great torment and diffresse, and ready to finke; for they were an forced to vie all their Pumps ; fo that they wished a thousand times to have met with the Engliftmen to whom they would willingly have given their Silver, and all that ever they brought with them, onely to faue their lives. And although the Earle of Cumberland lay still about those llands, yet they met not with him, so that after much paine and labor they got into the Road before Angra, where with all speed they vnladed, &discharged aboue 5. Millions of Silver, all in peeces of 8. and 10, pound great : fo that the whole Ray lay couered with plates & Chefts of Silver, Fine Millions. full of Ryals of eight, most wonderfull to behold : each Million being ten hundred thousand Ducats befides Pearles, Gold, and other stones, which were not registred. The Admiral & chief commander of those Ships and Fleete called Alnaro Flores de Quiniones was licke of the Neapolitan diteale, and was brought to land, whereof not long after he dyed in Symilia. He brought with him the Kings broad Scale and full authority to be Generall & chiefe commander vpon the Seas, and 50 of all Fleets or Ships, and of all places & llands, or Lands wherefoeuer he came : whereupon the Gouernor of Tercera did him great honor, and betweene them it was concluded, perceiuing the weaknesse of their Ships, and the danger of the Englishmen, that they would send the Shipsempty with Soldiers to conuey them, either to Simil or Lisbone, where they could first arrive, with adulte Pato his Maiefly of all that had path, and that he would give order to fetch the Silver, with good and lafe convoy. Wherepuon the laid Aluaro Flores staied there, under colour of keeping the Silver, but specially because of his difease, and for that they were afraid of the Englishmen. This Aluaro Flores had alone for his owne part abone fifty thousand Ducats in Pearles, which he shewed vnto vs, and fought to fell them, or barter them with vs for Spices, or bils of exchange. The faid two 60 Ships let faile with three or foure hundred men, as well Soldiers as others, that came with them and not one man faued. The Vice-admirall cut downe her Mast, and ranne the Ship on ground out of India, and being at Sea had a storme, wherewith the Admirall burst aud sunke in the Sea, hard by Sentunal, where it built in peeces, some of the men fauing themselves by swimming, that

CHAP.14.

In the fame moneth, there came two great ships out of the Spanish Indies , and being within halfe a mile of the Road of Tercera, they met with an English thippe, that after they had fought long together, tooke them both. About leven or eight moneths before, there had beene an En. glif (hip in Tercera, that vnder the name of a Frenchman came to traffique in the lland, there to lade wood, and being discouered was both ship and goods conficated to the Kings vie and all the men kept priloners : yet went they vp and downe the ffreets to get their liuings, by labouring like flaues, being in deed as fafe in that Iland, as if they had beene in prifon. But in the endy pon a Sanday all the Sailers went downe behind the Hils called Brefill : where they found a Fifherboat, whereinto they got, and rowed into the Sea to the Earle of Comberlands thip, which to their great fortune chanced at that time to come by the Hand, and anchored with his thips about 10 halfe a mile from the Road of Angra, hard by two small Hands, which lye about a Bales shoe from the Hand, and are full of Goats, Buckes, and Sheepe, belonging to the Inhabitants of the Iland of Tercera. Those Saylers knew it well, and thereupon they rowed voto them with their Boats, and lying at Anchor that day, they fetched as many Goats and Sheepe as they had neede of : which those of the Towne and of the Hand well faw and beheld, yet durit not once go forth. fothere remayned no more on Land but the Mafter, and the Merchant, of the faid Englifb thin. This Mafter had a Brother in Law dwelling in England, who having newes of his brothers imprisonment in Tercera, got licence of the Queene of England, to fet forth a ship, therewith to fee if he could recouer his losses of the Spaniards, by taking tome of them, and so to redeeme his brother, that lay priioner in Tercera, and he it was, that tooke the two Spanish thippes before the 20 Towne. The Matter of the fhip aforefaid, standing on the shore by me, and looking vpon them, for he was my great acquaintance, the flaipss being taken, that were worth three hundred thoufand Duckets, he ient all the men on Land fauing only two of the principall Gentlemen which he kept abourd, thereby to ransome his brother; and sent the Pilot of one of the Indian ships that were taken, with a Letter to the Gouernour of Tercera : wherein he wrote that hee should deliuer him his brother, and he would fend the two Gentlemen on Land: if not, he would faile with them into England, as indeed he did, because the Gouernour would not doe it, faying that the Gentleman might make that fuite to the King of Spaine himfelfe. This Spanish Pilot we bid to Supper with vs, and the Englishmen likewise, where hee shewed vsall the manner of their fight, much commending the order and manner of the Englapmens fighting, as also for their courteous 30 ving of him; but in the end the English Pilot likewife thole away in a French thip, without paying any ransome as yet.

In the moneth of Ianuary 1590, there arrived one ship alone in Treera, that came from the Spanish Indices, and brough newes, that there was a sheer of a hundred ships which pur out from the Firme Land of the Spanish Indices, and by a storme were driven you the Coast Called Fierda, where they were all cast away, she having only escaped, wherein these were great riches, and many men lost, as it may well be thought is to that they made their account that of two hounded and twentie ships, that for certaine were knowned to have put out of Nons Spaigna, Santo Domingo, Flancas, Capowerde, Brafilia, Goinea, che. In the yeare 1989, to layle for Spaise in Portugal, there were not about fourteene or sittene of them arrived these in safetie, all the rest being either drowned, burft or taken. In the fame Moneth of Ianuary, there arrived in Tercera fifteen or fixteene ships that came from Simila, which were most Flie boats of the low Countries, and fome Brittons that were arrested in Spaine: these came full of Souldiers, and well appointed with municion, to lade the filuer that lay in Tercera, and to fetch Aluares de Flores, by the Kings commandement into Spaine. And because that time of the yeerethere is alwayes fformes about those Ilands, therefore they durit not enter into the Road of Tercera, for that as then it blew fo great a storme, that some of their thips that had anchored, were forced to cut downe their Mafts, and were in danger to bee loft : and among the rest a ship of Biscay ranne against the Land, and was stricken in pieces, but all the men faued themselues. The other ships were forced to keepe the Sea, and separate themselues one from the other, where winde and weather would drive them, vntill the fitteenth of March : for that in all that time they could not have one day of faire weather to anchor in, whereby they indured much miserie, curfing both the filuer and the Hand. This storme being past, they chanced to meete with small English thip of about fortie tunnes in bignesse, which by reason of the great wind could not beare all her failes : fo they fet vpon her , and tooke her , and with the English flagge in their Admirals sterne they came as proudly into the Hauen, as if they had conquered all the Realme of England : but as the Admirall that bare the English flagge vpon her sterne, was entring into the Road, there came by chance two English ships by the Hand, that paid her so well for her paines, that they were forced to cry Miferwordia, and without all doubt had taken her, if the had beene but a mile further in the Sea : but becaule the got under the Fortreffe, which al- 62 to began to shoot at the Englishmen, they were forced to leave her, and to put further into the Sea, having flaine five or fixe of the Spaniards. The Englishmen that were taken in the small thip were put vinder hatches, and coupled in bolts, and after they had beene Prifoners three or foure dayes, there was a Spanife Enfigne-bearer in the fhip, that had a brother flaire in the fleet that came for England, who as then, minding to reuenge his death, and withall to shew his man-hood to the English Captiuses, that were in the English Shippe, which they had taken, as a storefaid, tooke a Ponyard in his hand, and went downer under the Hatches, where finding the poore Englishmen itting in bolts, with the same Ponyard he stabbed sixe of them to the heart: which two others of them perceiving, clasped each other about the middle, because they would not bee mutt ered by him, three themselves into the Sea, and there were drowned. This self was of all the Seasian and individed and very ill taken, so that they carried the Spaniard prisoner with Lishmen, where being articule, the King of Spanie willed he should be sent into England, that the Queene of England might vie him as she thought good: which senence his striends by intreating to to be so received, now withshanding he commanded he should without all facour be reheated? but you a good Friday, the Cardinall going to Maise, all the Captaines and Commanders made so great intreatie for him that in the end they got his pardot. This I though good to note, that men might vadertand the bloudte and honest minds to give that men might vadertand the bloudte and honest minds to when they have men when their moversion. The fame two Esphib hips, which followed the Spanifb Admirall, till hee had got vinder the Fort of Terera, as I had before, par into the Sea, where they met with an other Spanifb flips being of the fame fleete, that had likewise beens featered by the floring and was only milling for the rellty in the Road at this small flip the Esphilmen coke, and fent all the men on flore, nor burning any of them to the florehad knowne, what had beene done who the forefaid En-

20 glib Captines, I beleeue they would foone have revenged themselves, as afterward many an innoent foule payed for it. This ship thus taken by the Englishmen, was the same that was kept and conflicated in the Ilando Terera, by the Englishmen that got out of the Iland in assume that all the same from the Indies, where with they failed to Saine Lucas, where it was also arreited by the Duke, and appoined to goe in company to section the filter in Terera, because it was a shippe that slyded well: but among the Spaniards sheete it was the meaneth of the Company. By this meanes it was taken from the Spaniards, and carried into England, and the Owners had it againe; when they least thousands.

The nineteenth of March, the aforefaid fhips, being nineteene in number, fee faile, hauing Lagon The nineteenth of March, the aforefaid fhips, being nineteene in number, fee faile, hauing Lagon the Kings filter, and received in Albano Flores the Dissinous; with his company, and good proution of necessaries and admitted to fight valiantly to the last man, before they would yeeld or lofe their riches; and although they ite their courfe for Saint Lucas, the wind draw them wnto Lifbours, which (as it feemed) was willing by his force to helpe them, and to bring them thither in fafetic: although Albano de Wass willing by his force to helpe them, and to bring them thither in fafetic: although Albano de Flores; both against the wind and weather would perfore haue failed to Saint Lucas, but being contrained by the wind, and importunite of the Sailers, that protested they would require their losses and damages of him, he was content to faile to Lifones; from whence the filter was Land carried into Saintia. At Cape Saint Florens, there is a Fleet of twentie English fhippers, to witch for the Armada, to that it they had put into Saint Lucas, they had failen right into their head, which if the wind laid ferrued they had done. And therefore they may by that the wind water nor the Artimans, to that it mely had been. And therefore they may fay that the wind had lent them a happir Voyage; for if the Englipmen had mer with them, they had furely been in great danger, and polibly but few of them had cleaped, by realon of the feare wherewith they were polified, becault Fortune or rather God was wholly againft them. Which is a fufficient caule to make the Spainards out of heart, to the contrariet og jute the Engliffmen more courage, and to make them bolder for that they are victorious, flout and valiant: and leeing all their enterprizes due take to good effect, that thereby they are become Lords and Masters of the Sea; and need care for no man, as it well appeared by this burief Distourie.

In the month of March 1590. There was a Blafing Starrewith a taile feene in Tercera, that continued four nights together, stretching the tayle towards the South.

In the moneth of Mey, a Caruell of Fayarlarriued at Tercera, in the Hauen or Road of Argra, laden with Oxen, Sheepe, Hennes, and all other kinds of vickulas, and full of people, which by a forme had broken her Ruther, whereby the Sec act her about and therewith the funks, and in her were drowned three children, and a Firet Franciscan, the reft of the men faued themselves by fwimming, and by helpe from thehlore, but all the Cartle and Hennes came drowned to had the Firet was buried with a great Procession and Solemnitte, etherming him for a Saint, because he was taken up deat with his Booke between the isames; for the which cause curry man came to looke on him as a Mirale, guing great Offerings to lay Maifes for his loote.

The first of August, the Governor of Treera, received adulte out of Peringal and Spaine, that two years is before the date of the Letters, there were hydrod out of England twelve great hip yes of well appointed, with full reliabition to take their iournie, seunor of them into the Peringal Indus, and the other five to O'Malacas; of the which five, two were cast away in passing the Straits of Magellanes, and three Lyyled to Malacas; but what they had done there, was as then not knowne. The other seven pushed the Cupe de bona Speranza, and arrived in Indus, where they put into the Coalt of O'Malabares, but bet them goe agains: and two Turk-sh Gallies, that came out of the Straits of Mecca or the Red Sea, to whom likewife they did no hurt. And there they laded their fhips wis Spices, and returned backe againe on their way : but where or in what place they had laden, it was not certainely knowne, fauing onely that thus much was written by the Gouernour of India, and fent ouer Land to Venice, and from thence to Madrill.

. . .

Six M.Frobilher.

The feventh of August, a Nauie of English ships was feene before Tercera, beeing twentie in number, and fine of them the Queenes thips : their Generall was one Martin Frobifber, as wee after had intelligence. They came purposely to watch for the fleet of the Spanish Indies, and for the Indian thips, and the thippes of the Countries in the West : which put the Handers in great feare, specially those of Fayael, for that the Englishmen sent a Trumpet to the Governour to aske certaine wine, flesh, and other victuals for their money, and good friendship. They of Farael did nor onely refuse to give eare vnto them, but with a shot killed their Messenger or Trumpetter : which the Englishmen tooke in cuil part, fending them word that they were best to looke to themselves, and stand upon their guard, for they meant to come and visit them whether they would or no. The Gouernour made them answere, that he was there, in the behalfe of his Maiestie of Spaine and that he would doe his best, to keepe them out, as he was bound : but no thing was done, although they of Farael were in no little feare, fending to Tercera for aide, from whence they had certaine Barkes with Powder and Munition for warre, with some Bisket and other necellary prouition.

The thirtieth of August, we received very certaine newes out of Portugal, that there were 20 eightie thips put out of the Caranho, laden with Victuals, Munition, Money, and Souldiers, to goe for Britaine to aide the Catholikes and Leaguers of France, against the King of Nauarre. At the fame time, two Netherland Hulkes, comming out of Portugal to Tercera, beeing halfe the Seasouer, met with foure of the Queenes shippes, their Generall beeing Sir lobn Hankins, that flaved them, but let them goe againe, without doing them any harme. The Netberlanders reported, that each of the Queenes ships had eightie Peeces of Ordnance, and that Captaine Drake lay with fortie thins in the English Channell, watching for the Armie of Carnello and likewife that there lay at the Cape Saint Vincent tenne other English thips, that if any thips escaped from the Ilands, they might take them. Those tidings put the Ilanders in great feare, lest if they failed of the Spanish fleete, and got nothing by them, that then they would fall upon the Hands, be- 20 caule they would not returne emptie home, whereupon they held straight watch, sending aduife voto the King what newes they heard.

The first of September, there came to the lland of Saint Michael a Portugal ship, out of the Hauen of Pernanbuce, in Brafilia, which brought newes that the Admirall of the Portugall fleet, that came from India, having miffed the Hand of Saint Helena, was of necessitie constrained to put in at Pernanbuco, although the King had expreily under a great penaltie forbidden him foto doe, because of the Wormes that there doe spoile the ships. The same ship wherein Bernaldine Rybero, was Admirall, the yeere before 1589. Sayled out of Liftone into the Indies, with fine thips in her company, whereof but foure got into India, the hit was neuer heard of, so that it was thought to be cast away : The other foure returned fafe againe into Portugal, though the Ad- 40 mirall was much spoiled, because he met with two English ships, that fought long with him, and flue many of his men, but yet he escaped from them.

The fift of the same moneth, there arrived in Tercera, a Caruell of the Iland of Corno, and brought with her fiftie men that had beene spoyled by the Englishmen, who had fet them on shore in the Hand of Corno, being taken out of a shippe that came from the Spanifo Indies, they brought tydings that the Englishmen had taken foure more of the Indian ships, and a Carnell with the King of Spaines Letters of aduite for the thips comming out of the Portugall Indies, and that with those which they had taken, they were at the least forty English ships together, so that not one Barke escaped them, but fell into their hands, and that therefore the Portugall ships comming out of India, durft not put into the Hands, but tooke their course underfortie and forcie two de- 50 grees, and from thence failed to Lifton, flunning likewife the Cape Saint Vincent, otherwife they could not have had a prosperous journey of it, for that as then the Sea was full of English thips. Wherupon the King admied the fleet, lying in Hanana, in the Spanish Indies ready to come for Spaine, that they should stay there all that yeere till the next yeere, because of the great danger they might fall into by the Englishmen, which was no small charge and hinderance to the fleet, for that the ships that lie there doe consume themselues, and in a manner eate vp one another, by reason of the great number of people, together with the scarcitie of all things, so that many thips chose rather, one by one to aduenture themselues alone, to get home, then to stay there : all which fell into the Englishmens hands, whereof divers of the men were brought into Tercera, for that a whole day we could fee nothing elfe, but spoyled men fet on shore, some out 60 of one ship some out of another, that pittie it was to see, all of them cursing the Englishmen, and their owne fortunes, with those that had beene the causes to prouoke the Englishmen to fight, and complayning of the small remedie and order taken therein by the King of Spaines Officers.

The nineteenth of the same moneth, there came to Tercera a Caruel of Lifen, with one of the Kings Officers, to cause the goods that were faued out of the ship, which came from Malacea, (for the which we stayed there) to be laden, and lent to Lifton. And at the same time there put out of the Carunda one Don Alonfo de Baffan, with fortie great ships of warre to come vato the Ilands, there to watch for the fleet of the Spanish and Portugal Indies, and the goods of the Malaces hip being laden, they were to convoy them all together into the River of Life on : but being certaine dayes at Sea, alwayes having a contrary wind they could not get who the Hands: only two of them that were feattered from the fleet, they prefently returned backe to feeke them ; in the meane time the King changed his minde, and caufed the fleet to flay in India, as I faid before : and therefore he fent word vnto Don Alongo de Baffan, that hee should return e againe to the Ca-10 rands, which he prefently did (without doing any thing, nor once approching neere the llands, fauing only the two forefaid thips, for he well knew that the Englifemen lay by the Hand of Corso, but he would not wifit them : and fo he returned to the Hausn of Carmba, whereby our goods that came from Malacea, were yet to thip, and cruffed vp againe, forced to flay a more fortunace time, with patience perforce. The three and twentieth of O Cober, there arrived in Tecera 2 Caruell, with adule out of Portingal, that of fine ships, which in the yeere 1 550. were laden in Lift on for the Indies, foure of them were turned agains to Portingall, after they had beene foure moneths abroad, and that the Admirall, wherein the Vice-roy called Mathia de Alburkerke lailed, had only gotten to India, as afterward newes thereof was brought ouer Land, having beene at the least eleven monethes at 20 Sea, and neuer faw Land, and came in great milery to Malacca. In this ship there died by the 180. mendie

Sea, and neuer faw Land, and came in great mitery to Datacess. In this tinp tiete even by the way two hundred and eightie men, according to a note by himfelfe made, and lent to the Cario one Woyage; one Woyage; one Voyage, dinall at $Li\beta$ on, with the names and furnames of enery man, together with a description of his by one mans Voyage, and the mifery they had indured : which was only done, because he would not lose the vanite. gouernment of India: and for that cause he had swotne either to lose his life, or to arrive in India as indeed he did afterwards, but to the great danger, losse and hinderance of his company. that were forced to buy it with their lines, and onely for want of prouision, as it may well bee thought: for he knew full well that if he had returned backe againe into Portingall, as the other thips did, hee should have beene casheered from his Indian Regiment, because the people began alreadie to murmurre at him, for his proude and loftie minde. And among other things that 30 shewed his pride the more, behind aboue the Gallery of his ship, he caused Fortune to be painted. and his owne Picture with a staffe standing by her, as it were threatning Forume, with this Poesie, Quero que vencus, that is, I will have thee to overcome: which beeing read by the Cardinall and other Gentlemen (that to honour him aboord his thip) it was thought to be a point of exceeding folly. But it is no ftrange matter among the Portingalle, for they about all others mult of torce Let the Foole peope out of their fleenes, specially when they are in authoritie : for that I knew the faid Mathias de Alberkerk in India, being a Souldier and a Captaine, where he was e-Reemed and accounted for one of the best of them, and much honoured, and beloued of all men. as behaving himfelfe courteoutly to every man : whereby they all defired that he might be Viceroy. But when he once had received his Patent with full power and authoritie from the King to DeVice-roy, hee changed so much from his former behaviour, that by reason of his pride, they all began to feare and curie him, and that before he departed out of Lifton, as it is often feene in many men that are advanced vnto state and dignitie.

The twentieth of Ianuary, Auno 1591, there was newes brought out of Portingall into Tersera, that the Englishmen had taken a thip, that the King had fent into the Portingal Indies, with aduile to the Vice-roy, for the returning againe of the foure ships that should have gone to India, and because the ships were come backe againe, that ship was stuffed and laded as full of goods as possible it might be, hauing likewise in ready money fine hundred thousand Duckets in Rials of eight, besides other wares. It departed from Liftone in the moneth of November 1590. and met with the Engliftmen, with whom for a time it fought : but in the end it was taken and carried 50 into England with men and all, yet when they came there the men were let at libertie, and returned into Liftone, where the Captaine was committed Prifoner: but hee excufed himfelfe, and was released, with whom I spake my selfe, and he made this report vnto me. At the same time also they tooke a thip that came from the Myne laden with Gold, and two thips laden with Pepper, and Spices that were to faile into Italie, the Pepper onely that was in them, being worth 178000. Duckets: all theleships were carried into England, and made good prize.

In the moneth of July , An. 1591, there happened an Earth-quake in the Hand of S. Michaell, which continued from the fix and twentieth of July to the twelfth of August : in which time Earthquake no man durft flay within his house, but fled into the fields, fasting and praying, with great for- most terrible. 40 tow for that many of their houles fell downe, and a Towne called Villa Franca, was almost cleanerazed to the ground all the Cloysters and houses shaken to the earth, and thereia some people flaine. The Land in tome places rose vp, and the Cliffes removued from on place to another, and some Hils were defaced and made even with the ground. The Earthquake was so Arong, Province. that the flips which lay in the Road, and on the Sea, shaked as if the World would hate turned round: there sprang also a Fountaine out of the earth, from whence for the space of four dayes,

1678

Sir Richard

Hat Tom. 2.

Tais Storie

There were

Shippes the

Sir Richard

counfeiled

(which had and thought to made way

thorow their

there flowed a most cleare water, and after that it ceased. At the same time they heard such thunder and noise under the earth, asif all the Dinels in hell had beene affembled together in that place, wherewith many died for feare. The Hand of Tercera shooke foure times together. to that it feemed to turne about, but there happened no misfortune vato it. Earthquakes are common in those Ilands, for about twenty yeares past there happened another earthquake. where in a high Hill that lyeth by the same towne of Villa Franca, fell halfe downe, and covered all the towne with earth and killed many men.

. The fine and twentieth of August, the Kings Armada, comming out of Farolartiued in Terces ra, being in all thirty Ships, Biskaies, Portugals, and Spaniards : and ten Dutch flye-boates, that were arefted in Lisbone to ferue the King, besides other small Ships Pataxos, that came to serue to as meffengers from place to place, and to difcouer the Seas. This Nauie came to flay for and connov the Sups that thould come from the Spanish Indies, and the five-boates were appointed in their returns home, to take in the goods that were faued in the loft Ship that came from Malacea, and to convoy it to Lisbone.

The thirteenth of September the faid Armado arrived at the Hand of Corne, where the Eng. Ulmen wish about fixteene Ships, as then lay, flaying for the Spanish Fleete: whereof fome or the most part were come, and there the English were in good hope to have taken them. But when they perceived the Kings Army to be firong, the Admirall being the Lord Thomas How. and, commanded his Fleete not to fall your them, nor any of them once to seperate their Shippes Greenuile. See from him, valefie he gaue commission to to doe : notwithstanding the Vice-Admirall, Sir Rich- 20 and Greenfield, being in the Ship called the Remenge, went into the Spanish Fleete, and shot among them, doing them great hurt, and thinking the rest of the company would have followpenned by Sie ed : which they did not but left him there, and failed away; the cause why they could not know: which the Spaniards perceiving, with feuen or eight Ships they boorded her, but she withstood but fix of thefe them all, fighting with them at the leaft twelve houres together, and funke two of them, one Queenes : and being a new double Flie-boate of twelve thouland tunnes, and Admirall of the Flie-boates, the other a Biscaine: But in the end by reason of the number that came upon her, she was taken, but Greenstie ftaid to their great lose; for they had lost in fighting, and by drowning about four hundred men; and to recover his of the English were slaine about a hundred, Sir Richard Greenfield himselfe being wounded in his men on thore; braine, whereof afterwards he died, He was borne into the Ship called the Saint Paul, wherein 30 93.of his men were ficke. He was the Admirall of the Fleete Don Alonfo de Barfan : there his wounds were dreft by the Spascorned to five nilly Surgeons, but Don Along himselfe would neither fee him, nor speake with him; all the as the Mafter rest of the Captaines and Gentlemen went to visite him, and to comfort him in his hard fortune, wondring at his courage and flout heart, for that he shewed not any signe of faintnesse nor changing of colow. But feeling the houre of death to approach, he spake these words in Spanish, and beeneberter) faid : Here dre ! Richard Greenfield, with a joyfull and quiet minde, for that I have ended my life at a true Souldier ought to doe, that hath fought for his Countrey, Queene, Religion, and honour, whereby my Soule most toyfull departeth out of this body, and shall alwayes leave behinde it an enerlasting fame of a valiant and true Soldier, that hath done his duetie, as bee was bound to doe. When he had finished these or such other like words, he gaue up the Ghost with great and stout courage, and no man 40 could perceive any true figne of heavineffe in him.

This Sir Richard Greenfield was a great and a rich Gentleman in England, and had great yearsly reuenewes of his owne inheritance : but he was a man very vnquiet in his minde, and greatly affected to warre; in so much as of his owne private motion he offered his fervice to the Queene. him, becalmed He had performed many valiant acts, and was greatly feared in these Ilands, and knowne of every man; but of nature very severe, so that his owne people hated him for his fiercenesse, and spake very hardly of him : for when they first entred into the Fleete or Armado, they had their menge could not feele her failes great faile in a readinelle, and might possibly enough haue failed away; for it was one of the best nor helme, and Ships for faile in England; and the Mafter perceiuing that the other Ships had left them, and folwasboorded lowed not after, commanded the great faile to be cut, that they might make away : but Sir Rich- 50 by the S. Philip ard Greenfield threatned both him, and all the rest that were in the Ship, that if any man laid hand vpon it, he would cause him to be hanged, and so by that occasion they were compelled to fight, and in the end were taken. He was of to hard a complexion, that as hee continued among the Spanish Captaines while they were at dinner or supper with him, hee would caroufe three or foure Glasses of Wine, and in a brauery take the Glasses betweene his teeth, and crash feuerall Armathem in peeces, and (wallow them downe, so that often times the bloud ran out of his mouth without any harme at all voto him : and this was told me by divers credible persons that many times flood and beheld him. The Englishmen that were lest in the Ship, as the Captaine of the fpent to the laftbarrellinor had fifth about 100 found mento fulfaine to the brunt. Yet the endured fifter ne houres fight, fifteene Armadas by turne, 800, flot, 60 many entries, 53, failes of men of warre, and 10000, men to doe this. After all this, Sir R. Greunfeld now wounded, commanded to be " vp the Ship but the Captaine intreating to the contrary, he Miker was fent, vnknowne to Sir R Greefield, to treat a composition with a tran the Generall, who yeelded their lives to be faued, and to be fint for England, the better for to pay raniome. but free meane time from prison and Gallie. Almost 1000,01 the enemies were flaine in this light. Thus have I given you the birish of Sir Walters report also, tomake this storie compleate. Soldiers,

CHAP.14. Great surrefie shewed. The Reuenge cast away in Tercera.

Souldiers, the Master and others were dispersed into divers of the Spany Ships that had taken them, where there had almost a new fight arisen betweene the Biscaines and the Portugals; while each of them would have the honour to have first boorded her, so that there grew a great noise and quarrell among them, one taking the chiefe Ancient, and the other the Flagge, and the Captaine and enery one held his owne. The ships that had boorded her were altogether out of order and broken, and many of their men hurt, whereby they were compelled to come into the Iland of Tercers, there to repaire themselves: where being arrived, I and my chamber-fellow, to heare fome newes went abourd one of the Ships being a great Biscaine, and one of the twelue Apofiles, whose Captaine was called Bertandono, that had bin Generall of the Biscaines in the fleete to that went for England. He leeing vs, called vs vp into the Gallery, where with great curtefie hereceized vs, being as then fet at dinner with the English Captaine that fat by him, and had on a lute of blacke Veluet; but he could not tell vs any thing, for that he could speake no other language but English and Latine, which Bartandono also could a little speake. The English Captaine that he might come on land with his weapon by his fide, and was in our lodging with the Englifoman that was kept priloner in the Hand, being of that thip whereof the failers got away, as I laid before. The Gouernour of Tercera bad him to dinner, and fhewed him great curtefie. The Matter likewise with licence of Bartandono came on land, and was in our lodging, and had arthe leaft ten or twelve wounds, as well in his head, as on his body, whereof after that being at Sea, betweene Lisbone and the llands he died. The Captaine wrote a Letter, wherein he de-20 clared all the manner of the fight, and left it with the English Merchant that lay in our lodging, to find it to the Lord Admirall of England. The England Captaine comming to Lisbone, was there well received, and not any hurt done vnto him, but with good condoy fent to Sentunal, and from thence tayled into England, with all the self of the Englishmen that were taken

The Spanish Armie stated at the Hand of Corno till the last of September, to assemble the rest of the Fleete together: which in the end were to the number of one hundred and forty fayle of Ships, parely comming from India, and parely of the Army, and being altogether ready vnto faile to Tercera in good company, there foldinly role to hard and cruell a storme, that those of the Great storme,

Hand did affirme, that in mans memory there was neuer any fuch feene or heard of before : for 30 it seemed the Sea would have swallowed up the Hands, the water mounting higher then the Cliffes, which are to high that it amafeth a man to behold them : but the Sea reached aboue them, and living fiftes were throwne vpon the land. This ftorme continued not onely a day or two with one winde, but seven or eight dayes continually, the winde turning round about, in all places of the compate, at the leaft twice or thrice during that time, and all alike, with a continuall stormeand tempest most terrible to behold, euen to vs that were on shore, much more Greathuris. then to fuch as were at Sea : fo that onely on the Coatts and Clifts of the Hand of Tercera, there were about twelue Ships cast away, and not onely upon the one side, but round about it in every corner: whereby nothing elfe was heard but complaining, crying, lamenting, and telling here is a ship broken in peeces against the Cliffes, and there another, and all the men drowned: so that 40 for the space of twenty dayes after the storme, they did nothing else but fish for dead men, that Reseggereues.

for the space of twenty dayes after the storme, they did nothing encount and not dead men, they god with the continually came driding on the shore. Among the rest was the English ship called the Renenge, Jose of about that was call away young Chiffe neere to the Hand of Tereers, where it brake in a hundred pee- 100.0therships ces, and funke to the ground, having in her fewenty men Galleges, Biscaines, and others, with of the spaniards some of the captine Englishmen, whereof but one was laued that got vp vpon the Cliffes aliue, attending her and had his body and head all wounded, and he being on thore brought vs the newes, defiring to fates: as great be fhriuen, and thereupon prefently died. The Reusage had in her divers faire Braffe Peeces, that were all funke in the Sea, which they of the Hand were in good hope to weigh vp againe the next Summer following. Among these Ships that were call away about Tercera, was likewise a Flie-boate, one of those that had bin arested in Portugal to serue the King, called the White 50 Done. The Master of her, was one Cornelinu Martenson of Schiedam in Holland, and there were in her one hundred Souldies, as in every one of the rest there was. He being over ruled by the Captaine, that he could not be Master of his owne, fayling here and there at the mercy of God, as the storme droughim, in the end came within the fight of Tercera: which the Spaniards per-ceiuing, thought all their fafety onely to confist in putting into the Road, compelling the Mafter and the Pilot to make towards the lland, although the Master refused to doe it, saying, that they were most fore there to be cast away, and vererly spoiled but the Captain called him drunkard, & Heretick, and striking him with a staffe, commanded him to do as he would have him. The Mafter feeing this, and being compelled to doe it, faid: well then my Mafters, feeing it is the desire of you all to be cast away, I can but loofe one life; and therewith desperately he failed to-60 wards the shoare, and was on that side of the sland, where there was nothing effe but hard stones and Rockes, as high as Mountaines, most terrible to behold, where some of the Inhabitants stood with long ropes and corke bound at the end thereof, to throw them downe vnto the men, that they might lay hold upon them and faue their hues; but few of them got so neere, most of them being calt away, and smitten in peeces before they could get to the wall. The Ship sailed in this Aaaaaaa fquadrons, and made fome foring loofe till the great-neffe of the S.Philipof 1500 tuns being in the winde of his failes; fo nenge could not and foure others. Thefe were bearen

das affailed

her. All her

Powder was

manner (as I faid before) towards the Hand, and approaching to the shoare, the Master being an old man, and full of yeares, cailed his Sonne that was in the ship with him, and having imbraced one another, and taken their last farewell, the good old father willed his Sonne not to take care for him, but feeke to faue himfelte : for (faid he) fonne, thou art yong, and may have fome hope to faue thy life, but as for me it is no great matter (I am old) what become of me, and therewith each of these shedding many teares, as every louing father and kinde childe may well confider ; the ship fell upon the Cliffes and brake in peeces, the Father on the one fide, the sonne on the other fide falling into the fea, each laying hold upon that which came next to hand, but to no purpose; for the sea was so high and furious, that they were all drowned, and onely sourceteene or fitteene faued themselves by swimming, with their legges and armes halfe broken and to out of ioynt; among the which was the Masters sonne, and soure other Dutch Boyes : the rest of the Spaniards and failers, with the Captaine and Mafter were drowned: whose heart would not melt with teares to behold fo grieuous a tight, specially confidering with himselfe that the greatelt cause thereof was the bealtlinesse and intolency of the Spaniards, as in this onely example may well be feene : whereby may be confidered how the other ships sped, as we our selues did in part behold, and by the men that were faued did heare more at large, as also some others of our Countries on that as then were in the like danger can well witnesse.

On the other Hands the loffe was no leffe then in Tercera; for on the Hand of Saint George there were two Ships cast away : on the Iland of Pico two Ships : on the Iland of Gratiofa three fhips, & belides those there came everywhere round about divers peeces of broken ships, & other 20 things fleeting towards the Hands, wherewith the Sea was all couered most pittifull to behold. On the Hand of Saint Michael, there were foure Ships cast away, and betweene Tercera and Saint Michaels; three more were lunke, which were feene and heard to crie out, whereof not one man was faued. The rest put into the Sea without Masts, all torne and rent : so that of the whole Fleete and Armado, being one hundred and forty ships in all, there were but thirty two or thirty three arrived in Spaine and Portagall, yea and those few with so great milery, paine and labour. that not two of them arrived there together, but this day one, and to morrow another next day the third. & so one after the other to the number aforefaid. All the rest were cast away you the Ilands, and overwhelmed in the fea: whereby may be confidered what great loffe and hinderance they received at that time : for by many mens judgements it was effeemed to be much more 30 then was left by their Armie that came for England, and it may well be thought, and prefumed. that it was no other but a just plague purposely fent by God vpon the Spaniards, and that it might truely be faid, the taking of the Resenge was justly revenged voon them, and not by the might or force of man, but by the power of God, as some of them openly faid in the lile of Tercera, that they believed verily God would confume them, and that he tooke part with Lutberans and Heretickes: faying further, that so soone as they had throwne the dead body of the Viceadmirall Sir Richard Greenfield ouer-boord, they verily thought that as he had a diuellish Faith and Relion, and therefore the Divels loved him, to he presently sunke into the bottome of the Sea, and downe into Hell, where he raifed up all the Dinels to the revenge of his death : and that they brought to great flormes and torments upon the Spaniards, because they onely maintained the 40 Catholike and Romifb Religion : fuch and the like blasphemies against God, they ceased not openly to veter, without that any man reproued them therein, nor for their false opinions, but the most part of them rather faid and affirmed, that of truth it must needes be fo.

and 20. others of the Indian Fleete.

Note.

Caiaphas pro-

God taketh

part with Lu-

So then the

gares of hell

preuaileth a-

e inft their phelieth.

therans.

1680

As one of those Indian Flee: es put out of Nona Spaigna, there were fine and thirty of them by forme and tempell cast away and drowned in the Sea, being fiftie in all, so that but fifteene escaped. Of the Fleete that came from Santo Domingo, there were foureteene cast away, comming out of the Channell of Hanana, whereof the Admirall and Viceadmirall were two of them : and Two Shipsof from Terra Firma in India, there came two ships laden with Gold and Silver, that were taken treasure taken by the Englishmen, and before the Spanish Armie came to Corno, the Englishmen at times had taken by the English, at the least twenty thips, that came from Saint Domingo, India, Brafillia, &c. and all fent into 50 England. Whereby it plainly appeareth, that in the end God will affuredly plague the Spaniards, having already blinded them, so that they have not the sence to perceive it, but still to remaine in their obstinate opinions; but it is lost labour to strine against God, and to trust in man, as being foundations erected upon the fands, which with the winde are blowne downe and ouerthrowne, as we daily fee before our eyes, and now not long fince in many places have euidently observed; and therefore let every man but looke into his ownc actions, and take our Low-Countries for an example, wherein we can but blame our owne sinnes and wickednesses, which doth so blinde vs, that we wholly forget and reject the benefits of God, continuing the servants and yoke-flaues of Sathan. God of his mercy open our eyes and hearts, that wee may know our onely health and Sauiour Iefus Christ, who onely can helpe, gouerne, and presente vs, and give vs 62 a happy end in all our affaires. By this destruction of the Spaniards, and their cuill successe, the lading and shipping of the goods that were faued out of the ship that came from Malacca to Tercera, was againe put off ; and therefore wee must have patience till it please God to fend a ficter time, and that we receive further adulfe and order from his Majestie of So aine.

All this being thus past, the Farmers of Pepper and other Merchants that had their goods in Tercera, which were taken out of the loft flip that came from Malacta, feeing that the hope of any Armada, or any thips in the Kings behalfe to be fent to fetch it, was all in vaine they made request vnto his Maiesty, that he would grant them licence every man particularly to ship his goods in what ship he would at his owneaduenture, which in the end, after long suite, was granred, your condition that every man should put in fureties, to deliver the goods in the Customehouse at Liebone, to the end the King might be paied his custome, as also that the goods that should be deliuered vnto them in Tercera, should all be registred: whereupon the Farmers of Pepper, with other Merchants, agreed with a Flubinger, to fetch all the Cloues, Nutmegs, 10 Mace, and other spices and goods that belonged vnto them, the Pepper onely excepted, which as then the King would not grant to lade. The same Ship arrived in Tercers about the last of Nouember, and because it was somewhat dangerous, being the latter end of the yeare, we laded her with all the speede we could, for as then the coast was cleare of Englishmen. To be short this Flashinger being laden with most part of the goods, fauing the Pepper that was left behinde, we fet faile for Lisbone, passing some small stormes, not once meeting with any ship, but onely vpon the coast where we saw ten Hollanders, that sailed with Corne towards Ligorne, and other places in Italie, and fo by Gods helpe vpon the fecond of Ianuary, Anno 1 592. we arrived in the River of Lisbone, being nine yeares after my departure from thence, and there I staied till the month of July, to dispatchssuch things as I had to doe, and vpon the feuenteenth of the fame month, I went to Sentanal, where certaine Hollanders lay, with whom I went for Helland. The end of the eight Booke. ENG-Azzazza z

CHAP. 14. Request made to the King of Spaine, River of Lisbone.

ENGLISH PLANTATIONS, DISCOVERIES,

ACTS, AND OCCVRRENTS,

IN VIRGINIA AND SVMMER ILANDS SINCE THE YEERE

1606. TILL 1624.

THE XIXTH BOOKE.

CHAP. I.

Part of the first Patent granted by his Maiestie for the Plantation of Virginia, Aprill the tenth 1606.

MES by the grace of God, Ge. Whereas our laning and welldifford Subsects, Sir Thomas Gates, Sir George Summers
Knights, Richard Hakluyt Clerke, Prebendary of Wessmitters Knights, Richard Wingssield, Thomas Hannam, Rawleigh Gilbert Esquires, William Parker, George Popham, and diness athers of our laning Subsects have been humble Suitors-vanies that we would ownch fast out them our License to make Habitation, Plantation, and to deduce a Colonie of sundry of our people into that part of America; commonly called Vinginia; and wher parts and Territories in America, either appertayning outous, or which now are not attually possible and the processor people, setante thym and being all along the Sea Coass between their some degrees of Northerly latitude from the Equinoctial Line, and forthe fine degrees of the same latitude, and in the mayne Land betweene the same thirtie foure and fortic fine degrees, and the Hands thereunto adsacent within one hundred miles of the Coast thereof. And to that end, and for the more speedie accomplishment of the faid intended Plantation and Habitation there, are desirous to denide themselves into 50 two fenerall Colonies and Companies, the one confisting of certaine Knights, Gentlemen, Merchants, and other Aduenturers of our Citie of London and elsewhere, which are and from time to time shall be iorned unto them, which dee desire to beginne their Plantations and Habitations, in some sit and convenient place betweene thirtie foure and fortie one degrees of the Said latitude, all alongst the Sea Coast of Vitginia, and Coast of America aforesaid. And the other consisting of sundry Knights, Gentlemon, Merchans, and other Adventurers of our Cities, of Brittoll and Exeter, and of our Towns of Plymmouth and other places which doe toyne themselves unto that Colonie, which defire to beginne their Plantations and Habitations in some fit and convenient place betweene thirtie eight and fortie five degrees of the said latitude: all alongst the faid Coast of Virginia and America, as that Coast lyeth. We greatly commending and graciously accepting of their desires to the furtherance of so Noble a worke, which may by the 60 providence of Almightie God hereafter tend to the glorie of his Dinine Maiestie, in propagating of Christian Religion, to such people as yet line in darknesse, miserable ignorance of the true knowledge andworship of God, and may in time bring the Infidels and Sauages (liuing in those parts) to bumane civilitie and to a fettled and quiet government, doe by thefe our Letters Patents graciously accept of, and agree to their humble and well intended defires, And doe therefore for vs our Herres and Successours

The Stft Colony to bec planted be-LW:XT 34.86 41. degrees of They to have all the Lands. arc. for the space of liftie miles West South-weft from the place The like Eaft North-eaft with all Hands againft them. 100. Wihin the Land, &c. None to inhabicon the ou: their fpeciall licence in writing, &c.

grant and agree that the faid Str Thomas Gates, Str George Summers, Richard Hakhuyt, and Elward Maria Wingheld, Aduenturers of our Chie of London, and all fuebethers as are or feath be loyned unto them of that Colome fall be called the first Colonie, and they shall and may beginne their faid fir Plantation and Seate, of their first abode and Habitation at any place upon the faid Coast of Virginia or America, where they hall thinke fit and convenient, betweene the faid thirtie foure and for-Marchlaritude. tie one degrees of the faid latitude. And that they Shall have all the Lands, Woods, Soyle, Grounds. Hauens, Ports, Rivers, Mynes, Minerals, Marishes, Waters, Fishings, Commodities, and Hereditaments what foener, from the faid first seate of their Plantation, and Habitation by the space of fiftie miles of English Stainte measure all alongst the said Coast of Virginia and America, towards the west and South-west as the Coast lyeth, withat the Hands within one hundred miles directly over against the 10 Same Sea Coast: And also all the Lands, Soyle, Grounds, Hanens, Ports, Rivers, Mynes, Myneralls. Woods, Marifres, Waters, Fishings, Commodities, and Hereditaments, what seener from the saidplace or their min planings, and of their first Plantation and Habitation for the space of fiftee like English miles and alongst the said Coast all Mynes, &c. of Virginia, and America, towards the East and North-east as the Coast tyeth, together with all the !lands within one hundred miles directly over against the same Sea-coast. And also all the Lands, Woods. Soyle, Grounds, Haums, Ports, Rivers, Mynes, Mynerals, Marifees, Waters, Fiftings, Commodities, and Hereditaments, what seener from the same, fiftie miles every way on the Sea Coast directly into in the Sta oues the mapne Landby the space of one hundred like English miles. And shall and may inhabit and remayne there, and shall and may also build and fortifie within any the same for their better safeguard and defence, according to their best discretions, and the direction of the Councell of that Colonie. And that 20 no other of our Subiects [ball be permitted or suffered to plant , or inhabit behind or on the backefide of them towards the manne Land, without the expresse license or consent of the Councell of that Colonic, backfide with thereunto in writing first had or obtained, And we doe likewise for vs our Herres and Successors, by these presents, grant and agree that the Said Thomas Hanham, Rawleigh Gilbert, William Parker, and Grorge Popliam, and all others of the Towne of Plimmouth in the Countie of Devon, or elembere, which are or Shall be soyned unto them of that Colonie Shall be called the second Colonie, and that ther Ball and may begin their faid first Plantation and Seate, of their first aboad and Habitation at any place upon the faid Coast of Virginia and America; where they stall thinke fit and convenient betweene thirtie eight and fortie fine degrees of the same latitude, and that they hall have all the Lands, Soyle, Grounds, Hauens, Ports, Riners, Mynes, Minerals, Woods, Marifhes, Waters, Fiftings, Com. 30 modities, and Hereditaments, what societ from the first Seate of their Plantation and Habitation . br the Bace of fiftee like English miles, as a afore faid, all alongst the faid Coaft of Virginia and America towards the West and South-west, and towards the South as the Coast lieth: And all the Hands within one bundred miles directly over against the same Sea Coast. And also all the Lands, Soyle, Grounds, Hauens, Ports, Riners, Mynes, Mynerals, Woods, Marifies, Waters, Fishings, Commoduies, and Hereditaments what seener from the said place of their first Plantation and Habitation for the space of siftie like English miles all alongit the faid Coast of Virginia and America, towards the East and Northeast, and towards the North as the Coast leeth, and all the Hands within one hundred miles directly over against the same Coast, and also all the Lands, 59th, Grounds, Hauess, Potts, Sturers, Woods, Affret, 40 Affret as apharoller, Waters, Felhomes, Commodities and Hereditaments what seven the same 40 Affret as apharoller, Waters, Felhomes, Commodities and Hereditaments what seven from the same 40 fiftie miles every way on the Sea Coast derettly into the mayne Land, by the frace of one hundred like English miles; and shall and may inhabu there, and shall and may also build and fortific within any the fame, for their better sufeguard according to their best discretions, and the direction of the Courcell of that Colonie, and that nane of our Subjects shall be permitted or suffered to plant or inhabit behind, or on the backe of them towards the mayne Land, without the expresselections or consent of the Councell of that Colonie in writing thereunto first had and obteined. Prouided alwayes, Gc. It followeth that neither Colonie shall plant within one hundred miles of each other; also that each Colonie shall have a Councell of thirteene persons to rule and be ruled according to Articles let downe and confirmed under the Privie Seale (which I have, but for brevitie omit, as alfo the rest of this Patent) the Seales of each Colonic appointed, the digging of Mynes granted Jo in the fame, and on the backfide of their Colonies within the mayne Land , paying the fit of Gold and Silver, and the fitteenth of Copper to the King; libertie to carrie all Subiects (not reftrained) which will goe with them. Of coyning for the Colonies vie there, of repelling enemies, of flaying thips which trade there without leave, were too long to reherle, feeing this Patent hath beene often altered and renewed.

CHAP.

CHAP. II2

Observations gathered out of a Discourse of the Plantation of the Southerne Colonie in Virginia by the English, 1 606. Written by that Honorable Gentleman Master GEORGE PERCY.

Saturday the twentieth of December in the yeere 1606, the fleet fell from London, and the fift of lanuary we anchored in the Downes; but the winds continued contrarie fo long, that we were forced to flay there some time, where wee suffered great stormes, but by the skilfulnesse of the Captaine wee suffered no great loffe or danger.

The twelith day of February at night we faw a blazing Starre, and prefently a The next day forme. The three and twentieth day we fell with the Hand of Mattanenie in the West Indies, was suspected The foure and twentieth day we anchored at Dominico, within fourteene degrees of the Line, 2 for a supported very faire Hand, the Trees full of Iweet and good Imels inhabited by many Sausee Indians, they Mutinic, were at first very scrupulous to come aboord vs. Wee learned of them afterwards that the Spa- though never niards had given them a great overthrow on this Ile, but when they knew what we were, there no inch maner, 20 came many to our ships with their Canoas, bringing vs many kindes of sundry fruites, as Pines, minica. Potatoes, Plantons, Tobacco, and other fruits, and Roane Cloth abundance, which they had gotten out of certaine Spanifb thips that were cast away vpon that Iland. We gaue them Kniues. Hatchets for exchange which they efteeme much, wee allo gaue them Beades, Copper Iewels which they hang through their nofthrils, eares, and lips, very strange to behold, their bodies are all painted red to keepe away the biting of Muscetos, they goe all naked without covering : the haire of their head is a yard long, all of a length pleated in three plats hanging downe to their wastes, they suffer no haire to grow on their faces, they cut their skinnes in divers workes, they are continually in warres, and will cate their enemies when they kill them, or any stranger if they take them. They will lap vp mans spittle, whillt one spits in their mouthes in a barbarous Brutifin feed 30 fathion like Dogges. These people and the rest of the Ilands in the West Indies, and Brasis, the Dominicans. are called by the names of Canibals, that will eate many flesh, these people doe poy son their Arrow heads, which are made of a fishes bone: they worship the Deuill for their God, and have no other beliefe. Whilest weremayned at this Iland we saw a Whale chased by a Thresher and Fightberwixt a Sword-fish: they fought for the space of two houres, we might fee the Thresher with his slayle a Whale, the layon the monftrous blowes which was strange to behold in the end these two sishes brought the Sword Sch.

Whale to her end. The fixe and twentieth day, we had fight of Marigalanta, and the next day wee failed with Guadaluta. a flacke faile alongst the Ile of Guadalupa, where we went ashore, and found a Bath which was Bath very bot. to hot, that no man was able to fland long by it, our Admirall Captaine Nempore caufed a piece 40 of Porke to be put in it : which boyled it fo in the space of halfe an houre, as no fire could mend it. Then we went aboord and failed by many Ilands, as Mounferot and an Iland called Saint Chrifopber, both vnhabited about; about two a clocke in the afternoone wee anchored at the Ile of Menis, There the Captaine landed all his men being well fitted with Muskets and other conuenient Armes, marched a mile into the Woods; being commanded to fland vpon their guard, fearing the treacherie of the Indians, which is an ordinary vie among it them and all other Sauages on this Ile, we came to a Bathsfanding in a Valley betwixt two Hils; where wee bathed our Bath at Media. felues and found it to be of the nature of the Bathes in England, some places hot and some colder: and men may refresh themselves as they please, finding this place to be so convenient for our men to avoid dileafes, which will breed in to long a Voyage, wee incamped our felues on this Ile fixe 50 dayes, and spent none of our ships victuall, by reason our men some went a hunting, somea souling, and some a fishing, where we got great store of Conies, fundry kinds of fowles, and great Commodities plentie of fish. We kept Centinels and Courts degardat every Captaines quarter, fearing wee there, should be affaulted by the Indians, that were on the other fide of the Hand : wee faw none nor were molefled by any : but fome few we faw as we were a hunting on the Hand. They would not come to vs by any meanes, but ranne swiftly through the Woods to the Mountaine tops; so we loft the fight of them : whereupon we made all the halte wee could to our quarter , thinking there had beene a great ambuilt of Indians there abouts. We past into the thickest of the Woods where we had almost lost our selves, we had not gone above halfe a mile amongst the thicke, but we came into a most pleasant Garden, being a hundred paces square on enery side, having many 60 Cotton-trees growing in it with abundance of Cotton-wooll, and many Guiacum trees: wee faw the goodheft rall trees growing to thicke about the Garden, as though they had beene fet by

Art, which made vs maruell very much to fee it. The third day, wee fet faile from Menis : the fourth day we failed along by Casinia and by Aprille Saba: This day we anchored at the He of Virgines, in an excellent Bay able to harbour a hundred

CHAP.2. Croffe fet pp at Chesupioc Bay. Strange manner of Dancino.

1687

Tortoiles.

Ships: if this Bay food in England, it would be a great profit and commoditie to the Land. On this lland wee caught great store of Fresh-fish, and abundance of Sea Tortosses, which served all our Fleet three daies, which were in number eight score persons. We also killed great store of wille Fowle, wee cut the Barkes of certaine Trees which tafted much like Cinnamon, and very hot in the mouth. This Hand in some places hath very good g. and, straight and tall Timber. But the greatest discommoditie that wee have feene on this I and is that it hath no Fresh-water, which makes the place void of any Inhabitants.

Menia water

Voon the fixt day, we let faile and paffed by Becam, and by Saint John deportorico. The feuenth day, we arrived at Mona : where wee watered, which we flood in great need of, feeing that our water did fmell fo vildly that none of our men was able to indure it. Whilft fome of the Sav. Id lers were a filling the Caskes with water, the Capraine, and the rest of the Gentlemen, and other Soldiers marched up in the Ile fixe myles, thinking to find some other provision to maintaine our victualling; as wee marched we killed two wild Bores, and faw a huge wild Bull, his hornes was an ell betweene the two tops. Wee also killed Guanas, in fashion of a Serpent, and speckled like a Toade under the belly. These wayes that wee went, being to troublesome and ville going vpon the sharpe Rockes, that many of our men fainted in the march, but by good fortune wee lost none but one Edward Brookes Gentleman , whole fat melted within him by the great heate and drought of the Countrey : we were not able to relieve him nor our felues, to he died in that great

Ed.Brookes faint with thirft.

Moneta.

The ninth day in the afternoone, we went off with our Boat to the Ile of Moneta, some three 20 leagues from Mona, where we had a terrrible landing, and a troublesome getting up to the top of the Mountaine or Ile, being a high firme Rocke ftep, with many terrible sharpe stones : After wee got to the top of the Ile, we found it to bee a fertill and a plaine ground, full of goodly graffe, and abundance of Fowles of all kindes, they flew ouer our heads as thicke as drops of Hale; be-Store of fowles fides they made fuch a noife, that wee were not able to heare one another speake. Furthermore, wee were not able to let our feet on the ground , but either on Fowles or Egges which lay fo thicke in the graffe : Wee laded two Boats full in the space of three houres, to our great refreshing.

The tenth day we fet faile, and difimboged out of the West Indies, and bare our course Northerly. The fourteenth day we passed the Tropicke of Cancer. The one and twentieth day, 2- 30 bout five a clocke at night there began a vehement tempest, which lasted all the night, with winds, raine, and thunders in a terrible manner. Wee were forced to lie at Hull that night, because we thought wee had beene nearer land then wee were. The next morning, being the two and twentieth day wee founded; and the three and twentieth and foure and twenteth day, but we could find no ground. The fine and twentieth day we founded, and had no ground at an we were art-uen to try that hundred fathom. The fix and twentieth day of Aprill, about four a clocke in the morning, wee descried the Land of Vremia: the same day wee entred into the Bay of Chesupioc directly, without any let or hinderance; there wee landed and discouered a little way, but wee could find nothing worth the ipeaking of, but faire meddowes and goodly tall Trees, with fuch Fresh-waters Junning through the woods, as I was almost rauished at the first fight thereof.

night, and by the ftorme were forced neere the fhoare,not knowing where we were. They land in

At night, when wee were going aboard, there came the Sauages creeping vpon all foure, from the Hills like Beares, with their Bowes in their mouthes, charged vs very desperately in the faces, hurt Captaine Gabrill Archer in both his hands, and a fayler in two places of the body very dangerous. After they had ipent their Arrowes, and felt the sharpnesse of our shot, they retired into the Woods with a great noise, and fo left vs.

The feuen and twentieth day we began to build vp our Shallopithe Gentlemen and Souldiers marched eight miles vp into the Land, we could not fee a Sauage in all that march, we came to a place where they had made a great fire, and had beene newly a rofting Oyfters : when they perceiued our comming, they fled away to the Mountaines, and left many of the Oyfters in the fire : we eat some of the Oysters, which were very large and delicate in taste.

The eighteenth day we lanched our Shallop, the Captaine and some Gentlemen went in her, and discouered up the Bay, we found a River on the Southfide running into the Maine; we entered it and found it very shoald water, not for any Boats to swim : Wee went further into the Bay, and faw a plaine plot of ground where we went on Land, and found the place fiue mile in compasse, without either Bush or Tree, we saw nothing there but a Cannow . which was made out of the whole tree, which was five and fortie foot long by the Rule. Vpon this plot of ground we got good flore of Mussels and Oysters, which lay on the ground as thicke as stones : wee opened some, and found in many of them Pearles. Wee marched some three or foure miles further into the Woods, where we law great imoakes of fire. Wee marched to those imoakes and found that the Sausges had beene there burning downe the graffe, as weethought either to make their 60 plantation there, or elle to give fignes to bring their forces together, and to to give vs battell. We past through excellent ground full of Flowers of divers kinds and colours, and as goodly trees as I have feene, as Cedar, Cipreffe, and other kindes : going a little further we came into a little plas Strawberries, of ground full of fine and beautifull Strawberries, foure times bigger and better then outsin England. All this march we could neither see Sauage nor Towne. When it grew to be towards night we food backe to our Ships, we founded and found it shallow water for a great way, which nut vs out of all hopes for getting any higher with our Ships, which road at the mouth of the River. We rowed ouer to a point of Land, where wee found a channell, and founded fix, eight, ten, or twelve fathom: which put vs in good comfort. Therefore were named that point of Land, Cape Point Comfort.

The nine and twentieth day we fet up a Croffe at Chefapine Bay, and named that place Cape Henry, Thirtieth day, we came with our ships to Cape Comfort; where wee saw sue Sauages running on the shoare; presently the Captaine caused the shallop to be manned, so rowing to the 10 shoare, the Captaine called to them in figne of friendship, but they were at first very timetsome, until they faw the Captain lay his hand on his heart: vpon that they laid down their Bowes and Arrowes, and came very boldly to vs, making fignes to come a shoare to their Towne, which is called by the Sauages Kecoughtan. Wee coafted to their Towne, rowing ouer a River running Keconghian. into the Maine, where these Sauages swam ouer with their Bowes and Arrowes in their months:

When we came ouer to the other side, there was a many of other Sauages which directed vs to their Towne, where we were entertained by them very kindly. When we came first a Land they made a dolefull noise, laying their faces to the ground, feratching the earth with their nailes. We did thinke that they had beene at their Idolatry. When they had ended their Cere-20 monies, they went into their houses and brought out mats and laid voon the ground, the chiefest of the fate all in a rank: the meanest fort brought we such dainties as they had, & of their bread which they make of their Maiz or Gennea wheat, they would not fuffer vs to cat valeffe we fate down, which we did on a Mat right against them. After we were well satisfied they gaue vs of their Ta- Tobacco. bacco, which they tooke in a pipe made artificially of earth as ours are, but far bigger, with the bowle fashioned together with a piece of fine copper. After they had feasted vs. they shewed vs. in welcome, their manner of dancing, which was in this fashion : one of the Sauages standing in the midit finging, beating one hand against another, all the rest dancing about him, shouting, howling, and stamping against the ground, with many Anticke tricks and faces, making noise like so many Wolues or Deuils. One thing of them I observed; when they were in their dance they kept 30 ftroke with their feet iust one with another, but with their hands, heads, faces, and bodies, euery one of them had a feuerall gesture : so they continued for the space of halfe an houre. When they had ended their dance, the Captaine gave them Beades and other trifling lewells. They hang through their cares Fowles legs : they shave the right side of their heads with a shell, the left side they weare of an ell long tied up with an artificiall knot, with a many of Foules feathers flicking in it. They goe altogether naked, but their prinities are couered with Beafts skinnes befer commonly with little bones, or beafts teeth : some paint their bodies blacke some red, with artificiall knots of fundry lively colours, very beautifull and pleafing to the eye, in a brauer fashion then they in the Weit Indies .

The fourth day of May, we came to the King or Werowance of Paspihe : where they enter-40 tained vs with much welcome; an old Sauage made a long Oration, making a foule noile, vtte- A longoration ting his speech with a vehement action, but we knew little what they meant. Whilst we were in company with the Passibes, the Werowance of Rapahanna came from the other fide of the River in his Cannoa : he teemed to take displeasure of our being with the Paspibes : he would faine have had vs come to his Towne, the Captaine was vnwilling; feeing that the day was fo far fpent he returned backe to his ships for that night.

The next day, being the fift of May, the Werowance of Rapabanna fent a Meffenger to haue vs come to him. We entertained the faid Meffenger, and gaue him trifles which pleafed him: Wee manned our shallop with Muskets and Targatiers sufficiently : this said Mellenger guided vs where our determination was to goe. When wee landed, the Werowance of Rapabanna came

50 downers the water fide with all his traine, as goodly men as any I haue feene of Sauages or Chriflians: the Werowance comming before them playing on a Flute made of a Reed, with a Crown of a Reed. of Deares haire colloured red, in fashion of a Rose fastened about his knot of haire, and a great Plate of Copper on the other fide of his head, with two long Feathers in fashion of a paire of Hornes placed in the midft of his Crowne. His body was painted all with Crimfon, with a Chaine of Beads about his necke, his face painted blew, besprinkled with filuer Oreas wee thought, his eares all behung with Brallets of Pearle, and in either eare a Birds Claw through it beset with fine Copper or Gold, he entertained vs in so modeit a proud fashion, as though he had beene a Prince of civill government, holding his countenance without laughter or any fuch ill behausour; he caused his Mat to be spred on the ground, where hee sate downe with a great Maiellie, taking a pipe of Tabacco: the rest of his company standing about him. After he had rested a while he rofe, and made fignes to vs to come to his Towne : Hee went formost, and all the rest of his people and our felues followed him vp a steepe Hill where his Palace was settled. Wee passed through the Woods in fine paths, having most pleasant Springs which issued from the Mountaines : Wee also went through the goodliest Corne fieldes that euer was seene in any Countrey. When wee came to Rapabannos Towne, hee entertained vs in good humanitie. The eight day of May we discourred up the River. We landed in the Countrey of Apamatica, at our landing, there came many front and able Sauages to refift vs with their Bowes and Arrowes, in a most warlike manner, with the swords at their backes belet with sharpe stones and pieces of yron able to cleave a man in funder. Amongst the rest one of the chiefest standing before them croffe-legged, with his Arrow readie in his Bow in one hand, and taking a Pipe of Tobacco in the other, with a bold vetering of his speech, demanded of vs our being there, willing vs to bee gone. Wee made fignes of peace, which they perceived in the end, and let vs land in

The twelfth day we went backe to our thips, and discourred a point of Land, called Archers Hope, which was fufficient with a little labour to defend our felues against any Enemy. The foile was good and fruitfull, with excellent good Timber. There are also great store of Vines in bignesse of a mans thigh, running vp to the tops of the Trees in great abundance. We also did see many Squirels, Conies, Black Birds with crimfon wings, and divers other Fowles and Birds of divers and fundrie collours of crimfon , Watchet, Yellow, Greene , Murry , and of divers other hewes naturally without any art vfing.

We found store of Turkie nests and many Egges, if it had not beene disliked, because the ship could not ride neere the shoare, we had fetled there to all the Collonies contentment,

The thirteenth day, we came to our feating place in Paspibas Countrey, some eight miles from the point of Land, which I made mention before : where our shippes doe lie so neere the shoare that they are moored to the Trees in fix fathom water.

Their Planta-

The fourteenth day we landed all our men which were fet to worke about the fortification, and others some to watch and ward as it was convenient. The first night of our landing, about midnight, there came some Sauages sayling close to our quarter: presently there was an alarum giuen; ypon that the Sauages ran away, and we not troubled any more by them that night. Nor long after there came two Sauages that feemed to be Commanders, brauely dreft, with Crownes of coloured haire vpon their heads, which came as Messengers from the Weromance of Paspiba; telling vs that their Weromauce was comming and would be merry with vs with a fat Deare. The eighteenth day, the Werowance of Paspina came himselfe to our quarter, with one hundred

Sauages armed, which garded him in a very warlike manner with Bowes and Arrowes, thinking 30 at that time to execute their villany. Pafpiha made great fignes to vs to lay our Aimes away. But we would not trust him fo far : he seeing he could not have convenient time to worke his will at length made fignes that he would give vs as much land as we would defire to take. As the Sauzges were in a throng in the Fort, one of them Role a Hatchet from one of our company, which fyied him doing the deed : whereupon he tooke it from him by force, and alio strooke him over grea heuer, thearme : preiently another Sauage feeing that, came fiercely at our man with a wooden forord, thinking to beat out his braines. The Weremance of Pafpiba faw vs take to our Armes, went fud-

Land giuen. Thefe Sauages

denly away with all his company in great anger. The nineteenth day, my felfe and three or foure more walking into the Woods by chance wee espied a path-way like to an Irish pace : wee were desirous to knowe whither it would bring 40 vs; wee traced along some foure miles, all the way as wee went, having the pleasantest Suckles, the ground all flowing ouer with faire flowers of fundry colours and kindes, as though it had beene in any Garden or Orchard in England. There be many Strawberries, and other fruits vnknowne : . wee faw the Woods full of Cedar and Cypreffe trees, with other trees, which iffues out sweet Gummes like to Balsam : wee kept on our way in this Paradife, at length wee came to a Sauige Towne, where wee found but few people, they told vs the rest were gone a hunting with the Weromance of Paspiha: we flayed there a while, and had of them Strawbernes, and other things; in the meane time one of the Sauages came running out of his houle with a Bowe and Arrowes and ranne mainly through the Woods: then I beganne to millruft some villanie, that he went to call fome companie, and fo betray vs, wee made all the hafte away wee could: 50 one of the Sauages brought vs on the way to the Wood fide, where there was a Garden of Tobacco, and other fruits and herbes, he gathered Tobacco, and distributed to every one of vs, so wee departed. The twentieth day the Weromance of Pastiba fent fortie of his men with a Derre, to our quarter: but they came more in villanie than any loue they bare vs: they faine would have layne in our Fortall night, but wee would not fuffer them for feare of their treachery. One of our Gentlemen having a Target which hee trusted in, thinking it would beare out a flight shot, hee fet it vp against a tree, willing one of the Sauages to shoot; who tooke from his backe an Arrow of an elle long, drew it strongly in his Bowe, shoots the Target a foote thorow, or better: which was ftrange, being that a Piftoll could not pierce it. Wee feeing the force of his Bowe, 60 afterwards fet him vp a steele Target; he shot again, and burst his arrow all to pieces, he presently pulled out another Arrow, and bit it in his teeth, and feemed to bee in a great rage, so hee went away in great anger. Their Bowes are made of tough Hafell, their strings of Leather, Their arowes their Arrowes of Canes or Hafell, headed with very sharpe stones, and are made artificially like abroad Arrow: other some of their Arrowes are headed with the ends of Deeres hornes, and are feathered very attificially. Pafthia was as good as his word; for hee fent Venifon, but the Sawie came within few dayes after.

At Port Cotage in our Voyage vp the River, we faw a Savage Boy about the age of ten yeeres, Yellow haired which had a head of haire of a perfect yellow and a reasonable white skinne, which is a Mira- Virginian. cle amongst all Sauages.

This River which wee have discovered is one of the famousest Rivers that ever was found by River of Pobaany Christian, it ebbes and flowes a hundred and threescore miles where ships of great burthen tan.

may harbour in fafetie. Wherefoeuer we landed vpon this Riuer, wee faw the goodlieft Woods 10 as Beech, Oke, Cedar, Cypresse, Wal-nuts, Sassafras and Vines in great abundance, which hang in great clusters on many Trees, and other Trees vnknowne, and all the grounds befpred with many fweet and delicate flowres of divers colours and kindes. There are also many fruites as Strawberries, Mulberries, Risberriesand Fruits vnknowne, there are many branches of this River, which runne flowing through the Woods with great plentie of fish of all kindes, as for Sturgeon all the World cannot be compared to it. In this Countrey I have feene many great and large Medowes * having excellent good pasture for any Cattle. There is also great store of Deere both Red and Fallow. There are Beares, Foxes, Otters, Beuers, Muskats, and wild beafts

The foure and twentieth day wee set up a Crosse at the head of this River, naming it Kings 20 River, where we proclaimed lames King of England to have the most right vinto it. When wee Wee came had finished and set up our Crosse, we shipt our men and made for lames Fort. By the way wee downe the Ricame to Pobatans Towre where the Captaine went on shore suffering none to goe with him, hee uer. presented the Commander of this place with a Hatchet which hee tooke joyfully, and was well

But yet the Sauages murmured at our planting in the Countrie, whereupon this Werowance made aniwere againe very wifely of a Sauage, Why should you bee offended with them as long as they hurt you not, nor take any thing away by force, they take but a litle waste ground, which doth you nor any of vs any good.

Ifaw Bread made by their women which doe all their drugerie. The men takes their pleafure in hunting and their warres, which they are in continually one Kingdome against another. The Bread how manner of baking of bread is thus, after they pound their wheat into flowre with hote water, made, they make it into paste, and worke it into round balls and Cakes, then they put it into a pot of feething water, when it is fod throughly, they lay it on a smooth stone , there they harden it as well as in an Ouen.

There is notice to be taken to know married women from Maids, the Maids you shall alwayes Diffind habit fee the fore part of their head and fides shauen close, the hinder part very long, which they tie of Maids and in a pleate hanging downe to their hips. The married women weares their haire all of a length, and is tied of that fathion that the Maids are. The women kinde in this Countrey doth pounce and race their bodies, legges, thighes, armes and faces with a sharpe Iron, which makes a stampe 40 in curious knots, and drawes the proportion of Fowles, Fish, or Bealts, then with paintings of fundry lively colours, they rab it into the stampe which will never be taken away, because it is dried into the flesh where it is fered. The Sauages beare their yeeres well, for when wee were at Pamonkies, wee faw a Sauage by Sauage 160. their report was about eight score yeeres of age. His eyes were sunke into his head, having neuer yeeres old. a tooth in his mouth, his haire all gray with a reasonable bigge beard, which was as white as any Bearded, fnow. It is a Miracle to fee a Sauage haue any haire on their faces, I neuer faw, read, nor heard. any haue the like before. This Sauage was as luftie and went as fast as any of vs, which was strange to behold. The fifteenth day of Iune, we had built and finished our Fort which was triangle wife, having three Bulwarkes at every corner like a halfe Moone, and foure or five pieces of Artillerie mounted in them, we had made our felues fufficiently ftrong for these Sauages, we had also sowne most of our Corne on two Mountaines, it iprang a mans height from the ground, this Countrey is 2 fruitfull foile, bearing many goodly and fruitfull Trees, as Mulberries, Cherries, Walnuts, Ceders, Cyprelle, Salfatras, and Vines in great abundance. Munday the two and twentiesh of lune, in the morning Captaine Newport in the Admirall Cap. Hempines departed from James Port for England.

Captaine Newport being gone for England, leaving vs (one hundred and foure persons) verie bare and scancie of victualls, furthermore in warres and in danger of the Sauages. We hoped after a supply which Captaine Newport promised within twentie weekes. But if the beginners of this 60 action doe carefully further vs, the Country being fo fruitfull, it would be as great a profit to the Realme of England, as the Indies to the King of Spaine, if this River which wee have found had beene discouered in the time of warre with Spaine, it would have beene a commoditie to our Realme, and a great annoyance to our enemies. The feuen and twentieth of July the King of Ra-Pahanna, deranded a Canoa which was reftored, lifted up his hand to the Sunne, which they worthing as their God, befides he laid his hand on his heart, that he would be our speciall friend. It is a generall rule of these people when they swere by their God which is the Sunne, no Chriftian will keepe their Oath better vpon this promife. These people haue a great reverence to the Sunne about all other things at the riling and fetting of the same, they sit downe lifting vp their hands and eyes to the Sunne making a round Circle on the ground with dried Tobacco, then they began to pray making many Deuillish gettures with a Hellish noise foming at the mouth. flaring with their eyes, wagging their heads and hands in fuch a fashion and deformitie as it was

The fixt of August there died lobn Afore of the bloudie Flixe. The minth day died George Flowre of the swelling. The tenth day died William Bruster Gentleman, of a wound ginen by the Sauages, and was buried the elementh day.

The fourteenth day, lerome Alikock Ancient, died of a wound, the same day Francis Midwinter, Edward Moris Corpora! I died fuddenly.

The fifteenth day, their died Edward Browne and Stephen Galtbrope. The fixteenth day their died Thomas Gower Gentleman. The feuenteenth day, their died Thomas Mounflie. The eighteenth day, there died Robert Pennington, and John Martine Gentleman. The nineteenth day. died Drue Pregafe Gentleman. The two and twentieth day of August, there died Cantaine Bartholomen Gosnold one of our Councell, he was honourably buried, having all the Ordnance in the Fort shot off with many vollies of imalishot.

After Captaine Gofnols death, the Councell could hardly agree by the diffention of Captaine 20 Kendall, which afterward was committed about hainous matters which was proved against him.

The foure and twentieth day, died Edward Harington and George Walker, and were buried the Same day. The fixe and twentieth day, died Kenelme Throgmerine. The feuen and twentieth day yied William Roods. The eight and twentieth day died Thomas Stoodie, Cape Merchant.

The fourth day of September died Thomas Jacob Sergeant. The fift day, there died Beniamin Beaff. Our men were destroyed with cruell diseases as Swellings, Flixes, Burning Feuers, and by warres, and some departed suddenly, but for the most part they died of meere famine. There were neuer Englishmen left in a forreigne Countrey in such miserie as wee were in this new disconcred Virginia. Wee watched enery three nights lying on the bare cold ground what weather foener came warded all the next day, which brought our men to bee most feeble wretches, our to food was but a imall Can of Barlie fod in water to fiue men a day, our drinke cold water taken out of the River, which was at a floud verie falt, at a low tide full of flime and filth, which was the destruction of many of our men. Thus we lived for the space of five moneths in this miserable distresse, not having five able men to man our Bulwarkes vpon any occasion. If it had not pleafed God to have put a terrour in the Savages hearts, we had all perished by those vild and cruell Pagans, being in that weake effate as we were; our men night and day groaning in every corner of the Fort most pittifull to heare, if there were any conscience in men, it would make their harts to bleed to heare the pittiful murmurings & out-cries of our fick men without reliefe every night and day for the space of fixe weekes, some departing out of the World, many times three or foure in a night, in the morning their bodies trailed out of their Cabines like Dogges to be buried : in this fort did I fee the mortalitie of diners of our people,

Gods good-

It pleased God, after a while, to send those people which were our mortall enemies to releeue vs with victuals, as Bread, Corne, Fish, and Flesh in great plentie, which was the setting rp of our feeble men, otherwise wee had all perished. Also we were frequented by divers Kings in the Countrie, bringing vs store of prouision to our great comfort.

The eleuenth day, there was certaine Articles laid against Master Wing field which was then Prefident, thereupon he was not only displaced out of his Prefident ship, but also from being of the Councell. Afterwards Captaine lobn Rasclisso was chosen Prefident.

The eighteenth day, died oue Ellis Kinistone which was started to death with cold. The same He was a made day a reall the state of the s

Smiths Rela-

William White (hauing lived with the Natives) reported to vs of their customes in the morning by breake of day, before they eate or drinke both men, women and children, that be aboue tenne omitted being yeeres of age runnes into the water, there washes themselues a good while till the Sunne riseth, more rully fee then offer Sacrifice to it, strewing Tobacco on the water or Land, honouring the Sunne as their downein Gap. God, likewise they doe at the setting of the * Sunne, CHAP.

CHAP. III.

The description of Virginia by Captaine IOHN SMITH, inlarged out of his written Notes.

Ireinia is a Countrie in America, that lieth betweene the degrees of 34. and 44. The Latitude of the North Latitude. The bounds thereof on the Ealf fide are the great Oran, By later Pa-On the South lieth Florida: on the North Nona Francia. As for the West thereof, tens this is the limits are vnknowne. Of all this Countrie we purpose not to speake, but onthe limits are vinknowne. Of all this Countrie we purpole not to lpeake, but on by of that part which was planted by the Englishmen in the yeare of our Lod, degrees, &c. 360. And this is winder the degrees 37, 38, and 39. The temperature of this Countrie doth agree wel with English constitutions being once seasoned to the Countrie. Which appeared by this, that though by many occasions our people fell licke; yet did they recouer by verie small meanes and continued in health, though there were other great causes, not only to have made them ficke, but even to end their dayes, &c.

The Summer is hot as in Spaine; the Winter cold as in France or England. The heate of Summer is in June, July, and August, but commonly the coole Breeses asswage the vehemencie of the rature. 20 heate. The chiefe of Winter is halfe D. cember, Ianuary, February, and halfe March. The cold is extreme sharpe, but heere the Prouerbe is true, That no extreme continueth long. In the yeere 1607. was an extraordinary Frost in most of Europe, and this Frost was found as extreme in Virginia. But the next yeere for eight or ten daies of ill weather, other fourteene daies would be as Summer.

The winds here are variable, but the like Thunder and Lightning to purifie the Aire, I have The winds. seldome either seene or heard in Europe. From the South-west came the greatest guits with Thunder and heate. The North-west winde is commonly coole, and bringeth faire weather with it. From the North is the greatest cold, and from the East and South-east as from the Barmadas, forces and raines.

30 Sometimes there are great droughts other times much raine, yet great necessitie of neither, by reason we see not, but that all the varietie of needrull Fruits in Emrope may bee there in great plentie by the industry of men, as appeareth by those we there planted.

There is but one entrance by Sea into this Country, and that is at the mouth of a verie The entrances goodly Bay, the widenesse whereof is neere eighteene or twen-ie miles. The Cape on the South fide is called Cape Henrie, in honour of our most Noble Prince. The shew of the Land there is a white Hilly Sand like vnto the Downes, and along the shoares great plentie of Pines and Firres. Che Henr. The North Cape, is called Cape Charles, in honour of the worthy Duke of Torke. Thelles before Cape Charles.

it are named Smiths Iles, because he first of ours set foot on them. Within is a Countrey that may Cap. Smith. have the prerogative over the most pleasant places of Europe, Asia, Africa, or America, for large 40 and pleafant nauigable Rivers, Heaven and Earth never agreed better to frame a place for mais habitation being of our constitutions, were it fully mannured and inhabited by industrious people. Here are Mountaynes, Hils, Plaines, Vallies, Rivers and Brookes, all running moit plea. The Country.

lantly into a faire Bay compassed but for the mouth with fruitful & delightiome Land. In the Bay and Rivers are many Hes both great and fmall, some woodie, some plaine, most of them low and not inhabited. This Bay lieth North an South, in which the water floweth neere two hundred fadome, holding in breadth for the most part ten or fourteene miles. From the head of the Bay atthe North, the Land is mountainous, and to in a minner from thence by a South-west Line; So that the more Southward, the farther off from the Bay are those Mountaines. From which 50 fall certaine Brookes which after come to fine principall Nauigable Riners. These runne from the North-west into the South-east, and so into the West side of the Bay, where the fall of every Riuer is within twentie or fiftgene miles one of another.

miles, and hath a Channell for one hundred and fortie miles, of depth betwixt feuen and fifteene The Bay.

The Mountaines are of divers natures, for at the head of the Bay the Rockes are of a composi- The Mountaines tionlike Mil-stones. Some of Marble, &cc. And many pieces of Christall we found as throwne taines. downe by water from the Mountaines. For in Winter these Mountaines are couered with much Snow, and when it diffolieth the waters fall with such violence, that it causeth great inundations in the narrow Vallies, which vet is fearce perceived being once in the Rivers. Thefe waters wash from the Rockes such glistering tinetures that the ground in some places seemeth as gilded, The soile.

where both the Rockes and the Earth are fo plendent to behold, that better sudgements then ours 60 might have beene postanded, they contained more then probabilities. The veiture of the Earth in most places doth manifeitly proue the nature of the foile to be luthe and very rich. The colour of the Earth we found in divers places, refembleth Bole Armonese, terra sigillata ad lemnia, Full. r. Earth, Marle, and divers other fu happearances. But generally for the most part the Earth is a blacke fandie mould, in some places a fat slimie clay, in other places a very barren grauell. But the best beil ground is knowne by the veilure it beareth, as by the greatnesse of Trees or abundance of Weeds. &c.

The Vallies.

The Countrie is not mountainous nor yet low, but fuch pleasant plaine Hils and fertile Val lies, one pretily croffing another, and watered fo conueniently with their fweete Brookes and Christall Springs, as if Art it selfe had deuised them. By the Rivers are many plaine Marishes contayning fome twentie, fome one hundred, fome two hundred Acres, fome more, fomeleffe.

Plaints.

Other Plaines there are few, but only where the Sauages inhabit; but all ouer-growne with Trees and Weeds, being a plaine Wilderneffe as God first made it. On the West lide of the Bay, we said were fine faire and delightfull nanigable Rivers, of which we will now proceed to report. The first of those Rivers and the next to the mouth of the Bav 10

Powhatm.

hath his course from the West and by North. The name of this River they call Powhatan The River according to the name of a principall Countrie that lieth vpon it. The mouth of this River is neere three miles in breadth, jet doe the shoales force the Channell so neere the Land that a Sacre will oner shoot it at Point blanke. This River is navigable one hundred and fiftie miles as the Channell goeth: the Boales and foundings are heere needleffe to be expressed. It falleth from Rockes farre West in a Countrie inhabited by a Nation that they call Monacan. But where it commeth into our Dif-

conerie it is Powhatan. In the farthest place that was diligently observed, are Falles, Rockes! Shoales, &:. which makes it past nauigation any higher. Thence in the running downeward, the River is enriched with many goodly Brookes, which are maintained by an infinite num-The branches, ber of imall Rundles and pleafant Springs that disperse themselves for best service, as doe the veines of a mans bodie. From the South there fals into this River ; First; the pleasant River of Apamatuck : next more to the East are the two Rivers of Quiyoughcohanocke. A little farther is make that place very pleasant to inhabit, their Corne fields being girded therein in a manneras Peninfulaes. The most of these Rivers are inhabited by severall Nations, or rather Families, of the name of the Rivers. They have also in every of those places some Governour, as their King, which they call Werowances. In a Peninfula on the North fide of this River are the English planted in a place by them called lames Towne, in honour of the Kings most excellent Maiestee, voon which fide are also many places under the Weromances.

a Bay wherein falleth three or foure pretie Brookes and Creekes that halfe intrench the Inhabitants of Warraskoyac; then the River of Nardfamund, and laftly, the Brooke of Chifaptack. From the North fide is the River of Chickahamania, the backe River of James Townes; another by the Cedar Ile, where we lived ten weekes vpon Oisters, then a convenient Harbour for fisher-boats or small Boats at Keconghean, that so conveniently turneth it selfe into Bayes and Creekes that tames Towne.

The first and next the Rivers mouth are the Cecoughtans, who hesides their women and children, haue not past twentie fighting men. The Pastabeges on whose Land is seated the Enolish The feuerall Colonie, some fortie miles from the Bay have not past fortie. The River called Chickahamania Inhabitants. neere two hundred. The Weanocks one hundred. The Arrowhatocks thirtie. The place called Porbatan, Some fortie. On the South fide this River the Appamainches have fixtie fighting men. The Quijouqcohanocks, five and twentie. The Warracker fortie. The Nandfamunds two hundred. The Chesapeach: are able to make one hundred. Of this last place the Bay beareth the 49 Free State.

name. In all these places is a seuerall Commander, which they call Weromance except the Chickbamanians, who are gouerned by the Priests and their Asistants of their Elders called Caw-camwas ougher. In Summer no place affoordeth more plentie of Sturgeon, nor in Winter more abundance of Fowle, especially in the time of Frost. There was once taken fiftie two Sturgeons at a draught, at another draught fixtie eight. From the latter end of May till the end of Iunearetaken, but young Sturgeons of two foot or a yard long : From thence till the midit of September, of two or three yards long and few others. And in foure or fine houres with one Net were ordinarily taken seven or eight : often more, seldome lesse. In the small Rivers all the veere there is good plentie of small fish, so that with Hookes those that would take paines had sufficient. Fourteene miles Northward from the River Powbatan; is the Kiver Pamaunke, which is nani- 50 gable sixtie miles, but with Catches and small Barkes, twentie or thirtie miles farther. At the ordinary

R. Pamaunhe.

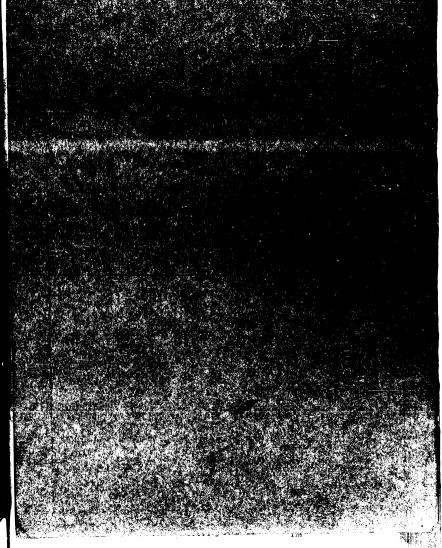

The Inhabi-

tants. K. Pobatan. flowing of falt water, it divideth it felfe into two gallant branches. On the South inhabit the people of Toughtanund, who have about fixtie men for warres. On the North branch Mattapament, who have thirtie men. Where this River is divided, the Countrie is called Panamauste, and nourisheth neere three hundred able men. About fine and twentie miles lower on the North fide of this River is Werawocomoco, where their great King inhabited when Captaine Smith was deliuered him prisoner; yet there are not past fortie able men. But now he hath abandoned that, and liveth at Orapakes by Youghtanund in the Wildernelle; tenne or twelve miles lower; on the Southfide of this River is Chukiack, which hath fome fortie or fiftie men. Thefe, as alio Apamatuck Irrobatocke, and Powbatan, are their great Kings chiefe Alliance and Inhabitance. The 63 reit (as they report) his Conque is. Before we come to the third River that falleth from the Mountaines, there is another River the Inhabitants are about fome fortie feruiceable men.

Payanhatanh R.

(Some thirtie miles nauigable) that commeth from the In-land, the River is called Payantstante, River inhabited on both fides. Strange people in attire.

The chird naugable River is called Toppabarock. (This is naugable some one hundred and thirtie miles.) At the top of it inhabit the people called Mannaboaches amongst the Mountaines. but they are about the place we deferibe. Vpon this River on the North fide are feated a people The Inhabicelled Cutatowomen, wich thirtie fighting men. Higher on the River are the Moranghtacunds, tans. with eightie able men. Beyond them Toppahanecke with one hundred men. Farre aboue is another Cuttatawomen with twentie men. On the South, farre within the River is Namtaus beacund having one hundred and fiftie men. This River also as the two former, is replenithed with fifth and towle.

The fourth River is called Patawomeke, and is fixe or feven miles in breadth. It is nanigable Pregrande Bo one bundred and fortie miles, and fed as the reft with many fweet Rivers and Springs . which fall from the bordering Hils. These Hils many of them are planted, and yeeld no leffe plentie and varietie of fruit then the River exceedeth with abundance of fish, Tins River is inhabited on both fides. First on the South fide at the very entrance is Wieheocomico, and hath some one hundred and thirtie men , beyond them Sekacawone with thirtie. The Onemmanient with one hundred. Then Paramoneke with one hundred and fixtie able men. Here doth the River dwide it felfe in to three or four convenient Rivers . The greatest of the least is called Oursones, trendeth Northwest, but the River it seife turneth North-east, and is still a navigable streame. On the Westerne fale of this bought is Tankenent, with fortie men. On the North of this River is Secomocomoco with fortie men. Some what further Potangeo with twentie. In the East part of the bought of the River, is Pamacacack with fixtie men; After Mayomances with one hundred. And laftly, Nacotehtanke with eightie able men. The River tenne miles aboue this place maketh his passage downers low pleasant Vally over-shadowed in many places with high Rockie Mountaines; from whence diffill innumerable fweet and pleafant Springs.

The fift River is called Parturent, and is of a leffe proportion then the reft; but the channell Parturent R is fixteene or eighteene fadome deepe in tome places. Here are infinite skuls of diners kinds of fish more then eliewhere. Upon this River dwell the people called Acquintanackinak, Pawinxunt and Mattapanient. Two bundred men was the greatest fireneth that could be there perceined. But they inhabit together, and not to differ fed as the reft. There of all other were found the most civill to give entertainment.

Thirtie leagues Northward is a River not inhabited, yet navigable; for the red Earth or Clay Botto R. refembling Bole Armoniack, the English called it Bolus. At the end of the Bay where it is fixe The head of or feuen miles in breadth, there fall into it foure finall Rivers, three of them iffuing from divers bogges incironed with high Mountaines. There is one that commeth due North three or foure dayes journey from the head of the Bay, and fals from Rockes and Mountaines, upon this River inhabit a people called Safquefahanocke. They are feated two dayes higher then was paffage for the Discouerers Barge, which was hardly two tunnes, and had in it but twelue men to performe this Difcourry, wherein they lay about the space of twelve weekes upon those great waters in those vnknowne Countries, having nothing but a little Meale or Oat-meale and water to feed them; and force halfe sufficient of that for halfe that time, but that by the Sauages, and by the plenty of fifth they found in all places, they made themselves provision as opportunity terued ; yet had they not a Mariner er any that had skill to trimme their Sayles , vie their Oares, or any businesse belonging to the Barge, but two or three. The rest being Gentlemen, or as ignorant in such toyle and labour, yet necessitie in a short time by their Captaines diligence and example, taught them to become so perfect, that what they did by such small meanes, I leave to the centure of the Reader to judge by this Discourse and the annexed Map. But to proceed, fixtie of those Safquefabanocks, came to the Discouerers with Skinnes, Bowes, Arrowes, Targets, Beades, Swords and Tobacco-pipes for Prefents. Such great and well proportioned men. are fellome seene, for they seemed like Giants to the English, yea, and to the Neighbours, yet seemed of an honelt and simple disposition, with much adoe restrained from adoring the Disco-ple. uerers as Gods. Those are the most strange people of all those Countries, both in Language and Attire; for their Language it may well beteeme their proportions, founding from them, as it were a great voyce in a Vault, or Caue, as an Eccho. Their Attire is the Skinnes of Beares, and Woolues, fome have Caffacks made of Beares heads and Skinnes that a mans necke goes. The deficious through the Skinnes necke, and the Eares of the Beare fastned to his shoulders behind, the onot a Sasque. Note and Teeth hanging downe his breaft, and at the end of the Note hung a Beares Pawe, the fabanough. See halfe fleenes comming to the elbowes were the neckes of the Beares and the armes through the mouth with pawes hanging at their Notes. One had the head of a Woolfe hanging in a Chaine Long Spoone for a lewell his Tobacco-pipe three quarters of a yard long, prettily carved with a Bird, a to eate with Beare, a Deere, or some such deuce at the great end, sufficient to beate out the braines of a man, with Bowes, and Arrowes, and Clubs furable to their greatnesse and conditions. These are scarce knowne to Powkatan. They can make neere sixe hundred able and mightie men, and are pallifadoed in their Townes to defend them from the Mallaromekes their mortall enemies. Fine of their chiefe Weromances came abourd the Discouerers, and crossed the Bay in their Barne.

Выбыбы з

The Picture of the greatest of them is fignified in the Mappe. The calfe of whose legge was three quarters of a vard about, and all the reft of his limbes fo answerable to that propor tion , that hee feemed the goodlieft man that ever wee beheld. His haire , the one fide was long, the other shorne close with a ridge ouer his crowne like a Cockes Combe, Hie Arrowes were fine quarters long, headed with flints or spinters of stones, in forme like a Heart, an inch broad, and an inch and a halte or more long. These hee wore in a Woolues Skinne at his backe for his Quiuer, his Bow in the one hand and his Clubbe in the other. as is described.

Tochwhogh R.

On the East side the Bay, is the River of Tockwhogh, and vpon it a people that can make one hungred men . feated foine feuen miles within the River : where they have a Fort very well red pallifadoed and mantelled with the Barke of Trees, Next to them is Ozimes with fixtie men-More to the South of the East fide of the Bay, the River of Rapabanock, neere vnto which is Kuid, amost the River of Ruskarawasck. Vpon which is feated a people with two hundred men. After that is the River of Tants Wighcocomoco, and on it a people with one hundred men. The people of igheccomoco thole Rivers are of little stature, of another Language from the reft, and very rude. But they on the River of Acobineck with fortie men, and they of Accomack eighty men do equalize any of Accomach R. the Territories of Powb. tan and speake his Language, who over all those doth rule as King. Southward they went to some parts of Chamonock and the Mangoags to fearch for the men Chammack.

The feuerall

Languages.

there left by Sir walter Raleigh; for those parcs to the Towne or Chisapeack have formerly heene diffouered by Mailer Hariots and Sir Ralph Lane. Amongst those people are thus many 20 feuera I Nations of fundry Languages, that enuiron Powbatans Territories. The Chamonocker, the Mangoars, the Monacans, the Mannahokes, the Majawomekes, the Powbasans, the Sajquefaha. nocks, the Alquanachukes, the Tockwogbes, and the Kuscarawaokes. Of all those not any one viderflaurierhanother but by Interpreters. Their feuerall Habitations are more plainly deteribed by this annexed Mappe, which will present to the eye, the way of the Mountaines and current of the Rivers, with their feuerall Turnings, Bayes, Shoales, Iles, Inlets, and Creekes, the breadth of the waters, the diffances of places and fech like. In which Map oblerue this, that as farre as you fee the little Croffes on Ruers, Mountaines, or other places have beene discouered; the reft was had by information of the Sauages, and are let downe, according to their inftructions,

Of such things which are naturall in Virginia, and how they wse them. Virginia doth affoord many excellent vigitables and living creatures, yet graffe there is little or none, but what groweth in low Marishes : for all the Countrey is ouergrowne with Trees, whose droppings continually turne their graffe to weedes, by reason of the ranknesse of the ground which would toone be amended by good husbandry. The wood that is most common is Woods with Oke and Walnut; many of their Okes are to tall and straight, that they will beare two foote their fraits. and a halfe square of good Timber for swenty yards long; Or this wood there is two or three fenerall kinds. The Acornes of one kind, whose barke is more white then the other, are somewhat sweetish, which being boyled halfe a day in senerall waters , at last affoord a sweete Oyle, 40 which they keep in Goards to annoint their heads & joynts. The fruit they eate made in bread or otherwife. There is also some Elme, some blacke Wal-nut tree, and some Ash: of Ash and Elme they make Sope-ashes. It the trees be very great, the ashes will be good, and melt to hard lumps, but if they be small, it will be but powder, and not so good as the other. Ot Walnuts there is two Supposed Cy- or three kinds; there is a kind of wood we called Cypresse, because both the wood, the fruit, and leafe did most resemble it, and of those trees there are some neere three fadome about the Roote very straight, and fifty, fixty, or eighty foot without a branch. By the dwelling of the Siuages are some great Mulberie trees, and in some parts of the Countrey, they are sound growing naturally in pretie Groues. There was an offay made to make filke, and furely the Wormes prospered excellent well, till the Mafter workman fel fick. During which time they were eaten with Rats, 50

Why there is httle graffe.

Elme.

Walnuts.

Mulberies,

Chefnuts.

Plummes.

Cheries.

it is as delicious as an Apricock. They have Cherries, and those are much like a Damson, but for their tastes and colour we called them Cherries. Wee faw fome few Crabbes, but very small and bitter. Of Vines great abundance in many parts climbe the tops of the highest trees in some places; but these beare but few Grapes. But by the Rivers and Savage habitations where they are not cuershadowed from 60 the Sunne, they are couered with fruit, though neuer pruned nor manured. Of those hedge Grapes wee made neere twenty gallons of Wine, which was neere as good as your French Britwish Wine: but certainly they would prove good, were they well manured. There is another fort of Grape, neereas great as a Cherrie, this they call Mellaminnes, they be far, and the myce

In some parts were found some Chesnats whose wild fruit equalize the best in France, Spaine, Germann, or Italy, to their tasts that had tasted them all. Plummes there are of three forts. The red and white are like our hedgy Plummes, but the other which they call Putchamins, grow as high as Palmeta: the fruit is like a Medler; it is first greene then yellow, and red when it is ripe; if it be not ripe it will draw a mans mouth awrie, with much torment, but when it is ripe, thicke. Neither doth the tafte fo well please when they are made in Wine. They have a small from growing on little trees, busked like a Chefnut, but the fruit most like a very small Acorne " this they call Chechinguamins, which they efteeme a great daintie. They have a berrie much like Chechinguamins our Gooseberrie, in greatnesse, colour, and taite; those they call Rawcomenes, and doe eate them Rawcomenes raw or boyled. Of these naturall fruits they line a great part of the yeere, which they vie in this manner. The Walnuts, Chefnuts, Acornes, and Checklinguamins, are dried to keepe. When How they vie they need them they breake them betweene two stones; yet some part of the Walnut shels will cleave to the fruit. Then doe they drie them againe voon a Mat over a Hurdle. After they put it in a Morter of wood, and beate it very fmall : that done they mixe it with water, that the 10 thels may finke to the bottome. This water will be coloured as milke, which they call Paperbilling, and keepe it for their vie. The fruit like Medlers they call Patchamins, they call voon Hurdles on a Mat, and preferue them as Pruines. Of their Chefnuts and Chechinquamins boyled foure houres, they make both Broth and Bread for their chiefe men, or at their greatest feafle. Besides those fruit trees, there is a white Populer, and another tree like vnto it, that yeeldeth 4 very cleare and an odoriferous Gumme like Turpentine, which fome called Balfam. There are allo Cedars and Saxafras tree. They also yeeld Gummes in a small proportion of themselves. Saxafras trees. Wee tried conclusions to extract it out of the wood, but nature affourded more than our arts.

CHAP. 2. Small fruit on which many line, Strange bealts.

In the watery Valleyes groweth a Berrie, which they call Ocomphemannis, very much like Berries, vnto Capers. These they dry in Summer. When they will eate them, they boyle them neere 20 halfe a day: for otherwise they differ not much from poilon. Mattonine groweth as our Benes Mattoline. doe in medowes: the feed is not much valike to Rie, though much smaller: this they vie for a dainty Bread buttered with Deeres Suet.

During Summer there are either Strawberries which doe ripen in Aprill or Mulberries which Strawberries ripen in May and June: Raspiles, Hurtes, er a fruit that the Inhabitants call Maracocks, which and other is a pleafant whollome fruit, much like a Limond, Many Herbes in the Spring time there are berries. commonly differred throughout the Woods, good for Broths and Sallets, as Violets, Purflane, Sorrell, &c. Befides many wee vied whole names we know not. The chiefe root they have for food is called Tockanboughe, It groweth like a Flag in low muddy Freshes. In one day a Sauage will gather sufficient for a weeke. These rootes are much of the preatnesse and taste of Potatoes. They vie to couer a great many of them with Oke Leanes and Ferne, and then couer all with earth in the manner of a Cole-pit; ouer it, on each fide, they continue a great fire twentie foure houres before they dare eat it. Raw it is no better then roifon. and being roafted, except it be tender and the heat abated, or fliced and dried in the Sunne, mixed with Sorrell and Meale, or fuch like, it will prickle and torment the throat extreamely, and yet in Summer they vie this ordinarily for bread.

They have another root which they call Wighfacan: as th'other feedeth the Bodie, fo this cua Wighfacan a reth their horts and diseases. It is a small roote which they bruise and apply to the wound. Po. medicinable cones, is a small root that groweth in the Mountaines, which being dried and beat in powder turneth red. And this they vie for swellings, aches, anointing their ioynts, painting their heads and small root. earments. They account it verie precious, and of much worth. Mulqualpenne is a root of the big- Mulqualpenne neffe of a finger, and as red as bloud. In drying it will wither almost to nothing. This they wile to a root. paint their Mats, Targets, and fuch like. There is also Pellitorie of Spatter, Safafrage, and divers Parietaries others Simples, which the Apothecaries gathered, and commended to be good and medicinable, Saffafras, others Simples, which the Apothecarse gasuered, anatomisation to go more in many places, In the low marifhes grow plots of Onions containing an acre of ground or more in many places, See infr. 6:144

Of beafts the chiefe are Deare, nothing differing from ours. In the Defarts towards the heads of Oxen found the Rivers, there are many , but amongst the Rivers few. There is a beaff they call Arongheum, by Cap, Aroll. much like a Badger, but vieth to live on trees as Squirrels doe. Their Squirrels, fome are neere as Their chiete great as our smallest fort of wilde Rabbets, fome blackish or blacke and white, but the most are beafts a So gray. A small beast they have, they call of figurick, but wee call them flying Squirrels, because Arougheun. foreading their legs and fo firetching the largenetic of their skinnes, that they have beene feene to Sourcele. flie thirtie or fortie yards. An Opaffam hath a head like a Swine, and a taile like a Rat, and is of Affanonick a the bigneffe of a Cat. Under her belly the hath a bag, wherein the lodgeth, carrieth, and suckleth Squirres Hying her young. Muffalcus, is a beaft of the forme and nature of our water Rats, but many of them Opefform. smell exceeding strongly of Muske. Their Hares are no bigger then our Comes, and few of them to be found.

Their Beares are verie lietle in comparison of those of Muscomia and Tartaria. The Beauer is Muffafent. as big as an ordinarie great Dog, but his legs exceeding (hort, His fore feet like a Dogs, his hinder Be res. feet like a Swans. His taile formewhat like the forme of a Racket bare without haire, which to The Beauer. eate the Sairages efteeme a great delicate. They have many Otters, which as the Beauers they Otters. take with fnares, and effeeme the skins great ornaments, and of all those beaffs they vie to feede When they eatch them.

There is also a bealt they call Vetchungueyes, in the forme of a wilde Cat, their Foxes are like Vetcunqueyes, our filter haired-Conies of a small proportion, and not smelling like these in England, Their Foxes, Bbbbbbb 3

LIB, IX.

Do s. Marring Polcats. Weefels, and Minkes Note.

Dogs of that Countrey are like their Wolues, and cannot barke but ho wle; and their Wolues not much bigger then our Englife Foxes. Martins, Powlecats, Weetiels and Minkes we know they haue, because we have teene many of their skins, though very seldome any of them aline, But one thing is strange, that wee could never perceive their vermine destroy our Hens, Egges, nor Chickens, nor doe any hurt, nor their Flyes nor Serpents any way pernitious, where in the South parts of America they are alwaies dangerous and often deadly.

Birds. Fish hawkes.

Of Birds the Eagle is the greatest deuourer. Hawkes there bee of divers forts as our Falconers called them, Sparrowhawkes Lanarets, Gulhawkes, Falcons, and Operaies, but they all new most vpon Fish. Partridges there are little bigger then our Quailes, wilde Turkies ateas bigge as our tame. There are Woofels or Black-birds with red shoulders. Thrushes and divers forts of mall 10 Birds, some red, some Biew, scarce so big as a Wren, but few in Summer. In Winter these are areas plentie of Swans Cranes, gray and white with blacke wings, Herons, Geefe, Brants, Duck, Wigeon, Dotterell, Oxeies, Parrats and Pigeons. Of all those forts great abundance, and some other ffrange kinds to vs vnknowne by name. But in Summer not any or a very few to be feene.

O Fifth, we are beft acquainted with Sturgeon, Grampus, Porpus, Seales, Stingraies, whole tail saie very dangerous. Bretts, Mullets, white Salmonds, Trowts, Soles, Plaice, Herrings, Conyhih, Rockfish, E. le., Lampreyes, Catfish, Shades, Perch of three forts, Crabs, Shrimps, Creuses. Strange forme Oyfters, Cocles and Muscles. But the most strange Fish is a small one, to like the preture of Saint George his Dragon, as possible can bee, except his legges and wings, and the Todefilh, which will fwell till it be I ke to burft, when it commeth into the aire.

The Rocks.

Concerning the entrailes of the earth, little can be faid for certaintie. There wanted good Refiners, for those that tooke vpon them to have skill this way, tooke vp the washings from the mountaines, and some moskered shining stones and spangles which the waters brought downe. flattering themselves in their owne value concert to have suppoted what they were not, by the meanes of that Ore, if it proued as their Arts and judgements expreted. Onely this iscertaine, that many Regions lying in the fame Latitude, afford Mines very rich of divers natures. The cruit allo of their Rocks would eafily pertwade a man to believe there are other Mines then Iron and Sceele of there were but meanes and men of experience that knew the Mine from Bare.

Of their Planted fruits in Virginia, and how they wfe them.

They divide the yeere into five feafons. Their Winter some call Papanen , the Spring Catemedite yeare, peak, the Summer Cobattajough, the earing of their Coine Nopmangh, the Hatvelt and fall of Icate Taguirock From September, vivall the midft of November are the chiefe Feaths and Sacrifice. Then have they plentie of truits, as well planted as naturall, as Corne, green and ripe, Fish, Fowle, and wild beafts exceeding fat.

How they pro-

The greatest labour they take, is in planting their Corne, for the Countrey is naturally ouergrowne with Wood. To prepate the ground they bruile the barke of the trees neare the roote, then doe they fcorch the roots with hie that they grow no more. The next yeere with a crooked piece of Wood, they beat up the Woods by the roots, and in those moulds they plant their Corne. 40 Their manner is this. They make a hole in the earth with a flicke, and into it they put foure graines of Wheat, and two of Banes. There holes they make foure foot one from another; Their women and children do continually keepe it with weeding, and when it is growne middle high, they hill it about like a Hop-yard.

How they

In April they begin to plant, but their chiefe plantation is in May, and so they continue till the midft of Iune. What they plant in April, they respe in August ; for Blay, in Septembers for Iune, in October. Euery stalke of their Corne commonly beareth two cares, some three, seldome any foure, many but one, and some none. Every care ordinarily hath betwixt two hundred and five hundred graines. The stalke being greene bath a fweet inyce in it, fomewhat like a Sugar Cane, which is the cause that when they gather their Come greene, they sucke the stalkes for as we ga- 70 ther greene Peale, so doe they their Corne being greene, which excelleth their old. They plant alio Peale, which they call of fest amous, which are the fame they call in Italy, Pagioli. Their Beanes are the fame the Turkes call Garnerfes, but thefe they much efteeme for dainties.

How they vie

Their Corne they roft in the care greene, and bruifed it in a Morter of Wood with a Pole, lap it in roules in the leaves of their Corne, and to boile it for a daintie. They also referue the Corne late planted that will not ripe, by roaffing it in hot albes, the heat thereof drying it. In Winter they efteeme it, being boiled with Beanes, for a rare diff, they call Paularoumena. Their old Wheat they first steepe a night in hot water, in the morning pounding it in a Morter. They vie a small basket for their Temmes, then pound agains the great, and sofeparating by dalning their hand in the basket, receive the flower in a platter made of Wood, scraped to that forme with bur- 60 ning and thels. Tempering this flower in water, they make it cither in cakes covering with after till they be baked, and then washing them in faire water they drie prefently with their owner heat; or elfe boile them in water, eating the broth with the bread, which they call Pousp. The groute and pieces of the cornes remaining, by fanning in a platter, or in the wind, away, the branne they boile three or foure houres with water, which is an ordinary food they call Vitatabamen. But fome more thriftie then cleanly, doe burne the coare of the earerto powder. which they call Pungnersh, mingling that in their meale, but it never tafted well in bread, nor broth, There ofh and rieft they boile either very tenderly, or brode it folong on hurdles ouer the fire, or elfe after How they vie the Sparelle fashion, putting it on a spit, they turne first the one side, then the other, till it beezs their fish and drie as their lerkin beefe in the Welt Indies, that they may keepe it a month or more without fich. putrifying. The broth of fish or fiesh they eate as commonly as the meat. In May also amongst their Corne they plant Pumpeons, and a fruit like vnto a Muske Millen, Planted fruits.

Pumpions planted among St Corne. Women Barbers. CHAP.2.

1697

but leffe and worfe, which they call Macocks. Their increase exceedingly, and ripen in the beto ginning of July, and continue vntill September. They plantalfo Muracocks, a wilde fruit like a Lemmon, which also increase infinitely. They begin to ripe in September, and continue till the and of October. When all their fruits be gathered, little elle they plant, and this is done by their women and children; neither doth this long fuffice them, for neere three parts of the yeere they onely observe times and seasons, and live of what the Countrey naturally affordeth from band to mouth,&c.

The mildnefle of the aire, the fertilitie of the foile, and the fituation of the Rivers, are fo propi. The 'commotions to the nature and vie of man, as no place is more concernent for pleasure, profit, and mans dities in Figs suffenance, Vnder that Latitude or Climate, here will live any beafts, as Horses, Goats, Sheepe, Affes, Hens, &c. as appeared by them that were carried thither. The waters, Iles, and shoales, are by industry. 30 full of fale harbours for thips of Warre or Merchand ze, for boats of all forts, for transportation or A proote, catfishing, &c. The Bay and Rivers have much merchandable fish, and places fit for Salt seats, bind- tell will live ding of Ships, making of Iron, &c.

Muscomia and Polonia doe yeerely receive many thousands, for Pitch, Tarre, Sope, ashes, Rosen, The Com-Flax, Cordage, Sturgeon, Mafts, Yards, Wainfoot, Firres, Glaffe, and fach like : alio Swirbland for Iron and Copper. Frame in like manner for Wine , Canvas, and Sale ; Spaine as much for Iron, Steele, Figs, Reafons, and Sackes. Italy with Silkes and Veluers confirme our chiefe commodities. Holland maintaines it felfe by Fishing and Trading at our owne doores. All these temporize with other for necessities, but all as vicertaine as Peace or Warres. Besides the charge, trauell, and danger in transporting them, by feas, lands, flormes, and Pyrats. Then how much liath Virginia 30 the presognitue of all those flourishing Kingdomes, for the benefit of our Land, when as within one hurfered miles all shofe that are to bee had, either readie prouided by nature, or elle to be prepared, were there but industrious men to labour. Onely Copper (we may doubt) is wanting this there is good probabilitie that both Copper, and better manerals are there to bee had for their labour. Other Countries haue it. So then here is a place ; a murfe for Souldiers ; a pradife for Mariners, a trade for the Merchants, a reward for the good, and that which is most of all, a bustneffe (most acceptable to God) to bring fuch poore Infidels to the true knowledge of God, and his holy Gofpel.

Of the natural Inhabitants of Virginia, and their customes.

The land is not populous, for the men be few; their farregreater number is of women and children. Within fixtie miles of lames Towne there are about fome 7000. people, but of able men fit for their warres fearle 2000. To nourish so many together they hade yet no meanes, because they make so imalia benefit of their Land, be it never so fertill : seven or eighe handred (hough by their owne report they were about a thousand) have beene the most which hath beene feane together, when they gathered themselves to have furposed Captaine South at Pamay whe having but fifteene to withfland the worft of their furie. As Imail as the proportion of to have furpriground that hath yet beene difcouered, is in comparison of that yet waknowne, the people dif. fed Captaine fer very much instature, especially in language, as before is expressed. Some being very great, as Smith. 50 the Sofquefabansocks; others very little as the Wighentomocoes; but generally tall and ftraight, of a comely proportion, and of a colour browne when they are of any age, but they are borne white. Their haire is generally blacke, but few haue any beards. The men weare halfe their The Barbers heads shauen, the other halfe long; for Barbers they vie their women, who with two shels will grate away the haire, of any fathion they pleafe. The women are out in many fathions agreeable to their yeares, but ever some part remaineth long. They are very strong, of an able body and The constitute full of agilitie, able to endure to lye in the woods under a tree by the fire, in the world of winter, or in the weedes and graffe, in Ambufeado in the Summer. They are inconstant in enery The dispositithing, but what feare conftraineth them to keepe. Craftie, timerous, quicke of apprehension, on.

ond very ingenious. Some are of disposition fearefull, some bold, most cautelous, all Sauage : Generally conerous of Copper, Beads, and such like trash. They are some moved to anger, and so malicious, that they feldome forget an injury : they feldome steale one from another, least their Conjurers should reveale it, and to they be pursued and punished. That they are thus feared is certaine, but that any can reueale their offences by conjuration I am doubtfull. Their women are carefull not to be julpected of dishonefty without the leave of their husbands. Each boulhold together, when they thought A deferiecion

ener weareth at his bracer, of any iplint of a flone or glaffe, in the forme of a hart; and their they glew to the end of their Arrowes. With the finewes of Deere, and the tops of Deeres hornes to trucking, they have plenty of the fame forme of Iron. And those are their chiefe instru-hoiled to a jelly, they make a glew that will not diffolue in cold water,

The politellions. Their attire.

Their ofna-

knoweth their owne lands and gardens, and most line of their owne labours. For their apparell. they are sometime couered with the skins of wilde Beasts, which in winter are deesed with the haire, but in fummer without. The better fort vielarge mantels of Deare skins, not much differing in fashion from the Irish Mantels : some imbrodered with white Beades, some with Conper, other painted after their manner. But the common fort haue scarce to couer their nakednelle but with graffe, the leaves of trees, or fuch like. Wee have feene some vie mantels made of Turkie-feathers, fo prettily wrought and wouen with threds, that nothing could be difeerned but the feathers. That was exceeding warme and very handsome. But the women are alwaves covered about their middles with a skin, and very fhamefac't to be feene bate. Thevadorne themselves most with Copper Beads and paintings. Their women, some have their less, 10 hands, brefts and face cunningly imbrodered with divers works, as Beafts, Serpents, araificially wrought into their fiesh with blacke ipors. In each eare commonly they have three great holes. whereat the hang Chaines, Bracelets or Copper. Some of their men weare in those holes, a fmall greene and yellow coloured Snake, neere halfe a yard in length, which crawling and lappine her felfe about his necke oftentimes familiarly would kille his lips, Others weare, a dead Rat tied by the taile. Some on their heads weare the wing of a bird, or some large feather with a Rattell. Those Rattels are somewhat like the chape of a Rapier but leffe, which they take from the taile of a Snake. Many have the whole skin of a Hawke or iome strange fowle, stuffed

Their buildings.

to behold.

Their Buillings and habitations are for the most part by the Rivers, or not farre distant from some fresh Spring. Their Houses are built like our Arbors, of small yong sprigs bowed and ried. and foclofe couered with mats, or the barks of trees very handsomely, that notwithstanding either winde, raine or weather, they are fo warme as stoues, but very imoakie, yet at the top of the house there is a hole made for the smooke to goe into right over the fire.

with the wings abroad. Others a broad peece of Copper, and some the hand of their enemy drie

Oyle, this they hold in fummer to preferue them from the heate, and in winter from the cold.

Many other formes of paintings they vie, but he is the most gallant that is the most mensitrous

e.l. Their head and shoulders are painted red with the roote Pecone braied to powder mixed with 20

Their lodg-

Against the fire they lye on little hurdles of Reades couered with a mat borne from the ground a foote and more by a Hurdle of wood. On these round about the house they lye heads and 30 points one by shother against the fire, some covered with Mats, some with Skins, and some starke naked, we on the ground, from fix to twenty in a house. Their Houses are in the midst of their Ejelds or Gardens, which are small plots of grounds; some twenty, some forty, some a hundred, forme two hundred, forme more, forme leffe, formetimes from two to a hundred of those houses together, or but a little seperated by groups of trees. Neare their habitations is little small wood or old trees on the ground by realon of their burning of them for fire. So that a man may sallop a horse amongst these woods any way but where the creekes or Rivers shall hinder.

Men, Women, and Children haue their feuerall names, according to the feuerall humour of their Parents. Their women (they fay) are easily delivered of child, yet doe they love children How they vie very dearely. To make them hardy, in the coldest mornings they wash them in the Rivers, 40 sheir children. and by painting and ointments fo can their skins, that after a yeare or two, no weather

The industry of their wo-...

The men beflow their times in filhing, hunting, warres, and fuch manbke exercises, forming to be feene in any womanlike exercise; which is the cause that the women be very painfull, and the men often idle. The women and chikiren doe the reft of the worke. They make Mats, Balkers, Pots, Morters, pound their corne, make their bread, prepare their victuals, plant their corne, gather their corne, beare all kinde of burdens, and fuch like.

How they Their order of Their fire they kindle prefently by chang a dry pointed sticke in a hole of a little square peece of wood, that firing it telfe, will fo fire moffe, leaves, or any such like dry thing, that will quickly burne. In March and Aprile they line much vpon their filbing wares, and teedeon fish, Tur. 50 kies; and Squirrels. In May and lune they plant their fields, and line most of Acornes, Walnuts, and fifth. But to mend their diet, some difperfe them selves in small companies, and live vpon fift, Beafts, Crabs, Oysters, land Fortoyses, Strawberries, Mulberries, and such like. In June, July, and August, they feede upon the rootes of Tochnough Berries, Fish, and greene Wheate. It is strange to fee how their bodies alter with their diet, euen as the Deere and wilde Beafis, they feeme fat and leane, firong and weake. Powhatan their great King, and some others that are prouident, rolf their fills and fielh upon hurdles, as before is expressed, and keepe it till scarce times. For filhing, and hunting, and warres, they vie much their Bowe and Arrowes. They bring their Bowes, to the forme of ours; by the scraping of a shell. Their Arrowes are made some of Braight youg sprigs, which they head with bone, some two or three inches long. These they 62 vie to flicote at Squirrels on trees. Another fort of Arrowes they vie, made of reedes : thefe are peeced with wood, headed with splinters of Christall, or some sharpe stone; the spurs of a Turkey, or the bill of some Bird, For his Knife, he hath the splinter of a reede to cut his feathers in forme. With this Knife also, he will loynt a Deere or any Beast, shape his shoors, buskins, Man-

How they

Their Knife.

and betwirt the fires they place themselves. And some take their stands in the midst. The Decre being thus feared by the fires and their voices, they chace them to long within that circle, that many times they kill fix, eight, ten, or fifteene at a hunting. They vie also to drive them into fome narrow point of land, when they finde that advantage, and fo force them into the River, where with their Boates they have Ambufcadoes to kill them. When they have thot a Derre by land they follow him like Bloud-hounds, by the bloud and ftraine, and oftentimes fo take them. Hares, Partridges, Turkies, or Egges, fat or leane, yong or old, they denoure all they can catcli in their power. In one of these huntings they found Captaine Smith, in the discouery of the head of the River of Chickahamania, where they flew his men, and tooke him prisoner in a Begmire, where he faw those exercises, and gathered these observations. One Sauage hunting alone, vied the skinne of a Deere flit on the one fide, and fo put on his One Sauage arme, through the necke, fo that his hand comes to the head which is fluffed, and the hornes, hunting alone, head, eies, eares, and euery part as artificially counterfeited as they can deuile. Thus fhrowding his body in the skin, by stalking he approacheth the Deere, creeping on the ground from one tree to another. If the Deere chance to finde fault, or fland at gaze, hee turneth the bead with his hand to his belt aduantage to feeme like a Deere, also gazing and licking himselie. So watching his best advantage to approach, having shot him, he chaleth him by his bloud and straine till heget him. When they intend any Wars, the Werowarces vivally have the advise of their Priests and Con- Their confuliurers, and their allies and ancient friends, but chiefely the Priefts determine their refolution. rations. Every Werowance, or fome lafty fellow, they appoint Captaine over every Nation. They feldome make Warre for lands or goods, but for women and children, and principally for revenge. They have many enemies, namely all their Westernely Countries beyond the Mountaines, and Theirenem es

For their warres also they vie Targets that are round and made of the barkes of trees, and a Their Targets (word of wood at their backes, but oftentimes they vie for fwords the horne of a Deere put and swords, through a peece of wood, informe of a Pickaxe : fome a long ftone sharpened at both ends. vied in the fame manner. This they were wont to vie also for Hatchets, but now by way the coles with stones and shels, till they have made it informe of a Trough. Some of them are an elle deepe, and forty or fifty foote in length, and fome will beare forty men, but the most ordinary are smaller, and will beare ten, twenty, or thirty, according to their bignesse. Instead of Oares, they vie paildles and tlickes, with which they will rowe failer then our Barges. Batwist their hands and thighes, their wo nen yfe to fpin; the Barkes of trees, Deere linewes, or Howthey foint a kinde of graffe they call Pemmenam, of these they make a thred very even and readily. This thred ferueth for many vies, about their housing, apparell, as also they make nets for fishing, for the quantity as formally braded as ours. They make also with it lines for angles. Their hookes Their Fishcold are either a bone grated, as they nocke their Arrowes, in the forme of a crocked pin or fishhooke, or of the splinter of a bone tied to the clift of a little flicke, and with the end of the line, they tye on the baite. They vie alfolong Arrowes tyed in a line, wherewith they shoote at fish in the River. But they of Accammack vie staves, like vnto Iauelins, headed with bone. With these they dart fift fwimming in the water. They have also many attiticiall wares in which they get In their hunting & filhing they take extreame paines; yet it being their ordinary exercise from their infancy, they effeemed it a pleasure and are very proud to be expert therein: And by their bouts.

Their fishing is much in Boates. These they make of one tree by burning and scratching a- Their Boats

exercife, every man doth his best to thew his dexteritie, for by their excelling in those qualities, they get their wives. Forty yards will they shoote levell, or very neere the marke, and one hun-

two or three hundred together. Having found the Deere, they environ them with many fires, ao dred and twenty is their beff at random. At their hunting in the defarts they are commonly continuall ranging, and trauell, they know all the aluantages and places most frequented with 20 Deere, Beafts, Fish, Fowle, Rootes, and Berries. At their huntings they leave their habitations, and reduce themselves into companies, as the Tartars doe, and goe to the most desert places with How they have their families, where they spend their time in hunting and fowling up towards the Mountains. by the heads of their Rivers, where there is plenty of game. For betwixe the Rivers, the grounds are fo parrow, that little commeth there which they denouse not. It is a margell they can to directly passe these delarts, some three or foure daies source without habitation. Their hunting Hunting h. uhouses are like vnto Arbours couered with mats. These their women beare after them, with fes-Corne, Acornes, Morters, and all bag and baggage they vie. When they come to the place of the heads of the Rivers. Vpon the head of the Powbatans are the Monacans, whole chiefe habitation is at Ruffawmeake, viito whom the Moubementhughes, the Maffinnacacks, the Monabaffannges, and other Nations pay tributes. Vpon the head of the River of Toppabanocke is a penple called Mannahoseks. To these are contributers the Taux Initarias, the Shackaconias, the Outponeas, the Tegoneaes, the Whonkentyaes, the Stegarakes, the Haffinnungas, and divers others. all contederates with the Monacans though many differ in language, and be very barbarous, huine for most part of wilde Beaits and fruies. Beyond the Mountaines, from whence is the head of Mafferonikes, the River Parawomeke, the Savages report inhabit their most mortall enemies, the Maffamomekee whom a great falt water, which by all likelihood is either fome part of Commada, fome great upon a great fait water, which by an inational state of the South Sea. These Massamments are a Lake, or some insert of some Sea that falleth into the South Sea. These Massamments are a great Nation and very populous. For the heads of all those Rivers, especially the Pattawometer. the Pantuxuntes, the Safquefabanoks, the Tockwonghes are continually tormented by them : of whose cruelty, they generally complained, and very importunate they were with Cantaine Smith and his company to free them from these tormentors. To this purpose they offered food. conduct, affiltance, and continuall subjection; which hee concluded to effect. But the councell then present, emulating his fuccesse, would not thinke it fit to spare him forty men to be hazarded in those vnknowne Regions, having passed (as before was spoken of) but with twelve, and fo was loft that opportunity. Seuen Boates full of thele Maffanomekes the discourrers encountred at the head of the Bay; whole Targets, Baskets, Swords, Tobaccopipes, Flatters. Bowes and Arrowes, and enery thing the wed, they much exceeded them of our parts, and their dexteritie in their small Boates made of the barkes of trees fowed with barke and well luted with gum, argueth that they are feated upon iome great water.

Against all these enemies the Powhatans are conftrained sometimes to fight. Their chiefeattempts are by Stratagems, trecheries or furpritals. Yet the Weromances women and children they put not to death, but keepe them Captines. They have a method in warre, and for our pleafures they flewed it vs, and it was in this manner performed at Mattapanient.

Having painted and differred themselves in the hercest manner they could denise. They dimided themtelues into two Companies, neere a hundred in a Company. The one company called Monacans, the other Powhatans. Either army had their Captaine. Thele as enemies tooke their stands a Musket shot one from another; ranked themselves fifteene a breit, and each ranke 20 from another foure or fine yards, not in fyle, but in the opening betweet their fyles. So as the Reare could shoote as conveniently as the Front, Having thus pitched the fields : from either part went a Meffenger with these conditions, that whospeuer were vanquished, such as esope voon their submission in two daies after shall live, but their wives and children should be prize for the Conquerours. The Messengers were no tooner returned, but they approached in theirorders : On each flanke a Sarieant, and in the Reare an officer for Lieutenant, all duely keeping their orders, yet leaping and finging after their accustomed tune which they vie onely in wars. Vpon the first flight of Arrowes they gave such horrible shouts and screeches, as so many infernall helhounds could not have made them more terrible. When they had spent their Arrowes, they joyned together prettily, charging and retiring, every ranke seconding other. As they got 40 aduantage, they catched their enemies by the haire of the head, & down he came that was taken! his enemy with his wodden Sword feemed to beate out his braines, and ftill they crept to the Reare to maintaine the skirmish. The Monacans decreasing, the Tombatans charged them in the forme of a halfe Moon; they vnwilling to be inclosed, fled all in a troope to their Ambufcadoes, on whom they led them very cunningly. The Monacans difperfe themielues among the tresh men, whereupon the Powhatans retired with all speede to their seconds; which the Monacans seeing, tooke that aduantage to retire againe to their owne battell, and so each returned to their owne quarter. All their actions, voices and gestures, both in charging and retiring, were so strained to the height of their quallitie and nature, that the strangeneile thereof made it iceme very For their mulicke they vie a thicke Cane, on which they pipe as on a Recorder. For their warres they have a great deepe platter of wood. They cover the mouth thereof with a skin, ac each corner they tie a Walnut, which meeting on the backefide neere to the bottome, with a fmall rope they twitch them together till it be fo tough and fliffe, that they may be are vpon it as vpon a Drum. But their chiefe instruments are Rattels made of small gourds or Pumpions shels. Of these they have Base, Tenor, Countertenor, Mear eand Trible. Trese mingled with their voyces, sometimes twenty or thirty together, make such a terrible noile, as would rather affright then delight any man. If any great Commander arrive at the habitation of a Weromance, they spread a Mat, as the Turkes doe a Carpet, for him to fit vpon. Vpon another right cpposite they sit themselves. Then doe all with a tunable voice of showing bid him welcome 60 After this doe two or more of their chiefest men make an Oration, testifying their loue; which they doe with such vehemency, and so great passions, that they sweate till they drop, and are fo out of breath they can fearce fpeake: fo that a man would take them to be ex wing angry, or starke mad. Such victuall as they have, they spend freely, and at night where his lodging is appointed, they fet a woman fresh painted red with Pocones and Oile, to be his Their manner of trading is for Copper, Beades, and fuch like, for which they give fuch commodities as they have, as Skins, Fowle, Fish, Flesh, and their Countrie Corne. But their victuall

Every foring they make themselves sickewith drinking the juice of a roote they call Wieb. Their philicke, Gean, and water, whereof they powre fo great a quantity, that it purgeth them in a very violent manner; fo that in three or foure daies after they fcarce recouer their former health. Sometimes they are troubled with dropfies, fwellings, aches, and fuch like difeales; for cure whereof they build a stone, in the forme of a Douehouse, with mats, so close that a few coales therein couered with a pot, will make the patient sweate extreamely. For swellings also they vie small peeces of touchwood, in the forme of cloues, which pricking on the griefe they burne close to the fi-sh, and from thence draw the corruption with their mouth. With this root Wigh facan they ordinarily heale greene wounds. But to scarrifie a swelling or make incision, their best instruments are some splinted stone. Old vicers or putrified hurts are seldome seene cured amongst them. They have many professed Physicians, who with their charmes and Rattels with an in- Their charmes fernall rowt of words and actions will feeme to fucke their inward griefe from their nauels or to cure. their grieued places; but of our Chirurgians they were to conceited, that they beleeved any Plaifter would heale any hurt.

Of their Religion.

There is yet in Virginia no place discouered to be so Sauage in which the Sauages haue not a Religion, Deere, and Bow, and Arrowes. All things that were able to doe them hurt beyond their prepention, they adore with their kinde of dinne worthip; as the fire, water, lightning, thunder, our ordnance, peeces, horses, &c. But their chiefe God they worship is the Diuell; him they call Oke, and ferue him more of feare then loue. They fay they have conference with him and faihion themselves as neere to his shape as they can imagine. In their Temples they have his image euilfauouredly carued, and then painted and adorned with Chaines, Copper, and Beads, and couered with a skin, in such manner as the deformitie may well fuite with such a God. By 30 him is commonly the fepulcher of their Kings. Their bodies are first bowelled, then dried vpon hurdles till they be very dry, and so about the most of their joints and necke they hang How they bu-Bracelets or Chaines of Copper, Pearle, and such like, as they vie to weare, their inwards they rytheir Kings. fluffe with Copper Beads and couered with a Skin, Hatchets, and fuch trafh. Then lap they them of wealth, their Kings haue, they fet at their feete in baskets. These Temples and bodies are For their ordinary burials, they dig a deepe hole in the earth with sharpe stakes, and the corpes being lapped in Skins and Mats with their lewels, they lay them upon dicks in the ground, and 40 fo couer them with earth. The buriall ended the women being painted all their faces with black very carefully in white Skins, and so rowle them in mats for their winding-sheetes. And in the Tombe, which is an arch made of Mats, they lay them orderly. What remaineth of this kinde cole and oyle, doe fit foure and twenty houres in the houses mourning and lamenting by turnes, with such yelling and howling as may expresse their great passions. In every Territory of a Werowance is a Temple and a Priest, two, or three, or more. Their prin- Their Temples cipall Temple or place of superstition is at Vitamus ack at Pamavake, neere vnto which is a house temple or place of Powhatans. Vpon the top of certain red fandy hils in the woods, there are three great houses filled with images of their Kings, and Diuels, & Tombes of their Predeceffors, Those houses are neere fixty foot in length, built arbot-wise after their building. This place they count folioly as that none but the Priells and Kings dare come into them; nor the Sauages dare not goe Vp the River in Boates by it, but that they solemnly cast some peece of Popper, white Beads or To Pocones into the River; for feare their Oke (hould be offended and revenged of them. In this place Their ornacommonly are refident feuen Priefts. The chiefe differed from the reft in his ornaments, but inferior Priefts could hardly be knowne from the common people, but that they had not io many their Priefts. holes in their cares to have their Iewels at. The ornament of the chiefe Prieft were certaine attires for his head made thus; They tooke a dofen, or fixteene, or more Snake skins, and stuffed them with moffe, & of Weefels, and other vermine skins a good many. All these they tye by their tailes, fo as all their tailes meete in the top of their head, like a great Taffell. Round about this Taffell is as it were a cown of feathers, the skins hang round about his head, necke, and shoulders, and in a manner couer his face. The faces of all their Priests are painted as vgly as they can deuife, in their hands they had every one his Rattell, some base, some smaller. Their devotion was most in

60 Songs, which the chiefe Priest beginneth, and the rest followed him, sometimes he maketh inuo. cations with broken fentences by flares and flrange paffions, and at every paule, the reft gine a

It could not be perceived that they keepe any day as more holy then other; but onely in some Their times of great diffreste of want feare of enemies, times of triumph and gathering together their fruits, the following to.

Their Conin-

with Rattles and shouts together toure or fine houres. Sometime they let a man in the midft and about him they dance and ting, he all the while clapping his hands if he would keepe time, and after their fongs and dancings ended they goe to their Feafts. They have also divers conjurations; one they made when Captaine Smith was their prisoner (as they reported) to know if any more of his Country-men would arrive there, and what hee there intended. The manner of it followeth in his story.

Their Altars. C.Smith.

Sacrifices to

They have also certaine Altar stones, they call Pancorances, but these stand from their Temples, fome by there houses; others in the Woods and Wildernetles : Where they have bad an ex- Id traordinary accident or incounter. As you travell by them they will tell you the cause of their erection. wherein they instruct their children; fo that they are in flead of Records and memorialls of their Antianities. Voon this they offer bloud, Deare fuet, and Tobacco. Thefe they doe when they returne from the warres, from hunting, and vpon many other occasions. They have also another Superflition that they vie in flormes, when the waters are rough in the Rivers and Sea Coaffe. Their Conjurers runne to the water fides, or passing in their Boats, after many hellish outches and innocations, they cast Tobacco, Copper, Pocones, or such trash into the water, to pacific that God whom they thinke to be very angry in those flormes. Before their dinners and suppers, the better fort will take the first bit , and cast it in the fire , which is all the grace they are

Their folemne making of

C.Smith.

Euery Nation in feuen or ten yeeres vieth a kind of folemnity. Such a one was at Quipongheohanock . fome ten miles from lames Towne, and thus performed. Fifteene of the properest young Boyes betweene ten and fifteene yeeres of age they painted white. Having brought them forth, the people spent the forenoone in dancing and singing about them with Rattler. In the afternoone they put those children to the root of the tree. By them all the men stood in a gard, euery one hauing a Bastinado in his hand, made of Reeds bound together. This made a lane betweene them all along, through which there were appointed fine young men to fetch thefechildren : fo enerie one of the fine went through the goard to fetch a child each after other by turnes, the guard fearlessy beating them with the Bastinadoes, and they patiently enduring and receinine all, defending the children with their naked bodies from the vnmercifuli blowes, that my ; them foundly, though tie children escape. All this while the women weepe and cry out vene piffionately, prouiding Mats, Skins, Moffe, and drie Wood, as things fitting their childrens Funeralls. After the children were thus passed, the guard tore downe the trees, branches, and boughs, with such violence that they rent the bodie, and made wreathes for their heads, or bedecked their haire with leaves. What elfe was done with the children, was not feene, butthey were all cast on a heape, in a Valley as dead, where they made a great feast for all the company, The Werowance being demanded the meaning of this facrifice, answered. That the children were not all dead, but the next day they were to drinke Wighlakon, which would make them mad; and they were to bee kept by the last made Blacke boyes in the wildernesse, where their Oke did sucke the blond of those which fell to bic lot. The truth is, as I thinke that many die with the mifery which they endure. For they 40 lye in all weathers in a little bonell naked , and they seldome speake or keepe company with any but them Keepers ; whom they obey fo, that if they be bidden fit on the frozen from, they will not rife till they be called. And if they bid them goe take Fish, Flesh, or Corne from their mothers, or elfe they are Old me, this word is fo terrible that they will teare their mothers throat, but they will have it; yea it makes them do what seemer they are commanded: and much mischiefe they often doe to such as they find stragling. Tet burt they not each other. They continue thus nine menths. Then are diners platters of broth set, of which some are porsoned; and be whose dimination finds out the porsoned, is much esteemed and made a Quiyoughcoiuck. Thefe are the degrees to become Priests or Coniurers. This facrifice they held to be to necessary, that if they should omit it, their Oke or Deuil, and all their other Quinonghoof uches which are there other Gods, would let them have no Deare, Turkies, Corne, nor Fifn, and yet be- 10 fides, be would make a great flaughter among it them.

They thinke that their Weromances and Priests , which they also esteeme Quijongheofnghes, when they are dead, goe beyond the Mountaines towards the fetting of the Sunne, and euer remaine there in forme of their Ole, with their heads painted with Oile and Pocones, finely trimmed with Feathers, and shall have Beades, Hatchets, Copper, and Tobacco, doing nothing but dance and fing, with all their Predeceffors. But the common people they suppose shall not live after death. To divert them from this blind Idolatry, many vied there best endeauours, chiefly with the Werowances of Quiyoughcohanock, whole denotion, apprehension, and good disposition, much exceeded any in those Countries, whom though wee could not as yet prevaile withall to forfake 62 hisfalle Gods, yet this he did beleeue, that our God as much exceeded theirs, as our Gunaes did their Bowes and Arrowes, and many times did fend to the President, at Iames Towne, men with Prefents, intreating them to pray to his God for Raine, for his God's would not fend him any. And in this lamentable ignorance, doe these poore soules sacrifice themselves to the Devil, not knowing their Creator.

of the manner of the Virginians Government.

Although the Countrey people be very barbarous, wet have they amongst them such government . as that their Magiltrates for good commanding , and their people for due subjection, and obeying, excell many places that would be counted verie civill. The forme of their Commonwealth is a Monarchiall government, one as Emperour ruleth over many Kings or Governouts. Their chiefe Ruler is called Powhatan, and taketh his name of the principall place of dwelling, salled Pombatan. But his proper name is Wabun Conacock. Some Countries hee hath which have been his Ancestors, and came vnto him by Inheritance, as the Countrie called Pophatan, Arroto bateck, Appamatuke, Pamavuke, Youghtanud, and Mattapaniont. All the rest of his Territories expreffed in the Map, they report have beene his feuerall conqueits. In all his ancient Inheritances, hee hath houses built after their manner like arbours, some thirtie, some fortie yards long, and at euerie house prouision for his entertainment according to the time. At Weroweamose, hee was scated youn the Northside of the River Pamaruke, some fourteene miles from lames Towne. where for the most part, hee was resident, but hee tooke so little pleasure in our neere neighbourhood, that were able to visit him against his will in fixe or feuen houres, that he retired himselfe to a place in the Defarts at the top of the River Chickahamania, betweene Tonehtanund and Pow- A deferiction batan. His habitation is called Orapacks, where he ordinarily now refideth. He is of parsonage a of Powhaten. tall well proportioned man, with a fower looke, his head fomewhat gray, his beard fo thin that an it feemeth none at all, his age neere fixtie; of a verie able and hardie bodie to endure any labour. About his person ordinarily attendeth a guard of fortie or fiftie of the tallest men his Countrie doth afford. Euerie night voon the foure quarters of his house are foure Sentinels each standing from other a flight shoot, and at every halfe houre one from the Corps due guard doth hollow, vnto whom everie Sentinell doth answere round from his stand; if any faile, they presently fend forth an officer that beateth him extreamely.

A mile from Orapakes, in a thicket of Wood, hee hath a house in which hee keepeth his kind of His treasurie. Treasure, as Skins, Copper, Pearle, and Beads, which he storeth vp against the time of his death and buriall. Here also is store of Red paint for ointment, and Bowes and Arrowes. This house is siftie or fixtie yards in length, frequented onely by Prieffs. At the foure corners of this house stand of foure Images as Sentinels, one of a Dragon, another a Beare, the third like a Leopard, and the fourth like a Giant-like man, all made euill-fauor uly according to their best workmanship.

He hath as many women as he will, whereof when he lieth on his bed, one fitteth at his head. His Wines. and another at his feet, but when he fitteth one fitteth on his right hand & another on his left, As he is weary of his women, he bestoweth them on those that best deserve them at his hands. When he dineth or suppeth, one of his women before and after meat, bringeth him water in a woodden Platter to wash his hands. Another waiteth with a bunch of Feathers to wipe them insteed of a Towell, and the Feathers when he hath wiped are dried againe. His Kingdome delcendeth not to his ionnes nor children, but first to his brethren, whereof hee hath three, namely Opitchapan, His Successors Opechancanough, and Catataugh, and after their decease to his fifters. First to the eldest fifter, then The title of ao to the rest, and after them to the heire male and semale of the eldest fister, but never to the heires succession.

of the males. Hee, nor any of his people understand any letters whereby to write or read, onely the Lawes whereby he ruleth is Cuftome. Yet when hee lifteth his will is a law, and must be obeyed : not only as a King, but as halfe a God they efteeme him. His inferiour Kings, whom they call Their authoris Weromances are tied to rule by customes, and have power of life and death, as their command in that nature. But this word Werowance, which we call and confter for a King, is a common word whereby they call all Commanders : for they have but few words in their language, and but few occasions to vie any officers more then one Commander, which commonly they call Werowances. The tenor of They all know their fenerall lands, and habitations, and limits, to fish, fowle, or hunt in, but they their lands, 50 hold all of their great Werowance Powhatan, vnto whom they pay tribute of Skins, Beads, Copper.

Pearle, Deare, Turkies, wild Beafts, and Corne. What hee commandeth they dare not disobey in the least thing. It is strange to see with what great feare & adoration all these people do obey this Powhatan. For at his feet they present whatsoever hee commandeth, at the least fromne of his brow, their greatest spirits will tremble with feare; and no margell, for hee is very terrible and tyrannous in punishing such as offend him. For example, hee caused certaine malefactors to bee. His manner of bound hand and foot, then having many fires, gathering great flore of burning coles, they rake these punishments. coles round in the forme of a cock-pit, and in the midtl they cast the offenders to broyle to death. Somtimes hee canfeth the heads of them that offend him, to bee laid upon the altar or facrificing ftone, and one with clubs beat out their braines. When he would punish any notorious enemy or 60 malefactor, hee causeth him to bee tied to a tree, and with Mukle shels, or Reeds, the executioner cutteth off his joynts one after another, ever cafting what they cut off into the fire; then doth hee proceed with S. els and Reeds to cafe the skin from his head and face; then doe they rip his belly, and so burne him with the tree and all. Thus themselves reported they executed George Cassen. Their ordinary correction is to beat them with cudgels. Wee have seene a man kneeling on his

Vanitie of

Life minate

Vanitie of

glor:ofos.

felf-fecking

Planters.

knees, and at Powhatans command, two men have beat him on the bare skin, till hee hath fallen fenfeleffe in a found, and yet neuer cry nor complained.

In the yeere 1608, he furprised the people of Pagankatank, his neere neighbours and subjects: The occasion was to vs vnknowne, but the manner was thus. First, he fent divers of his men to Indee amongst them that night, then the Ambufacodes invironed all their houses, and at the hour appointed, they all fel to the spoile, twenty foure men they flew, the long haire of their one fide of theirheads, with the skinne caled off with shels or reeds, they brought away. They simprifed also the women, the children, and the Werowance. All these they present to Pombatan. The Werowance, women and children became his prisoners, and doe him service. The lockes of haire with their skins he hanged on a line vnto two trees. And thus hee made oftentation of 25 to great a triumph at Weromocomoco, thewing them to the English men that then came vnto him ac his appointment, they expecting prouision, he to betray them, supposed to halfe conquer them by this ipecticle of his terrible crueltie.

And this is as much as my memory can call to mind worthy of note; which I have purposely collected, to fatisfie my friends of the true worth and qualitie of Virginia, Yet fome bad natures will not flick to flander the Countrey, that will flouenly fpit at all things, especially in company where they can find none to contradict them. Who though they were fearce euer ten miles from I ames Towne, or at the most but at the Falls; yet holding it a great diffrace that amongst so much action, their actions were nothing, exclaime of all things, though they neuer aduentured to know any thing, nor euer did any thing but deuoure the fruits of other mens labours. Being for 20 most part of such tender educations and small experience in martiall accidents, because they found not English Cities, nor fuch faire houses, nor at their owne wishes any of their accultomed dainties, with Feather-beds, and Down-pillowes, Tauernes and Ale-houses in euery breathing place, neither fuch plentie of Gold and Siluer and diffolute libertie as they expected, had little or no care of any thing, but to pamper their bellies, to fly away with our Pinnaces, or procure their meanes to returne tor England. For the Countrey was to them a mifery, a ruine, a death, a hell, their reports here, and their owne actions were there according.

Some other there were that had yeerely stipends to passe to and againe for transportation: who to keepe the mystery of the businesse in themselves, though they had neither time nor meanes to know much of themsclues; yet all mens actions or relations they so formally tuned to 20 the temporizing times simplicitie, as they could make their ignorances seeme much more, then all the true actors could by their experience. And those with their great wordes deluded the world with such thrange promises, as abused the businesse much worse then the rest. For the bufineffe being builded vpon the foundation of their fained experience, the planters, the Money, Tin, and meanes have Hill miscarried : yet they ever returning, and the Planters so farre absent, who could contradict their excuses ? which still to maintaine their vain-glory and estimation, from time to time they have vied fuch diligence as made them passe for truths, though nothing more falle. And that the adventurers might be thus abused, let no man wonder; for the wisest living is foonest abused by him that hath a faire tongue and a dissembling heart.

Milerie of bale

There were many in Virginia meerely proiecting, verball and idle contemplators, and those so 40 denoted to pure idlenesse, that though they had lived two or three yeeres in Verginia, lordly, neceffitie it selfe could not compel them to pale the Pninfula, or Pallsadoes of James Town, & thole wittie spirits, what would they not affirme in the behalfe of our transporters to get victual from their ships, or obtaine their good words in England to their passes. Thus the clamors and the ignorance of telle informers, are sprung those disasters that sprung in Virginia, and our ingenious Verbalists were no lesse plague to vs in Virginia, then the Locusts to the Egyptians, For the labour of thirtie of the best only, preserved in Christianitie by their industry the idle livers of neere two hundred of the rest: who hung neere ten months of such naturall meanes, as the Countrey naturally of it felfeafforded, not withftanding all this, and the worft fury of the Sausges, the extremitie of ficknesse, mutinies, faction, ignorances, and want of victual : in all that time Hoft 50 but seuen or eight men, yet subjected the Sauages to our desired obedience, and received contribution from flue and thirtie of their Kings, to protect and affift them against any that should affault them; in which order they continued true and faithfull, and as subjects to his Maiestie, so long after as I did gouerne there, vntill I left the Countrey : fince , how they have revolted, the Countrey loft, and againe replanted, and the businesses have succeeded from time to time, I refer you to the relations of them returned from Virginia, that have been more diligent in such obseruations, gathered out of the Writings of divers of that Plantation, by Doctor William Simons.

CHAP. 60

CHAP. IIII.

CHAR. 4. Letters Patents for establishing a Counsell. A Fort contriued.

The proceedings of the English Colony in Virginia, taken faithfully out of the writings of THOMAS STUDLY Cape-Merchant, ANAS TODKILL, Doctor Rus-SELL, NATHANIEL POWELL, WILLIAM PHETIPLACE, and RICHARD POT, * RICHARD WIFFIN, THO. AB-BAY, THO. HOPE; and since enlarged out of the Writings of Capt. IOHN SMITH, principal Agent and Patient in these Virginian Occurrents, from the beginning of the Plantation 1606. till Ann. 1610. Comewhat abridged.

Apraine Bartholomen Gofnold, the first mouer of this Plantation, having many cause these yeeres folicited many of his friends, but found imall affiftants ; at last prevailed have alreadie with fome Gentlemen, as M. Edward-Maria Wingfield , Captaine Iohn Smith , feene the light, and divers others, who depended a yeere upon his projects, but nothing could and containe be effected, till by their great charge and industrie it came to bee apprehended of Virginian by certaine of the Nobilitie, Gentrie, and Merchants, fo that his Maiettie by affaires. I was his Letters Patents, gaue Commission for establishing Councels, to direct here, and to gouerne, and loch to wearing to execute there : to effect this was front another yeere, and by that time three Ships were pro- the Reader uided, one of one hundred Tuns, another of fortie, and a Pinnace of twentie. The transportation with others of on of the Company was committed to Captaine Christopher Newport, a Mariner well practifed for The full mothe Westerne parts of America. But their orders for gouernment were put in a Box, not to bee ucrofthe opened, nor the Governours knowne vntill they arrived in Virginia.

On the ninteenth of December, 1606. wee fet faile, but by vnprosperous winds, were kept Orders for gofix weekes in the fight of England; all which time, M. Hunt our Preacher, was fo weake and enforcement. ficke, that few expected his recourrie. Yet although hee were but ten or twelue miles from his Admirall with so habitation (the time we were in the Downes) and notwithstanding the stormy weather, nor the 71. feandalous imputation (of fome few , little better then Atheilts , of the greatest ranke among it God Beed Vice. vs) fuggefted against him, all this could neuer force from him so much as a seeming defire to leave admirall with the businesse, but preferred the Service of God, in so good a Voyage, before any affection to contest with his godlesse whose disasterous designes (could they have prevailed) had even then by Cap Gostal. overthrowne the businesse. So many discontents did then arise, had he not with the water of pati- Discourt ence, and his godfy exhortations (but briefly by his true denouted examples) quenched those Rear admirall, flames of entry and differtion.

Wee waterdat the Canaries, we traded with the Sauages at Dominica; three weekes we spent M. Hant. in refreshing our selves amongst these West India Iles; in Gwardalupa wee found a Bath so hot, as 40 in it we boiled Porck as well as over the fire. And at a little lle, called Monica, wee tooke from the Bulhes with our hands, neere two Hogsheads of Birds in three or foure homes. In Mevis, Manica an vice Mona", and the Virgin Iles, we spent sometime, wherewith a loathsome beast like a Crocadil, frequented colled a Green Torroles Pellicans Parcor and Rifles weed diluser that Government of Letislot birds called a Gwayn, Tortoles, Pellicans, Parrots, and Fishes, wee daily feasted. Gone from thence in fearch of Virginia, the Company was not a little discomforted, seeing the Mariners had three daies passed their reckoning and found no Land, so that Captaine Rateliffe (Captaine of the Pinnace) rather defired to beare up the Helme to returne for England, then make further fearch. But God the guider of all good actions, forcing them by an extreame ftorme to Hull all night, did drive them by his providence to their defired Port, beyond all their expectations, for never any of them had leene that Coast. The first Land they made, they called Cape Henry; where ancho- Their first ring, M. Wingfield, Goffoll, and Nemport, with thirtie others, recreating themselves on shoare, Were landing-50 affaulted by fine Sauges, who hurt two of the English very dangeroully. That night was the Box opened, and the orders read in which Bartholomen Gofnoll Edward Wing field, Christopher Newport,

John Smith, John Ratliffe, John Martin, and George Kendall, were named to be the Councell, and to chuse a President among it them for a yeere, who with the Councell should gouerne. Matters of Mitters of go moment were to be examined by a Iury, but determined by the Maior part of the Councell, in ueroment. which the Prefident had two voices. Vntill the thirteenth of May they fought a place to plant in, then the Councell was Iworne, M. Wing field was chosen Prefident, and an Oration made, why Captaine Smith was not admitted to the Councell as the reft.

Now falleth every man to worke, the Councell contriue the Fort, the rest cut downe Trees to 60 make place to pitch their Tents ; some prouide Clap-board to relade the Ships, some make Gardens, some Nets, &c. The Sauges often visited vs kindly. The Presidents ouerweening lealousie would admit no exercise at Armes, or Fortification, but the Boughs of Trees cast together in the The discourse forme of a halfe Moone, by the extraordinary paine and diligence of Captaine Kendall, Nempore, othe Fils and With Smith, and twentie others, were lent to discouer the head of the River : by divers small habi- Pontain.

* I haue many written Treatifes lying by me, written by Capt. Smith and others. fome mere, fome here af

The Fort affaulted by the Sauages. Ihan: also M. Winefields notes of thefe affaires : but ould not rouble the with things nore then troublefome

there.

tations they passed, in fixe dayes they arrived at a Towne called Powbatan, consisting of some twelue houses pleasantly seated on a Hill; before it three fertill lies, about it many of their Cornfields, the place is very pleafant, and ftrong by nature, of this place the Prince is called Pare hatan, and his people Powhatans, to this place the River is Navigable, but higher within a mile, by reason of the Rockes and Iles, there is not passage for a small Boat, this they call the Falls, the people in all parts kindly intreated them, till being returned within twentie miles of lames Towne, they gave just cause of jealousie, but had God not blessed the discoverers otherwise then those at the Fort, there had then beene an end of that Plantation; for at the Fort, where they are rived the next day, they found seventeene men hurt, and a boy slaine by the Sauages, and had it not chanced a croffe Bar shot from the Ships strooke downe a Bough from a Tree amongst them, that caused them to retire, our men had all beene slaine, being securely all at worke, and their Armes in Dry-fats. Heereupon the President was contented the Fort should be pallisadoed, the Ordnance mounted, his men armed and exercised, for many were the assaults, and Ambuscadoes of the Sauges, and our men by their diforderly ftragling were often hurt, when the Sauges by the nimbleneile of their heeles well elcaped. What toile we had, with fo small a power to guard our workemen adayes, watch all night, refult our enemies, and effect our bulineffe, to relade the Ships, cut downe Trees, and prepare the ground to plant our Corne, &c. I refer to the Readers confideration. Six weekes being ipent in this manner; Captaine Newport (who was hired onely for our transportation) was to returne with the Ships.

Now Captaine Smith (who all this time from their departure from the Canaries) was reftrai-20 ned as a prisoner upon the scandalous suggestions of some of the chiefe (enuying his repute) who fained he intended to viurpe the gouernment, murder the Councell, and make himfelfe King that his confederates were dispersed in all the three Ships, and that divers of his confederates that reuealed it, would affirme it; for this he was committed, thirteene weekes hee remained thus fulpected, and by that time the Ships should returne, they pretended, out of their commisserations. to referre him to the Councell in England to receive a check, rather then by particulating his defignes make him fo odious to the world, as to touch his life, or veterly overthrow his reputation: but he much formed their charitie, and publikely defied the vetermost of their crueltie, hee wifely prevented their policies, though hee could not suppresse their enuies, yet so well hee demeaned himfelie in this businesse, as all the Company did see his innocencie, and his adversaries malice, 30 and those which had beene subborned to accuse him, accused his accusers of subornation; many wntruths were alledged against him; but being so apparantly disproved, begat a generall hatred in the hearts of the Company against such vniust Commanders; many were the mischiefes that daily forung from their ignorant (yet ambitious) spirits; but the good doctrine and exhortation of our Preacher Master Hunt reconciled them, and caused Captaine Smith to be admitted of the Councell: the next day all received the Communion, the day following the Sauages voluntarily defired peace, and Captaine Newport returned for England with newes; leaving in Virginia one hundred the fifteenth of June 1607.

The names of them that were the first planters, were these following. Master Edward-Maria Winefield, Captaine Bartholomew Gofnoll, Capt. John Smith, Capt. John Ratcliffe, Cap. John Martin, A Capt. George Kendall, Councellors.

M. George Piercy, M. Robert Hunt Preacher, Anthony Gofnoll, Capt. Gabrill Archer, Rob. Ford, William Brustar, Dru Pickhouse, John Brookes, Thomas Sands, John Robinson, Visis Clonil, Kellam Throgmorton, Nathaniell Powell, Robert Bebethland, Ieremy Alicock, Thomas Studley, Richard Crofts, Nucholas Houlgraue, Thomas Webbe, lohn Waler , William Tankard , Francis Snarsbrough , Edward Brookes, Richard Dixon, John Martin, George Martin, Anthony Gofnold Thomas Wotten, Stirg. Thomas Gore, Francis Midwiter, Gentlemen.

William Laxon, Edward Pifing, Tho. Emry, Rob. Small, Carpenters. Anas Todeill, John Capper. Iames Read, Blacksmith, Ionas Profit, Sailer. Tho Couper, Barber. lohn Herd, Brick-layer, William Garret, Brick-layer. Edward Brinto, Mason. Welliam Lone, Taylor. Nic. Skot. Drum.

Iobn Laydon, William Caffen, George Caffen, Tho. Caffen, William Rods, William White, Ould Edward, Henry Tanin, George Golding, John Dods Will. John fon, Will. Vinger, Labouters. Will Wilkin fon. Surgeon. Samuell Collier, Nat. Pecock, James Brumfield, Rieb, Matton, with divers others to the number of one hundred and five.

Capt. Newports returne for Emland. What happened till the first supply.

The occasion of fickneffe.

The Sailers

abufes.

D Eing thus left to our fortunes, it fortuned that within ten dayes, scarce ten amongst vs could Beither goe, or well stand, such extreame weaknesse and sicknesse oppressed vs. And thereat none need maruell, if they confider the cause and reason, which was this; whilest she ships stayed, our allowance was somewhat bettered, by a daily proportion of bisket which the Saylers would pilfer to fell, give or exchange with vs, for money, faxefras, furres, or love. But when they 60 departed, there remained neither Tauerne, Beere-house, nor place of reliefe but the common kettell. Had we beene as free from all finnes as gluttony, and drunkennesse, we might have beene canonized for Saints : But our President would never have beene admitted, for ingroffing to his private, Otemeale, Sack, Oile, Aquavitz, Beefe, Egges, or what not, but the kertel; that indeed he allowed equally to be diffributed, and that was halfea pinte of Wheat, and as much Barly boiled with water for a mana day, and this having fryed tome fix and twentie weekes in the ships hold, contained as many wormes as graines; fo that wee might truely call it rather fo much Bran then Corne, our drinke was water, our lodgings castles in aire, with this lodging and diet, our extreame toile in bearing and planting Pallifadoes, lo strained and bruifed vs, and our continual labour in the extreamitie of heat had to weakned vs, as were cause sufficient to have made vs as miferable in our native Countrey, or any other place in the world. From May to September, thole dene. that escaped lived vpon Sturgion, and Sea-Crabs; fiftie in this time we buried : The rest seeing the Prefidents protects to elcape these mileries in our Pinnace by flight (who all this time had to neither felt want nor ficknelle) so moued our dead spirits, as wee depoted him ; and established Reseliffe in his place, (Gosnell being dead) Kendall deposed, Smith newly recoursed, Martin and Railffe was by his care preietued and relieued, but now was all our prouision spent, the Sturgeon gone, all helpes abandoned, each houre expecting the fury of the Sauages; when God, the Parron gone, an interpretation of all good indeauours in that desperat extreamitie, to changed the hearts of the Sauages, that they plentic your brought such plentie of their fruits and prouision, as no man wanted.

The new President, and Marin, being little beloued; of weake sudgement in dangers, and leffe industry in peace, committed the managing of all things abroad to Captaine Smith: who by his owne example, good words, and faire promifes, fet fome to mow, others to binde thatch, fome to build houses, others to thatch them, himselfe alwaies bearing the greatest taske for his owne 20 share, so that in short time he prouided most of them lodgings, neglecting any for himselfe. This done, leeing the Sauages inperfluitie begin to decreale (with some of his workmen) hee shipped himselfe in the shallop to search the Countrey for trade, the want of the language, knowledge to mannage his Boat without Sailers, the want of fufficient power (knowing the multitude of the Sauages) apparell for his men, and other necessaries, were infinite impediments, yet no discouragement. Being but fixe or leuen in company, hee went downe the River to Kecoughtan, where ragement. Deing out im, as a thrued man; and would in derifton offer bim a handfull of Corne, or a ce first they formed him, as a thrued man; and would in derifton offer bim a handfull of Corne, or a piece of Bread for their Swords and Muskets, and such like proportions also for their apparell. But seeing by trade there was nothing to be had, nesefficie forced him to exceed his Commission, and to vie his Muskets to another kind of trading, which made these deriders flye to the Woods. Hee hasted to their honses, 30 and found flore of Corne, from which the hungry Souldiers were hardly detained, in bastier spoile to have betrayed themselves to the returning Sauages affault. This fixire or seventy did presently, with hideous noise to the eare, and manifold colours painted to the eye, singing and dancing with their Okee (which was an Idol made with skins, finffed with moffe, all painted and hanged with Chaines and Copper, borne before them) and being well armed with Clubs, Targets, Bowes and Arrowes, they charged the English, who fo kindly received them with their Musices loaden with Postoll flot, that downe fell their God, and divers of his worldippers lay forauling on the ground, the rest string to the Woods. Soone after they sent one of their Quiyoughcalucks to offer peace, and redeeme their Okee. Smith agreed that if onely fixe would come unarmed and load his Boat with Corne, hee would be their friend, restore their Okee, and give them also Beads, Copper, Hatchets; which on beth sides was performed to mutuall content, and they brought him 40 (finging and dansing) Vension, Turkeys, wild Fowle, Bread, &c. In his returne hee discouered and (finging and danfing) Vension, Turkess, wild Fowle, Bread, Gre. In his returne nee oncourred and Thebeginning kindly traded with the Wereskopks, in the meane time those at the Fort to glutted the Sauages of tradeawith their commodities as they became not regarded.

Smub perceiving (notwithstanding their late mifery) not any regarded but from hand to mouth (the company being well recouered) caused the Pinnace to bee prouided with things fitting to get prouition for the yeere following; but in the interim he made three or foure journyes and discovered the people of Chickahamine, yet what hee carefully provided the rest carelesty spent, Wingfield and Kendall living in difgrace, feeing all things at randome in the absence of Smith. The Companies dillike of their Prefidents weaknesse, and their small loue to Martins ne- The distource uer-mending fickneffe, ftrengthened themselnes with the Sailers, and other confederates to re- of chukaba-

30 gaine their former credit and authoritie, or at least fuch meanes aboard the Pinnace (being fitted mine. to faile as Smith had appointed for trade) to alter her course and to goe for England. Smith vnexpectedly returning had the plot discoursed unto him, much trouble hee had to preuent it, till with flore of Fauken and Musket shot hee forced them to flay or finke in the River, which action coit the life of Captaine Kendall. The President and Captaine Archer not long after intended allo to have abandoned the Countrey, which project also was curbed and sup- indicabinpressed by Smith. And now the Winter approaching, the Rivers became so covered with don the Coun-Swans, Geefe, Ducks, and Cranes, that wee daily feathed with good Bread, Virginia Peale, trys.

Pumpions, and Putchamins, Fish, Fowle, and divers forts of wild Beaths as fat as wee could eate. Winter Fowles them : fo that none of our Tuttaffatie humorifts defired to goe for England. But our Comadies

60 neuer endured long without a Tragedie; some idle exceptions being muttered against Capraine Smith, for not discouring the head of Chickahamine river, & taxed by the Conneel, to be too slow in to worthy an attempt. The next voyage hee proceeded to far, that with much labour by cutting off Trees in funder hee made his paffage, but when his Barge could paffe no farther, hee left her in a broad Bay out of danger of thot, commanding none should goe alhoare till his returne abtent, but his men went ashoare, whose want of government, gave both occasion and opportunis ty to the Sauages to lurprize one George Caffon, and much failed not to have cut off the Boate and of Sauages.

Ccccccc 3

The Sauages basing drawns from George Casson, whither Captains Smith was gone, followed him with three hundred Bowmen, conducted by Opechankanough the King of Pamaunke; who fearthing the dissistant of the River, found Robinton and Emery by the fire side, whom they hot full of Arrowes and slew. Smith being assaulted slew three of them, and so galled the rest that they would not come neere: be vied the Sauar: his guide as a fireld, having bound him to his arme with his garters; and thinking to have recovered his Boate, having more eye to them in his march then to his way, be supped up to the Ic middle in an ozie creeke, and bus Savage with bim; yet aurift they not come to bim till betbrew awar bis armes, being neere dead with cold. Then according to composition they drew him forth, and led him to the fire, where his men were flaine. Diligently they chafed his benummed limbes; and be gave Onechankanough a round luory double compassed Diall. They much maruelled at the playing of the five which they could fee and not touch, by reason of the Glasse coner; but when he had read a Comprabbicall lecture to them of the Skies, Earth, Day, and night, with the varietie of Nations, and such like they were all amazed : notwithstanding which sudden wonder, they tide him to a tree within an houre ofter at many as could fland about him prepard their fatall Arrowes to his death, which were all laid downe when Opechankanough held up the faid Diall: and they led him in a kinde of trimmeh to

Sauge eri-

Their order was this: drawing themselves all in sile, the King in the midst had all their Peeces Sauage tri-umph, disciplin and Swords borne before him: Captaine Smith was led after him by three great lubbers, bolding him and callantry. fast; on each side went six in file, with their Arrowes nocked. When they arrived at the Towne (which was of thirty or forty bunting houses made of Mats, removed at pleasure, as Tents with vi) the women and children came to stare on him; the Souldiers in file bad their Sargiants to keepe them in order. A good while they thus continued, and then cast themselves into a ring, dancing in feuerall postures , and singing hellish noates , strangely painted , each having his Quiner of Arrowes, and at his backe a Clubbe; on his arme a Foxes or Otters Skinne for his vambrace. their heads and houlders painted red with Oyle and Pocones mingled together, his Bowe in his band, and the Skinne of a Bird, with her wings abroad, dried, tied on his head, with a perce of 30 Copper a white Shell, a long Fether, and a small Rattle growing at the taile of their Snakes, or some sach tor fastened thereto. All this while Smith flood with the King quarded in the midft, till three dances being done, they departed. Then did they conduct Smith to along bonfe, where thirty or forty men guarded bim, and soone after was brought more Bread and Venison then would have served twentr: what be left they put in Baskets and tied over his head, which about midnight they againe fet before bim, none of them eating ought with bim, till basing brought as much more the next morning, they did ease the old, and referned the new in like manner. Hee thought they intended to fat and eate bim.

Their feafting-

One Maocassater, in requitall of Beads which be had given him, brought him his Gowne to defend bim from the cold. Another was possessed with a contrary humour, and would have staine him for the 40 death of his sonne, had not the guard premented; to him, yet breathing his last, they brought him to recouer him. Smith told then that at lames Towne be bad a water that would doe it of they would let him fetch it. But they prepared to affault Ismes Towne, promising him liberty, and women, if he would aflift them. In part of a Table Booke be wrut bis minds to those which were at the Fort; that they should fend such thing; mentioned. They went in bitter weather for Frost and Snow, and seeing men fally out. as he had before told them, they fled; but comming agains in the night to the place which be had appointed, for an answer, they found things ready, and speeduly returned, as if either be had divined, or the pa-

Sauage fimplicity.

After this they led bim to the Youghtanunds, the Matapanients, the Pavankatiks, the Nantaughtacunds, the Onanmanients, upon the Rivers of Rapahanocke, and Patanomecke, and 10 Rices of Con- backe againe by diners other Nations, to the Kings babitation at Pamaunk, where they entertained him with frange consurations. Earely in a morning a great fire was made in a long house, a Mat fored on each fide; on one of which he was fet, the guard went out, and in came a great grim fellow skipping, all painted with cole mingled with Oyle, many Snakes and Weefels skins stuffed with Mosse, their tailes tied towerber, and meeting on the crowne of his head; round about the taffell was a coroner of Fethers; the skins bung round about his head, shoulders, backe and face : With a bellish voyce. Arange gestures and passions, with a Rattle in his hand, bee began his innocation, and environed the fire with a circle of Meale. After this, three such other divels rushed in with like trickes, painted halfe blacke, halfe red, all their eyes painted white, with some red stroakes along their sheekes. These having danced a pressio while, three more came in as vely as the rest, with red eyes and white stroakes over their blacke faces. At 60 last they all fat downe right against him, the chiefe Priest in the midst, and three on each hand. All then with their Rattles began a fong; which ended the chiefe Priest laid downe fine Wheate cornes : and straining bis armes and hand with such violence, that be swet, and his veines swelled : hee began a short Oration; at the conclusion whereof shey gave a short ground, and then laid downs three graines more. Now they becam their Song againe, and then another Oration, ever laying downe so many cornes as before till they had twice encircled the fire. That done, they take a bunch of lutle stickes, prepared for that purpose, and at the end of enery Song and Oration laid downe a sticke betwirt the divisions of the Corne. Till media neither be nor they did cate or drinke, and then they feasted merrily with their best promisons. Three dages they vied this Ceremonie, thereby to know (as they faid) whether bee intended them weller no. The circle of meale fignified their Country, the two circles of Corne the Sea-bounds : and the flickes his Countrey. They imagined the World to be flat and round like a trencher and them- Sausae Geor (elues in the midst. After this, they brought him a buge of Powder, which they carefully preserved till graphy. the next fring, to plant as they did their Corne, because they would be acquainted with the nature of Gunpowder

CHAP.4. Circle of Meale. Platters of Bread. Formle and with Bealts.

Opitchapam the Kings brother, insited him to his bonse, where bee welcommed him with as many Platters of Bread, Fowle and wilde Beafts, as did encompasse bim: but not any would eate with bim, reserving theremainders in Baskets. At his returne to Opechankanoughs, all the Kings women and their children flocked about him, as for their customary due, to be merry with such fragments. At lest they brought him to Werowocomoco to Pohatan, where about two hundred of his Courtiers He is brought flood wondring on him, till Pohatan and his traine had put themselnes in their greatest brauery. Before to Pohatan. a fire bee fat on a seate like a bedsted, concred with a great robe made of Rarowcun Skinnes, all the tailes banging by: on each hand did fit a your wench of fixteene or eighteene yeeres of age; along on each fide the boufe two rowes of men, and behinde them as many women, with all their heads and shoul-20 ders painted red , many of their beads bedecked with the white downe of Birds , enery one adorned with Wilde rovaler. Come thing , a great chaine also of white Beades about their neckes. At his entrance before the Kine all the people gaue a great front. The Queene of Appanatucke was appointed to bring water to malh bis hands, another brought him a bunch of Feathers instead of a Towell to drie them. Hawine feasted him in their best manner, the beld a consultation, in conclusion whereof, two great stones were brought before Pohatan , and as many as could lay bold on him dragged him to them, and thereon laid his bead, being ready with their clubbes to beate out his braines. Pocahuntas the Kings dearest Daughter, when no intreatie would premaile, got his bead into her armes, and laid her Potahuntas owne open his to faue bim from death : whereupon the Emperour was contented hee should line to make furth his life,

30 pations : the King himselfe making his owne Robes, Shooes, Bowes, Arrowes, Pots, Planting also, Hun- All men of all time, and doing Offices, no leffe then the reft. Two daves after Poliaran having desquesed himselfe in the dreadfullest manner, caused Captaine Smith to be brought forth to a great boufe in the woods, and there upon a Mat by the fire to bee ieft alone. Not long after from behinde a Mat which dinided the bonfe, was made the dolefullest noise that ener bee had beard. After this Pohatan with twenty more as blacke as himselfe came unto him, and told him that they were now friends, and presently hee should goe to lames Towne to fend him two great Gunnes and a Grindstone, for which bee would give him the Country of Capahowolick, and for ener eiteeme bie as bis Sonne Nantaquaus. Hee fent bim thitber with twelve quides. When they came to the Fort, Smith veed the Sanages kindely, and hewed Rawhunt.

him Hatchets, and Beads, Bels, and Copper for ber. For they thought him like themselves, of all occu-

40 Poha; ans trulty fernant two Demiculnerius and a Milstone to carry to Pohatan; somewhat too beaute for their carriage. But when they faw him discharge them leden with stones, on the boughes of a great tree banging full of isickles, the Ice and boughes comming downewith sach furie, the Sawaves were halfe dead with feare; and at last returning contented with toics and presents for Poliatan. his women and childred. This his returning fafe to the Port, once more staired the Pinnace her The third prod flight for England, which till his returne, could not fet faile, so extreame was the weather, and iect to abanfo great the Frost.

His relation of the plenty he had feene, especially at Werowocomoco, where inhabited Powe batan (that till that time was vnknowne) fo remined againe their dead spirits, as all mens feare was abandoned, Powhatan having fent with this Captaine divers of his men loaded with 40 prouison, hee had conditioned, and so appointed his trustie Messengers to bring but two or three of our great Ordnances; but the Mellengers being fatisfied with the fight of one of them difcharged an away amazed with feare, till meanes were vied with gifts to affure them our loues.

A LL this time our cares were not fo much to abandon the Countrie, but the Treasurer and The arrival of Counsell in England, were as deligent and carefull to supply vs. Two tall Shippes they the fift upply fent vs, with neere one hundred men, well furnished with all things could be imagined ne- with their pro cellary, both for them and vs. The one commanded by Captaine Newport: the other by Cape ceedings and taine Nelson, an honest man and an expert Marriner, but such was the leewardnesse of his Ship

(that though he were within fight of Cape Henry) by formy contrary windes, was forced fo The Phenie farre to Sea, as the West Indies was the next land for the repaire of his Masts, and reliefe from Cape of wood and water. But Captaine Nemport got in, and arrived at lames Towne, not long after Hemy forced to the West the redemption of Captaine Smith, to whom the Sauges every other day brought speh plenty India. of Bread, Fish, Turkies, Squarels, Deere, and other wilde Beasts, part they gave him as protents from the King; the rest, he as their market Clarke fet the price how they should fell.

So he had inchanted those poore soules (being their Prisoner)in demonstrating vato them the roundnesse of the World, the course of the Moone and Starres, the cause of the day and night, the largenesse of the Seas, the qualities of our ships, shot and powder: The diminon of the How C. Smith World, with the diverticie of people, their complexions, customes and conditions. All which gothis liberty. he fained to be vnder the command of Captaine Newport, whom he termed to them his Father: of who e arrivall, it chanced he so directly prophecied, as they esteemed him an Oracle; by these fictions he not only faued his owne life, and obtained his liberty; but had them at that command, he might command them what he lifted. That God that created all these things; they Their opinion knew he adored for his God, whom they would also tearme in their Discourses, the God of naluing our

in Mariners trade both which fup-

The Prefident and Councell fo much enuied his estimation amongst the Sauages (though wee all in generall equally participated with him of the good thereof) that they wrought it into their vaderstandings, by their great bountie in giving foure times more for their Commodities then he appointed, that their greatnesse and authoritie, as much exceeded his, as their bountie and libefolly in vaderralities Now the arrival of his first supply, so ouer-ioyed vs, that wee could not deuse too much Commodities rothe Sauages to pleafe the Mariners. Weegaue them libertie to trucke or trade at their pleasures. But ina fhort time, it followed, that that could not be had for a pound of Copper, which before was fold for an ounce, Thus Ambition and Sufferance, cut the throat of our Trade, but confirmed their fmall prizes. opinion of Newports greatneffe wherewith Smith had possessed Powbatan) specially by the great Anerher folly Presents Newport often sent him, before he could prepare the Pinnace to goe and visit him; so 20 that this Sauage also defired to see him. A great brute there was to fet him forward; when hee went he was accompanied, with Captaine Smith, and Mafter Scrimener a very wife understanding Gentleman newly arrived, and admitted of the Councell, and thirtie or fortie chofen men for that guard. Arriving at Werowccome, Newports conceit of this great Sauage bred many doubts and suspicions of Treacheries; which Smith, to make appeare was needleffe, with twentie men well appointed, vndertooke to encounter (with that number) the world that could happen. Thefe being kindly received afhore, with two or three hundred Savages were conducted to prouide to feaft vs. Sitting ypon his Bed of Mats, his Pillow of Leather imbroydered (after their gate maner) with Pearle and white Beads, his Attire a faire Robe of shinner as large as an Infa

Mantle, at his head and feet a handsome young woman; on each fide his house fate twente of his Concubines, their heads and shoulders painted red, with a great chaine of white Beads about their neckes, before those fate his chiefest men in like order in his Arbor-like house. With many pretie Discourses to renue their old acquaintance; the great King and our Captaine spenthe time till the ebbe left our Barge aground, then renuing the:r Feaths and mirth, we quartred that night with Powhatan: the next day Newport came alhore, and received as much content of those people could give him, a Boy named Tho. Sauage was then given vnto Powhatan, whom Newport called his Sonne, for whom Pombatan gaue him Namontacke his truftie Servant, and one of a in Powbatan carried himselfe so proudly, yet discreerly (in his Sauage manner) as made vs all admire his naturall gifts confidering his education, as fcorning to trade as his fubicets did, hee be-

Spake Newport in this manner. Captaine Newport it is not agreeable with my greatneffe in this pedling manner to trade for trifles, and I esteeme you a great Weroans, Therefore lay mee downe all your Commodities together, what I like, I will take, and in recompence give you that I thinke fitting their value. Captaine Smith being our Interpreter, regarding Nemport as his Father , knowing belt the shrewd subtill capacitie. Three or foure dayes were spent in feating, dancing and trading, where- 40 planted the ecod of the Smiths reuifiting Pembatan.

P whaton fift their Towne; Pombatan ftrained himfelfe to the vttermoft of his greatnesse to entertaine vs. entertamment with great shouts of Ioy, Orations of protestations, and the most plentie of victual hee could large I urnall ofthis journie: har content myfelie with this briefer to auoid prolixity

The exchange of a Christian for a Sauage.

Powhatans

Difference of

disposition of Pombatan told vs his intent was but to cheat vs; yet Captaine Newport thinking to out-braue this Sauage in oftentation of greatnesse, and so to bewitch him with his bountie, as to haue what he lifted; but to it chanced, Powbatan having his defire, valued his Corne at fuch a rate, as I thinke it better cheape in Spaine, for we had not fourebushels for that we expected twentie 50 Hogheads. This bred fome vnkindnesse betweene our two Captaines, Newport seeking to please the humour of the vulatiable Sauage; Smith to cause the Sauage to please him, but smothering his distaste (to avoid the Savages suspition) glanced in the eyes of Powhatan many Trifles who fixed his humour vpon a few blue Beads ; A long time he importunately defired them , but Smith feemed so much the more to affect them, so that ere we departed, for a pound or two of blue Beads he brought over my King for two or three hundred bushels of Corne, yet parted good friends. The like entertainment we found of Opechantynough King of Pamaunke whom also he in like manner fitted, (at the like rates) with blue Beads ; and so wee returned to the Fort. Where this new supply being lodged with the rest, accidentally fired the quarters, and so the Towne, which being but thatched with Reeds, the fire was fo fierce as it burnt their Pallizadoes (though ten or twelve 62 yards diftant) with their Armes, Bedding, Apparell, and much private provision. Good Master Hunt our Preacher loft all his Librarie, and all that hee had (but the clothes on his backe) yet none over faw him repine at his loft. Uson any alarme be would be as readic for defence as any, and till be could fleake; he nemer ceassed to his remost to animate us constantly to persist : whose since que

CHAP. 4. Store of Oate-meale. Meale and Corne. Ambuscadoes.

flionleffe is with God. This happened in the Winter, in that extreme Froit 1607. Now though pronegre to ward fufficient, I meane, only of Oate-meale, Meale, and Corne, yet the ship staying there fourteene weekes, when the might as well have beene gone in fourteene dayes, ipent the Beefe, Porke, Oyle, Aquauitæ, Fish, Butter, and Cheese, Beere and such like; as was prouided A shipidly loito be landed vs. When they departed, what their differentian could spare vs, to make a Feastor tring touneen to be landed vs. When they departed, what their direction count part vs. when they weeks, and two with Bisket, Porke, Beefe, Fish, and Oyle, to rellish our mouthes, of each somewhat they shamefully atwo with bishet, I trate, those that had either Money, spare Clothes, credit to give Bils of shametully befrys, yet I mult confesse, those that had either Money, spare Clothes, credit to give Bils of shametully payment, Gold Rings, Furres, or any fuch Commodities were euer welcome to this remooning company here Payment, Such vas our patience to obey such vile Commanders, and buy our owne prouision at and Colonie To fifteene times the value, fuffering them to feaft (we bearing the charge) yet must not repine, but there is pti-fait; and then leakage, thip-rats, and other cafualties occasioned the loft, but the vessell and remnants (for totals) we were glad to receive with all our hearts to make vp the account, highly commending their Prouidence for preferring that. For all this plentie our ordinarie was but meale and water, fo that this great charge little relieued our wants, whereby with the extremitie of the bitter cold Aire more then halfe of vs died, and tooke our deaths, in that piercing Winter. Icannot deny, but both Serimener and Smith did their best to amend what was amisse. but with the President went the major part, that their hornes were too short. But the worst mitchiefe was, our gilded Refiners with their golden promifes, made all men their slaues in hope of recompence; there was no talke, no hope, no worke, but digge Gold, wash Gold, refine Gold, The effect of 20 load Gold, fuch a brute of Gold, as one mad fellow defired to bee buried in the Sands, leaft they meere Verbas should by their Art make Gold of his bones : Little need there was and lesse reason, the shippe lifts.

should by their Art make Gold of his bones: Little need there was and interaction, the mariner A needless should stay, their wages runne on, our victuall consume fourteene weekes, that the Mariner A needless charge, might fay, they built fuch a golden Church, that we can fay, the raine washed neere to nothing in fourteene dayes. Captaine Smith would not applaud all those Golden inventions, never any * Certaine thing did more torment him, then to fee all necessary businesse neglected, to fraught such a drunthing yellow ken hip with so much gilded * dirt; till then we neuer accounted Captaine Newport a Refiner; Sand which who being fit to fet faile for England, and we not having any vie of Parliaments, Playes, Petiti- was fent over ons, Admirals, Recorders, Interpreters, Chronologers, Courts of Plea, nor Iustices of Peace, ons, Admirals, Recorders, Interpreters, Chronologers, Courts or Plea, nor juttices or Peace, great promites fent Mafter Wingfeld and Captaine Archer with him for England, to feeke fome place of better of gold, like ao imployment.

He authority now confishing in refining Captaine Martin, and the still fickly President, the performance. fale of the flores Commodities maintayned their effates as inheritable Reuennes. The the Phanix her Spring approching, and the thip departed, Mafter Seriuener and Captaine Small divided betwixt returne, and othem, the rebuilding our Towne, the repayring our Pallisadoes, the cutting downe Trees, pre- ther accidents paring our fields, planting our Corne, and to rebuild our Church, and recouer our Storehouse; all Chapter men thus busie at their seuerall labours, Master Nelson arrived with his lost Phanix, (lost I say, of lames towns for that all men deemed him loft) landing (afely his men; fo well hee had mannaged his ill hap, Welfauhonecaufing the Indian lles to feed his company that his victuall (to that was left vs before) was fuffi- fly & fdeinie. 40 cient for halfe a yeere, he had nothing but he freely imparted it; which honest dealing (in a Mariner) caused vs admire him, wee would not have wished so much as he did for vs. Now to relade this ship with some good tydings. The President (yet not standing with his dignity to leave the Fort) gaue order to Captaine Smith and Master Scrimener to discouer and search the Commodities Sinie appoinof Monacans Countrey beyond the Falls, fixty able men were allotted, the which within fixe ted to discount dayes exercise, Smith had so well trained to their Armes and Orders, that they little feared with Menacan. whom they should encounter. Yet so vnseasonable was the time, and so opposite was Captaine Martin to every thing, but only to fraught his ship also with his phantasticall Gold, as Cap-Smith rather defired to relade her with Cedar, which was a prefent difpatch; then either with dirt, or the reports of an vicertaine Discouerie. Whilst their conclusion was resoluting, this

Powbatan to expresse his love to Newport, when he departed, presented him with twenty Turkeyes, conditionally to returne him twenty Swords, which immediatly were fent him; Now af- Anill examkeyes, conditionally to returnehim twenty Swords, which immediatly were left him; Now are ple to fell ter his departure he prefented Captaine Smith with the like luggage, but not finding his humour profess to Sar obeyed in fending him Weapons, he caused his people with twentie denices to obtaine them; at last by Ambuscadoes at our very Ports they would take them perforce, surprize vs at worke, or Pombatans tree any way, which was fo long permitted that they became fo infolent, there was no Rule, the com- cherie, mand from England was fo straight not to offend them, as our authority Bearers (keeping their houses) would rather be any thing then Peace-breakers: this vncharitable charity prevailed, till well it chanced that they medled with Captaine Smith , who without farther deliberation gaue The Gonerthem such an incounter, as some hee to hunted vp and downe the Ile, some hee so terrified with nours weak-

them used an incounter, as some nee to nuntee up and downe the style of his foraging difor-whipping, beating and imprisonment, as for reuenge they surprized two of his foraging difor-smith steems; derly Souldiers, and hauing assembled their forces, boldly threatned at our Ports to force Smith to tunereffer to re-deliver feven Sauages, which for their villanies he detained Priloners. But to try their fu- the Sauages ries, in leffe then halfe an houre he fo hampered their infolencies, that they brought the two pri- injulgious

(I faw it) with the promifers yeelding fandy

ring our fore-fayle with our thirts, we fet fayle for the Mayne, and fell with a faire Riuet on the

1712

and examined their intents and plotters of their villanies, confessed they were directed only by Powhatan, to obtaine him our owne weapons to cut our owne throats, with the manner how, where, and when , which we plainly found most true and apparant. Yet hee fent his Messengers Pombatant ex- and his deerest Daughter Pecahantas to excuse him, of the injuries done by his Subjects, desiring their liberties, with the affurance of his love. After Smith had given the Prifoners what correction he thought fit, vied them well a day or two after, he then delivered them to Pocabuntas. for whole take only hee fained to faue their lives and grant them liberty. The patient counfell. that nothing would moone to warre with the Sanages, would gladly have wrangled with Captaine Smith for his cruelcy, yet none was flaine to any mans knowledge, but it brought them in fuch feare and obedience, as his very name would fufficiently affright them. The fraught of this thin being concluded to be Cedar, by the diligence of the Master, and Captaine Smith, shee was Athip fraught quickly reladed; Mafter Scrimener was neither idle nor flow to follow all things at the Fort, the thip falling to the Cedar Ile, Captaine Martin having made shift to bee sicke neere a yeere , and now, neither Pepper, Sugar, Cloues, Mace, nor Nutmegs, Ginger, nor Sweet meats in the Countrey (to enjoy the credit of his supposed Art) at his earnest request, was most willingly admitted to returne for England, yet having beene there but a yeere, and not past halfe a yeere since the ague lett him (that he might fay fomewhat he had feene) he went twice by water to Palbabeh a place neere leuen miles from lames Towne, but left the dew should diftemper him. was euer forced to returne before night. Thus much I thought fit to expresse, hee expressy commanding me to record his Iournies, I being his man, and he fometimes my Master. One hundred and twentie were landed in the last supply. Thomas Studly. Anas Todkill.

foners defiring peace without any farther composition for their Prisoners, who being threatned

The aduentures of Cap. Martin.

The accidents The predigalitie of the Prefidents state went so deepe in the store that Smith and Scrivens which happed had a while tyed both Martin and him to the Rules of Proportion, but now Smith being to in the discour- depart, the Presidents authority so overswayed Master Scriveners discretion as our store, our time, ric of the Bay. our strength and labours were idlely consumed to fulfill his phantasies. The second of lune 1608. Chep 5.

I have a Diarie Smith left the Fort to performe his Discouery; with this company. Walter Russell Doctor of Phyof this and the ficke, Ralph Morton, Thomas Momford, William Cantrill. Richard Fesberftone, I ames Bourne, Mifollowing Dif- chael Sicklemore. Anas Todkill. Robert Small, James Watkins, John Powell, James Read black Smith, 29 couerie of the Richard Keale Fishmonger. Ionas Profit fisher.

Thefebeing in an open Barge of two tunnesburthen leaving the Phanix at Cape Henrie, we ming mings more particu- croffed the Bay to the Easterne spoare, and fell with the sles called Smiths Hes: the first people larly & largely we law there were two growme and ftout Sauages upon Cape Charles, with long Poles like lautbut I was loth lings, headed with bone, they boldly demanded what we were, and what we would, but after to be redious, many circumstances, they in time seemed very kind, and directed vs to Acasmacke, the habitatifince in this, on of the Werowns where we were kindly intreated; this King was the comelieft proper civill Sauige we incountred : his Country is a pleasant fertile clay soyle. He told vsot a strange accident Cape Charles. lately happened him, and it was? Two dead children by the extreme passions of their Parents, or some dreaming Visions, Phantasie, or affection mooved them againe to reuisit their dead car- 40 Aftrange morkalles, whose benummed bodies reflected to the eyes of the beholders such pleasant delightfull ralirie of $1. countenances, as though they had regained their vitall spirts. This is a Miracle drew many to behold them, all which, (being a great part of his people) not long after died, and not any one escaped. They spake the Language of Powhatan, wherein they made such descriptions of the Bay, Iles, and Rivers that often did vs exceeding pleafure. Paffing alongst the Coast, searching every Inlet, and Bay fit for Harbours and Habitations, seeing many Iles in the midst of the Bay, we bore vp for them, but ere we could attaine them, fuch an extreame guft of Winde, Raine, Thunder, and Lightning happened, that with great danger wee escaped the vnmercifull raging of that Ocean-like water.

Anextreame Ruffels Iles.

uages.

wiebcocemeco. Anextreme want of fresh water.

The Barge a guft. Limbo Iles.

The next day fearthing those inhabitable Hes (which wee called Ruffells Hes) to provide fresh 50 water, the defect whereof forced vs to fellow the next Easterne Channell, which brought vs to the River Wighcocomoco, the people ac first with great furie feemed to affault vs., yet at lait with Songs, Dances, and much mirth, became very tractable, but fearthing their habitations for water, we could fill but three, and that fuch puddle, that never till then, we knew the want of good water. We digged and fearched many places, but ere the end of two dayes wee would have refuled two Barricoes of Gold for one of that puidle water of Wigheocomoco. Being past their lies, filling with a high Land vpon the Mayne, we found a great pond of tresh water, but so exceeding hot, that we supposed it some Bath ; that place we called Point-ployer, in bonour of that Honourable House of Mousaye, that in an extreame extremitie once robbed our Captaine: Beeing thus refreshed in crossing over from the Mayne to other Hes, the winde and waters fo much increased with Thunder, Lightning, and Raine, that our fore-mast blew ouer-boord, and such mightie waves over-wrought vs in that small Barge, that with great labour, wee kept her from ficking by freeing out the water: two dayes wee were inforced to inhabit these winhabited lles, which (for the extremitie of Gusts, Thunder, Raine, Stormes, and ill weather) we called Limbo. Repair

East called Kuskaranaocke. The people ran as amazed in troupes, from place to place, and diners got into the tops of Trees, they Cap. Smith. were not faring of their Arrowes, nor the greatest paffion they could expresse of anger, long they bot we full riding at an Anchor out of their reach, making all the figures of friendship wee could. The next day ther same unarried, with enery one a Birket, dancing in a ring to draw us on shore, but feeing there was nothing in them but villanie, we discharged a volley of Mushets charged with Postoll shot, whereat they all lay tumbling on the ground, cresping some on way, some avoiber into a great cluster of Reeds bard by where there companions lay in Ausbuscado. Towards the Enening wee weighed and approched the to hore, discharging fine or sixe shot amongst the Reeds we landed, where they laid a many of bashets, but fair not a Samage, a smoke appearing on the other side the River we went thither, where wee found two or jan not a summer, grant affect there we left fome pieces of Copper, Beads, Bels, and Looking-glaffes , and then went into the Bay. When it was darke we came to an Anchor againe. Earely in the morning, foure Sanages came to vs in their Canoa, whom we vsed with such courteste, nor knew what we were, nor bad done, baning beene in the Bay a fibing, bad vs ftay, and ere long they would returne, which they did, and some twentie more with them, with whom after a little conference two or three hundred men, women, and children came clustering about vs, energ one presenting vs somewhat, which a little Bead would so well conduct our men any whether, and give vs the best content. 30 By it inhabit the people of Soraphanigh, Naufe, Arfek, and Nautaquake, that much extolled a Thefift nogreat Nation called Maffanometes, in fearch of whom wee returned by Limbo, but finding this tice of the Eafernethore thallow broken lies, and the Mayne for most part without fresh water, we passed by the Straits of Limbo, for the Westerne shore. So broad is the Bay here, that we could scarce perceine the great high Cliffes on the other fide; by them wee anchored that night, and called them Rubards Cliffes. Thirtie leagues we layled more Northwards, not finding any Inhabitants, yet the Coast well watered, the Mountaines very barren, the Valleyes very fertile, but the Woods extreme thicke, full of Wolues, Beares, Deere, and other wild Beafts. The first Inlet we found, we called Bolm, for that the clay (in many places) was like (if not) Bole-Armoniacke : 20 m River. when we first fet faile, some of our Gallants doubted nothing, but that our Captaine would make 30 too much bast home; but having lien not about twelve dayes in this small Barge, oft tyred at their Oares, their Bread spoyled with wet, so much that it was rotten (yet so good were their stomackes that they could digest it) did it with continual complaints so importune him now to returne, as caufed him bespeake them in this manner.

Gentlemen, if you would remember the memorable Historie of Sir Ralfe Lane, how his cempany impertuned him to proceed in the Discouerie of Morattico, alleaging, they had yet a Dogge, that beeing boyled with Saxafras leanes, would richly feed them in their returnes; what a shame would it bee for you (that have beene fo [nificians of my tenderneffe) to force me returne with a moneths promifion, fcarce able to fay where we have beene, nor jet heard of that we were fent to feeke; you cannot fay but I have [bared with you of the worlt is past; and for what is to come of lodging, diet, or what soener, I am co ten-40 ted you allot the worst part to my selfe as for your feares that I would lose my self in these unknown large waters, or be swall owedup in some stormie gust, abandon those childish feares, for worse then is past cannot bappen, and there is as much danger to returne, as to proceed forward. Regains therefore your old frists; for returne I will not, (if God affist me) till I bane seene the Massawomekes, found Patawomeck, or the head of this great water, you conceit to be endleffe. Three or foure dayes we expected wind and weather, whole adverse extremities added such discouragements to our discontents as three or foure fell extreme ficke, whose pittifull complaints caused vs to returne, leaving the Bay some ten miles broad at nine or ten fathome water. The fixteenth of June we fell with the River of Patanomeck: fearebeing gone, and our men re- The discour is couered, we were all contented to take some paines to know the name of this nine miles broad of Patamanere, River, we could see no Inhabitants for thirtie miles fayle; then we were conducted by two Sa-

50 uages up a little bayed Creeke toward Onammament, where all the Woods were laid with Am- Ambuferdoes bulcadoes to the number of three or foure hundred Sauages, but fo ftrangely painted, grimed, and of Sauages. difguized, shouting, yelling, and crying, as we rather supposed them so many Deuils, they made many brauadoes, but to appeale their turie, our Captaine prepared with as feeming willingnes (as they) to encounter them, the grazing of the bullets vpon the River, with the Eccho of the woods so amazed them, as downe went their Bowes and Arrowes; (and exchanging hostage) lames Watkins was fent lixe miles up the Woods to their Kings Habitation : wee were kindly vied by thele Sauages, of whom we understood, they were commanded to betray vs, by Pombaians direction, and he fo directed from the discontents of Ismes Towne. The like incounters we found 60 at Patawomecke, Cecocamne, and divers other places, but at Moyaones Nacothiant and Taux, the A treaductous people did their best to content vs. The cause of this Discourre, was to search a gilistering Mettill, the Sauages toll ve they had from Patamomeck, (the which Nomport allured that hee had tryed to hold halfe tiluer) allo to fearch what Furres, Metals, Rivers, Rockes, Nations, Woods, Filhings, Fruits, Victuals and other Commodities the Land affoorded, and whether the Bay require, we became (sich friends, they would contend who should fetch us water, stay with us for hostage,

An abundant

were endlesse, how farre is extended. The Mine we found nine or ten miles up in the Country from the River, but it proved of no value; to which he marched, leading his hinds in Chaines which they were to have for their paines, and so returning loded with that Ore they had. Some Otters, Beuers, Martins, Lizards, and Sabels we found, and in divers places that abundance of fill lying fo thicke with their heads aboue the water, as for want of nets (our Barge driving a. mongst them) we attempted to catch them with a Frying-pan, but wee found it a bad instrument to catch fish with. Neither better fish, more plenty, or variety, had any of vs euer seene. in any place fwimming in the water, then in the Bay of Chefabeack, but there not to be camble

To expresse all our quarrels, treacheries, and incounters amongst those Sauages, I should be How to deale too tedious; but in briefe, at all times we so incountred them and curbed their infolencies, as they with the Saua- concluded with presents to purchase peace, yet wee lost not a man. At our first meeting, our Cantaine euer observed this order, to demand their Bowes and Arrowes, Sword, Manties or Furs. with some childe for hostage; whereby he could quickly perceive when they intended any villanie, Hauing finished this discouery (though our victuals was neere spent) he intended to have feene his imprisonments, acquaintance vpon the River of Toppahannocke. But our Boate (hy reafon of the ebbe) chanfing to ground vpon a many shoules lying in the entrance, wee spied many A Stingrayve. fifthes lurking amongst the weedes on the Sands, our Captaine sporting himselfe to catch them ry hurtrull, one by nailing them to the ground with his Sword, fet vs all a fishing in that manner; by this dein foulenes was unfe. we tooke more in an houre, then we all could eate: but it chanced, the Captaine taking a fo wolne with fish from his Sword (not knowing her condition) being much of the fashion of a Thornebacke with a longer taile, whereon is a most poyloned sting of two or three inches long, which shee his this ke fifth ftrooke an inch and halfe into the wrift of his arme the which in foure hours had to extreamely ermans-boots, swolne his hand, arme, shoulder, and part of his body, as wee all with much forrow concluded that he therof his funerall, and prepared his grave in an Ile hard by (as himfelfe appointed) which then wee cied, in. 1613. called Stingeray Ile, after the name of the fish. Yet by the helpe of a precious Oyle which Doctour Ruffeils applied, ere night his tormenting paine was fo well affwaged that hee eate the fish they could not to his supper, which gave no leffe joy and content to vs. then ease to himselfe. Having neither bring his coffin Surgeon nor Surgery but that preservative Oyle, we presently set faile for Iames Towne; palout of the dore fing the mouth of Pyankatanck, and Pamaunke Rivers, the next day we fafely arrived at Keemeb. 30 tas. The simple Sauages, seeing our Captaine hurt, and another bloudy (which came by breking his shin) our number of Bowes, Arrowes, Swords, Targets, Mantles and Forres, would needesimagine wee had bin at warres, the truth of these accidents would not satisfie them, The Saunges but impatiently they importuned vs to know with whom wee fought, finding their aptneffe to affiighted with beleeue, we failed not (as a great fecret) to tell them any thing that might affright them, what spoyle wee had got and made of the Masawomecker, this rumour went falter up the River then our Barge; that arrived at Weralkorack the twentieth of July, where trimming her with painted streamers, and such deuises, we made the Fort jealous of a Spanift Frigot; where we all fafely arrived the twenty one of July.

A needeleffe

wall (os :bey toldm:) for

There we found the last supply, all sicke, the rest, some lame, some bruised, all vnable to doe 40 any thing, but complaine of the pride and unreasonable needeleffe cruelty of their filly Prefident, that had riotoully confumed the store, and to fulfill his follies about building him an wnnecessary Pallace in the Woods, had brought them all to that mifery : That had not we arrived, they had as strangely tormented him with reuenge. But the good newes of our discouery, and the good hope we had (by the Sauages relation) our Bay had itretched to the South Sea, appealed their furie; but conditionally that Ratiffe should be deposed, and that Captaine Smith would take vpon him the government; their request being effected, hee Substituted Master Scrimener his deare friend in the Presidencie, equally distributing those private provisions that the other had ingroffed; appointing more honest officers to affait Serimener (who then lay extreamely tormented with a callenture) and in regard of the weakenesse of the company, and heate of the yeare, 50 The Company they being vnable to worke; he left them to line at eafe, but imbarked himselfe to finish his left to line at difcouery. Written by Walter Ruffell and Anas Todkill.

What hapned Chap. 6.

The Sauages

He twentieth of July Captaine Smith fet forward to finish the discouery with twelve men their names were Nathaniell Powell, Thomas Momford, Richard Fetherstone, Michaell Sickles age to discouer more, lames Bourne, Anas Todeill, Edward Pyfing, Richard Keale, Anthony Bagnall, lames Watkins, William Ward, Ionas Profit. The winde being contrary caused our flay two or three daies at Keconghian, the Weromans feating vs with much mirth, his people were perswaded wee went purpoicly to be reuenged of the Masamomeckes, in the evening we firing two or three rackets, fo terrified the poore Saluages, they supposed nothing impossible we attempted, and defired to 60 affilt vs. The first night we ancored at Stingeray Ile, the next day croffed Paramomecks River, and halted for the River Bolm, we went not much farther before wee might perceive the Bay to deuide in two heads, and arriving there wee found it devided in foure, all which wee fearched fo farre as we could faile them; two of them we found vninhabited, but in croffing the Bay to the other, we encountered feuen or eight Canoaes full of Massawomeckes, wee feeing them preorner, we encounter them, yet were we with he made way with our faile to incounter them, yet were we with he maffebut five (with our Captaine) that could stand: for within two dayes after wee left Keconobtan, warneles. the rest (being all of the last supply) were sicke almost to death (vitill they were seasoned to the Countrey) having that them vnder our tarpawling, we put their hats vpon flickes by the Barge Good policy. fide to make vs feeme many, and on each fide a man a loded Musket; and fo wee thinke the Indans supposed those hats to be men, for they fled withall possible speede to the shoare, and there flayed, itaring at the failing of our Barge, till wee anchored right against them. Long it was ere we could draw them to come vnto vs , at last they lent two of their company vnarmed in 10 a Canoa, the rest all followed to second them if neede required: These two being but each presented with a Bell, brought aboord all their fellowes, presenting the Captaine with Venifon, Beares flesh, Bowes, Arrowes, Clubbes, Targets, and Beare-skins, we vnderstood them nothing at all but by fignes, whereby they fignified voto vs that they had beene at warres with the Tockwoods, the which they confirmed by shewing their green wounds; but the night parting vs, we imagined they appointed the next morning to meete, but after that we neuer faw them.

CHAP.A. Presents of Venison. Beares-flesh. & c. Captaine adored by the Sauages 1755

Entring the River of Tockwogh the Sauages all armed in a fleete of Boates round invironed vs: it chanced one of them could speake the language of Tombatan, who perswaded the rest to 2 weeks. friendly parley: but when they faw vs furnished with the Massawomeckes weapons, and we fained the invention of Kecouehtan to have taken them perforce; they conducted vs to their 20 palliz idoed Towne, mantelled with the Barkes of trees, with Scaffolds like Mounts, brefted about with Barkes very formally, their men, women, and children, with Dances, Songs, Fruits, Fish, Furres, and what they had kindely entertained vs, spreading Mats for vs to sit on, stretching their best abilities to expresse their loues. Many Hatchets, Kniues, and peeces of Iron, and Brasse, we saw, which they reported to have from the Safquefabanoches a mighty people, and mortall enemies with the Maffawomeckes: The Salquefabanecks, inhabit vpon the chiefe Spring of thefe foure, two dayes journey higher then our Barge could paffe for Rockes. Yet we preuailed with the interpreter to take with him another interpreter to perswade the Safquefabanecks to come to visite vs, for their language 20 is different : three or foure dayes we expected their returne, and then fixty of these Gyantike people came downe with prelants of Venison, Tobacco-pipes, Baskets, Targets, Bowes and Ar-rowes, fine of their Werowances came boldly aboord vs, to croffe the Bay for Tockwork, leaning their men and Canoses, the winde being so violent that they durst not paste.

Our order was daily to have prayer, with a Pfalme; at which folemnity, the poore Sauages much wondered : our prayers being done, they were long busied with consultation till they had contriued their businesse; then they began in most passionate manner to hold up their hands to the funne with a most fearefull fong, then imbracing the Captaine, they began to adore him The Safquefein like manner, though he rebuked them, yet they proceeded till their Song was finished, which banker offer so done with a most strange furious action, and a hellish voyce began an Oration of their loues : that ended, with a great painted Beares skinne they couered our Captaine, then one ready with 40 a chaine of white Beades (weighing at least fix or feuen pound) hung it about his necke, the others had eighteene mantles made of divers forts of Skins fowed together, all these with many other toyes, they laid at his feete, stroking their ceremonious hands about his necke for his creation to be their Gouernour, promiting their aides, victuals, or what they had to be his, if he would flay with them to defend and revenge them of the Massawomecker: But we left them at Tockwogh, they much forrowing for our departure, yet we promifed the next yeare agains to visit them; many descriptions and discourfes they made vs of Arquanabucke, Mas awomecke, and other people, fignifying they inhabited the River of Cannida, and from the French to have Cannida. their Hatchets, and luch like tooles by trade, these know no more of the territories of Pomhatan then his name, and he as little of them.

Thus having fought all the Inlets and Rivers worth noting, we returned to discover the Ri- Parturant &. uer of Pawiuxunt; these people we found very tractable, and more civill then any, wee promifed them, as also the Patawomeckes, thenext years to reuenge them of the Mallawomeckes.

In the disconery of this River, which some call Rapahanocke, others Tapahanocke; we were kinde- The exceeding by entertained by the people of Moraughtacun : here we encountred our old friend Mosko, a lustie Sa- loue of the Sawage of Wighcocomoco, upon the Riner of Parawomecke, wee supposed him some Frenchmans Sonne, wage mojeo. because he had a thicke, blacke, bush Beard, and the Sauages seldome have any at all, of which bee was not a little proud to see so many of hie Countrie men: wood, and water bee would fetch vis, guide visany whether, nay cause diners of his Countrie men to belpe vs too, against winde or tyde, from place to place, till we came to Patawomeke. There be rested, till me returned from the head of the River, and then

60 occasioned us conduct to the Mine, which we supposed Antimony. Now in this place bee failed not to Mine of Antidoe vs all the good he could, perswading vs in any sase not to goe to the Rapahanocks, for they would mony. kill vs, for being friends with the Moraughlacuds, that but lately bad ftolne three of the Kings women. This we did thinke was but that his friend: might onely have our trade, & so coofed the River to the Rapahanocks : there some twelve or sixteene standing on the shore, directed us to a little narrow cricke,

Our fight with

where was good landing, and commodities for us, in three or foure Canoaes which we faw there. But ac cording to our custome, we demanded to exchange a man, in figne of lone, which after they had a little con fulsed foure or fine came to the middles to fetch our man, and leave vs one of them, thewing we neede not feare them, for they had neither Clubs, Bowes, nor Arrowes: notwithstanding Anas Tockillb. ing fent on shore to see if he could discouer any ambuscados; desired to goe over the plaine to setch some wood, but they were unwilling, except we would come into the creeke, where the Boate might come close a shore. Todkill by decrees having gotten some two stones throwes up the plaine, perceived two or three bundred men as be thought behinde the trees, fo that offering to returne to the Boate, the Sanages affayed to carry him away perforce; be called to us, we were betraid, and by that be had spoken the word, our bostage was overboord but Watkins bis keeper flew bim in the water immediatly we let fly amogft ibem fo that they fled of 10 Todkill efcaped ret they hot fo fast that be fell flat on the ground ere be could recover the Boate : berethe Mallawomecks Targets flood us in good flead, for upon Molcos words we had fet them about the foregate of our Boate like a fore-castell, from whence we securely beate the Sanages from off the plaine without a. ny burt, vet they foot more then 1000. Arrowes, and then fled into the woods, arming our felmes with thefe light Targets (which are made of little (mall flicks, women betwirt firings of their bempe and filke graffe, as is our cloth but to firmly that no Arrow can to fibly pierce them) we refcued Todkill who was blonded by some of them that were shot but as it pleased God, he had no hurt, and followed them up to the woods. we tound some wou ded some staine of in divers places much bloud : it feemes all their Arrows were frent, for we hard no more of them : their Canoas we tooke the Arrowes which we found we broke, except those we kept for Moico, to whom we gave the Canoaes for his kindnes, that entertained us in the best trium- an phing manner and warlike order in armes he could procure of the Moroughtacunds.

The rest of the day wee spent in accommodating our Boate, instead of tholes we made stickes like bed-

Stanes, to which we fastned fo many of our Maffaw mecke Targets, that insuroned ber as wasteleastes:

the next morning we went up the River and our friend Molco followed us along the hoare, but at last de-

The Sautzes

Fether flones

the most.

Bay.

fired to goe with us in our Boite. But as wee paffed by Pilacacke, Machepeake and Wecuppom, three Townes (cituated upon high white clay Clifts, the other fide all a low plaine marifb, and the River there but narrow, thirty or forty of the Rapahanockes had so prepared themselves with branches as we tooke them for little Bulbes growing among ft the Sedge : feeing their Arrowes firske the Targets and drop in the Riner. Malso fell flat on his face, crying the Rapahanock swhich prefently we officed to be the Bufhes, which at our first l'oller fell downe in the Sedge; when we were gone neere halfe a mile, they hewed them films, 30 dancing and finging very merrily. The Kings of Pill-flacke, Naudraughtacund and Cuttatawomen, vied vs kindely, and all the people neglected not any thing to Moico to bring us to them. Between Secobecke and Maffatecke is a [mall He or two, which canfet b the Riner to be broder then ordinary : thereit pleased God to take one of our company, called M. Richard Fetherstone, that all the time bee badbene in the Country bad behaved himfelfe very honeftly, valiantly, & industriously, where in a little Bay, called bereupon Fetherstones Bay, we burred him with a votty of shot, the rest not with standing their ill dies and bad lodging crouded in fo small a Barge in so many dangers never resting, but alwaies tossed to & againe, bad all well recoursed their bealths. The next day we failed so high at our Boat would flote, there setting up Crosses. Then we disconcred the River of Payankatank so high as it was Nauigable, but the people were For feare of most abunting, but a few old men, women and children, that were tending their Corne; of which, 40 they promised us partwhen wee would fetchit, as bad done all the other Nations where ener we had haue left out yet beene. In a faire calme, rowing towards Point Comtott, wee anchored in Guinolds Bay; but such a sodaine gust surprised us in the night, with thunder and raine, that wee never thought more to have seene lames Towne ; yet running before the winde , we sometimes see the Land by the flashes of fire from beauen , by which light onely wee kept from the filtring floare, until it pleased God in that blacke darkeneffe to preserve vs by that light to finde Point Comfort : there refrebing our felues , because wee bad ovely but heard of the Chifapearckes and Nandsamunds , wee thought it as fit to know all our Neighbours neere home, as so many Nations abroad. This wee did (the particulars are omitted) and arrived fafe the feuenth of September, 1608. where wee found Mafter Skrinener, and divers others well recovered, many dead, fome ficke : The late Preli- 50 dent prisoner for muteny; by the honest diligence of Master Skriuener the haruest gathered, but the stores proussion much spoiled with raine. Thus was that yeare (when nothing wanted) confumed and spent, and nothing done (such was the government of Captaine Raicliffe) but onely this Discouery, wherein to expresse all the dangers, accidents, and incounters

Their procee-

ev furrendred

The Prefidento Cap. Smith. ny, Captaine Smith received the Letters Patents, and tooke vpon him the place of Prelireturne of the dent, which till then by no meanes he would accept, though he were often importuned thereunto. Now the building of Ratcliffes Pallace was staid as a thing needelesse. The Church was the censure of the courteous and experienced Reader, then I would be tedious, or partiall, being a party. By Nathaniell Powell, and Anas Todkill. "He tenth of September 1608, by the election of the Councell, and request of the Compa- 60 repaired, the Storehouse recoursed; building prepared for the supply we expected. The Fort this small number passed in that small Barge, with such watrie diet in these great waters and barbarous Countries (till then to any Christian vtterly vnknowne) I rather referre their merit to reduced to the forme of this figure, the order of watch renued, the fquadrons (each letting of the warch) trained: The whole Company every Saturday exercised in a field prepared for that lettout. purpose; the Boates trimmed for trade, which in their journey encountred the second supply, that brought them backeto discouer the Countrey of Monacan. How, or why, Captaine Nemport obtained fuch a private Commission as not to returne without a lumpe of Gold, a certainty of the South-Sua or one of the loft Company of Sir Walter Rawley I know nor, nor why hebrought such a fi ie pieced Barge, not to beare vs to that South-Sea, till wee had borne her ouer the Mountaines : which how farre they extend is yet voknowne) as for the Coronation Civiliay is not ouer the Mountaines: which how tarre they extend is yet vakinowned as for the Coronation the way to win of Pawheray, and his Prefents of Balon, Ewer, Bed, Cloathes, and fuch coffly noucleies, they Sauges, nor to had but much better well spared, then so ill spent. For we had his fauour much better, onely magnificence for a poore poece of Copper, till this stately kinde of soliciting made him so much our uslue and bouncy to himfelfe, that he respected vs as much as nothing at all; as for the hiring of the Poles and reclaime Barbimlelfe, that he respected vs as much as nothing at all; as for the mining of the view and barians. Chil-But to fend them and feuenty more without victuall to worke, was not fo well confidered; yet fed with toves this could not have hurt vs, had they bin two hundred (though then we were one hundred and and awed with thirty that wanted for our telues.) For wee had the Sauages in that order (their haruest being rods; and this newly garbered) that we feared not to get victuall sufficient, had wee bin fine hundred. Now coursest toics newly garhered) that we reared not to get victual lumitent, had wee oil not mundred. Now a steares hab was there no way to make vs milerable, but to neglect that time to make our Promition, whill alwaybell proit was to be had; the which was done to performe this strange Discouery, but more strange Co-

20 ronation; to loofe that time, ipend that victuall weehad, tire and starue our men, having no wilde Indians meanes to carry victuall, munition, the hurt or ficke, but their owne backes, how or by whom either to doe meanes to carry victual, munition, the nure of new, out their owne backets, now of by which them, or to they were invented, I know not; But Captaine Newport we onely accounted the author, who make them to effect thele projects had fo gilded all our hopes, with great promifes, that both Company good to vs or and Councell concluded his resolution. I confesse wee little understood then our estates, to con-themselves. clude his conclution, against all the incommensences the foreseeing President alleadged. There This vanity of was added to the Counfell one Captaine Walde, and Captaine Winne, two ancient Souldiers and ours made Pow was added to the Countert one Captaine Walks, and Captaine Walks, and Captaine Walks (Wo and the Sounders and Falks one cua-valiant Gentlemen, but ignorant of the bulinesse (being newly arrived) Ratelisse was also per-lue himselfe. mitted to have his voyce, and Master Scrinener defirous to fee strange Countries, to that al- his Corne, &c. though Smith was Prefident, yet the Counfell had the authority, and ruled it as they litted; as No way but

30 for cleering Smiths obiections, how Pitch, and Tarre, Wanfcot, Clapboord, Glaffe, and Sope- one to ouerashes, could be prouided to relade the Suip; or prouision got to line with all, when none was in throw the basithe Countrey, and that which we had, fpent before the Shippes departed: The answere was, Captaine Newport undertooke to fraught the Pinnace with Corne, in going and returning in his Discouery, and to refraught her againe from Weromocomoco; also promiting a great propostion of victual from his Ship, inferring that Smiths propositions were onely deutles to hinder his journey, to effect it himselfe; and that the cruelty Smith had vied to the Sauages, in his absence, might occasion them to hinder his designes : For which, all workes were lett, and one hundred and swenty chosen men were appointed for his guard; and Smith, to make cleere these feeming suspitions, that the Sauages were not so desperate, as was pretended by Captaine New-

40 port, and how willing hee was to further them to effect their projects (because the Coronation port, and how willing hee was to further them to cut of their projects (decame the Cotonation Coptain Smith would confume much time) undertooke their mellage to Pombatan, to intreate him to come to with four ego-Iames Towne to receiue his Prefents, accompanied onely with Captaine Waldo, Mafter Andrew ethto Bamba-Buckler, Edward Brinton , and Samuell Collier ; with these foure hee went over land, against tan. Weramocomoco; there palled the River of Pamaunke in the Savages Canoaes, Powhatan being thirty miles off, who, presently was sent for, in the meane time his women entertained Smub in

In a faire plaine field they made a fire, before which he fitting voon a Mat; fuddenly among it The womens the woods was heard fuch a hideous noise and shriking, that they betooke them to their armes, entertainment fuppoling Powbatan with all his power came to furprife them; but the beholders which were at Weranoco-

50 many, men, women, and children, fatisfied the Captaine there was no fuch matter, being prefently prefented with this anticke, thirty yong women came naked out of the woods (onely couered behinde & hefore with a few greene leaues) their bodies all painted, some white, some red, some blacke, some party colour, but every one different, their leader had a faire paire of Stagges hornes on her head, and another Skinne at her girdle, another at her arme, a quiner of Arrowes at her backe, and Bowes and Arrowes in her hand, the next in her hand a Sword, ano- A wilde Dina ther a Clubbe, another a Pot-flicke, all horndalike, the rest every one with their inverall de-Allemmone uifes. Thete Feinds with most helish cries and shouts rushing from amongst the trees, cast person. themselves in a ring about the fire, singing and dancing with excellent ill variety, oft falling into their infernall paffions, and then folemnely againe to fing and dance. Having ipent neere an houte in this Maskarado, as they entred, in like manner they departed. Having reaccommodated themselves, they solemnly inuited Smith to their lodging, but no sooner was hee within the house, but all these Nimphes more tormented him then ever, with crowding, and preffing, and hanging upon him, most tediously crying, Lone you not mee? This falutation ended, the feath was fet, confifting of Fruite in Baskets, Fish and Flesh in woodden Platters,

Ddddddd 2

Basnes and Peafe there wanted not (for twenty Hogges) nor any Sauage daintie which their invention could devile; fome attending, others finging and dancing about them; this mirth and banquet being ended, with Firebrands (instead of Torches) they conducted him to his Captain Smiths mellage.

1778

The next day came Powhatan; Smith delivered his Message of the Presents sent him. and redeliuered him Namontacke, defiring him to come to his Father Newport to accept those Prefents, and conclude their reuenge against the Monacans: whereupon, the subtill Sause

Penhatan an-

If your King have fent mee prefents, I also am a King, and this my land; eight dayes I will flav to receive them; your Father is to come to mee, not I to him, nor yet to your Fort, neither will bue at such a baite: as for the Monacans, I can resenge my owne inswies, and as for Asquants chucke, where you say your Brother was staine, it is a contrary way from those parts you suppose it. But for any fall water beyong the Mountaines, the relations you have had from my people are fall; whereupon he began to draw plots vpon the ground (according to his difcourfe) of all thoseR gions : many other difcourses they had (yet both desirous to give each other content in Complementall curtefies) and fo Captaine Smith returned with this answer.

ronation. So much was done to buy repentance then worthin. If we feeke Sauages we loofe them if wee shadowes of men close at our feet.I haue ries of them then perhaps any man, and finde that a cruell m rev in awing Sauais better then that mercifull cruelty, which by too much by too much confidence to Smith St Newport may by their examples teach the just course to be také with fuch: the one brec-Spanish or Pa-

Voon this Captaine Newport fent his prefents by water, which is neere one hundred miles. with fitty of the belt shot, himselfe went by land, which is but twelve miles, where he met with our three Barges to transport him ouer. All things being fit for the day of his Coronation. the with more cost prefents were brought, his Bason, Ewer, Bed and Furniture set vp, his Scarlet Closke and Apparell (with much adoe) put on him, being periwaded by Namontaske, they would doe him no 20 hurt. But a foule trouble there was to make him kneele to receive his Crowne, he neither knowing the Maiesty nor meaning of a Crowne, nor bending of the knee, indured so many perswafions, examples, and instructions, as tired them all : At last, by leaning hard on his shoulders, he feeke vs, wee a little flooped, so they put the Crowne on his head. When by the warning of a Pistoll, the shal finde these Boates were prepared with such a Volly of shot, that the King start vp in a horrible feare, rill he fee all was well, then remembring himfelfe, to congratulate their kindeneffe, he gave hisold Shooes and his Mantle to Captaine Newport. But perceiuing his purpole was to discouer the read more fto- Monacans, he laboured to divert his resolution, retuing to lend him either men or guides, more then Namontacke, and so (after some complementall kindenesse on both sides) in requitall of his 20 prefents, he presented Newport with a heape of Wheate eares, that might containe some seven or eight bushels, and as much more we bought ready dressed in the Towne, wherewith we returned to the Fort.

The Ship having disburdened her felfe of feventy persons, with the first Gentlewoman, and ges to feare vs woman feruant that arrived in our Colony ; Captaine Newport with all the Counfell, and one hundred and twenty chosen men, set forward for the discouery of Monacan, leaving the Prefis dent at the Fort with eighty (fuch as they were) to relade the Ship. Arriving at the fals, wee marched by land some forty miles in two dayes and a halfe, and so returned downe to the same kindenes hath path we went. Two Townes we discourred of the Monacans, the people neither vsing vs well made vs feare nor ill, yet for our fecurity we tooke one of their petty Weromances, and led him bound, to con- to them, or effe duct vs the way. And in our returns fearched many places we supposed Mines, about which we spent some time in refining, hauing one William Callicut a refiner, fitted for that purpole, bose our selues from that crust of earth which we digged, he perswaded vs to beleeue hee ex racted some small quantity of Siluer (and not vnlikely tome better ftuffe might be had for the digging) with this poore triall being contented to leaue this faire, fertill, well watered Country. Comming to the Fals, the Sauages fained there were divers Ships come into the Bay to kill them at Iames Towne. Trade they would not, and finde their Corne we could not, for they had hid it in the woods, and being thus deluded we arrived at Iames Towne, halfe ficke, all complaining, and tired with toile, famine, and discontent, to have onely but discovered our gilded hopes, and fruitlesse certainties, dread, without as the President foretold vs.

No fooner were we landed, but the President dispersed as many as were able, some for Glisse, nie terror, the others for Pitch, Tarreand Sope-afnes, leaving them (with the Fort) to the Councels overfight. But thirtie of vs he conducted fine miles from the Fort to learne to make clap-boord, cut downe other difera-Trees, and lie in Woods; amongst the rest he had chosen Gabriell Beadell, and Iohn Russell the onced in feeking ly two Gallants of this last supply, and both proper Gentlemen : strange were these pleasures to offices of hu-

which are graceleste, Neither doth it become vs to vie Sauages with sauagenesse, nor yet with too humaine viage, but in a middle path (medio tutillimus ibis) to goe and doe so that they may admire and feare vs, as those whom God, Religion, Civility, and Art, haue made fo farre superiour; yet to abuse them (vnprouoked) as hostile states, or as meere beasts, with cruell and beastly serty, whom nature hath equally made men. This breedes desperate depopulations, as in the Spanish Indies hath beene seene; that gentlenesse and vnequall equity makes them proud and treacherous, as wofull experience hath taught in the late malfacre. 60 Our temperance and autice should be qualified with prudence and fortitude. Neither must wee make them beasts, nor yet value them as Christians, till we have made them such; and the way to make them Christian men, is first to make them civill men, to file off the rult of their humanity, which as children (the like in taming wilde Beafts) mult be done with feuere gendencie, and gende fenerity, which may breede in them a louing awe,or awfull lone, at leaft a fulf diseast toward vs, that feare may make them snow vs. and then the fault is ours if they fee no cause to loue vs.

to their conditions, yet lodging, eating, drinking, working, or playing, they doing but as the President, all these things were carried so pleasantly, as within a weeke they became Masters, making it their delight to heave the Trees thunder as they fell, but the Axes fo oft bliftered there tender fingers, that commonly every third blow had a lowd Oath to drowne the Eccho; foremedic of which finne the President deuised how to have every mans Oathes numbred, and at night, for every Oath to have a Kan of water powred downe his sleeue, with which even ry Offender was so washed (himselfe and all) that a man should scarce heare an Oath in nishment for

By this, let no man thinke that the President, or these Gentlemens spent their times as comto mon Wood-hackers at felling of Trees, or fuch like other labours, or that they were prefied to any thing as hirelings or common flaues, for what they did (beeing but once a little inured) it. feemed, and they conceited it only as a pleafure and a recreation. Yet thirtie or fortie of fuch vo- One Gentleluntarie Gentlemen would doe more in a day then one hundred of the rest that must be prest to manbetter it by compulsion. Master Scrinener, Captaine Waldo, and Captaine Winne at the Fort, enery one then twentie in like manner carefully regarded their charge. The Prefident returning from amongst the Woods feeing the time confumed, and no pronision gotten, (and the ship lay idle, and would do nothing presently imbarked himselfe in the Discouery Barge, giving order to the Councell, to fend Master Percie after him with the next Barge that arrived at the Fort; two Barges, he had himfelfe, and twentie men, but arriving at (bickahamina, that dogged Nation was too well acquainted with 20 our wants, refusing to trade, with as much scorne and infolencie as they could expresse. The President perceiuing it was Powhatans policie to starue vs, told them hee came not so much for The chicata-

their Corne, as to reuenge his imprisonment, and the death of his men murdered by them, and minesforced to fo landing his men, and readie to charge them, they immediatly fled; but then they fent their Ambaffadors, with corne, fish, fowle, or what they had to make their peace (their corne being that veere bad) they complained extremely of their owne wants yet fraughted our Boates with one hundred bushels of Corne, and in like manner Master Percies, that not long after vs arrived; they having done the best they could to content vs, within foure or fine dayes were returned to Iames Towne.

All this time our old Tauerne, made as much of all them that had either Money or Ware as A good tauern could be defired; and by this time they were become so perfect on all sides (I meane Souldiers. Saylers, and Sauages) as there was ten times more care, to maintayne their damnable and private Trade, then to prouide for the Colonie things that were necessarie, neither was it a small policie in the Mariners, to report in England wee had fuch plentie, and bring vs fo many men without victuall, when they had so many private Factors in the Fort, that within fixe or seven weekes after the ships returne, of two or three hundred Hatchets, Chissels, Mactockes, and Pick-axes fearce twentie could bee found, and for Pike-heads, Kniues, Shot, Powder, or any thing (they could fleale from their fellowes) was vendible; They knew as well (and as fectetly) how to con- Abad trade of could fleale from their fellowes) was vendible; I ney knew as well (and as secretly) now to collaboration may them to trade with the Sauages, for Furres, Baskets, Mustaneekes, young beafts or such like Sauers. Commodities, as to exchange them with the Saylers, for Butter, Cheefe, Beefe, Porke, Aqua-10 mitz. Beere, B. sket, and Oate-meale; and then faine, that all was fent them from their friends. And though Virginia affoord no Furres for the store, yet one Mariner in one Voyage hath got io many, as he hath confelled to haue fold in England for thirtie pound. And for all this riot and Newports boaffing to leave vs for twelve monethes, though we had eightie nine by his Discourie ficke and lame, which by one man for a pound of Copper might much better have beene done, and having but apint of Corne a day for a man, we were constrained to give bim three Hogsbeads of that Corne to vi-Stuall his Thin homeward.

Those are the Saint-seeming Worthies of Virginia, that have notwith sanding all this, meat, drinke, and pay, but now they beginne to grow wearie, their Trade beeing both perceiued and preuented; none hath beene in Unginia (that hath observed any thing) which knowes not this 50 to be true, and yet the scorne, and shame was the poore Souldiers, Gentlemen and carelesse Gouernours, who were all thus bought and fold, the Aduenturers coczened, and the action ouerthrowne by their falle excuses, informations, and directions by this let all the World Judge, how this butineffe could prosper, being thus abused by such pilfering occasions. .

The proceedings and accidents, with the second supply.

Mafter Scrivener was fent with the Barges and Pinnace to Werawecomoco, where he found the Scriveners voy-Sauages more readie to fight then trade, but his vigilancie was such, as preuented their projects, age 101/2/2020. 60 and by the meanes of Namontack got three or foure Hogsheads of Corne, and as much red paint which (then) was esteemed an excellent die.

Captaine Newport being dispatched with the tryals of Pitch, Tarre, Glasse, Frankincense, and Sope-after, with that Clapboord and Wainfeet which could bee prouided, met with Mafter Serimener at Point Comfort, and so returned for England, leaving vs in all two hundred, with thoiche brought vs.

grabu.ion.

Appamatucke

Powbatan) till we were conftrained to begin with them perforce, and then they would rather fell'ys some, then we should take all; so loading our Boats, with one hundred bushels wee parted friends, and came to lames Towne, at which time, there was a Marriage betweene lohn Lava

Firft marriage, don and Anna Burrowes, being the first Marriage we had in Virginia.

Long he stayed not, but fitting himselfe and Captaine Walds with two Barges, from Chanspo, V Veanocke and all parts there, was found neither Corne nor Sauage, but all fled (being icalous of our intents) till we discourred the River and people of Apparatick, where we found little: that which they had, wee equally denided, betwixt the Sauages and vs (but gave them Cop. 10 per in confideration) Mafter Percu, and Mafter Sermener went also abroad but could finde nothing. The President seeing this procrassinating of time, was no course to live, resolved with Captaine VValdo (whom he knew to be fure in time of need) to furprize Powhatan, and all his prouifion, but Captaine VVinne, and Mafter Scrimener (for some private respects) did their best to hinder their project : But the Prefident whom no perswasions could perswade to starue, being inuited by Powhatan to come vnto him, and if he would rend him but men to build him a house, bring him a Grindstone, fiftie Swords, some Peeces, a Cocke and a Henne, with Copper and Beads, he would load his thip with Corne, the Prefident not ignorant of his devices, yet vinwilling to neg-lect any opportunitie, prefently tent three Datchmen and two English (haung noviduals to imploy them, all for want thereof being idle) knowing there needed no better Castell, then that houle to furprize Powbatan, to eff. Et this proiect hee tooke order with Captaine Waldo to fecond him if need required; Serimener he left his Subtlitute; and fer forth with the Pinnace two Barses, and fixe and fortie men which only were fuch as voluntarily offered themselues for his journie the which) by reason of Master Scrineners ill successe) was censured very desperate, they all knowing Smith would not returne emptie how focuer, cauled many of those that he had appointed, to find excuses to flay behind.

iourneto Pa-

THe nine and twentieth of December hee set forward for Werdwogomoco. In the Pinnace.

Master George Percie, brother to the Earle of Northumberland. Master Francis West, bromaunie.cb.8. ther to the Lord De la-Ware. William Phetiplace Captaine of the Pinnace. Ionas Profit Maftet. Robert Ford Clerke of the Councell.

Michaell Pheriplace. Geoff ry Abbot Sergeant. William Tankard. George Tarington. lamis

Bourne, George Burton, Thomas Coe, Gentlemen.

John Dods, Edward Brinton. Nathaniell Peacocke. Henry Powell. Danid Ellis, Thomas Gip-Son. Iohn Prat. George Acrigge. Iames Reade. Nicholas Hancocke. Iames Walkins. Anthony Bag. gly Sergeant. Thomas Lambert. Edward Pifing Sergeant. Souldiers. Foure Dutchmen and Richard Sanage were lent by Land, to build the house for Ponhatan a-

This company being victualled but for three or foure dayes lodged the first night at Werakers ack, where the President tooke sufficient proussion; This kinde Sauage did his best to divert him from feeing Powbatan, but perceiuing hee could not prevaile, hee aduised in this manner; Captaine Smith, you Shall find Powhatan to ve you kindly, but trust him not, and be sure he have no opportunitie to feize on your armes, for he bath fent for you only to cut your throts; the Captaine thanked him for nis good counfell, yet the better to try his loue, defired Guides to Chomanoke, for hee would fend a present to that King to bind him his friend. To performe this Ioumey, was sent Michael Sicklemore, a very honest valuant, and painfull Souldier, with him two Guides, and directions how to fearch for the loft company of Sir Walter Rawleigh, and Silke Graffe : then weed parted thence, the President assuring the King his perpetuall loue, and left with him Sammell Collier his 50 Page to learne the Language.

Plentie of xictuall. 148 Fowles

The good

Weraskoy ke.

The next night being lodged at Keconghian fixe or feuen dayes, the extreme wind, raine, froft, and inow, cauled vs to keepe Christmass, amongst the Sauages, where we were never more merrie, nor fed on more plentie of good Oyiters, Fish, Flesh, Wild-foule, and good Bread, nor neuer had better fires in England then in the dry warme imokie houses of Kecoughtan. But departing thence, when we found no houses, we were not curious in any weather, to lie three or foure nights together vponany shore under the Trees by a good fire. The President Anthony Bagly, and Edward Pising, did kill one hundred fortie and eight Fowles at three shootes. At Kiskiack the Froit forced vs three or foure dayes also to supprelle the intolencie of those proud Sauiges; to quarter in their houses, and guard our Birge, and cause them give vs what we wanted, yet were 60 wee but twelve with the President, and yet wee never wanted Harbour where wee foundary

The twelfth of Ianuary we arrived at Werawocomo, where the River was frozen neere halfe 2 mile from the shore; but to neglect no time, the Prefident with his Barge, to farre had approaCHAP. 4. Salt Ice melted. Demand of Swords and Gunnes.

ched by breaking the Ice as the ebbe left him among it those Ozie shoales, yet rather then to lie there frozen to death, by his owne example he taught them to march middle deepe, more then a flight flor through this muddie frozen Oze; when the Barge floted hee appointed two or three An ill march. to returne her aboord the Pinnace, where for want of water in melting the Salt Ice they made Powbeton fubfresh water, but in this march Master Russell (whom none could perswade to stay behind) being there. fomewhat ill, and exceeding heavie, so over-toyled himselfe, as the rest had much adoe (ere hee ont ashore) to regaine life, into his dead benum ned spirits, quartering in the next Houles wee found, we fent to Powhatan for prouision, who fent vs plentie of Bread, Turkeyes, and Venison. The next day having feasted vs after his ordinary manner, he began to aske, when we would bee to gone, fayning hee fent not for vs, neither had hee any Corne, and his people much leffe, vet for fortie Swords hee would procure ve fortie bushels. The President shewing him the men there prefent, that brought him the meffage and conditions, asked him how it chanced hee became fo forgetfull, thereat the King concluded the matter with a merrie laughter, asking for our Commodities, but none hee liked without Gunnes and Swordes, valuing a basket of Corne more precious then a Basket of Copper, faying, hee could eate his Corne, but not his Captaine Smith feeing the intent of this fubtle Swage; beganne to deale with him after this Cap. Smiths manner, Powhatan, Though I had many courfes to bane made my pronision, get beleeuing your promi- discourse to fes to supply my wants, I negleited all, to satisfie your desire, and to teffife my lone, I fent you my men Pewbaira. 20 for your building, neglecting my owne : what your people had you have engroffed, forbidding them our Trade, and now you thinke by consuming the time, we hall consume for want, not having to fulfill your strange demands, as for Swords and Gunnes, I told you long agoe, I bad none to spare. And you shall know, those I have, can beepe me from want, yet steale, or wrong you I will not nor disolue that friend-we have mutually promised, except you constraine me by your bad viage.

The King having attentively littled to this Discourse; promited, that both he and his Coun- Pombatous retrey would spare him what they could, the which within two dayes, they should receive. vet ply and flattery Captaine Smith (faith the King) some doubt I have of your comming hither, that makes me not To kindly feeke to releeue you as I would; for many doe informe mee, your comming is not for Trade, but to inuade my people and possesse my Country, who date not come to bring you corne, 30 feeing you thus armed with your men. To cleere vs of this feare, leave abourd your weapons, for here they are needl-fie we being all friends and for euer Powhatans.

With many such Discourses they spent the day, quartering that night in the Kings houses, the next day he reviewed his building, which he little intended should proceed; for the Dutchmen finding his plentie, and knowing our want, and perceiving his preparation to furprize vs, little Wickednesse thinking we could estape, both him and famine (to obtaine his fauour) reuealed to him as much of their Dutate as they knew of our estates projects, and how to prevent them; one of them being of so good a men. judgement, spirit, and resolution, and a hireling that was certaine of wages for his libor, and euer well vied, both he and his Countrimen, that the President knew not whom better to trust, and not knowing any fitter for that imployment, had fent him as a spie to discouer Powbatans in-

40 tent, then little doubting his honeftie, nor could ever be certaine of his villany, till neere halfe a yeere after. Whilst we expected the comming in of the Country, we wrangled out of the King ten quarters of Corne for a Copper Kettle, the which the President perceiuing him much to etfect, valued it at a much greater rate, but (in regard of his scarcitie) he would accept of as much more the next years, or elle the Country of Monacan; the King exceeding liberall of that he had not yeelded him Monacan, Wherewith each feeming well contented; Pombatan began to expo-stulate the difference betwixt Peace and Warre, after this manner.

Captaine Smith you may understand, that I, having seene the death of all my people thrice, and not Pomhatans disone lining of those three Generations, but my selfe, I know the difference of Peace and Warre, better then course of any in my Countrie. But now I am old, and ere long I must die, my Brethren, namely Opichapam, O- Waire. pechankanough, and K kataugh, my two fisters, and their two daughters, are diffinitly each others suc-

50 ceffors, I wish their experiences no leffe then mine, and your love to them, no leffe then mine to you: but this brute from Nanfamund that you are come to destroy my Countrie, fo much affrighteth al my people, as they dare not vifit you; what will it anaile you, to take that perforce you may quietly have with love, or to destroy them that provide you food? what can you get by war, when we can hide our provision and flie to the woods, wherby you must family by wronging us your friends; and why are you thus icalous of our lues, feeing vs unarmed, and both doe, and are willing fill to feed you with that you cannot get but by our labours? thinke you I am fo simple not to know, it is better to eat good meate, lie well, and sleepe quietly with my women and children, laugh & be merrie with you, have Copper, Hatchets, or what I want being your friend then be forced to flie from all to lie cold in the woods, feed upon Acornes, roots and such traft, and 60 be so bunted by you, that I can neither rest, eat, nor sleepe; but my tired men must watch, and if a twig but breake, enery one cry there comes Captaine Smith, then mast I flie I know not whether, and thus with miferable feare end my miserable life; leaning my pleasures to such youths as you, which through your rash unadmifednesse, may quickly as miserably end, for want of that you never know how to find? Let this therefore affure you of our lones, and eneric yeers our friendly Trade shall furnish you with Corne, and now also if you would come in friendly manner to see us, and not thus with your Guns and Swords, as to innade your foer. To this subtill discourse the President thus replied.

C. Swiths

Scena you will not rightly conceine of our words, we strine to make you know our thoughts by our deeds. The vow I made you of my lone, both my felfe and my men bane kept, as for your promise I find it enerie day violated, by some of your subjects, yet we finding your love and kindnesse (our custome is so far from being ungratefull) that for your fake onely, we have curbed our thirfting defire of revenge, elfe bad they knowne as well the crueltie we use to our enemies, as our true love and curtesie to our friends. And I thinke your indgement sufficient to conceine as well by the adventures wee have undertaken, as by the admontage we have by our Armes of yours : that had we intended you any hurt , long ere this wee could have effected it ; your people comming to me at lames Towne, are entertained with their Bowes and Ar- 10 rowes without exception , we esteeming it with you, as it is with vs, to weare our Armes as our appared. As for the dangers of our enemies, in such warres consist our chiefest pleasure, for your riches wee have no vie, as for the hiding your prossition, or by your flying to the Woods, wee Shall fo unadmittedle Starue as you conclude your friendly care in that behalfe is needlesse; for wee have a rule to find beyond your knowledge.

Many other discourses they had, till at last they began to trade, but the King seeing his will would not be admitted as a law, our guard difperfed, nor our men difarmed, he (fighing) breathed his mind once more in this manner. Captaine Smith , I never vied any Werowances fo kindly as your felfe; yet from you I receive the least bindnesse of any. Captaine Newport gave me swords, Copper, Clothes, a Bed, Tooles, or what I de- 20 fired ener tak no what I offered him, and would fend away his Guns when I intreated him : none doth deny to lay at my feet (or doe) what I defire, but onely you, of whom I can have nothing, but what you regard not, and yet you will baue what soener you demand. Captaine Newport you call fasher, and so you call me. but I fee for all vs both, you will doe what you lift , and wee must both feeke to content you: But if you intend fo friendly as you fay, fend hence your Armes that I might beleene you, for you fee the love I beare you, doth canfe me thu naked to forget my felfe.

Pow'a'ansimportunitiesor to base them betray them.

Smith feeing this Sausge but trifled the time to cut his throat : procured the Sausges to breake the Ice (that his Boat might come to fetch both him and his Corne) and gaue order forthis men to come alhore, to have surprised the King, with whom also hee but trifled the time till his men landed, and to keepe him from furpition, entertained the time with this reply.

C.Smiths difmight furptife Pombatan.

Powhatan, you must know as I have but one God, I honour but one King; and I line not here at your courie to delay Subject, but as your friend, to pleasure you with what I can: by the gifts you best ow on me, you gaine were then by trade, yet would you resist mee as I doe you, you should know it is not our customes to sell our twotelie as a vendible commoditie. Bring all your Countrey with you for your guard, I will not diflike of us being over realows. But to content you, to morrow I will leave my Armes, and trust to your primite. I call you father indeed, and as a father you hall fee I will lone you, but the small care you had of such a child, caused my men to persuade me to list for my selfe.

Perphatans plot to have murdered Smith.

Pearle for a

His excuse.

Prefent.

By this time Powbatan having knowledge, his men were readie: whilft the Ice was breaking, his luggage, women, and children fled, and to aword futpition, left two or three of his women talking with the Captaine, whilft hee fecretly fled, and his men as fecretly befet the house, which 40 being at the instant discoursed to Captaine Smith, with his Pistol, Sword, and Target, hee made fuch a passage among it those naked Deuills, that they fled before him, some one way, some another, so that without hurt hee obtained the Corps du-guard : when they perceived him so well escaped, and with his eight men (for hee had no more with him) to the vttermost of their skill, they lought by excuses to diffemble the matter, and Powhatan to excuse his flight, and the sudden A Chaine of comming of this multitude, lent our Captaine a great Bracelet, and a Chaine of Pearle, by an ancient Orator that bespoke vs to this purpose (perceiuing then from our Pinnace, a Barge, and men departing and comming vnto vs.) Captaine Smith, our Werowance is fled, fearing jour Guns, and knowing when the Ice was broken there would come more men, fent those of his to quard bis Corne from the pilfry, that might bappen without your knowledge : now though some bee burt by your misprision, 50 yet be is your friend, and so will continue : and since the Ice is open bee would have you send away your Corne; and if you would have his company fend also your Armes, which so affrighteth this people, that they dare not come to you, as he bath promised they flouid : Now having provided Baskets for our men to carry the Corne, they kindly offered their fertice to guard our Armes, that none should steale them. A great many they were, of goodly well appointed fellowes as grim as Deuills : yet the very light of cocking our matches against them, and a few wordes caused them to leave their Bowes and Arrowes to our guard, and heare downe our Corne on their owne backes; wee needed not importune them to make quick dispatch. But our owne Barge being left by the ebbc, caused vs to flay till the midnight tide carried vs fafe aboard, having spent that halfe night with such mirch, asthough we neuer had fuf pected or intended any thing, we left the Durchmen to build, 60 Brinton to kill Fowle for Powhatan (as by his Meffengers he importunately defired) and left directions with our men to give Powbatan all the content they could, that we might inject his company at our returne from Pamaunke.

Pretending to kill ourmen loaded with baskets_wce forced the Sanages to car-

CHAP. 4. Colourable excuse. Newes of being betrayed. Generall resolution.

VV E had no fooner let faile, but Pombatan returned, and fent Adam and Francis (two Howwee'ca-flour Durch men) to the Fort, who faining to Captaine Winne that all things were pedfurpting well and that Captaine Smith had wie for their Armes, wherefore they requested new (the which at Panasonies weit and that Captaine sman had victor their transfer for some extraordinary tooles and shift of the Dutchapparell, by this colourable excute, they obtained fixe or feuen more to their confederacie, fuch men deceme expert theetes that prefently furnished them with a great many of Swords, Pike-heads, Peeces, C.Smith. Shot, Powder, and such like ; they have Sanages at hand ready to carry it away. The next day Perfidious they returned unsuipected , leaning their confederates to follow, and in the interim, to connay wretche them a competencie of all things they could, for which feruice they should line with Powhatan to as his chiefe affected : free from those mistries that would happen the Colony, Samuell their other confort, Powhatan kept for their pledge, whose deligence had provided them three hundred of their kind of Hatchets, the rest fiftie Swords, eight Peeces, and eight Pikes: Briton, and Richard Sauge feeing the Dutch-men fo strangely diligent to accommodate the Sauges; these weapons attempted to have got to lames Towne, but they were apprehended. Within two or three daies we arrived at Passaunke, the King as many daies entertained vs with feathing and much mirth : and the day he appointed to begin our trade, the Prefident, with M. Perfie, M. Weft, M. Ruffell, M. Beheathland, M. Powell, M. Crafbaw, M. Ford, and some others to the number of infreene went vp to now be aban-Opechancanonehs house (neere a quarter of a mile from the River) where we found nothing, but a doned. lame fellow and a boy, and all the houses about, of all things abandoned; nor long wee standere the King arrived, and after him came divers of his people loaded with Bowes and Arrowes, but fuch pinching commodities, and those effeemed at such a value, as our Captaine began with him

Opechancanough, the great lone you professe with your tongue, seemes meere deceit by your actions; Smith speech last year you kindly fraughted our ship, but now you have inuited me to starue with bunger. You know my want, and I your plentse of which by some meanes I must have a part, remember it is fit for Kings to keepe their promise, here are my commedities, whereof take your choice; the rest I will proportion fit bargaines

The King feemed kindly to accept his offer: and the better to colour his project, fold vs what they had to our owne content; promising the next day more company, better provided (the Barto ges and Pinnace being committed to the charge of M. Phetiplace) the Prefident, with his old fifteens marched up to the Kings house, where wee found foure or his men newly come with great Baskets. Not long after came the King , who with a ftrained cheeref theffe held vs with ditcourse, what paines he had taken to keepe his promisestill M. Russell brought vs in newes that we were all betrayed : for at least lixe or feven hundred of well appointed Indians had incironed the 700. Sauares house and belet the fields. The King conjecturing what Ruffeld related, wee could well perceive beset in Enge how the extremitie of his feare bewrayed his intent: whereat fome of our company feeming farcene. difmayed with the thought of fuch a multitude; the Captaine incouraged vs after th a manner. Worthy Country-men were the mischiefes of my seeming friends , no more then the danger of these ene- Smith Secreti mies, I little cared, were they as many more; if you dare doe, but as I. But this is my terment, that if I to his Com-

go escape them, our malicious Councell, with their open mouthed Minions, will make me such a peace-breaker pany. (in their opinions) in England, as will breake my necke : I could wish those here, that make these seeme Saints, and me an Oppreffer. But this is the worft of all, wherein, I pray aide me with your opinions, Should we begin with them and surprize this King, we cannot keepe birn, and defend well our selves, if wee Should each kill our man, and so proceed withall in this house; the rest will all fly, then shall we get no more, then the bodies that are flaine, and then starme for victuall: as for their furiest is the least danger, for well you know (being alone affaulted with two or three hundred of them) I made them compound to faue my life, and we are now fixteene, and they but seven bundred at the most, and affire your selves GOD will so affilt vs, that if you dare but to fland to discharge your Peeces, the verie smoake will be sufficient to affright them: yet bowfeener (if there be occasion) let us fight like men, and not die like sheepe:but first I will deale with them, to bring it to passe, we may fight for some thing, and draw them to it by conditions.

If you like this motion, promifeme youle be valiant, The time not permitting any argument, all vowed to execute whatfoeuer he attempted, or die; whereupon the Captaine approaching the King, befpoke him in this manner.

I fee Opechancanough your plot is to murder me, but I feare it not; as yet your men and mine, have Smiths offet to done no harme, but by our directions. Tate therefore your Armes; jou fee mine : n.y boke shall bee as Openanta. nahed asyones; the lle in your River is a fit place, if you be contented; and the conquerous (of ost two) Shall be Lord and Master oner all our men : otherwaies draw all your men into the field; if you have not enough, take time to fetch more, and bring what number you will, so eneric one bring a basket of Corne, against all which I will stake the valuean Copper ; you see I have but sifteene men , and our game stall be,

60 The conquerour take all. The King, being guarded with fiftie or fixtie of the chiefe men, feemed kindly to appear of occhance-Smalls inspirition of vinkindnesse, by a great present at the doore, they intreated him to receive, analysis of the was to draw him without the doore where the graffer was qualled with a shall all and This was to draw him without the doore where the prefent was guarded with (at the leaft two Smith. hundred men, and thirtie lying under a great tree (that lay thwart as a Barricado) each his Ar-taken prifoner amids his men. If this course had bin tiken by otheis Virginia by this had n out of her c.& able o goe alone, yea to trade or Sght, But sames of peace haue bred worfe then wars, and our confidence barched the miserable masfacte by this perfidious Saunge. And would God a Dale or Smith, or forme fuch foirit were ver there to take this that is the onely right cou:se wi h thole which know not to doc right further for to are of fuffering it enforceth. Smiths difcourse to the diffemble their See their vie of English Armes Their excuse and reconcilement. The loffe of M. Skrinener and others with a Skiffe. M.wiffinhis iourney to the Prefident.

1724

Panzonkies. The Sauages

Graineth his men to be treacherous

The third berray vs.

row necked ready to shoot; some the President commanded to go & see what kind of deceit this Durchascarough was, and to receive the Prefent but they refuled to doe it) yet divers offered whom he would not permit: but commanding M. Perfie, and M. West to make good the house, to M. Powell, and M. Bebeatbland to guard the doore, and in such a rage fnatched the King by his long locke of haire in the midth of his men, with his Piffoll readie bent against his brest, he instantly yeelded his Bow and Arrowes, and fued for his life : Thus he led the King (neere dead with feare) amonest all his people, who delivering the Captaine his Bow and arrowes, all his men were easily intreated to cast downe their Armes, little dreaming any durit in that manner have vied their King; who then to escape himselfe, bestowed his Presents in good sadnesse. And having caused all his multitude to approach difarmed; the Pretident argued with them to this eile &t.

Ifee you Pamavokies, the great defire you have to cut my throat; and my long suffering your ininries, have inholdned you to this presumption. The canse I have forborne your insolencies, is the memile I mide you (before the God I ferne) to be your friend, till you give mee sust caufe to bee your enemy. If I beene this vow, my God will keepe me, you cannot hart me; if I breake it , be will deftroy me. But if you Shoot but one Arrow, to feed one drop of bloud of any of my men,or steale the least of these Beades,or Conper (i fourne before me with my foot) you hall fee, I will not cease remenge (if once I begin) so long as I can heare where to find one of your Nation that will not deny the name of Pamavnke : I am not now at Raflenear (halfe drown'd with mire), where you tooke me prifoner, yet then for keeping promile, and your good vlase, and faving my life, I fo affect you, that your denialls of your treacherie, doth halfeper-Twade me to mistake my selfe. But if I be the marke you aime at, here I stand, shoot he that dare, You an promised to fraught my loop ere I departed, and so you shall, or I meane to load ber with your dead cartasles : ret if as friends you will come and trade, I once more promise not to trouble you, except you give mee the first occasion. Vpon this away went your Bowes and Arrowes, and men, women, and children brought in their commodities, but two or three houres they to thronged about the Prefident and fo overwearied him, as hee retired himselfe to rest, leaving M. Bebeathland, and M. Pewel to accept their Prefents: but some Sauges perceiving them fait affecte, and the guard carefully disperfed, fortie or fiftie of their choice men each with an English Sword in his hand, began to enter the house, with two or three hundred others that prefed to second them. The noise and hast they made in, did fo shake the house, as they awoke him from his sleepe, and being halfe amazed with this fudden fight, hetooke him straight to his Sword and Target, M. Crafbaw and some to other charging in like manner, they thronged fafter backe, then before forward. The house thus clenfed, the King and his Ancients, with a long Oration came to excuse this intrusion. Thereft of the day was ipent with much kindnesse, the company againe renuing their Presents of their best prouision. And what soener we gave them, they seemed well consented with it.

Now in the meane while fince our departure, this bapned at the Rott : M. Scrinener willing to croffe the furnizing of Powbatan; nine daies after the Prefidents departure, would needs visit the He of Hogs, and tooke with him Captaine Waldo (though the Prefident had appointed him to be readie to second his occasions) with M. Anthony Gosnoll, and eight others; but so violent was the wind (that extreame frozen time) that the Boat funke, but where or how, none doth know, for they were all drowned; onely this was knowne, that the Skiffe was much outladed; and 40 would scarce have lived in that extreame tempest, had she beene emptie; but by no periwasion he could be diverted, though both Walds and a hundred others doubted as it hapned. The Sausges were the first that found their bodies, which so much the more encouraged them to effect their projects. To advertise the President of this heavy newes, none could be found would vndertake it, but the journey was often refused of all in the Fort, vntill M. Wiffin vndertooke alone the performance thereof; wherein he was encountred with many dangers and difficulties, and in all parts as he passed (as also that night he lodged with Pombatan) he perceived such preparation for warre, that affored him, some mischiefe was intended, but with extraordinary bribes, and much trouble, in three daies trauell at length he found vs in the midft of these turmoiles. This vnhappy newes, the Prefident (wore him to conceale from the reft, and so diffembling his forow, 10 with the best countenance he could, when the night approached, went safely aboard with all his

Now so extreamely Powhatan had threatned the death of his men, if they did not by some meanes kill Captaine Smith, that the next day they appointed the Country should come to trade vnarmed : yet vnwilling to be treacherous, but that they were conftrained , hating fighting, almost as ill as hanging, such feare they had of bad fuccesse. The next morning the Sunne had not long appeared, but the fields appeared couered with people, and baskets to tempt vs ashore. The Prelident determined to keepe abourd, but nothing was to be had without his prefence, nor they would not indure the fight of a Gun : then the President seeing many depart, and being vnwilling to lofe fuch a bootie, fo well contriued the Pinnace, and his Barges with Ambufcadees, as 69 only with M. Perfie, M. West, and M. Ruffell armed, he went ashore, others vnarmed hee appointed to receive what was brought; the Sauages flocked before him in heapes, and (the banke feruing as a trench for retreate) he drew them faire open to his Ambulcades, for he not being to be perswaded to goe to visit their King, the King came to visit him with two or three hundred men, in the forme of two halfe Moones, with fome twentie men, and many women loaded with great painted baskets; but when they approached fomewhat neete vs, their women and children fled for when they had enuironed and befet the fields in this manner, they thought their purpose fure ; yet to trembled with feare, as they were fearce able to nock their Arrowe; : Smith standing with his three men readie bent beholding them, till they were within danger of our Ambulcade, who, vpon the word discourred themselves, and hee retiring to the banke : which the Sauages no sooner perceived, but away they fled, esteeming their heeles for their best advantage. That night we fent to the Fort M. Crashaw, and M. Ford, who (in the mid-way betweene Werawocomoco and the fort) met foure or fine of the Dutchmens confederates going to Powhatan, the to which (to excuse those Gentlemens suspition of their running to the Sauages returned to the Fort and there continued.

The Sauages hearing our Barge depart in the night were so terribly affraide, that wee sent for more men (wee having so much threatned their ruine, and the rasing of their Houses, Boates, and Canowes) that the next day the King, fent our Captaine a Chaine of Pearle to alter his purpoie, A Chaine of and flay his men, promifing (though they wanted themfelues) to fraught our ship, and bring it Peale fert to aboard to avoid fulpition, to that five or fixe daies after, from all parts of the Countrey within ten or twelve miles, in the extreame cold Froft, and Snow, they brought vs provision on their

Yet notwithstanding this kindnesse and trade, had their art and poston beene sufficient, the The President no President with Master West and some others had beene poyloned : it made them sicke, but expelled it felfe. Wecuttanom aftout young fellow, knowing hee was suspected for bringing this The offender present of poilon, with fortie or fiftie of his choice companions (feeing the President but with a punished few men at Potavneat --) fo proudly braued it , as though hee expected to incounter a revenge: which the President perceiung, in the midst of his company did not onely beat, but spurned him like a dogge, as fcorning to doe him any worse mischiefe : whereupon all of them fled into the Woods, thinking they had done a great matter, to have so well escaped : and the Townsmen remayning, prefently fraughted our Barge, to bee rid of our companies, framing many excufes to excuse Wecnttanon (being sonne to their chiefe King , but Pombatan) and told vs , if wee would shew them him that brought the poyson, they would deliuer him to vs to punish

30 as wee pleased. Men may thinke it ftrange there should bee this stirre for a little Corne, but had it beene Gold with more ease wee might have got it : and had it wanted, the whole Colony had starued. Wee may bee thought verie patient, to indure all those injuries; yet onely with fearing them, wee got what they had. Whereas if wee had taken renenge, then by their losse wee should have lost our selves. We searched all the Countries of Toughtanund and Mattapamient, The Sanage where the people imparted that little they had, with such complaints and teares from women want and and children ; as hee had beene too cruell to bee a Christian that would not have beene fatif- pourrie. fied, and moued with compassion. But this happened in October, Nouember, and December, when that vnhappy discourse of Monacan was made, wee might have fraughted a Ship

40 of fortie Tunnes, and twice as much might have beene had from the Rivers of Toppahannock, Patawomeck, and Pawtuxunt. The maine occasion of our temporizing with the Sauages was to part friendes (as weedid) to give the lefte cause of suspition to Powhatan, to flye: The Durchby whom wee now returned, with a purpose to have surprised him and his provision: for effect men did much ting whereof (when wee came against the Towne) the President sent Master Wiffin and Ma- hurt. fter Coe, a shoare to discouer and make way for his intended project. But they found that those damned Dutchmen had caused Pombatan to abandon his new house, and Werawecomoco, and to carrie away all his Corne and provision; and the people they found by their meanes so ill affected, that had they not fleod well upon their guard, they had hardly escaped with their liues. So the Prefident finding his intention thus frustrated, and that there was nothing now 50 to bee had, and therefore an vnfit time to reuenge their abufes, held on the course for lames Towne: wee having in this journey (for five and twentie pound of Copper, fiftie pound of Iron and Beades) kept fortie men fixe weekes, and daily feated with Bread, Corne, Flesh, Fish, and Fowle, every man having for his reward (and in consideration of his commodities) a months promision (no trade being allowed but for the store) and wee delivered at lames Towne to the Hen the ships departed, all the provision of store (but that the President had gotten) How the Source Was fo rotten with the last Summers Raine, and eaten with Rats and Wormes, as the ger became Hogges would fearcely eate it, yet it was the Souldiers Die:, till our returnes: fo that we found English. 60 nothing done, but victuall ipent, and the most part of our Tooles, and a good part of our Armes Chap. To. conneyed to the Sauages. But now, casting up the store, and finding sufficient till the next Harueft, the feare of starting was abandoned; and the Company divided into tennes, fifteenes, or as the busines required foure houres each day was spent in work, the rest in pastimes and merrie exercife. The Duccomens Conforts to closely still contaid Powder, Shot, Swords, and Tooles, that

Cape-Merchant two hundred feuentie nine bushels of Corne.

The Dutchmens plot to murder Cap.

smith taketh

though wee could find the defect, we could not find by whom it was occasioned, till it was too late. All this time the Datchmen remayning with Powbatan, received ti em, inftructing the Sauages their vie. But their Conforts not following them as they expected (to know the cause. they fent Francis their companion (a front young fellow) diguised Sauage like) to the Glassethey tent Francis then companies (a place in the Woods neere a mile from James Towne) where was the randeuoze for all their voluspected villany; fortie men they procured of Powhatan to lie in Ambulcadoe for Cantaine Smith, who no fooner heard of this Dutchman, but he lent to apprehend him, who found he was gone, yet to crolle his returne to Powbatan, Captaine Smith prefently dispatched twenty shor after him, and then returning but from the Glaffe-house alone, he incountred the King of Passa. beigh, a most strong stout Sauage, whose perswasions not being able to perswade him to his am. 10 bulh, feeing him only armed but with a Fauchion, attempted to haue shot him; but the President prevented his short by graphing with him, and the Sauage as well prevented him for drawing his Fauchion, and perforce bore him into the River to have drowned him; long they struggled in the water, from whence the King perceiving two of the Poles vpon the fands would have fled; but the President held him by the haire and throat till the Poles came in; then feeing how pittifully the poore Saluage begged his life, they conducted him prisoner to the Fort. The Dutchman ere long was also brought in, whose Villany, though all this time it was suspected, yet he fained such the King of Paphologie a formall excule, that for want of Language, Winne had not rightly understood them, and for their dealings with Powbatan, that to faue their liues they were confirmined to accomodate his aims, of whom he extremely complained to have detained them perforce; and that hee made this efcape with the hazard of his life, and meant not to have returned, but only walked in the woods to gather Walnuts: yet for all this faire Tale (there was so small appearance of truth) hee went by the heeles; the King also he put fetters; purposing to regaine the Dutebmen, by the fauing his life: the poore Sauagedid his best, by his daily Messengers to Pombatan, but all returned that the Durchmen would not returne, neither did Powbatan itay them, and to bring them fiftie miles on their backes they were not able. Daily this Kings Wives, children, and people, came to vilit him with Presents, which he liberally bestowed to make his peace, much trust they had in the Presdents promise, but the King finding his Guard negligent (though fettered) yet escaped; Captaine Winne thinking to purfue him, found fuch troupes of Sauges to hinder his passages, as they exchanged many voltes of shot for flight of Arrowes. Captaine Smith hearing of this, in retur. 30 ning to the Fort tooke two Sauages Prifoners, the one called Kemps, the other Kinfock, the two most exact Villaines in the Countrey; with those, Captaine Winne and fiftie cholen men attempted that night to have regained the King, and revenged his injurie (and so had done if he had sollowed his directions, or beene aduited by those two Villaines, that would have betrayed both their King and Kindred for a piece of Copper) but hee trifling away the night, the Sauagesthe next morning by the rifing of the Sunne, braued him to come ashore to fight, a good time both fides let flie at other, but we heard of no hurt, only they tooke two Canozes, burnt the Kings

The Sauages defire peace.

The Prefident fearing those brauadoes, would but incourage the Sauages, begunne himselfeto the his conclusions; whereby fixe or seven Sauages were slaine, as many made Prifoners: burnt the brauadoes in the sauages were slaine, as many made Prifoners: burnt the brauadoes in the sauages were slaine, as many made Prifoners: burnt the sauages were slaine, as many made Prifoners. their Houses, tooke their Boats with all their fillning weares, and planted them at lames Towns for his owne vie; and now relolued not to ceasife till hee had reuenged himselfe vpon all that had injured him, but in his journey passing by Pass abeigh towards Chickahamina, the Sauages did their best to draw him to their Ambuscadoes; but leeing him regardlesly passe their Countrey, all shewed themselues in their brauest manner, to try their valours; he could not but she, and ere hee could land, the Sauages no fooner knew him, but they threw downe their Armes and defired Peace; their Orator was a stout young man called Ocanindge, whose worthy Discourse deferent to be remembred; and this it was.

Ocanindze his

Captaine Smith, my Mailer is bore present in this companies binking it Captaine Winne, and not 30 year, and of bim be intended to have beene reuenged, bassing neuer offended him: if he have offended year, and of him be intended to have beene reuenged, bassing neuer offended him: if he have offended year. in escaping your imprisonment; the Fishes swimme, the Fowles sue, and the verie Benits structoescape the four and line; then blame not him being a man; he would entreate you remember , your being a pri-Soner, what paines hee tooke to Sane your life; if fince hee hath iniured you, hee was compelled to it; but how foener 3 you have revenged it with our too great loffe; we perceive and well know you intend to destroy vs, that are here to intreat and delire your friendship, and to enior our honses and plant our fields, of whose fruit you shall participate, otherwise you will baue the worst by our absence, for we can plant any where, though with more labour, and we know you cannot line if you want our Haruest, and that reliefe we bring Jon; if you promise us peace we will believe you, if you proceed in remence, we will abandon the Counyou, y you prompte of peace me muse exceeded your you proceeding the extended and an armount of the young the young

A Sausge fmothered at lames Towne, and was reco-

Arriving at lames Towne, complaint was made to the Prefident that the Chickahaminos, who all this while continued Trade, and feemed our friends by colour thereof were the only Theenes, and amongst other things, a Pitholl being stolne, and the Theife fled, there was apprehended two proper young fellowes that were brothers, knowne to be his confederates. Now to regaine this Parioll the one we imprisoned, the other was fent to returne agains within twelve houres, or his brother to be hanged, yet the Prelident pittying the poore naked Savage in the dungson, fent him victuall and fome Chat-cole for fire ; ere midnight his brother returned with the Piftoll, but the Charcole-Sauge in the dungeon was so smothered with the smoake hee had made, and so pittiously burnt, smoke an ythat he found him dead, the other most lamentably bewailed his death, and brake forth in fach shall murtherer that he round film dead, the count into diet him) told him that if hereafter they would not feele, where no year he would make him aliue againe, but little thought he could be recovered, yet (we doing our best is let to it. with Aquanita and Vineger) it pleased God to restore him againe to life, but so drunke and afto frighted that he leemed lunaticke, not vnderstanding any thing he spoke or heard, the which as much grieued and cormented the other, as before to fee him dead; of which maladie (vpon pro- Pechaps the mife of their good behauiour afterward) the President promised to recouer him, and so caused lesuites was mile of their good behaviour afterward) the President promited to recourt min, and to caute him to be laid by a fire to sleepe, who in the morning (having well sleep) had recourted his permitted to be laid by a fire to sleepe, who in the morning (having well sleep) had recourted his permitted to be laid by a fire to sleepe, who in the morning (having well sleep) had recourted his permitted to be laid by a fire to sleepe, who in the morning (having well sleep) had recourted his permitted to sleep his fred lenges: and then being dreffed of his burning, and each a piece of Copper given them, they barched miss went away fo well contented, that this was spread amongst all the Sauages for a Miracle, that of their indian Captaine Smith could make a man aline that is dead. Thefe and many other fuch pretie accidents, Miracles from fo amazed and affrighted both Pombatan and all his people that from all parts with prefents as validely egs they defired peace, returning many stolne things which wee neither demanded nor thought of. ionning industries And after that, those that were taken stealing (both Powhatan and his people) hath fent them strie and op-20 backe to lames Towne to receiue their punishment, and all the Countrie became absolutely as portunite.

Now wee so quietly followed our businesse, that in three moneths wee made three or source done in three last of Pitch and Tarre, and Sope-ashes, produced a triall of Glasse, made a Well in the moneths ha-Fortof excellent (weet water (which till then was wanting) built fome twenty houses, reco- uing vidualli uered our Church, prouded Nets and wares for fifthing (and to flop the diforders of our diforder- The flore dely theeues and the Sauages) built a Blocke-house in the necke of our Ile, kept by a garrison to entertaine the Sauages trade, and none to palle nor repalle, Sanage, nor Christian, with out the Prefidents order; thirty or forty acres of ground we digged, and planted; of three Sowes in one of such natural free for vs, as for themselues.

30 years increased fixty and odde Pigges, and neers flut hundred Chickens brought vp themselves fruits as the (without having any meate given them) but the Hogges were transported to Hogge Ile, where Countrie afalto we built a Blocke-house with a Garrison, to give vs notice of any shipping, and for their exercife they made Clap-boord, Wainscot, and cut downe Trees against the ships comming. Wee built alio a Fort for a retreat, neere a convenient River vpon a high commanding Hill, very hard to be a laulted, and easie to be defended; but ere it was halfe finished, this defect caused a stay; in fearching our Casked Corne, wee found it halfe rotten, the rest fo confumed with the many thouland Rattes (increased first from the ships) that wee knew not how to keepe that little wee Rat-plague. had, This did drine vsall to our wits end, for there was nothing in the Countrey but what Nature affoorded, vntill this time Keings and Taffere, were fettered Prisoners , and daily wrought,

40 and taught vs how to order and plant our fields. Whom now (for want of victuall) we fet at libertie, but fo well were they vied, that they little defired it; and to expresse their loues, for fixteene dayes continuance, the Countrey brought vs (when leaft) one hundred a day of Squirrils, Turkeyes, Deare, and other wilde Beafts; but this want of Corne occasioned the end of all our workes, it beeing worke fufficient to prouide victuall, fixtie or eightie with Ensigne Laxon, were fent downe the River to live voon Oysters, and twentie with Lieutenant Percie to try for filhing at Point Comfort, but in fixe weekes, they would not agree once to cast out their Net. Master West with as many went up to the Falls, but nothing could be found but a few Berries and Acornes; of that in the flore every one had their equall proportion. Till this The paints of prefent (by the hazard and endeauour of fome thirtie or fortie) this whole number had ever bin so, fed 150.

50 fed. We had more Sturgeon then could be denoured by Dogge and Man; of which the industrious, by drying and pownding, mingled with Causare, Sorrell, and other wholiome hearbs, would make Bread and Meate; others would gather as much Tockwoneh Roots in a day, as would make them Bread a Weeke, to that of those wilde Fruites, Fish, and Berries, thefe liged very well (in regard of fuch a Diet) but fuch was the most strange condition of some Basineste of one hundred and fiftie, that had they not beene forced to gather and prepare their victual they ideacsic, would all haue started, and haue eaten one another: of those wilde fruites the Sauages often brought vs: and for that the President would not fulfill the unreasonable desire of those distracted lubberly Gluttons to fell, not only our Kettles, Howes, Tooles, and Iron, nay Swords, Peeces, 60 and the very Ordnance, and Houles (might they have prevailed but to have beene but idle)

for those Sauage fruites they would have imparted all to the Sauages , especially for one basket of Corne they heard of, to bee at Powbatans, fiftie miles from our Fort, though hee brought neere halfe of it to fatisfie their humours , yet to have had the other Their grite; halfe, they would have fold their foules (though not fisficient to have kept them a Weeke) defiroy sizes thousands were their exclamations, suggestions, and deuises, to force him to those base sclues, E cecec

Portatan d. f. reth peace.

The Profidents Speech to the Drones. Inventions, to have made it an occasion to abandon the Countrey. Want perforce comfrayned him to indure their exclayming to hes till hee found out the Author, one Dier a most craftie Knaue, and his ancient maligner, whome hee worthily punished, and with the rest hee argued the case in this manner. Fellow Souldiers, I did little thinke any so falls to report, or fo many fo simple to bee persuaded, that I either intend to starme you, or that Powhatan (at this present) hath Corne for himselfe, much lesse for you; or that I would not have it, if I knew where it were to be had. Neither did I thinke any fo malicious as now I fee a great many. set it shall not so much passionate mee, but I will doe my best for my worst maligner. But dreame no longer of this vaine hope from Powhatan, nor that I will longer forbeare to force you from rour idlenelle, and punils your f you raile, you cannot denie but that by the baz ard of my life, many a time I base 10. Gined yours, when, might your owne wills have prenailed, you would have started, and will doe still mbether I will or no. But I protest by that God that made me, since neesssite hath not power to force you to gather for your selues those finits the Earth doth yeeld, you shall not only gather for your selues, but for those that are sicke: as yet I never had more from the flore then the worst of you; and all me E. which extraordinary prossifion that I have, you shall see me deside among the siche. And this Sanage traft, you fo fcornfully repine at, being put in your mouthes your stomacks can digest it, and therefore I will take a course you shall provide it. The sicke shall not starme, but equally share of all our labours, and every one that gathereth not every day as much I doe, the next day hallbe fet beyond the River. and for ever be bandhed from the Fort, and line there or flarue. This order many murmured, was very cruell, but it caused the most part to well bestirre 20

Bu: 7 of 200. cited in two moneths.

The Sauages returneour Fugitiues.

themselves, that of two hundred men (except they were drowned) there died not past seven or eight. As for Captaine Winne, and Mafter Ley, they died ere this want happened, and thereft died not for want of fuch as preferred the rest. Many were billitted among the Sausges, whereby we knew all their pallages, fields, and habitations, how to gather and vie their fruits, as well as themselves. So well those poore Savages vied vs (that were thus Billited) as divers of the Souldiers ranne away, to learch Kemps our old prifoner. Glad was this Sauage to have fuch an occasion to testine his love, for insteed of entertayning them, and such things as they had stolne with all the great offers and promifes they made them, to reuenge their injuries vpon Captaine Smith. First hee made timtelfe sport, in shewing his Countrimen (by them) how hee was vied: feeding them with this Law, Who would not worke must not eate, till they were neere ftar- 30 ued, continually threatning to beate them to death, neither could they get from him, till perforce he brought them to our Captaine, that fo we contented him, and punished them: as many others that intended also to have followed them, were rather contented to labour at home, then aduenture to line idle among the Sauages (of whom there was more hope to make better Christians and good subjects, then the one halfe of those that counterfeited themselves both) For to affraid were all those Kings and the better fort of their people, to displease vs. that some of the baser fort that wee haue extreamely hurt and punished for their villanies. would hire vs that wee should not tell it to their Kings or Countrimen, who would also repunih them, and yet returne them to James Towne to content the President, by that testimonie

Search for them fent by Sir W. Rawlew. Pawhatan confeffed that hee had bin at the murther of that Colon e: and fhewed to Cap. Smith à Musket barrell and a braffe Morter, and certaine pecces of Iron which had bin The Durchmens protect.

of their loues. Master Sicklemore well returned from Chamonock, but found little hope and lesse certaintie of them which had beene left by Sir Walter Rawley So that Nathaniell Powell and Anas Todkill, were also, by the Quiyough quohanochs, conducted to the Mangonges to search them there. But nothing could we learne but they were all dead. This honest, proper, good promise-keeping King, of all the rest did euer best affect vs, and though to his falle Gods hee was yet very zealous, yet he would confess, our God as much exceeded his, as our Guns did his Bow and Arrowes, often fending our Prefident many Prefents to pray to his God for rain, or his corn would penth, for his Gods were apprie all this time. To reclaime the Dutchmen, and one Bentley another Fugitive, we imployed one William Volda, (a Switzer by birth) with pardons and promifes to regain them. Little we then suspected this double villanie of any villany, who plainly taught vs, in the most trust 50 was the greatest Treaton. For this wicked Hypocrite, by the seeming hate hee bore to the lewd condition of his curfed Countrimen, having this opportunitie by his imployment to regain them, conveighed them every thing they defired to effect their project to deftroy the Colonic. With much denotion they expected the Spaniard, to whom they intended to have done good fernice. But to begin with the first opportunitie, they feeing necessitie thus inforced vs to disperse our selues; importuned Powhatan to lend them but his forces, and they would not only defrey our Hogges, fire our Towne, and betray our Pinnasse; but bring to his seruice and subiection the most part of our companies. With this plot they had acquainted many discontents, and many were agreed to their deuillish practile. But one Thomas Donese and Thomas Mallard (whose Chriflian hearts much relenting at luch an vnchriftian act) voluntarily reneated tto Captaine Smith: 63 who did his best it might be concealed, perswading Douese and Mallard to proceed in the confederacie : only to bring the irreclamable Dutebmen, and inconftane Sauages in fuch a manner amongit his Ambuscadoes, as hee had prepared, as not many of them thould ever have returned from out our Peninfula.

But this brute comming to the eares of the impatient multitude, they fo importuned the Prelident to cut off those Duchmen, as among it many that offered to cut their throats before the Two Genileface of Powhatan, Mafter Wiffin and lefra Abbot were fent to flabbe or shoote them; but thefe men tento kil Dutchmen made such excuses accusing Volday whom they supposed had reusaled their project, them. as Abbet would not vet wiffs would, perceiving it but deceit. The King vnderflanding of this their imployment, fent prefently his Mellengers to Captaine Smith; to fignifie it was not his fault to detayne them, nor hinder his men from executing his command, nor did hee fror would he mayntaine them, or any to occasion his displeasure. But ere this businesse was brought to a point, God having feene our mitery fufficient, fent in Captaine Argalito fifth for Sturgeon with an a flup well furnished with Wine and Bisket, which though it was not fent vs. fuch were out occasions we tooke it at a price, but left him sufficient to returne for England, still dislembling Valdo his villany, but certainly he had not escaped had the President continued.

Notwithstanding this Valdo comming for England, presending to the Company what rich Mynes Gap. Smi be had found, for which he was verie much fanomed remarded and reflected, but returning with the Lord La-wate, be could not performe any thing hee promised, and thus also baning coozened them all. died both basely and miserably. For the rest of his Consorts upon the arrival of the Lord La-wase. whom they highly recommended to Powhatan, promifing what great wonders they would worke with his Lordbip, would be give them leave to goe to him, but when he faw they would be gone, be replied, as you would have betrayed Captaine Smith to me, so will you me to this Lord, for you that would be so falle to 20 bim, cannot be true to me, so cansed his men to beat out their braines, as the Sauages reported to divers that came from thence.

TO redreffe those iarres and ill proceedings, the Councell in England altered the government The arrival of and devolved the authoritie to the Lord De-la. ware. Who for his Deputie, sent Sir Thomas the third up-Gales, and Sir George Somers, with nine thips and fine hundred perfons : they fet faile from Eng. ply. Chap. 12. land in May 1609. a imali Catch perished at Sea in a Herycano. The Admirall, with 150. The alteration land in May 1609. a fmall Catch perithed at Sea in a Herycano. The Admirant, With 150. of the govern-men, with the two Knights, and their new Commission, their Bils of loading with all manner, ment. of directions, and the most part of their promision arrived not. With the other feuen (as Cap- The loffe of taines) arrived Ratliffe (whole right name was Sickelmore) Martin, and Archer. Who as they had Virginia, so beene troublesome at Sea, began againe to marre all ashore. For though, as is faid, they were formerly deposed and sent for England: yet now returning againe, graced by the title of Captaines of the passengers, seeing the Almirall wanting, and great probabilitie of her losse: Strengthned themselves with those new Companies, so railing and exclayming against Captaine Smith, that they mortally hated him , ere euer they faw aim. Who understanding by his Scowts, the arriuall of fuch a fleet (little dreaming of any fuch supply) supposing them Spaniards, he so determined and ordered his affaires, as we little feared their arruall, nor the fucceffe of our incounter, nor were the Sauages any way negligent or vn willing, to aide and offit vs with their best power.

had it so beene, we had beene happy. For we would not have trusted them but as our foes, whereas receiving those as our Countrimen and friends, they did their best to murder our President, to offer to fight 40 furprize the store, the Fort, and our Lodgings, to vsurpe the government, and make vs all their vnderour coferuants and flaues to our owne merit. To a thouland mischiefes those lewd Captaines led this lours, lewd company, wherein were many vnruly Gallants packed thether by their friends to escape Mulinie. ill Destinies, and those would dispose and determine of the government, sometimes one, the next day another, to day the old Commission, to morrow the new, the next day by neither. In fine, they would rule all orrune all; yet in Charitie wee must endure them thus to destroy vs, orby correcting their follies, have brought the Worlds centure vpon vs to have beene guiltre of their blonds. Happie had we beene had they neuer arrived; and wee for ever abandoned , and (as wee were) left to our fortunes, for on Earth was neuer more confusion, or milery, then their facti-

The President seeing the desire those Braues had to rule, seeing how his authoritie was so vn- The planting 50 expectedly changed, would willingly have left all and returned for England, but feeing there was Manjamund. small hope this new Commission would arrive, longer hee would not suffer those factious spirits to proceed. It would be too tedious, too strange, and almost incredible, should I particularly relace the infinite dangers, plots, and practifes, hee daily escaped amongit this factious crue, the shiefe whereof hee quickly laid by the heeles, till his leafure better ferued to doe them Inflice; and to take away all occasions of further mitchiefe, Master Percie had his request granted to returne for England, and Mafter West with one hundred and twentie went to plant at the Falls. Marjin with neere as many to Nanjamund, with their due proportions of all prouisions, accor. A plantation

Now the Prefidents yeere being neere expired, he made Martin Prefident, who knowing his owne insufficieticie, and the Companies scorne and conceit of his vinworthinesse, within three houres resigned it agains to Captaine Smith, and at Nansamund thus proceeded. The people be- The breach of ing Contributors vied him kindly : yet fuch was his jealous feare, and cowardize in the midft of peace with the his mirth, he did furprize this poore naked King, with his Monuments, Houses, and the He hee Saurges.

tling to their numbers.

Bat

Eccecec 2

inhabited; and there fortified himfelfe, but so apparantly distracted with feare, as imboldned the Sauages to allault him, kill his men, redeeme their King, gather and carrie away more then one thousand bulhels of Corne, he not once daring to intercept them. But fent to the Prefident then at the Falls for thirtie good fhot, which from lames Towne immediatly were fenthim, but he fo well imployed them, as they did init nothing, but returned, complayning of his childiflaneffe, that with them fled from his company, and fo left them to their fortunes.

Mafter Weff having feated his men at the Falls, prefently returned to reuifit lames Towne, the Prefident met him by the way as hee followed him to the Falls: where hee found this Company inconsiderately leated, in a place not only subject to the Rivers inundation, but round invironed with many intollerable inconveniences. For remedy whereof, hee fent prefently to Powhater, 14 to fell him the place called Powbatan, promifing to defend him against the Monacans, and these should be his conditions (with his people) to refigne him the Fort and Houles, and all that Countrey for a proportion of Copper : that all stealing offenders should bee sent him, there to receive their punishment : that every House as a custome should pay him a bushell of Corne for an inch fquare of Copper, and a proportion of Pocones as a yeerely Tribute to King Immes, for their protection as a dutie : what else they could spare to barter at their beft discretion.

But both this excellent place and those good conditions did those furies refuse, contemning as he did (knowing how greedie they were of his bloud) to land amongst them, and commit to judgement, reason or experience, that from their first landing hearing the generall good report of his old Souldiers, and feeing with their eyes his actions to well mannaged with diffretion, as

Captaine Wood, Captaine Web, Captaine Moone, Captaine Phitz-lames, Mafter Partridge, Ma-fter White, Master Powell, and divers others; when they perceived the malice and condition of worst was, the poore Sauages that daily brought in their contribution to the President, that

Monacans themselves, which though till then (for his love) they had indured : they defired pardon, if hereafter they defended themselues, fince hee would not correct them, as they had long expected he would : so much they importuned him to punish their mildemeanours as they offered (if he would conduct them) to fight for him against them. But having spent nine dayes in feeking to reclaime them, shewing them how much they did abuse themselves, with their great nothing would preuaile with them) hee fet faile for lames Towne: now no fooner was the thip vnder faile but the Sausges affaulted those one hundred and twentie in their Fort, finding some stragling abroad in the Woods they flue many, and so affrighted the rest, as their prisoners escaped, and they scarce retyred, with the Swords and Clokes, of these they had staine. But ere we had failed a league our ship grounding, gave vs once more libertie to summon them to a parlie

Where we found them all so strangely amazed with this poore simple assault, as they submitted themselues vpon any tearmes to the Presidents mercy. Who presently put by the heeles lix or seuen of the chiefe offenders, the reit he leated gallantly at Powhatan, in their Sauage Fort they built and pretily fortified with Poles and Barkes of Trees sufficient to have defended them from all plant, and no place so strong, so pleasant and delightfull in Virgona, for which wee called it

None-Such. The Sausges alio he presently appealed; redelivering to every one their former loi-

fes. Thus all were friends, new Officers appointed to command, and the President againe ready to depart. But at that instant arrived Master VVeit, whose good nature with the perswasions and compassion of these mutinous priloners was so much abused, that to regaine their old shops new turmoyles arofe. For the reit being poffessed of all their Victuall, Munition, and every thing, they grow to that height in their former factions , as there the President left them to their Sauages in Unginia, dry Houses for Lodgings three hundred Acres of ground readie to 50 gilded hopes, of Seas, Mynes, Commodities, or Victories they fo madly conceived. Then (feeing 40

Ratcliffe, Marin, and Archer, left their factions; and euer refted his faithfull friend : But the 30

both him, his kinde care and authoritie, the worst they could to shew their spight, they did. I

doe more then wonder to thinke how only wish fine men, hee either durit, or would sentence

Mutinics,

Fine suppresse imprisonment the greatest spirits among st them, till by their multitudes being one hundred and twentie, they forced him to retire, yet in that retreat he surprized one of the Boats, wherewith he returned to their ship, wherein was their prouisions, which also he tooke. And well it chanced he found the Mariners so tractable and constant, or there had beene small possibilitie hee had euer escaped. Notwithstanding there were many of the best, I meane, of the most worthy in

The breach of diforderly company to tormented those poore naked foules, by stealing their Corne, robbing their peace with the Gardens, beating them, breaking their Houles, and keeping some prisoners; that they daily

Sanages at the complayned to Captaine Smith, hee had brought them for Protectors worle enemies then the

An affault by the Sauages.

> The planting of Nonfueb. New prace concluded.

> > their Fortunes, they returning againe to the open Aire at VVeft Fort, abandoning Non-Such, and hee to lames Towne with his best Expedition, but this happened him in that Sleeping in his Boat (for the Ship was returned two dayes before) accidentally, one fired his Powder-bag, which tore his flesh from his bodie and thighes, nine or ten inches square in a most > > pittifull manner: but to quench the tormenting fire, frying him in his clothes, hee leaped overand not the deepe River, where ere they could recover him hee was neere drowned. In this estate, without either Chirurgion, or Chirurgerie he was to goe neere one hundred miles. Arriuing at Iames Towne, causing all things to be prepared for Peace or Warres to obtaine prouision. whilest those things were prouiding, Martin, Ratcliffe, and Archer, being to have their trialis. cheir guiltie consciences fearing a just reward for their deserts, seeing the President vnable to fland, and neere bereft of his senses by reason of his torment, they had plotted to have murdered him in his bed. But his heart did faile him that should have given fire to that mercilesse Pistoll. So, not finding that course to be the best, they ioyned together to vsurpe the gouernment, thereby to escape their punishment, and excuse themselves by accusing him. The President had notice of their projects: the which to withstand, though his old Souldiers importuned him, but to permit them to take

CHAP.4. Gouernment Vourped. Pocahontas kindneffe to Captane Smith.

10 off their beads that would refift his command, yet he would not permit them : but feut for the Masters of The govern-Bips, and tooke order with them for his returne for England. Seeing their was neither Chirurgion, nor mene viurped. Chrurgery in the Fort to cure his burt, and the ships to depart the next day, his Commission to be suppresfed hee knew not why, bimfelfe and Souldiers to bee rewarded he knew not bow, and a new Commission granted they knew not to whom, the which fo disabled that authoritie he had, as made them presume so oft to those mutinies and factions as they did. Besides, so grienous was his wounds, and so cruell his torment, few expelled be could line, nor was be able to follow his businesse to regaine what they had bost, suppresse those factions, and range the Countries for promision as be intended, and well be knew those affaires his owne actions and presence was as requisite as his experience, and directions, which now could not be hee went presently about d, resoluting there to appoint them governours, and to take order for the mutiners and 20 their confederates. Who feeing him gone, perswaded Master Persie to stay and be their President, and within leffe then an hour was this mutation begun & concluded. For when the Company under food Smith within tells took and fee the rest in Armes called Presidents and Councellers, diners began to same on The causes those new Commanders, that new bent all their wits to get him resigne them his Commission, who after why Smith left many falt and bitter repulses, that their confusion should not bee attributed to him, for leaving the Countie try without gouernment and authoritie; having taken order to be free from danger of their malice; and his Comhe was not unwilling they should steale it from him, but never consented to deliner it to any.

Leauing vs thus, with three Ships, seuen Boats, commodities readie to trade, the Haruest newly gathered, ten weekes prouision in the store, foure hundred nintie and odde persons, foure and C. Smithlest in twentie Peeces of Ordnance, three hundred Muskets, Snaphanches, and fire-lockes, Shot, Pow- Prouisons like 30 der, and match fufficient, Gurats, Pikes, Swords, and Morions more then men : the Sauages their language and habitations well knowne to one hundred well trained and expert Souldiers : Nets for Fishing, Tooles of all forts to worke, Apparell to supply our wants, fixe Mares, and a Horse. fine or fixe hundred Swine, as many Hennes and Chickens; fome Goates, fome Sheepe, what was brought or bred there remained : but they regarded nothing but from hand to mouth, to confume what wee had, tooke care for nothing but to perfit fome colourable complaints against Captaine Smith, for effecting whereof, three weekes longer they staied the fixe Ships till they could produce them. That time and charge might much better have beene spent; but it suted well Their comwith the rest of their discretions. Now all these which Smith had either whipped, punished, or proofe against any way diffraced, had free power and libertie to fay or I weare any thing, and from a whole him.

40 armefull of their examination, this was concluded.

The Mutiners at The Falls, complained be caused the Sanages to assault them, for that he would not revenge their loffe, they being but one bundred and twentie, and hee five men and himselfe, and this they proved by the eath of one hee had of whipped for periury and pilfering. The Dutch-men that hee had appointed to be flab d for their treacheries, fwere he fent to poifon them with Rats-bane. The prudent Councell , that he would not submit himselfe to their stolne antheritie. Coe and Dyer, that should have murdered him, were highly preferred for swearing, they beard one say, he heard Powhatan say, That bee beard a man fay: if the King would not fend that Corne bee bad, bee foould not long enior his Copper Crowne, nor those Robes bee had sent bim : yet those also swore be might have had Corne for Tooles. but would not. The truth was, Smith bad no such Engines as the King demanded, nor Powhatan any 50 Corne. Tetthis argued be would starue them. Others complained hee would not les them rest in the Fort (to flarue) but forced them to the Oyster Bankes to line or starne, as hee lined himselfe. For though hee bad of his owne private provisions fent from England , Sufficient : yet hee gave it all away to the weake and ficke, causing the most untoward (by doing as be did) to gather their food from the unknowne parts of the Riners and Woods, that they lined (though hardly) that otherwayes would have starued, ere they would have left their beds; or at the most the fight of lames Towne to have got their owne victuall. Some propheticallspirit calculated he had the Sanages in such subjection, be would have made himselfe a King, by marrying Pocahontas, Powhatans daughter. It is true, she was the very nonparell of his Kingdome, Pocahontas. and at most not past thirteene or fourteene yeeres of age. Very oft she came to our Fort, with what shee Powhatens could get for Captaine Smith, that ener loued and ved all the Country well, but her especially bee ener daughter her much respected: and shee so well requited it, that when her father intended to have surprized him, she by C. Smith, flealth in the darke night came through the wild Woods and told him of it. But her marriage could no way baue entitled him by any right to the Kingdome, nor was it over suffected be had ever such a thought, or more regarded her, or any of them, then in honest reason and discretion he might. If he would be might

Theft ite of the Colony when bane married ber, or have done what him listed. For there was none that could have bindred his deter-Ecceses 3 mination. Some that knew not any thing to fay, the Councell instructed, and admifed what to sweare. So diligent they were in this bufineffe, that what any could remember, he had ener done, or faid in mirth ar paffion, by fome circumstantial oath, it was applied to their fittest vie, yet not past eight or nine could fay much, and that nothing but circumstances, which all men did know was most false and untrue, Many ont their Paffes , by promising in England to say much against bim. Initead of accusing him. I have never heard any give him a better report, then many of those witnesses themselves that were fent only home to teilifie against him. Richard Pots, W. P.

The planting at Point Comfort.

The day before the Ships departed, C. Davis arrived in a small Pinnace, with some fixteene proper men more: to those were added a company from lames Towne, vnder the command of proper men more: to those were comfort. Martin, and Mafter West having lost their Boats, to and neere halfe their men among ft the Sauages, were returned to lames Towne. For the Sauages no fooner understood of Captaine Smith; loffe, but they all revolted, and did murder and fooile all they could encounter. Now were wee all constrained to line onely of that which Smith ad onely for his owne company, for the rest had consumed their propertions. And now have wee twentie Presidents, with all their appurtenances, for Master Perfie was so sicke he could not goe nor stand. But ere all was confumed, Master West, and Ratisfe, each with a Pinnace, and thirtie or fortie men well appointed, sought abroad to trade, and vpon confidence of Pombatan, Rathfie and his men were flaine, onely leffery Shortridge escaped, and Pochahuntas the Kings dangber laued a boy, called Henry Spelman, who lined many yeeres after by ber meanes amongst the Patawo mekes. Powhatan fill as bee found meanes, cut off their Boats and denied them trade. And Mafter well fin ling little better successe, set faile for England. Now we all found the want of Captaine Smith, yea his greatest maligners could then curie his losse. Now for come, provision, and contribution from the Saueges; wee had nothing but mortall wounds with Clubs and Arrowes. As for our Hogs, Goats, Sheepe, Horse, or what lived, our Commanders and Officers did daily consume them : tome fmall proportions (fometimes) wee tafted till all was denoured, then Swords, Arrowes, Peeces, or any thing we traded to the Sauages, whole bloudy fingers were fo imbrued in our blouds, that what by their crueltie, our Gouernours indifcretion, and the loffe of our Ships : Of five hundred within fixe moneths, after there remained not any more then fixtie most milerable and poore creatures. It were to vild to fay what wee endured. Life was now preferred by Roots, Herbs, Acornes, Waleust, Berrset, now and then a little Fifn, and Starch by fuch as bad an, of 30 Sauage flaine and huried, is faid to have beene taken up by the poorer and esten: which is reported also to have bapned to others of their owne. A report was that one flew his wife, and had eaten part of her: this is by others denied, the murther acknowledged, and be infly executed for that parricide. The occasion of these miseries was onely our owne, for want of prouidence, industrie, and gotternment, and not the barrennesse and defect of the Countrey, as is generally supposed, fortill then in three veeres (for the numbers were landed vs) wee had neuer landed fufficient provision for fixe moneths, such a glutton is the Sea, and such good fellowes the Mariners, wee as little tafled of those great proportions for their prouisions, as they of our miseries, that notwithstanding improvidences ever iwayd and overruled the businesse : though weedid live as is said, three yeeres chiefly of what this good Countrey naturally affordeth ; yet now had wee beene in Paradice it felfe (with 40 those Governours) it would not have beene much better with vs, yet were there some amongst vs, who had they had the gouernment, would furely have kept vs from those extreamities of miferies, that in ten dayes more would have supplanted veall by death. Thus you fee the miferable ends of those vierping Commanders, for all their greatnesse, Oratory, and long being there, and what is the want of owne man in Authoritie, that is houeft and valiant, discreet, and industrious; and how easily that may also be blemished, by ambitious indiscretion, or what did binder them now in his absence, they had not done much better then bee, having all thefe aduantages.

Sir Tho. Gates with 150. James Towne abandoned.

The artival of But God that would not it should be evnplanted, sent Sir Thomas Gates, and Sir George Summers , with one hundred and fiftie men , most happily preserved by the Bermudas to preserve vs. But when those noble Knights did see our miseries (being strangers in the Countrey) and could 50 understand no more of the cause but by their coniecture of our clamours and complaints, of accufing or excusing one another, they imbarked vs with themselves, with the best meanes they could, and abandoning lames Towne, fet faile for England.

The arriuall of

But yet God would not fo haue it , for ere wee left the River ; wee met the Lord de-la-wae, then gouernour of the Countrey, with three Ships exceeding well furnished with all necessaries ficting, who againe returned them to the abandoned I ames Towne, the ninth of Iune, 1610. accompanied with Sir Ferdinando Waimman, and divers other Gentlemen of fort. Sir George Sommer!, and Captaine Argall he presently dispatcheth to repaire to the Bermuda, to furnish them with prouision: Sir Thomas Gaies for England to helpe for ward their supplies: himselfe negletted not the best was in his power for the furtherance of the businesse, and regaining what was lost. But 60 euen in the beginning of his proceedings, his Lordship had such an incounter, that after eight Two thips fent months fickneffe, he was forced to faue his life, by his returne for England.

In this time Argall, not finding the Bermudas , having loft Sir George Somers at lea, fell on the coast of Sagadabock, where refrething himselfe, he found a convenient hilling for Cod. With a talte whereof he returned to lames Towne, from whence the Lord De-la-ware fent him to trade in the River of Patamomeck, where finding an English boy those people had preserved from the furv of Powbatan, by his acquaintance had fuch good vlage of those kind Sauages, that they fraughted his Ship with Corne, wherewith he returned to James Towne, and fo for England with the Lord Governour: yet before his returne, the adventurers had fent Sir Thomas Dale with three Ships. The arrival of men and cattell, and all other provisions necessarie for a yeere, all which arrived the tenth of Sir. The. Dale. May, 1611.

CHAP. S. Sauages kind Dage; Crost by extraordinary windes.

Againe, to second him with all possible expedition there was prepared for Sir Thomas Gates, fixe tall Ships with three hundred men, and one hundred Kine, with other cattell, with munition, and all manner of provision could be thought needfull, and they arrived about the first of Auguit next after fafely at lames Towne.

Sir Goorge Somers all this time was supposed lost : but thus it hapned , miffing the Barmudas, Sir George Sohee fell also as did Argall with Sagadabeck, where being refreshed, would not content himselfe mers arruall at with that repulse, but returned agains in the fearch, and there safely arrived. But overtoyling and dieth. himselfe on a furset died, And in this Cedar Ship built by his owne directions, and partly with his owne hands, that had not in her any Iron, but onely one bolt in her Keele, yet well endured thus toffed to and againe in this mightie Ocean, till with his dead bodie the arrived in England, and at Whitcharch in Dorfetshire, his body by his friends was honourably buried, with mane vo- His heart and lies of thot, and the rites of a Souldier, &c.

But thus much may ferne at the argument of the discourses following, and as the Prologue to the Vir- buried in Sumginian Scene, where we will first produce M. Archer, after whose succintt narration, M. Strachies co- mer llands a pious discourse shall feast you with the lively expression of others miseries, and Barmudas bappy discourse to them comin Rhetorickes Full fea and foring tide.

CHÂP. V.

A Letter of M. GABRIEL ARCHAR, touching the Voyage of the Fleet of Ships. which arrived at Virginia, without Sir THO. GATES, and SIT GEORGE SYMMERS, 1600.

Rom Woolwich the fifteenth of May, 1609, senenth saile weyed anchor, and came to Pimmouth the twentieth day, where Sir George Somers, with two small Vessells, conforted with vs. Here we tooke into the Bleffing (being the frip wherein I went) fixe Mares and two Horfes; and the Fleet layed in fome necessaries belonging to the action : In which bufineffe we fent time till the second of lune. And then wee fet sayle to Sea, but croft by South-west winder, we put in to Faulemouth, and there staying till the eight 40 of lune, we then gate out. Our Course was commanded to leave the Carraries one hundred leagues to the The appointed Eastward at least, and to store away directly for Virginia, without touching at the West Indies, except Course. the Fleet Should chance to be Separated, then they were to repaire to the Bermuda, there to Stay Senen dayes in expectation of the Admirall; and if they found him not, then to take their course to Virginia. Now thus it happened ; about fixe dayer after we loft the fight of England, one of Sir George So. The Ships, and mers Pinnaffes left our company, and (as I take it) bare up for England ; the reft of the Ships, viz. The chiefe men in Sea Adventure Admiral, wherein was Sir Thomas Gates, Sir George Somer, and Captaine Newport : The Diamond Vice-admirall, wherein was Captaine Ratcliffe, and Captaine King. The Falcon Reme-admirall, in which was Captaine Martin, and Master Nellion : The Bleffing , wherein I and Captaine Adams went : The Vnitie, wherein Captaine Wood, and Master Pett were. The Lion. wherein Captaine Webb remained : And the Swallow of Sir George Somers, in which Captaine 50 Moone, and Mafter Somer went. In the Catch went one Matchew Fitch Mafter : and in the Boat of Sir George Somers, called the Virginia, which was built in the North Colony, went one Captaine

Davies, and one Master Davies. These were the Captatines and Masters of our Fleet. We ran a Southerly course from the Tropicke of Cancer, where having the Sun within fixe or seven degrees right oner our head in July, we bore away West; fo that by the feruent heat and loomes breezes, Sicknesse and many of our men fell ficke of the Calenture, and out of two flips was throwne over-board thirtie two per- mortalicie at Sons. The Viceadmirall was faid to have the plague in her; but in the Bleffing we had not any ficke, albeit Sea. we had twenty women and children.

V pon Saint lames day, bemo about one hundred and fiftie leagues distant from the Weft Indies, in 60 croffing the Gulfe of Bahoma, there hapned a most terrible and vehement storme, which was a taile of the Terrible ter-West Indian Horacano; this tempest seperated all our Fleet one from another, and it was so violent that pett. men could scarce stand upon the Deckes, neither could any man heare another speake, being thus dimided, onery man steered bis owne course, and as it fell out about fine or fixe dayes after the storme ceased (which endure forthe foure boures in extremitie.) The Lion first, and after the Falcon and the Vnitie, got fight

Снар. б.

mors chargeable. Arriuall in Vacinia.

1734

of our Shippe, and so we lay a way directly for Virginia, finding neither current nor winde opposite. at Note. Folletu- fome have reported, to the great charge of our Counfell and Aduenturers. The Vnity was fore diffrested when the came up with vs, for of scuenty land men, the had not ten found, and all her Sea men were downe. but onely the Master and his Boy, with one poore failer, but we relieved them, and we four e consortino fell into the Kings River haply the elementh of August. In the Vnity were borne two children at Sea, but both died, being both Boyes. When wee came to lames Towns, we found a Ship which had bin there in the River a moneth before we came; this was sent out of England by our Counsels leave and authority, to fish for Sturgeon, and to me came; tow matjent one of Eugeniu or our consignit some and amount, to jur just stiegen, and to go e the ready may, without traces through the Torrid Zoam, and the professional it short [Commander wa

Captain Argal Captame Argol (a good Marriner, and a very civil Gentleman) and her Master one Robert Tindail. [9]

State of the Colony.

apraine Algoli (a good 1-a more found all in health (for the most part) howbest when Captaine Argoll came in they were in such distresse, for many were dispersed in the Sauages townes, lining upon their almes for an ounce of Copper a day, and fourescore lined twenty miles from the Fort, and fed upon nothing but Orflers eight weekes face, basing no other allowance at all, neither were the people of the Country able to reliene them if they would, Whereupon Captaine New port and others have beene much to blame to ma Lileneffe and forme the Counsell of such plenty of victuall in this Country, by which meanes they have beene sackein other vicesto this supply to give convenient content. Vpon this, you that be adventurers, must pardon vs, if you finde not returne of Commodity fo ample as you may expect because the law of nature bids us seeke sustenance fust. and then to labour to content you afterwards. But upon this point I shall be more large in my next Letter.

blame alfo. Some things parely,falfe rumors, parely

After our foure Ships had him in harbour a few dayes, came in the Viceadmirall, having out her maine 20 Mast over boord, and bad many of ber men very sicke and weake, but she could tell no newes of our Governour, and some three or foure dayes after her, came in the Swallow, with her maine Maft overboard alfa. and had a shrewd leake neither did she see our Admirall. Now aid we all lament much the absence of our Gonernour, for contentions began to grow, and falli-

factions, fugcedions.are here left out. They choose a newGouernor

the malecon-

tents which

fing now ill

comming of mileries in which this Author with him arole

ons, and partatings, oc. Infomuch as the President, to strengthen his authority, accorded with the Mariners, and gaue not any due respect to many worthy Gentlemen, that came in our Ships: wherewor they generally (haning alfo my confent) chofe Mailer Well, my Lord de la Wars brother, to be their Go. sernour, or president de bene este, in the absence of Sir Thomas Gates, or if he miscarried by Sea. then Hincille lacbryto continue till we heard newes from our Counfell in England. This choice of him they made not to dime. Hence fro flurbe the old President during bis time, but as bis authority expired, then to take upon him the fole go- 30 wenment with such assistants of the Captaines, as discrettest persons as the Colonie afforded. Perhaps sen Bad beene in Malbane it blaz oned a mutenie by such as retaine old malice; but Master West, Master Petcie, and Priginiabelore enemies to the all the respected Gentlemen of worth in Virginia, can and will testifie otherwise upon their outher. For the Kings Patent weratified, but refused to be governed by the President that now u, after his time was to Prefident,raipired, and onely subjected our selmes to Master West, whom we labour to have next President. I cannot certific you of much more as yet , until we grow to some certaine flay in this our state, but by the other reports at their Ships you hall know more. So with my harty commendations I ceafe. From lames Towne this last thefe ftirs and of Angust 1609. the following amout the whole Colony A true reportory of the wracke, and redemption of Sir T HO MAS GATES Knight ; poon, and from the Hands of the Bermudas : his comming to Virginia, and the effate of that Colonie then, and after, onder the government of the Lord LA WARRE, luly 15. 1610. written by WILLIAM STRACHY, Efquire.

CHAP. VI

è. I.

A most dreadfull Tempest (the manifold deaths whereof are here to the life described) their wracke on Bermuda, and the description of those Ilands.

Xcellent Lady, know that vpon Friday late in the euening, we brake ground out of the Sound of Pymouth, our whole Fleete then confifting of feuen good Ships, 62 and two Pinnaces, all which from the faird feeond of June, who the twenty three of July, kept in friendly confort together not a whole watch at any time, 100-fing the fight each of other. Our course when we came about the height of befing the fight each of other. Our course when we came about the height of betweene 26. and 27. degrees, we declined to the Northward, and according to our Gouernours instructions altered the trade and ordinary way vied heretofore by Dominico. and a Menis, in the West Indies, and found the winde to this course indeede as triendly . as in the judgement of all Sea-men, it is vpon a more direct line, and by Sir George Summers out Ad- Sir G summers mirall had bin likewise in former time failed, being a Gentleman of approued afforednesse; and a good maiready knowledge in Sea-faring actions, having often carried command, and chiefe charge in ma. ner and tried ny Ships Royall of her Maiefties, and in fundry Voyages made many defeats and attempts in the time of the Spaniards quarrelling with vs. vpon the Hands and Indies, &c. We had followed this sourfe follong, as now we were within feuen or eight dayes at the most, by Cap, Newports reckoning of making Cape Henry upon the coaft of Firginia: When on S. James his day, July 24. bening Monday (preparing for no leffe all the blacke night before) the cloudes gathering thicke vp. A terrible on vs. and the windes linging, and whiftling most vaustally, which made vs to cast off our Pin. forme expresonvs, and the windes ninging, and whitting more valuating, which indeed so that of our This nace towing the same vntill then afterne, a dreadfull storme and hideous began to blow from itsalland retoout the North-east, which swelling, and roaring as it were by fits, some houres with more violence then others, at length did beate all light from heaven; which like an hell of darkenelle tur- tion ned blacke upon ve, so much the more fuller of horror, as in such cases horror and feare vie to Black-darknes, operrunne the troubled, and overmaftered sences of all, which (taken vp with amazement) the eares lay to fentible to the terrible cries, and murmurs of the windes, and diffraction of our Company, as who was most armed, and best prepared, was not a little shaken. For surely (Noble Feare of deads Lady) as death comes not so sodaine nor apparant, so he comes not so eluish and painfull (to men fearefull.

an especially even then in health and perfect habitudes of body) as at Sea; who comes at no time fo welcome, but our frailty (so weake is the hold of hope in miserable demonstrations of danger) it makes guilty of many contrary changes, and conflicts: For indeede death is accompanied at no time, nor place with circumstances every way to vncapable of particularities of goodnesse and inward comforts, as at Sea. For it is most true, there ariseth commonly no such vnmercifull tempest, compound of so many contrary and divers Nations, but that it workerh voon the whole frame of the body, and most loathsomely affecteth all the powers thereof : and the manner of the ficknesse it laies upon the body, being so unsufferable, gives not the minde any free and quiet time, to vie her judgemen; and Empire : which made the Poet fay :

Hostium ux ores, paerique cacos Sentiant motte erientie Hadi, & Aqueris nigri fremitum, & trementes Verbere rivat .

For foureand twenty houres the storme in a restlesse tumult, had blowne so exceedingly, as Communice we could not apprehend in our imaginations any possibility of greater violence, yet did wee still and increase. finde it, not onely more terrible, but more constant, fury added to fur, and one storme vrging a fecond more outragious then the former; whether it fo wrought voon our feares, or indeede met with new forces: Sometimes firikes in our Ship amongst women, and passengers, not vied to fuch hurly and discomforts, made vs looke one vpon the other with troubled hearts, and panting bosomes : our clamours dround in the windes, and the windes in thunder. Prayers might well be in the heart and lips, but drowned in the outcries of the Officers: nothing heard that could give comfort, nothing feene that might incourage hope. It is impossible for me, had I the vovce of Stentor, and expression of as many tongues, as his throate of voyces, to expresse the outcries and misseries, not languishing, but wasting his spirits, and are constant to his owne principles, but not prevailing. Our failes wound up lay without their vie, and if at any time wee bore but a Hollocke, or halfe forecourfe, to guide her before the Sea, fix and fometimes eight men were not inough to hold the whipstaffe in the steerage, and the tiller below in the Gunner roome, by which may be imagined the strength of the storme : In which, the Sea swelled about Swelling Sea the Clouds, and gaue battell vnto Heauen. It could not be faid to raine, the waters like whole fer forth in a Rivers did flood in the ayre. And this I did still observe, that whereas vpon the Land, when a swelling side. storme hath powred it selfe forth once in drifts of raine, the winde as baten downe, and vanquished therewith not long after indureth : here the glut of water(as if throatling the winde ere while) was no fooner a little emptied and qualified, but inflantly the windes (as having gotten their mouthes now free, and at liberty) spake more loud, and grew more tumultuous, and Compared malignant; What shall I say? Windes and Seas were as mad, as sury and rage could make them; with the Au-for mine owne pare, I had bin in some stormer before, as well vpon the coast of Barbary and Alconsciences. geere, in the Lenant, and once more diffresfull in the Adriatique gulfe, in a bottome of Candy, fo as I may well fay. Ego quid sit ater Adrie nom sinus, & quid albus Peccet lapex. Yet all that I had euer fuffered gathered together, might not hold comparison with this: there was not a moment in which the fodaine splitting, or infant ouer-fetting of the Shippe was not

Howbeit this was not all; It pleased God to bring a greater affliction yet upon vs; for in the Leake added beginning of the storme we had received likewife a mighey leake. And the Ship in every loynt to the stormes almost, having spued out her Okam, before we were aware (a casualty more desperate then any tonour, Other that a Voyage by Sea draweth with it) was growne fine footefuddenly deepe with water about her ballaft, and we almost drowned within, whilest we sat looking when to perish from aboue. This imparting no leife terrour then danger, ranne through the whole Ship with much fright and amazement, itartled and turned the bloud, and tooke downe the braues of the most hardy Marriner of them all, infomuch as he that before happily felt not the forrow of others. now began to forrow for himselfe, when he saw such a pond of water to suddenly broken in and which he knew could not (without prefent avoiding) but inftantly finke him. So as ioyning (onely for his owne fake, not yet worth the fauing) in the publique fafety; there might be feene Mafter. Mafters Mate, Boatelwaine, Quarter Mafter. Coopers, Carpenters, and who not with candels in their hands, creeping along the ribs viewing the fides, fearthing enery corner, and life. ning in euery place, if they could heare the water runne, Many a weeping leake was this way found, and haltily ftopt, and at length one in the Gunner roome made vp with I know not how many peeces of Beere; but all was to no purpole, the Leake (if it were but one) which drunke in our greatest Seas, and tooke in our destruction fastest, could not then be found, nor ever was, by any labour, counfell, or fearch. The waters fill increasing, and the Pumpes going, which at length choaked with bringing vp whole and continual Bisket (and indeede all we had, tenne thousand weight) it was conceived, as most likely, that the Leake might be sprung in the Breadroome, whereupon the Carpenter went downe, and ript vp all the roome, but could not

Leake cannot be found.

> I am not able to give vnto your Ladiship every mans thought in this perplexity, to which we were now brought; but to me, this Leakage appeared as a wound given to men that were before dead. The Lord knoweth, I had as little hope, as defire of lite in the ftorme, & in this, it went beyond my will; because beyond my reason, way we should labour to preserve life; yet we did. either because so deare are a few lingring houres of life in all mankinde, or that our Christian knowledges taught vs, how much we owed to the rites of Nature, as bound, not to be falle to our felues, or to neglect the meanes of our owne preferuation; the most despairefull things amongil men, being matters of no wonder nor moment with him, who is the rich Fountaine and admirable Effence of all mercy.

Their labour for life three daves and foure nights.

Our Gouernour, you the tuesday morning (at what time, by such who had bin below in the hold, the Leake was first discouered) had caused the whole Company, about one hundred and forty, besides women, to be equally divided into three parts, and opening the Ship in threepla- 26 ces (vnder the forecastle, in the waste, and hard by the Bitacke) appointed each man where to attend; and thereunto every man came duely upon his watch, tooke the Bucket or Pumpe for one houre, and tested another. Then men might be feene to labour, I may well say, for life, and the better fort, euen our Gouernour, and Admirall themselves, not refusing their turne, and to spell each the other, to give example to other. The common fort ftripped naked, as men in Gallies, the easier both to hold out, and to shrinke from under the salt water, which continually leapt in among them, kept their eyes waking, and their thoughts and hands working, with tyred bodies, and wasted spirits, three dayes and foure nights destitute of outward comfort, and desperate of any deliuerance, testifying how mutually willing they were, yet by labour to keepe each other from drowning, albeit each one drowned whileft he laboured.

Seabreakes in.

The Gover-

courfe.

themiclass.

Once, so huge a Sea brake vpon the poope and quarter, vpon vs, as it couered our Shippe from flearne to flemme, like a garment or a vast cloude, it filled her brimme full for a while within, from the hatches up to the sparse decke. This source or confluence of water was fo violent, as it ruft and carried the Helm-man from the Helme, and wrested the Whipstaffe out of his hand, which to flew from tide to fide, that when he would have ceased the tame againe, it fo toffed him from Star-boord to Lar-boord, as it was Gods mercy it had not fplit him: It so beat him from his hold, and so bruised him, as a fresh man hazarding in by chance fell faire with it, and by maine frength bearing somewhat vp, made good his place, and with much clamour incouraged and called vpon others; who gave her now vp, rent in pieces and absolutely loft. Our Gouernour was at this time below at the Capftone, both by his speech and authoritie 50 heartening enery man vnto his labour. It strooke him from the place where hee fate, and groueled him, and all vs about him on our faces, bearing together with our breaths all thoughts from our bolomes, e.e, then that wee were now finking. For my part, I thought her alreadie in the bottome of the Sea; and I have heard him fay, wading out of the floud thereof, all his ambition was but to climbe vp about hatches to dye in Aperto colo, and in the company of his old friends. Remerois fa. It fo flun's the flip in her full pace , that free flured no more , then if free had beene caught in a bled to bea net, or then, as if the fabulous Remora had thucke to her fore-callle. Yet without bearing one inch small fifth able of faule, euen then snee was making her way nine or ten leagues in a watch. One thing, it is not to winftand a without his wonder (whether it were the feare of death in fo great a fforme, or that it pleased God to be gracious vnto vs) there was not a paffenger, gentleman, or other, after hee beganne to firre and labour, but wasable to relieue his fellow, and make good his courie : And it is most true, fuch as in all their life times had neuer done houres worke before (their mindes now helping their bodies) were able twice tortie eight houres together to toile with the best, During all this time, the neavens look'd to blacke vpon vs. that it was not possible the eleva-

Shippe in her Godinableth whom he will fanc to fauc

nation of the Pole might be observed : nor a Starre by night, not Sunne beame by day was to be feene. Onely voon the thuriday night Sir George Summers being voon the watch, had an apparition of a little round light, like a faint Starre, trembling, and threaming along with a sparkeling blaze, halfe the height vpon the Maine Maft, and shooting sometimes from Shroud to Shroud, tempting to lettle as it were vpon any of the foure Shrouds: and for three or foure houres together, or rather more, halfe the night it kept with vs, running fometimes along the Maineyard to the very end, and then returning. At which, Sir George Cummers called divers about him. and the wed them the fame, who observed it with much wonder, and careful neffe : but voon a Evaluate towards the morning watch, they loft the fight of it, and knew not what way it made.

10 The superstitious Sea-men make many constructions of this Sea-fire, which neverthelesse is vsuall in ftormes : the fame (it may be) which the Grecians were wont in the Mediterranean to call Caffor and Pollax, of which, if one onely appeared without the other, they tooke it for an ewill figure of great tempest. The Italians, and fuch, who lye open to the Adrianane and Tyrrene Sea, call it (a facred Body) Corpo fanito : the Spaniards call it Saint Elmo, and have an authentique Section 1.14 and miraculous Legend for it. Be it what is will, we laid other foundations of fafety or ruine, e.i. Q.L. then in she rifing or falling of it, could it have ferued vs now miraculously to have taken our height by, it might have ftrucken amazement, and a reverence in our devotions, according to the due of a miracle. But it did not light vs any whit the more to our knowne way, who ran now (as doe hood winked men) at all aduentures, sometimes North, and North-east, then North and

20 by West, and in an instant againe varying two or three points, and sometimes halfe the Compiffe. East and by South we iteered away as much as we could to beare pright, which was no small carefulnesse nor paine to doe, albeit we much vnrigged our Ship, threw ouer-boord much luggage, many a Trunke and Cheft (in which I fuffered no meane loffe) and tlaued many a Butt of Beere, Hogheads of Oyle, Syder, Wine, and Vinegar, and heated away all our Ordnance on the Starboord fide, and had now purposed to have cut downe the Maine Mait, the more to lighten her, for we were much ipent, and our men fo weary, as their flengths together failed them. with their hearts, having trausiled now from Tuefday till Friday morning, day and night, with - No fleepe or out either fleepe or foode; for the leakeage taking vp all the hold, wee could neither come by food romtuef

Beere nor fresh water: fire we could keepe none in the Cookeroome to dresse any meate, and day till triday carefulnesse, griefe, and our turne at the Pumpe or Bucket, were sufficient to hold sleepe from

And furely Madam, it is most true, there was not any house (a matter of admiration) all these dayes, in which we freed not twelue hundred Barricos of water, the leaft whereof contained fix 1200. Barricos gallons, and some eight, besides three deepe Pumpes continually going, two beneath at the Capan houre, besides a Pumpe, ftone, and the other aboue in the halfe Decke, and at each Pumpe foure thousand strokes at the acquitting to least in a watch; so as I may well say, every foure houres, we quitted one hundred tunnes of wa- tunsof water ter ; and from tuefday noone till friday noone, we bailed and pumped two thousand sunne, and guery shoures yet doe what we could, when our Ship held least in her, after tuelday night second watch) shee bore ten foote deepe, at which stay our extreame working kept her one eight glasses, forbearance 40 whereof had instantly funke vs, and it being now Friday, the fourth morning, it wanted little, but that there had bin a generall determination, to have flut vp hatches, and commending our finfull foules to God, committed the Shippe to the mercy of the Sea : furely, that night we must have done it, and that night had we then perished: but see the goodnesse and sweet introduction of better hope, by our mercifull God given vnto vs. Sir George Summers, when no man dreamed of fuch happinesse. had discouered, and cried Land. Indeede the morning now three quarters summer lands fpent, had wonne a little cleerenesse from the dayes before, and it being better furuewed, the ve-described by Sie ry trees were feene to more with the winde vpon the shoare side: whereupon our Governour George Summers commanded the Helme-man to beare vp, the Boatefwaine founding at the first, found it thirteene fathome, & when we stood a little in seuen fatham; and presently heaving his lead the third time.

to had ground at foure fathome, and by this, we had got her within a mile under the South-east point of the land, where we had somewhat smooth water. But having no hope to saucher by comming to an anker in the fame, we were inforced to runne her ashoare, as neere the land as we could, which brought vs within three quarters of a mile of thoare, and by the mercy of God vnto vs. making out our Boates, we had ere night brought all our men, women, and children, about They go a land the number of one hundred and fifty, fate into the Hand.

We found it to be the dangerous and dreaded Hand, or rather Hands of the Bermuda: whereof let mee giue your Ladyship a briefe description, before I proceed to my narration. And that the fupposed the rather, because they be so terrible to all that euer touched on them, and such tempests, thunders, Diuck, &c. and other fearefull objects are feene and heard about them, that they be called commonly, The 60 Denils Ilands, and are feated and anoyded of all featrauellers aline, about any other place in the world. Yet it pleafed our mercifull God, to make even this hideous and hated place, both the place of our fafetie and meanes of our deliverance.

And hereby also, I hope to deliver the world from a foule and generall errour : it being counted of most, that they can be no habitation for Men, but rather given over to Deuils and wicked

Viter darknes

Spirits; whereas indeed wee find them now by experience, to bee as habitable and commodious as molt Countries of the same climate and situation sinfomuch as if the entranceinto them were as ea le as the place it selfe is contenting, it had long ere this beene inhabited, as well as other liands. Thus shall we make it appeare, That Truth is the daughter of Time, and that men on the not to deny every thing which is not fubice to their owne fenfe.

Si-George Sum-furucy: his

we have not-

M.Noracchad

Line other coi-

teth the fame

h florie more fairh it hath

two names,

Gaza,of the

and Bermudez

mudes: Noic

that he place h

ir more to the time they fee

as they patic.

The Scenigra's

heard) which were wracked

there in Cap.

Butleys time

on that ours

fome of ours

(as I haue

North then

The Bermudus bee broken Ilands, fine hundred of them in manner of an Archipelagus (at least if you may call them all Ilands that lie, how little soeuer into the Sea, and by themselues) of small compasse, some larger yet then other, as time and the Sea hath wonne from them, and eaten his pallage through, and all now lying in the figure of a Croiffant, within the circuit of fixe or feven leagues at the most, albeit at first it is said of them that they were thirteene or fourteene 10 leagues; and more in longitude as I have heard. For no greater distance is it from the Northwest Point to Gates his Bay, as by this Map your Ladyship may fee, in which Sir George Summers, who coasted in his Boat about them all, tooke great care to expresse the same exactly and full, and made his draught perfect for all good occasions, and the benefit of fuch, who either in diffresse mishe draught which be brought voon them, or make taile this way.

It should feeme by the testimony of Gonzalus Ferdinandus Oniedus, in his Booke intituled. The Summary or Abridgement of his generall History of the West Indies, written to the Emperer Charles unceparannea an exact Map. the Fift, that they have beene indeed of greater compasse (and I easily beleeue it) then they are Oriadams now, who thus faith : In the yeere 1515. when I came first to informe your Maiesty of the state of the things in India, and was the yeare following in Flanders, in the time of your most fortunate (uccollein to thele your kingdomes of Aragony and Catteel, whereas at that voyage I fayled about the Iland Bermudas, otherwise called Gorza, being the farthest of all the Ilands that are yet found at this day in the world. and arriving there at the depth of eight yards of water, and distant from the Land as farre at the shot particularly he of a Peece of Ordnance, I determined to fend some of the Ship to Land, as well to make fearch of Such things as were there, as a fo to leave in the I land certaine Hogges for increase, but the time not ferning my purpose, by reason of contrary winde I could bring my Ships no neerer : the Iland being twelve leagues in length, and fixteene in breadth, and about thirtie in circuit, lying in the thirtie three degrees of thip which first discouered it, the North fide. Thus farre hee.

being fo called, True it is, the maine Hand, or greatest of them now, may bee some fixteene miles inlength East North-east, and West South-west the longest part of it, standing in thirtie two degrees and 20 orthe Captain of the thing na- twentie minutes, in which is a great Bay on the North fide, in the North-west end, and many broken Hands in that Sound or Bay, and a little round Hand at the South-westend, As occasions med lobn Berwere offered, to we gaue titles and names to certaine places.

These Hands are often assisted and rent with tempests, great strokes of thunder, lightning and raine in the extreamity of violence: which (and it may well bee) hath fo fundred and tome downe the Rockes, and whuried whole quarters of Hands into the maine Sea (some fixe.some by oursinable feuen leagues, and is like in time to swallow them all) so as even in that distance from the shoare ted, & fay form there is no small danger of them and with them, of the stormes continually raging from them, which once in the full and change commonly of every Moone (Winter or Summer) keepe their vnchangeableround, and rather thunder then blow from enery corner about them, fometimes for- 40 tie eight houres together : especially if the circle, which the Philosophiers call Halo were (in our being there) seene about the Moone at any season, which bow indeed appeared there often, and would bee of a mightie compasse and breadth. I have not observed it any where one quarter so great, especially about the twentieth of March, I faw the greatest when followed upon the eucs eue of the Annuntiation of our Ladie, the mightiest blast of lightning, and most terrible rap of thunder that ever aftonied mortall men, I thinke. In August, September, and untill the end of were of opini-October, wee had very hot and pleasant weather onely (as I say) thunder, lightning, and many feattering showers of Raine (which would passe swiftly ouer , and yet fall with such force and Bermudas : Y:a darknesse for the time as if it would never bee cleere againe) wee wanted not any; and of raine more in Summer then in Winter, and in the beginning of December wee had great flore of highe 50 have Keniuch (the sharpe windes blowing Northerly) but it continued not, and to say truth, it is wintry of an Hand to the fummer weather there, according as those North and Noth-west windes blow. Much raste of this North of ours, and have effected winder wee had; for those cold winder would suddenly alter the agre; but when there and have effected winder week. sed to discouer was no breath of wind to bring the moyst agree out of the Seas, from the North and North-well, it fas lide wee were rather weary of the heate, then pinched with extreamitie of cold : Yet the three Winter moneths, December, lanuary, and February, the winds kept in those cold corners, and indeed tem with then it was heavy and melancholy being there, nor were the winds more rough in March, then rama interite in the forefaid moneths, and yet even then would the Birds breed. I thinke they breade there, Moonal gear most monethes in the yeere, in September, and at Cliffmaffe I law young Birds, and compasse, in Februarie, at which time the mornings are there easin Mauin Barbarat and share. in Februarie, at which time the mornings are there (as in May in England) fresh and sharpe. 60 Well may the Spaniards, and thefe Bifcani Pilots , with all their Traders into the Indies, palle by these Hands as afraid (either bound out or homewards) of their very Meridian, and leave the fishing for the Pearle (which some say, and I beleeue well is as good there, as in any of their other Indian Ilands, and whereof we had some triall) to such as will aduenture for them. The

Other kindes of high and fiveet finelling Woods there bee, and divers colours, blacke, yellow, Other Trees! and red, and one which beares a round blew Berry, much eaten by our owne people, of a fliptick qualitie and rough taite on the ton gue like a Slow to Hay or binde the Fluxe, which the often

Seas about them are fo ful of breaches, as with those dangers, they may well be faid to be the firence gelt fituate in the world. I have often heard Sir George Summers, and Captaine Newport lay, how they have not beene by any chance or discovery upon their like. It is impossible without great and perfect knowledge, and fearch first made of them to bring in a bable Boat, to much as of ten Tun without apparant roine, albeit within there are many faire harbours for the greatest English Ship : yea, the Argafies of Venice may ride there with water enough, and lafe land-lockt. There icone onely fide that admits fo much as hope of fafetie by many a league, on which (as before descibed) it pleased God to bring vs, wee had not come one man of vs elie a shoare, as the weather was : they have beene ever therefore left defolate and not inhabited.

10 . The foile of the whole Iland is one and the fame, the mould, dark, red, fandie, dry, and vincapa- Experience ble I beleeue of any of our commodities or truits. Sir George Summers in the beginning of August, hath Biesquared out a Garden by the quarter (the quarter being fet downebefore a goodly Bay, voon ter thewed which our Gouernour did firit lespe ainoare, and therefore called it (as aforefaid) Gates bis Bay, fince as we atwhich opened into the Eaft, and into which the Sea did ebbe and flow, according to their tides, traits, wormes. and fowed Muske Melons, Peale, Onyons, Raddish, Lettice, and many English feeds, and Kitchen & thoic that Herbes. All which in some ten daies did appeare aboue ground, but whether by the small Birds, dwell there of which there be many kindes, or by Flies (Wormes I never faw any, nor any venomous thing, as Toade, or Snake, or any creeping beaft hurtfull, onely fome Spiders, which es many aftrme are which tooke fignes of great flore of Gold : but they were long and flender legge Spiders, and whether veno-

20 mous or no I know not . I believe not, fince wee should still find them amongst our linnen in our ledging. Yes Chefts, and drinking Cans ; but we never received any danger from them : A kind of Melontha, the dawning & or blacke Beetell there was, which bruifed, gaue a fauour like many invectand itrong gums pundelightione ned together) whether, I lay, hindred by thele, or by the condition or vice of the loyle they habe; though or blacke Beetell there was, which bruifed, gaue a fauour like many fiveet and ffrong gums pune Aurora yeeld a came to no proofe, nor through. It is like enough that the commodities of the other Westerne notall so cer-Ilands would prosper there, as Vines, Lemmons, Oranges, and Sugar Canes : Our Gouernour taineas the made triall of the later, and buried some two or three in the Garden mould, which were referred Sun for which in the wracke amongst many which wee carried to plant here in Vogima, and they beganne to cause I have grow, but the Hogs breaking in , both rooted them vp and eate them : there is not through the thefefift difwhole Hands either Champion ground, Valleys, or fresh Riners. They are full of Shawes of good couries.

30 ly Cedar, fairer then ours here of Virginia; the Berries, whereof our men feething, ftraining, and Spidors. letting ftan lome three or foure daies, made a kind of pleafant drinke : thele Berries are of the Beelle very fame bigneffe, and collour of Corynthes, full of little stones, and verie restringent or hard building. Hoss. Peter Martin faith, That at Alexandria in Egypt there is a kind of Cedar, which the lewes Cedars. dwelling there, affirme to be the Cedars of Libanua, which beare old fruite and new all the yeare, Cedar-drinke, being a kinde of Apple which tait like Prines : but then, neither those there in the Bermudis, American Co. nor ours here in Virginia are of that happy kind.

Likewise there grow great store of Palme Trees, not the right Indian Palmes, such as in Saint with those of John Port-Rico are called Cocos, and are there full of fmall fruites like Almonds (of the bigneffe of Libanus, as by the graines in Pomgranates) nor of those kind of Palmes which beares Dates, but a kind of Si- the historic of 40 merons or wild Palmes in growth, fashion, leaves, and branches, refembling those true Palmes: them in our for the Tree is high, and straight, sappy and spongious, vinime for any vie, no branches but in the vppermost pur thereof, and in the top grow leaves about the head of in the most part.

Agriculture

Agri whereof they call Palmeto, and it is the heart and pith of the fame Trunke, fo white and thin, as Many forts of it will peele off into pleates as smooth and delicate as white Sattin into twentie folds, in which a Palmes, the man may write as in paper) where they ipread and fall downward about the Tree like an ouer. Coco, the blowne Role, or Saifron flower not early gathered; to broad are the leanes, as an Italian Vmbrello, the Winea man may well detend his whole body vnder one of them, from the greatest storme rame that Palme, or tadfalls. For they being stiffe and smooth, as if so many stagges were knit together, the raine easily die, &c, besides fliderhoff. Wee oftentimes found growing to thefe leaves, many Silk-wormes involved there-thefe fleedto in, like those small wormes which Acosta writethos, which grew in the leaves of the Tunal Tree, Sike wormes, of which being dried, the Indians make their Cochinile to precious and marchantable. With there leanes we that ched our Cabbins, and roading the Palmito or loft top thereof, they had a tafte like fried Melons, and being fod they eate like Cabbedges, but not fo offenfuely thankefull to the ftomacke. Many an ancient Borger was therefore heaved at, and fell not for his place, but for his head : for our common people, whole bellies never had eares, made it no breach of Charitie in their hot blouds and tall flornackes to murder thoulands of them. They beare a kind of Berry, blacke and round, as bigge as a Damfon, which about December were ripe and I forous fleeing scalded (whilest they are greene) they eate like Bullafes. These Trees shid their leaves in the Winter moneths, as withered or burnt with the cold blails of the North winde, especi-60 ally those that grow to the Seaward, and in March, there Burgen new in their roome fresh eating of the lufeious Palme berry would bring them into, for the nature of fweet things is to clense and dissolue. A kinde of Pease of the bignesse and shape of a Katherine Peare, wee found growing woon the Rockes full of many sharpe subtill prickes (as a Thirtle) which wee growing vpon the rockes and the prinkle Peare, the outlide greene, but being opened, of a deepe murrie. full of invee like a Mulberry, and init of the same substance and taste, wee both eate them raw

Waters No Springs then found, fince Wells haue bin there digged which ebbc and flow

Sure it is, that there are no Rivers nor running Springs of fresh water to bee found voon any of them : when wee came first wee digged and found certaine gushings and soft bublings, which being either in bottoms, or on the tide of hanging ground, were onely fed with raine water, which neuerthelelle loone finketh into the earth and vanisheth away, or emptieth it felfe out of fight in- to to the Sea, without any channell aboue or vpon the superficies of the earth : for according as their raines fell, we had our Welsand Pits (which we digged) either halfe full, or absolute exhaufted and dry, howest fome low bottoms (which the continuall descent from the Hills filled full, and in those flats could have no passage away) we found to continue as fishing Ponds, or standing Pooles, continually Summer and Winter full of fresh water.

Fift.

The shoare and Bayes round about, when weelanded first afforded great store of fish, and that of divers kindes, and good, but it should seeme that our fiers, which wee maintained on the shoates side draue them from vs, so as wee were in some want, vntill wee had made a flat bottome Gundall of Cedar with which wee put off farther into the Sea, and then dais ly hooked great store of many kindes, as excellent Angell-fish, Salmon Peale, Bonetas, 10 Stingray, Cabilly, Scnappers, Hogge-fish, Sharkes, Dogge-fish, Pilcherds, Mullets, and Rock-fish, of which bee divers kindes : and of these our Governour dryed and salted, and barrelling them vp, brought to lea fine hundred, for he had procured Salt to bee made with some Brine. which happily was preserued, and once having made a little quantity, he kept three or four pots boyling, and two or three men attending nothing elie in an house (iome little diffance from his Bay) fet vp on purpose for the same worke.

Likewise in Furbushers building Bay wee had a large Sein, or Tramell Net, which our Go-

Crabbes, Oylters, and Wilkes. True it is, for Fish in eueric Coue and Creek weefond Snaules, and Skulles in that abundance, as (Ithinke) no lland in the world may have granules.

likewise make the Herbes, Roots, and Weeds sweet which grow about the Bankes) become thereby both fat and wholfome. As must those Fish needes bee groffe, slimy, and corrupt the bloud, which feed in Fennes, Marishes, Ditches, muddy Pooles, and neere vnto places 40 where much filth is daily cast forth. Vnscaled Fishes, such as Junius calleth Molles Pisces, as Trenches, Eele, or Lampries, and fuch feculent and dangerous Snakes wee neuer law any, nor may any Riuer bee inuenomed with them (I pray God) where I come. I forbeare to speake what a fort of Whales wee have seene hard aboard the shoare followed sometime by the Sword-fish and the Thresher, the sport whereof was not unpleasant. The Sword-fish, with his sharpe and needle Finne, pricking him into the belly when hee would stake and fall into the Sea; and when hee startled vpward from his wounds, the Thresher with his large Fins (like

Salt made

perpour cauled to be made of the Deere Toyles, which were were to carry to Virginia, by drawing the Masts more straight and narrow with Roape Yarne, and which reached from one side of the Dock to the other: with which (I may boldly fay) wee have taken five thousand of small 30

1000, mass sale and great fish at one hale. As Pilchards , Breames , Mullets , Rocke-fish, &c. and other kindes for which wee haue no names. Wee haue taken also from under the broken Rocker, Creuises oftentimes greater then any of our best English Lobsters; and likewise abundance of Caule of their ter flore or better Fish. For they sucking of the very water, which descendeth from the high wholsomnesse. Hills mingled with juyce and verdor of the Palmes, Cedars, and other sweet Woods (which

No valcaled

While and

Cater-tray beare the bell away.Medio tutifiimus ibit. Fowles.

Wild Swans,

Web-footed it maketh a

Flayles) beating him about water. The examples whereof gives vs (faith Oniedia) to vinderstand, that in the felfe same perill and Janger doe men live in this mortall life, wherein is no certaine fecurity neither in high effate nor low. Fowle there is great store, small Birds, Sparrowes fat and plumpe like a Bunting, bigger then ours, Robbins of divers colours greene and yellow, ordinary and familiar in our Cabbins, and other of leffe fort. White and gray Hernshawes, Bitters, Teale, Snites, Crowes, and Hawkes, of which in March wee found divers Ayres, Golhawkes and Talfells, Oxen-birds, Cormorants, Bald-Cootes, Moore-Hennes, Owles, and Battes in great store. And vpon New-yeeres day in the morning, our Gouernour being walked foorth with another Gentleman Master lames Swift, each of them with their Peeces killed a wild Swanne, in a great Sea-water Bay or Pond in our Hand. A kinde of webbe-footed Fowle there is, of the bign-fle of an English They call it of greene Plouer, or Sea-Meawe, which all the Summer wee faw not, and in the darket nights of November and December (for in the night they onely feed) they would come forth, but 60 not flye farce from home, and houering in the ayre, and over the Sea, made a strange hollow and barth howling. Their colour is inclining to Ruffet, with white belies, as are likewife the long Feathers of their wings Ruffet and White) thele gather themselves together and breed in those llands which are high, and so farre alone into the Sea, that the Wilde Hogges cannot I wimme over them , and there in the ground they have their Burrowes , like Conves in a Warren , and to brought in the loofe Mould , though not fo deepe : which Birds with a light bough in a darke night (as in our Lowbelling) wee caught. I have beene at the taking of three hundred in an houre, and wee might have laden our Boates. Our men found a pretrie way to take them, which was by franding on the Rockes or Sands by the Sea fide, and hollowing, laughing, and making the strangest out-cry that possibly they could : with the nevie whereof the Birds would come flocking to that place, and lettle voon the very armes and head of him that fo cryed, and still creepe neerer and neerer, answering the noyse themselves : by which our men would weigh them with their hand, and which weighed heatieff they tooke 10 for the best and let the others alone, and so our men would take twen je dozen in two houres of the chiefest of them; and they were a good and well relished Fowle, fat and full as a Partridge. In lanuary wee had great store of their Egges, which are as great as an Hennes Egge. and fo fashioned and white helled, and have no difference in yolke nor white from an Hennes Egge. There are thousands of these Birds, and two or three Hands full of their Burrowes . whether at any time (in two hours warning) wee could fend our Cock-boat, and bring home as many as would ferue the whole Company : which Birds for their blindheffe (for they fee weak-Iv in the day) and for their cry and whooting, wee called the Sea Onle: they will bite cruelly with their crooked Bills.

Wee had knowledge that there were wilde Hogges vpon the lland, at first by our owne Wild Hogges

20 Swine preserved from the wrack and brought to shoare : for they straying into the Woods, an how fifthours

CHAP.6. S.I. Thousands of Birds. Store of wilde Hogs. Many Tortoiles.

huge wilde Boare followed downe to our quarter, which at night was watched and taken in out and taken in this fort. One of Sir George Summers men went and lay among the Swine, when the Boare being come and groueled by the Sowes, her put ouer his hand and rubbed the fide gently of the Boare, which then lay itill, by which meanes hee fastned a rope with a sliding knot to the hinder legge and so tooke him, and after him in this fort two or three more. But in the end (a little businesseouer) our people would goe a hunting with our Ship Dogge, and sometimes bring home thirtie, fometimes firtie Boares, Sowes, and Pigs in a weeke aliue : for the Dog would fatten on them and hold, whilest the Hunti-men made in ; and there bee thousands of them in the Ilands, and at that time of the yeers in August, September, October, and November, they were well fed 30 with Berries that dropped from the Cedar, and the Palmes, and in our quarter wee made flyes for them, and gathering of thele Berries ferued them twice aday, by which meanes we kept them in good plight : and when there was any fret of weather (for vpon enery increase of wind the billow would be fo great, as it was no putting out with our Gundall or Canow) that we could not fi h nor take Tortoyfes, then wee killed our Hogs. But in February when the Palme Berries began to be icant or dry, and the Cedar Berries failed two moneths fooner. True it is the Hogs grew poore, and being taken to, wee could not raile them to be better, for besides those Berries, we had nothing wherewith to franke them ; but even then the Tortoyles came in againe, of which wee daily both turned up great store, finding them on Land, as also sculling after them in our Boate throoke them with an Iron goad, and fod, baked, and roafted them. The Tortoyle is reasonable Tortoises toothiom (fome fay) wholfome meate. I am fure our Company liked the meate of them verie well, and one Tortoyle would goe further among it them, then three Hogs. One Turtle (for fo we called them) featted well a dozen Melles, appointing fixe to every Melle. It is fuch a kind of meat. as a man can neither absolutely call Fish nor Flesh, keeping most what in the water, and feeding vpon Sea-graffe like a Heifer, in the bottome of the Couesand Bayes, and laying their Egges (of which wee should finde five hundred at a time in the opening of a shee Turtle) in the Sand by the shoare side, and so covering them close leave them to the hatching of the Sunne, like the Manate at Saint Domenique, which made the Spanifo Friars (at their first arrivall) make some feruple to eate them on a Friday, because in colour and taste the stellh is like to moriells of Veale, Concerning the laying of their Egges, and hatching of their young, Peter Martyr writeth thus in 50 his Decades of the Ocean : at fuch time as the heate of Nature moueth them to generation, they came forth of the Sea, and making a deepe pit in the land, they lay three or four hundred Egges therein : when they have thus emptied their bag of Conception, they put as much of the fame againe into the Pit as may fatisfie to couer the Egges , and fo refort againe vnto the Sea, nothing carefull of their fuccession. At the day appointed of Nature to the procreation of these creatures.

Fffffff 2

there creepeth out a multitude of Tortoyies, as it were Pilmyers out of an Ant-hill, and this only by the heate of the Sunne, without any helpe of their Parents : their Egges are as big as Greie Egges, and themselues growne to perfection, bigger then great round Targets.

ò. I I.

Actions and Occurrents whiles they continued in the Ilands : Rauens fent for Virginia: Divers mutinies : PAINE executed : Two Pinnaces built.

O foone as wee were a little fetled after our landing, with all the conucniencie wee might, and as the place, and our many wants would give vs leave, weemade vp our ong Bate (as your Ladylhip hath heard) in fashion of a Pinnace, fitting her with a little Deck, made of the Hatches of our ruin'd ship, so close that no water could goe in Io

H. Rauensvoy- her, gaue her Sayles and Oares, and intreating with our Mafters Mate Henry Rauens (who was age from Ber- fuppoied a fufficient Pilot) wee found him eatily wonne to make ouer therewith, as a Barke of Mule for Vreinia, which being in the height of thirtie feuen degrees, fine degrees from the lland which we were, might bee some one hundred and tortie leagues from vs,or thereabouts (+ :ko. ning to enery degree that lies North-east, and Westerly twentic eight English leagues) who the twentie eight of August being Munday, with fixe Saylers, and our Cape Merchant Thomas Whittingham departed from vs out of Gates his Bay: but to our much wonder returned againe vpon the Wednelday night after, having attempted to have got cleere of the Hand, from the North North-eath to the South-west, but could not as little water as shee drew, which might not bee aboue twentie inches for shoales and breaches, so as he was faine to go out from Summers Creeks, 20 and the fame way we came in on the South South-east of the Ilands, and from thence wee made to Sea the Friday after the first of September, promising if hee lived and arrived safe there, to returne vnto vs the next new Moone with the Pinnace belonging to the Colony there : according vnto which inftructions were directed vnto the new Leiftenant Gouernour, and Councell from our Gouernour here, for which the Ilands were appointed carefully to be watched, and fiers prepared as Beacons to have directed and wafted him in, but two Moones were wasted vponthe Promontory before mentioned, and gaue many a long and wished looke round about the Horizon, from the North-east to the South-west, but in vaine, discovering nothing all the while, which way foeu r we turned our eye, but ayre and fea.

You may please, excellent Lady, to know the reason which moued our Gouernour to dispatch 20 this long Boat, was the care which hee tooke for the efface of the Colony in this his intorced absence : for by a long practifed experience, foreseeing and fearing what innouation and tumult might happily arife, among it the younger and ambitious spirits or the new companies to arrive in Virginia, now comming with him along in this fame Fleet, hee framed his letters to the Colony, and by a particular Commission confirmed Captaine Peter Win his Lieutenant Gouernour, with an Affiltance of fixe Counsellours, writing withall to divers and such Gentlemen of qualitieand knowledge of vertue, and to fuch louers of goodnesse in this cause whom hee knew, intreasing them by giving examples in themselves of duty and obedience, to assist likewise the said Lieutenant Guernour, against such as should attempt the innouating of the person (now named by him) or forme of government, which in some Articles hee aid likewise prescribe vnto them : 40 and had faire hopes all should goe well, if these his letters might arrive there, vntill such time as either some Ship there (which hee fairely beleeved) might bee moved presently to adventure for him : or that it should please the right honourable, the Lordes, and the rest of his Maiesties Councell in England, to addresse thither the right honourable the Lord Lawar (one of more eminencie and worthinesse) as the project was before his comming forth) whilest by their honourable fauours, a charitable consideration in like manner might bee taken of our estates to re-Sir George Summers his deeme vs from hence. For which purpose likewise our Gouernour directed a particular letter to ther industrie, the Councell in England, and fent it to the foreigid Captaine Peter Winne (his now to bee chofen Lieutenant Gouernour) by him to bee dispatched (which is the first) from thence into

In his absence Sit George Summers coasted the Hands, and drew the former plat of them, and tilly fished, and hunted for our whole company well. daily fished, and hunted for our whole company, vntill the fourn and twentieth of November, when then well perceiuing that we were not likely to heare from Virginia, and conceiuing how the Pinnace which Richard Frubbulber was a building would not be of burthen f. fficient to transport all our men from thence into Virginia (especially considering the season of the years, wherein we were likely to put off) he consulted with our Gouernour, that if hee might have two Carpenters (for we had foure, such as they were) and twenty men, ouer with him into the maine Iland, he would quickly frame vp another little Barke, to fecond ours, for the better fitting and conuciance of our people. Our Gouernour, with many thankes (as the cattle required) cherifling this fo carefull and religious confideration in him(and whose experience likewise was 60 somewhat in these affaires) granted him all things sutable to his desire, and to the furthering of the worke : who therefore had made ready for him all fuch tooles and inftruments, as our owns wfe required not : and for him, were drawne forth twenty of the ableft and flourest of the company, and the best of our men, to hew and square timber, when himselfe then, with daily paines

He builds a Pinnace.

Cap, Win.

L. Lawarre.

and labour, wrought youn a small Vesfell, which was soone ready as ours; at which wer leane him a while buffed, and returne to our felues. In the meane space did one Frubbufher, borne at Graves end, and at his comming forth now dwelling at Lime Houle (a painefull and well experienced Shipwright, and skilfull workman' libour the building of a little Pinnace: for the furtherance of which, the Gouernour dispensed with no rangile of his body, nor forbare any care builds another or study of minde, perfivading (as much and more, an ill qualified parcell of people, by his owne performance, then by authority, thereby to hold them at their worke, namely to fell carry, and fawe Cedar, nt for the Corpenters purpose (for what was to meane, whereto he would not himfelie fet his hand, being therefore vp earely and downe late ?) yet neuertheleffe were they hard-10 ly drawne to it, as the l'ortoile to the inchanement, as the Prouerbe is, but his owne presence and hand being fet to enery meane labour, and imployed foreadily to enery office, made our people Power of exa at length more diligent, and willing to be called thereunto, where they should see him before ample, they came. In which, we may observe how much example prevailes above precepts; and how readier men are to be led by eyes, then cares.

And fure it was happy for vs, who had now runne this fortune, and were fallen into the bortome of this mifery, that we both had our Gouernour with vs and one to folicitous and carefull. whole both example (as I faid) and authority, could lay flying, and command upon our people; elfe, I am periwaded, we had most of vs finished our dayes there, so willing were the major part of the common fort (especially when they found such a plenty of victuals) to settle a foundati-20 on of ever inhabiting there; as well appeared by many practifes of the rs (and perhaps of some of the better (ort) Loe, what are our affections and passions, if not rightly (quared? how irreligious, and irregular they expresse vs : not perhaps to ill as we would be, but yet as wee are; fome Mutinous condangerous and fecret discontents nourished among ft vs, had like to have bin the parents of blou- ceptions. dy iffues and mitchiefes; they began first in the Sca-men, who in time had fattened virto them (by falle baits) many of our land-men likewife, and fome of whom (for opinion of their Religion) was carried an extraordinary and good respect. The Angles wherewith chiefely they thus hooked in these disquieted Pooles, were, how that in Virginia, nothing but wretchednesse and labour must be expected, with many wants, and a churtly intreaty, there being neither that Fish, Flesh, nor Fowle, which here (without waiting on the one part, or watching on theirs, or any threatming, and are 20 of authority) at ease, and pleasure might be intoyed ; and since both in the one, and the other place : they were (for the time) to loofe the fruition both of them friends and Countrey, as good, and better were ut for them, to repose and seate them where they should have the least ontward wants the while. This, thus preached, and published each to other, though by such who never had bin more onward towards Virginia, then (before this Voyage) a Sculler could happily rowe him (and what hath a more adamantine power to draw vnto it the confent and attraction of the idle, vntoward, and wretched number of the many, then liberty, and fulnesse of sensuality?) begat such a murmur, and fuch a difcontent, and difunion of hearts and hands from this labour, and forwarding the meanes of redeeming vs from hence, as each one wrought with his Mate how to divorte him from the fame.

And first (and it was the first of September) a conspiracy was discovered, of which fix were Conform found principals, who had promifed each vnto the other, not to let their hands to any tranaile or endeauour which might expedite or forward this Pinnace: and each of thefe had feuerally (according to appointment) fought his opportunity to draw the Smith, and one of our Carpenters . Niebolas Bennit , who made much profession of Scripture , a mutinous and diffembling Importer; the Captaine, and one of the chiefe perswaders of others, who afterwards brake from the society of the Colony, and like outlawes retired into the Woods, romake a fettlement and habitation there) on their party, with whom they purposed to leave our Quarter, and possesse another Iland by themselves: but this happily round out, they were condemned to the same punishment which they would have chosen (but without Smith or Car-50 penter) and to an Iland farre by it felfe, they were carried, and there left. Their names were

John Want, the chiefe of them, an Effex man of Newport by Saffronwalden, both setisticus, and John Mann, a fectary in points of Religion, in his owne prayers much denout and frequent, but harely water same to drawne to the publique, infomuch asbeing suspected by our Minister for a Brownist, he was the sace a often compelled to the common Liturgie and forme of Prayer. The rest of the confederates and passence were Christopher Carter, Francis Pearepoint, William Brian, William Martin, Richard Knowles: but soone they missed comfort (who were farre removed from our store) besides, the society of their acquaintance had wrought in some of them, if not a loathsomenesse of their offence, yet a forrow that their complement was not more full, and therefore a weatine fe of their being thus vntimely prescribed; infomuch, as many humble petitions were fent vnto our Gouerner, fraughe

60 full of their feeming fortow and repentance, and earnest vowes to redeeme the former trespasse, with example of dueties in them all, to the common cause, and generall butinesse; vpon which our Gouernour (not easie to admit any acculation, and hard to remit an offence, but at all times forry in the punishment of him, in whom may appeare either shame or contriction) was eatily content to reacknowledge them againe.

I ffffff 2

Another Mu-

Yet could not this be any warning to others, who more fubtilly began to shake the founds. tion of our quiet lafety, and therein did one Stephen Hopkins commence the first act or ouerture: A fellow who had much knowledge in the Scriptures, and could reason well therein, whom our Minister therefore chose to be his Clarke, to reade the Pfalmes, and Chapters vpon Sondayes, at the affembly of the Congregation under him : who in Ianuary the twenty foure, brike with one Samuel Sharpe and Humfrey Reede (who presently discourred it to the Gouernour) and alleaged fubitantiall arguments, both civill and divine (the Scripture falfly quoted) that it was no breach of honefly, conscience, nor Religion, to decline from the obedience of the Gouernour, or refuse to goe any further, led by his authority (except it fo pleafed themfelues) fince the authority ceato goe any future, and of the warden was committed, and with it, they were all then freed from the gouernment of any man; and for a matter of Confcience, it was not vok nowne to the meanest, how much we were therein bound each one to prouide for himselfe, and his owne samily : for which

Confeience my to conicia

were two apparant reasons to stay them even in this place; first, abundance by Gods providence of all manner of good foode: next, fome hope in reasonable time, when they might grow weary of the place, to built a small Barke, with the skill and helpe of the aforefaid No bolas Bennit. whom they infinuated to them, albeit hee was now ablent from his quarter, and working in the maine Hand with Sir George Summers upon his Pinnace, to be of the configuracy, that fo might get cleere from hence at their owne pleasures : when in Virginia, the first would be alluredly wanting, and they might well feare to be detained in that Countrie by the authority of the Commander thereof, and their whole life to ferue the turnes of the Aduenturers, with their trauailes and labours. This being thus laid, and by fuch a one, who had gotten an opinion (as I before remembred) of Religion; when it was declared by those two accusers, not knowing what further ground it had or complices, it pleased the Gouernour to let this his factions of fence to have a publique affront, and contestation by these two witnesses before the whole Com-Steeben Hoskins pany, who at the toling of a Bell) affemble before a Corps du guard, where the Prifoner was condemied by the condemied and particular and parti heebeing onely found, at this time, both the Captaine, and the follower of this Mutinie, and generally held worthy to fatisfie the punishment of his offence, with the facrifice of his life, our Gouernour patied the sentence of a Martiall Court vpon him, such as belongs to Mutinie and 20 Rebellion. But so penitent hee was, and made so much moane, alleadging the ruine of his Wife and Children in this his tre pale, as it wrought in the hearts of all the better fort of the Company, who therefore with humble intreaties, and earnest supplications, went vnto our Gouernor, whom they befought (as likewife did Captaine Newport, and my felfe) and neuer left him vitill

we had got his pardon.

In the edangers and divellish disquiets (whilest the almighty God wrought for vs , and sent vs miraculoufly deliuered from the calamities of the Sea, all bleifings vpon the shoare, to content and binde vs to gratefulnelle) thus inraged amongft our felues, to the destruction each of other, into what a mischiefe and misery had wee bin given vp, had wee not had a Gover-Third Mutiny, nour with his authority, to have suppressed the same ! Yet was there a worse practile, fa- 40 Gion, and conjuration a foote, deadly and bloudy, in which the lire of our Governour, with many others were threatned, and could not but miscarry in his fall. But such is ever the will of God (who in the execution of his judgements, breaketh the firebrands upon the head of him, who first kindleth them) there were, who conceived that our Governour indeede neither durst, nor had authority to put in execution, or palle the act of Iustice vpon any one, how treacherous or impious to euer; - their owne opinions to much deceiuing them for the valawfulnesse of any act, which they would execute: daring to infifie among themselves, that if they should be apprehended, before the performance, they should happily suffer as Martyrs. They perseuered therefore not onely to draw wnto them fuch a number, and allociates as they could worke in, to the abandoning of our Governour, and to the inhabiting of this Iland. They had now purpo- 50 fed to have made a surprise of the Store-house, and to have forced from thence, what was therein either of Meale, Cloath, Cables, Armes, Sailes, Oares, or what elfe it pleafed God that we had recouered from the wracke, and was to ferue our generall necessity and vie, either for the reliefe of vs, while wee stated here, or for the carrying of vs from this place againe, when our Pinnace should have bin furnished. Emilias ithath But as all giddy and lawlesse attempts, have alwayes fomething of impersection, and that a deficient as well by the property of the action, which holdeth of disobedience and rebellion (both full caucho in and of feare) as through the ignorance of the deuiters themselues; so in this (belides those detects) fects, def. as there were some of the allociation, who not strong inough fortified in their owne conceits, brike from the plot it felie, and (before the time was ripe for the execution thereof) discours 50 red the whole order, and every Agent, and Actor thereof, who neverthelelle were not fuddenly apprehended, by reason the confederates were divided and feperated in place, some with vs, and the chiefe with Sir George Summers in his Hand (and indeede all his whole company) but good watch passed vpon them, enery man from thenceforth communaded to wears his weapon, without which before, we freely walked from quarter to quarter, and converted amone our felues, and every man adusted to thand upon his guard, his owne life not being in fairer, whileft his next neighbour was not to be trufted. The Centinels, and nightwaners doubled, the passages of both the quarters were carefully observed, by which meanes nothing was further attempted; vntill a Gentleman amongst them, one Henry Paine, the thirteenth of H. Paine his March, full of mischiefe, and every houre preparing something or other, stealing Swords, A. Mannus behing difes. Axes, Hatchets, Sawes, Augers, Planes, Mallets, &c. to make good his owne bad end, wourt his watch night comming about, and being called by the Captaine of the fame, to be voon

the guard, did not onely give his faid Commander euill language, but frucke at him, doubled To his blowes, and when hee was not juffered to clote with him, went off the Guard, icoffing at the double diligence and attendance of the Watch, appointed by the Gouernour for much purpose, as hee said: vpon which, the Watch telling him, if the Gouernour should vnderstand of this his infolency, it might turne him to much blame, and happily be as much as his life were worth. The faid Paine replyed with a fetled and bitter violence, and in fuch vnreuerent tearmes, as I hould offend the modelt eare too much to expresse it in his owne phrase : but the contents were, how that the Governour had no authoritie of that qualitie, to instific upon any one (how meane soener in the Colonie) an action of that nature, and therefore let the Gonernour (faid hee) kife, &c. Which words, being with the omitted additions, brought the next day vnto euery common and publique discourse, at length they were delivered over to the Go-20 yernour, who examining well the fact (the transgression so much the more exemplary and odious, as being in a dangerous time, in a Confederate, and the fuccelle of the same wishtly liftened after, with a doubtfull conceit, what might be the iffic of fo notorious a boldnesse and impudency) calling the faid Paine before him, and the whole Company, where (being foone consinced both by the witnesse, of the Commander, and many which were vpon the watch with him) our Gouernour, who had now the eyes of the whole Colony fixed you him, condemned him to be instantly hanged; and the ladder being ready, after he had made many confessions, hee earnestly defired, being a Gentleman, that hee might be shot to death, and towards the evening His execution he had his defire, the Sunne and his life fetting together.

But for the other which were with Sir George, vpon the Sunday following (the Barke beeing 30 now in good forwardnesse) and readie to lanch in short time, from that place (as we supposed) to meet ours at a pond of fresh water, where they were both to bee mored, vntill such time as being fully tackled, the wind (hould ferue faire, for our putting to Sea together) being the eighteenth of March, hearing of Paynes death, and fearing hee had apprached them, and discoursed the attempt (who poore Gentleman therein, in so bad a cause, was too secret and constant to his owne faith ingaged vnto them, and as little needed, as vrged thereunto, though fomewhat was voluntarily delivered by him) by a mutuall content forfooke their labour, and Sir George Summers, and like Out-lawes betooke them to the wild Woods: whether mean rage, and gree- Diversof Ste dineffe after fome little Pearle (as it was thought) wherewith they conceived, they should for G Summers ener inrich themselues, and saw how to obtaine the same easily in this place, or whether, comp ny fird

so the defire for euer to inhabite heere, or was other fecret elle moued them thereunto, into the goods true it is, they fent an audacious and formall Petition to our Gouernour, subscribed with all their names and Seales : not only intreating him, that they might flay here, but (with great art) importuned him, that he would performe other conditions with them, and not wave, nor euade from some of his owne promites, as namely to furnish each of them with two Sutes of Apparell, and contribute Meale rateably for one whole yeere, fo much among them, as they had weekly now, which was one pound and an halfe a weeke (for fuch had beene our proportion for nine moneths.) Our Gouernour answered this their Petition, writing to Sir George Summers to

That true it was, at their first arrivall upon this Iland, when it was feared how our meanes would not Sit T. Gateshia extend to the making of a Veffell, capeable and large enough, to transport all our Countrimen at once . in- letter to Sit Ge 30 deed out of his Christian consideration (mourning for such his Countrimen, who comming under his com- Summers. mand, he forefaw that for a while, he was like enough to leave here behind, compelled by tyrannie of necessitie) his purpose was not yet to for suke them so, as given uplike Savages : but to leave them all things fitting to defend them from want and wretchednesse, as much at least as lay in his power, to spece from the present use (and perhaps necessitie of others, whose fortunes should be to be transported with him) for one whole years or more (if so long by any casualtie, the skips which he would send with them micht be staied before their arrivall, so many bazards accompanying the Sea) but withall intreated Sir George to remember unto his Company (if by any meanes he could learne where they were) how he had vowed unto him, that if either his ownemeanes, his anthoritie in Virginia, or love with his friends in England,

6 could distrate for them fooner, how farre it was from him, to let them remarne abandoned, and negletted without their redemption folong : and then proceeded, requesting Sir George Summers againe, to signifie unto them, since now our owne Pinnasse did arise to that burthen, and that it would sufficiently transport them all, beside the necessitie of any other Barke : and yet, that since his Barke was now readic too, that those consultations, how somer charitable and most passionate in themselves, might determine, as

taken away thereby, and therefore, that he would now bee pleased to admise them well, how unanswerable this grant or consent of his bould be : first, to his Maiestie for so many of his subjects, next to the Admenturers, and lastity, what an imputation and infamy it might be, to both their owne proper reputations. and bonours, haung each of them authoritie in their places, to compell the adversant and irregular multitude, at any time, to what flould bee obedient and bonest, which if they should not execute, the blame would not by upon the people (at all times wavering and insolent) but upon themselves so weake and unworthy in their command. And moreour intreated him by any fecret practice to apprehend them, fince that the obstinate, and precipitate many, were no more in such a condition and state to bee fanoured, then the murmuring andmutine of such Rebellious and turbulent Humorists, who had not considence nor the marmuring was made to goodnesse, and in the businesse for which they were sent out of England; 10 for which likewife, at the expence and charge of the Adventurers, they were to him committed, and that the meanest in the whole Fices flood the Company in no leffe then twentie pounds, for his owne personall Transportation, and things necessary to accompany him. And therefore louingly consured Sir George, by the worthinesse of his (heretofore) well magniagned reputation, and by the powers of his owne indeewent, and by the vertue of that ancient lone and friendlip, which had thefe many yeeres beene feiled betweene them, to doe his beft, to give this remoited Company (if he could fend unto them) the confideration of these particulars, and so works with them (if he might) that by faire meanes (the Matiniereconciled) they would at length (uruey their owne errours, which bee would bee as readie, upon their rendring and comming into paridon, as he did now pittie them; affuring them in generall and particular, that what focuer they had finifierly committed, or practifed buberto against the Lawes of dutie and honestie, 20 frould not in any fort be imputed againft them.

In which good Office Sir George Summers did so nobly worke, and heartily labour, as hee brought most of them in, and indeed ail, but Christopher Carter, and Robert Waters, who (by no meanes) would any more come among it Sit Georges men, hearing that Sir George had commanded his men indeed (ince they would not be intreated by faire meanes) to furprize them (if they could) by any device or force. From which time they grew fo cautelous and wary, for their owne ill, as at our comming away, wee were faine to leave them behind. That Water was a Sayler, who at his first landing upon the lland (as after you shall heare) killed another fellow Sayler of his, the bodie of the murthered and Murtherer fodwelling, as prescribed now Buche.

Blaters and

Larrer ftand

out and are left behind.

During our time of abode upon these Hands, wee had daily every Sunday two Sermons pres-Religious ex- ched by our Minister, besides every Morning and Evening at the ringing of a Bell, wee repayed ercies perfor- all to puplique Prayer, at . hat time the names of our whole Company were called by Bill, and med by Mafter fuch as were wanting, were duly punished.

The contents (for the most part) of all our Preachers Sermons, were especially of Thankefulnesse and Vnitie, &c.

The most holy ciu:lland mod of Sacraments Marriage, Child-birth, Chi'dren naand Bermsdas.

It pleated God alio to give vs opportunitie, to performe all the other Offices, and Rites of our Christian Profession in this lland : as Marriage, for the fixe and twentieth of November we had one of Sir George Summers his men, his Cooke, named Thomas Powell, who married a Maid Servant of one Miltris Horton, whose name was Elizabeth Persons: and upon Christmasse Eue, 40 as also once before, the first of October; our Minister preached a godly Sermon, which being enday by exercise ded, he celebrated a Communion, at the partaking whereof our Gouernour was, and the greater ded, he celebrated a Communion, at the partaking whereof our Gouernour was, test part of our Company : and the eleventh of February , wee had the childe of one lobn Rofe christened a Daughter, to which Captaine Newport and my selfe were Witnesses, and the aforefaid Militis Horson and we named it Bermuds, as also the five and twentieth of Marc', the wife of one Edward Eason, being delivered the weeke before of a Boy, had him then christened, to which Captaine Newport and my feife, and Maiter lames Swift were Godfathers, and we named Likewife, we buried five of our company, Ieffery Briars, Riebard Lewis, William Hitchman, and my God-daughter Bermuda Rolfs, and one vottimely Edward Samuell a Sayler, being villanoully 50 killed by the forefaid Robert Waters, (a Sayler likewife) with a shoull, who strake him therewith under the lift of the Eare, for which he was apprehended, and appointed to be hanged the next day, the fact being done in the twilight) but being bound falt to a Tree all night, with many Ropes, and a Guard of fine or fix to attend him, his fellow Saylers watching the advantage of the Centinels fleeping) in despisht and distaine that Iustice should bee shewed upon a Sayler, and that one of their crue should be an example to others, not taking into consideration, the enmanlineff of the murther, nor the horror of the finne, they cut his bands, and conveyed him into the Woods, where they fed him nightly, and closely, who afterward by the mediation of Sir George Summers, vpon many conditions, had his tryall respited by our Gouernour.

Weehad brought our Pinnaile to forward by this time, as the eight and twentieth of August 60 we having laid her Keele. The fixe and twentieth of February, we now began to calke cold Cables we had preferred vnto vs, which affoorded Ocam enough : and one barrell of Pitch, and another of Tirre, we like wife laued, which ferued our viefome little way vpon the Bile, wee breamed her otherwife with Lime made of Wilke-fhels, and an lard white from which we burned in a Kill, flaked with fresh water, and tempered with Tortoyles Oyle. The thirtieth of March being Friday, we towed her out in the morning Spring-tyde, from the Wharfe where the was built, boying her with foure Caske in her runne only : which opened into the Northwest, and into which when the Breeze stood North and by West with any stiffegale, and youn the Spring-tydes, the Sea would increase with that violence, especially twice it did so, as at the first time (before our Gouernour had caused a solid Causey of an hundred load of stone to bee brought from the Hils and Neighbour Rockes, and round about her ribs from flemme to flemmes where it made a pointed Baulke, and thereby brake the violence of the Flowe and Billowe) it indangered her overthrow and ruine, beeing greene as it were voon the Stockes. With much to difficultie, diligence, and labour, we faued her at the first, all her Bates, Shores, and Piles, which under-fet her, being almost carried from her, which was the second of January, when her knees were not fet to, nor one joynt firme : We launched her vnrigged, to carrie her to a little round Iland, lying West North-west, and close aboord to the backe side of our Iland, both neerer the Ponds and Wels of some fresh water, as also from thence to make our way to the Sea the better: the Channell being there fufficient and deepe enough to leade her forth, when her Mafts, Sayles. and all her Trimme should bee about her. Shee was fortie foot by the Keele, and nineteene foot broad at the Beame, fixe foote floore, her Rake forward was fourteene foot, her Rake aft from the top of her Post (which was twelve foot long) was three foot, shee was eight foot deepe vnder her Beame, betweene her Deckes the was foure foot and an halfe, with a riling of halfe a foot 20 more under her fore Castle, of purpose to scowre the Decke with small shot, if at any time wee should bee borded by the Enemie. Shee had a fall of eighteene inches aft, to make her sterage and her great Cabbin the more large : her sterage was fine foote long, and fixe foote high, with a close Gallerie right aft, with a window on each fide, and two right aft. The most part of her timber was Cedar, which we found to be bad for shipping, for that it is wonderous falle inward, Cedarill for and befides 1: 18 fo spault or brickle, that it will make no good plankes, her Beames were all Oke thipping, of our ruine thip, and some plankes in her Bow of Oke, and all the rest as is aforesaid. When thee began to swimme (upon her launching) our Gouernour called her The Deliverance, and thee might be some eighty tunnes of burthen.

Before we quitted our old quarter, and dislodged to the fresh water with our Pinnasse, our Go-30 nemour fet vp in Sir George Summers Garden a faire Muemofjnon in figure of a Croffe, made of Croffe fet vp fome of the timber of our ruined shippe, which was scrued in with strong and great trunnels to a for a memorial mightie Cedar, which grew in the middeft of the faid Garden, and whofe top and vpper branches he caused to be lopped, that the violence of the winde and weather might have the leffe power ouer her.

In the middelt of the Croffe, our Gouernour fastened the Picture of his Maiestie in a piece of His Maiesties Siluer of twelue pence, and on each side of the Croffe, hee fet an Inteription graven in Copper, in Picture, the Latine and English : o this pur pole.

In memory of our great Deliuerance, both from a mightie storme and leake : wee have set upthis to the bonour of God. It is the foyle of an English | bip (of three bundred tunne) called the Sea Venture. 40 bound with feuen flips more (from which the storme divided vs) to Virginia, or Nova Britania, in America. In it were two Knights, Sir Thomas Gates Knight , Gonernour of the English Forces and Colonie there : and Sir George Summers Knight, Admirall of the Seas. Her Captaine was Christopher Newport, Passengers and Mariners shee had beside (which came all (afe to Land) one bundred and liftie. We were forced to runne ber ashore (by reason of her leake) under a Point that bore Southeast from the Northerne Point of the Iland, which wee discovered first the eight and twentieth of

About the last of Aprill, Sir George Summers launched his Pinnasse, and brought her from his building Bay, in the Mayne Hand, into the Chanuell where ours did ride, and fhee was by the Keele nine and twentie foot : at the Beame fifteene foot and an halfe : at the Loote fourteene, at 50 the Trausam nine, and the was eight foot deepe, and drew sixe foote water, and hee called her

S. III.

Their departure from Bermuda and arrivall in Virginia : miseries there, departure and returne upon the Lord LA WARRES arriving. I AMES Towne described.

Rom this time we only awaited a favourable Westerly wind to carrie vs forth, whicie longer then vivall now kept at the Earl, and South-east, the way which wee were to goe. The tenth of May early, Sir George Summers and Captaine Newport went off with their long Boates, and with two Canoaes boyed the Channell, which wee were to leade it out in , and which was no broader from Shoales on the one fide and of that, were we able to fit our Bowyes, but euen when we came just vpon them, we strucke a more winde blew, we were fainte to town Rocke on the starboord side, ouer which the Bowye rid, and had it not beene a soft Rocke. by which meanes she bore it before her, and crushed it to pieces, God knowes we might have beene like enough, to have returned anew, and dwelt there, after tenne monethes of carefuln fleand great labour a longer time : but God was more mescifull vnto vs. When shee ftrucke vpon the Rocke, the Cock-iwayne one Walfingham beeing in the Boate with a quicke spirit (when wee were all amazed, and our heartstailed) and to by Gods goodnesse wee led it out at three fadome. Io and three fadome and an halfe water. The wind ferued vs eafily all that day and the next, when (God be euer prayled for it) to the no little ioy of vs all, we got cleere of the Ilands. After which holding a Southerly course, for seven dayes wee had the winde sometimes faire, and sometimes fearce and contratie : in which time we loft Sir George Summers twice, albeit we fill spared him our mayne top-layle, and sometimes our fore course too. The feuenteenth of May we faw change of water, and had much Rubbish swimme by our ship Signe of fide, whereby wee knew wee were not farre from Land. The eighteenth bout midnight wee Land. founded, with the Dipfing Lead, and found thirtie feuen fadome. The nineteenth in the morning we founded, and and nineteene and an halfe falome, stonie, and sandie ground. The twentiethabout midnight, we had a maruellous iweet imell from the shoare (as from the Coalt of 20 Spaine, thort of the Straits) itrong and pleafant, which did not a little glad vs. In the morning by day breake (fo foone as one might well fee from the fore-top) one of the Saylers described Land about an houre after, I went vpa id might discouer two Hummockes to the Southward, from which (Northward all along) lay the Land, which were were to Coast to Cape Henrie, About feuen of the clocke we caft for han Anchor, because the tyde (by reason or the Freshet that set into the Bay) makea strong Ebbe there, and the winde was but easte, so as not beeing ableto stemme the Tyde, we purposed to lye at an Anchor vntill the next flood, but the wind comming South-west a loome gale about eleuen, we set tayle againe, and hauing got ouer the Barre, bote This is the famous Chesipiacke Bay, which we have called (in honour of our young Prince) 30 Cape Henrie over against which within the Bay, lyeth another Head-land, which we called in Cheffiack Bay. honour of our Princely Duke of Yorke Cape Charles; and these lye North-east and by East, and South-west and by West, and they may bee distant each from the other in breadth seuen leagues, betweene which the Sea runnes in as broad as betweene Queeneburrough and Lee. Indeed it is a goodly Bay and a fairer, not eafily to be found. The one and twentieth, beeing Munday in the morning, wee came vp within two milesof Point Comfort, ween the Captaine of the Fort discharged a warning Peece at vs, whereupon we came to an Anchor, and fent off our long Boar to the Fort, to certifie who we were by reason of the shoales which lye on the South-side, this Fort easily commands the mouth of the River, albeit it is as broad as betweene Greenwich, and the Ile of Dogges.

True it is, such who talked with our men from the shoare, deliuered how safely all our ships the last yeere (excepting only the Admirall, and the little Pinnalle in which one Muchael Philes commanded of iome twentie tunne, which we towed a sterne till the storme blew) arrived, and how our people (well increased) had therefore builded this Fort; only wee could not learne any thing of our long Boat, fent from the Bermudas, but what wee gathered by the Indians themselves, especially from Powhatan, who would tell our men of such a Boat landed in one of his Riuers, and would describe the people, and make much seeffing sport thereat : by which wee have nour found the condition and there of the C & how to amend it or faue his owne Company of the like necessities. For we had brought from ring no fuch accidents pointle to betali the C. fiftie for a Sea Voyage : 171 was n : path. helpe from the Indian. Fire the true to at mouth, it was now like with it wer Security nor was there at the Fort as they were more ther fufficient Seine, nor other con ic ent No.

30 notice of.

20 Sturgeon vet come into the North All visit at Speech vinto the Company, get ne them and equally there with him, and the same of thing from the Countrey, by the enucables port them all into their Native Countrey there was a general acclamation, and house

fion, the old Patent and the Courselessais . . .

had taken from them) rent up an alwant, rather within; with many more particularities of their stones call off from them, to fetch other need out, if our men flifted but beyond the pour

To diforders the lait veere) then i was sea to es

downe, the Ports open, the Catestron.

to be disheartened and faint, when they taw ? ned vnto themfelues. In the meane while, a ctions, which hee en ovned them ftr. Ale t them, which being written out taite, were fet If I should be examined from whence, and b ons descended upon our people. I can only reter the Aduenturers have fent hither intituled, . " in the ground and causes are fausurably and an produced, not excufing likew to the turne of !

full enough among to heatie a multipule, et per the laif yeare with vs : with whom to cetter absolute command, came along and . were we with them had reached our will east in the Vnto fuch calamity can that he feet an exdeede (right noble Lidy) no it, ry can in memori people, thus gouerned, have both and areas a tome of them, whose vavees an incommand guilt hereof, as flanding vntouched a new re naries shall never find time nor ware of the practifes, who, it may be, law all the orders a But vnder pardon, let me speake testive to a both meet in any one of their build Fire tie in England, continuall watti e. . Has a

50 provisions, what better could retail and the ! ner, then necessarily following demonstrate doome of the Witeman 1 Fet and 1 1994 fothy powerty commeto, at overbat there are the with this Idlenetle, when a men by Captaine Iames Danies with forty men, and hath to name Algernoone Fort, to called by Captaine George Percy, whom we found at our arrivall Prefident of the Colony and at this timelikewife in the Fort. When we got into the Point, which was the one and twentieth of May, being

V pon Point Comfort our men did the last yeere (as you have heard) rayse a little Fortification, which fince hath beene better perfected, and is likely to prooue aftrong Fort, and is now kept gathered, that it is most likely, how it arrived upon our Coast, and not meeting with our River were taken at some time or other, at some advantage by the Savages, and so cut off. When our Skuffe came up againe, the good newes of our ships, and mens arruall the last veere, did nota 50 little glad our Gouernour: who went soone ashoare, and assoone (contrary to all our faire hopes) had new vnexpected, vncomfortable, and heavie newes of a worle condition of our people a-

and the headlesse in that days -which they were fent higher, me for their owne bellies, nor any and and Gardens or eliewhere: I have not a series lie ficke and languish must in he come a service

The long Boat

uens cuft away

boue at lames Towne.

fent by Ra-

Signe of Land

Rockeson the other, then about three times the length of our Pinnafe. About ten of the clocke, that day being Touriday, we let fayle an eatlegale, the wind at South, and by realon no more winde blew, we were fame to towe her with our long Boate, vet neither with the helpe of that, were we able to fit our Bowyes, but even when we came just voon them, we strucke a Rocke on the starboord side, over which the Bowye rid, and had it not beene a foft Rocke, by which meanes she bore it before her, and cruthed it to pieces, God knowes we might have beene like enough, to have returned anew, and dwelt there, after tenne monethes of carefuln fleand greatlabour a longer time; but God was more meiciful vinto vs. When thee flrucke vpon the Rocke, the Cock-1 wayne one Walfingham beeing in the Boate with a quicke Spirit (when wee were all amazed, and our hearts failed) and lo by Gods goodnesse wee led it out at three fadome, 10 and three fadone and an halfe water. The wind ferued vs eafily all that day and the next, when (God be ever prayled for it) to the no little loy of vs all, we got cleere of the Ilands. After which holding a Southerly courie, for feuen dayes wee had the winde fometimes faire, and fometimes fearce and contratte : in which time we Lift Sir George Summers twice, albeit we fill spared him our mayne top-fayle, and sometimes our fore course too.

The feverteenth of May we faw change of water, and had much Rubbish swimme by our ship fide, whereby wee knew wee were not farre from Land. The eighteenth bout midnight wee founded, with the Dopling Lead, and found thirtie feuen fadome. The nineteenth in the morning we founded, and ad nineteene and an haire fadome, fronie, and fandie ground. The twentierhabout midnight, we had a maruellous iweet smell from the shoare (as from the Coast of 12 Spaine, thort of the Straits) itrong and pleafant, which did not a little glad vs. In the morning by day breake (fo foune as one might well fee from the fore-top) one of the Saylers deferred Land about an houre after, I went vp and might discouer two Hummockes to the Southward, from which (Northward all along) lay the Land, which were to Coast to Cape Henrie. About feuen of the clocke we cast forth an Anchor, because the tyde (by reason or the Freshet that set into the Bay) make a strong Ebbe there, and the winde was but easie, so as not beeing able to ftemme the Tyde, we purposed to lye at an Anchor vntill the next flood, but the wind comming South-west a loome gale about eleuen, we set tayle againe, and having got ouer the Barre, bore in for the Cape.

for the Cape.

This is the famous Chesipiacle Bay, which we chauc called (in honour of our young Prince) 30 Cape Henrie ouer against which within the Bay, lyeth another Head-land, which wee called in honour of our Princely Duke of Torke Cape Charles; and thefe lye North-east and by East, and South-west and by West, and they may bee distant each from the other in breadthseuen leagues, betweene which the Sea runnes in as broad as betweene Queeneburrough and Lee. Indeed it is a goodly Bay and a fairer, not easily to be found.

The one and twentieth, beeing Munday in the morning, wee came vp within two miles of Point Comfort, woen the Captaine of the Fort discharged a warning Pecceat vs, whereupon we came to an Anchor, and sent off our long Boar to the Fort, to certifie who we were by reason of the shoales which lye on the South-side, this Fort early commands the mouth of the River, albeit it is as broad as betweene Greenwich, and the Ile of Dogges.

True it is, fuch who talked with our men from the shoare, deliuered how safely all our ships the last yeere (excepting only the Admirall, and the little Pinnalle in which one Michael Philes commanded of some twentie tunne, which we towed a sterne till the storme blew) arrived, and how our people (well increased) had therefore builded this Fort; only wee could not learne any thing of our long Boat, fent from the Bermudas, but what wee gathered by the Indians themfelues, especially from Pophatan, who would tell our men of such a Boat landed in one of his Riuers, and would describe the people, and make much scoffing sport thereat : by which wee have gathered, that it is most likely, how it arrived upon our Coast, and not meeting with our River were taken at some time or other, at some advantage by the Savages, and so cut off. When our Skiffecame vp againe, the good newes of our ships, and mens arruall the last yeere, did not a 50 little glad our Gouernour: who went soone ashoare, and assoone (contrary to all our faire hopes) had new vnexpected, vncomfortable, and heatie newes of a worle condition of our people a-

The long Boat uens caft away

> Vpon Point Comfort our men did the last yeere (as you have heard) rayse a little Fortification, which fince hath beene better perfected, and is likely to produce ftrong Fort, and is now kept by Captaine lames Danies with forty men, and hath to name Algernoone Fort, focalled by Captaine George Percy, whom we found at our arrivall Prefident of the Colony, and at this timelike-M. George Percy. wife in the Fort. When we got into the Point, which was the one and twentieth of May, being Munday about noone; where riding before an Indian Towne called Keconghien, a mightie storme

From hence in two dayes (only by the helpe of Tydes, no winde flirting) weeplyed it fadly of the River, and the three and treatiesh of XX.... of Thunder, Lightning, and Raine, gave vs a shrewd and fearefull welcome. vp the River, and the three and twentieth of May we cast Anchor before Tames Towne, where we landed, and our much grieued Gouernour first visiting the Church caused the Bell to be rung, at which (all fuch as wereable to come forth of cheir houses) repayted to Church where our Mi-

miller Mafter Bucke made a zealous and forrowfull Prayer, finding all things fo contrary to cur exocctations, to full of mitery and milgouernment. After Seruice our Governour cauled mee to reade his Commission, and Captaine Percie (then President) delivered up unto him his Commiss. Old Farent fion, the old Patent and the Councell Scale. Viewing the Fore, we found the Palliladoes torne verlided vp. howner, the Ports open, the Gates from off the hinges, and emptie houles (which Owners deat)

CHAP. 6.5 3. Fort viewed Want of provision. Neglect, and sensuall surfee.

had taken from them) rent up and burnt, rather then the dwellers would flep into the Woodsa thones cast off from them, to fetch other fire-wood : and it is true, the Indian killed as fast without, if our men threed but beyond the bounds of their Block-houle, as Famine and Peftilence did instead of their file. within; with many more particularities of their fufferances (brought vpon them by their owne cause malarum; to diforders the last yeere) then I have heart to expresse. In this defolation and misery our Governour found the condition and state of the Colonie, and (which added more to his griefe) no hope how to amend it or faue his owne Company, and those yet remayning alive, from falling into the like necessities. For we had brought from the Bermadas no greater store of prouision (tearing no fuch accidents politile to befall the Colony here) then might well Grue one hundred and fiftie for a Sea Voyage and it was not possible, at this time of the yeere to amoul it, by any helpe from the Indian. For bebles that they (at their beit) have little more, then from bant to mouth, it was now likewife but heir Seed-time, and all their Corne scarce put into the ground : nor was there at the Fort, as they whom we found related vnto vi) any meanes to take till, neither fufficient Seine, nor other connecient Net, and vet if there had, there was not one eye of 10 Sturgeon yet come into the River. All which confidered, it pleafed our Governour to make a Speech voto the Company, giving them o understand, that what provision he had, they should equally share with him, and if he should find it not possible, and easie to supply them with some thing from the Countrey, by the endeuouts of his able men, hee would make readic, and transport them all into their Native Countrey (accommodating them the best that he could) at which there was a generall acclamation, and shoute of io, on both sides (for even our owne men began to be disheartened and faint, when they faw this morry among it the others, and no lesse threatned vnto themselves. In the meane while, our Governier published certaine Orders and Instru-Aions, which hee entoyned them ftrictly to observe, the time that hee should stay among the continued for them, which being written out faire, were fet vp vpon a pol in the Church for every one to take their floor

notice of.

If I should be examined from whence, and by what occasion, all these disasters, and afficiti- culers are here ons descended vpon our people, I can only referre you (honoured Lidie) to the Booke, which the Aduenturers have fent hither intituled, Aduertisements onto the Colony in Virginia : where- Preface and in the ground and causes are fauourably abridged, from whence these miserable effects have beene at Articles tor produced, not excufing likewife the forme of government of some errour, which was not power- Pietie, Loyaltill enough among so headie a multitude, especially, as those who arrived here in the supply fent the and Politic the last yeere with vs: with whom the better authoritie and gouernment now changes into an the Colonie, biolute command, came along, and had beene as happily established, had it pleased God, that we with them had reached our wished Harbour.

Vnto fuch calamity can floath, riot, and vanity, bring the most fetled and plentifull estate, Indeede (right noble Lady) no ftory can remember vinto vs, more woes and anguishes, then these people, thus gouerned, have both suffered and pold upon their owne heads. And yet true it is. fome of them, whose voyces and command might not be heard, may easily be absolued from the guilt hereof, as standing vntouched, and vpright in their innocencies; whilest the privile factiomaries shall neuer find time nor darknesse, to wipe away or couer their ignoble and irreligious Men blamed. practifes, who, it may be, lav all the difcredits, and impurations the while upon the Countrie, but not all the But under pardon, let me speake freely to them : let them remember that if riot and floth should Country steed both meet in any one of their best Families, in a Countrey most stored with abundance and plentie in England, continuall wasting, no Husbandry, the old store still spent on, no order for new provisions, what better could betall vinto the Inhabitants, Land-lords, and Tenants of that corner, then necessarily following cleannesse of teeth, famine and death? Is it not the sentence and doome of the Wiseman! Yet a little sleepe, a little slumber, and a little folding of the hands to sleepe: Prou.c. so thy powers a commeth, as one that travelleth by the way, and thy necessitie like an armed man. And with this Idlenesse, when some thing was in store, all wastfull courses exercised to the heigth, and the headlesse multitude, some neither of qualitie nor Religion) not imployed to the end for which they were fent hither, no not compelled (lince in themfelues vinwilling) to fowe Corne fortheir owne bellies, nor to put a Roose, Herbe, &c. for their owne particular good in their Gardens or elfewhere : I fay in this neglect and fentuall Surfet, all things fuffered to runne on, to lieficke and languish; must it be expected, that health, plentie, and all the goodnesse of a well ordered State, of necessitie for all this to flow in this Countrey ? You have a right and noble heart (worthy Lady) bee judge of the truth herein. Then fuffer it not bee concluded vnto you, for beleeve, I befeech you, that the wants and wretchednesse which they have indured, ascend or of the pouertie and vilenesse of the Country, whether bee respected the Land or Rivers:

the one, and the other, having not only promifed, but powred enough in their veines, to con-

1750

uince them in fuch calumnies, and to quit those common calimities, which (as the shadow The Country accompanies the body) the precedent neglects touched at, if truly followed, and wrought vpon. What England may boalt of, having the faire hand of husbandry to manure and dreffe it. God, and Nature have faucurably bestowed upon this Country, and as it hath given unto it, both by firuation, height, and foyle, all those (pair hopes) affurances which follow our well planted nature Countrie, and others, lying wnder the same influence: if, as ours, the Countrey and foyle might be improved, and drawne forth: lo hath it indowed it, as is most certaine, with mamy more, which England fetcheth farre vntoher from elfewhere. For first wee have experience, and euen our eyes withesse (how yong so euer wee are to the Countrie) that no Countrey yeeldethgoodher Corne, nor more manifold increase : large Fields wee haue, as prospects of the 10 fame, and not farre from our Pallisado. Besides, wee haue thousands of goodly Vines in euery hedge, and Boske running along the ground, which yeelde a plenticull Grape in their kinde. Let mee appeale then to knowledge, if thefe naturall Vines were planted, dreffed, and ordered by skilf. Il Vincaroones, whether wee might not make a perfect Grape, and fruitefull vintage in thost time? And we have made triall of our owne English feedes, kitchen tracke, and Rootes, and finde them to prosper as speedily as in Eigland.

Onely let me truely acknowledge, they are not an hundre or two of deboilt hands. dront Remaintenight forth by yeare atter yeare, with penury, and leiture, ill promued for before they come, and worfe True case of forth by yeare atter yeare, with penury, and leiture, ill promued for before they come, and worfe mifery in Virto be gouerned when they are here, men of fuch diffemper dbodies, and infected mindes, whom no examples daily before their eyes, either of goodnesse o punishment, can deterre from their habituall impieties, or terrifie from a shamefull death, nat must be the Carpenters, and workemen in this fo glorious a building.

Then let no rumour of the pourty of the County (as if in the wombe thereof there lay not those elementall leedes, which could produce > many faire births of plenty, and increase, and better hopes, then any land vnder the heaves to which the Sunne is no neerer a neighbour May, let no imposture rumour, nor any fame of . ome one, or a few more changeable actions, interpofing by the way, or at home, wane any mans taire purposes hitherward, or wrest them to a declining and falling off from the businesse Iwill acknowledge, deere Lady shaue feene much propenfineffe already towards the vnity, and generall endeauours: how contentedly doe such as labour with vs, goe forth, when men of 30 ranke and quality, allist, and their on their labours? I have feene it, and I protest it, I have heard the inferiour people, with alacrity of spirit professe, that they should neuer refuse to doe their best in the practise of their sciences and knowledges, when such worthy, and Noble Gentlemen goe it and out before them, and not onely so, but as the occasion shall be offered, no late helpe them with their hand, then defend them with their Sword. And it is to be voderflood, that fuch as labour, are not yet fo taxed, but that easily they performe the fame, and end by tenne of the clocke have done their Mornings worke: at what time, they have the allowances fet out ready for them, and vntill the three of the clocke againe, they take their owne pleafure, and afterwards with the Sunne fet, their dayes labour is finished. In all which couries, if the bufineffe be continued, I doubt nothing, with Gods fauour towards 40 vs, but to fee it in time, a Countrie, an Hauen, and a Staple, fitted for such a trade, as shall advance affureder increale, both to the Adventurers, and free Burgers thereof, then any Trade

Note. The

Times of la-

in Christendome , or then that (even in her earely dayes, when Michael Cauacoo the Greeke, did first discouer it to our English Factor in Poland) which extens it selie now from Calps and Abila, to the bottome of Sidon, and fo wide as Alexandria, and all the Ports and Hauens North and South, through the Arches to Cio, Smyrna, Troy, the Hellefont, and vp to Pompeys Pillar, which as a Pharos, or watch Tower, itands vpon the wondrous opening into the Euxine Sca. From the three and twentieth of May, wnto the leventh of June, our Governour attempted,

Sir T. Gates his care.

Pobatans po-

and made triall of all the wayes, that both his owne judgement could prompe him in, and the 50 aduife of Captaine George Percy, and those Centlemen whom hee found of the Counsell, when hee came in, as of others; whom hee caufed to deliuer their knowledges, concerning the State and Condition of the Countrey: but after much debating, it could not appeare, how possibly they might preserve themselves (reserving that little which wee brought from the Bermudas in our Simppes, and was upon all occasions to stand good by vs) tenne dayes from staruing. For helides, that the Indians were of themselves poore, they were forbidden likewife (by their fibtile King Powbatan) at all to trade with vs; and not onely fo, but to indanger and affault any Boate vpon the River, or firagler out of the Fort by Land, by which (not long before out arrival) our people had a large Boate cut off, and divers of our men killed, euen within command of our Blocke-house; as likewise, they shot two of our people to 62 death, after we had bin foure and fine dayes come in : and yet would they dare then to enter our Ports, and trucke with vs (as they counterfeited underhand) when indeede, they came Sauage Spiess but as Spies to discouer our strength, trucking with vs upon such hard conditions, that our Couernour might very well fee their fubtiltie, and therefore neither could well indure, nor would continue it. And I may truely fay befide, fo had our men abafed, and to fuch a contempt, had they brought the value of our Copper, that a prece which would have bought a bulhell of Basenesse of their Corne in former time, would not now buy a little Cade or Bisket of a Pottle. And for this milgouernment, chiefely our Colony is much bound to the Mariners, who never yet in anv Voyage hither, but have made a prey of our poore people in want; infomuch, as vifleffe Mischiefes of they might aduance foure or fine for one (how affured focuer of the payments of their Bils of Exchange) they would not spare them a dust of Corne, nor a pinte of Beere, to give vito them the leaft comfort or reliefe, although that Biere purloyned, and stolne perhaps, either from some particular supply, or from the generall store : 10 vncharmable a parcell of people they in be, and ill conditioned. I my felfe haue heard the Mafter of a Shippe lay (euen vpon the arriuall of this Fleete, with the Lord Gouernour and Captaine Generall, when the faid Mafter was treated with for such Commodities as hee brought to fell) that valeffe hee might have an East Indian increase, foure for one, all charges cleered, hee would not part with a Canor Beere. Besides, to doe vs more villany and mischiefe, they would send of their long Boates still by night, and (well guarded) make out to the neighbour Villages, and Townes, and there (contrary to the Articles of the Fort, which now pronounce death for a trespasse of that qualitie) trucke with the Indians, giving for their trifles Otter skinnes, Beuers, Rokoone Furres, Beares skinnes, &c. to large a quantity, and measure of Copper, as when the Trucke-Master for the Colong, in the day time offered trade, the Indians would laugh and forme the fame, telling what in harvains they met witha'l by night, from our Mangor Quintons (fo calling our great Shippes) by which meanes, the Market with them forestalled thus by these dishonest men, I may boluly lay, they have bin a confequent cause (this last yeare) to the death and starting of many a worthy Pursers fraud. fourit; but I hope to lee a true amendment and reformation, as well of those as of divers other intollerable abuses, thrust upon the Colony by these shamelesse people, as also for the transportation on of fuch proussions and supplies as are sent hither, and come vnder the charge of purfers (a parcell fragment, and odde ends of fellowes dependancies to the others) a better course thought vpon : of which supplies, neuer yet came into the Store, or to the Parties, vnto whom such supplies were fent, by relation hitherto, a moitie or third part; for the speedy redresse of this, being to fourraigne a point, I understand how the Lord Gouernour and Captaine Generall, hath aduip fe I voto the Counsell, that there may be no more provisions at all delivered voto Pirfets, but hath intreated to have the provision thus ordered. He would have a Commissary Generall of the Victuals to be appointed, who (receiving the flore for the Colony, by Indenture from the Treafurer, and Victuallers in England) may keepe a just accompt, what the groffe amounteth vireo, and what is transported every Voyage, in severall kindes, as of Bread, Meate, Beere, Wine, &c. which faid Commiffary shall deliner ouer the same, to the Master of every Ship, and take an Indentre from the faid Mafter, of what he hath in charge, and what he is to deliver to the Treasurer of the flore in Virginia: of which, if any be wanting, he the faid Mafter shall make it good, out of in owne intertainment, otherwife the Purfers, Stewards, Coopers, and quarter Mafters, will befure ftill, not onely to give themselves and their friends double allowances, but thinke it all well gotten that they can purloine and theale away. Besides that the Indian thus euill intreated vs, the River (which were wont before this time of the yeare to be plentifull of Storgion) had not now a Fish to be seene in it, and affeit we labured, and hold our Net twenty times day and night, yet we tooke not so much as would content halfe the Fishermen. Our Gouernour therefore sent away his long Boate to coast the River downward, as farre as Point Comfort, and from thence to Cape Henry, and Cape Charles, and all within the Bay : which after a feuen nights triall and trauaile, returned without any fruites of their labours, scarse getting so much Fish as served their owne Company. And to take any thing from the Indian by force, we never vied, nor willingly ever will and The Colony though they had well deferued it, yet it was not now time, for they did (as I faid before) but when they hthen set their Corne, and at their best, they had but from hand to mouth; so as what now fouredayes of temained ! fuch as we found in the Fort, had wee staid but foure dayes, had doubtleffe bin the straing. most part of them started, for their best reliefe was onely Mushrums, and some hearties, which fod together, made but a thin and vulauory broath, and fivelled them much. The pitry hereof mound our Governour to draw forth such provision as he had brought, proportioning a measure equilly to every one a like. But then our Governor began to examine how long this his flore would hold out, and found it (husbanded to the best aduantage) not possible to serue longer then fixteene dayes: after which, nothing was to be possibly supposed out of the Country (as before remembred) nor remained there then any meanes to transpore him elsewhere. Whereupon hee then entred into the confultation with Sir George Summers, and Captaine Nemport, calling vnto the same the Gentlemen and Counsell of the former Gouernment, intreating both the one and the other to adulfe with him what was best to be done. The prouision which they both had a boord himselfe and Sir George Sammers, was examined, and delinered, how it, being rackt to the vttermost, extended not about, as I faid, fixteene dayes, ofter two Cakes a day. The Gentie-

men of the Town, who knew better of the Country could not give him any hope;or wayes, how

The establish of the relative facilities, and wrought yo. would continue it. And I may true very lay bende, to had our men abased, and to such a contempt, had they brought the value of our Copper, that a prece which would have bought a bullell or Baleneffe of onaliae the 14 ft of 2000 and 12 ft manuferand creffe in their Corne in former time, would not now buy a little Cade or Bisket of a Pottle. And for geram a sign of the least of the grain grain grain street this misgouernment, chiefely our Colony is much bound to the Mariners, who never yet in a-Control (12 to 10 to 10 maines which to the work well plane my Voyage hither, but have made a prey of our poore people in want; infomuch, as willeffe Mischiefes of No gwodent enknie or order of as ours, the Countrev and they might advance foure or flue for one (how affured focuer of the payments of their Bils of Exchange) they would not spare them a dust of Corne, nor a pinte of Beere, to give vinto on and a contract of the management of the first of the weathing experience. them the least comfort or reliefe, although that Biere purloyned, and stolne perhaps, either mang a selet were attent tot e Countrie thiet no Countre veelfrom some particular supply, or from the generall store : so vncharmable a parcell of people they mir fo a merean illege I das mer laur, as prometts of me 10 to be, and ill conditioned. I my felfe have heard the Master of a Shippe fay (even vpon the armade Belles, wer hale incliands of goodly Vines in ege. riuall of this Fleete, with the Lord Gouernour and Captaine Generall, when the taid Master in be grand, willin prelan a plentreif Grape in their was treated with for such Commodities as hee brought to fell) that villeste hee might have an to and wieuge, if their naturell William were planted, ureil East Indian increase, foure for one, all charges cleered, hee would not part with a Canof Beere. an and the second of the second of the maker perfect Greet. Besides, to doe vs more villany and mischiefe, they would send of their long Boates still by mit a. . We taus maut trall or lar wor Begün eestesassies night, and (well guarded) make out to the neighbour Villages, and Townes, and there (con-ಕ ಸರ್ವಕ್ಷಣ ಕಟ್ಟಾಟ್ ಒಟ್ಟಿ ಬಿ.ಎ. ಜಾ *Eೇಕ್ಷ್ಮಿಕ್ಕಾ*ಮಿ trary to the Articles of the Fort, which now pronounce death for a trespasse of that qualifie) nam ann ann an 1975. Bugail Sak Chairmann Choirean Taireach Geantail Innéal, ám i trucke with the Indians, giving for their trifles Otter skinnes, Beuers, Rokoone Furres, Beares no morni vano le vilite. Il visuo el principio e thempome, and worle skinnes, &c. to large a quantity and measure of Copper, as when the Trucke-Mafter for the Coeine min at illand fempesad in inssa a nafested mindes, wanm long, in the day time offered trade, the Indians would laugh and forme the fame, telling what 20 harrying they met witha'l by night, from our Mangor Quintons (fo calling our great Shippes) by mail imerali leati, latimun de the Carpenture, and workewhich meanes, the Market with them forestalled thus by these dishonest men, I may boldly say, they have bin a confequent cause (this last yeare) to the death and flarning of many a worthy pursers fraud. Cherry of the Courty as fund, e worde thereof there laynot forrit; but I hope to lee a true amendment and reformation, as well of those as of divers other could's odder Amany taken of this of grenty, and incresses and intollerable abuses, thrust upon the Colony by these shamelesse people, as also for the transportatiuent a calento w. . . . il e sunne is no necrer a nergiocor Ilar, on of fuch prouficers and supplies as are tent hither, and come vider the charge of purfers fa par-The familiar of the cone, or a relieve to the change acide actions, interpocell, fragment, and odde ends of fellowes dependancies to the others) a better course thought alle any pans taire purpoles of thet ward, or wreis them to a decilvpon : of which supplies, neuer yet came into the Store, or to the Parties, vnto whom such supplies were fent, by relation hitherto, a moitie or third part; for the speedy redresse of this, being aud in the feere much propenine to already towards the voity, fo foueraigne a point, I understand how the Lord Gouernour and Captaine Generall, hath aduigefterntealy and Lungsberg Lowith ver greiferth. When menet 30 30 fe i vnto the Countell, that there may be no more prouisions at all delivered vnto Purfers, but der gin einem land ine fill maue beene in, and I protect in, I haue hath intreated to have the provision thus ordered. He would have a Commissary Generall of the vich alair iv or foirit oritete, to at they hoolid netter refacto Victuals to be appointed, who (receiving the flore for the Colony, by Indenture from the Treaof the coldiences and anowledges, when took worthy, and Nofurer, and Victuallers in England) may keepe a just accompt, what the groffe amounteth vneo, in denote them. I and his the Wild, but as the occasion in all se and what is transported every Voyage, in severall kindes, as of Bread, Meate, Beere, Wine, &c. allatie - tanel tien leten itrem wit itheir Sword, Andatia to which faid Commillary shall deliner ouer the same, to the Master of enery Ship, and take an Indentungere ont you o takeau out tout early they berforme theams. ture from the faid Malter, of what he hath in charge, and what he is to deliner to the Treasurer re page lucce of high the rigs wichder as will as simely shevicable of the flore in Virginia: of which, if any be wanting, he the faid Mafter shall make it good, out of o para promitija na vila lili a je a jasa ua atra alasike agaimeli anawaske his owneintertainment, otherwife the Purlers, Stewards, Coopers, and quarter Masters, will gewards with the constraint that happen lacelly a finited. In be fure ftill, not onely to give themselves and their friends double allowances, but thinke it all nide no anno nos colo Colos tropology, Will Glas figure towards ⁴⁹ well gotten that they can purloine and iteale away. antreal n.H. 187, 1744 (stelle), firfed for Ust a trait, as fail Befides that the Indian thus euili intreated vs, the River (which were wont before this time in the thirt Anna Carters, and there Burgers werear, then any Trade of the yeare to be plentifull of Sturgion) had not now a Fish to be seene in it, and affect we lae goet in bereitelle wert mien Dereit Creute the Greit, boured, and hold our Net twenty times day and night, yet we tooke not fo much as would conagi i jaseban of Algeria on Laster is a sale new from Caje tent halfe the Fishermen. Our Gouernour therefore sent away his long Boate to coast the River र्रोत हो प्रकार कर है। एक नाम के देश सम्बन्ध र 20, 11, रोज िराइ कोर्य downward, as farre as Point Comfort, and from thence to Cape Henry, and Cape Charles, and all throat of a Michael Control Tempto 新拉達明, and within the Bay : which after a feuen nights triall and trauaile, returned without any fruites of and Brown and the control of the structure of the second sections. their labours, fearfe getting fo much Fish as ferued their owne Company. And to take any thing from the Indian by force, we never vied, nor willingly ever will fand. The Colon, though they had well deserved it, yet it was not now time, for they did (as I said before) but when they came within 50 then set their Corne, and at their best, they had but from band to mouth; so as what now foure daye, of Antonio de la compositione de la remained fluch as we found in the Fort, had wee staid but foure dayes, had doubtleffe bin the firming.

t van struk in de waa dit begin toca in a single of the state of the ្រាស់ ដូច ខ្លួន ស្រុក ខ្លួន នេះ បាន និង នេះបាន and the second of the second second with the

the second of the second was 63

most part of them starued, for their best reliefe was onely Mushrums, and some hearbes, which sod together, made but a thin and votaucry broath, and fivelled them much. The pitty hereof moued our Gouernour to draw forth fuch prouision as he had brought, proportioning a measure equally to every one a like. But then our Gouernor began to examine how long this his flore would hold out, and found it (husbanded to the best aduantage) not possible to serue longer then fixteene dayes: after which, nothing was to be possibly supposed out of the Countrey (as before remembred) nor remained there then any meanes to transport him elsewhere. Whereupon hee

then entred into the confultation with Sir George Summers, and Captaine Newport, calling vnto

60 the fame the Gentlemen and Countell of the former Government, intreating both the one and to improve it from the Indian, It foone then appeared most fit, by a generall approbation, that to preferue and faue all from flaruing, there could be no readier course thought on, then to abandon the Country, and accommodating themselves the best that they might, in the present Pinnaces then in the road, namely in the Discovery and the Unginia, and in the two, brought from, and builded at the Bermudas, the Delinerance, and the Passence, with all speede convenient to make Purpose toleau for the New found Land, where (being the fishing time) they might meete with many Engliships into which happily they might disperie most of the Company.

This Confultation taking effect, our Gouernor having caused to be carried aboord all the Armer. and all the best things in the store, which might to the Aduenturers make some commodiand all the per timing in the territory and burying our Ordnances before the Fort gate, which looked to young the tale thereof at home, and burying our Ordnances before the Fort gate, which looked to into the River. The feventh of Iune having appointed to every Pinnace likewife his complement and number, also delinered thereunto a proportionable rate of prouision, hee commanded every man at the beating of the Drun to repaire abourd. And because hee would preserue the Towne (albeit now to be quitted) vnburned, which some intemperate and malicious people threatned, his owne Company he caused to be last ashoare, and was himselfe the last of them, when about noone giving a farewell, with a peale of small shor, wee set faile, and that night, with the tide. fell downe to an Hand in the River, which our people have called Hogge Hand; and the morning tide brought vs to another lland, which we have called Mulberry lland; where lying at is west of de-an ancor, in the afternoone ilemming the tide, wee discoursed a long. Boate making towards se, mounting despean ancor, in the artificial much descant we made thereof, about an houre it came vp; by which, to 20 our no little loyes, we had intelligence of the honorable my Lord Lawarr his arrivall before Algarmoone Fort the lixt of lune, at what time, true it is, his Lordship having understood of our Go. u. mours resolution to depart the Country, with all expedition caused his Skiffe to be manned. and in it dispatched his letters by Captain Edward Brufter (who commandeth his Lordships Company) to our Gouernour, which preventing vs before the aforefaid Mulberry lland, the eight of June aforelaid) vpon the receipt or his honours letters, our Gouernour bore vp the helme, with the winde comming Eafterly, and that night (the winde to fauourable) relanded all his men at the Fort againe: before which (the tenth of lune, being Sunday) his Lordship had likewise brought his Ships, and in the afternoone, came a shoare with Sir Ferdinando Weinman, and all his Lord-

Description of fire of lames Towne.

1752

The highest pitch & low ft

dep h of the Colonicsmi-

feries fearliy

Hopes mor-

Here worthy Lady) let mee hauea little your pardon, for hauing now a better heart, then when I nrft landed, I will briefely delegibe vnta you, the fituation and forme of our Fort. When Captain Newpore in his first Voyage and not like to Juhabit vpon so open a roade, as Cape Heny, nor Poine Comfort he plied it vp to the River, thil looking out for the most apt and lecureit place, as well for his Company to fit downe in, as which might give the least cause of offence, or distalt in his judgement, to the Inhabitants. At length, after much and weary fearch (with their Barge coafling till before, as Virgell writeth Auest slid, arriving in the region of Italy called Latium, vpon the bankes of the River Tyber) in the Country of a Weromance talled Wominchapuncke (aditionary to Powbatan) within this faire River of Paffihaigh, which wee have called the King, River, a Country least inhabited by the Indian, as they all the way observed, and threescore miles & bet- 40 ter up the fresh Channell, from Cape Hemy they had fight of an extended plaine & spot of earth, which thrust out into the depth, & middelt of the channell, making a kinde of Cherlonifu or Peninfula, for it was faitened onely to the Land with a flender necke, no broader then a may well-quaite a tile shard, & no inhabitants by seuen or six miles neere it. The Trumpets sounding, the Admirall-Brooke faile, and before the fame, the rest of the Fleete came to an ancor, and here (as the best yet offered vinto their view , supposed so much the more convenient, by how much with their small Company, they were like inough the better to affure it) to loofe no further time, the Colony difimbarked, and every man brought his particular flore and furniture, together with the generall prouision ashoare: for the safety of which, as likewise for their owne security, ease, and better accommodating, a certaine Canton and quantity, of that little halfe lland of ground, 50 was measured, which they began to fortifie, and thereon in the name of God, to raise a Forttelle, with the ableft and speedieft meanes they could: which Fort, growing lince to more pertection, is now at this present in this manner.

The Fort,&c. described.

A low feurll of ground about halfe an Acre, or (fo much as Queene Dide might buy of King Hyaba, which the compaffed about with the thongs cut out of one Bull hide, and therein built her Cattle of Brza) on the North fide of the River, is cast almost into the forme of a Triangle, and to Pallizadoed. The South fide next the River (howbeit extended in a line, or Curtaine fix fore foote more in length, then the other two, by reason the advantage of the ground doth so require) containes one hundred and forcy yards: the West and East files a hundred onely. At every Angledor corner, where the lines meete, a Bulwarkeor Watchtower is railed, and in each 60 Bulwarke a peece of Orduance or two well mounted. To every fide, a proportioned diffance from the Palliado) is a feeled freete of houles, that runs along, to as each line of the Angle hath his threete. In the middely is a market place, a Store houle, and a Corps du guard, as likewife a prety Chappell, though (at this time when weecame in, as ruined and vofrequented; but the Lord Gouernour, and Captaine Generall, hath given order for the repairing of it, and at this initiant, many hands are about it. It is in length threefcore foote, in breadth twenty foure, and shall haue a Chancell in it of Cedar, and a Communion Table of the Blake Walnut, and all the Pewes of Cedar, with faire broad windowes, to flut and open, as the weather shall occasion, of the same wood, a Pulpet of the same, with a Font hewen hollow, like a Canoa, with two Bels at the West end. It is so cast, as it be very light within, and the Lord Gonernour and Captaine Generall doth cause it to be kept passing sweete, and trimmed vp with diuers flowers, with a Sexton belonging to it, and in it every Sonday wee have Sermons twice a day, and every Thursday a Sermon, having true preachers, which take their weekely turnes. 10 and every morning at the ringing of a Bell, about ten of the clocke, each man addrelleth himfelfe to prayers, and to at toure of the clocke before Supper. Every Sunday, when the Lord Governour, and Captaine Generall goeth to Church, hee is accompanied with all the Counfailers, Captaines, other Officers, and all the Gentlemen, and with a Guard of Holberdiers, in his Lordships Livery, faire red cloakes, to the number of fifty both on each side. and behinde him : and being in the Church, his Lordship hath his feate in the Quer, in a greene Veluet Chaire, with a Cloath, with a Veluet Cushion spread on a Table before him, on which he kneeleth, and on each fide fit the Counfell, Captaines, and Officers, each in their place, and when he returneth home againe, he is waited on to his house in the same manner.

And thus inclosed, as I faid, round with a Pallizado of Planckes and strong Posts, foure foote 20 deepe in the ground, of yong Oakes, Walnuts, &c. The Fort is called in honour of his Majesties name, lames Towne; the principall Gate from the Towne, through the Pallizado, opens to the River, as at each Bulwarke there is a Gate likewise to goe forth, and at every Gate a Demi-Culuerin, and so in the Market Place. The houses first raised, were all burnt, by a casualty of fire, the The Houses. beginning of the second years of their feate, and in the second Voyage of Captain Newport, which fince haue bin better rebuilded, though as yet in no great vniformity, either for the fashion. or beauty of the ffreete. A delicate wrought fine kinde of Mat the Indians make, with which (as they can be trucked for or fnatched up Jour people do dreffe their chambers, and inward roomes, which make their houses to much the more handlome. The houses have wide and large Country Chimnies in the which is to be supposed (in such plenty of wood) what fires are maintained; and Barke Roofes, they have found the way to couer their houses : now (as the Indians) with barkes of Trees, as durable, and as good proofe against stormes, and winter weather, as the best Tyle defending likewise the piercing Sunbeames of Summer, and keeping the inner lodgings coole enough, which before in fultry weather would be like Stoues, whileft they were, as at first, pargetted and plaistered with Bitumen or tough Clay: and thus armed for the injury of changing times, and feafons of the yeare, we hold our felues well apaid, though wanting Arras Hangings, Tapiftry, and guilded Venetian Cordouan, or more spruse houshold garniture, and wanton City ornaments, remembring the old Epigraph:

We dwell not bere to build vs Bowers, But Hals we build for vs and ours, And Hals for pleasure and good cheere: To dwell in them whilst we like here.

True it is, I may not excuse this our Fort, or lames Towne, as yet seated in some what an you Vnhealthfulwholesome and sickly ayre, by reason it is in a marish ground, low, flat to the River, and hath no nesse of same fresh water Springs seruing the Towne, but what wee drew from a Well sixe or seuen fathom deepe, fed by the brackish River owzing into it, from whence I verily beleeve, the chiefe causes have proceeded of many difeates and ficknesses which have happened to our people, who are indeede strangely afflicted with Fluxes and Agues; and every particular season (by the relation of the old inhabitants) hath his particular infirmity too, all which (if it had bin our fortunes, to have feated vpon tome hill, accommodated with fresh Springs and cleere ayre, as doe the Natiues of the Country) we might have, I believe, well escaped : and some experience we have to perswade 50 our felues that it may be fo, for of foure hundred and odde men, which were feated at the Fals, the last yeere when the Fleete came in with fresh and yong able spirits, under the government of Captain Francis West, and of one hundred to the Seawards (on the South fide of our River) in the Country of the Nansamundes, under the charge of Captaine John Martin, there did not to much as one man miscarry, and but very few or none fall ficke, whereas at Iames Towne, the same time, and the fame moneths, one handred fickned, & halfe the number died: howbeit as we condemne not Kent in England, for a small Towne called Plumsted, continually affaulting the dwellers there (especially new commers) with Agues and Feuers; no more let vs lay scandall, and imputation vpon the Country of Virginia, because the little Quarter wherein we are set dowee (vnaduitedly 60 fo chofed) appeares to be vnwholefome, and fubiect to many ill ayres, which accompany the like marish places.

Commission

Lord Laws

Su T. Gares

Lieutenant

Generali.

His fpeech.

Officers appointed.

The Lord LaW ARRES beginnings and proceedings in lames Towne. Sir THOMAS GATES fent into England; his and the Companies testimony of Virginia, and cause of the late miseries.

Pon his Lordflips landing at the South gate of the Pallin ado (which lookes into the Ruser) our Gouernour cauled his Company in armes to fland in order, and make a Guard : It pleased him, that I should beare his Colours for that time : his Lordship Guard: It pleafed him, that I should beare his Colours for that time: his Lordship landing, tell vpon his knees, and before vs all, made a long and silent Prayer to himfelfe, and after, marched up into the Towne, where at the Gate, I bowed with the Colours and let them fall at his Lordfnips feete, who passed on into the Chappell, where he heard a Sermon by Master Bucke, our Gouernours Preacher; and after that, caused a Gentleman, one of his owne followers, Maiter Anthony Scor his Ancient, to reade his Commission, which intituled him Lord Gouernour, and Captaine Generall curing his life, of the Colony and Plantation in Virginia (Sir Thomas Gates our Gouernour hitherto, being now filled therein Lieutenane

Arter the reading of his Lordihips Commission, Sir Thomas Gates rendred vp vnto his Lordfirin his owne Commission, both Patents, and the Countell Seale : after which, the Lord Gouernour, and Captaine Generall, delivered some few words vinto the Company, laying many blames you them for many vanities, and their Idlenesse, earnestly wishing, that he might no more finde it fo leaft he should be compelled to draw the sword of Iustice, to cut off such delinquents, which he had much rather, he protested, draw in their defence, to protect them from injuries; hattening them with the knowledge of what store of provisions he had brought for them, viz, sufficient ent to serue foure hundred men for one whole yeare.

Provisions The twelfth of lune, being Tueslay, the Lord Gouernour and Captaine Generall, did conflibrought. Countell chofen & iwoine.

ture, and give places of Office, and charge to divers Captaines and Gentlemen, and elected vnto him a Counfell, vnto whom he did administer an Oath, mixed with the oath of Allegiance and Supremacy to his Maiestie: which oath likewise he caused to be administred the next day after 30 to every particular member of the Colony, of Faith, Affiliance, and Secrecy. The Countaile which Colony worn, he elected were. Sir Thomas Gates Kinght, Lieutenant Generall. Sir George Summers Knight, Admirall, Captaine George Percy Esquire, and in the Fort Captaine of fitty. Sir Ferdinando Weise man Knight, Mafter of the Ordnance, Captaine Christopher Newport, Vice-admirall. William Srechei Esquire, Secretary, and Recorder,

As likewise the Lord Gouernour and Captaine Generall, nominated Captaine Iohn Maria, Matter of the Battery workes for Steele and Iron ; and Captaine George Webb Sergeant Maior of the Fort: and especiall Captaines over Companies, were these appointed; Captaine Edward Brufler, who hath the command of his Honours owne Company. Captaine Thomas Lawfon. Captain Thomas Holecroft: Captaine Samuell Argoll. Captaine George Turder, who commandeth the Lieutgo tenant Generals Company. Divers other Officers were likewise made, as Master Raiph Hamm, and Matter Browne, Clarkesot the Counfell, and Mafter Daniell Tucker, and Mafter Robert Wilde,

The first businesse which the Lord Governour and Captaine Generall (after the fetling of thele Officers) thought upon, was to adule with his Countell, for the obtaining of fuch prouifions of victuals for store, and quality, as the Countrey afforded. It did not appeare, that any kinde of Flesh, Deere, or what elie, of that kinde, could be recourred from the Indian, or to be fought in the Countrey, by the trauaile or fearch of his people, and the old dwellers in the Fort (together with the Indians not to friend) who had the last winter, destroyed and killed up all the Hogges, intomuch, as of fine or fixe hundred (as it is supposed) there was not one left alive; nor 50 an Henne, nor Chicke in the Fort; and our Horles and Mares, they had eaten with the first, and the proudion which the Lord Gouernour, and Captaine Generall had brought, concerning any kinde of fleth, was little or nothing; in respect it was not drempt of by the Ada.nturers in England, that the S vine were destroyed.

In Countell therefore the thirteenth of Iune, it pleased Sir George Summers Knight, Admirall, Sir G. Summers to propose a Voyage, which for the better reliefe, and good of the Colony, he would performe involved which and some bring rouifi to the Bermudas, from whence he would fetch fix moneths prouision of Flesh and Fish, and some ons from Er- liu-Hogges to frose our Colony againe: and had a Commission given vinto him the litteenth of lune, 1610. who in his owne Bermada Pinnace, the Patience, conforted with Captaine Sammes Areal, in the Discourry (whom the Lord Sourmour, and Captaine General), made of the country (whom the Lord Sourmour, and Captaine General), made of the country (who the country of the country) the nineteenth of tune, fell with the Tyde from before our Towns, and the twenty two left the Bay, or Cape Henry a iterne.

And likewife, because at the Lord Governous, and Captaine Generals first comming, there was o found in our owne River no itore of Fish; after many trials, the Lord Governour, and Captaine

Generall, dispatched in the Virginia, with inflructions, the feuenteenth of Iune, 1 6 1 0. Robert Tradall. Mafter of the De la Warre, to fish vnto, all along, and betweene Cape Henry, and Cape Charles, within the Bay; who the last of the faid moneth returned vnto vs againe, but as ill speeding as the former, whom our Gouernour (now Lieutenah: Generall) had addressed thither before for the same purpole. Nor was the Lord Gouernour, and Captaine Generall in the meane while idle at the Fort, but every day and night hee caused the Nets to be hawled, sometimes a dosen times one after another. But it pleased not God so to blesse our labours, that we did at any time take one quarter to much, as would give vnto our people one pound at a meale a peece, by which we might haue better husbanded our Peafe and Oatemeale, notwithstanding the great fo fore we now faw daily in our River : but let the blame of this lye where it is , both voon our Nets, and the vnskilfulnesse of our men to lay them.

The fixth of Iuly Sir Thomas Gates Lieutenant Generall, comming downe to Point Comfort, the North wind (blowing rough) befound had forced the long Boate belonging to Algernoone Fort, to the other shoare voon Nansamund side, somewhat first of Werofcoitk; which to recouer againe, one of the Lieutenant Generals men Humfrey Blum, in an old Carrow made ouer, but the wind drining him vpon the Strand , certaine Indians (watching the occasion) feifed the poore fellow, and led him up into the Woods, and facrificed him. It did not a little trouble the Lieurenant Gouernour, who fince his first landing in the Countrey (how justly foeuer prouoked) would not by any meanes be wrought to a violent proceeding against them, for all the practises . Ad Gracat 20 of villany, with which they daily indangered our men, thinking it possible, by a more tra- calendan. Ctable course, to winne them to a better condition ; but now being fartled by this, he well per- Can a Leoceited, how little a faire and noble intreatie, workes upon a barbarous disposition, and therefore his spors? Can in tome measure purposed to be reuenged. The ninth of July he prepared his forces, and early in the morning fet vpon a Towne of theirs, mayning a Sa fome foure miles from Algernoone Fort, called Kecoughtan, and had foone taken it, without uage be civille loffe or hurt of any of his men. The Gouernour and his women fled (the young King Powhatans Were not wee tone on the control of the Control o bacco, and some few womens Girdles of Silke, of the Graffe-filke, not without art, and much our Progeni-30 neatneffe finely wrought; of which I have fent diners into England, (beeing at the taking of tors dayes and the Towne) and would have fent your Ladiship some of them, had they beene a Present were not Cas

We purposed to set a Frenchman heere a worke to plant Vines, which grew naturally in great Vinginions The plentie. Some few Corne fields it hath, and the Corne in good forwardnesse, and weede- Romane swords spaire not but to bee (able if our men stand in health) to make it good against the Indian.

The continual practifes of the fubtle King Powhatan, doth not meanely awaken all the chers of ciuipowers and workings of vertue and knowledge, in our Lord Gouernour and Captaine Generall, other Counhow to preuent not only his mischieses, but to draw him vpon some better termes, and acknow- tries neere vs. ledgemen of our forces and spirits, both able and daring to quit him in any valiant and martiall Graffesike. ao course whatsoeuer, he shall dare to runne with vs, which hee doth yet scarsly beleeue. For this therfore, fince first, and that so lately, he hath set on his people, to attempt vs with private Confpiracies and actuall violence, into the one drawing his Neighbour Confederates and under Princes, and by the other working the loffe and death of divers of our men, and by fuch their loffe feifing their Armes, Swords, Peeces, &c. of which he hath gathered into his flore a great quintitie and number by Intelligence about two hundred Swords, besides Axes, and Pollaxes, Chiffels, Howes, to paire and clenfe their ground, with an infinite treasure of Copper) our Lord Go- English Armes uernour and Captaine Generall fent two Gentlemen with an Ambassie vnto him, letting him to treasured by understand of his practiles and outrage, hitherto vied toward our people, not only abroad but at Pswbatan. our Fort also vet flattering him withall how the Lord Gouernour and Captaine Generall did not Porbates. 50 suppose, that these mischiefes were contriued by him, or with his knowledge, but conceined them rather to be the acts of his worst and varuly people, his Lordship therefore now complayning vato him required, that hee (being so great and wife a King) would give an value fall order to his Subiects, that it might bee no more io, left the Lord Governour and Captaine Generall should be compelled (by defending him and his) to offend him, which he would be loath to do: withall he willed the Mellengers to demand of him the faid Powhatan, that he would either punish or fend vnto his Lordship such of his people whom Powhatan knew well not long before, had affaulted our men at the Block-house, and but newly killed foure of them, as also to demaund of Powhaten, willing him to returne vnto the English Fort, both fuch men as hee detayned of ours, and fuch Armes as he had of theirs in his polletion, and those conditions performed, hee willed 60 them to affure vnto Powhatan that then their great Werowance, the Lord Governour and Captaine

Generall would hold faire quarter, and enter friendship with him, as a friend to King James and his Subjects. But refuling to lubmit to thele demands, the Lord Gouernour and Captaine Generall gave in charge to the Messengers, so tent to signific vnto Pombatan that his Lordship would by all meanes publike and private, tecke to recover from him fuch of the English as he had, being Ggggggg3

coick taken

Sir T. Gates

bound for England.

Priloner.

Subjects to his King and Mafter, vnto whom even Pombatan himfelfe had formerly vowed not only triendfhip but homage, receiving from his Maieftie therefore many gitts, and vpon hiskners. a Crowne and Scepter with other Ornaments, the Symbols of Chall State and Christian Some-Powbasens ho- raigntie, thereby or liging himselie to Offices of dutie to his Maiettie. Vito all which Powbas tan returned no other and were, but that either we should depart his Country, or confine our selies. to lames Towne only, without fearching further vp into his Land, or Ruers, or otherwise has would give in command to his people to kill vs, and doe vnto vs all the mischiete, which they are their pleafure could and we feared: withall forewarning the faid Medlengers, not to return and more voto him, vulelle they brought him a Coach and three Hories, for here had underthood by. the Indians which were in England, how such was the state of great Weromances , and Lords at Io England, to nie and vilit other great men.

After this douers times, and daily hee fent fometimes two, fometimes three, vnto our Fortito understand our strength, and to observe our Watch & Guard, and how our people flood in health. and what numbers were arrived with this new Weroance: which being foone perceived our Lord Governour and Captaine Generall forewarned such his Spies, ypon their owne perili, to refore no more vnto our Fort. Howbeit, they would daily preffe into our Block-house, and comeve to our Pallizado gates, supposing the government as well now, as fantasticall and negligent in the former times, the whilest tome quarter of a mile short of the Block-house, the greatest nomber of them would make affault, and lye in ambush about our Glasse-house, whether, Dauers times indeed our men would make out either to gather Strawberries, or to fetch fresh water, any 20 one of which fo ftragled, if they could with conveniencie, they would affault and charge with their Bowes and Arrowes, in which manner they killed many of our men : two of which being Paspaheans, who were euer our deadliest enemies, and not to be reconciled; at length being apprehended (and one of them a notable villaine, who had attempted upon many in our Fort) the Lord Governour caused them to be manacled, and convented before him and his Countell, where it was determined that hee that had done fo much mischiese should have his right hand strocke. off, sending him away withall, with a message to Powhatan, that volesse hee would yet returne fuch Englishmen as he detayned, together with all fuch their Armes (as before fpoken of)that not only the other (now Prisoner) should die, but all such of his Sauges (as the Lord Gouerneur and Captaine Generall, could by any meanes surprize) should runne the same courie: as likewise the Lord Gouernour and Captaine Generall would fire all his Neighbour Corne Fields, 30 Townes, and Villages, and that fuddenly, if Powhatan fent not to contract with him the fooner

What this will worke with him, wee know not as yet, for this was but the day before our thips were now falling to Point Comfort, and to to fet tayle for England: which thips riding be-King of weref fore were feeing to take in their fraight of Cedar, Clap-boord, Blacke Wal-nut, and Iron Out, tooke Prifoners likewise the chiefe King of Weroscoick, called Safenticum, with his Sonne Kainta, and one of his chiefe men. And the fifteenth day of July, in the Bleffing Captaine Adams brought them to Point Comfort, where at that time (as well to take his leave of the Lieutenant Generall Sir Thomas Gates, now bound for England, as to dispatch the ships) the Lord Go- 40

uernour and Captaine Generall had pitched his Tent in Algernoone Fort. The Kings Sonne Kainta the Lord Gouernour and Captaine Generall, hath fent now into England, vntill the thips arrive here agains the next Spring, dimilling the clid 11 eromance, and theother with all tearmes of kindnesse, and friendship, promifing further designes to bereffected by him, to which hee hath bound himselfe, by diues Sauage Ceremonies, and ad-

And thus (right Noble Ladie) once more this famous bufinesse, as recreated, and dipped a new into life and spirit, bath rayled it (I hope) from infamy , and shall redeene the staines and loffes under which the hath fuffered, fince her hift Conception : your Graces still accompany the least appearance of her, and vouchfafe her to bee limmed out, with the beautie which wee will 10 begge, and borrow from the faire lips : nor feare you, that thee will returne bluthes to your cheekes for praying her, fince (more then most excellent Ladie) like your felfe (were all tongues dumbe and enusous) thee will prayfe her felfe in her most filence : may shee once bee but seene, or but her shadow lively by a skilfull Workman set out indeed, which heere (bungerly as lam) I have prefumed (though defacing it) in these Papers to present vinto your Ladiship.

Atter Sir Thomas Gates his arruall, a Booke called A true Declaration of Virginia, was published by the Company, out of which I have heere inserted this their publike teltimonie of the cautes of the former cuils, and Sir Thomas Gates his Report vpon Oath of Vaginia.

The ground of all these miseries, was the permissione Providence of God, who, in the fore-meeting of ned violent storme, separated the head from the bodie, all the vitall powers of Regiment being exiled with Sir Thomas Gates in those infortunate (yet fortunate) Ilandi. The troken remainder of those supplies made a greater suppurache in the Continent of Virginia, by the tempest of Descrion: enery man oner-nathing his owne worth, would be a Commander: curry man under prizing anothers vaine, denied to be commanded.

The next Fourtaine of moes was fecure negligence, and improvidence, when every man sharked for his present bootse, but was altogether carcieffe of succeeding penuric. Now, I demand whether Sicinu prejent overten and fametimes the Barnes of Rome) cauld hope for increase without manuring? A Colony is therefore denominated, because they Should be Colony, the Tillers of the Earth, and Stewards of fertilitie: any mutimous Logierers would not fow with providence, and therefore they reaped the finits of too deere bought Rependance. An increasible example of their idlenesse, is the report of Sri Thomas Gites, who affirmeth, that after bis first comming thitber, be hath seene some of them eat their film raw, rather then sher would goe a flones cast to fetch wood and dreffe it. D jlaboribus on rua vendunt, God lets on all things for our labour, when Adam himselfe might not tine in Paradice without drefing the 10 Garden Vinto idlanelle, you may toyne Transons, wrought by those unhallowed creatures that for sockethe Colome, and apposed their defalate Breibren to extrearoe miferie. Tou fall know that eight and mente or thatie of the Company, were appointed (in the ship called the Swallow) to trucke for Corne with the Indians, and basing extanted a great garnitie by trading, the mail feducon of them, confired together, persuaded some, and enforced others to this barbarasu prosect. They fole away the hip , they made a league amongst themselves to be professed Perats, with dreamer of Mount aires of Gold, and bappe Robberies : ibus at anoinflant atbey peromand the bopes, and sugarred the cares of the Colonic, who depends of apontheir returne; fore-flowed to lange out far further promition; they created the Ladians our implacable enomies by some vivience they had affered : they carried away the best buy (which fronta h us beere a 20 refuse in extramities:) they weakened our forces, by substraction of their armes and successes. These are that scurme of men that fayling in their Piracie, that being sinched with suming and perure, after their mildo roung upon the Sea, when all their lawleffe hapes failed, fome remarked with other Livales. ther men upon the Sea, the others resolved to returne for England, bound themselves by mu wan Quin, to agree all in one report to a feredit the Land, to deplore the famine, and to protest that this their commise away proceeded from desperate vecessive: These are they, that roared out the Trage all Historie of the men cating of his deat Wife in Virginia; when the Master of this ship willingly confessed before for the witne fles, that at their comming away, they left three monethes victuals, and all the Cattel living in the Fort : fementimes they reported that they fam this horrible altion, fometimes that Captaine Davies (and 6, Cometimes that one Beailla the Lieutenant of Captaine Danies did relate it , varying this report 30 mes describes of falls colours, which hold no likenesse and proportion: but to elecre all doubts, Ser Tuomas Gates thus relegath the Tragedie. There was one of the Company who mortally hated his Wife, and therefore fecretly killed her, then cut her in pieces and hid her in divers parts of his House: when the woman was mifting, the man ful pected, his House searched, and parts of her mangled bodie were discovered, to excute himfelte lie faid that his Wife died, that he hid her to fatisfie his nunger, and that hee fed darly vpon her. Vpon this, his Houle was againe fearched, where they found a good quantitie of Meale, Oat-meale, Beanes and Peale. He thereupon was arraigned, confessed the Murder, and was burned for his horrible villany. Now shall the scandalous reports of a viperous generation, preponderate the testimonies of so worthy Londers? Shall their venemous tongues, blaft the reputation of an ancient and worthy Peere, who upon Lord Lanave, the ocular certainty of future bleffings, bath protested in his Letters, that he will facrifice himselfe for his Countrie in this feruice, if be may be seconded; and if the Company dor gine it oner, bee will jet lay all his fortunes upon the profecution of the Plantation ? Vinto Treasons, you may toyne conetous ressert in the Mariners, who for their prinate lucre partly imbezeled the promisens; partly presented our Trade with the Indians making the Matches in the mubt, and foreffalling our Market in the day : whereby the Virginians were glutted with our Trifles, and inb.unced the prices of their Corne and Victuall. That Copper which before would have provided a bushell would nos now obtaine so much as a Pottle.

forme unto the le another enill: inere is great store of Fish in the Riuer, especially of Sturgeon; but our 50 men promided no more of them then for p elent ne efficie, not barrelling up any flore against that feafon the Stargeon returned to the Sea. And not to diffemble their folly, they fuffered fourteene nets (ubi; h was all they had) torot and pople, which by orderly drying and mending might have been preferred : but being lost, all helpe of filhing perilhed.

The flate of the Colony, by these accidents began to finde a sensible declining : which Power at an (as a areedy Vulture) observing, and boyling with desire of revenge, bee inuited Captaine Ratel iffe, and about therety others to trade for Corne, and vader the colour of fairest friendship, bee brought them with in the compasse of bis amoush, whereby they were cruelly murthered and mass acred. For upon considence of his fidelitie, they went one and one into fenerall boufes, which canfed their fenerall destructions, when if but any fixe hadremained together, they would have beene a Bulwarke for the generall prefernation. After this, Powhatan in the right cut off some of our Roats, he draue away all the Deere into the further part of the Countrey, bee and his people destroyed our Hogs (to the number of about fixe bundred) hee sent one of his Indians to trade with vs, but layed secret ambushes in the Woods, that if one or two dropped ont of the Fort alone, they were indangered. Cast up the reckning together: want of government, fore of idlenesse, their expectations frustrated

by the Traitos, their market Spirled by the Mariners, our Nets broken, the Deere chafed, our Boats loft. our Hous killed our grade with the Indians forbidden, some of our men fled, some muribered, and most be drinking of the brackifb mater of lames Fort weakened and indangered , famine and ficknesse by all these meanes increased, here at home the monyes came in fo flowly, that the Lord Laware could not bee difparched till the Colony was worne and spint with difficulties : Aboue all, bauing neither Rulet, nor Preacher, they neither feared God, nor man, which prouded the wrath of the Lord of Hofts, and pulled downe his indgements upon them. Diferte sufficiam monici.

The Councell of Virg nia (finding the smallesse of that returne, which they boped sould have defrate ed the charge of a new (hoppy) entred into a deepe confulsation, and propounded amongst themselves. whether it were fit to enter into a new contribution, or in time to fend for home the Lord La-wate, and to a in bandon the action. They resolved to fend for Sir Thomas Gares, who being come, they adiared him to deale plainly with them, and to make a true relation of those things which were presently to be bad . hereafter to be booed for in Virginia. Sir Thomas Gates with a folemne and farred outh replied the all things before reported were true : that the Country yeelded abundance of Wood, as Oake, Wainfea. Walnut Trees, Bay Trees, Alhe, Sarfafrafe, line Oake, greene all the yeere, Cedar and Fir; which are the materialls, of Soape albes, and Pot albes, of Oyles of Walnuts, and Bayes, of Pitch and Tur, of Class boards, Pipe Stanes, Masts and excellent boards of fortie, fiftie, and fixtie length, and three foot breath. when one Firre tree is able to make the maine Mait of the greatest Ship in England. He anouched that there are incredible varietie of (weet woods, especially of the Balfamum tree, which distilleth a precious Gumme: that there are innumerable white Mulberry trees, which in fo warme a climate may cherift 20 and feede millions of Silke-wormes, and returne vs in a very fort time, as great a plenty of Silke as is vented into the whole world from all the parts of Italy : that there are diners forts of Minerals, effecial. ly of Iron oare lying rippe the ground for ten Miles strenite; of which weehave made a trial at home. that it maketh as good Iron as any is in E rope :) that a kinde of Himpe or Flaxe, and Silke Graffe doe growthere naturally, which will affoord stuffe for all manner of excellent Cordage: That the River suarmeth with all manner of Sturgeon : the Land aboundeth with Vines ; the Woods doe barbour exceeding fore of Beauers, Foxes, and Squirrels; the Waters doe nourish a great encrease of Otters, all which are conered with precious Furres : that there are in present disconered Dyes and Drugges of fundry qualities: that the Orenges which have beene planted, did profper in the winter, which is an infallible argument that Lemmons, Sugar Canes, Almonds, Rice, Annifeede, and all other commodities which wee bane from the 30 Straights, may be supplied to us in our owne Country, and by our owne industry: that the Corne reliant a terrible encrease more then ours : and lastly, that it is one of the goodlieft Countries under the Sume: enterneemed with fine maine Rivers, and promissing as rich entrals as any Kingdome of the earth, to whom the sunne is no neerer a neighbour.

CHAP. VIII

The Voyage of Captaine SAMVEL ARGAL, from Iames Towne in Virginia, to feeke 40 the He of Bermuda, and missing the same, his putting over toward Sagadahoc and Cape Cod, and so backe againe to lames Towne, begun the nineteenth of lune, 1610.

Iune 19. 1610.

1758

till eight of the clocke at night it was all Southerly, and then that shifted to South-west. The Cape then bearing West, about eight leagues off. Then wee stirred away South-east. The foure and twentieth, at noone I observed the Sunne , and found my selve to bee in thirtie fixe degrees, fortie leuen minutes, about twentie leagues off from the Land. From the foure and twentieth at noone, to the fiu- and twentieth at noone, fixe leagues East, the wind Southerly, but for the most part it was calme. From the five and twentieth at noone, to the fixe and twentieth about fixe of the clocke in the morning, the winde was all Southerly, and but little. And then it beganne to blow a fresh gale at West South-west. So by noone I had failed fourteene leagues East, South-east pricked. From the fixe and twentieth at noone, to the feuen and twentieth at noone, twentie leagues East, South-east. The wind faiting from the West, South-west Southerly, and so to the 60 East, and the weather faire, but close. From the seuen and twentieth at noone, to the eight and twentieth at noone, fixe and twentie leagues East, South-east, the wind shifting backe againe from the East to the West. Then by mine observation I found the ship to be in thirtie five degrees fitie foure minutes. From the eight and twentieth at noone, to the nine and twentieth at noone, CHAP.7. Fresh gale, Calme weather. Very formy westerly pariation. thirtie fixe leagues East by South, the wind at West, North-west. Then by my observation I found the ship to be in thirtie five degrees, thirtie minutes pricked. From the nine and twentieth at noone, to the thirtieth at noone, thirtie fine leagues East, South-east, The winde thifting betweene West, North-west, and West, South-west, blowing a good fresh gale. Then by my obseruation I found the ship to be in thirtie foure degrees, fortie nine minutes pricked. From the thirtieth of lune at noone, to the first of July at noone, thirtie leagues South-east by East, the winde at well, then I found the thip in thirtie foure degrees pricked.

From the first of July at noone, to the second at noon, twentie leagues East, South-east southerly, the wind West, then I found the ship to bee in thirtie three degrees, thirtie minutes pricked. the weather very faire. From the fecond at noone, to the third at foure of the clocke in the efternoone it was calme, then it beganne to blow a resonable fresh gale at South-east : so I made account that the ship had driven about fixe leagues in that time Eath. The Sea did set all about the Well. From that time to the fourth at noone, feuenteene leagues East by North, the wind shifting betweene South-east and South South-welt, then I found the ship to bee in thirtie three degrees, fortie minutes, the weather continued very faire. From the fourth at noone, to the fifth at noone, ten leagues South-east, the wind and weather as before, then I found the thip to be in thirtie three degrees, feuenteene minutes pricked. From the fitt at noone, to the fixt at noone, eight leagues South-west, then I found the thip to be in thirtie two degrees, fiftie seuen minutes pricked; the wind and weather continued as before, only we had a fin ill showre or two of raine.

20 From the fixt at noone, to the leventh at noone, feventeene leagues Eatt by North, then I found the thip to be in thirtie three degrees, the wind and weather as b. tore. From the fenenth at noon, to the eight at noone, fourteene leagues North-east, then I found the ship to be in thirtie three 13. degrees, degrees, thirtie two minutes, the wind and weather continued as before, From the eight at noon as minute to the ninth at noone, fine Isagues South-east, there I found the ship to be in thirtie times degrees. to the ninth at noone, nucleased as south-weit, he weather very faire. From the ninth at noone, to the tenth at noone, fine leagues South, the wind westerly; but for the most part it was calee, and the weather very faire. From the tenth at noone, to the eleuenth at noone it was calme, and so continued vntill nine of the clocke the same night, then it began to blow a reasonable fresh gale at South-east, and continued all that night betweene South-east and South, and wntill the 33. deore

20 twelfth day at noone ; by which time I had failed fifteene leagues West southerly ; then I found the ship in thirtie three degrees, thirtie minutes. From that time to foure of the clock the twelfth day in the morning twelve leagues West by North, the wind all southerly, and then it shifted betweene South and South-weit, then wee tacked about and flood South-east, and South-east by South : fo by noone I had fayled fine leagues South-east by East; then I found the ship in thirtie three degrees ten minutes. From the thirteenth at noone, to the fourteenth at nor ne; twenty leagues South-east by East, the wind shifting betweene the South-west, and West South-west. then I found the ship to be in thirtie two degrees, thirtie five minutes. From the fourteenth at 32. degrees, noone, to the fifteenth at noone, twentie leagues South-eaft, then I found the thip to be in thirty two degrees, the wind as before : then we tacked about, and lay North-west by West. From the 40 fifteenth at noone, to the fixteenth at noone, twelve leagues North by West, the wind shifting

betweene South-west and West, and the weather very stormy, with many sudden suffs of wind

And about fixe of the clocke in the afternoone, being to windward of our Admirall I bare vp. He freaker vnder his lee : who when I hayled him, told me that he would tack it vp no longer , because hee with the Adwas not able to keepe the fea any longer, for lacke of a road and water : but that hee would pre- mnall. fently fleere away North North-well, to fee if he could fetch Cape Cod. Which without delay he put in execution. His directions I followed : fo from the fixteenth day at noone to the feuenteenth at noone I had failed thirtie eight leagues North North-west : then I found my ship to be ward Cape cod in thirtie foure degrees, ten minutes. The feuenteenth and eighteenth dayes were very wet and ftormy, and the winds shifting all points of the Compasse. The nineteenth day, ab ut foure of the 50 clocke in the morning it began to cleere up, and then we had a very shiffe gale betweene East and North-east. From the seventeenth at noone, to the nineteenth at noone, I had sayled fiftie five leagues North North-west, then I found the ship to be thirtie fixe degrees, thirty minutes. From the nineteenth at noone, to the twentieth at noone, thirty fine leagues North-well : then I was in thirty feuen degrees, fifty two minutes, the weather now was fairer and the wind all eafterly. From the twentieth at moone, to the twentie one at noone, we fayled twenty leagues North by West, the wind betweene East and South-east, and the weather very faire: At the sunne setting Western -I observed, and found thirteene degrees, and an halfe of wetter'y variation, and vntill midright arion we had a reasonable fresh gale of wind all foutherly, and then it fell coline and cained and to con- gree-

60 tinued very little wind vntill the two and twentieth at nonne, and thitrang at any points of the Compasse : yet by mine observation that I made then, I round rout the slap be to un twenty ship to said a leagues North, for I found her to be in forty degrees, one minute, which was the works week. there was some tide or current that did fet Northward. Again , those was hear the place of wards did fay, That in their watch they did feea race, and that thip did Cheeser see is the Konthosers of when she had not a breath of wind.

From the two and twentieth at noone, vntill ten of the clocke at night, we had a fresh gale of wind, betweene East and South-east, and then it shifted all westerly, and so continued vneilt

two of the clocke the twenty three in the morning; and then it began to be very foggy and but little wind, yet shifting all the points of the Compasse, and so continued vntill ten of the clocke. and then it began to cleete vp. At twelue of the clocke I observed, and then I found the ship to be in fortie degrees fiftie minutes : fo from the twenty two at noone, to the twenty three at noone I had fayled twenty leagues Northward. From the twenty three at noone, to the twenty foure, at three of the clocke in the morning it was calme, and then we had a reasonable fresh sale of wind all foutherly, and so it continued vntill noon foutherly, in which time I had failed twelve leagues North. And about foure of the clocke in the afternoone, we had forry feuen fathoms of 10 water, which water we did find to be changed into a graffe green in the morning, yet we would not heave a lead, because our Admirall was so farre on head of vs : who about three of the clocke in the afternoone lay by the lee, and fished till I came vp to him : and then I fitted my selfe and my boat, and fished vntill sixe of the clocke. And then the Admirall sitted his failes, and stirred away North, whom I followed with all the speed I could. But before feuen of the clocke there fell such a myst, that I was faine to shoot off a Peece, which he answered with a Cornet that he had aboord. So with hallowing and making a noyfe one to another all the night we kept company. About two of the clocke, the twenty hie day in the morning we tooke in all our failes, and lay at Hull wntill five of the clocke : and then finding but imall flore of fifh, we fet taile and firred away North-west, to fetch the mayne land to relieue our selues with wood and water, which we flood in great need of. About two of the clocke in the afternoone we tooke in all our failes and lay at Hull, a. which time I heaved the lead three times together, and had three fundry kindes of foundings. The first a blacke peppery fand, full of peble stones. The second blacke peppery, and no ftones : The third blacke peppery, and two or three ftones. From the fourth at noone, to the twentie five, at wo of the clocke in the afternoone, I (avled thirteene leagues West North-west : and the weather continuing very foggy, thicke, and rainy. about fine of the clocke it began to ceafe, and then we began to fish, and to continued vntill feuen of the clocke in betweene thirty and forty fathoms, and then we could fish no longer. So having gotten betweenetwentie and thirty Cods, we left for that night : and at fine of the clocke, the twenty fixe in the morning we began to fish againe, and so continued virill ten of the clocke, and then it would fish no longer : in which time we had taken neere one hundred Cods, and a couple of Hollybuts. All this while wee had betweene thirty and forty fathoms water: before one of the clocke in the afternoone we found the ship driven into one hundred and twenty fathoms, and foft blacke Ofe. Then Sir George Somers fent me word, that he would fet faile, and stand in for the River of Sagadahoe; whole directions I followed.

Before two of the clocke we fet faile, and furred away North-west by North, the wind South South-west, and the weather continued very foggy. About eight of the clocke wee tooke in all our failes, and lay at Hull at that night. The feuen and twentieth, about feuen of the clocke in the morning we heated the lead, and had no ground in one hundred and twentie fathoms. Then I thou off a Peece, but could not heare none answere from our Admirall: and the weather was so 40 thicke, that we could not fee a Cables length from our ship. Betweene nine and ten of the clock we did thinke that we did heare a Peece of Ordnance to windward : which made me suppose our Admirall had fet faile, and that it was a warning piece from him. So I fet fayle and stood close by the wind, and kept an hollowing and a noile to try whether I could find him againe : the wind was at South-west, and I stood away West North-west. From the fixe and twentieth, at two of the clocke in the afternoone, to eight of the clocke at night I had fayled nine leagues North-weft. The feuen and twentieth at noone I heaved the Lead, in one hundred and twenty fathoms, and had no ground. Then I stirred away North-west, till foure of the clocke at night : then I heaved the Lead againe one hundred and twenty fathoms, and had no ground. Then I tooke all my 50 failes and lay at Hull, and I had fayled feuen leagues North-west. The eight and twentieth, at feuen of the clocke in the morning I did found in one hundred and twenty fathoms, and had no ground. Then I iet fayle againe, and steered away North, and North by West. At noone I heated in one hundred and twenty fathoms againe, and had no ground. So I steered on my course still, the wind shifted betweene South and South-west, and the fog continued. At source of the clocke in the afternoone, I heaved one hundred twenty fathoms againe, and had no ground : fo I food on vntill eight of the clocke, by which time I had failed twelve leagues : then I heaved the Lead againe, and had blacke Ofe, and one hundred thirty five fathoms water. Then I tooke in all my fayles and lay at hull vntill the nine and twentieth, at fine of the clocke in the morning. Then I fet faile againe, and steered away North, and North by Weit. At eight of the clocke I heared the Lead againe, and had blacke Ofe in one hundred and thirty fathoms water. Betweene eleuen and twelue of the clocke it began to thunder, but the fogge continued not still. About two of the clocke in the afternoone, I went out with my Boat my leffe and heaved the Lead, and had blacke Ofe in ninety fathoms water: by which time I had failed fix leagues North by Weit more. Then I vooke in all my tayles fauing my Fore-course and Bonnet, and stood in with tholefailes onely.

About fixe of the clocke I founded againe, and then I had fixty flue fathoms water. Affoone as I came abourd it cleered up; and then I taye a small Il and awhich bare North about two leagues off: whereupon I flood in vatilleight of the clocke : And then I flood off agains vatill two of the slocke in the morning the thirtieth day. Then Litood in againe, and about eight of the clocke I was faire aboord the Hand. Then I manned my. Boat and went on fhoure; where I found great flore of Seales : And I killed three Scales with my hanger. This I land is not halfe a mile about, and A Rocke of flore of Seales: And a Ritted tirrer States with my hanger, and a fact is not have a mine about, and Marble halfe rothing but a Rocke, which feemed to be very rich Marble flone. And a South South weft Moon a mile about maketha full Sea. About ten of the clocke I came abourd againe, with some Wood tha I had tuli of Seales. found vponahelland, for there had beene some folkes that had made fiers there, Then I flood Theimilrocks ouer to another lland that didbeare North off me about three leagues; this small rockie Hand ly- Iland lieth in ouer to another Hand that diebeare North of the clocke that right I came to an anchor among many 44 degrees, llands in eight fathoms water : and vpon one of thefe llands I fitted my lelfe with Wood and in eight fa-

The third day of August , being fitted to put to Sex againe . I cadfed the Master of the shap to August 3. open the boxe wherein my Committion was, to fee what directions I had, and for what place I was bound to shape my course. Then I tried whether there were any fish shereor not and I tound Reform le reasonable good ftore there; to I stayed there fishing till the twelfrin or August and then finding flore of nin. that the fifting did faile, I thought good to returne to the Iland where I bad killed the Seales, to fee whether I could get any store of them or not ; for I did find that they were very nourshing on meate, and a great reliefe to my men, and that they would be very well faued with labeto keepe along time. But when I came thicker I could not by any meanes catch any. The fourteenth day seale Rocke in at noone I polerued the Sen, and found the Hand to be in torty three degrees, for y minutes. Then 43 deg, 47 ml I thankdome source for Cape Cod, to fee whether I could get any felerander or not 210 by the fit. teenth that noone, I had failed thirty two leagues South-west, the wind for the most part was home. betweene Northisvell and North. From the fifteenth at moone , to the fixteenth at moone I ran twenty leagues South , the wind thifting betweene West and South-west. And then Flounded and had ground in eighteene fathoms water, full of thele and poble it excessof divergedients a forme greene, and some ble wish, some like diamants, and some speckled: Theo i make in all by sayles, and let all my company to filling, and filled till eight the the clocke the triplet and finding but little fift there, I let fayle againe, and by the mensenthan noone I bachly jed ten teagues Welt by North, the wind hifting betweene South and South well. From noone, till fixe at the clocke at night, foure leagues North-well, the wind finfting dienweene Welt and South-well. Then it was all and did blow to hard that I tooke in all my fayles, and lay at hull all that night, vntill nue of the clock the eighteenth day in the morning rand then I fer faile againe, and by noone I had failed foure leagues North-west, the wind betweene West and South-west. From the eighteenth at noone. to the nineteenth at noone ten leagues Well by Well, the wind shifting betweene South and South-west, and the weather very thick and fogey.

About feven of the clocke at night the fogge began to breake away, and the wind did fhif: Thick and foge westerly . and by midnight it was shifted to the North, and there it did blow very hard vntill gic was her. so the twenty at noone ; but the weather was very cleere, and then by my oblequation I found the thin to bee in the latitude of forty one degrees, forty foure minutes, and I had lailed twenty leagues South-west by West. From the mneteenth at noone, to the twentieth at noone : about two of the clocke in the afternoone T did fee an Hed-Tand, which did beare off me South-west, 41.4 g. 44 mls about four eleagues : fo I steered with it, taking it to bee Cape Cod; and by four of the clocke I was fallen among fo many shoales, that it was fue of the clocke the fiest day in the morning before I could get cleere of chem , at is a wory dangerous place to fall witholl stortle faciles hear Cape Cot. the leaft ten leagues off from the Land ; and I had voon one of them but one fathom and an halfe the des water, and may Barke did draw feben foor. This Land lyeth Southwest, and Northwest, and the Speales lie of from it South and South by Welt, and I a slong toward the North. Me the North-so tie-one debrees, fitte minutes, being then in the middle of the Sholdes rand I did finde thirteene. The midd of degrees on welkerly variation then likewife. Thus finding the place not to be for my turne afform the Sholees in as I was degre of thele dangers, I shought it fit to return to laner Towne in Um with , to elle 41 deg. so mis Lord De-lawarre, my Lord Goutenous and theresto assend his command: lo Ishaped my coarle weff rhy Vafor that place. And the one and twenteeth day by noone I had brought my felie South South ria ton. west thirtie three leagues from this Cape; and I had the wind shifting all this while betweene North and Morth-weth , and the weather very faire thid theire: From the one and twentieth at noone, to the two and ewentieth at noone, I ran thirtie lesgues South-West by Walty and then by mine obternation I foundabe ship to be in ellistic mirrealegrees, that is free minutes want Flad 12. degrees of 63 twelve degrees welterly waration, and the wind finiting between North and North east, waterly Vaand the weather very faire and electe. From the two and twentieth at moone, to the three and twentieth at noone , nine leagues Sounts well by West ; and then by observation leid find the 11 degrees of Ship in thirtie nine degrees, twent citomeminines, and I had eleven degrees of westerly variation on ; and there did blow but very little ward , and thatting betweene West and North, and the welkby West Guards Fobferned the North-Starre, and found the faire of be in the lattered of for-

1761

Water. Weer like en-

Sounding.

Great fog and 100.Cods 13ken.

Th. Ship d sueth.

They ft and for the River of Sazadahoc.

Virie foggie weather.

The thick fog continuerh.

The fog con-

1762

weather very faire and cleere. From the three and twentieth at noone to the foure and twentieth at nome eighteene leagues South-west , and then I found the shippe to be in there is he degrees fortie two minutes : and I had swelve degrees of Westerly Variation, and the wind thisting betweene North and West, and the weather very faire.

From the foure and twentieth at noone, to the flue and twentieth, at noone two and twentie leagues West by South, the wind shifting betweene North and East, And then I found the ship to bee in thirtie eight degrees fine and twentie minutes, and the fame Variation that I had before.

and the weather very faire. From the fine and twentieth at noone, to the fix and twentieth at noone, fine and twentie leagues Westerly, the wind all shifting betweene South and South-west. And I had thirteene to degrees five and twentie minutes of Welterly Variation. About fixe of the clocke at night the water was changed, and then I founded and had red fandie ground in twelve fathomes water a of Wefterly bout twelue leagues from the shore. variation.

The feven and twentieth by day in the morning, I was faire aboord the shore, and by nine of the clocke I came to an Anchor in nine fathomes in a very great Bay, where I found great flore of people which were very kind, and promifed me that the next day in the morning they would bring me great ftore of Corne. But about nine of the clocke that night the winde shifted from South-west to East North-east. So I weighed presently, and shaped my course to Cape Charles. This Bay lyeth in Westerly thirtie leagues. And the Souther Cape of it lyeth South South-east and North North-west .. and in thirtie eight degrees twentie minutes of Northerly Latitude, 20 The eight and twentieth day, about foure of the clocke in the afternoone I fell among a great

Many thooles many of thooles, about twelve leagues to the Southwest of Cape La Warre. So there I came to the South of Cape La Warre

12. leagues to an Anchor in three fathomes water, the winde beeing then all Eafterly , and rode there all that The nine and twentieth in the morning I weighed againe, the wind being all Southerly, and turned vntill night, and then I came to an Anchor in leven fathomes water in the offing to Sea. How the tyde did fer there; or whether that there did runany current or not , I cannot fay;

but I could find neither current nor tyde. The thirtieth in the morning I weighted againe, the wind still Southerly, and turned all that day, but got very little, fo at Euening I frood off to Sea vneill midnight, and then ftood in againe. 10 The one and thirtieth, about feuen of the clocke at night I came to an Anchor vnder Cape Charles in foure fathomes, and one third part water, and rode there all that night.

Cane Charles.

CHAP. VIII.

A fhort Relation made by the Lord De-La-Warre, to the Lords and others of the Counfell of Virginia, touching his unexpetted returns home, and afterwards delinered to the generall Affembly of the faid Company, at a Court holden the twentie fine of fune, 1611. Published by authoritie of the faid Counfell.

My Lords, &c.

Eing now by accident returned from my Charge at Virginia, contrary either to my ownedente or other mens expechations, who spare aut to cenfure mee, in point of dutie, and routifourfe and quetion the reason, though they apprehend not the true caule of my returne, I am forced (out of a will inenelle to fatisfie euery man) touteliner enco your Lordships, and the rest of this Assembly, briefly to (but truly) in what flate bhaue lined, euer fince my arrivall to the Colonie; what hath beene the just occasion of my furtherndeparture thence; and in what termes I have left the fame: The rather because I perceive, that fince my comming into England, fuch a coldnesse and irresolution is bred, in many of the Adventurers, that some of them feeke to withdraw those payments, which they have subscribed towards the Charge of the Plantation, and by which that Action must be supported and mayntained, making this my returne, the colour of their needlesse backwardnesseand vniust protraction. Which, that you may the better understand; I must informe your Lordhips, that presently after my arrivall in lames Towne. I was welcommed by a hot and violent Ague; which held me a time, till by the addice of my Physicion, Doctour Land Lord La Werter Pence Babin (by bloud letting) I was recourted as in my first Letters by Sir Thomas Gates, I have 60 informed you. That Dufeafe had not long lett me, till (within three weekes after I had gotten a little ftrengch) I began so beidiftempered with other greunus fickniffes, which facesficely and feuerally, affailed meet for befiles a relapfe into the former Dileafe, which with much more violence held me more third a monetty, and brought me to great weaknesse; the Flux surprized mee, and kept me many dayes; then the Crampe affaulted my weake bodie, with strong paines; and afrerwards the Gort (with which I had heeretofore beene fometime troubled) afficted me in fuch fort, that making my bodie through weaknesse vnable to stirre, or to vie any manner of exercise, drew voon me the Difeate called the Scurry; which though in others it be a ficknesse of slothfolnesse, yet was in me an effect of weaknesse, which never left mee, till I was voon the point to

Thefe feuerall Maladies and Calamities, I am the more defirous to particularife voto your Lordthinges (although they were too notorious to the whole Colonie) left any man should middeeme that under the generall name and common excuse of ticknesse, I went about to cloke either sloth, on or feare, or any other bise apprehension, vinworthy the high and Monorable Charge, which you had entrusted to my Fidelitie. In these extremities I resolved to consult my friends, Who finding Nature spent in mee, and my body almost confumed, my paines likewife daily encreasing) gaue me adulte to prefer a hopefull recodery, before an affured ruine, which must necessarily have ensued, had I lived, but twentie dayes longer in Virginia: wanting at that inflant, both food and Phylicke, fit to remedy fuch extraordinary Dicafes, and restore that strength fo desperately decayed. Whereupon, after a long confiltation held, I refolued by generall confent and perswafion, to fhip my felfe for Menis, an Illand in the West Indies, famous for wholfesome Bathes, there to try what helpe the Heauenly Prouidence would affoord mee, by the benefit of the hot Bath: an But God, who guideth all things, according to his good will and pleafure, fo prouided, that after we had fayled an hundred Leagues, we met with Southerly windes which forced mee to change my purpole (my bodie being altogether vnable to endure the tediousnesse of a long Voyage) and fo feere my course for the Westerne Hands, which I no sooner recoursed, then I found helpe for my health, and my ficknesse asswaged, by meanes of fresh Diet, and especially of Orenges and Orenges and Lemons, an vindoubted remedy and medicine for that Difeate, which laftly, and to long, had at- Lemons good flicted me : which ease as I found, I resolved (alchough my body remayned still feeble remede tor and weake, to returne backe to my charge in Fremia againe, but I was aduised not to hazard my the Scurue. felfe before I had perfectly recouered my ftrength, which by counfell I was perfwaded to feeke in the naturall Ayre of my Countrey, and so I came for England. In which Accident , I doubt m not but men of reason, and of judgement will imagine, there would more danger and prejudice haue happened by my death there, then I hope can doe by my returne.

In the next place, I am to give account in what estate I left the Colonie for government in my absence. It may please your Lordships therefore to understand, that upon my departure thence I made choice of Captaine George Percie (a Gentleman of honour and resolution, and of no small Master George experience in that place, to remayne Deputie Gouernour, vntill the comming of the Marshall till incom-Sir Thomas Dale, whose Commission was likewise to be determined, upon the arruall of Sir Thomas Dale, whose Commission was likewise to be determined, upon the arruall of Sir Thomas Dale, whose Commission was likewise to be determined, upon the arruall of Sir Thomas Dale, whose Commission was likewise to be determined, upon the arrual of Sir Thomas Dale, whose Commission was likewise to be determined, upon the arrual of Sir Thomas Dale, whose Commission was likewise to be determined, upon the arrual of Sir Thomas Dale, whose Commission was likewise to be determined, upon the arrual of Sir Thomas Dale, whose Commission was likewise to be determined, upon the arrual of Sir Thomas Dale, whose Commission was likewise to be determined, upon the arrual of Sir Thomas Dale, whose Commission was likewise to be determined, upon the arrual of Sir Thomas Dale, whose Commission was likewise to be determined. mas Gates, according to the intent and order of your Lordhips, and the Councell here.

Dale Martill

The number of men I left there, were vpward of two hundred, the most in health, and pro- 200 let there. nided of at least ten moneths victuals, in their Store-house (which is daily iffued voto them) bewhildes other helps in the Countrey, lately found out by Captaine Argell by trading with pettie Trade by Capa Kings in those parts, who for a small returne of a piece of Iron, Copper, &c. have consented to ar 30%. trucke great quantities of Corne, and willingly imbrace the intercourse of Traffique, shewing vnto our people certaine fignes of amitie and affection.

And for the better strengthening and securing of the Colonie, in the time of my weaknesse there, I tooke order for the building of three leuerall Forts, two of which are leated neere Point Three Forts. Comfort, to which adiovneth a large circuit of ground, open, and fit for Corne : the third Fort is at the Falls, upon an Iland invironed also with Corne ground. These are not all manned, for I wanted the commoditie of Boats, having but two, and one Barge, in all the Countrey, which hath beene cause that our fishing hath beene (in some fort) hindered for want of those provisione, which eafily will be remedied when we can gaine fufficient men to bee imployed about those bufinelles, which in Virginia I found not : but lince meeting with Sir Thomas Gates at the Cower Sir T. G. techis neere Portsmouth, (to whom I gaue a particular account of all my proceedings, and of the pre- second voyage fent estate of the Colonie as I left it) I understood those wants are supplyed in his Fleet. The Country is wonderfull fertile and very rich, and makes good whatforuer heretofore hath beene reported of it, the Cattell alreadie there, are much encreased, and thrive exceedingly with the pasture of that Countrie: The Kine all this last Winter, though the ground was covered most with Snow, and the Seafon sharpe, lived without other feeding then the grasse they found, with which they profpered well, and many of them readie to fall with Calue: Milke beeing a great nourithment and refreshing to our people, feruing also (in occasion) as well for Physicke as for 60 food, to that it is no way to be doubted, but when it shall please God that Sir Thomas Dale, and 100. Kine and Sir Thomas Gates, shall arrive in Virginia, with their extraordinary supply of one hundred Kine, 200. Swine and two hundred Swine, befides ftere of all manner of other provisions for the fuffenance and fent, maintenance of the Colonie, there will appeare that fucceile in the Action as shall give no man sause of diffruit that hath alreadie aduentured, but encourage euery good minde to further so worthy a worke, as will redound both to the glory of God, to the credit of our Nation, and to the comfort of all those that have beene Instruments in the furthering of it.

Hhhhhhhh

K. and R. Pa

The last Differency, during my continual licknesse, was by Captaine Argoll, who hath found a Trade with Patamack (a King as great as Powhatan, who still remaynes our Enemie, though not able to doe vs burt.) This is in a goodly River called Patomack, vpon the borders whereof there are growne the goodlieft Trees for Mafts, that may bee found elfe-where in the World : Hempe better then English: growing wild in abundance: Mynes of Antimonie and Lead.

There is also found without our Bay to the Northward an excellent fishing Banke for Cod and Ling, as good as can be eaten, and of a kind that will keepe a whole yeere in ships hold, with little care: a triail whereof I now have brought over with me. Other Ilands there are voon our Io Coafts, that doe promife rich Merchandize, and will further exceedingly the establishing of the Plantation, by supply of many helpes, and will speedily affoord a returne of many worthy com-

Thaue left much ground in part manured to receive Corne, having caused it the last Winter to be fowed for Roots, with which our people were greatly relegied. There are many Vines planted in divers places, and doe profper well, there is no want of any thing, if the action can be voheld with constancie and resolution.

Latily, concerning my felfe and my course, though the World may imagine that this Countrie and Climate, will (by that which I have suffered beyond any other of that Plantation) ill aoree with the flate of my bodie, yet I am fo farre from thrinking or giving over this honourable 20 Enterprize, as that I am willing and readie to lay all that I am worth youn the adventure of the Action, rather then fo Honourable a Worke should faile, and to return with all the conuenient expedition I may, befeeching your Lordhips and the reft, not onely to excuse my former wants. happened by the Almightie Hand : but to second my Resolutions with your friendly indepours: that both the Scate may receive Honour, your felues Profit, and I future Comfort, by beeing imployed (though but as a weake Instrument) in so great an Action.

And thus having plainly, truly, and briefly delinered the cause of my returne, with the state of our affaires, as we now stand, I hope every worthy and indifferent hearer, will by comparing my present resolution of returne, with the necessitie of my comming home, rest satisfied with this true and short Declaration.

CHAP. IX.

A Letter of Sir Samuell Argoll touching his Voyage to Virginia, and Actions there : Written to Master Nicholas Hames. Iune 1613.

After Hawes, within senenweekes after my departure from the Coast of England, being the three and twentieth of Iuly, 1612. I fell with the Coaft of Virginia, in the La- 40 tituae of fortie degrees. The twelfth of September, with all my men in good health, the number being fixtie two, and all my vittuals very well conditioned: my course being fiftie leagues to the Northward of the Azores. The feuenteenth, I arrived at Point Comfort, where by the discreet and provident government of Sir Thomas Gates, and

Sir T. Gater. Sir T. Dale. The Deline-

Yance.

Hand.

This was in the River of Nanfamund.

Sir T. Smiths

His first Vov-

mee and Pen-brooke River.

ftancie.

age to Pateman-

orest paines and bazard of Sir Thomas Dale, I found both the Country and people in farre better estate there, then the report was by such as came home in Sir Robert Manshelds Ship. From my arrissall until the first of November, I spent my time in helping to repaire such ships and Boats, as I found beere decayed for lacke of Pitch and Tarre : and in pursuing the Indians with Sir Thomas Dale, for their Corne, of which we got some quantitie, which we were like to have bought very deerely: for by the Providence of God, Sir Thomas Dale escaped killing very narrowly. Then about the beginning of No- 50 uember, by the advice of Sir Thomas Gates, I carried Sir Thomas Dale to Sir Thomas Smiths I. land, to have his opinion of the inhabiting of it: who, after three dayes march in discovering it, appreced His Voyage to very well of the place : and so much the better, because we found abundance of fish there, and very great Cod, which we caught in fine fathome water, of which we are in hope to get a great quantitie this Summer, for the reliefe of our men, as also to find safe passage for Boats and Barges thitber, by a cut out of the bottome of our Bay, into the De la Watre Bay. For which filling and better Diffenery, I have my fing Dola War Bay. readie, with my Company in as good health, as at my arrivall, and as they have continued oner fince : for which, God be glorified, to whom we give daily thankes, for the continuance of his mercy.

After my returne from Sir Thomas Smiths Hand, I fitted my Ship to feteb Corne from Patowomeck, by trading with the Indians, and fo fet Sayle from Point Comfort the first of December; and being 60 entred into Penbrooke River, I met with the King of Pastancie a hunting, who went prefently about with me, feeming to be very glad of my comming, and told me that all the Indians there were my very Wernance of Pagreat friends, and that they had good flore of Corne for mee , which they had provided the seere before, which we found to be true. Then I carried my lap prefently before his Towne, and there had not a font Shallop, to get the Corne aboord withall, which being done, and having concluded a peace with divers other Indian Lords, and likewife given and taken * Hostages: I hasted to lames Towne, beeing the first of * Cap. Web. January and arrived at Point Comfort the first of February.

In this Voyage I got 1100. bulbels of Corne, which I delinered into the fenerall Store boufes, accor- Rob. Sparkes & ding unto the direction of Sir T. Gates : besides the quantuie of 300. busbels, reserved for mine Compa- two Boyes. ny. As soone I had valaden this Corne, I set my men to the felling of Timber, for the building of a Fre. 1100 buthels of Corne. gat, which I left halfe finished in the hands of the Carpenters at Point Comfort, the 19. of March: The second and returned my felfe with the flip into Pernbrook River, and fo discovered to the head of it, which is a - voyaget Penbout 65, leagues into the Land, and nauigable for any flip. And then marching into the Countrie, I found brooke River.

bout 65, leagues into the Lana, and ranguous for no spring, and the my guides, killed a couple which wee Note.

10 great store of Cattle as big as Kine, of which, the Indians that were my guides, killed a couple which wee Great sore of found to be very good and wholfome meate, and are very easie to be killed, in regard they are heavy, flow, Oxen in Penand not so wild as other beasts of the Wildernesse. In this iournie I likewise found a Myne, of which I brooke, have fent a triall into England : and likewife a strange kind of Earth , the vertue whereof I know not : River. but the Indians eate it for Phylicke, alleaging that it cureth the licknesse and paine of the belly .- I then the A Myrie. found a kind of water if sing out of the Earth, which bath a tart taffe much like out o Allum-water, it is Earth, good and wholfome : for my men did drinke much of it, and never found it otherwife. I alfo found an earth A water that like a Gumme, white and cleere; another fort red like Terra figillata; another very white, and of fo light hith the talte

a substance, that being cast into the water, it swimmeth.

Whilst I was in this businesse, I was told by certaine Indians, my friends, that the Great Powhatans An Earthlike 20 Danehter Pokahuntis was with the great King Patowo neck, whether I presently repaired, resolving to Ared Earth polliffe my felfe of ber by any firatagem that I could vie, for the ransoming of fo many Englishmen as like terra field were prisoners with Powhatan ; as also to get fuch armes and tooles, as bee, and other Indians had got late. by murther and flealing from others of our Nation, with some quantitie of Corne, for the Colonies re. The great King b) matther ana steaming some overs of the Powne, I manned my Boate and fent on spoare, for the Ensign Swift.

Ensign Swift. King of Paltancy and Enfigne Swift (whom I had left as a pledge of our love and truce, the Voyage before) who presently came and brought my pleage with him : whom after I had received . I brake the matter to this King, and told him, that if he did not betray Pokohuntis into my hands; wee would be no longer brothers nor friends. Hee alleaged, that if hee Should undertake this bufinesse, then Powhatan would make warres upon him and his people; but upon my promife, that I would in ne with him acainst

30 him, hee repaired presently to his brother, the great King of Patowomeck, who being made acquainted with the matter, called his Counsell together: and after some few boures deliberation, concluded rather to deliner her incomy bands, then lose my friendhip: so presently, he betrayed her into my Boat, wherein I I wabuntu tacarried her abourd my flip. This done, an Indian was dispatched to Powhatan, to let him know that I had ken. taken his Daughter : and if he would fend home the Englishmen (whom he deteined in stanerie, with such armes and tooles, as the Indians had gotten, and (tolne) and also a great quantitie of Corne, that then, he hould have his daughter restored, otherwise not. This newes much grieved this great King, yet, without delay, he returned the messenger with this answer. That he desired me to we his Daughter well, and bring my Ship into his Riner, and there he would give mee my demands; which being performed, I Should deliner bom his Daughter, and we should be friends. Having received this answere, I presently departed from Patowomeck, being the 13. of Aprill, and reparred with all freed to Sir T. Gates, to know of bim upon what condition he would conclude this peace, and what he would demand : to whom I also delinered my prisoner, towards whose ransome within few dayes, this King (ent home fewen of our men, who feemed to be very toy full for that they were freed from 7, men freec, the flauery and feare of cruell murther, which they daily before lined in. They brought also three pieces, one broad Axe, and a long Whip-faw, and one Canow of Corne. I beeing quit of my prisoner went forward with the Frigat which I had left at Point Comfort, and finished her.

Thus having put my ship in hand to be fitted for an intended fishing Voyage, I left that businesse to be followed by my Master with a singe of men, and my Lieutenant fortifled on shoare with another singe to fell timber, and cleane plankes to build a fifting Boat; my Enligne with another ginge was imployed in

50 the Frigat , for getting of filh at Cape Charles, and transforting it to Henries Towne for the reliefe of such men as were there : and my selfe with a fourth ginge departed out of the River in my shallop, the first of May, for to discouer the East side of our Bay, which I found to have many small Rivers in it, and very courty. good harbours for Boats and Baroes, but not for hips of any great burthen; and also creat hore of Inbabitants, who feemed very delivous of ou lone, and formuch the rather, because they had received good reports from the Indians of Pembrock River, of our courteous v fage of them, whom I found trading with me for Corne, whereof they had oreat flore. We also discovered a multunde of Ilands bearing good Medow ground, and as I thinke, Sale might eafily be made there, if there were any ponds digged, for that I found Salt kerned where the water had over-flowne in certaine places. Here is also great store of sish, both shel-fish and other. So bassing discovered along the shore some fortie leagues Northward, I returned againe to my hip, the twelfth of May, and hasted forward my businesse left in hand at my departure; and May 12-1613. fitted up my lip, and built my fifting Boate, and made readie to take the first opportunitie of the wind for my filling Voyage, of which I befeech God of his mercy to bleffe vs.

CHAP.IO. R. Nansamund. Sir Thomas Gates arrivall. Henrico built.

Notes of Virginian Affaires in the government of Sir THOMAS DALE and of Sir THOMAS GATES till Anno 1614. Taken out of Ma. Her RALPH HAMOR (Secretary to the Colonie) his Booke.

Euery mans care is no mans Propriepameftaker.

E found the Colonie at our arrivall there, from the Bermudas, not living aboue 10 threefcore persons therein, and those scarce able to go e alone, of wel-nigh fix hundred not full ten monethes before. The reaton hereof is at hand, for formerly. when our people were fed out of the common store, and laboured iountly in the manuring of the ground, and planting Corne, glad was that man that could flip from inslabout; nay, the most honest of them in a generall businesse, would not take so much faithfull and true paines, in a weeke, as now hee will doe in a day, neither cared they for the increate, prefuming that howfoeuer their hatuest prospered, the general! stere must maintavne them. By which meanes we resped not fo much Corne from the labours of thirtie men, as three men haue done for themselues. To preuent which mitchiefe hereafter Sir Thomas Dale hath taken a new course, throughout the whole Colonie, by which meanes, the generall stere (apparell onely excepted) shall not bee charged with any thing : and this it is, hee hath allotted to energy man in the Colonie, three English Acres of cleere Corne ground, which every man is to mature and tend, being in the nature of Farmers (the Bermuda vndertakers onely excepted) and they are not called voto any feruice or labour belonging to the Colonie, more then one moneth in the veere, which shall neither be in Seed time, or in Haruest, for which, doing no other dutie to the Colonie, they are veerely to pay into the store two barrels and a halfe of Corne : there to be referued to keepe new men, which shall bee fent ouer , the first yeere after their arrivall : and even by this meanes I dare fay, our store will bee bountifully furnished, to maintayne three or source hundred men, whenfoeuer they shall be fept thither to vs. Concerning the vindertaking of the Bermida Citie, a bufineffe of greatest hope, euer begunne 30

Sir Thom Dales

Bermuda Citic.

at a time.

in our Territories there, their Patent, doth apparantly demonstrate, upon what termes and conditions they voluntarily have undertaken that imployment. The Land is stored with plentie and varietie of wild Beafts, Lions, Beares, Deere of all forts, onely differing from ours in their o: 4. Fawnes increase, having vitall, three or foure Fawnes at a time, none that I have seene or heard off vnder two: the reason whereof some of our people ascribe to the vertue of some grasse or herbe which they eate, because our Goates oftentines bring forth three, and most of them two: for my part I rather impute their fecundire to the Providence of God, who for every mouth provideth meate, and if this increase were not, the Naturals would assuredly starue; for of the Deete (they kill as doe we Beefes in England) all the yeere long, neither sparing young nor olde, no not the Does readie to fawne, nor the young Fawnes, if but two dayes olde) Beauers, Otters, Foxes, Racou- 40 nes, almost as bigge as a Foxe, as good meate as a Lambe, Hares, wild Cats, Muske Rats, Squirrels flying, and other of three or foue forts, Apossumes of the bignesse and likenesse of a Pigge of a moneth old, a beaft of as strange incredible nature, she hath commonly leuen young ones, sometimes more and sometimes lesse, which at her pleasure till they be a moneth old or more sheetateth up into her belly, and purteth forth againe without hurt to her felfe or them. Of each of thefe beafts, the Lion excepted, my felte haue many times eaten, and can testifie that they are not onely tailefull, but also wholfome and nourithing food.

Apossumes.

There are fowle of divers forts, Eagles wild Turkeyes much bigger then our English Cranes, Herons white and ruffet Hawkes, wilde Pidgeons (in Winter beyond number or imagination, my selfe haue feene three or foure houres together flockes in the Aire, fo thicke that even they 50 haue shadowed the Skie from vs) Turkeyes, Buzzards , Partridge, Snipes, Owles, Swannes, fore in Outeds. Geele, Brants, Ducke and Mallard, Droeis, Shel-drakes, Cormorants, Teale, Widgeon, Curfore in Outeds. lewes, Puits, beides other small birds, as Black-birds, Heige-Sparrowes, Oxe-eyes, Wood-peekers, and in Winter about Christmasse many flockes of Parakertoths. For fish, the Rivers are plentifully flored, with Sturgeon, Porpasse, Base, Rockfish, Carpe, Shad, A Frigusla- Herring, Ele, Cathilh, Perch, Flat-fish, Trout, Sheepes-head, Drummers, Iarlish, Creuises, Crabbes, Oyfters and divers other kindes, of all which my felfe hath feene great quantitie taken, especially the last Summer at Smiths lland, at one hale a Frigors lading of Sturgion, Bale and other great fish in Captaine Argals Saine : and even at the very place which is not above fifteene miles trom Point. Comfort, if we had beene furnished with falt, to have faued it, wee might have taken 60

firy fo many fruits; Grapes Strawberries, Mulberries, Maricocks, of fallion of a Lemmon, whole Faireflowres, bloffome may admit comparison with our most delight some and beautifull Flowers, and the fruit

as much fish as would have ferued vs that whole yeere. To goe yet a little further, I my felfe know no one Countrey yeelding without Art or induexceeding pleafant and taffuil: Chefine-trees towardes the Falls as many as Oakes, and as fertill many goodly Groues of Chincomen-trees, with a huske like vnto a Cheinut, raw or boiled. Inficious and heartie meat: Walnuts of three or foure forts, whereof there might bee yeerely made oreat quantitie of Oyles, as victual and good as that of Oliues : Some Filberds haue I feene, Crabs Crabs. great store, leffe, but not to fower as ours, which grafted with the Siens of English Apple-trees. without question would beare very good fruit.

In May, 1611. Sir Thomas Dale, with a prosperous passage, not full eight weekes arrived there Sir The Dales with him about three hundred people, fuch as for the present speed and dispatch could then bee going to Virgiprouided, of worle condition then those formerly there, who I forrow to speake it, were not fo ma,d. I it. in provident, though once before bitten with hunger and penury, as to put Corne into the ground for their Winters bread, but trufted to the store, then furnished but with eight months prouision. His first care therefore was to imploy all hands about fetting of Corne at the two Forts, feated wretches. voon Kecongbian , Henry and Charles , whereby the fealon then not fully past, though about the His care and end of May, we had there an indifferent Crop of good Corne.

This bu inelle taken order for , and the care and truft of it committed to his under Officers : to lames Towns hee haitened, where the most company were, and their daily and viuall workes, bowling in the fireets, these he imployed about necessary workes, as felling of Timber, repairing their houses ready to fall upon their heads, and prouiding Pailes, Posts and Railes, to impaile his purposed new Towne; which by reason of his ignorance in those parts, but newly arrived there, to he had not resolved where to seat. For his better knowledge therefore of those parts, himselfe with an hundreth men spent some time in the discourty, first of Navlamund River, which in de- R. Nonfamund foight of the Indians, then our enemies, hee discouered to the Head, after that, our owne River to Wile four nice fpight of the Indians, then our enemies, nee on concrete to the read, after that, but own to know the falls, where vpon a high Land, inuironed with the maine Ruser, fome fixteene or twentie forbuill force miles from the Head or the Falls, neere to an Indian Towne called Arfabassocke, hee reloked to plant his new Towne, and fo did, whereof in his due place I shall make a briefe relation.

It was no meane trouble to him, to reduce his people to timely to good order, being of foill a condition as may well witneffe his feuere and ftrict imprinted booke of Articles , then needfull with all feueritie and extremitie to bee executed, now much mitigated for more deferued death in those dayes, then doe now the least punishment, so as if the law should not hauerestrained by execution, I fee not how the veter subuersion and ruine of the Colony should have beene prevented, witnelle Webbes and Prifes defigne in the first yeere, fince that Abbets, and others more dans wollers gerous then the former, and even in this Summer, Coles and Kitchins Plot, with three more, bending their course towards the Southward, to a Spanish plantation reported to be there, who had travelled (it being now a time of peace) fome five dates sourney to Ocanaboen, there cut off by certaine Indians, hired by vs to hunt them home to receive their delerts.

Thus much obuiously I proceed in his indevours , vntill Sir Thomas Gates his happy arrivall, which was onely in preparing Timber, Pales, Polits, and Railes for the prefent impailing this new Towne to secure himselfe, and men from the malice and treacherie of the Indian, in the midst and heart of whom he was resolved to set thowne. But before he could make himselie readie for that bufineffe, Sir Thomas Gates happily arrived about the focund of August, with fixe good Ships, men, Arrivallof Sir provisions and cattle. The worthies being met after falutation and welcome given and received, Sir Thomas Dale acquainted Sir Thomas Gates, both with fuch businesses he had affected fince his arrivall, and also of his resolution to build a new Towne at the Fales: which designe and purpose of his, Sir Thomas Gates, then principall Gouernour in Virginia, well approving, furnished him with the hund and fiftie men, fuch as himselfe made choice of, and in the beginning of September, 10 11 feet for from lames Towne, and in a day and a halfe landed at a place where hee purposed to pacare build, where hee had beene ten dates before hee had verie strongly impaled fetten and the Acte of ground for a Towne . which in honour of the Noble Prince Heary (of ever har and bleffe to memory, whose Royall heart was strongly affected to that action) hee called by the name of Henrico. In foure moneths space, he had made Henrico much better, and of more worth then all the worke eyer fince the Colony began, therein done. I should bee too tedious if I should give yo the account of enery daies labour, which therefore I purporely omit , and will onely deferibe the Towne, in the very flate and perfection which I left it and first for the steading it stands whom a necke of a very high Land, three parts thereof intironed with the maine River, and cut out between two Rivers with a strong Pale, which maketh the neck of Landan Iland. There are in this by Sir T. Dale.

one laid of Brick, in length an hundred font, and fiftie foot write, befides Store-houses, Watchhouses, and such like; there are also, as ornaments belonging to this Towne, vpon the Verge of this River, fine faire Block-houles, or Commanders, wherein live the honester fort of people, as in Farmes in England, and there keepe continual centinell for the Townes fecuritie, and about two miles from the Towne into the Main, a Pale of two miles in length cut offer from River to River, guarded likewise with seusrall Commanders, with great quantitie of Corne ground impage led, fufficient if there were no more in the Colony fecured, to maintaine with but cake manuring,

Town three dreets of well framed houses, a handsome Church & the foundation of a more stately imploiment,

Habbahh 3

The.Gates, with

Henrica buile

and husbandry, more men, then I suppose will be addressed thither (the more is the pittie) these

For the further enlargement yet of this Towne, on the other fide of the River, by impaling likewife : for we make no other fence, is recured to our vie, especially for our hogges to feed in about twelue English miles of ground, by name, Hope in Faith, Coxen-Dale, secured by fine Forts. called Charity Fort, Mount Malado, a Retreat or Gueft-house for ficke people, a high feate, and wholiome ayre, Elizabeth Fort, and Fort Patience: and here hath Master Whitacres chosen his Parfonage, or Church-land, some hundred Acres impaled, and a faire framed Parsonage house built thereupon, called Rocke Hall. Of this Towne, and all the Forts thereunto belonging, hath Captaine James Danis the principall Command and Gouernment.

guished.

Virginia is brought to fuch an 2-bridgement.

him or others

in that kind.

I proceed to our next and most hopefull habitation, whether wee respect commoditie or secu-Bermuda acity. ritie (which we principally ayme at) against forraine designes and inuasion, I meane the Bermuda Citie, begun about Christmasse last, which because it is the neerest adiopning to Henrico. though the last vindertaken, I hold it pertinent to handle in the next place. This Towne, or Plantation is feated by Land, fome fine miles from Hemice, by water fourteene, being the veere before the habitation of the Appamatucks, to revenge the treacherous injurie of those people done vnto vs, taken from them, belides all their Corne, the former before without the loffe of amy, faue onely some few of those Indians (pretending our hurt) at what time Sir Thomas Dale. being himfelfe vpon that ferusee, and duely confidering how commodious a habitation and feate enunareds iet out and diffine it might be for vs, tooke resolution to possesse and plant it, and at that very instant, gaue it the 20 name of the new Bermudas, whereunto he hath laid out, and annexed to bee belonging to the Freedome, and Corporation for euer, many miles of Champion, and Wood-land, in feuerall Hundreds, as the vpper and nether Hundreds, Roch-dale Hundred , West's Sherly Hundred. and Digges his Hundred.

Captaine Argalls Northward discourties towardes Sacadebec, and beyond to Port Rosall. Long difeourfes followed in the Authoribut Santia Crux, and thereabout may not bee concealed : In which his aduentures, if he had brought home no commoditie to the Colony (which yet he did very much, both of apparell, victualls. and many other necessaries) the honour which he hath done vnto our Nation, by displanting the French, there beginning to feat and fortifie within our limits, and taking of their Ship & Pinnace, which he brought to Iame: Towne, would have been reward enough for his paines, and will ever 30 that I have no heart to follow speake loud his honour, and approved valour.

CHAP. XI

A Letter of Sir THOMAS DALE, and another of Master WHITAKERS, from lames Towne in Virginia, lune 18. 1614. And a piece of a Tractate, written by the faid Mafter WHITAKERS from Virginia the yeere before.

> To the R. and my most esteemed friend, M.D. M. at his house at F. Ch. in London.

Post Renerend Sir, by Sir Thomas Gates I wrote unto you, of fact acceptons at the preferred themselves, and now agains by this worthy Gentleman Captaine Argill I deluc you : for such is the reverend regard I have of you, as I cannot omit any occasion to expresse the function affection I beare you. You have over given mee encouragements to per seure in this Religious Wartare, until your last Letters; not for that you are now less well assected thereunto : but because you see the Action to be in danger of their non-50 performances who undertooks the businesse. I have undertaken, and have as faithfully, and with all my might indeanoured the profecution with all alacretie, as God that knoweth the heart can beare merecord, what recompence, or what rewards, by whom, or when I know not where to expect; but from him in whole Vineward I labour, whof Church with greedy appetite I defire to crett. My glorious Mafter is gone, that would have ennamelled with his favour; the labors I undertake, for Gods caule, and his immortall honome. Hee was the Great Captaine of our Iliael, the boge to have builded up this beauenly new le-tuillem be interred (I thinke) the mhole frame of this buffresse, fell into his grave: for most ment forward (at least feeming fo) defires are quenched, and Virginia stands in desperate baz ard. Touthere dos your duties, I will no way omit mine, the time I promised to labour, is expired : it is not a yoke of Oxen bath drawne mee from this feaft : it is not the marriage of a wife makes me hall bome, though that fallat 63 gine mee an appetite to canse me returne. But I have more care of the Stock, then to set upon a Dye, and rather put my lefe to the curtefie of noble and worthy censures, then ruine this Worke; and have a lury (nay 4 million) of foule monthed detractors, fcan upon my endeanours, the ends whereof they cannot dimeinto. You fhall briefly understand what bath betide since my last, and how me now fland, and are likely to grow to perfection, if wee be not altogether neglected, my ftay grounded upon such reason, as had I now returned, it would have hazarded the ruine of all.

Sir Thomas Gates basing imbarked himfelfe for England, I put my felfe into Captaine Argalls flip, with a bundred and fiftie men in my frigot, and other boats went unto Pamaunkie River, where Powha- Sir T. Dales tan hath his residence, and can in two or three dayes, draw a thousand men together; with me I carried joutny to Pewhis damphier, who had beene long prifoner with us, it was a day or two before wee heard of them: At batens Counlength they demanded why wee came; I gave for answere, that I came to bring him his daughter, condi- try. This is tionally he would (as bath beene agreed upon for ber ransome) render all the Armes, Tooles, Swords, and men that bad run away, and to give me a hip full of Corne, for the wrong bee had done unto us : if they the particular 10 would doe this, we would be friends, if not burne all. Toey demanded time to fend to their King; I affen _ circumstances ted. I taking , they receiving two pledges , to carry my meffage to Powhatan. All night my two men lay not farre from the water fide about noone the next day they told them the great King was three daies iourner off that Opochankano was hard by to whom they would have had them deliner their message, saying, M. Henot, That what hee agreed upon and did, the great King would confirme. This Opocankano is brother to Powhatan, and is his and their chiefe Captaine : and one that can as foone (if not fooner) as Powhatan com nand the men. But my men refused to doe my message unto any saue Powhatan, fo they were brought backe, and I (ent theirs to them; they told me that they would fetch Simons to me, who had thrice plaid the runnavate, whose lyes and villany much hindred our trade for Corne: But they delayed vs. so as we went a hore they foot at us, we were not behinde hand with them, killed some, hurt others, marched into 20 the Land, burnt their boules, tooke their Corne, and quartered all night ashoare.

The next day we went further up the River, they dogged us and called to know whither we went ; wee answered. To burne all, if they would not doe as we demanded, and had beene acreed voon. They would they (aid, bring all the next day fo we forbare all hostilitie, went ashoure, their men in good numbers commine amonest ve but we were very cautious and stood to our Armes. The Kings daughter went alboare, Pocabintal bebut would not talke to any of them, fcarce to them of the best fort, and to them onely, that if her father hautour and had loved her, he would not value her leffe then old Swords, Peeces, or Axes: wherefore shee would fill tepotte dwell with the English men, who loued ber. At last came one from Pow hatan, who told vs, that Simons was run away, to Nonfow haicond, which was a truth, as afterwards appeared, but that the other Englift man was dead that proued a lie (for fince M. Hamor, whom I employed to Powhatan brought him to mee) our Peeces, Swords, and Tooles within fifteene dayes, should be fent to lames Towne, with some Corne, and that his daughter foodld be my child, and ener dwell with mee, defiring to be ener friends, and named such of his people, and neighbour Kings, as hee defired to be included, and have the benefit of the peace, promifing if any of our men came to him , without leave from mee, he would fend them backe : and that if any of his men ft ale from us, or killed our cattell, hee would fend them to us to bee punished as wee thought fit, With the fe conditions were returned, and within the time limited, part of our Armes were fent, and twentie men with Corne, and promifed more, which he hath alfo fent. Opachankano defired I Opachankana would call him friend, and that be might call me so, saying, Hee was a great Captaine, and did always now their fight: that I was also a great Captaine, and therefore be loued mee; and that my friends should bee his king,& worked friends. So the bargaine was made, and enery eight or ten dayes, I have me fages and prefents from him. 40 with many appearances that he much defireth to continue friendship.

Now may you indee Sir, if the God of Battailes had not a belging hand in this, that having our Swords drawne, killing their men, burning their boufes, and taking their corne : yet they tendred us peace. and strine with all alacritie to keepe vs in good opinion of them; by which many benefits arise vinto vs. First, part of our Armes, diffracefully lost long agoe (kept by the Sauages as Monuments and Trophies of our hames) redelinered fome repaire to our Honor, Our catellto mercafe without dancer of de-Broying our men at libertie to hunt freely for Veni fou, to fift, to doe any thing elfe, or goe any whither without danger , to follow the bushanding of our corne securely , whereof wee have abone fine hundred Acres (et. and God be prassed, in more forwardnesse then any of the Indians, that I have seene or heard of this yeares, Roots and Hearbs we have abundance; all doubt of want is by Gods bleffing quite vanished. and much plentie expected. And which is not the least materiall, wee may by this peace come to discourse the Countrey better, both by our owne trauells, and by the relation of the Sauages, as we grow in familiaria Powhatans daughter I caused to be carefully instructed in Christian Religion, who after she had made

Some good progresse therein, renounced publikely her Countrey Idolatry, openly confessed her Christan Pocabuntas Faith, was, as shee desired, haptised, and is since married to an English Centieman of good waterstam, baptised (80f dins (as b) his Letter unto me, containing the reasons of his marriage of her you may perceine) another had the containing the reasons of his marriage of her you may perceine) another had the heard the anot to binde this peace the stronger. Her Father and friends gave approbation to it, and her Vncle gave was properly her to him in the Church : free lines civilly and louingly with him, and I trust will increase in goodnesse, as named) at helt the knowledge of God increafeth in ber. Shee will goe into England with mee, and were it but the gaining called Rebessa; 60 of this one foule, I will thinke my time, toile, and prefent flay well spent.

Since this accident, the Governours and people of Checkahomanies, who are five hundred Bow-men, and better, a stout and warlshe Nation, have made meanes to have us come unto them, and conclude a peace, where all the Gouernours would meet me. They having theu three or foure times importuned me. I resolved to goe; so having Captaine Argall, with sifice men in my Frigot and Barge I went thither : Capfelues be called. The particulars and ar-letter to the Committees

foure of the

put all together, may no

commodities.

or goodnesse

Mafter Alexander Whitaker

lemicall Di-

nine Doctor whitaker Ma-

of foile.

tame Areall with forty men landed, I kept abourd for some reasons. Vpon the meeting they told Captaine Argall they had longed to be friends, that they had no being, but eight great men, who governed them. He told them that we came to be friends, asked them if they would have King lames to be their King, and whether they would be his men? They after some conference betweene themselves, seemed willing of both demanding if we would fight against their enemies; be told them that if any did them minry, they should fend me word, and I would agree them, or if their adversaries would not, then I would let them have as many men as they would to helpe them: they liked well of that, and told him that all their men should They called the English Tof- beipe vs. All this being agreed upon, Captaine Argall ganc enery Counfellour a Tamahawk. and and any to the second of the s pento meete with our Boates, and that they faid they were the Chikahominy Englishmen, and IO King lames bus men, wee would let them passe: we agreed unto it, so that they pronounced themselves Englishmen, and King lames his men, promising within fifteene dayes to come unto lames Towne to fee culars and ar-ticles of agree- me, and conclude these conditions; enery Bowman being to give me as a Tribute to King lames two meamont ate in M. fures of Corne enery harnest she two measures containing two bushels and a halfe and I to give enery Bow-Hamors Books; man a small Tamahawke, and to enery Counseller a fuit of red cloats, which did much please them. This people neuer acknowledged any King before, no nor ener would acknowledge Powhatan for their King; a front people they be, and a delicate feate they bane.

Now Sir you fee our conditions, you, and all worthy men may indee, whether it would not be a criste to fee these faire bopes frostbitten, and these fresh budding plants to wither? which had I returned had asinreally followed for here is no one that the people would have governe them, but my felfe: for it had now come 20 away, had I not found a generall desire in the best fort to returne for England: Letter vpon Letter, request upon request from their friends to returne, so as I knew not upon whom to conferre the care of this bustnelle in my absence : whom I thought fit was generally distasted, fo as seeing the eminent ensuing danger. (bould I have left this multitude, not yet fully refined, I am refolued to flay till harnest be got in, and then Cetile things according tomy poore understanding, and returne : if in the interim there come no authoria fed Gonernour from England.

Cansider I pray you, since things be brought to this passe, as you see, and that I should have come away, Sir T. Dales tethen through their factions, humors, mutinies, or maifcretion of the Chiefes I had left behinde, this port of Virgi-Should fall to ruine : I then Sould receive the imputation, and incurre the blame, for quitting the Plantania. In another tion, although I might doe u, both with my bonour, my promised flay of time being expired, and basino 30 warrant from my Soueraigne, the Kings Maiesty : but the precedent reasons moned mee and that the he writeth that astion of fuch price, fuch excellency and affured profit to mine come knowledge should not die to the scorne of our Nation, and to gine cause of laughter to the Papists, that desire our ruine. I can affare jon. no best Kingdoms Country of the world affords more affured hopes of infinite riches, which both by mine owne peoples discoof Christendame wery, and the relation of Such Sauages, whose fidelity we have often found, affureth me. Oh why should Comany Princes and Noblemen ingage themselves, and thereby interoceding berein, have caused a numway compare with this coun- ber of soules transport themselves, and be transported bother? Why should they (I. say) relinquish thu so olorious an Action: for if their ends be to build God a Church, they ought to perfenere : if otherwise, yet ery either for their honour ingageth them to be constant. How soener they hand affelled, here is enough to content them, 40 let their ends be either for God, or Mammon.

These things having animated me to stay for a little season, to leanethose, I am tied in conscience to returne unto, to leave the affured benefits of my other fortunes, the sweete society of my friends and acquaintance, with all mundall delights, and refide here with much turmoile, which I will constantly doe, rather then fee Gods glory diminified, my King and Country diffeonored, and thefe poore people, I have the charge of, ruined. And so I be seech you to answer for me, if you beare me taxed for my staying, as some may insily was son to that doe, and that these are my chiese motives God I take to witnesse. Remember me and the cause I have in worthy of Po- hand, in your daily meditations, and reckon me in the number of those that doe sincerely lone you and yours, and will ever rest in all offices of a friend, to doe you service.

> To my very deere and louing Cosen M. G. Minister of the B. F. in London.

Ir, the Colony here is much better. Sir Thomas Dale, our Religious and values Governour, bath Inom brought that to paffe, which never before could be effected. For by warre upon our exemies, and kinde v (age of our friends, he hath brought them to seeke for peace of vs, which is made, and they dire not breake. But that which is best, one Pocahuntas or Matoa the daughter of Powhatan, is married to an bonest and discreete English Gentleman Master Rolle, and that after the had openly renounced her Country Idolatry, professed the faith of lesus Christ, and was baptised which thing Sir Thomas Dale had laboured a long time to ground in her.

Tet notwithstanding, are the vertuous deedes of this worthy Knight, much dehafed, by the Letters crywhore firft, which fome wicked men have written from hence, and especially by one C. L. If you heare any condemna and by depra- this noble Knight, or doe feare to come hither, for those flanderow Letters, you may upon my word boldly uing inflice representation. You know that no malefulfors can abide the face of the Indge, but themselves scorning to CHAP. 11. Surplis and subscription. Miserable condition. Strange Narrations. 1771

bereproued, doe professie with all hatred, all those that labour their amendment. I marwaile much that or rep on of honest life, should feare the Sword of the Magistrate, which is unsheathed ones in their defence .

But I much more muse, that so sew of our English Ministers that were so bot against the Survius and Subscription : come hitber where neither spoken of. Doe they not either wilfully bide their Tallents or beepe themselues at home for seare of loosing a few pleasures? Be there not any amongst them of Moles hu munde, and of the Apolities, that for sooke all to follow (brist? But I referre them to the indee of all hearts, and to the King that shall reward every one according to the gaine of his Talent. But you my cofen bold fait that which you have, and I, though my promise of three yeeres service to my Countrey be 10 expired, will abide in my vocation here untill I be lawfully called from hence. And so betaking us all unto themercies of God in Christ lefus, I rest for ener.

> Part of a Tractate written at Henrico in Virginia, by Master A L EX. WHITAKER, Minister to the Colony there, which then gouerned by Sir T. DALE, 1612.

Hey acknowledge that there is a great good God, but know him not, having the eyes of I their understanding as yet blinded; waerefore they serue the Diuell for seare, after a most bale manner, facrificing iometimes (as I haue here heard) their owne Children to him. I haue fent one Image of their god to the Counfell in England, which is painted upon one fide of a toadfloole, much like vnto a deformed monfter. Their Priefts (whom they call Quistofoughs) are no Their Priefts other but fuch as our English Witches are, They live naked in body, as if their shame of their and mannet finne deferued no couering: Their names are as naked as their body: they esteeme it a vertue to or luing. lye, deceiue, and steale, as their Master the Diuell teacheth them. Much more might be said of their miferable condition, but I referre the particular narration of these things to some other

These men are not so simple as some have supposed them; for they are of body lufty, strong, and very nimble: they are a very vnderstanding generation, quicke of apprehension, suddaine in their dispatches, subtile in their dealings, exquisite in their inuentions, and industrious in their labour, Huppole the world hath no better marke-men with their Bowes and Arrowes then they be; they will kill Birds flying, Fishes swimming, and Beasts running: they shoote also with meruilous ftrenath, they shot one of our men being vnarmed quite through the body, and nailed both his armes to his body with one Arrow: one of their Children also, about the age of twelue or thirteene yeeres, killed a Bird with his Arrow in my fight. The feruice of their God is answerable to their life, being performed with a great feare and attention, and many strange dumbe shewes vsed in the same, stretching forth their limbes, and straining their body, much like to the counterfeit women in England, who faine themselves bewitched, or possessed of some

They stand in great awe of the Quickofonabs or Priests, which are a generation of Vipers, even of Sathans owne brood. The manner of their life is much like to the Popish Hermits of our age; for they live alone in the woods, in houses sequestred from the common course of men, neither may any man be luffered to come into their house or to speake with them, but when this Priest doth call him, He taketh no care for his victuals, for all such kinde of things both Bread and Water, &c. are brought vnto a place neere vnto his cottage, and there are left, which hee fetcheth for an proper neede. If they would have raine, or have loft any thing, they have their recourse to him, was conjureth for them, and many times preuaileth. If they be ficke, he is their Physician; if they be wounded, he sucketh them. At his command they make warre and peace, neither doe they any thing of moment without him. I will not be tedious in these Brange Narrations, when I have more perfectly entered into their fecrets, you shall know all. Finally, there is a civill government among it them which they strictly observe, and shew thereby that the law of Nature dwell, th in them: for they have a rude kinde of Common-wealth, and rough government was killed in wherein they both honour and obey their Kings, Parents, and Gouernours, both greater and leke, Bernadaby anthey observe the limits of their owne possessions. Murther is fearly heard of : Adultery and other other State offences feuerely punished. The whole Continent of Virginia lituate within the degrees of 34. and 47. is a place beautified by God, with all the ornaments of nature, and enriched with his earthly treasures : that pare of it, which we already possesse, beginning at the Bay of Chasapheae, and stretching it telle in 60 Northerly latitude to the degrees of 39, and 40, is interlined with feuen most goodly Rivers, the leaft whereof is equall to our River of Thames: and all their Rivers are to necrely soyned, as that Asta one there is not very much distance of dry ground betweene either of them, and those feu: rall maine miles. lands are every where watered with many veines or creekes of water, which fundry waies doe Querthwart the land, and make it almost nauigable from one River to the other. The commodity fter of S. labas Col.in Cambridge. Whatshadowes of men are the most in this age, that the best deserving fhould neede gyrikes ? They ing tutter ill, whereof to those that shall inhabite this land is infinite, in respect of the speedy and easie transportance of goods from one River to the other, I cannot better manifelt it vnto you, but in aduting you to confider whether the water or land hath beene more beneficiall to the Low-Countries. To the River which we inhabit (commonly called Powbatans River) ebbeth and floweth one hundred and forty miles into the maine; at the mouth whereof are the two Forts of Henrico and Charles : two and forty miles vpward is the first and Mother-Christian Towne feated, called Lames-Towne; and feuenty miles beyond that vpward, is the new Towne of Henrico built, and fo named in the memory of Noble Prince Henry of lafting and bleffed memory: tenne miles beyond this is a place called the Fals, because the River hath there a great descent falling downe between many minerall Rockes which be there: twelve miles farther beyond this place is there a Chris Io Christall Rock Stall Rocke wherewith the Indians doe head many of their Arrowes: three dayes journey from thence is there a Rock or stony hill found, which is in the top couered all ouer with a perfect and most rich Silver pare. Our men that went to discouer those parts had but two Iron Pickayes with them, and those to ill tempered, that the points of them turned againe, and bowed at every ftroake, fo that we could not fearch the entrailes of the place, yet fome triall was made of that pare with good fuccesse, and argument of much hope. Six dayes journey beyond this Mine a great ridge of high hils doe runne along the maine land, not farre from whom the Indians report a great Sea doth runne, which we commonly call a South Sea, but in respect of our habitation is a West Set, for there the Sun fetteth from vs. The higher ground is much like vnto the molde of France. clay and fand being proportionably mixed together at the top; but if we digge any depth (as we 20 have done for our Bricks) we finde it to be red clay, full of gliffering spangles. There be many tockie places in all quarters; & more then probable likelihoods of rich Mines of all forts; though I knew all, yet it were not conuenient at this time that I hould veter all, neither have wee had meanes to fearch for any thing as we ought, thorough prefent want of men, and former wants Avreand Sea- of prouision for the belly. As for Iron, Steele, Antimonium, and Terra figillata, they have rather offered themselves to our eyes and hands, then bin sought for of vs. The Ayre of the Countrey (especially about Henrico and vpward) is very temperate and agreeth well with our bodies. The extremity of Summer is not to hot as Spaine, nor the cold of Winter fo sharpe as the frosts of England. The Spring and Haruest are the two longest seasons and most pleasant, the Summer and Winter are both but fhort. The Winter is for the most part dry and faire, but the Summer 30 watered often with many great and lodaine showers of raine; whereby the cold of Winter is warmed, and the heate of Summer cooled. Many have died with vs heretofore thorough their

1773

were no ficker then our bodies. The naturall people of the Land are generally such as you heard of before. A people to be feared of thole that come you them without defensive Armor, but otherwise faint-hearted (if they fee their Arrowes cannot pierce and easie to be subdued. Shirts of Male, or quilted cotten coates are the best desence against them. There is but one or two of their petry Kings, that for feare of vs have defired our friendship; and those keepe good quarter with vs, being very pleasant amongst 40 vs. and (if occasion be) seruiceable vnto vs. Our eldest friends be Pipisco and Choapole, who are our overchwart neighbours at lames-Towne, and have beene friendly to vs in our great want. The other is the Weromance of Chescheak, who but lately traded with vs peaceably. If we were once the mafters of their Country, and they flood in feare of vs (which might with few hands imployed about nothing elfe, be in short time brought to passe) it were an easie matter to make them willingly to forfake the Diuell, to embrace the faith of Iefus Christ, and to be baptized. piety&ciuility Besides, you cannot easily judge how much they would be availeable to vs in our Discoue-What vieway ries of the Countrey, in our Buildings and Plantings, and quiet prouision for our felues, be made of the when we may peaceably passe from place to place without neede of Armes or Guard.

owne filthineste and want of bodily comforts for sicke men; but now very few are sicke amone vs : not about three persons amongst all the inhabitants of Henrice; I would to God our soules

The meanes for our people to line and fublift here of themselves are many and most certaine to both for Beafts, Birds, and Hearbes. The Beafts of the Countrey are for the most part wilde: as Lyons, Brares, Wolues and Deere: Foxes blacke and red, Rakowns, Beuers, Pollowns, Squerrels, Wilde-Cats, whose skins are of great price, and Muske-Rats which yeelde Muske as the Muske-Cats doe. There be two kindes of Beaits amongst these most strange; one of them is the female Possowne, which will let forth her yong out of her belly, and take them vp into her belly againe at her pleasure without hurt to her selfe; neither thinke this to be a Trauellers tale, but the very truth; for nature hath framed her fit for that fertice, my eyes have beene witneffe vato it, and we have fent of them and their yong ones into England. The other strange conditioned creature is the flying Squirrell, which thorough the helpe of certaine broad flaps of skin growing on each fide of her forelegs, will flye from tree to tree twenty or thirty paces at one flight 60 and more, if the have the benefit of a small breath of winde, Besides these, since our comming hither, we have brought both Kine, Goates, and Hogges, which prosper well, and would multiply exceedingly, if they might be prouided for. This Countrey besides is replenished with Birds of all forts, which have bin the best sustenance of flesh, which our men have had fince they came;

Note well.

Natiues.

ftrange beaft.

Flying Scuir-

also Eagels and Hankes of all forts, amongst whom are Auspreys, fishing Hanke, and the Cormorant. The woods be every where full of wilde Turkies, which abound, and will runne as swift as a Greyhound. In winter our fields be tull of Cranes, Herons, Pigeons, Partridges and Black- Fowle. hirds; the Rivers and creekes be over-spread every where with water foule of the greatest and leaft fort, as Swans, flockes of Geefe and Brants, Ducke and Mallard, Sneldrakes, Dyners, &c. besides many of her kindes of rare and delectable Birds, whose names and natures I cannot yet recite, but we want the meanes to take them. The Rivers abound with Fish both small and great; the Sea-fish come into our Rivers in March, & continue vnrill the end of September : great sculls. Fish, of Herines come in first : Shads of a great bignesse, and Rock-fish follow them. Trouts, Base, to Flounders, and other dainty fish come in before the other be gone : then come multitudes of great Sturgeons, whereof we catch many, and should do more, but that we want good Nets antiwerable to the breadth and deapth of our Rivers: besides, our channels are so soule in the bottome with great logges and trees, that we often breake our Nets voon them: I cannot reckon nor Nets. giue proper names to the divers kindes of fresh fish in our Rivers; I have caught with mine Angle. Pike, Karpe, Eele, Perches of fix seuerall kindes, Crea-fish, and the Torope or little Turtle, besides many imaller kindes, &c.

CHAP. XII.

Of the Lottery: Sir THOMAS DALES returne: the Spaniards in Virginia. Of POCAHVNTAS and TOMOCOMO: Captaine YERD-LEY and Captaine AR & OLL (both fince Knighted) their Government; the Lord L A-W ARRS death, and other occurrents till Anno 1610.

I therto you have heard the Authors themselves speak of their owne affaires. Now we must for continuation and consummation of our Story, borrow a few Collections from others, where the Authors themselves have not comne to our hands. Wherein that industrious Gentleman Captaine lobn Smith still breathing Vereinia and diligent enquiry and writing, as sometime by discouery and doing to shew his zeale to this action (for feeing he cannot there be employed to performe Virginian exploits worthy the writing, here he employeth himselfe to write Virginian affaires worthy the reading) having compiled a long Hiltory of that and the Summer Iland plantation, and of New England in tix Bookes, hath gently communicated the fame to mine, that is to thine, as intended to the Worlds vie. Out of his rich fields I have gleaned these handfuls, adding thereto the crop also of mine owne andustry.

40 Sir Thomas Gates returned from Virginia in March, and Captaine Argall in Iune following 1614. The Lottery. and to animated by their hopefull reports the Aduenturers, that the great standing Lottery was drawns Anno 1615, in the West end of Pauls (burebyard (where before, as in many other places after, arun-Anno 1015. In the reciprose of Latin Commonway in the Prizes were proportioned from two ning Lottery of smaller adventures had beene vsed in which the Prizes were proportioned from two To 1900.2006. crownes (which was the least) to divers thousands, arising in ordinary assents and degrees , casually accrownes (which was toe teast) to unerst town and a strong in ordinary agents and degrees, to come and the cruing as the lot fell, and paid in money or in Plate there fet forth to view, provided that if any chose moner rather then Plate or goods for paiment, in summes about ten crownes, be was to abate the tenth part. highest 45000 The orders of this Lotters were published, and courses taken to present frauds.

Whiles Sir. Thomas Dale was in Virginia, it chanced that a Spanish Ship beate up and downe before Point Comfort, and fent alboare for a Pilot. Captaine James Davies fent them one, with whom they Spanish Ships 50 presently sailed away, leaving three of their company behinde. These, upon examination, confessed that a Virginia. basing lost their Admirall, accident had forced them into those parts; two of them said they were Cap- English Pilace taines of chiefe command in the Fleete. They received good v (age there, till one of them was found to be or lades tathers an English nan, which in the great Fleete 1 . 88, hadbin a Pilot to the Spaniards, and now exercised his inspended and wonted trechery, having induced some malecontents to runne away with a small Barke. This darknesse explical togebeing brought to light, some of them were executed, and he expecting no better, confessed that two or three ther according Spanish Ships were at Sea, on purpose to discouer the state of the Colony: but their Commission was not to his metra to be opened till they arrived in the Bay, fo that he knew no further. One of the Spaniards died the other was fent for England, and this fellow was now reprized, but (as became (ush a Pilot) was hanged at Sea in Sir Thomas D les returne. The English Pilot which they had carried away to Spaine, after long

60 imprisonment by much suite recoursed his liberty and Country. Sir Thomas Dale having thus ettablished things as you have heard, returned thence, appoint Con Tardellos ting Captaine George Tardly his deputy Gouernour in his absence, and arrived at Planmouth in pure Gouer May or lune 4. 1616, to aduance the good of the Plantation, Mailer Rolfe also with Rebecca his nounnew convert and confort, and Ittamatamakin (commonly called Tomocomo) one of Pobatans Hirherto from Capt. Smith.

Counfellours came ouer at the fame time. With this Sauage I have often converfed at my good friends Master Doctor Goldstone, where he was a frequent guest; and where I have both seen him fing and dance his diabolicall measures, and heard him discourse of his Countrey and Religion, Sir The. Dales man being the Interpretour, as I have elsewhere shewed, Master Ralfe lent mee a difcourse which he had written of the estate of Virginia at that time, out of which I collected those See my Pil.1.8. things which I have in my Pilgrimage delivered. And his wife did not onely accustome her felfe to civilitie, but fill carried her felte as the Daughter of a King, and was accordingly respected. not onely by the Company, which allowed prouision for her selfe and her some, but of divers particular persons of Honor, in their hopefull zeale by her to advance Christianitie. I was prefent, when my Honorable & Reuerend Patron, the L. Bishop of London, Doctor King entertained 10 her with festivall state and pompe, beyond what I have seene in his great hospitalitie afforded to other Ladies. At her returne towards Virginia the came at Granefind to her end and grave, having given great demonstration of her Christian finceritie, as the first fruits of Virginian conversion, kauing here a godly memory, and the hopes of her returnection, her foule afpiring to fee and enjoy presently in heaven, what here shee had loyed to heare and believe of her beloued Saulour. Not fuch was Tomocomo, but a blasphemer of what he knew not, and preferring his God to ours because he taught them (by his owne so appearing) to weare their Deuill-lock at the left eare; hee acquainted mee with the manner of that his appearance, and beleeved that this Okee or Deuil had taught them their husbandry, &c. Powbatan was at this time of their comming gone Southwards. for feare (as some thought) least Opachancanough his brother should some with the English a- 20 Powhatensrc. gainst him. His age was not so great as some have reported, they reckoning every Spring and Autumne for distinct yeeres. Tomocomo was as wife in computation of his failing, reckoning each Virginian yeers night (when hee expected they frould have anchored by the shoare) as another day. Hee is said which perhaps allo to haue fet vp with notches on a flick the numbers of men, being fent to fee and fignifie the occasioned the truth of the multitudes reported to his Master, But his arithmetike soone failed, and wonder did no lefte amoze him at the fight of so much Corne and Trees in his comming from Plimmonth to their longevity London, the Virginians imagining that defect thereof here had brought vs thither. But let vs returne to Captaine Smiths Relations. The new Gouernour applied himselfe to the readjest way of gaine in planting Tobacco; and though Sir Tho. Dale had caused much Corne to be planted, yet the new supplies easing them of that superfluitie, hee sent to the Chickahaminies 30 for the tribute Corne which Sir Thomas Dale and Captaine Argall had conditioned with them, but receiued a bad answere. Whereupon hee gathered a hundred men, and twelue of them wete flaine, twelue others captized, and returned to lames Towne with three Boats laden with corne, of which one hasting to bring the newes was overfet, and eleven men, together with the goods drowned. Captaine Spelman by his language did them good feruice. This, together with the league which they had with Opachankanough enemy to the former, put them fo in feare, that ours followed their labours quietly, and other Nations also brought them provisions and would hunt for them. Captaine Yeardly is taxed for suffering two of his Sauages to vie the Peece in their game and therein to grow expert; a thing reported to have beene practifed by some others. Yet whiles hee staied in the gouernment they lived quietly with the Savages, but grudges grew a- 40 mongst themselves.

See my Pile. ubi jup.

A. 1617. Captaine Yeardly returned for England, after the arrivall of Captaine Argall, fent this ther to be deputie Gouernour.

A. 1617.Cap. Argells gouernment. Great drought

Captaine Argall was (ent in the George, and with Capt. Hamor his Vice- Admirall, in May, 1617. arrised at lames Towne, where bee found things in much disorder, which hee sought to redresse. Their cattell were now well encreased, and both of their owne growing, and from the Saunges they had store of Corne, A. 1618. happened a great drought, and such a cruell storme of baile, that it did much burt to their Corne and Tobacco. The Magazine that came in the George, being fine moneths in her paffage proned badly conditioned.

L. De la Wars? and death.

To supply them, the Company furnished and set forth in Aprill a Ship of two hundred and siftie tunnet, 50 with two bundred people. The Lord De-la-war went therein, and at the Iland of Saint Michael was bonourably feasted. Departing from thence, they were long troubled with contrary windes, in which time many fell ficke, thirtie died, one of minch was that honourable Lord of noble memory. The rest refreshed themselves on that Coast of New England, with Fish, Fowle, Wood, and Water, and after sixteene weeks fent at Sea, arrived in Virginia.

Plowing and

The Ship called the Treaturer not long after came thither with fortie Passengers, before the other Ship was gone. They now had veed the Plow, and reaped good Corne, and they writ for more Plow-harue fe to

Richard Killingbeck with foure others , going to trade secretly with the people of Chickanaminias, either for revenge of some before staine in Captaine Verdlyes expedition, or for conetous nelle of their goods 60 Rillingbeck flain were affaulted by the Sauages, one of which had a Peece furnished and therewith shot Killingbeck dead; therest also were all staine, stripped and spoyled. Other muribers also were done by other Sanages, which Opachankanough excused by ignorance, and for the former, bee font a basket of earth, in token of the gift and possifion of that Towne where they dwelt, to Captaine Argal, defiring him not to renenge the fault of a few , which for feare of renenge were fled to the Woods , on their unocent neighbours. Sam. Arg.

Maller Rolfe wrst, lune 15. 1618. that Powhatan died in Aprill before, Itopatan his second brother succeeded, who with Opachanckanough had confirmed the league with the Colony. May 11. death. happened at lames Towne in the night, a terrible storme which lasted about halfe an houre, and poured downe bailestones eight or nine in ches about.

A. 1619. Sir Edwin Sands being chofen Treasurer , Captaine Yerdley was knighted and fent Go- Sir Edwin mernour into Virginia. A lutle Pinnace bad arrived fome twelve dayes before bim, in which Captaine Sandi Treafes Argall returned, leaving in his place Captaine Nathaniel Powel. As for their digulfs ginen the rer. To Company (in their apprehension) by Captaine Argall, I am not fully informed, or lust to bee the

Sir George Yerdly arriving April 18. filled the Colony with toyfull bopes of better successed at his arrivall, and I freely acknowledge the Treasurers great study and care was worthy (bad God so pleased) of better enemts then by unexpected accidents have fince happened.

Cantaine West, Captaine Powel, Master Pory, Master Rolfe, Master Wickam, Master Macock, were added to the Councell, A Pinnace of Captaine Bargrave, another of Captaine Lawnes, and a third of Mafter Euans . and the Marget of Brillol arrived. Some foundations Letters , which laid a falle imputation on the Countrey, caused enquiry to bee made, where by men of best experience was found. stat an industrious man not otherwise imployed may well bushand source Acres of Corne, and one thousand. Profit to be an Plants of Tobacco, of which many to have much, neglett the goodnesse (in suffering too many leaves to made in Vivi grow on one stalee) and many Tobaccomongers in England are faid to fell the best of it in other names, ginia, calling all their traft Virginian, and fo at once rob both England and Virginia. June 25, the Trial came in with Corne and Cattell. The Gonernour and Counfell caused Burgestes to be chosen in all places. and a senerall assembly was beld for consultation about the Colonies good. The ancient Planters being fet free chose places to their content, and sweetnesse of proprietie made them emulous to exceed each other in building and planting. Many good instructions were fent from the Company, to amend the Virginian abuses and competencie of provision was appointed for Officers. But leave we awhile our Captaines Notes, and let vs liften to that which the Company published, A. 1620.

CHAP. XIII:

The estate of the Colony, A. 1620. and Master Dermers Letter to mee from Virginia. touching bis Voyage for the South Sea.

Ow touching the present estate of our Colony in that Countrey, We have throught it not vnfit thus much briefly to declare. There have beene fent thither this laft yeere, and are now prefently in going, twelve hundred perfons and voward, as particularly appeareth in the note about specified : and there are neere one thoufand more remaining of those that were gone before. The men lately sent, have beene most of them choice men, borne and bred up to labour and industry. Out of Dewonshire, about an hundred men , brought up to Husbandry. Out of Warnickshire and Staffordbire, about one hundred and ten; and out of Suffex, about fortie; all framed to Iron-workes; the rest dispersedly out of divers Shires of the Realme. There have beene also fundry persons of good qualitie, much commended for sufficiency, industry and honestie, provided and fent to take charge and gouernment of those people. The care likewise that hath beene taken by directions. instructions, Charters and Commissions to reduce the people and affaires in Virginia into a regular course, hath been such and so great, that the Colony beginneth now to have the face and faihion of an orderly State, and fuch as is likely to grow and profper. The people are all divided into feuerall Burroughes; each man having the shares of Land due to him fet out to hold and enjoy to him and his Heires. The publike Lands for the Company here, for the Governour there, for the Colledge, and for each particular Burrough, for the Ministers also, and for divers other necesfary Officers, are likewife laid out by order and bounded. The particular Plantations for divers Burtoughs. private Societies, are fetled in their Seates, being allotted to their content, and each in convenient distance. The rigour of Martiall Law, wherewith before they were gouerned, is reduced -within the limits preferibed by his Maiefty; and the landable forme of luffice and government vied in this Realme, established, and followed as neere as may be. The Gouernour is so restrained 6) to a Counfell ioyned with him, that he can doe wrong to no man, who may not have speedy remedy. Each Burrough, and each particular Plantation, partly hath, partly is bound to haue in short time a sufficient Minister : for whom maintenance is ordained, to each of two hundred pounds a yeere value. Which orderly proceeding there, by direction from hence, hath caufed

Iiiiiii

the Colony now at length to fettle them felues in a firme resolution to perpetuate the Plantation. They fall to building of Houses, each for his owne private; and the Generality to the rearing of publike Guelt-houles, for entertaining of new men vpon their first arrivall. They fall to fet vp their Ploughes, to the planting of Vineyards; to the pursuing of the Staple Commodities furnished and commended from hence. In summe, they are now to full of alacrity and cheerefulneffe, that in a late generall Affembly, they have in the name of the Colony prefented their greateft possible thankes to the Company, for the care that hath beene taken for the fetling of the Plantation. Neither is it to be omitted, the care which hath beene had here lately at home, for the reducing of all the proceedings and affaires of the Company, to an orderly course of good gouernment and Iuitice. Wherein to begin with the Fountaine thereof, his Maiefties authoritie Parentinree urrimeite and authorite times renewed and pleasure, there hath beene a collection made of all the branches of the same, dispersed in his 10 Letters Patents, now three times renewed : as also out of other instructions proceeding from his Maieftie. Out of both which, together with fuch other Orders as (authorized by his Maieftie) the Companie themselves have thought necessary to make, hath beene compiled a booke of standing Orders and Conflicutions, approved by the generall confert of all the Companie: whereby both the Company here, and the Colony in Proginia, haue their businesse carried regularly, induffrioufly, and with, every man knowing both his right and dutie, to their generall great content, and the great advancement of the Action. And whereas the Colony likewife have been often Sutors in effect, to reduce into a compendious and orderly forme of writing, the Lawes of ten gland proper for the vie of that Plantation, with addition of such other, as the nature of the England proper for the vie of that Plantation, with addition of such other, as the nature of the place, the noutley of the Colony, and other important circumflances should necitarly require: A 20 course is like wife taken for the effecting of this worke; yet so as to submit it first to his Maiesties view and approbation; it being not he that his Maierties Subjects should bee gouerned by any other Lawes, then such as receive the influence of their lite from him.

And now to come to that which concerneth the Aduenturors in particular, by whole charges. care, and labour (next voto his Maietties especiall grace) this famous Plantation hath not onely beene vindertaken, but through io many difficulties vipheld and continued; wee fhould bee very greatly injurious to them, if we should not acquaint them with this seasonable time, for the reaping of that benefit and reward which is due vnto them. Wee therefore let them know, that in this last yeere now ended, there have beene granted by the Company under their legall Scale, eleuen seuerall Patents for particular Plantations; and more are in hand to bee passed this next 30 Quarter-Court. It is not unprobable that upon each of these Patents, divers hundreds of persons will foone Plant in Virginia : there have beene already transported upon the first, about three hundred men. These and other like Planters, having priority of time, will have priority also in choice of the Seat of their Plantations. Seeing therefore the onely matter of retribution to the Adventurors, is by a faire proportion of Land to them and their heires, namely, of one hundred Acres for every share of twelve pounds and ten shillings, vpon a first division; and as much more wpon a fecond, the first being peopled; with fiftie Acres for every person (to bee doubled in like manner) which at their own charges they shall transport to inhabite in Unginia bafore the foure manner) which as their own charges any man examples to manner in organic parties the four and twentieth of lune, 4625, if her continue there three yeares, either at one or fleuerall times, or die after he is shipped for that voyage: It standeth them you, who are not willing to be the leaft 40 in the benefit to be partaked, not to be the last in fetting forth to the choice and peopling of their Land. Wherein what fauour or aff flance may by vs bee given them, they that bee well afford of it, in equall proportion with our felues, as their charges and long expectance have well deferred. And to the end that not onely the Adventurors now living, but the Herres also of the decealed, may take certaine notice of the feuerall proportion of Land, which ratably to their Aduentures in money are due and belonging to them.

A Note of the Shipping, Men, and Provisions Sent to Virginia, by the Treasurer and Company, in the yeere 1619.

Ships.

He Bond None of two hundred Tun, fent in August 1619, with one hundred and twenty per-I fons. The Duty, of feuenty Tun, fent in Ianuary 1619. with fiftie one persons. The landban of three hundred and fiftie Tun, fent in February 1619. with two hundred persons. The Triall, of two hundred Tun, tent in February 1619, with fortie persons, and fixtie Kine. The Faulcon, of one hundred and fiftie Tun, fent in February 1619, with thirtie fixe persons, fiftie two Kine, and foure Mares. The London Merchant, of three hundred Tun, fent in March 1619. with two hunpersons. The Swan of Barnstable, of one hundred Tunne, sent in March, 1619 with seventie one persons. The Bonnerstore of two hundred and sortie Tun, sent in April, 1620, with one hundred 69 and fiftie three persons. Besides these, set out by the Treasurer and Company, there hath beene fet out by particular Adventurers for private Plantations. The Garland of two hundred and fitte Tun, fent in Iune, 1619. for M. lohn Farrars Plantation, with fortie five persons. Who are yet detained in the Summer Hands. A Ship of Briffell, of eightie Tun, fent in September, 1619, for M.

Barkless Plantation, with fortie five perions. There are also two Ships in providing to be shortly gone, for about three hundred persons more, to bee fent by private Adventurers to Virginia. The fumme of the persons one thousand two hundred fixtie one. Whereof in the eight Ships fet out by the Treasurer and Company, eight hundred seventie one.

Of these persons there are sent for publike and other pious vier, these ensuing ! Tenants People. for the Gouernours Land, besides fiftie sent the former Spring, eightie. Tenants for the Companies Land, one hundred and thirtie. Tenants for the Colledges Land, one hundred, Tenants for the Ministers glebe-Lands, fiftie. Young Maids to make Wives for so many of the former Tenants, ninetie. Boyes to make Apprentices for those Tenants, one hundred. Seruants for the 10 publike, fiftie. Mentent by their labours, to beare up the charge of bringing up thirtie of the Infilels children in true Religion and Civilitie. The fum of persons for publike vie, &c.tix hundred and fiftie. The fix hundred and elegen remaining, are fent for private Plantations.

The Commodities which these people are directed principally to apply (next to their own necessary main. Commodities, tenance) are these ensuing : Iron, for which are tene one nundred and fiftie persons, to set up three Iron-workes; proofe having beene made of the extraordinary goodnesse of that Iron.

Cordage : for which (belides Hempe) direction is given for the planting of Silke graffe (naturally growing in those parts) in great abundance : which is approved to make the hest Cordage and Linnen in the world. Of this, every housholder is bound to set one hundred Plants; and the Gouernour himtelfe hath fet five thousand.

20 Por-ashes and Sope-ashes, Pitch and Tarre: for the making whereof the Polacres are returned

Timber of all forts, with Masts, Planks and Boords for prouision of Shipping, &c. there being not so good Timber for all vies, in any one knowne Countrey what soener. And for the case and encreate of divers of these workes, provision is sent of men and materialls, for the setting up of fundry Sawing Mills.

Silke : for which that Countrey is exceeding proper, having innumerable flore of Muibery Trees of the best, and some-Silk-wormes naturally found vpon them, producing excellent Silke: fome whereof is to be feene. For the fetting vp of which Commoditie, his Maiefty hath beene graciously pleased now the second time (the former having miscarried) to bestow upon the Company plenty of Silk-wormes-feed of his owne store, being the best.

Vines : whereof the Countrey yeeldeth naturally great flore, and of fundry forts : which by culture will be brought to excellent perfection. For the effecting whereof, divers skiltull Vignerons are lent, with ftore also from hence of Vine-planes of the best fort.

Sale : which workes having beene lately suffered to decay, are now ordered to bee fet up in fo great plentie, as not onely to lerue the Colony for the present; but as is hoped in short time also the great Fishings on those Coasts.

For the following, working, and perfecting of these Commodities, all provisions necessary for the present are sent in good abundance. As like wife the people that goe are plentifully form shed with apparell, bedding, victuall for fixe moneths: Implements both for the House and Labour, Armour, Weapons, Tooles, and fundry other necessaries. And a supply of Armour, Powder, and many necessary prouisions is made for those of the Colony which were there beforegyet without any prejudice to the former Magazin.

There have beene given to the Colony this yeere by denout persons, these Gifts ensuing : Two persons Gifts, vnknowne, haue given faire Plate, and other rich On aments for two Communion Tables : whereof one for the Colledge, and the other for the Church of Miftreffe Mary Robinfors founding; who in the former yeere by her Will, gaue two hundred pounds towards the tounding of a Church in Virginia.

Another voknowne person (together with a godly Letter) hath lately fent to the Treasurer. fine hundred and fiftie pounds in gold, for the bringing up of children of the Infidels; first in the to Knowledge of God and true Religion; and next, in fit Trades whereby honeftly to lue.

Master Nicolas Ferrar deceased, hath by his Will given three hundred pounds to the Colledge in Virginia, to bee paid, when there shall be ten of the Infidels children placed in it. And in the meane time foure and twentie pounds by yeere, to bee distributed vnto three discreet and godly men in the Colony, which shall honestly bring up three of the Infidels children in Christian Religion, and fome good course to live by.

An vinamed person sent to the Treasurer the summe of ten pounds, for advancing of the

There have beene Patents granted this yeere for particular Plantations, as here enfucth: To the Sc- Patents. cietie of Southamton Hundred. To Matter Heath, Recorder of London. To Matter Wincop. To Master Tracie. To Doctor Bohun. To Master Pierce. To Master Delbridge. To Master Pointz. To Master Barkley. To Captaine Bargrane. To Captaine Ward. Who have vndertaken to transport to Virginia great multitudes of people, with Hore of cattell.

It is to be knowne, that touching the Colledge for the Infidels children, it hath beene thought more expedient to begin first with the planting and peopling of the Lands (which hath beene To his Worshipfull Friend M. SAMVEL PVRCHAS, Preacher of the Word, at the Church a little within Ludgate, London.

Twas the nineteenth of May, before I was fitted for my discouery, when from Monahisean I ice Twas the nineteenth of May, vejore 1 was juncted by the nineteenth of May, vejore 1 [ajle in an open Pinnace of fine tun, for the Iland I told you of. I passed along it the Coast where I L jayle in an open cinnuc of time un, for occionne tour young, page according to coals where I found fome antenn Plantations, not long face populous now otterly coid; in other places a tempantre. To mainer, but not free of fickness. Their disaffe the Plague, for mee might perceive the fores of some that had e Caped, who described the spots of Such as vinally die. When I arrived at my Sauages native Country (finding all dead)! transiled along it adaies sourney westward, to a place called Nummattaquyt, where. finding Inhabitants, I diffiatched a Messenger a dayes tourney further West, to Poconackit which berdereils on the Sea; whence came to fee me two Kings, attended with a quard of fifte armed men, who beang well satisfied with that my Sauage and I discoursed unto them (being destrous of noueltie) game mee content in whasoeuer I demanded, where I found that former relations were true. Here I redeemed a Frenchman , and afterwards another at Maltachufit , whothree yeeres fince escaped finpwrache at the Prenonman, and agreement another at manifestation, movement percess prince jumpes preparate at the North-east of Cape Cod. I must among it many things worthy objectation) for mant of leifure, therefore the bence I passe, and the control passe where we touched in the way) to the sland, which were discovered to bence I passe, the sland, which were discovered to the control passe. the twelfibof lane. Here we had good quarter with the Sanages, who likewife confirmed former reports, I found seuen seuerall places digged, sent bome of the earth, with samples of other commodities elsewhere found, founded the Coast, and the time being farre if ent bare up for Monahiggan, arriving the three and tieth of lune, where wee found our Ship ready to depart. To this lie are two other neere advoying, all which I called by the name of King Iames his Iles, because from thence I had the first motines to search. For that (now probable paffage) which may hereafter be both bonourable and profitable to his Matefile. When I had despatched with the ships ready to depart, I thus concluded for the accomplishing my businesses. In regard of the fewnesse of my men , not being able to leave behind mee a competent number for defence, In regara of the genneye v, my mina, not most of my provisions abourd the Sampton of Cape Ward ready 30 and set sufficiently farnish my selfe. I put most of my provisions abound the Sampton of Cape Ward ready 30 bound for Virginia, from whence bee came, taking no more into the Pinnace then I though might ferue our turnes, determining with Gods beloe to search the Coast along, and at Virginia to supply our select for a second desconery, if the first failed. But as the best actions are commonly hardest in effecting, and are yor a second assecure, 13 we sure some and are very manual are commons our ast in egicining and are follows without their croffes, fo in this we had one some fare, and met with many difficulties: for wee had not fasted move for some some fasted with a Southerty sterme, which drame us to this struct; grantly adone forty leagues, but wee were taken with a Southerty sterme, which drame us to this struct; gr ther we must weather a rockie point of Land, or run into a broad Bay no leffe dangerous; Incidit in Syllam, &c. the Rocker wee could not weather, though wee loofed till we received much water, but at last were forced to beare up for the Bay, and run on ground a furlong off the shoare, where we had beene beazen to pieces, had wee not instantly throwne our board our proussions to bane our lines; by which meanes ren to pieces, man wee not mitantly survente vaccouou a mi promitions to mane out times; sy woite one and we effected and brought off our Pianace the next high water without hurt, having our Pianace broken, and 20 as features to the which we easily mended. Being left in this mifery, having lost much bread, all our Beefe and Sider, some Meale and Apparell, with other prouisions and necessaries; having now little left besides bope to encourage vs to persists. Tet after a little deliberation we resolved to proceed and departed with the next faire winde. We had not now that faire quarter amongst the Sauages as before, which I take is was by reason of our Saudoes absence, who desired (in regard of our long iourney) to stay with some of our Sausge friends at Sawahquatooke) for now almost enery where, where they were of any strength sher Jought to betray vs. At Manamock (the Southerne part of Cape Cod, now called Sutchiffe Julets) I was onawares taken prisoner, when they sought to kill my men, which I left to man the Pinnace; but missing of their purpose, they demanded a ransome, which had, I was as sarre from libertie as before : yet it pleased God at last, after a strange manner to deliner me, with three of them into my hands, and a little 50 after the chiefe Sacheum himselfe; who seeing me weigh anchor, would have leaped overboard, but intercepted, craued pardon, and sent for the Hatchets given for ransome, excusing himselfe by laying the fault on his neighbours; and to be friends sent for a Canous lading of Corne, which received we fet him free. I am leth to omit the flory, wherein you would finde cause to admire the great mercy of God even in our greatest misery, in gining we both freedome and reliefe at one time. Departing hence, the next place we arrised at was Capacck, an Hand formerly discoursed by the English, where I met with Epinew a Samageshat bad lim. I in England, and speakes indifferent good English, who soure yeares since being carried bone, was reported to have beene flaine, with dimers of his Countregmen, by Saylers, which was falfe. with him land much conference, who gave one very good studellin in every living almost considerable manual. Time one permitting muce to search bere, which I should have done for sunder things of special moment. The one permitting muce to search bere, which I should have done for sunder things of special moment the wind faire. I should many shaping my course as the Coast search search to search the most sunder the search of the searc Weiterly part where the Coast began to fall away Southerly. In my way I disconered Land about theric leagues in length, heretofore taken for Mayne, where I feared I had beene imbarca, but by the helps of an Indian I get to the Sea againe, through many crooked and fireight passinger, i let passe many accidents to this iourner occasioned by treacherie, where wee were compelled twice to goe together by the eares . once the Sausoes had great advantage of us in a freight, not about a Bowe flot, and where a multitude of Indians let fire at us from the banke, but it pleased God to make us victours : neere unto this wee found a most dangerous Catwrast amongst small rockie Ilands, occasioned by two onequalitydes. the one ebbing and flowing two boures before the other : here wee loft an Anchor by the firengib of the current, but found it deepe enough; from bence were wee tarried in a fort frace by the tyder (wiftnesse into a great Bay (to vs so appearing) but indeede is broken land, which gave vs light of the Sea : here, as I faid, the Land treadeth Southerly. In this place I talked with many Saluages, who told me of two fundry pass so the great Sea on the West, offered me Pilots, and one of them drew mee a 10 Plot with Chalke upon a Chaft, whereby I found it a great Iland, parted the two Seas; they report the one scarce passable for shoulds, perillous currents, the other no question to be made of. Haning receined thefe directions, I batten to the place of greatest hope, where I purposed to make triall of Gods goodnesse towards us , and use my best endeadow to bring the truth to light, but wee were but onely bewed the entrance, where in feeking to paffe wee were forced backe with contrary and overblowing windes, bardly escaping both our lines. Being thus overcharged with weather, I stood along it the coast to seeks barbours, to attend a fanourable gale to recover the streight, but being a barbourlesse Coast for onebt we could then persone, wee sound no succour till wee arrived between Cape Charles and the Maine on the East side the Bay Cheltapeak, where in a wilde Roade wee anchored and the next day (the eight of September) croffed the Bay to Kecoughtan, where the first newes stroops 20 cold to our bearts, the generall sistenesse oner the Land. Here I resolved with all possible freede to returne in pursuite of this businesse; so that after a little refreshing, wee recovered up the River to lames Citie, and from thence to Cape Warde his Plantacon, where immediately wee fell to heming of Boords for a close Decke, basing found it a most defined course to attempt as before. At wee were thus labouring to effect our purposes, is pleased almighty God (who enety disposeth of the times and sasous, wherein all workes shall be accomplished to visite us with his beamic hand. the times and suppost, where we want to be the state of t (a time on these Coasts especially) subject to gusts and fearefull stormes, I have now resolved to choose a more temperate season, both for the generall good and our owne safeties. And thus I have fent you a broken discourse, though indeede very unwilling to have given any notice at all, till it had pleafed God to have bleffed mee with a thorow fearch, that our eyes might have witneffed the treath.

I have drawne a Plot of the Coast, which I dare not yet part with for feare of danger, let this therefore I have drawne a ties of the weigt, where a war may be part which you pear of wanger, act has energipe forme for confirmation of pair bapes, till can better performs up promise and your defire; for what I have spoken (can produce at least mille testers; sarre spokenes, of the Sea behinde them, and of Ships, which come many dayes convery from the West, and of the great extent of this Sea to the North and South, not knowing any bounds thereof westward. I cease to trouble you till a better opportunity offer it selfe yea membring my best lone, oc. I reft

From Captaine MARTYN his Plantation, 27. Decemb. 1 6 1 9.

Yours to command.

THO. DERMER.

To Sir Edwin Sands in the Treasurership succeeded the right Honorable Henry Earle of South- Cap. I. Smith. ampion, whose industry together with that of those two brethren John and Nicolas Farrars the Sir Edw. Sands fuccessive Deputies, have given much content to many, but to divers others matter of complaint; was Tressurer wherein I am an vnfit Iudge; onely as a reasonable man and Christian Minister (that I isy not from Ap. 161) 50 Historian) I am much grieued that Vorginias prosperity cannot answer mens hopes; nor can any till lunatore man meruaile if diuisions (minde-massacres) here, with the massacring Sauages and diseases there, have hindred there the expected effects of honorable and carefull indevours. Mafter Stockam, a Mafter Stock-Minister, writthence, May the eight and twentieth, that which deserueth inst consideration, ams Lever to that he found no probability byfaire meanes alone to draw the Sauages to goodnesse, and if Mars Master whiteand Minerua went hand in hand, they would effect more good in one houre, then these verball terbefore. Mercurians in their lives: and till their Priests and Ancients have their throats cut, there is no hope to bring them to conversion.

Iiiiiii 3

CHAP.

CHAP. XIIII.

A true Relation of a Sea Fight betweene two great and well appointed Spanish Ships, or Men of Warre; and an English Ship, called thy Margaret and Iohn, or the Blacke Hodge, going for Virginia.

Auing taken our iourney toward Virginia in the beginning of February last past, in a Ship called the Blacke Hodge, her burthen one hundred and fixtie tunne, man- Ia ned onely with eight Iron Pecces, and a poore Faulcon, we soone ouer-passed both the tedious endurances and fearefull dangers of fuch a Voyage, and came at last by the four eteenth of March under 1 3. and halfe Latitude, within twenty leagues

Hellanders co.

Falling with Menis by the twentieth of March, and compating the furthest point to stand in the handlommer with the shore, wee perceived two tall Ships at anchor right over against the watring place with their top fayles loofe, and their Boates going ashoare for their men. At first we supposed them Hollanders, in respect of their building, and the Hollanders colours borne by their Admirall in the maine top, the vice Admirall haung his fore top mast downe, and no colors difplayed, which encreased our former opinion, adding withall that it must needes be prife, or 20 fome other Ship subject to the misfortune of a fight.

But driving by necessity of water, and willing to refresh our selves a shoare, wee trimmed our Ship, and came to anchor fairely by them, sending our Boate in friendly manner to hale them both unprouided and unarmed, which returned with certificate, that they were Spaniards, wherein not fully latisfied, by reason of our former apprehension that it was otherwise; the better to be refolued, we fent out our Boate againe, as well to be affured what to trust vnto, as to gaine sometime to prepare our Shippe, and trim her more commodiously, being pestered with goods and fardels betweene the deckes, and altogether unprouided for any fight, either offensue or

The Boate approached the hindmost Ship, which I call the vice-Admirall, and haled her, de- 30 manding who they were, but instead of resoluting vs, she commanded them to come abourd, and would answere no otherwise; whereupon the Boate rowed from them, as resoluting all was not fhot at theboat well, and fo made hafte vnto vs againe, yet could not present a volley of small that powred very dangeroully among it them, infomuch that they had their cloathes shot through, their Oares shiuered, and the fides battered with Bullets; yet thankes be to God, neither was a man hurt, nor any thing loft; which, as if they had had notice of the same escape, rated their rage so much the more: For by that time the Boate was out of reach of their small shot, they followed it to the Ship with great Ordnance; and when they perceived they were fafely come aboord, they Englis vapre- tooke it foill, that they thundred against our Ship with the foarer rage, and most violent vollies, pared for fight. which we could not answer, having no Peece in our gunner roome, nor indeede any other well 40 mounted for such a Sea fight.

Spanish aduan-

They fhot at

By this time their vice Admirall heaued up her anchor to her warpe, and laid her selfe to wind-ward, if either we should passe forward, or anchor short againe, so that we perceived they meant to affault vs on all hands: for the let flye a whole broad-fide vpon vs, and came furioutly vp to our lee quarter without damage or relistance of our parts.

But when we were thus terrified and threatned by them, and thus encombred and disanimated amongst our selves, knowing withall (by reason of our ill prepared Ordnance) the disadvantage and hazard to be boorded at anchor by two good Ships well prepared for spoyle and ruine; we hoyfed vp our failes, and determined to fet forward, had not the vice-Admirall come on our star-boord fide, and beate vpon vs so hardly, that we fell to our businesse, and answered their vn- 50 kndenesse accordingly with many faire shot, which proved most effectuall, especially from a demy-culturing, which at last shot her betweene winde and water, so that shee was compelled from vs, and bare off to Sea, leaving her Admirall onely fingle with vs, who at last came fairely in our quarter to winde-ward, taking in her Holland Hagge, and advanced her Spanish colours, and Spenifb colors.

Their confe

so haled vs. We quietly and quickly answered, both what we were, and whither wee were bound, discouering the effect of our Commission, and relating the cause of our tarying there for water, neither purpoling to annoy any subsect of the King of Spaines, nor by way of affront to braue either Merchant or man of Warre. Then she charged vs to strike our sailes for the King of Spaine, and vaile the bonnet according to the prerogative they had in those Seas: we replyed with enlarging the 60 particulars of the league betweene the King our Master and their King, adding with all, that as we intended no ill, we would take no wrong; Whereupon the Mafter left the poope, and fequeftred himselfe from such open conference; had they not called for the Captaine againe, who at last presented himselfe, till they commanded him to come abourd with his Commission, which he refused, yet wished them to send their Boat aboord, and then they should see it most

But initead either of answering vs further with kinde words, or accepting of our reply in good Infolence of part, they made two great that at vs, and poured among vs such a volley of small that, before we the Seaniards. could get off the poope, that we thanked God they did no more harme, yet we were much amazed they did fo much: not thus content they waved vs with their bright fwords, and reuiled vs with opprobrious tearmes, mif-tearming vs dogs, and inventing more odious names against vs. then we could imagine that Christians durst vige one another withall : at last they laid vs aboord, which enforced vs to raife vp our maine fayle, and to give the word to our small to fhot, which all this while lay close, well resolved and prepared : but sodainely breaking The Emillo forth wee plyed them in such fort that wee made them give backe and thrinke from their former fight. forwardneffe.

1281

The fight continued some halfe hours in our quarter, and according to the terrour of such encounters, wee were compatt as it were in fire and smoake, vntill they discourred the waste of our Ship naked, and were encouraged with the hope of reciprocall damage, whereupon they brauely ranne voon our fide, and laid vs abourd loofe to loofe, haftning with Pikes and Swords to enter, to which was added fuch fury, that if they had not beene preuented, we should have Spaniards seeks fhrunke under the rage of a barbarous flaughter : but it pleafed God io to direct our Mafter with to enter. advice, and encourage our men with valour, that our Pikes being formerly placed vader our and halfe decke, and certaine that lying close for that purpose vnder the portels of the Shippe. encountred them to brauely, that their fury was not onely rebated, but their halfinesse inter- Their roule cepted, and the whole Company beaten backe, especially vpon the wind-ward side, where the charge was hottest, and the fight bloodiest; for there the throng was great, and men had worke enough to make proofe of their courages and fortunes. Divers of our men were hurt, and many fell on their fide.

In the end they were violently repulled by vs, enforced to a retreat, vntill they were reinforced backe againe by their Commanders, who standing vpon tearmes of honor, as being men of Warre, and defigned for that purpose, thought it an indignity to be so afronted and countermanded; which caused a second charge, and that was answered with a second beating backe, till the Second charge

20 Captaine himselfe grew enraged, as not brooking to be so much overmated, and constrained them to come on a fresh, which they did so effectually that questionlesse it had wrought an alteration, Third chargeif the God that toffeth Monarchies, and teareth the Mountaines in his fury, had not taught vs to toffe our Pikes with prosperous event, and poured out a sodaine volley of small shot upon them, whereby that worthy Commander was flaine at the foote of a Pike, and many of his Souldiers Their Captain dropped downe on the top of the hatches. Prefently our Mafter tooke advantage of their dif. flainc. comfiture (though with fome commiferation for their valiant Captaine fo flaine) that hee not onely plyed them a fresh with great Ordnance, but had more false shot under the Pikes, which were bestowed to good purpose, and amased our enemies with the sodainnesse. Amongst the rest one Lucas our Carpenters mate must not be forgotten, who perceived a way an how to annoy them, as they were thus pulled and in a confusion, drue out a minion which hee Lucconisbrane nobly fer a worke under the halfe decke, till at the last hee brought it to the doxe of the halfe act. decke, and there bent it your them, but in fuch a manner, that when it was fiered the cases full of stones and peeces of Iron fell vpon them like haile, and cleared their decke in such a fort that The case after it flue many, and inflort time we faw few affailants, but onely fuch as crept from place to place of the free of the first very couertly, and feemed willing to obscure themselves from the fury of our shot, which now vicifiting, was thicker then theirs: For although (as farre as we may commend our enemies) they had done fomethings worthy of admiration : yet either wanting men, or overtaken with the volooked for valour of our company, they now began to thrinke, and gaue vs leaue to be wanton with Yet were our great Ordnance onely foure, that we could vie in this fight, but it should seeme The English they ferued the turne as well as foure times foure: for they (hot her divers times betweene winde could we but and water, and so prevailed, that at last we saw many signes of their willing nesse to leave vs, four ordbut by reason she was fast in a slach of our cable, which in haste of weighing our anchor hung nance. loofe, the could not be divided nor make that way thee purposed, vntill one of our men out it with an Axe without direction, and was flaine for his labour. But when the perceived the was looie, after the had beene a boord two houres and a halfe, good Lord what hafte the made, and how quickly were we divided, both great and small shot playing on both sides, which lasted vn- Spaniards fall till the remotenesse was about a Caliner shot, and we discourred the vice-Admirall comming to off. her affiftance, who began a farre off to ply vs with great fnot, and put vs in minde we had ano-

60 ther worke in hand.

Whereupon wee manned our Ship a new, feparating the dead and hurt bodies by themselues Brauado turfrom vs, and were so encouraged, that we waved her, and in a manner made toward her to fight a ned English. fresh: For when we perceived, that the Admirall made not a shot more at vs, we verily imagined, that either the was preparing her felfe with a new tupply or wanted men to make her feruiceable or resolued to goe away from vs , considering shee had lost her Captaine; yet loth to bee secure. and imagining the Vice-admirall might come and boord vs finding vs play, till the Admirall did make her selfe better readie, we prepared our selues, wondring yet that shee came no neerervs then Falcon flot, where with fhe plyed vs still on the Lee side, wntill at last she received another payment from our Demie-culturing, which thor her through, and made her beare with the thore payment from our beams, where thee remayned till two of the clocke after midnight, and fo wee had time to reforme our disorders, and make our selues better readie for the next dayes varietie. By breake of day she came vp againe with the Admirall with her; as if they determined indeed to deuoure vs at once; but as it seemed it was but a Brauado, though for the time they forfooke not our quarter within Musket shot : for all that night and morning they were quiet 10 Neighbours, and kept vs company without any great annoyance with their Top-lavles downe, not knowing, as it should seeme, what to doe with vs, or else suspecting their owne hurts and Leakes, they durit not trust themselves too farre from Land, nor to the furie of another encounter. All that night we had time and leafure to ouer-looke our losses, and prepare for them, the Admirall made hew of an encounter, and weafter Prayers were ended propaided to fight with them, but suddenly wee perceived the Vice-Admirall hang a sterne, cutting her mayne fayle to come vp, and stirring very ill.

Muskes foot. Many flaine. Scuppers run of bloud. A disaster. LIB.IX.

Next dayes

At length the Admirall shooke in the wind, and by apparant signes gaue vs notice of slacking her courle, whereby we might runne a head and follow the Seas at her pleasure, fo wee permirall feeketh ceined the Vice. Admirall with all her Sayles to make towardes an Iland called Sans, which 20 to recouse the the Admiral either tooke notice of, as knowing the danger she wasin, or gaue directions accorqualities, Sana. dingly, confidering there wasno good to bee done with vs : for prefently she tacked about and loit vs , bearing toward that Iland ale.

Dofter Behane and feuen others flane out-right.

Seanilb thips deferibed.

Wee lost Doctor Bohave, and seuen other were slaine out-right: two died shortly after of their wounds, and fixteene were that through in some part or other of the bodie, whose wounds Gols be thanked were recured and without mayme or further impeachment of health are now recovered and fettled in Virginia, according to our first entended purpose and Commisfion : I reckon not fuch as are hurt with Pikes and other offenfue Weapons, because there was no danger in their cures, and the skilfull Surgeon shewed his art and good speed with facilitie. How danger in their cures, and the saminal outgoon in two one are an agood speed with retainer, flow many they loft wee cannot tell, nor what men of name were entertayed amongft them, one 30 ks am fore we faw many he flame on the Decke, and more cast ouer-boord in the fight, besides the Scuppers ran with bloud, and the very Sea in their quarter was coloured with a Scarlet hue, and looked fearfully vpon vs all.

The burthen of their Admirall was three hundred tunnes, having two and twentie Peeces of Brasse, and all prouision of a man of Warre indeed : their Vice-Admirall three hundred tuns, and fixteene cast Peeces, nor much inferiour to her for trimming and correspondent Equipage, and both to outward shew ouer-masterfull and daring for one poore Merchant and Passenger, being but a hundred and fixtie tunnes, having eight Iron Peeces and one Falcon, over-loaden with Stuffe and Wares, encombred with Pallengers, toyled with a storme, tyred with a long Voyage, affrighted with wants, and euery way infufficient to answere any such enemie: but 40 as it in the Scripture, it is all one to thee, O God, whether there be few or many, and Gedeous three hundred shall slay many thousands of the Midianites: as for deliuerances, the people of Ifraell shall passe through the Red Sea dry foot : Ionas shall bee cast safe on shoare out of the Whales belly: and Paul shall escape shipwracke, fauing his life with all his Passengers in the Iland of Malta.

For to conclude with the purpole in hand, there is one thing most remarkable as an inducement to this our deliuerance, that Captaine Chester embraced Doctor Bobune beeing mortally wounded, and thus recomforted him, faying, O Doctor Bohune what a difaster is shie; the Noble Doctor no whit examinated, replyed, Fighe it out braue man, the canse u good , and Lord receine my foule.

Slaine out right. Doctor Bobune. Thomas Demeter Gentleman. Th. Read. William Garret. Th. Vernam. Gabriel Peies. Danid Bathering. Raph. Gc. Diedafter. Francis Annis Gentleman. Ed. Nerobery Sayler. Wounded yet cured. William Bird Gentleman. Alexander Bousnine. William Bannington Gentleman. William loyce Quarter Malter, John Wakings, John Wilfon Sayler. George Tayler Sayler. William Lucas Sayler. John Robbins Steward, Phillip Durmine. Three Frenchmen. Robert Lettor. Anthony Browne Gentleman.

CHAP.

CHAP. XV.

Virginian affaires since the yeere 1620. till this present 1624.

A note of the Shipping, men, and provisions fent and provided for Virginia, by the Right Honourable HENRY Earle of South-hampton, and the Company, and other private Adventurers, in the yeere 1 6 2 1. drs. with other Occurrents then published by the Company.

SHIPS AND PEOPLE.

120.

The Charles 120, tunne: 10

The Marmaduke 100. tun : in Iuly The Temperance 80, tun : in Iuly The Warwicke 160. tun : in August 100.

The Tigre 40. tun : in August The Sea-flowre 140.tun: in August 120. The Flying Hart 200, tun: in August 60.

Men, and 40. Cattell. The Discouerie 60. tun : in November 20. II The Bona Nona 200. tun : in Noumber 50.

12 The Hope-well 60. tun : in Nouember 20.

13 The God-freed 150. tun : in Aprill 11622. 14 The Gift of God 140. tun : in Aprill 100.

He Elianor 30. tun : in May | 15 The Prime-Rofe 80. tun : in Aprill 1621. with 10. perfons. 16 The Charitie 80. tun: in Aprill

The George 180, tun : in July 17 The Bonamentare co. tun : in Aprill 10. 18 The White Lion 180. tun: in May 40 Men, 40. Cattell. 10 The Furtherance 180, tunin May 80,men.

20 The Ma, res and lobe 160 tun : in May 21 The lames 120, tun : in May Summe of the persons, 1400. Cattell 80.

> Sent alfo to the Summer Hands by that Company.

22 The lofoph 150. tun : in May 1621. 100. perfons.

22 The lames 120, tun : in Iuly 24 The Concord 180. tun : in August

So there is foure and twentie Sayle of thips, with fine hundred Mariners in there imployed to there Plantations in this yeere. Befides, there are now prouiding feuerallships in divers parts of this Kingdome to transport to the Plantations about five hundred persons.

And for the benefit of the Plantations thefe things following have beene here done this yeere.

Sixteene persons and others have beene provided and sent for the making of Beads for erade Beads. in the Countrie with the Natiues, and for making Glaffe of all forts.

Seven and fiftie voune Maides have beene fent to make wives for the Planters, divers of which Maids. were well married before the comming away of the Ships.

50 A Magazine hath beene fent of all necessaries for the Colonie, to the value of two thousand Magazines pound, besides all private mens sending goods, which was very ample, Trade being set open for all his Majesties Subjects. A ship called the Discouerie, hath beene set out for the rich Trade of Furre-trade. Furres, which both the French and Hollanders have yeerely within our Precincts, and within fiftie leagues of vs. Fine and twentie persons for the building of Boats, Pinnasses and Ships, for the Boat-builders, necessarie vie of the Colonie for fishing, Trade, and Discouerie, &c. Seuen persons sent for planting the thousand Acres of Land given to the East Indie Schoole.

Other Occurents of Note.

The Gouernours arrivall in Virginia, at the end of the last Summer, with nine thips, and neere feuen hundred people, all fately, and in good health. The admirable deliuerance of diuers ships; and namely, of the Tiger, which beeing driven ftrangely neere two hundred leagues out of her courle, fell into the Turkes hands, and yet came fane to Virginia.

LIB.IX.

Iron.

Master Berkleyes Letters assure vs , that there is not a more sit place for Iron-workes then in Virginia, both for Wood, Water, Mynes, and Stone: and that by Whitfontide next, wee may relie voon Iron made by him.

Cotton:

The Plants of Cotton-wooll trees that came out of the West Indies, prosper exceeding well. and the Cotton-wooll-feeds from the Mogels Countrie come vp, and grow: Samples of it they have tent; and this Commoditie they hope this yeere to bring to a good perfection and -grantitie. - The Indico Seed thrines well, but they yet want knowledge how to cure it.

Indico. V.nes

Our Frenchmen affure vs that no Countrie in the World is more proper for Vines, Silke Oliues. R ce, &c. then Urrgins, and that it excelleth their owne Country. The Vines beeing in abundance naturally ouer all the Countrey : a taste of which Wine they have alreadie fent vs, with 10 hope the next yeare to fend vs a good quantitie. There bee Mulberie trees in wonderfull abundance, and much excelling both in goodneffe and greatneffe those of their Countrey of Langue. docke. To the full periecting of both which rich Commodities of Wine and Silke, there wanteth nothing but hands. And of the Mulbiries may bee made also good wholelome Wine for the people there. And of a certaine Plumme in the Countrey, they have made good drinke, Salt-workes are erecting (the proper place being now found, as the Rocheller doth certific ve) whereby many ships will transport people at easier rates hereafter, finding Salt there to furnish them for the great and profitable fiftings upon that Coast, whither twentie sayle of thips went this last yeere but of the Westerne parts of England, besides the ships formerly mentioned.

Silke and Mulberies.

Plum-drinke. Sale-workes. New Difcoue-

Maiter John Porie hath of late made a Discourrie into the great Bay Northward (yetat the 20 bottome of it he was not, referning it to a fecond Voyage) where are now fetled neere one hundred English very happily, with hope of a good Trade of Furresthere to bee had. And Terra Lemnia was tent vs from thence, which is found as good as that of Tinker, and is in great abun-

In February last he likewise discourred to the South River, some fixtie miles over Land from . Vs, a very fruitfull and pleafant Countrey, full of Riuers, wherein are two Haruests in one yeer (the great King giving him friendly entertainment, and defirous to make a league with vs) hee found also there in great quantitie of the same Silke-graffe (as appeareth by the samples lent vs) whereof Matter Herior in his Booke 1587. makes relation, who then brought home some of it, with which a piece of Grogeran was made, and given to Queene Elizabeib, and some heere w ho 30 have lived in the East Indies affirme, that they make all their Cambaya Stuffes of this, and Coo ton-wooll. Allo in his paffage by Land, Maiter Porey discouered a Countrey full of Pine-tiers, abouetwentie miles long, whereby a great abundance of Pitch and Tarre may bee made : and other forts of woods there were, fit for Pot-ashes and Sope-ashes.

The Indians have maderelation of a Copper Myne, that is not farre from thence, how they gather it, and the firange making of it : a piece whereof was fent home being found (after trial) very excellent metall. Some of the English have made relation of a China Boxe Iteme at one of the Kings Houses, who declared, that it was sent him from the Well , by a King that dwels ouer the great Hils, whose Countrey is neere the Sea, he having that Boxe from a people as hee faid, that come thicherin flips, and weare clothes, and dw. ll in Houles, and are called Acanact. 40 chma. And he offered our people that he would fend his Brother slong with them to that King : which the Gouernour purpoteth not to refuse, hoping thereby to discouer the South Sea, to long talked of.

Summer Iland

A small ship comming in December last from the Swimmer-Ilands, to Virginia, brought thither from thence thele Plants, viz. Vines of all forts, Orange and Leman trees, Sugar Canes, Caffado Roots (that make bread) Pines, Plantans, Potatoes, and fundry other Indian fruits and plants, not formerly feene in Virginia, which begin to prosper very well.

Gifts.

The Gentlemen and Mariners that came in the Royall Iames, from the East Indies (beeing at Cape Bona Speranza homeward bound) gaue towards the building of a Free Schoole in Virginia, to be called the East Indie Schoole, the summe of seventie pound eight shillings fix pence. Towards the furtherance of the faid East India Schoole, an vinknowne perion hath added the

A person refusing to be made knowne, hath given the summe of fortie shillings a yeere for efumme of thirtie pound. uer, tor a Sermon, before the Virginia Company thirtie pounds.

At a Quarter Court held the thirtieth of Ianuary 1621, by a person not willing as yet to bee knowne, was sent in Gold to helpe forward the East Indie Schoole, fiue and twintie pounds.

At the same Quarter Court , a small Bible, with a couer richly wrought; a great Church Bible; 63 Bookes of Common Prayer; and other Books were presented to be sent to Virginia, in the name of a person who had the yeere before fent, for the vie of the Colledge at Henrico, divers Bookes, and an exact Map of America; the Giver is not knowne, but the Bookes are valued at cenne Giuen

CHAP.15. S.2. Pasents granted. Newes fent. Restraint for Trade.

Ginen by Mafter Thomas Bargrane, Preacher in Virginia deceaffed, for the vie of the Colledge. a Library valued at a hundred Markes.

And there is a contribution made by the Inhabitants in Virginia, for the building of an house of entertainment for new commers at lames Citie, amounting to the value of fitteene hundred

Patents granted this yeere.

To the Ladie Dale. 14 To Sir George Yeardly. To Sir Dudly Dieges. 1 . To Master Thomas Leneson. To Sit John Bourchier. v6 To Captaine William Wildon. 17 To Mailer Henry Souther. To Captaine Ralph Hamer. To Maiter Arthur Swayne, &c. 18 To Martins Hundred. to To Mafter Robert Mofton. To Matter Rowland Trueloue, &c. To Maffer Iobs Crowe. 20 To Mafter Edmand Wynne. 21 To Captaine Henry Pelham, &c. To Mailer Edward Rider. To Captaine Simon Leeke. 22 To Captaine Daniell Tucker. 23 To Sir Bowyer Worlly, 10 To Matter Daniell Gookin. 24 To Mafter Thomas Buckley. 11 To Maiter Edward Bennet. 12 To Mafter Lofeph Lemmg. 25 To Malter Francis Harwell. 20 13 To Sir Charles North. 26 To Sir Iohn Brooke.

Who together with their Affociates, have undertaken to transport great multitudes of people and cattle to Virginia.

Newes from Virginia in Letters fent thence 1621. partly published by the Company, partly transcribed from the Originals, with Lesters of his Maiestie, and of the Company touching Silke-workes.

Nthe three last yeares of 1619. 1620. and 1621. there hath beene prouided and sent 1570, people for Virginia two and fortie Saile of thips, three thousand flue hundred and feventie featto Virginia men and women for Plantation, with requilite prouisions, besides store of Cattle, and in the three men and women for Plantation, with require proumons, penaes more or Cattle, and in those ships haughene about twelle hundred Mariners imployed: There hath also Saile of ships, beene tent in those yeeres nine in ps to the Summer Ilands with about nine hundred people to 1200, Mariners inhabit there, in which ships two hundred and fortie Mariners were imployed. In which space imployed, have beene granted fifty Patents to particular persons, for Plantation in Virginia, who with their 1500. To the Affociates have undertaken therein to transport great multitudes of people and cattell thither, which for the most parc is since performed, and the residue now in preparing, as by the seuerall

Declarations of each yeare in their particulars, (manifedted and approoued in our generall and imployed, publike Quarter-Courts) and for the fuller latisfaction of all defirous to understand the particularities of such proceedings, hath beene by printing commended to the understanding of all. Sir Francis Wiat was fent Gouernour into Virginia, who arrived there in November 162 1. with Mafter George Sandys Treasurer, Mafter Danifon Secretarie, &c. In the nine fhips fenc in that Fleet died but one Pallenger of feuen hundred, in whole roome there was another also borne at Sea. Their prouisions were not found so well conditioned as was expected. The Sailers are full blamed for imbezelling the goods fent to private persons, for killing of Swine, inordinate trucking &c. It was ordained that for every head they should plant but a thousand plants of Toto bacco (and for the better strength not to suffer aboue nine leanes to grow on each plant) which will make about a hundred weight.

Master Gookin arrived also out of Ireland with fiftie men of his owne, and thirtie Passengers well furnished. The present gaine by Tobacco, had made the planting of Corne to be neglected: and some thinke that if Corne might there be valued (not at two shillings fixe pence the bushell) as deere as that which is brought from hence, there would be lefte feate of famine, or dependance on Tobacco.

The Letters written from the Gouernour and Treasurer in Variation in the beginning of March last, (which came hither in Aprill) gaue afterance of ouercomming and bringing to pertection in this yeere, the Iron-workes, Glaffe-workes, Salt-workes, the plentifull fewing of all forts of to English graine with the Plough, having now cleered good quantitie of ground; fetting of store of Indian Corne or Maiz, inficient for our felues, and for trucke with the Natives; refleating of the quantitie of Tobacco, and amendment of it in the qualitie, learned by time and experience; The planting of Vines and Mulberie trees neere to their Houles, Figge-trees, Pomegranates, Potatoes, and Cotton-wooll Seeds, Pocoon, Indico, Sugar Canes, Madder, Woade, Hempe, Flaxe, liberally to contribute. I write the words of their Letters. And how in a late Discourie made. a few moneths before by some of them to the Southward, they had past thorow great Forrests of Pines, fifteene or fixteene miles broad, and aboue threescore miles long, very fit for Mastsfor shipping, and for Pitch and Tarre, and of other forts of woods fit for Pot-ashes and Sope-ashes. and came vnto a most fruitfull Countrey, blessed with abundance of Corne, reaped twice a yeere (within the limits of Virginia) where also they vinderstand of a Copper Myne, an estay whereof was fent, and vpon triall here found to be very rich; and met with a great deale of Silke-graffe there growing, which monethly may be cut, of which kinds, and Cotton-wooll, all the Cam- Io baya and Bengala Stuffes are made in the East Indies : and of which kindes of Silke-graffe was M. Haristinhis heretofore made a piece of Grogeram giuen to Queene Elizabeth. And how that in Decem-Booke of Vn- ber latt they had planted and cultivated in Unginia Vines of all (as well those naturally growema, 4.1585, ing, as those other Plants sent them from these parts of Europe) Orengeand Lemon-trees, Figtrees, Sugar Canes, Cotton-wooll, Caffaui Roots (that make very good bread) Plantanes, Potatoes, and fundry other Indian fruits and Plants not formerly seene in Virginia, which at the time of their faid Letters began to profper very well as also their Indico Seed, for the true cure whereof there is lately caufed a Treatife to be written.

and Silke-grulle; and for the erecting of a faire Inne in lames Citie for the better entertainment of new commers, whereto and to other publike workes, every old Planter there offered freely and with the Sa-

Furthermore, they write that in a Voyage made by Lieutenant Marmaduke Parkinfon, and other Englis Gentlemen, up the River of Patomacke they faw a China Boxe at one of the Kings 20 Houses where they were. This Boxe or Casket was made of braided Palmito, painted without, and lined in the infide with blue Taffata after the China or East India fashion. They enquiring whence it came, the King of Patomecke faid, it was presented him by a certaine people of the Mountaines toward the South-west, who got it from another Nation beyond them some thirtie dayes journie from Patomacke, called Acana Echinac, beeing of small stature, who had Houses. Apparell, and Houshold stuffe like vs, and living within foure dayes journey of the Sea, had ships come into their River : and he his Brother along with them to that King, which offer the Gouernour purposed not to refuse; and the rather, by reason of the continuals constant relations of all those Sauages in Virginia, of a Sea, and the way to it West, they affirming that the heads of all those feuen goodly Ruers (the least whereof is greater then the River of Thames, and Navigable 30 about an hundred and fiftie miles, and not about fixe or eight miles one from another) which fall all into one great Bay, have their rifing out of a ridge of Hils, that runnes all along South and North : whereby they doubt not but to find a lafe, easie, and good passage to the South Sea, part by water, and part by Land, esteeming it not about an hundred and fiftie miles from the head of the Falls, where we are now planted; the Discouerie whereof will bring forth a most rich Trade to Carbay, China, Iapan, and those other of the East Indies, to the inestimable benefit of this Moreover, the Letters of Mafter John Berkley, sometimes of Benerstone Castle in the Coun-

M. Berklet.

tie of Glocester, (a Gentleman of an Honourable Family) likewise certifie, that a more fit place for Iron-workes (whereof he was made Mafter and Ouer-leer) then in Vaginia, both for Wood, 40 Water, Mynes, and Stone, was not to be found : And that by Whitfontide the Company might relye vpon good quantities of Iron made by him : which also by Letters from Master George Sandys the third of March last, was confirmed, with this farther description of the place (called The falling Creeke) to be fo fitting for that purpose, as if Nature had applyed her selfe to the wish and direction of the Workman; where also were great stones hardly seene else-where in Unginia, laying on the place, as though they had beene brought thither to advance the crection

French Vigne-

Mulberies.

of those Workes. The Letters of the French Vignerous or Vine-men, procured out of France, and fent ouer into Virginia, did likewise affertaine, that no Countrey in the World was more proper for Vines, Silke, Rice, Olines, and other frints, then Verginia is: and that it far excelled their owne Coun-50 trie of Languedocke; the Vines of divers forts being in abundance naturally over all the Countrey. They scarsly beleeved those fruits to be Grapes till they had opened them and seene their kernels; such was their bignesse. They are in lone with the Countrey, and having planted some cuttings of Vines at Michaelmas last, in their Letters affirme that these bare Grapes alreadie this Spring to their great wonder, as being a thing they suppose not heard off in any other Countrie. A taste of Wine made of the wilde Grape, they last yeere sent, with hope to fend a good quantitie this next Vintage; and that the Mulbery trees, where they abode were in wonderfull abundance, and much excelling both in goodnesse and greatnesse those of their owne Countrey of Languedoste: and that those Silke-wormes they have, prosper exceeding well, and some Silke they hope to fend this yeere, there wanting nothing to fet vp that rich Commoditie but flore of 60 hands wherewith England doth abound. Of the fruit of which Mulbery trees (as of a Plumme there plentifully growing) they would make wholsome Drinkes for the Colonie and people

Opachantarough doted on a house which the English had built for him of our fashion : hee

CHAP.15. S. 2. Copper Peeses. His Maieft, Letter to the Treasurer of Virginia, 1787

dwelled therein, thewed it to his owne people and thrangers with pride, keeping his Keves charily, and bufying himfelfe with locking and valocking the doores, fomerimes a hundred times in a day, admiring the itrangenesse of that Engine, a Locke and Key. Hee gaue the English leave to feate themselues any where on his Rivers where the Natives are not actually seated, and entred into further couenants of amity, for reciprocall defence, mutuall transportation, discouery of mines, &c. They report also of Copper Peeces presented to Opachank: which Copper is gathered at the foote of the Mountaines, where they digge a hole in the ground, in which they out the care, and make thereon a great fire, which caufeth it to runne into a maffe, and become malleable : neither haue they any tooles, but fmooth itones for that purpose. This seemed strange to to ours which heard the English Copper passeth eleuen fires.

His Maiesties gracious Letter to the Earle of South-hampton, Treasurer, and to the Counsell and Company of Virginia here: commanding the present setting vp of Silke workes, and planting of Vines in Virginia.

R Ight trusty and welbeloned, We greese you well: whereas We understand, that the Soyle in Vica 20 Rejnia naturally yieldeth store of excellent Mulberry trees, We have taken into Our Princely consider ston the creat benefit that may grow to the Aduenturers and Planters, by the breede of Silkewormes, and fetting up of Silkeworkes in those parts. And therefore of Our gracious Inclination to a designe of so much benour and advantage to the publice, We have thought good, as at fundry other times, so now more particularly to recommend it to your specialleare, hereby charging and requiring you to take specdy order, that our people there, vie all possible diligence in breeding Silkewormes, and erecting Silkewrites, and that they rather bellow their transfell is compalling this rich and folds Commodity, then in that of Tobacce; which befolds much unnecessary expense, trings with it many district and necessaries.

And on a much as One Transa, to has Boncoll that he happened many in the time of the transaction of the tran of the Silkeworme, together with the Art of Silkemaking, and of planting Vines, and that his experience and abilities may much conduce to the advancement of this businesse; We doe hereby likewise require you to canfe his directions, both for the faid Silkeworkes and Vineyards, to be carefully put in practice thorowout our Plantations there, that fo the worke may goe on cheerefully, and receive no more interruptions

Given under Our Signet, at our Pallace of Westminster, the ninth day of July, in the twentieth yeare of our Raigne of England, France and Ireland, and of Scotland the five and fiftieth.

To Our right trusty and right welbeloued Cousin and Councellour, HENRY, Earle of Southhampton, Treasurer of our Plantation in Virginia, and to Our trusty and welbeloued, the Deputy, and an others of Our faid Plantation.

Virginia.

WINDEBANK.

The Treasurour, Counsell and Company of Virginia, to the Governour and Counsell of State in Virginia residing.

Fier our very harry commendations: His Sacred Maiesty, out of his high wisedome and care of A the noble Plantation of Virginia, hath beene graciously pleased to direct his Letters to us here in 50 England, thereby commanding vs to advance the setting up of Silkworkes, and planting of Vinevards; as by the Copy herewith fent, you may perceise.

The intimation of his Maiesties pleasure, we conceine to be a motine sufficient, to induce you to imploy all your indexors to the festing forward those two Staple Commodities of Silke and Wine; which brought to their perfection, will infinitely redound to the bonour, benefit, and comfort of the Colony, and of this whole Kingdome: yet we, in discharge of our duties, doe againe renew our often and iterated Instruction ons, and inuite you cheerefully, to fall opon thefe two forich, and necessary Commodities And if you hall finde any person, either through negligence or wilfulnesse, to omit the planting of Vines, and Mulberry trees, in orderly and husbandly manner, as hy the Booke is prescribed, or the providing of convenient 60 roomes for the breeding of Wormes; me defire they may by severe censures and punishment, be compelled thereunto. And on the contrary, that all fauour and possible assistance be given to such as yeelde wilung obedience to his Highnelle Commands therein. The breach or performance whereof as we are bound to give a first account, so will it also be required of you the Governour and Counsell especially. Herein there can be no Plea, either of difficulty or impossibility; but all the contrary appeares, by the natural a

Kkkkkkk

The Broke is for Silkworks, Vines & oth r husbandry;but abundance of those two excellent Plants afore-named enery where in Virginia; neither will such excusebe namitted, nor any other pretences ferme, whereby the businesse be at all delayed : and as wee formerly (ent at our great charge the French Vignerons to you, to teach you their Art; fo for the Came timele me now commend this Booke unto you, to ferne as an Instructions to enery one, and fend you fore of them remetation anny to be diferfed ouer the whole Colony, to enery Master of a Family one, Sike-feede you feath receine alfo good ulesboth by thu Ship, sufficient to flore enery man : fo that there wants nothing, but industry in the Planter, suddenly to bring the making of Silke to its perfection: which either for their owne benefit (we hope) they will willingly indewour, or by a whole some and necessary severity they must be inforced.

Thu particular adnice we thought necessary to give you, lest that if it should have come to you minoled to be injected, with others, you would have interpreted at as a common Instruction, or a businessee that was not taken so to heart, as this by vs. and we hope will be by you in humble obedience to his Sacred Maieflies Rorall Instructions. The paines and industry of the Anthour, for the benefit of the Plantations (being a member of our Company) are sufficient arguments of his good affection to the Action, and they both deferne your best acceptance and ours, that others may thereby be innited to impart their knowledge in businesse of this and the like nature; whereby the Colony may not onely be supported for the present, but brought to that perfection, that may redound to the glory of God, the bonour of his Maiestie, and the inestimable benefit of his noble Kingdomes; which as they are the true aime and end the Aduenturers and Planters brue propried unto themselves, so onehs they to be still the honorable seedes to put others also forward in this action : we commend this businesse against o your speciall care. And so we commit you all, and your waighty affaires, to the protection of the Almighty.

HENRY Southampton.

C. III.

The barbarous Massacre committed by the Sauages on the English-Planters, March the two and twentieth, 1621. after the English accompt.

He last May there came Letters from Sir Francis Wist Gouernour in Unginia, which did advertise that when in Nonember last he armeed in Virginia, and entred vpon his Gouernment, he found the Country stelled in a peace (as all men there thought) fure and vinuidable, not onely because it was solemnly ratified and sworne, and at the request of the Natiue King flamped in Braile, and fixed to one of his Oakes of note, but as being aduantagious to both parts; to the Saungesas the weaker, under which they were fafely sheltred and defended; to vs, as being the ealiest way then thought to pursue and advance our projects, or buildings, plantings, and effecting their conversion by peaceable and faire meanes. And such was the coaceit of firme peace and amity, as that there was feldome or neuer a Sword worne, and a Peece fel- 40 Hafty fecurity, cert of mime peace and annity, as a this design and the Plantations of particular domer, except for a Deere or Fowle. By which allurance of fecurity, the Plantations of particular domer, except for a Deere or Fowle. lar Aduenturers and Planters were placed featteringly and straglingly as a choyce veine of rich ground inuited them, and the further from neighbours held the better. The houles generally fet open to the Sauages, who were alwayes friendly entertained at the table of the English, and commonly lodged in their Bed-chambers. The old Planters (as they thought now come to reape the benefit of their long trauels) placed with wonderfull content upon their private dividends, and the planting of particular Hundreds and Colonies purlued with an hopefull alacrity, all our proiects (faith he) in a faire way, and their familiarity with the Natines, feeming to open a faire gate for their convertion to Christianity. The Country being in this estate, an occasion was ministred of sending to Opachanteno the King 50 of thele Sauages, about the middle of March last, what time the Messenger returned backe with occasioned by these words from him, That be beld the peace concluded so firme, as the Skie bould somer fall then it Englissecurity diffoliard : yea, such was the treacherous diffirmulation of that people, who then had contribud our de firuction, that euen two dayes before the massacre, some of our men were guided thorow the woods by them in fafety : and one Browne, who then to learne the language lucd among the Warrascoyacks (a Province of that King) was in friendly manner sent backe by them to Captaine Hamer his Matter, and many the like pustages, rather increasing our former confidence, then any wife in the world ministring the leaft inspition of the breach of the peace, or of what instantly enfired; vea, they borrowed our owne Boats to conuey themselves cross the River (on the bankes of both ides whereof all our Plantations were) to confult of the discellish murder that ensued, 60 and of our otter extirpation, which God of his mercy (by the meanes of some of themselves conuerted to Christianity) presented; and as well on the Friday morning (the fatall day) the two and twentieth of March, as also in the euening, as in other dayes before, they came vinarmed into our houles, without Bowes or Arrowes, or other weapons, with Decre, Turkies, Falls, Furres, and other provisions, to fell and trucke with vs for Glasse Beades, and other trifles : yea, in some places, far downe at Breakfait with our people at their tables, whom immediately with their owne tooles and weapons, either laid downe, or flanding in their houses, they bately and barbaroully murthered, not iparing either age or fexe, man, woman or childe; fo fodaine in their cruell execution, that few or none differred the weapon or blow that brought them to destruction. In which manner they also slew many of our people then at their severall workes and busbandries in the fields, and without their houses, some in planting Corne and Tobacco, some in gardening, fome in making Bricke, building, fawing, and other kindes of husbandry, they well knowing in what places and quarters each of our men were, in regard of their daily familiarity. and refort to vs for trading and other negotiations, which the more willingly was by vs continued and cherished for the delire we had of effecting that great master-peece of workes, their conucra fion. And by this meanes that fatall Friday morning, there fell under the blowly and barbarous hands of that perfidious and inhumane people, contrary to all lawes of God and Men, of Nature and Nations, three hundred and forty feuen men, women, and children, most by their owne basely murtheweapons: and not being content with taking away life alone, they fell after againe woon the red, some think dead, making as well as they could a fresh murder, defacing, dragging, and mangling the dead more. carkaffes into many peeces, and carrying fome parts away in dention, with bale and bruitish triumph. Neither yet did these Beafts spare those amongst the rest well knowne vnto them, from whom they had daily received many benefits and favours, but spitefully also massacred them.

One instance of it, amongst too many shall serve for all.

Toat worthy religious Gentleman, Master George Thorpe Esquire, Deputie of the Colledge Hehad written lands, lometimes one of his Maiesties Pensioners, and in one of the principall places of command letters the year lands, lometimes one of his Maiettes Pentioners, and in one of the principal places of command in Direction, did for truly and earneitly affect their convertion, and was for tender over them, that tenditying the whofoeuer under his authority had given them but the least displeasure or discontent, hee punishplentiful comed them severely. He thought nothing too deate for them, and as being defirous to binde them ming up of the voto him by his many courtefies, he never denied them any thing that they asked him, infomuch Cotten feede, that when thefe Sauges complained vnto him of the fierceneffe of our Maftines, molt implaca- &c. attributing ble and terrible vato them (knowing them by inflinct it feemes, to be but treacherous and falle- of things to hearted friends to vs, better then our felues) he to gratifie them in all things, for the winning the not feeking 30 of them by degrees, caused some of them to be killed in their presence, to the great displeasure of Gods glory of the owners, and would have all the reft guelt (had he not beene hindered) to make them the in converting of the owners, and would have all therety guest (and he not been and beneficiall to the common the Natines, gentler and the miller to them. Hee was not onely too kinde and beneficiall to the common which he said fort, but also to their King, to whom he oft reforted, and gaue many prefents which he knew to were peaceabe highly pleafing to him. And whereas this King before dwelt onely in a Cottage, or rather a ble, & wanted denne or Hog-ftye, made with a few poles and stickes, and coueted with Mats after their wilde but meanes manner: to civilize him, he first built him a faire House, according to the English fashion, in which (indeed to mur-(as before is faid) he tooke fuch ioy, especially in his Locke and Key, which hee so admired, as thereben, which locking and vilocking his doore an hundred times a day, he thought no deuice in all the world times a Sure was comparable to it. Thus infinuating himfelfe to this King for his Religious purpoles, he conferred after with him Pitty luch an oft, and intimated to him matters of our Religion ; and thus farre the Pagan confessed, moued by Abel should be naturall Principles, that our God was a good God, and better much then theirs, in that heelad fo Kaindetti with fo many good things about them endowed vs. He told him, if he would ferne our God, he should be partaker of all those good things we had, and of farre greates then sence or reason ever could imagine. He won voon him, as he thought in many things, so as hee gave him faire heav ring and good answer, and seemed to be much pleased with his discourse, and in his companie. And both he and his people for the daily courtefies this good Gentleman did to one or other of them, did professe such outward love and respect vnto him, as nothing could seeme more : but all was little regarded after by this Viperous brood, as the fequell shewed : for they not onely wilfully murdered him, but cruelly and felly, out of a diuellish malice, did so many barbarous de-50 fpights and foule fcornes after to his dead corps, as are unbefitting to be heard by any civill eare.

One thing I cannot omit, that when this good Gentleman, vpon his fatall houre, was warned by his man (who perceived fome treachery intended to them by these hell-hounds) to looke to himfelfe, and withall ran away for feare of the milchiefe he strongly apprehended, and fo faued his owne life; yet his Master, out of the conscience of his owne good meaning, and faire deserts ever towards them, was so voide of all inspition, and so full of confidence, that they had sooner killed him, then he could or would believe they meant any ill against him.

At the time of this Maffacre there were three or foure of our Ships in lames River, and one in the next River, and daily more to come in, as three did within foureteene daies after; one of to which they endenouted to have furprifed, but in vaine, as had also beene their whole attempt, had any the least fore-knowledge beene in those places where the Massacre was committed : yet were the hearts of the English ever Hupid, and averted from beleeving any thing that might weaken their hopes of speedy winning the Sauages to Civilitie and Religion, by kinde viage and faire converting among it them. Hee, and the whole Counfell writ further, That Almighty God Kkkkkkk 2

(they doubt not) hath his great worke to doe in this Tragedy, and will thereout draw honomer

and glory to his great Name; lafety, and a more flourishing estate to themselues, and the whole

Plantation there; and the more speedy conversion of the Children of those Sauages to himselfe. fince he io miraculously preserved to many of the English, whose delire to draw those people to Religion, by the carelelle neglect of their owne fateries, feemes to have beene the greatest cante of their owne entiting destruction. Yet it pleased God to vie some of them as instruments to saue many of their liues, whole foules they had formerly faued, as at lames Citie, and other places.

and the Pinnace trading in Pamounkey River; all whole lives were faved by a converted Indian.

). IIII.

A Note of provisions nece farie for every Planter or personall Adventurer to Virginia : and accidents fince the Maffacre.

Proposition of the following the state of the performance of the first of the state that no man suffer either through ignorance or misinformation; it is thought requisite to publish this loars Declaration: wherein is contained a particular of such necessaries, as either prinate Families or single 10 per font fhall have canfe to furnish themselves with, for their better support at their first landing in VIIginia; whereby alfo greater numbers may receive in part, directions bow to provide themfelues.

Apparell for one man and fo after the rate for more.

One Monmouth Cap Three falling bands 1.5.2.d. 7.5.6.1. Three hirts One Wafte coate 2.5,2.d. 20 One sute of Cannase 7.s.6.d. One Sute of Frize 10.5. One fute of Cloth Three paire of Irish flockins Foure paire of Shooes One paire of garters One doozen of points One paire of Canuale sheets Scuen Ells of Canuale, to make a bed and boulfter, to be filled in Virginia One Rug for a bed 8.3. which with the bed farming for two men, halfe is Fine Ells coorfe Canuafe, to make a bed at See for two men, to be filled with fram 4.5. One coorfe Rug at Sea for two men, will cost 6.s.ie for one. Victuall for a whole yeere for one man and fo for more after the rate.

| Eight bufbels of Meale Two bufhels of Peafe at 3.8. | 2.li. 6.s. |
|--|---------------|
| Two bubels of Oatmeale4.5.6.d. | 9.s. |
| One gallon of Aquauitæ | 2.s.6. |
| One gallen of Oyle | 3.s.6.d. |
| Two gallons of Uineger 1.5. | 2.5. |
| | 3.li.3.s. |
| | |

Armes for one man, but if halfe of your men haue Armour it is sufficient, so that all

| haue Peeces and Swor | ds. |
|---------------------------------------|------------------|
| One Armour compleat, light | 17.5. |
| One long Piece, fine foot or fine and | la halfe ; neere |
| Musket bore | 1.l1.2.s. |
| One Sword | 5.s. |
| One Belt | 1.S. |
| One Bandaleere | 1.5.6.d. |
| Twentie pound of Powder | 18.4. |
| Sixtie pound of shot or lead, Pis | toll and Goo∫e |
| Shot | 5.5. |
| | المماله |

Tooles for a Family of fixe persons, and so after the rate for more.

| | 12.7 |
|-------------------------------------|-----------------|
| Fine broad bowes at 2 S. a piece | 10.5. |
| Fine narrow bowes at 16. d. a piece | 6.s.8.d. |
| Two broad Axes at 3. 8.d. a piece. | . 7.8.4.d. |
| Fine felling Axes at 18.d. a piece | 7.s.6,d. |
| Two Steele Hand fames at 16.d.a. | piece 2.s. 8.d. |
| Two two-band-sawes at 5.5. a piece | |
| One whip-faw, fet and filed with | |
| wrest | 10.5. |
| Two Hammers 12.d. a piece | 2.5. |
| Three Souels 18.d. a piece | 4.s.6.d. |
| | |
| Two Spades at 18.d. a piece | 3.5 |
| | 3.50 I.S. |
| Six Chiffels 6.d. a piece | 3.S. |
| Two percers flocked 4.d. a piece | 8.d. |
| Three gimblets 2.d. a piece | 6.d. |
| Two batchets 21.d. a piece | 3.5.6.4 |
| Two fraues to cleane pale 18.d. | 3-5 |
| | |
| Two band bils 20. a piece | 3.5.4.d |
| One Grindlestone 4.s. | 4.5 |
| Nailes of all forts to the value of | 2.li. |
| Two Pickaxes | 3.50 |
| | 6.li.2 s.8.d. |
| | |

Houshold Implements for a Family of fix persons, and so for more or lesse after the rate.

| One Iron Pot | | | 7.se |
|-----------------------|--------------|-----|------------|
| One Kettle | | | 6.5. |
| One large frying-pa | 75 | | 2.5.6.d. |
| One Griddiren | | | 1.s.6.d |
| Two Skillets | | | 5.5 |
| One Spit | | | 2.5 |
| Platters, difbes, Spe | ones of wood | 11. | 4.5 |
| | | | . v li Ś e |

For Sugar, Spice, and fruit and at Sea for fix So the full charge of apparell victuall, armes atooles, & houjhold-stuffe and after this rate for each perfon will amount vnto about the fum of 12.1. 10.5. The passage of each man is The fraight of these provisions for a man, will be a-1.1:.10.s. bout balfe a Tun, which is 3.li.9.s.6.d. | So the whole charge wil amount to about 20.l.

Nets, Hoskes, Lines, and a Tens must be added if the number of people be greater, as also some Kinc. And thus is the viwall proportion that the Virginia Company doe bellow upon their Tenants which they fend, Who ocuer tran ports himfelie or any other at his owne charge vato Virginia, shall for each perion fo transported before Midfummer 1625, haue to him and his beires for euer fiftie Acres of Land vpon a firft , and fiftie Acres Kkkkkkk 3 Vpon a fecond division.

Converted 12.032.

Manner of the Saunges life.

disclosing the plot in the instant. These wilde naked Natives live not in great numbers together, but dispersed, and in small 10 companies; and where most cogether, not about two hundred, and that very rare, in other places fifty or forty, or thereabours, and many miles diffant from one another, in fuch places among the Woods where they either found, or might easeliest make some cleared plots of ground which they imploy wholly in feeting of Corne, whereby to fustaine their lines. These small and scattered Companies (as I haue faid) had warning given from one another in all their habitations to meete at the day and houre appointed for our destruction, at all our feuerall Townes and places feated upon the River ; fome were directed to goe to one place, fome to another, all to be done at the same day and time, which they did accordingly : some entring their Houses vinder colour of trucking, and fo taking aduantage, others drawing our men abroad vpon faire pretences, and the rest suddenly falling upon those that were at their labours.

By Letters and those that returned it is certified, that besides Master George Thorpe, before mentioned, Master Iohn Berkeley, Captaine Nathaniel Powel, and his wife (daughter of Master William Tracy, and great with childe) and Captaine Maycocke, all Gentlemen of birth, vertue. and industry, and of the Councell there, suffered vnder this their cruelty and treason. That the flaughter had beene univerfall, if God had not put it into the heart of an Indian belonging to one Perry, to disclose it, who living in the house of one Pace, was veged by another, Indian his brother (who came the night before and lay with him) to kill Pace (so commanded by their King, as he declared) as he would kill Perry: telling further, that by fuch an houre in the morning, a number would come from divers places to finish the Execution; who failed not at the time: Periit 10 Indian role out of his bed and reveales it to Pace, that yied him as a Sonne: And thus the rest of the Colony that had warning given them, by this meanes was faued, Such was (God be thanked for it) the good fruit of an Infidell converted to Christianity; for though three hundred and more of ours died by many of these Pagan Infidels, yet thousands of ours were faued by the meanes of one of them alone which was made a Christian : Bleffed be God for euer, whose merce endureth for euer; Bleffed be God whole mercy is aboue his instice, and farre aboue all his works: who wrought this deliuerance whereby their foules escaped euen as a Bird out of the snare of Pace vpon this discourry, securing his house, before day rowed over the River to Iames City (in that place neere three miles in bredth) and gaue notice thereof to the Gouernour, by which And meanes they were preuented there, and at such other Plantations as was possible for a timely inselligence to be given; for where they faw vs standing vpon our Guard, at the sight of a Peece they all range away. In other places that could have no notice, some Peeces with munition (the vie whereof they know not) were there carried away, and some few Cattell also were destroyed by them. And as Pame disulgeth (not without probable grounds) their King hath fince caufed the most part of the Gunpowder by him furprized, to be sowne, to draw there-from the like increate, as of his Maiz or Corne, in Harueft next. And that it is fince discourred, that the fed beforein last Summer Opachankano practifed with a King of the Easterne shoare (no well-willer of his) CapainSmites to furnish him with store of poison (naturally growing in his Countrey) for our destruction, which hee abfolutely refused, though he sent him great store of Beades, and other Presents to 10 winne him thereunto : which he, with fine or fix of his great men, offered to be ready to instific against him. That the true cause of this surprize was most by the instigation of the Divell (enemy to their faluation) and the daily feare that poffest them, that in time wee by our growing continually upon them, would disposses them of this Country, as they had beene formerly of the West Indies by the Spaniard; produced this bloudy act. That never griefe and shame polleffed any people more then themselues, to be thus butchered by so naked and cowardly a people, who date not fland the presentment of a staffe in manner of a Peece, nor an uncharged Peece in the hands of a Woman, from which they flye as fo many Hares; much fafter then from their tormenting Diuell, whom they worthip for feare, though they acknowledge they loue him not.

the Fowler.

o. JIII.

Can, 165 Smith. M. P rie. Naked breast concealed beast.

Sir George Teardly intending to vilit Smiths Hes, fell ficke and thereupon fent Mafter Forey with Estimen (Moll a Frenchman to finde a convenient place to make Salt, in Namenicus King of Pawiniant came and shewed them his naked brack, protesting the inside to be astree ill meaning, asthat from deformitie, and promifing welcome if they would come into his Countrey, which they promifed. After this they having conferred with Kiptopeke King of Agaobanok, they paffed Ruffels Iles and Quancoke, and arrived at Panturunt, at Attentionnece the habitation of Namenacus, and Wamanato his brother, who came aboutd them with a braffe Kettle bright without, within full of Oyfters. Hee was shewed their hunting conducted forth by the younger and home by the elder : prefented also with Beauers skinnes, which hee requited wich fuch things as Wamanato faid he would keepe them while hee lived, and burie them with In him being dead : Namenacue his breast proued vicerous within and treacherous, but without harme to them by reason of their circums pection:an ambush being prouided in a Wood at a point where they would have had them land. Kiptokepe is the elder brother, and yeelded the movtie of his Countrie to the younger, bearing still the greater burthen in government but leffe honour, whereas on the Westerne shore, the younger beares the charge, the elder the dignitie. These are the most thriftie Sauages, keeping Corne for all the yeere and having to spare, whereas others want for one halfe. They are also more civill, just reckoners, vie no Black-boy-ceremonies, and in Affinitie and Confanguinitie obserue a larger distance in their Marriages.

Prouident Sauages.

lack of the Feather. Guie of the Massacre, Anno 1622, the Abigail was fent, and therein Captaine Barnel with fine and twentie men to build hips and Boars, and others to build the East Indie Schoole. That fatall Massare, fome and thinke ich high bethere occasioned by Nomattanow, a Sauage called vitually lacke of the Feather, in best elterme amongs them for courage and policie; who persuading one Morgan to go with him to Pamanne, to trucke, by the way slue him two or three dayes after hee returned to Morgan house, and aniwered his Servantes asking for their Massar that hee was dead, whereupon they would have had him to Master Toorpe, but hee so moved their patience that they shot him. Hee (whom the Sauages estemed free from hurt by the English and shot recyclished before hisdeath that they would bury him with the English, and not make it knownethat hee was slaine with a bullet. Opachaecanous was mound with his solfs so as he threatned reuenge, which he could not effect but by treacherous pretence of greatest peace, a ster fourteen dayes by so many deaths, giving life to the following Tragedie: which you heard delinered by publike Authoritie.

This terrible blow so affrigheed all that it was concluded, that all the pettie Plantations 39 should be left, to make good a few places (some say fine or fix) whither for want of Boats their goods and cattell could not be so suddenly conveyed, but that much was exposed to the Sauages cruell gleanings. Mafter Gookins at Nuperts newes, having thirtie five of all forts with him refused that order, and made good his part against the Sauages. Master Iordan at Beggars Bufb ga-Miltris Profler. chered a few about him, and fortified himtelfe in despight of the enemie. Miltris Profler would have adventured the like, and did it for three weekes till the Officers (as some report) would no longer permit her. Captaine Nuse and Captaine Cramshaw are much for prouidence and valour commended. Waters and his wife were kept prisoners by the Nansamuds (this Edward Waters is one of those three which first stayed in Bermuda, and found the great piece of Ambergreece) 40 whence by chance vpon occasion of a Boat lost by ill weather (whole company were faired) and comming on their shoare, they being busied in their Triumphs and Dances for ioy, they found opportunitie to get into a Canoa, and escaped to Keconghtan. Captaine Nuce called his Neighbours together when he heard of the Maffacre, entrenched himselfe , and mounted three Peeces of Ordnance, so that in foure dayes hee was strong enough to defend himselfe against all the Barbarian forces. Captaine Craftan with fine others fortified himselfe in delpight of all the Sauages, with the helpe of other Sauages, and made offer to the Colonie, if they would fend him a shallop with Armes, men and prouision for Trade, that the next Haruest he would prouide them Corne sufficient, which then (in the latter end of Iune) was little to bee had in the Countrie. Captaine Maddeson is reported to have given over-hastie credit to an exiled King, which comming to Patowomeke for succour and not obtayning it, in reuenge deuised and flandered the Patowomekes with intent of betraying and killing the English: which credulitie produced effects of crueltie and the conceits of bloudie treacherie conceiued (if others conceiue not falily) treacherie and bloud.

The last Summer 1622, they fee forth a company which destroyed the Sauzges Corneand boufes, and surprized Pamasoke chiefe Seat of Opachancanough. And the last report is that the Colonie is now in health, and that the Sauzges have returned fenen of the Englift which they less proposed that the sauzges have returned fenen of the Englift which they less proposed the sauzer of the surprise of their watchings and manifold losses and dangers. Opachancanough the authour of the Massace is laid to have come to his end by meanes more lutable to his deferts, then perhaps agreeing with 62 Christian simplicitie. A lacknesse after the Massace fell amongs the Englift, by realism that from neere eightie Plantations, they were brought to sever then eight, the distracted with a suddent memore and distracted wants. It is thought that 1800, survived both.

Hu

His Maiestie not a little moved with the loffe of so many his good Subjects, and some complaints also being made of the Government, many of the Virginian Company here bolding no such uniforms agreement as was meete : both shewed his gracious bomnie in the gift of diners Armes out of the Tours, with further promifes of his affistance; and appeinted Commissioners to examine the Causes of Virginias not answering to the care and coft in so long time bestowed on her. I am no fit Relater of things ensuing, and farre vnfitter Vmpire in (uch differences, I will now feake to God rather than men : Quid enim nifi vota superlunt. My Pragers Shall betoibe Almightue for Virginias proferitie ; whose Dwarfish growth after fo many yeares; convultions by diffensions there and beere, lamentaions in the complaints f both tides (a Pluriste Sciet in ber fides, continuing after so much bloud taken from her) weaknesse. 30 Sinne armes after fuch successions of armes and forces ; Tantalean startings amidst both Magazines and fertilute; Subuersions bere, and selfe energions there (pernerfnesse I mention not) rather then connerfions of Sauages after so many learned and boly Dinines sent thither; ponertie, sicknesse, deaths, in so rich a Sople, anabealthfull a Climate; what should I say? I can deplore, I doe not much admire, that we have bad so much in Virginia, and bane so little; the promises as probable as large, and yet the premiset yeelding in the conclusion this Virginian flerilitie, and meagreness rather then the multiplied iffue and thrift of a worthy Matron and Mother of a Family, answerable to her great Inheritance there, and lonter from bence. But what dee I in plaints, where some perhaps will complaine of my complayning? I will expell better from God and his Matestie, and while my selsemeane while in the better thrining of the English Colonie in Bermudas or Summer Hands.

CHAP. XVI.

English Voyges to the Summer Hands; HENRY MAYS shipwracke there 1593. The first Colonie sent 1612.

T is now time to leave the Continent and visit Bermudas, of Sir George Summer? Called Summer Hands. The occasion you had before related by Matter Strache, and that some of their Company took by their abode there. This was not the first time that Englis eyes had Rebet those Hands. For in the yeere 1993. Henry May had been e there; one of Captine Lancatter, Company, which had been in the Ball Indies, and in returning had put ouer to Trimidad, and thence to Puerso ир. сер.б.

Rico and Hispaniola for refreshing, where Captaine Liendafter desired a Frenchman Monsteur de Barbotiere, to giue this Henry May paffage home with him. They departed from Laguna the last of Nouember, and December the seuenteenth were wracked on the North-west part of Bermade about midnight. The Pilots making themselves at noone to be twelve leagues to the Southwards of the Iland, certified the Captaine that they were from all danger : and demanded their wine of height, which they had thought they had beene cast away by the shore, but were seven 40 leagues off; by the helpe of their Boat, and a Raft, fixe and twentie of aboue fiftie were faued. I (faith May) durst not presse in, but stayed in the ship almost full of water, till the Captaine being entred the Boat, called me to him, and I entred leaving the better halfe of our company to the mercie of the Sea. We rowed all day till an houre or two before night; yer we could come on Land towing the Raft with the Boat. Having beene all day without drinke, wee fought long. and at last one digging among weeds, found fresh water being only raine water, which was all we found. It pleased God that we had faued our Carpenters tooles, and going roundly to worke, webuilt a Barke of some eighteene tun, for the most part with trunnels and a few nailes. For tacklings we made a Voyage to our ship and cut downe her shrouds; in stead of Pitch wee made Lime and mixed it with the Oyle of Tortoifes ; affoone as the Carpenters had calked, fpreading 50 it on with a flicke, which was foone dried by the heat, being in Aprill wee hafted away for feare of water failing vs. We made two great chilts and calked them, and flowed them on each fide our maine Maft, and fo put in our promisions of raine water, and thirteene living Tortoyfes for our food. The Hogs were leane, and there was flore of Fowle, Fish and Tortoyfes. There is all 6 good fishing for Pearles.

is an good mining for realize.

The element of May we were cleere of the Land for our Voyage to New-found-land, and on the twentieth fell with the Land neere to Cape Briton, and thence to the Binke of New-found-land, where a Barke of Fairman's tooke vs in, wherein I had passage home, and arrived at Fal-most bin August 1594. Thus much for May.

Let vs now heare the Relation fent from an Englift Colonie planted there vnder the gouernment of Mafter Richard Moore. This following Discourse hath beene printed, and was added to a Tractate of Maiter Siluesser I ordan touching the wracke of Sir Thomas Gater and Sir George Summers on the Bermudu, which being deliured more fully by Master Struebie supplies that have here omitted, and proceed to the English proceedings in those Ilands.

Being bound for the Sommer Hands, in the Ship called the Plough, wee imbarked the eight and

twen

Saint Georges Hand.

Three men had ft iici behind and went not to Virginia, Harter, Water. and Chard.

twentieth of Aprill, 1612. So passing downe to Granefend, wee anchored at Tilberg-hope, Vntill the fifth of May. The wind comming taire, were putrorth and came to the Downer the fixth of May, where we stated till the ninth. And then setting forward wee, had a faire and comfortable pallage, and by Gods bleding found to direct a courfe, that on the eleventh of July in the morning. betwirt nine and ten of the clocke wee descried our hoped and desired Hands, and in the afternoone of the lame day, about three a clocke, wee arrived in a verie lafe harbour neere S. Georges Hand, there wee landed all our men and women, and had beene at anchor about an houre, before wee could heare of our three men which had beene left there. As soone as wee had landed all our company, we went all to praier, and gaue thankes voto the Lord for our fafe arrivall and whileft wee were at praier, wee faw our three men come rowing downe tows, the fight of whom did Lo much rejoyce vs : to they welcomming vs, and wee the like to them againe, we fung a Pulme and praifed the Lord for our fate meeting, and went to supper.

The next day, being the Sabbath day, which wer dedicated to God in the best manner wee could, wee abode still in the forelaid Hand, with all the rest of our company till Munday morning. being the thirteenth of July : Then we went up with our Ship and company higher into the harbour, to the place where these three men had planted themselves. They had planted Corne great fore of Wheat. Beanes, Tobacco and Mellons, with many other good things for the vie of man: Belides they had wrought upon Timber, in Iquaring and lawing of Cedar Trees, for they intended to build a small Pinnace to carrie them into Virginia, being almost out of hope and comfort of our comming; because Cap. Danies time was to have beene with them long before we came. 20 Wee were no fooner come withing a league of the Land, but a company of Fish, asit were.

Commodites of the Coun-Fiftes.

met vs. and neuer left vs till wee were come to an ankor within the harbour; and as foone as we had passed over our businesse, and all things safe and in order, with a Hooke and Line wee to be more then our whole company was able to eate, fo that there was enough to feed many more. The next day after the Sabbath, wee went with our Net and Boat, and if we would have loaded two Boars wee might; and so may you do day by day. Fishes doe so abound and there be of these forts, Mullets, Breames, Hog-fifth, Rock-fifth and Lobstars, with more forts of other Fifth which I cannot name. Turkles there be of a mightie bignesse jone Turkle will serue or suffice three or source score at a

Torroifes' .. great, and of meale, especially if it be a shee Turkley for shee will have as many Egges as will suffice fiftie or 30 threefcore at a meale : This I can affure you, they are verie good and wholfome meat, none of it bad, no not fo much as the veriq Guts and Maw of it, for they are exceeding fat, and make as good Tripes as your beaits bellies in England. And for Fowle we went the third day of our arrivall vnto the Bird Hands (as wee call them) and wing neither Stick, nor Stone-bow, nor Gun, we tooke them yo with our hands fo many as wee wouldm that euerie one of the company were to have fome three, some source a piece; three for a child, boy or girle, for a man source; then reckon what those that served some sourescore people did amount vnto. But this is for certaine, if wee would haue brought awaie twice so many more we might.

Some fixe daies after our comming, wee fent out for Hogges, fo the company which went out brought home fome : for the meate of them , I hold your Mutton of England not of fo fweet and 40

For the inclination of the weather, confidering in what climate it lies, wee haue had for the space of some fortie daies no raine, but verie coole and fresh gales of wind, yet in the day time verie hot : but wee agree with it verie well, and not a man that had lien ficke or difeated, but all likes well, and followes and imploies themselves to one businesse or other.

For the fruites which the Land yeelds, they bee the Mulberrie, great flore, and Peares which haue in them a red liquor, as the Pomgranat hat , or somewhat redder , but verie wholsome : if you eate an hundred at one time, you shall never surfet of them, if you eate some proportion of them they will bind, but if you exceed in eating of them, then are they of the contrarie operation : yet neuer any that hurt themselves by them, eate they neuer fo many. It is certaine, that one 50 man eate aboue a peck of them in some ten houres, and was neuer the worse. We have a kind of Berrie vpon the Cedar Tree verie plealant to eate; and for the Palmito Tree, the top of it is a great deale sweeter and wholsomer then any Cabedge. In some of our Hands there growes Pepper, but not so good as our Indian Pepper: divers forts of other good things there is, which the feuerall times of the yeere bring forth one after another: but the top of the Palmito Tree is in season and good all the yeere. Take a Hatchet and cut him or an Augar and bore him, and it yeelds a very pleasant liquor, much like vnto your tweet Wines;

it beares likewise a Berrie in bignesse of a Prune, and in tatte much like. Also wee haue Oliues grow with vs, but no great store : many other good excellent things wee haue grow with vs, which this short time will not permit mee to write of so largely as I 60 might; but this is of truth, that Hogs, Turkles, Fish, and Fowledoe abound as dust of the earth; for Amber-greece and Pearle wee haue not had leafure, in fo few daies fince our arrivall to goe looke out for the one, or to fish for the other; but the three men which were left there, have found of them both. Also they have made a great deale of Tobacco, and if some would come that have kill in making it, it would be verie commodious, both to the Merchant, and to the maker of it. And for the Silk-worme, if any were brought ouer, and some of skill to vie them, there would bee Timber Trees. very much good done with them, for the verie Spider in thefe our llands doth weave perfect fine * I have omit-Silke, both Yellow and White.

CHAP.16. Three forts of Timber. Articles propounded, and subscribed unto.

The Timber of the Country confifteth of three forts, the one is the Cedar, verie fine Timber this discourse, to worke vpon, of colour red, and verie fweet : the other forts we have no name for, for there is none in the company hath feene the like in other Countries before we came, &c.

ted the reft of as being better knowne to later Writers,

10 A Copie of the Articles which Master R. More, Governour Deputie of the Sommer Ilands, propounded to the Company that were there with him to be subscribed unto, which both he and they (abscribed the second of August, in his house, Anno 1612. which about the same time he sent into England, to the Worshipfull Company of the Aduenturors.

VV Ee, who have here vinder subscribed our names, being by the great goodnesse of God safely arrived at the Sommer Ilands, with purpose here to inhabite, doe hereby promise 20 and bind our felues to the performance of the feuerall Articles hereafter following, and that in the presence of the most glorious God, who hath in mercy brought vs hither.

First, We doe faithfully promise, and by these presents solemnly binde our selues euer-more to worthing that aforefaid only true and euerliuing God, who hath made the Heauens, and the Earth, the Sea, and all that therein is, and that according to those rules that are prescribed in his most holy Word, and ever to continue in that faith into the which wee were baptifed in the Church of England, and to stand in defence of the same against all Athesits, Papists, Anabaptists, Browniffs, and all other Heretikes and Sectaries what soener, diffenting from the said Word and Faith. Secondly, because the keeping of the Sabboth day holy, is, that wherein a principall part of

Gods worthip doth confift, and is as it were the Key of all the other parts thereof, wee do there-30 fore in the presence aforesaid promise, That wee will set apart all our owne labours and implovments on that day, voleffeit be those that be of meere necessitie, much more vaine and vnfruitfull practiles, and apply our felues to the hearing of Gods Word, Prayer, and all other exercifes of Religion in his Word required, to the vitermost of our power.

Thirdly, Seeing the true worship of God and holy-life cannot be severed, we doe therefore promife in the presence aforesaid, That to the vttermost of our power we will like together in doing that which is just, both sowards God and Man, and in particular we will forbeare to take the most holy name of God in vaine, in ordinary swearing by it, or any other thing, or by scoffing, or vaine abusing of his most holy Word, or to vie curing, or filthy speeches, or any other thing forbidden in Gods most holy Word, as also to line together without stealing one from another, or 40 quarrelling one with another, or flandering one of another : And to avoide all things that fland not with the good effate of a Christian Church and well gouerned Common-wealth, asalfo to embrace the contrary, as luftice, and Peace, Loue, and all other things that fland with the good and comfort of Societie. Fourthly, Whereas we are here together farre remote from our native foile of England, and yet are indeed the naturall Subjects of our most Royall and gracious King I A M E S of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, King, Defender of the Farth, &c. Wee doe therefore in the presence aforelaid, folemnly promise enermore so continue the loyall Subjects of our faid Sourraigne King, his Heires and Successors, and neuer to revolt from him, or them, voto any other what soeuer, but euermore to acknowledge his Supreme Gouernment.

Fiftly, Whereas were were fent hither by divers Adventurers of the Citie of London, and other parts of the Realme of England, wee doe here in the presence aforesaid promise to vie all diligence for the good of the Plantation, and not to purloyne or imbefell any of the prohibited commodities out of the generall estate, but to vie all faithfulnesse, asit becommeth Christians to doe, as also to bee obedient to all such Governour or Governours, or their Deputie or Deputies, as are, or shall be by them sent to gouerne vs; As also to yeeld all renerence towardes the Ministery or Ministers of the Gospel, sent, or to be sent. :

Sixtly and lattly, Wee doe here in presence aforesaid promise, the Lord affifting vs, that if at any time hereafter any forrain power shall attempt to put vs out of this our lawful possession, not cowardly to yeeld up the fame, but manfully to fight as true English men, for the defence of the 60 Common-wealth we line in, and Golpel wee protetle, and that whiles we have breath wee will not yeeld to any, that shall inuade vs vpon any conditions what soener.

Thad thought hitherto to have added a Letter of M. Hughes, written from thence, Dec: 21. 1614, and printed. But our latter intelligence, being more ample, hath caused mee to omit him and others; Yea all things in tome, and tome things in all. M. Norwood hath beene a diligent great vic. Fowle.

Hogs by reafon of their. food there, and our mens ftomackes, extraordinarily fwect. The weather, Fruits.

Peares not hurtfull.

Cedar Berries. Palmitos.

Pepper.

Palme-liquor.

and Pearle.

Tobacco.

Surveyor of the place and accidents, and hath given a Map of the one (common to be fold) and briefe relation of the other. But because his History of the Creatures is briefe, I have borrowed out of Captaine Smith, what he had borrowed of Capt. Butler, and others to give the Reader more full fatisfaction in that kind.

CHAP. XVII.

Relations of Summer Hands, taken out of M. RICHARD NORWOOD. his Map and Notes added thereto, printed 1622. The History of the Creatures growing or lining therein, being inlarged out of Capt. S M I T H s written Relations.

with helpe of fuch things as they faued with the Sea-ven-ure, and of fuch as they found in the Courses. In a built of Courses. found in the Countrey, had built of Cedar, and rigged fit for the Sea, two Velfound in the Country, nan built or Cedar, and rigged it for the Sea, two Versiles, a Ship and a Pinnace, and vpon the tenth of May, 1610, departed toward Pless a 3 m p and a rimiter p and point them, and carrying them flore of proni-fion for the reliefe of the people there. Vpon the foure and twentieth of May, 20

they arrived fafely there, and shortly after some of them returned to the Sommer Hands against for a further supply, in the same Ship which they had formerly built there; where Sir George Sommers dying, his men did not according to his last charge given vnto them, returne to Vnema: but framed their course for England, leaving behind them three men, that stated voluntarily. who shortly after found in Sommerfet Hand, which is a part of Sandys Tribe, a verie great treasure in Ambergreece, to the valew of nine or ten thousand pound sterling : there hath also been found fince divers times of the best fort.

This new discourry of the Sommer Ilands, being thus made knowne in England, to the Virginia an Company, by these men which returned, they fold it to some hundred and twentie persons of the fame Company, who obtained a Charter from his Maiestie, and so hold it. And toward the 20 latter end of Aprill, 1612. fent thither a Ship, called the Plough, with some fixtie persons to inhabite, appointing Gourmour one Mafter Richard Moore, a man ingennous and carefull. who fince dved in Sir Walter Ramives last voyage to Guiera, (a place as appeareth by our Moderne Geographers, very rich and spatious.) But, as I say, he arrived thereabout the beginning of July, and found the forefaid three men that staied voluntarily, very well. Master Moore spent the three yeeres of his government, for the most part in fortifying the Countrey, and trayning the people in Martiall exercises, which custome harb beene continued by his successours : hee built some nine or tenne Forts, placing O dnauce and Munition in them. In his time, the Lord fent vpon the Countrey, a very grieuous fcourge and punishment, threatning the veter ruine and defolation of it : That it came from God I need not strive to prove, especially confidering it was gene- 40 rally so acknowledged by vs at that time : The causes and occasions of it, I need not name, being very well knowne to vs all that then lived there, which were about fixe hundred persons, thought shortly after much diminished. I will onely shew the thing it selfe, which was a wonderfull annoyance, by filly Rats : These Rats comming at the first out of a Ship, few in number, increased in the space of two yeares, or leffe, so exceedingly, that they filled not onely those places where they were first landed : But I wimming from place to place , spread themselves into all parts of the Countrey. Infomuch, that there was no Hand, though feuered by the Sea from all other Lands, and many miles diffant from the Iles where the Rats had their originall, but was pestered with them. They had their Nests almost in euery Tree, and in all places their Burrowes in the ground (like Conies) to harbour in. They fpared not the fruits of Plants and Trees, nei- 50 ther the Plants themselves, but eate them vp. When wee had fet our Corne, they would commonly come by troupes the night following, or so soone as it began to grow, and digge it up againe. If by diligent watching any of it were preferred till it came to earing, it should then veelie : elfe fhall ry hardly-fcape them. Yea, it was a difficult matter after wee had it in our houses, to laue it from them, for they became noylome even to the persons of men. Wee vsed all diligence for the destroying of them, nourishing many Cats, wilde and tame, for that purpole, weevled Rati-bane, and many times fet fire on the Woods, fo as the fire might run halfe a mile or more before it were extinct : Every man in the Countrey was enjoyned to fet twelve Traps, and fome of their owner accord fet neere a hundred, which they visited twice or thrice in a night. Wee trayned vp our Dogs to hunt them, wherein they grew fo expert, that a good Dog in two or three houres space, 60 despite of Cats would kill fortie of fiftie Rats, and other meanes we vied to destroy them, but could not preuaile, poisons,thall finding them still to increase against vs. And this was the principall cause of that great distresse, whereunto wee were driven in the first planting of the Countrey, for these, denouring the fruits of the earth, kept vs delititute of bread a yeere or two , to that, when wee had it afterwardes againe, wee were to weaned from it, that wee should easily neglect and forget to eate it with our meat. We were also destitute at that time of Boats, and other prouition for fifting. And moreover, Malter Moore had received warning from England, that hee should expect the Spaniard that yeere, yet they came not, but with two ships, attempting to come in, and having their Boat before them to found the way, were shot at by the faid Mafter Moore from Kings Cattle, and as we supposed one of them stricken through, whereyoun they prefently departed. But (as liay) this expectation of them caused vs (though in great necessitie) to haften the fortifications of the Countrey. All these iountly (but principally the Rats) were the causes of our distresse : for being destitute of food, many dyed, and wee all became 10 very feeble and weake, whereof fome being to, would not; others could not thir abroad to feeke reliefe, but dyed in their houles : fuch as went abroad were lubiect, through weakneffe, to bee fuddenly furprized with a dileafe we called the Feages, which was neither paine nor fickneffe, but as it were the highest degree of weaknesse, depriumg vs of power and abilitie for the execution of any bodity exercise, whether it were working, walking, or what else. Being thus taken, if there were any in company that could minister any reliefe, they would straightwayes recouer, otherwife they dved there: Yet many after a little rest would be able to walke again, and then if they found any fuccour were laved.

About this time, or immediately before, came thither a company of Rauens, which consinued with vs all the time of this mortalitie, and then departed. There were not before that time, nor 10 fince (to far as I heare) any more of them feene there. And this, with some other realons of more moment, moved many to thinke that there was some other Hands neere the Sommer Hands, betweene Virginia, and it; and M. Moore (in his time, with fome other of vs) went forth in a Boat to far as then wee could conseniently, of purpote to discouerit : Since then, it hath beene endeauoured by other, and is vet (as I heare) to be further attempted. And how foeuer I am perfwaded (for certaine caules which I cannot here relate) there is no such thing ; Yet would I not difanimate any from this enterprise, for it they find any, their labours will be well recompenced; and though they find none, yet might they discouer those parts so well, that the passage to and from Virginia would be more fafe and eafie.

But to returne from whence wee have digressed: The extremitie of our distresse began to abate a little before M. Moores time of government was expired, partly by supplies out of England, of victualland prouision for fishing, and partly by that reit and libertie we then obtained, the Countrey being fortified. Yet the Rats encreased and continued almost to the end of Captaine Tuckers time, although hee was provident and industrious to destroy them, but toward the end of his time it pleafed God(by what meanes it is not wel known) to take them away, informich that the wilde Cats and many Dogs which lived on them were familhed, and many of them leaving the Woods, came downe to the houses, and to tuch places where they vie to gaibish their Fish, and became tame. Some have attributed this destruction of them to the encrease of wild Cats, but that snot likely they should be so suidenly encreased rather at that time, then in the source yeeres before, And the chiefe occasion of this supposition was, because they saw such companies of them 10 leave the Woods, and thew themselves for want of food. Others have supposed it to come to paffe by the coolnesse of the weather, which not with standing is neuer so great there, as with vs in March, nor scarce as it is in April, except it be in the wind; besides the Rats wanted not feathers of young Birds and Chickens which they daily killed, and of Palmeto Moffe (as wee call it) to build them elies warme nelts out of the wind, as viually they did. Neither doth it appeare that the cold was so mortall to them, seeing they would ordinarily swim from place to place, and be very fat even in the midst of Winter. It remaineth then, that as we know God doth sometimes effect his will without subordinate and secondary causes, and sometimes against them: So wee need not doubt, but that in the speedy encrease and spreading of these Vermine; as also, in the presentation of so many of vs by such weake meanes as we then enjoyed, and especially in the sudto den removaller this great annovance, there was royned with, and besides, the ordinary and manifest meanes, a more immediate and fecret worke of God. Now to proceed. M. Moores time of gouernment being expired, Capt. Tucker fucceeded, arii- Cap. Tucker. uing there about mid-Mey, 1616, who likewife gourned (according to the custome) three yeeres; which time hee fpent, for the most part, in husbandring the Countrey, planting and nourishing all fich things as were found fit either for trade, or for the fuftentation and vie of the Inhabitants, wherein hee trauelled with much diligence and good fuccesse, fending to some parts of the Indies fee Plants and Fruits : hee alto adject to the Fortifications, and made tome Inclosures. In his time, viz. in the yeare 1617, wasfent a Ship and prouision, with men of skill, for the killing of Whales; but they arrived there too like to wit, about the midft of April, to that before they could 60 make reasis their Shallops, and fit themselves, the principal seaton for Whale-filling was Whales past : For the Whale come thither in January, and depart againe toward the latter end of May: Yet they throok fome, but found them followly, fwitt, & fierce after they were fireken, that they could take none. They well great flore of Oyle, as appeared by one that draue to shoare on Somme fet Hand, in Sandys Tribe : and by another that we found not far from thence dead upon a Rat-plague.

How vaine a thing is man,

wits and induftry are triumphed ouer by filly Rats?

Great God,

giue vs grace to feare thee,

feare nothing

we feare with

Pharas Frogs,

Grashopperson

with others,

Fleas, Spar-

a few Rats,in

Dogs, Traps,

Lice, Flies.

that we may

Shares,

I also received by Captaine Tucker, directions from the Adventurers to divide the Countree. and to affigne to each Aduenturer his shares or portion of Land : and withall, a description, with notes touching the manner how they would have it done, as they had formerly determined by Lot. Which thing I did with all faithfulnesse and diligence, the manner of it doth about appeare, and is more largely manifested in a Booke of the Suruey of the Country, exhibited to the Right Honorable his Maiesties Counsell, and the Court of Aduenturers for these parts. And then began this, which was before as it were an unfetled and confused Chaos (I mean as touching a Plantation, for confidered onely as a Regiment it was otherwile) to receive a convenient differfixion, forme, and order, and to become indeed a Plantation; for though the Countrey was small. vet they could not have been conveniently disposed and well settled, without a true description and furuey made of it; and againe every man being fettled where hee might constantly abide. they knew their bufinesse, and fitted their houshold accordingly. They built for themselves and their Families, not Tenes or Cabins, but more fubstantiall houses: they cleered their grounds, and planted not onely fuch things as would yeeld them their fruits in a yeere, or halfe a yeere : but all such too, as would affoord them profit after certaine yeeres, &c. So that in thore time after even before expiration of Captaine Tuckers government, the Country began to afpire and neerely to approch vnto that happinesse and prosperity wherein now it flourisheth. For may it not justly be accounted happinelle and prosperitie, for men to live where they enjoy the meanes of true Religion and Salvation, to wit, the fincere Ministerie of the Word and Sacraments. where the gouernment is good without rigour and oppression, the place healthfull and temperate? where they are freed from all extreme care and toyle? where they have food in abundance, and very good, with other things needfull to the body; and where they have Commodities meete for Trade. by which they better advance their effaces? all which and more is largely verified in the prel pt estate of that Colonie, whatsoever some maliciously minded, or to evill ends suborned, may fay to the contrary, fo that there may feeme to bee a restauration of that Golden Age so much fpoken of.

The Governour now there refident, is one Captaine Butler, for Captaine Tucker departing thence in December 1618. left in his place Captaine Kendall (who also was one that supplied the same place in the interim, betweene Master Moores time and Captaine Tuckers, and hath spent some nine or ten yeeres in the Countrey. But in the yeere 1619, about Midiummer, the 20 Aduenturers fent thither as Gouernour for three yeeres (according to the custome) the said Captaine Butler, and foure ships, with some five hundred persons, there beeing at that time in the Countrey onely fine hundred more : for by the space of foure yeeres , to wit, during the latter part of Master Moores government, and all the time of Captaine Tuckers, they had sent few this ther, being almost hopelesse of the place, by reason of the Rats : But since there have beenesent many companies more then have come to my knowledge. Infomuch that I vinderstand the Countrey is now almost fully planted and inhabited.

Thus have I briefly related (to farre forth as hath come to my knowledge and remembrance) every thing of most note and importance that hath befallen in the first Discoverie and planting of these Hands, till this present. I have laboured to contract my selfe, yet have exceeded my en- 40 tended limits. Now I multipeake fomething of the Countrey it felte: Which confifteth of a company of small Hands, situate and formed as aboue appeareth. It lyeth in the Westerne Ocean, in that part of the World lately discovered, and called America, or the New World, vulgarly, the Weit Indies: It hath Latitude, or Eleuation (as is abouefaid) 32. degrees 25. minutes, which is almost the same with the Maderaes, or rather more Southward.

The Countrey is round about enuironed with Rockes; which to the Northward, Westward, and Southward, extend farther then hath beene yet discouered : By reason of these Rockes the Countrey is very firong: For there is onely two places (and fcarce two, except to fuch as know them well) where shipping may safely come in and those places are very well fortified but within is roome to entertaine a Royall Fleet. The Rockes in most places appeare at a low water: 50 neither are they much coursed at a high water; For it ebbes and flowes there, not aboue fine foot-The shoare it selfe (for the most part) is a Rocke : so hardned by the Sunne, Wind, and Sea, that it is not apt to be worne by the Waues; whole violence is also broken by the Rocks, before they come at the shoare. The Mould is of divers colours; neither Clay, nor Sand, but a meane betweens. The Red, which refembleth Clay is worst; the whitish, refembling Sand, and the blackish, Clay, is good : the Browne, betweene them both (which they call white, because there is mingled with it , as it were a white Marle) is beft. Vinder the Mould two or three foote deepe, and fometimes leffe, is a kind of white, hard tubstance, which they call the Rocke : the Trees visally fasten their Roots in it : and draw their nourishment from it : Neither is it indeed Rocke or Stone, nor to hard, though for the most part harder then Chalke; not to white, but Pumice-like 60 and Spongie, easily receiving and contayning much water: I have feene, in some places, Clay found under it. It feemes to be engendred of the Raine water, drayning through the earth, and drawing with it of his substance, vinto a certaine depth where it congeales. The hardest kind of it (which is commonly under the red ground) is not fo Spongie, nor retaynes much water : but Iveth in the ground in Quarries, as it were thicke Slates one voon another: and there is fome chinkes or creuifes betwixt one lare and another, through which the water hath paffage : fo that in fich places there is fearce found any fresh water. For all, or the most part of their fresh waser (whereof they have good flore) commeth out of the Sea; drayning through the Sand, or through the forefaid fubitance, which they call the Rocke, and leaving his Salt behind it becomes fresh : Sometimes we digged Welles of fresh water, within foure or fiue paces of the Sea-side : Wels. fometimes further off. The most part of them would ebbe and flow, as the Sea did, and be levell or little higher then the Superficies of the Sea.

The Aire is most commonly cleere, very temperate, moift, with a moderate heate, very The Aire; healthfull, and apt for the Generation and nourifhing of all things; fo that there is fearce any thing transported from hence thither, but it yeelds a farre greater encrease; and if it be any living thing, becomes fatter and better liking, then here. By this meanes the Countrey was fo replenifhed with Hennes and Turkeyes, within the space of three or foure yeeres, that beeing negle-Ated, many of them forfooke the Houses, and became wilde, and so lued in great abundance. The like encrease there is of Hogges and other Cattle, according to their kinds. There seemes to be a continuall Spring, which is the cause that some few things come not to that maturitie and perfection, as were requisite. And though the Trees doe shed their leaues, yet are they alwayes full of greene.

Their Corne is the same which they vse almost in all parts of the West Indies , to wit, Maiz: 40 which, to such as are yied to it, is more heartie and nourilling then our English Wheate, and yeelds a farre greater increase, as a pound, sometimes, of one or two graines. Of this Corne, and cluers other things, without either plowing or digging the ground, they have two Haruelts every yeere : for they fet about March, which they gather in July; and againe in August, which is ripe in December : And little flips of Figge Trees, and Vines, doe viually beare fruit within leffe then a yeere after they are planted, sometimes in halfe a yeere. The like fertilitie it hath in other things.

There is scarce at any time to be perceived either Frost or Snow, nor any extreme heate; for Teperature of there is almost alwayes some wind stirring, which cleereth and cooleth the Aire, Their Sum- the Gountrey; mers and Winters observe the same times with ours, but their longest dayes and nights are shoron ter then ours in England, by two hours and almost a halfe : as also their shortest dayes and nights are as much longer then ours : for their longest dayes and nights are about fourteene houres, and their shortest ten. When it is Noone with vs. it is Morning with them; and when it is about five of the clocke in the Evening with vs, it is high-noone with them : to that whileft the Sun declines with vs. it rifeth with them, as also it doth in Virginia. It is apt to Thunder and Lightnine all the veere, oft-times more terrible then in England; but no man, or other living creature have I knowne hurt by it. There is no venemous creature in the Countrey : the yellow Spi- Spiders, der which is there, making her Webbe as it were of Silke, and bringing forth her young (as the Alchimists their stone) of Egges like little Balles of Quick-filter, is not perceived to bee any whic venemous. Yet there is a Plant (that climbeth Trees like Iuie, the leafe also of to the fame colour, but in shape like the Vine) that is somewhat venomous, but of no great force.

There is great store and varietie of Fish, and so good as these parts of the World affoords not the like; which being for the most part vinknowne to vs, each man gave them names as they beit liked; as one kind they called Rocke-fish, another Groopers, others Porgie-fish, Hog-fish, Angle-fish, Cauallies, Yellow-tayles, Spanish Makerell, Mullets, Breame, Connie-fish, Morrayes, Sting-rayes, Flying-fifth, &c. The like they did by the Fowle, as Cohooes, Sandbirds, Herons, Ducke and Teale, Pemblicoes, Castle-boobies, Hawkes, &c.

The Country when we first beganne the Plantation, was all ouer-growne with Woods and Plants of feuerall kinds : and to fuch kinds as were vnknowne to vs (which were the most part) we also gaue names: such as were knowne retayning their olde names: as Cedars . Palmetoes. to Black-wood, White-wood, Yellow-wood, Mulberie-trees, Stopper-trees, Lawrell and Oliuetrees, Mangrowes, Pepper-trees, Yellow-bery-weed, Red-weed: These, and many others, wee found naturally growing in the Countrey. But fince it hath beene inhabited, there hath beene brought thither, as well from the Indies as from other parts of the World, fundry other Plants, as Vines of feuerall kinds, Sugar-canes, Figge-trees, Apple-trees, Oranges, Lemmons, Pomegranets, Plantanes, Pines, Parsnips, Raddithes, Artichokes, Potatoes, Cassaui, Indico, and many other: Infomuch that it is now become as it were fome spacious Garden or Nourcerie of many pleasant and profitable things.

Now if I should proceed to a more special! Narration, and speake of all these Plants, Birds, Fithes, and other remarkable things particularly: I could not but bee much larger then were any 60 wayes expedient in this place. Besides, I have long since understood, that Captaine Butler (the Gouernour there resident) hath undertaken to write of these and the like things, a peculiar Treatife. This therefore that is spoken touching the nature of the Countrey in generall, shall fuffice. Onely to make choice of two particulars, wherof I will speake, not so largely as the things require, but to farre forth as will be meet and convenient in this places surall Hiftorie of them both.

The first shall bee the Tortoyse, which they call a Turtle: which having some effinitie and resemblance with Fishes, Beasts, and Fowles, shall serve instead of a Historie of them all. The other thall be that which they call the prickled Peare-tree: which participating in nature, and retembling in some things, herbs and in other Trees; shall likewise serue in stead of the Na-

And first of the Turckle, not regarding (for breuities sake) the large Discourses of others:

I will onely write what I hauc feene and knowne my felfe. They are in the shape of their bodie like a Crab-fish; and haue foure finnes : they are as great as three or foure men can carrie: the wpper part of them is couered with a great shell, which wee call a Galley-patch, weighing harder then Horne : shee hath also a shell on her belly, not so hard, but being boyled it becommeth foft, like the finewes or griffle of Beefe; and good meate. These line in the Sea, spending the Spring time, and part of the Summer about these Ilands : but the residue of the yeere, we know not where. They are like to Fowle in respect of the smalnesse and fashion of their heads and neckes: which are wrinkled like a Turkeyes, but white, and not fo sharpe billed.

They also breed their young of Egges which they lay. They resemble Beasts, in that their fiesh is like Yeale, but more hard and folid; and they feed alwayes vpon graffe growing at the botsome of the water; neither can they abide any longer under water, then they hold their breath;

two minutes without comming vp to breathe, Shortly after their comming in, the Male and Female couple, which wee call cooting; this they continue some three dayes together, during which time, they will scarce separate though a Boat come to them, nor hardly when they are imitten. Not long after, the Shee-Turckle comes vp by night vpon some Sandie Bay; and further yo then the water vieth to flow, thee digges a hole with her finne in the Sand, fome two foote deepe; and there comming vp seuerall nights, layes her Egges, some halfe a bushell

(which are about the bignesse of a Hennes Egge, and round as a Ball) and each time cours them with Sand very curiously; so that a man shall hardly finde the place. These Egges (asit feemes) are afterwards hatched by heate of the Sunne, and then by the Proudence of God (the shee returnes any more to them, and yet in likelihood they remaine not long in the Earthafter they are hatched, because (as I have before faid) they cannot live without breathing. We sometimes see of the young ones no bigger then a mans hand, which some fish will deucure. They grow flowly, and feeme to have a very long life, they will fleepe on the top of the water, and were wont to sleepe often on the Land, till the Countrie was peopled; they will also live out of the water some three weekes, and that without meate, but mourne and pine away; they areve-ry wittie. Being on the Land turned v pon their backes, they can no more without some helps or advantagerecouer themselues; by which meanes when they come on shoare to Lay there

Egges, they are eafily taken, as also they are when they are cooting, But otherwise wee take times [wimme, and feldome shunne : so that a man standing readie with a staffe in his hand, which hath at one end a focket, wherein is an Iron lesse then a mans finger, foure-square and sharpe, with a line fastned to it, hee striking this Iron into the vpper shell of the Turckle, it fickes fo fast, that after shee hath a little tired her selfe by swimming too and fro, shee is taken by it. They will liue, the head being cut off, foure and twentie houres; fo that if you cut the flesh with a Knife, or touch it, it will tremble and shrinke away. There is no meate will keepe lon-

But leaving these, we will now come to speake of the Prickled Peares, which are a fruit and Cliffes, and commonly by the Sea fide, as if the falt-water did somewhat helpe to the gene- 50 growing in these llands, in such places as are scarce fit for any thing else, namely, vpon Rockes ration and nourishing of them. The tree seemes to grow certaine yeeres before it beares fruit, and then to continue bearing, very many yeeres, having almost all the yeere long fruit vpon it. And although we call this a Tree, yet hath it fearce any bodie or branches, but confifteth in a manner

But we will give you a larger Historie of the Creatures from Captaine Smith, in the next Chapter.

them for the most part by night, making a great light in a Boate, to which they will seme-40

meanes are yet vinknowne to vs) are brought out of the earth, for wee could never perceive that 20

which the old ones will doe long: but the young ones being chafed to and fro, cannot continue 20

(as I take it) halfe a hundred weight : the flesh that cleaueth to the in-side of this being rosted 10 against the fire, is excellent meate: almost like the Marrow of Beefe: but the shell it selfe

CHAP. XVIII.

Extracts out of Captaine IOHN SMITHS Historie of Bermudas, or Summer Ilands; touching the English Acts and Occurrents there from the beginning of the Plantation.

Ome one hundred and twentie of the Virginian Company bought that Title which the Company might feeme to haue to Bermuda, and obtayned Letters Patents of his Mielle, Sir Homas Smite was elected Treaturer, and Malter Ri-bard More lent thither with the first Colonie, which found the three men well, Carter, Chard, and Waters, which had found store of Ambergrice, which was the occasion of great flurres betwixt Moore and Kendall, (who was imprifoned) (bard (who was condemned and on the Ladder to be hanged, but reprined, and all Moores time detayined prifoner) and Captaine Danies, who had almost kindled a mutinie till better thoughts did better him. Sie vos non volus, was the conclusion of that Treasure to the finders, howfoever Danies and Kendall are faid to have licked their fingers well. For the natural Historie thereof I have added thus much out of him to that which before bath beene delivered by others.

The most troublesome to their llands are the Winds and Wormes, specially in the Spring and 20 Autumne, rather to awaken industrie then to cause despaire.

The Musketas or Flies are very buffe, with a certaine Indian bugge called by the Spaniards, a Flies, Cacaroatch, which creeping into Chills by their ill fented dung defile all, befides their eating. Little Ants are in Summer to troublefome that they are forced to dry their figs on high frames, Ants anointing the feete with Tarre which flay their passage that elle would spoile all. Wormes in the earth are notiome to their Corne and Tobacco, caufing them great labour enery morning to destroy them; which else would destroy all. Large Lizards have been there, now destroyed by the Lizards. Cats. Spiders are large but beautifully coloured, as if they were adorned with Silver, Gold, and Spiders, Pearle: their Webs in Summer wouen from Tree to Tree a perfect raw Silke in substance and co-Lour, to ftrong that Birds like Snites bigger then Black-birds, are fnared in their Nets.

There are grey and white Hearne, grey and greene Plouer, wild Ducks, and Mallards, Coots, Fowles Red-shankes, Sea-wigeons, grey Bitternes, Cormorants, numbers of small Birds, like Sparrowes and Rubbins, which have lately beene destroyed by the Wild Cats, very many Wood-peckers, Crowes, which fince the Plantation are killed, and feldome feene except in places leaft inhabited, where they are observed to take their flight about Sun-set, directing their course toward the North-well, which caufeth the conjecture of other Hands. (Yea, the Spaniards fay this is not true Bermuda, &c.) sometimes also are seene Falcons, Jarfalcons, Osprayes, a Bird like a Hobby. holden but a paffenger.

The Cohow is fo termed of his voice; a night Bird all day hid in the Rockes. The Egge-bird on the first day of May constantly observed to come, they begin to lay Egs as big almost as Hens 40 Egges; fo continuing till Mid-fummer, fo tame you must thrust them off : then permitted to breed (growing weake) and their young are excellent meate. The Egges of those are white; of the Cohome: freckled, as bigge as Hennes: frict inhibition was made for their fparing beeing al-

The Tropiks Bird hach his name of the places where he is most feene. Another Bird of her Cry is called Pemblico, feldome feene by day, an vinwelcome Prophet of Tempefts by her clamerous crying. O wles are now gone, Pigeons proiper not, Tame Duckes and Geefe are there.

Now for Plants there growing, the most remarkeable are, the Por son-weed, which is much in shape like our English Iuie, with the touch thereof causing rednesse, itching and blisters, all which after a while passe away of themselves without further hurt.

The Red-reed is a tall Plant, whose stalke is concred with a red rind: the Roote steemed, or a small quantitie of the juyce drunke alone procureth a forceable Vomit, generally vied and effe-Chuall against distempers of the stomacke.

A kind of Wood-bind is common neere the Sea running on Trees like a Vine, the fruit fomewhat like a Beane but flatter, which eaten any way caufeth to purge vehemently, yet without Another small Tree causeth costiuenesse. There is alfo a Plant like a Bramble, bearing a long yellow fruit with a hard shell, and within a hard Berrie which stamped and taken inwardly,

Red Pepper is a fruit like our Barberies, which beaten, or bru zed with the Teeth , fets all 60 the mouth on a heat, for the time terrible; but fwallowed whole have the fame operation that

The Sea-feather is a Plant growing on the Rocks in the bottome of the Sea in forme of a Vineleafe, but farre more spread with veines of a palish red, strangely interlaced and weated into each other: the vertue vnknowne.

wholly of leaves and fruit, foft and brittle.

LIIIIII 2

Church built.

Supplies fent AR 1612. M.Barkic.

Increase of dangers

M.Barblies fccond coming.

1614. Famineand fickneffe.

Contrary ex-

Caldicots lot.

M.Keath and M.Hughes.

Strange acci-

There are besides fruits thither carried which thrine and multiply, White, Red, Yellow Potatoes, Sugar-canes, Indicoes, Parlnips, exceeding large Radishes, Cassaui (the American root for bread) the Indian Pompeon, the water Melon, the Muske Melon, the most delicate Pineapple, Plantans, and Papawes; the English Artichoke, Pease, &c.

Master Moore applied himselfe to fortifying and to traine his men: hee laid the foundation of eight or nine Forts, called the Kings Castle, Charles Fort, Pembrokes Fort, Smiths Fort, Gates Fort. Warnickes Castle, Saint Katherines Fort, &c. mounting therein all such Ordnanceas he had. Be-Mafter Keath ine bufied in these and other necessaries, which held the men hard at worke, Mafter Keath the Minister, a Scot, taxed him in the Pulpit for grinding the faces of the poore, oppreffine his Chri-Minister, 2 300, taxes ministrated and by the generality contraried, he fell on his knees and asked pardon, which was eatily with good admonition granted. Two other malecontents were condemned to be hanged, one of which for feare fell into a dead palife. the other was freed, and after proued a good labourer. He got two peeces of Ordnance out of the Sea-Venture (Sit George Summers wracke) framed a Church of Timber, which was blowne downe and reedified, and another built in a closer place with Palmito leaues. Before the verre expired, an Aduilo with thirtie paffengers were sent, to prepare for Spaniards; which made them fall to hard to worke, that many fell ficke. The Martha followed with fixtie paffengers.

and in it Mafter George Barklie, who tooke good notice of thost Hands. The Elizabeth was fent the fecond time with fortie palfengers. These carried the first Potatos, which being all loft but two castaway rootes have yeelded increase there to admiration, and are great reliefe to

Two Spanish Ships were seene soone after this Ship was gone, to found with their Boate, attempting to come in ; but from the Kings Castle Master Moore made two shot, which caused Spanish Ships. them to depart, to the ioy of the Plantation, which then had but three quarters of a barrell of Powder, and but one shot more: the Powder also by carelesnesse tumbled under the Mussels of the two Peeces which were discharged, and yet not touched with fire. The like mercifull prouidence appeared in certaine cartrages of Paper filled with Powder; a negligent fellowleauing Escapes from his Match burning voon one of them all the while they were at Prayer, to that the cole touched the Paper and fired it not.

A worse thing happened by a caruell of Meale, which Daniel Elfred brought thither, so stored 20 with Rats, that had neere ruined all the Plantation. Two yeeres after came in the Bleffing with one hundred passengers, and the Starre with one hundred and eightie, and soone after the Margaret, and two Frigats with one hundred and fixtie. Mafter Barkley also came to divide the Countrie into Tribes, and the Tribes into shares; but Moore feeing his share and the Colonies to be none, gaue him fo cold entertainment, that he returned as he came. This bred Moore more diflike in England, and his minding fortification fo much, with neglect of Corne bred a famin; that attended with difeafes, specially one called the Feagues, which without sense of paine, swallowed vp all their strength at once, whereof without succour they died; some by foode and rest recovered. The Rauens continued this mortality and then departed. William Millinton was drawne into the Sea by a Fish, and neuer feene more. The Famine gaue afte 40 persedeas to the workes, and Moore sent them to seeke reliefe. At Conpers Ile with a contrary extremity of the abundance of Cahows and Fish, many surfeited and died. Some killed the Cattell, and one stole away to the Woods and there franked himselfe, feeding on land Crabbes and Wilkes, For filling, the Smith was faine to make Hookes of Swords, and Lines of old Ropes, till a Frigat being fent with aduice into England, the Welcome was fent with prouision. Mafter Moore returned in this Ship, and left the Gouernment to a Councell of fixe, which fnould succeede each by a Counsell, other monethly ; viz. Captaine Miles Kendall, Captaine John Mansfield, Thomas Knight, Charles Caldicor, Edward Waters, and Christopher Carter, with twelve Affiltants. Moore arriving here, after much quarrell, obtained eight snares of Land. Hee died after in Sir Walter Raleighs Guiana voyage. He was a man very pragmaticall, and had before undertaken much in Foulenesse for 50 Rapes feede, &cc. A man fitter for luch a Plantation as this in the beginning was, then fome filken Citizen, or stalking Gentleman, or talking Traueller, or fowre Humorist, or grim Martialist might Caldicots Lot was first, whose moneth being ended, with Knight and Waters in a small Frigot he went to Vuginia, Mansfield incceeded in the new triumuirate, and a plot not to furrender the Gouernment to fuchas from England should be appointed, was disappointed : Master Hushes was imprisoned, and soone set at liberty, but Malter Kealb his Symmystes fell to strange wife putes, and Hughes was againe convented, and by the Iury acquitted. Mansfields moneth being passed in braules, the two next were quiet; yet those contestings after remined. The Estimatriued with good supplies. Divers Boates were lost at Sea about this time.

But one memorable accident was this: In March, a feafon most tempessuous, on a faire Friday morning, seuen men went in a Boate of two or three tuns to fish, some of them fasting, neither had they any prouision in the Boat with them but a few Palmeto berries some foure leagues from shoare a tempest tooke them, and carried them quite out of fight of land; their strength being ipent, the strength also of the tempest abated on funday, and a calme followed. Too weake for Oares they lay adrift that night: the next morning Andrew Hillyard (the rest not able to helpe are aduction themselues) fored the faile : On tuefday one died, on wednesday three, which were cast oner- tues. boord : on thursday night the fixth, whom he was not able to turne over, but stripped him, ripped his belly with his Knife, threw his bowels into Sea, fored his body abroad tilted open with a sticke, and so let it lye as a Cesterne to receige some luckie raine water, which God fent present. ly after, to that in a small shower he recoursed about foure spoonefuls of raine to his ynspeakable refreshment. He also prescrued neere halfe a pint of blood in a shooe, which hee did sparingly drinke to moisten his mouth. Two dayes he fed on his flesh to the quantity of a pound : the e-10 lenenth day after his loife of Land, two flying Fishes fell into his Boate, whose warme jucie bloud he sucked, to his great comfort, and within an houre after, with greater comfort espied land, which within foure houres he attained on a Rocke neere Port Royall, where his Boate was fplic presently in peeces, and he made shift to climbe so steepe a Rocke by night, as would have troubled the strongest man in t' ale to have done by day. He discerned in the morning where he was.

and without other refreshing then water which he tooke temperately, or might elie have drunk his last) he got in halfe a day to a friends house. He was living Anno 1622.

Some treasure in Dollers, to the value of twentie pounds was found, the remainder of some Wrack. The Company fent M. Daniel Tucker, to be Gouernour; hee fet faile in the George, accompanied with the Edmin: some preparation was made to refift, but he at last was received and 20 acknowledged in May, 1616. Somewhat hee had to doe to bring them to their workes, which ver he effected; their day worke till nine in the morning, and then flaying till three in the afternoone, they began againe continuing till fun-fet. Besides meat, drinke, and clothes, they had for a time a certaine kind of braffe Money, with a Hog on the one fide, in memory of the Hogs there found at first landing. Hee by Master Richard Normoods helpe , laid out the eight Tribes in the Tribes laid out Mayne, which were to confift of fiftie shares to a Tribe, each share twentie fine Acres. He began to plant some of the Colony on speciall shares, and appointed Bailiffes to each Tribe, Hee held a generall Affite in his fecond moneth at Saint Georges , where for fedition John Wood a Frenchman Affifes. was hanged. He fent the Edmin to Trade with the Natiues of the West Indies for Cattel Corne. Plants, which had it been continued, might happily have bin more beneficiall to the Plantation then the Magazines from hence, She returned with Figs, Pines, Sugar-canes, Plantans, Papawes. and divers other plants, which were presently replanted, and since have increased by the Gonernours commendable husbandry. Severity, by the conceit thereof produced an admirable fact: Fine men which could by no meanes get passage for England, resolved to adventure an escape, viz. Richard Sander Mariner chiefe plotter, William Goodwin a Ship Carpenter, Tho. Harifon a Iovner. Itemes Baker Gentleman, and Henry Pact. These infinuated to the Gouernour, that they would Admirable build him a Boat of two or three Tuns with a close Deck, fit to fish in all weathers. Hee glad to voyage, fee them so obsequious, furnished them with necessaries whatsoener they could delire. Shee was fitted and gone the evening before hee fent for her, to fee, as was reported, how shee could faile. This was most true, and Botelias his adventure from Goa in the East Indies to Lieben was not so

4 admirable a triall. Barker had borrowed a Compasse Diall of M. Hughes, leaving a Letter to him His course was to have patience for that losse, whereby their adventure was intimated. The Governours threats necter stoore, were not in that remotenesse to terrible as the two present swelling Elements, whom yet they with all provifound more gentle then a French Pickaroone, who in stead of succour, which they defired tooke from them what they liked , leaning them not so much as a Crosse-staffe to observe with, and so cast them off. They continued their course till their victuall began to faile, and the knees of their Small Boar Boat were halfe hewed away for fire wood. They at last arrived in Ireland, where the Earle of from Bermy. Tomund entertained them, and caused the Boat to be hanged up for a Monument, having fayled das commeth 3300. miles thorow the Ocean by a right line without fight of any Land. This fortunate Sanders in the rifling of a Ship taken in the East Indies, bought a Cheft for three or foure shillings, but to would for want of a Key have fold it againe for leffe. But one day having little to doe, hee broke it open and found therein 1000, pounds fterling, or so much gold as bought him in Englanda good estate, which leaving with his wife he returned againe to the East Indies.

The Company fent Captaine Powell in the Hopewell, after he had landed his paffengers in Sum. Cap. Fowell, mer Iles, to trade in the Indies, who by the way tell foule on a Brasilman, and afterwards a French. man on him : but hee got fafe to the flands and told what he had done. The Governour kept his fecond Affize, and made a proclamation against the killing of coheires. Powell is against ent to the Weit Indies from thence, with thirteene or fourteene men. Hee made triall but in vaine, for the Whale-filling, for which and to which purpose the Company soone after sent the Neptune. In the beginning of his second yeere he called the third azise, in which one washanged, two others to condemned, but reprieted. The Rat Tragedy was now terrible : fome Fishes haue been taken with Rats in their bellies, catched as they fwam from Ile to Ile. One Henry Long, with fixe others being on fishing, a sudden storm arole with terrible thunder, and the Boat was tolled ouer the Rocks, Hurtby Rats

the fish toffed ouer-boord, and Long with two others escaped (the rest drowned) one of the three filling all the being demanded what he thought in the prefent perill, answered, hee faid nothing, but Gallowes Hand,

CHAP.19. Bulwarkes raised. Miserable torments. Noisome Wormes.

1305

Gallowesclappers fate.

claime thy right, which within halfe a yeere fell out accordingly. Powell returned with three Frieats, laden with Meale, Hides, and Munition. The Mafter and Gouernour contending both were difpossessed by a stronger power. Waters, with twelue men were sent to Virginia, and would no more returne to Summers Iles.

intended.

A. 1618. arrived there the Diana, with men and provision, and the first Magazine (a course I Magazines not heate not much applauded by the Planters here, or in Virginia, the companies honeft care) feeming fo prograble as by some others dishonestie frustrate. This Ship fraught with 3 0000, weight of Tobacco, game by the good fayle thereof encouragement to the Aduenturers. The Gouernour building a house of Cedar in the best Land, appropriated it to himselfe to the griefe of others there, of whom Master Hugher could not by threats nor imprisonment be so pacified, but that here to the Company hee Io approued his cause. Two men and a Gentlewomen, thinking to make their escape in a Boat to Virginia, were neuer heard of after. Sixe others attempted the like, but were apprehended. araigned, condemned, and one of them hanged. The Gouernous hard dealings fo much complain ned of, cauted him in the Bleffing to returne to excuse himselse, and to get that house affured him.

cicaping. Two thips fent

Efeapers not

leaning Captaine Kendall to upply his place. The Gilli-flower and the Treasurer were fent, By the Sea-flower which went to Vinginia, 2 Preacher was fent to the Ilands, and newes of a new Gogernour, Captaine Kerby came in with a small Barke from the West Indies, A Datch Frigot was cast away on the Westerne shoare, the people saued by the English.

Cap.Butler Gouernour.

Captaine Butler, the new Gouernour arrived in the Warwicke, the twentieth of October, 1619. The Redoubt, a platforme of the Kings Castle, at the same time whiles the New Gouernour and 20 old Planters were feafting aboord, accidentally was confumed with fire. The next month came in the Garland, which had come from England fixe or feuen weekes before him, and fpent feuenteen weekes on the voyage, which proued to tedious, that many both Saylers and Paffengers died. In Great flormes the end of November, arole luch a florme that many great Trees were blown up by the roots, the Warwicke cast away, the Garland forced to cut her Masts ouerboord. Not long after happened another as fierce; in which the Monnt, built by M. Moore for a Watch-tower, was blowne up by the roots; and their winter crop of Corne blaited.

He began the new yeere with refortifying the Kings Castle, and finding the Treasurer rotten, tooke nine Peeces of Ordnance out of her. Hee fent the Garland for England. Hee finished the Church begun by Captain Kendall, with great toile got three Peeces out of the wracked Warnick, 20 imployed a Dutch Carpenter of the former Dutch wrack to build Boates. A luckie fellow in February, found a piece of Ambergreece of eight Ounces, as hee had done twice afore, and according to order of Court (to preuent concealements) had thertore thirtie pound an Ounce. Two Dutch Frigots arrived, conducted by Captaine Powell, and much refreshed the Colony with Oyle and Bacon at cheape rates. The Gouernour made a new platforme in place of the burned Redault, and mounted feuen great Peeces on Cariages of Cedar. The Ministers not being conformable to the Church of England, nor vniforme with themselves in administration of the Sacrament, and Marrimony. Hee translated the Liturgie Booke of Garnsie and Iarsie, void of the pretended scruples which was generally embraced, and in his time practifed, and the Sabbaths observation proclaimed. They rebuilded the Monnt, and divers Boats was indangered with a Hericano, one loft, 40 Sir George Sum Finding a little Crosse crected where Sir George Summers his heart and entrailes were buried : he mers memorial caused a Marble stone brought out of England, to bee handsomely wrought, and an Epitaphengrazen, in memory of that worthy Souldier, and laid thereon, inuironed with a square wall of

Mini@ers fcruples.

On the second of June , began their Asi zes, in which their Lawes and Government were re-Their first Par- duced to the English forme. The first of August, was a generall Assembly in manner of a Parliament, at Saint Georges, diuers Articles concluded, and being fent hither, by the Company confirmed, which for breuitie I omit. The Magazine Ship foone after came in weake case thither, hauing cast overboord twentie or thirtie of her people, and had they staied at Sea a weeke longer, were likely to have all perished. That aire foon mends or ends men in that case, and those which 50 died not foone after the landing recovered, not without infection of others there, 70000. weight of Tobacco was prefixed for her freight. Commandement came now to entertaine no Ships, but fuch as were fent from the Company, to the Colonies great griefe, which now were forced to a Magizane-Monopoly, and debarred of occasionall reliefe. Cap. Powell soone after came thither, imployed by the States, defiring admittance for wood and water, which was denied with excee-Spenife Wrack, ding murmuring and exclaiming of the Colony. The Magazine Ship arrived, her Matter dead, and many passengers, the rest sicke. fille reports in Them happened allo in September a Spanifb Wrack, which comming from Carthagena with Baziand, the the Spanis Fleet loft their Ship on those Rockes, and seventie persons were faued, some of which Sassiff Emba- had beene rifled, but their money to the value of one hundred and fortie pound reftored them by 60 tadour allows the Gouernours meanes : into whose hands they committed it for disbursment of their charges. the Gouernours meanes; into whose hands they committed it for disbursment of their charges, ging the fame. Some were sent away, others forced to stay till their labours had procured meanes for their palmible country. tage. Hee made meanes to get out of the Wrack two Sakers, and three Murtherers, which were the fame which Cap. Kendall had fold to Cap. Kerby, who was taken by two men of War of Car.

thagena, most of his men slaine or hanged, hee wounded died in the Woods, as these Spaniards related. Three Bulwarkes were raifed at Southampton Fort, with two Curtens and two lauelens. Armes were distributed to all fuch as were able to vie them.

The Weauells (which had at this time much hurt their Corne) found a strange remedy. For a Weauells cure. proclamation being made that all Corne should be gathered by a day, because many had lost some for want of gathering, it Il haunting the Ships for Aqua-vita and Beere; some bad husbands hafilly gathered it, and threw it on heapes in their houses vnhusked . fo letting it lye foure or fine moneths. Now the good husbands husked theirs, and hanged it vp with much labour, where the Fliesdid blow it, which the others idlenesse, as the event shewed, prevented, that being thus so found to be the best way to faue the corne and labour, to let it lye in the huske. Divers places of fresh-water were now also luckily found out. Another triall of whale-fishing was vainely attempted by a Ship which came from Unginia, who returned thither fraught with Lime-ftone, 20000, pound weight of Potatos, &c.

Aprill and May were spent in building a Prison, and petfecting some Fortifications, and source Sakers were gotten from the Spanish Wrack, and mounted at the Forts. One was hanged for buggering a Sow, whose Cock in the time of his imprisonment vsed also to tread a Pig, as if it had beene a Hen, till the Pig languished and died, and then the Cock haunted the same Sow. About the same time two Chickens were hatched, one of which had two heads, the other is said to have crowed loud and luftily within twelve houres after it was out of the shell. Other Peeces

20 were got out of the Spanish Wrack, and a Saker also out of that of Sir George Summers. By a Barke going to Virginia, Captaine Buller, his time expiring, conveied himselfe thither. leaving the government to C. Felgate C. Stokes, &c. In the Kings Caffle were mounted, or fufficient platformes, inteen Peeces of Ordnance. In Charles Fort two, in Southampton Fort five, betwixt Forts & Orda which & the Castle passeth the channel into the Harbor, secured by twenty three Peeces of 200d Ordnance. In Compille is Pembrookes Fort, with two Peeces. Saint Georges channell is guarded by Smiths Fort and Payers Fort, in which are eleuen Peeces. Saint Georges Towness commanded by Warnicks Fort, with three great Peeces, on the Wharfe before the Gouernours house are eight more, besides the warning Peece by the Mount, and three in Saint Katherines; in all tenne Fortresses, and fiftie two Peeces of Ordnance sufficient and serviceable. Hee lest one thousand 30 five hundred persons, and neere one hundred Boates, the Hereplenished with provisions, fruites, poultry, &c.

Malter Iohn Bernard, was sent by the Honourable Company to supply his place, who arrived Governour within eight dayes of Captaine Butlers departure, with two Ships, and one hundred and fortie Pallengers, with Armes and all forts of Munition and other prouisions. During his life (which continued but fixe weekes) hee gaue good proofe of his sufficiency in reforming things defective. M.Harrifon He and his wife were both buried in one day, and one graue : and Master lobn Harrison chosen Go-Gouernout. uernour till further order came from London.

The Wormes before mentioned are still troublesome, and make them morning workes to kill Wormes noythem. Caterpillers are pernicious to their fruits, and Land Crabs are as thicke in some places, as 40 Conies in a Warren, and doe much harme. A Ship in which had beene much fwearing and blafpheming vsed all the voyage, perished; the companies negligence iovially frolicking in their cups and Tobacco (having landed certaine goods) by accident the Powder fired, and blew up the great Cabbin; some were taken up in the Sea, living in miserable torments, eighteene were lost with this tatall blaft, the Ship also funke, with fixtie Barrells of Meale sent for Virginia, and her other provisions loft. The Company have fent Captaine Woodboufe in a Ship called the Tigre for that gouernment, a man much commended and hopefull. I have beene told that there are three thoufand persons of all forts living there, halfe of which number is able to beare Armes, and exercifed to that fernice.

1622.

CHAP. XIX.

Briefe intelligence from Virginia by Letters, a supplement of French-Virginian Occurrants, and their supplantation by Sir SAMVEL ARGAL, in right of the English Plantation,

He late alteration of Firginia Gouernment is vnknowne to none; and most know of the frequent complaints, both by printale Letters, and by Petitionsto his Ma-icity. Now least any should hereupon thinke Virginia to be vinworthy of such our care and cost; I have out of one of the Planters private Letters transcribed a few care and cost; I have out of one or the Figure 5 property words of green aces, and yet a magnifying of the Country, that the English may be more blamed for want of Proundence, then the Region for defect of Natures best gifts. Other things I could alleadge from others, but my meaning is to amend things not to quarrell them, and to awaken the care of good men, rather then to recite the faults of the bad. In one Letter, dated Dec. 22.last past, he hatn these words :

lodging,

The intollerable rates we pay here for commodities, as ten pound sterling a hog head of Meale, sixteen He mentions Shillings a gallon of Alligant, three pound sterling a Henne and eigh: Chickens, Go. and so according to in other letters these rates for enery thing elfe : lastly, the beaut taxations that are laid upon us free men, for building 3.s.a pound of of Castles, paying of publique debts, for the not gathering of Sasafras, &c. So that it will come to mi Butter, 6.d. rea hare, with that that is paid, and that that is to pay in Corne and Tobacco, to at least twenty or fine and pinte of Milke, twenty pound sterling, this yeere; so that when I have paid this, and paid my faithlesse feruants their wages. 10 $ or 12.3.2 I final fear fe bane good Tobacco enough left to buy my felfe for the next yeer a pint of Aquanita & C. This dayfor a work- you fee (I neither warrant, nor except against the truth, but present the worst quarelled paralel. Id led with the best) complaints of great prizes of things, not ansing from plenty of money as you reade before in the conquest of Perm, but from I know not what ill habit and indisposition of that Colony. And least any man should withdraw his heart, hand, or purse therefore from that worthy work, I have out of the lame mans Letters delivered a commendation of the Countrey. The Letters were written, and dated 22. March 1624, and containe for subflance none other then what before you have read in others; yet are more futable to this time and purpose, as later newes and fitter directories to the Philitians of that Effate ; that at last the English honour may he vindicated against to base perils from Sauages, and baser quarrels from and among st our owne. God profper his Maiesties care, and make those which are therein emploied not to feeke their owne good by hafty returnes, much leffe other their fellow adventurers enill by calumnies and 20 viderinings, but Virginia prosperity; of which, Natures prosperity is thus related by one querulous of his owne loffes and croffes. His words are thele : Now concerning the state of the Country, so much as I have observed, I will relate unto you : First the Countrie it felfe, I must confesse is a very pleasant Land, rich in Commodities, and fertile in sorle to troduce all manner of Plants, Hearbes, and Fruites. I have (eene here my felfe both Carrets, Turney, Cabases, Onyons, Leekes, Garlicke, Tyme, Parfeley, Pompions, Muskmilion, and Watermilions rare fruits and exceeding wholesome, here are also Strawberries; I have lien downe in one place in my Corne field, and in the compasse of my reach have filled my belly in the place : and for Mulberries. I can when I list goe and gather a buffell at a time ! here is also a coole Fruite growing wildely on the ground, much refembling a great Walnut with the greene rinde on it, which refernes in it three admirable good tastes namely 30 of Stramberries, Rolewater, and Sugar, they were an exceeding great comfort to me in n.y last yeares sick-neffe, and are admirable good against the bloudly fluxe.

English Wheate and Barley will grow here exceeding well; I have feene here growing as good English Wheate as ener I saw in England in all my life. For Timber we have the Oake, Ashe, Poplar, blacke Walnut, white Walnut, Pines, Gumme trees; the Pines bere afford admirable good Pitch and Tarre, and Serve, fplit out in small peeces, in many places of this Land instead of Candles; but it will smeare one worsa then a Linke : here are also Peare trees which yearely bring forth Peares. But there is a tree that passible all Fruite trees, which we call by the names of a Prissurmon tree, which beareth a Plum much about the biqueffe of a Peare plum, I doe thinke it is one of the rarest Fruites in the world; when they are ripe they eate naturally of themselves from the tree better then any preserved Plummes I ever tasted in Eng- 40 land. The Beafts that this Land is plentifully stored withall are Deere, Beares in some parts, Beauers, Otters, Foxes, Hares, Squirrels, Roccounes, Poffucins, names strange to you, yet are they singular good meate: the Roccouns tasting as well as Pigges fielb. Indian Dogges bere are as good meate with es as your English Lambe. English Cattell bere increase and thrine very well, as Kine, Hogges, Gostes, and Poultry. Fowle bere are abundance, as Swans, Brants, Geefe, Turkies, Herons, Cranes, Eagles, fishing Hawkes, Bussards, Ducke and Mallard, Sheldrake, Dapchicke, Partriches, Pidzeons, Crowes, Blacke-birds, and all manner of small Birds in abundance. Our Rivers here are likewise rich by the abundance of Fish, as Herings, Shads, Perch, Eele, Pike, Carpe, Cat-fish, Rock-fish, Gor-fish, and Sturgeon. If here were any that would make filhing for Sturgeon an occupation they might take inough to furnish this Land, and also plentisully supply England. I my selfe have seene above twenty Sturgeon leage a- 50 bone water in leffe then two houres. As for our Graine, I thinke it producet b the plentifullest encrease of any Corne in the World; for I have seene one graine of Corne, that by the assistance of growth and time, bath yeelded a pint of Corne : we have here also Beanes and Pease.

I confesse here are plentie of all those things I have set before you, but all the craft is in catching them; for be that will get any game, will be a wary and a well eyed flot, and to prop his profession, he will addo great care and vigilance, both in defending himselfe and winning his game. It hath beene often seene in this Land, that whileft an Englishman hath beene winning bis game, an Indian bath dogd him, attending bis opportunitie by the others discharge to fill him full of Arrowes. Since the Maffacre they have killed us in our owne doores, fields, and boufes: thus are we not fafe neither at home nor abroads and (which grieves me to write) our safetie is lessened by our malice one to another, for the melt part altoge-63 ther neglecting the common enemie. I my felfe and my wife are by some secret enemies much wronged for I am hauen fo bare, that I bane scarfe either Garter, Girdle, Stocking, or Shirt left; all my wearing Cleather likewife are torne and tattered. I can accuse no man, and they that likewise doe it, doe it printer by and which greenes me most of all, they strine by base and instructing meanes to clip the wines, as well of my prosperitie as of my reputation; yet I hope God will give me patience to beare, and in his good time give me a jorfull delinerance in the middest of all these miseries. Whilest I was a writing these lines, newes was brought me of the killing of one, and the carrying away prisoner of another of my neighbours by the India ans ; one was an old Virginian, and one who for a long time was Sir Thomas Dale his Onerfeer in this Land his name was Mafter Henry Watkins: and but two dates agoe there was another that bad his braines beaten out by the Indians, in the next Plantation to vs. Wherefore with a fad and forrowfull heart I take my leave of you deere Father, Mother, Sifters, Brethren, and all the rest of my kinde and loning friends; for the case stands so with vs here, that if wee goe out in the morning, wee know not whether wee fhall ever returne; working with our Hoe in one hand, and our Peece or Sword in 10 the other, ce. And now from lately intelligence you have notice of the good and euill, as becommeth a faithfull Historian, requid non veri andeat, nequid vers non andeat; It is good to know the worst to preuent it : forewarned, forearmed. Early you may fee that the good things of Virginia are naturall and her owne, the bad accidentall and our owne; and confequently if wee amend our selves, Virginia will soone be amended. The body there is found; to cut the haire, avoide the excrements, paire the nailes, walh away sweate and dust, and to cure other like accidents of negligence, or impenitent and unprofitable diligence, is a worke featible and ficile also to induttrious and vinanimous workemen. One thing touching the French (whole Plantations are before recited) remaineth, that we take away all foruple from feare of suspected neighbours. I shall 20 therefore adde a little more touching them, the conclusion of their Virginian Plantation in a double fense. As for the English right to these parts, the next Chapter will shew, and consequently the Inflice of Sir Samuell Argalt act. The Patents to Sir Humfry Gilbert, and to Sir Walter Raleigh, and their actuall possession before these latter Plantations may be alleadged likewise against the French. Their things I have collected out of Sit William Alexanders Encouragement to Colonics; Lescarbot hath also related them.

The Marquesse de la Roche, by a Commission from Henry the fourth, intending a Voyage for Canada, happened by the way upon the He of Sablon (which is now comprehended within the Patent of new Scotland) and there (trusting to the strength of the place, where there are no Sauages at all) landed fome of his men, till he should have found a convenient place within the maine Corteregelia ao Land fit for a habitation, promiting then to returne for them. But it was his fortune, by reason to those parts of contrary winde, never to finde the Maine Land, but he was blowne backe to France without days too. and feeing of them, where he was in the time of the civill warres (fuch is the vncertainty of world- another 1501 ly things) taken prisoner by the Duke of Mercant, and shortly after died; so that his people After thathis whom he had left at Sablon, furnished but for a short time, had quickly spent their prouisions, ha-brother, but whom he had left at Sablon, turnified but for a more time, nad quickly spent their proussons, nabothioft. Ga-uing for their maintenance onely such things as the place it selfe did without labour freely afford; mes another which hath a race of Cowes, as is thought, first transported thither by the Portugals, that have Portugals long continued there: they had likewise there growing wilde, of this which wee call Turkey straits ther Wheate, and fundry Rootes fit to be eaten, and enery where abundance of Fiftes, with Venifon, Am. 1525. The and (nating no meanes to line but by sport) as for their Apparell, they cloathed themselues with International Control of the Control of t to the Skins of fuch creatures as they could kill by Land or Sea : fo that having lived there for the gela from 60fpace of 12. years; when they were prefented to King Henry, who had hired a Filherman to bring deg. to S. Lasthem home, as I have heard from them that did tee them at first before the King, they were in rence. very good health, and looked as well as if they had lived all that time in France: having bin abuled by the Fisherman, who cunningly conceiling that he had bin ditected by the King, did bargaine with them to haueall their Skins for transporting them home, which were of great value, fome of them being of blacke Foxes, which have bin fould at fiftie pound sterling a prece and aboue: for the recovery thereof they intended a Processe against him before the Court of Parliament at Paris, wherein they preuailed, gaining by that meanes a flocke wherewith to traffique in these parts againe. Monfieur de Montes betaking himfelfe to trade for Furs, Monfieur Pourtrincourt resoluing 50 to projecute the Plantation at that place fent his fonne Biencourt to France, to bargaine with some that would send them a supply, such as was requisite for establishing of that The first that embraced his propositions were the Isfaires, who as they have ordinarily good Islaires, wits which made them the rather canable of fo advantagious a project, fo they were the more animated thereunto by vpbraiding the lazinelle of our Clargie, to shew with what feruency they trauelled to propagate the Gospell, in doing whereof (whether it be ambition or denotion that prouokes them) sparing no paines, they have trau lled both to the East and West Indies, and to the admired Kingdome of China. Their fociety in France, prenailing with all that had any in-60 clination either to zeale or to vertue, did eafily gather a voluntary contribution for the furthering of to commendable a purpose. Thereafter they sent away two Fathers of their Company, with a new tupply of all things necessary to the Plantation at Port Royall, but shortly after their arrivall (their predominant disposition hardly yeelding to any superiour, specially if it be a fecular power) they began to contradict Pourtrincours in the execution of those decrees which had bin giuen forth by him, as civill Magistrate of that place : whereupon the Gentleman extreame. ly discontented, and weary or conteiting with him; having said that it was his part to rule them you earth, and theirs onely to guide him the way to heaven, he returned backe to France, leauing his Sonne Biencourt in his place. Who being a youth at that time of more courage then circumipectnesse, distaining to be controlled by them whom he had entitled thither, and scorning their insupportable presumption, ving spirituall armes for temporall ends, and an imperious kinde of carriage, who onely for ipleene had excommunicated and branded him with a fpirituall cenfure; he threatned them by his temporall power with a more palpable punishment. So that after much controuerie, resoluting to separate themselves, the two lesines taking a part of the Company with them, went from thence to a place in new England, called by them Mount In Defart, where they feated themselues; and having a supply from the Queene Mother did plant fundry Fruit trees of the most delicate kindes in France, such as Apricockes and Peaches, neuer intending to remoue from thence.

was the Goustnor of Virgiqua and last him.

At this time Sir Samuel Argall being then Gouernor of Virginia, coasted along t new Eng. that Sir T.Dale land to trainque and diffeourt, or to acquire things need for the Southerne Colony in these parts, where the lands are reputed to be more fertil, and the Seas more frequented, & did conceine by a description made voto him by the Sauages, that there were fome come from this part of the World to inhabit there; and being lealous of any thing that might derogate from the honour.or proue prejudiciall to the benefit of his Nation, where their interest in this was easie to be apprehended; he went whereas he was informed that they were, and his vnexpected arrivall, as it would feeme, not onely amazed the mindes of the French, but likewife preuenting their preparation and refolution; he approached so neere to a Ship that lay before their Fort, that hee beate them all that were therein with Musket shot from making any vie of their Ordnance saue one of the two lefutes, who was killed in giving fire to a Peece: Having taken the Ship, they landed and went before the Fort, summoning them that were therein to yeelde themselues, who at the first made some difficulty, asking a time to adusse; but that being refused, they privately abandoned the Fort, flealing out by some backe way into the Woods, where they flaied one night, and the next day comming backe, rendered themselues to Sir Samuel Argall, who had lodged all that night within the Fort, giving up the Patent they had from the French King to be cancelled. He yied them very curteouily, as their owne Writers doe make mention, suffring such as had a 30 minde to goe for France, to feeke out Fishers Ships wherein they might be transported; the rest that were willing to goe for Virginia went thither alongst with him; no man having lost his life but onely that one lefatte, who was killed whilft they made refiftance, during the time of the conflict. Thereafter Father Biard, the other of the lesaues, comming backe from Virginia with Sir Samuell Argall, out of the indigestable malice that he had conceived against Buncourt, did informe him where he had planted himselfe, offering (as he did) to conduct him thither. As soone as they were entered within the Fort, neere the vppermost of the llands, Sir Samuel directed the Ship to ride at a reasonable distance to attend occasions before the Fort did land himselfe with forty of the best of his men upon a Meddow, where immediately they leard a peece of Ordnance from the Fort, and he conceiving tince it was that whilft it could doe no harme, that it 40 was done either but to give terrour to them, or to warne some that might happen to be abroad, did make the greater haite towards the Fort, where he presently entered, finding it abandoned without any men at all left for the defence thereof. He went vp the River fide five or fix miles, where he faw their Barnes, and the ground where a great quantity of Wheate had grown, which he carried with him to proue for Seede in Virginia: he faw also their corne Milne very conveniently placed, which together with the Barneshe left standing vintouched. As for the Fruit it felfe he deftroied it downe to the ground, racing the Frencharmes, and leaung no Monument that might remaine to witnesse their being here. After this, Biencourt, who had been for ewhere abroad trauelling through the Countrey com-ming home, defired to conterre with Sir Samuel Argall, who did meete with him a part from the 50 company upon a meadow; and after they had exposulated a space for what had past controuerting concerning the French and English, little to these bounds, at last Biencourt offered, if hee might have a protection from him, to depend upon our King, and to draw the whole Furres of that Countrey to one Port, where he would divide them with him ; as likewise hee would show him good mettalls, whereof he gave him pieces, the other refused to loyne in any locietie with him, protefling that his Commission was onely to displant him, and that if hee found him there thereafter hee would vie him as an enemy. Biencourt labouring earneftly to have had the lefting, as he confessed, with a purpose to hang him. Whilest they were discouring together, one of the Sauages rushing fuidenly forth from the Woods, and licentiated to come neere, didafter his manner, with fuch broken French as he had earneftly mediate a peace, wondring why they that 60 feemed to be of one Country, should vie others with such hostilitie, and that with such a forme of habit and geiture as made them both to laugh.

After Biencourt remouing from thence to some other, Monsieur Champlein, who had lived long bere, did carry a company with him from France of fome fortie perions or there bouts, vp the River of Canada whom hee planted on the North fide thereof, with a purpose to sue for a Factory, drawing all the trade of that faire running River, within the hands of a few whom he doth command, which a Plantation would have dispersed in many parts, other wise if his defires had beene bended that way, hee might have planted many people there ere now the blace is called Kebeck, where the French doe profper well, having Corne by their owne labour: which may furnish themselves for foode, and likewile for a stocke to traffique with the Sauages, with fundry other Fruites, Rootes, Vine grapes and Turkey Wheates. Champlein hath discouered the River of Canada from the Gulfe vpwards about 1 200 miles, finding in it formetimes fuch fals as he must carry his Boate a little way by land, and then put it in againe. He did many times to come to great Lakes, at the end whereof he did alwaies finde a River againe : and the last Lake where he came was a very huge one, sudged to be three hundred miles in length, by the report The South Sea of (ome Sauses, who did affirme vnto him, that at the further end thereof they did finde Salt Suspected (as water, and that they had feene great Vesfels; which made Champlein beleeue that a passage might before in Derbe there to the Bay of California, or to some part of the South Sea, which would prove an inestimable benefit for the Inhabitants of these parts, opening a neere way to China, which hath bin tions, fo many fundry wayes with fo great charges fo long fought for. Howfoeuer, in regard of the feation, and for want of necessary promisions, Champleine did returne backe at that time, with a purpote to goe againe another yeare: which it hee hath done is not yet knowne. but this is most certaine, that the River of Canada hath a long course, and through many goodly 20 Countries : some of these great Lakes, by sending forth, or by receiving great Rivers.doe afford meanes of commerce as farre as to some parts of Terra Florida, as may be gathered by Champleines

Hus bane I given thee Others transfle to Virginia and the Summer Hands, I will conclude with mine owne tranells for them. I fee many likely to bee disheartened by the stender growth of the Vitginian Plantation, which for the time might have beene not onely a fafe, but a rich and bleffed Mother of a numerous thrining generation, branching farreinto other Colonies; and yet is! But why doe I intercept your eyes and dimert your thoughts (suffend them at best) from that which for my Countries good, and zeale to Virginia, without partial reflect on the right hand or on the left, with a candid right hand I 30 bere prefent, and forbid all finifer bands to meddle with ? Tros Tyriulve mihi --- I fide no where, but embrace Virginia with a right heart, my pen directed, my hands eretted for her good, which can doe mee no other good, but in reference to the publike, whose I am and whom under God and his Maiestie I serne and observe with all that I have, am, and can. I had written it as a traffate by it selfe, at the request of some worthy friends, but here have abridged it in some such things at the other parts of these Va-

CHAP. XX.

Virginias Verger: Or a Discourse shewing the benefits which may grow to this Kingdome from American English Plantations, and specially those of Virginia and Summer Hands.

difcouery, &c.

Od is the beginning and end, the Alpha and Omega, that first and last, of whom and for whom are all things. The first and last thing therefore in this Varginian argument considerable, is God; that is, whether we have Commission him to your plant, and whether the Plantation may bring glory to him: This in regard of is, and the law fulness therefore are his by this; In the beginning Cost created because and earth (all things therefore are his by the his; In the beginning Cost created because and earth (all things therefore are his by the his; In the beginning Cost created because and earth (all things therefore are his by the his; In the beginning Cost created because and earth (all things therefore are his by the his section of the section of the a higher name then right, this rule and the things ruled, being his creatures) of both which Man God in Man onely among it Vitible creatures was created capable, which Mofes delivereth in these words, that Gini. 1. God created him after his owne Image: which is spoken not onely of the spirituall, immortall subflance of his foule, whose vnity thineth with that created Trinity of Vnderstanding, Will, Memory, in it felfe; and that of Vegetation, Senfe, Reafon, exercised in and by bodily motion; but more especially integard of the Creator, a contormity to him in righteoufneffe of bolineffe of truth (the whole Epb. 4,24) Man shining with a borrowed light, as the Moone is the image and reflexion of the Sunne) and in regard of the Creature, a just dominion over the same, as the holy words manifest; replenish the Earth and Subducit, and have dominion over the Fish of the Sea, and over the Fowle of the ayre, and oner every lining thing that moveth upon the earth. Although Mans rebellion had torfeited this Na-

turall Charter, yet was the same in the repeopling of the World renewed to Noab and his Sons, General which ever fince have heene in actuall posteffion; and as Adam game names (as humaine earemarks)

Gen.ac to the lining creatures; to Noahs heires have fince given names to Seas and Lands, and other creatares a me thorow the knowne World. Neither did the Fall of Man fo cracke this earthen wellell, E/2:53.

Acce. 21.

3.COT.15.

that of Made thens to the

See thefe

S. 3, 4.5.

100.8.31.36.

These avo-

σύχειτΘ,

Heathens.

Gal 3. 17.

Matth. S.

John 19.36.

2. Cor. 10. 4.

Matth, 16.

1u1. S.

Ichn 19. 11.

Rom.13.1.

Gen, 110

Alls 17. 27.

1.Cor. 3.

g.Cor.13.

Matth. 5.

1. Pet. 3.

Tit. I.

1.Tim. 1. 6. Christians world.

This should be, and in the most Aduenturers I hope is the scope of the Virginian Plantation, not to make Saunges and wild degenerate men of Christians but Christians of thef- Swage, wild, de-

that all his created excellence ran out : for neither were the fubiliance or faculties of the foule extinct, nor his prerogative over the visible creatures (the spiritual) creature naturally excelling the bodily, and the reasonable and living, the sensitive, vegetative and torpid:) these received a wound, the other (his spiritual and religious conformitie in these to God) as a purer water of the pureft life, ran forth irrecouerably; and as our naturall parts were weakned and wounded, so of thole supernaturall wee were veterly robbed; till that good Samaritan vndertooke the restitution of that in redemption, whereunto in creation he had given first institution, Godbath laid upon him the injunitie of us all, and in his firipes wee are healed; our Charter is renued and now made to compleat, that whereas the deuills thought to rob man of Earth and Paradife, Hee which taketh the wife in his craftineffe hath reftored him : nay (that is little) hath added Heaven Himfelfe : that as 10 the Afraelites entred upon the houses, Cities and policibons of the curied Canaanites, fo Chriftians into those Thrones and celefiall Dominions, which those spiritual Thrones and Dominions loft, and there have God himfelfe and the Lambe to be their Temple and All in all vnto them

Hence is it that Christians (luch as have the Grace of the Spirit of Christ, and not the profes-Or the right of Christians and from of his merit alone) have and hold the world and the things thereof in another tenure where. of Hypocrites and Heathens are not capable. These have onely a Naturall right, by the reliques of the Law of Nature left in Man, by the Creators goodnesse, for the conservation of the face of a world in the world; the fame further improved with a warrantization, Contra ownes genes (our enidences dialect) by the Law of Nations vnto Nations, and Lawes Politicke and Civill in each 20 fully handled Nation, allotting to the members thereof the publike and private civill rights and tenures, which in To. 1.1.1.6.1. ether publike or prinate, perfons or corporations, held therein.

This tenure comparatively that Christian, is by our Lord himselfe called a tenure in villenage, that of formes : the fermant hath his time and abides not in the bowfe for ever : but the forme is berrein fee simple (fide simplici) for euer. Neither yet is it lawfull for Christians, to vsurpe the goods and lands of Heathens; for they are villains not to vs; but to our and their Lord; nor hath the fonne in nonage power to dispossesse villaines: nor are wee fonnes by nature, but by adoption, and a later Enangelicall Charter which doth not disannull the former (the Truth, or Word of the may not spoile Gospel received by Faith, makes ws free) free Tenants to our Lord, not Lordly subverters of others tenures; which may with a good conscience vie our owne (all things to the pure or pure, 30 which others cannot, whose conscience being pitchy, all tinngs it toucheth, are defiled) and not, as fome have turned libertie into licentiousnesse, with a bad conscience take away that which is anothers. Christ same not to deftroy the Law, of which one Commandement is, Thou halt not fieale: My Kingdome, faith hee, is not of this world, and therefore properly medleth not with proprietie and civill interests. The weapons of our warfare, faith Saint Paul, are not carnall but spirituall, and the Keyes fo much boasted on by Peters pretended Successors, are called Keyes of the Kingdome of Heauen; la wfull keyes, not threuth picklocks; of Heauen, not of Earth. And it is remarkable that neither Pope nor Anabaptist (the troubles of Ifrael with worse then Heathenish conceits in this kind) euer inverted or interverted Scepters, till they had denied the very Christian name which they receited in B. ptisme; nor diffised government till they were twice dead, nor pro- 40 mifed this liberiie to others, till themfelnes were the fernants of corruption. Euen a Malefactor, a Traytor, a very Fanx, or Raniliac, is permitted to breath, yea is in prison, the Kings house (whereof no private hand may dispossesse him) maintained at the Kings charge, till judgement have pasfed on him, which to the world is not till the end of the world, when Christ shall come to judge the quick and dead; who once fo respected the iurisdiction of Ethnickes, that himselse was thereby adjudged to the worst of sufferings, yea acknowledged that power given to Pilat from above. His Birthacknowledged Augustu his Edict, his Infancy fled Herods tyranny, his Man-hood payd Tiberins tribute, and his Death was Roman both in kind and fentence. Let euery feule be subject to the bigher powers, yeel ied those noble armies of Martyrs in the Primitiue Church; the contrary whereof hath yeelded Massiues and Monsters in these last and worst dayes. Therefore was Babels building in the East (and shall not Babel bable building in the West be) confounded that men might bee difperfed thorow the world, to take possession of their inheritance : and God which faid, Replenish the earth, hith made of one bloud all Nations of men, to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times and bounds of their habitation. Hee gave Ar to the children of Let, and the Land of the Horims to Efaus posteritie, though not with like circum-Deut. 2.9,19. flances as Canaan to I frael : and it was by speciall indulgence, that I frael both spoiled the Egsptians and differited the Canaantes. Let it bee enough, that Christ hath given vs our selves in the Lords feruice to bee a perfect freeman, the Vniuerfein an vniuerfall tenure, and Heauen in reuerfion ; that hath given his Sonne, doth give his Sprit, will give bimfelfe ; that all things are ears, and wee Christs, and Christ Gods : without thoughts of invasion and viurpation, knowing that Christ ftian Charity Seeteth nos her owne things (much leffe obtrudes on others) and Christian libertie maketh liberall Saints of naturall men, not vnnaturall deuills of professed Saints. Our Light should to hime before others, that they may see our good workes, that they which know not the world, may bee wen without the Word, in admiring our Christian convertation.

generate men; ro whom preaching must needs bee vaine, if it begins with publike Latrocinie. And this is fufficient to preuent scruple of the Popes Bul, which (if Basan Buls rearing were euidence) maketh af wel against England, this being no leffe questionable then Virginia, Paul, Prus, Gregory Sixtus breatning as much fire against this, as Alexander for that. But what right can England then challenge to Virginia? I answere, that we would be loth to begin our right at wrong, either to Etnnick or Christian : nor need we, having to manifold and just interests. First, as men, we have a natural right to replenif the whole earth: to that if any Countrey be not possessed by other men, rightin places. 10 which is the case of Summer Hands, and hath beene of all Countries in their first habitations) every either wholv man by Law of Nature and Humanitie hath right of Plantation, and may not by other after com- or in great mers be difpossessed, without wrong to human nature. And if a country be inhabited in some parts part not inhatherof, other parts remaining vinpeopled, the same reason giveth liberty to other men which vi ant convenient habita on o feat themselves, where (without wrong to others) they may provide for themselves. For these have the same right vnto these latter parts, which the former had to the formercespecially where the people is wild, and holdeth no tettled possession in any pares. Thus t'e holy Patriacks removed their habitations and pafturages, when those pares of the world were not yet replenished: and thus the whole world hath been planted and peopled with former and later Colonies: and thus Virginia hath roome enough for her own (were their numbers an hundred times I have heard 20 as many) and for others also which wanting at home, feeke habitations there in vacant places, with perhaps better right then the first, which (being like Cain, both Murtherers and Vaga- more searched bon is in their whatfoeger and howfoeger owne) I can fearfly call Inhabitants. To question this the Countrie night, were to accust al nost all Nations which were rocked (for the most part) in no other cradle; then any other fo diffe-ried and diffoyned that one cannot in any diffreffe fuccour another, and therefore are made England, they an eafier prey to every Inuader. Another right is that of Merchandile : Non omnia possumus omnes, bauenot about Nec vero terra ferre omnes omnia poffunt ; God in manifold wifedome hath diuelified every Coun- 5000, men able tries commodities, so that all are rich, and all poore; not that one should be bungry and another drun-30 ken, but that the whole world might be as one body of mankind, each member communicating red and civilly with other for publike good. He hath made this immutable decree in the mutabilitie of the Winds, planted might commodities & commodioulnefle of Seas, and Harbors, varietie of Baies and Rivers, multiplicity of well nourish all Mens both Necessities and Superfluities, and their univerfall defires of Nouelties. Thus Sa- 1500000,and lomon and Hiram had right to tayle ouer the Ocean, and to negotiate with the Ophrians many more; as for Gommes, Gold, Ivory, and other commodities seruiceable for his peoples necessities, appeareth by for pompous Magnificence, and for the Temples Holies. And if hee did not plant Colonies this our c. unthere, you must remember that the lewift Pale was then standing, which prohibited voluntarie trie nor having remote dwellings, where each man was thrice a yeere to appeare before the Lord in Ierurall Inherifallem. Belides, it is a question whether the Countrey peopled so long before, had roome for tunce. 40 fuch Neighbours:

It is therefore yngodly, and inhumane also to deny the world to men, or like Manger-dogge; chandise. (neither to eat hay themselues, nor to suffer the hungry Oxe) to prohibite that for others ha- 1.cer 11.214 bitation, whereof themselues can make no vie; or for merchandise, whereby much benefit accreweth to both parts. They which doe this, Tollunt è vita vita societaiem, to vie Tullies Gen. 10. phrase, or hominem ex homine tollant, to borrow Saint Ieroms in another matter. The Barbarians themselves by light of nature faw this, and gave Ours kind entertainment in mutual cohabita- Rom. 2. 14tion and commerce : and they having not the Law were a Law to themselves , practically acknowledging this Law of Nature written by him, which is Natura naturans, in their hearts : from which if they fince have declined, they have loft their owne Naturall, and given vs another Nato tionall right; their transgression of the Law of Nature, which tieth Men to Alen in the rights of Right Nation

Natures commons, expuling them (as a forfeited bond) to the challifement of that common nall: 144 gm. Law of mankind; and alto on our parts to the feueritie of the Law of Nations, which tyeth tiam. Nation to Nation. And if they bee not worthy of the name of a Nation , being wilde and Sauage : yet as Slaues, bordering rebells, excommunicates and out-lawes are lyable to the punishments of Law, and not to the primledges; So is it with thefe Barbarians, Boilerers and Outlawes of Humanity. Armatenenti, Omnia dat qui iusta negat, If the Armes bee iuit, as in this case of vindicating vnnaturall, inhumane wrongs to a louing and profitable Nation, entertained Lucan. voluntarily, in time of greatest pretended amity. On this quarrell David conquered all the Kingsome of the Ammonites and left it to his interioristin many generations, not with flanding Mo. 2. Sam. 10.

fo fee had otherwife left a speciall caution for their security, testifying that God had given it the fonnes of Lot, and prohibiting inuation to Ifrael. That natural right of cohabitation and commerce Deut, 2, 19 we had with others, this of just inuation and conquest, and many others premieus to this, we have aboue others; to that England may both by Law of Nature and Nations challenge Virginia for her Owne peculiar propriety, and that by all right and rites viual among it men, not those mentioned Mmmmmm and to disappoint also that Divine Ordinance of replenshing the Earth, whose habitations other- Cap. Smith, wife would be like scattered Ilands in the Seas, or as the present Spanish Plantations in the Indies, so much as all alone but by others allo, first discourry, first actuall possession, prescription, gift, cession, and livery of ferfin, fale for price, that I mention not the natural Inheritance of the English their naturally borne, and the vinaturall outcries of fo many vinaturally murthered, for just vengeance of rooting out the authors and actors of to prodigious iniuffice.

Englands manucldri his to Parzinia.

Firft difcouery

Mercator D.

M. Thorne.

Dec.Ortel.oc.

And fift for discovery, the English, Spaniard, and Portugal Seeme the Triumum of the Worlds first discoueries, the Spaniard and Portugall first opening the Eastern, Western, and Southern pares. the English the Northern America, and all known parts thence to the North & Northeast, I could bring authority for King Arthurs conquests, about 1000. yeers fince in Island, Gronland, Estotiland: but I reare this would feeme too weake a foundation, and (which lyers get by lying) discredit our other authorities leffe fulpicious; howfoeuer Authors of best note in Geography alledge those. In which reverence of the truth makes me let paffe. And fo I doe King Malgo toone after him, and Saint Brandon, and the Friar of Oxford (which A. 1360, is faid to discouer to the Pole) and Owen Gwined Prince of North Wales his fonne Madock, A. 1170. which conueyed a Colony, as learned men thinke into the Welt Indies. In all Antiquities, as Varro oblerued, there are somethings fabulous (to I deeme the former) fomething vucertaine, as this last; and fomethings Hiforicall as that weich we shall deliver. Robert Thorne in a Booke to Doctor Leigh writeth, that his father with another Merchant of Bristol, Hugh Eliot, were the first discouerers of the New-foundlands; and if the Mariners would have beene ruled by their Pilot, the Lands of the Welt Indies from whence the Gold commeth had beene ours. What yeere this happened he expresses not; Sirseb Cabota. but the words import that it was before Columbia his discouery. And before Columbia his discoue- 20 ry of the continent, Sir Schastian Cabot, at the charges of K. Henry the feuenth, with two Caruels. in the yeere 1496. (to him telte, in Ramufo; the Map with his picture in the Priny Gallery hath the prime gal-Holl hach he'e 1497.) lailed to the New-found Lind, which he called Prima Vista, and the lland S. lobus, because it was discouered on the Feath of S. John Baptist; from whence he failed Northerly to 67. deg, and a words Efficies halie, hoping by that way to passe to Cathan, but his mutinous company (terrified haply with Set. Cabour Aa-Ice and cold) forced his eturne, which hee made along the Coast toward the Equinc tiall, to eli fily Ioannis Cabate Veneti. the part of the firme land now called Florida, and then his victualls failing, he returned into Engmilitis aurati, land, where by occasion of warres with Scotland, the imploiment was laid aside. Atterwards the born at Venice, fame Sir Sebaitian Cabot was fent, A. 1516. by King Henry the eight, together with Sir Thomas and ferning H. Part Vicasdmirall of England, which after coating this Continent the fector of time, as I have tad, 7.H. 8. Ed. 6.
7.H. 8. Ed. 6.
8. Ed. 6.
8. Ed. 6.
9. Ed. 6.
9

lumbis his first discourry of the Hands, was in 1492. of the Continent in his third voyage in Augult, 1497. or as others, 1498. fo that counting most fauourably for Columbus, Cabor had discouered the Continent in Luie next before; by one reckoning aboue a yeere, by another aboue two yeeres before. And indeed that New World might more fitly haue borne his name, then America of Americus vesputius, or of Columbus, Cabot having discovered fatre more of that Continent then they both, or any man elfe in those Seas: to wit, from 67. degrees and an halfe to the Line, and

Hee also was the principall mover in the setting forth of Sir Hugh Willoughby, in King Edwards time (vnder whom he was conftituted Grand Pilot of England, with the annuall flipend of one 40 hundred fixtie fixe pound thirteene shillings foure pence) in which voyage Greeneland was difcouered (neither is there any other Willoughbys Land to be found, but in erroneous Maps) and the Ruffan Empire by the North Cape, and the Bay of Saint Nicolas. But for Virginia, as it was then ditcouered by Sir Seb. Cabot, loit received that name from our Virgin-Mother, Great Elizabeth:

in whose time formal & actual possession was taken for her Maiesty, the thirteenth of July, 1584.

by Captain Philip Amadus, and Captain Barlow, whom Sir Walter Raleigh had fent thither with two Barkes furnished , who also the next yeere, 1,85 fent Sir Richard Greenevile with feuen fayle, which there left an English Colony under the government of M. Ralph Lane. A. 1586. hee fent another Ship of one hundred Tuns thither for their reliefe : but the Colony being returned in Sir Francis Drukes Fleet, thee returned also. Sir Richard Greenevile also about a fortnight after en from thence Southerly to the River of Plate.

Englift, &c. he was borne

&c. he was

Sir Seb.Cab. Grand Pilot of England.

preferiotion.

their departure arrived with three Ships, and not finding the Colonie, left fifteene men to keepe possession, furnished with prouition for two yeeres. The names of A.1587 Six Walter Raleigh lent a new Colony of one hundred & firey persons, with three faile, about 100, are a Ship of one hundred and twenty Tuns, a Fly-boat and a Pinnace. Hee appointed twelve Affiextant in M. Stants to the Gouernour, and incorporated them by the name of Governour and Affisiants of the Hack 3. Tome. Citie of Raleigh in Voginia. To theie, Sir Walter Raleigh fent succour five leuerall times, the last by Samuel Mace, 1602. An. 1603, the Briston men fent thither, by leave of Sir Walter Raleigh, in which Expedition was Mafter Robert Saliern , who the yeere before had beene with Cap. Bart. Gofnold. And thus are wee come to the beginning of his Maielties gracious raigne, when the North and South Plantations were by new Patents eagerly purfued, the one from hence, theo. 60 ther from the Well parts of England. Mawoofhen and other parts, were many y-eres vilited by our men, and An. 1607. a Plantation fetled at Sagadabor, by two Ships fent by that wile and feuere Iuftice Sir Iohn Popham and others : the fucceffe whereof hath been fuch, that from the North Plantation it hath beene dignified with the Title of New England. And for the Southerne parts,

A. 1606.2 Colony went from hence, fet forth by the Virginia Company, which have ever fince maintained their Plantation in differing fortunes. As for the former Plantations of Sir Walter Raleigh, tome children were borne to them there : and whether they line, they continued the Two former possession; orif the Sauages dealt perfidiously with them (as Pombatan confessed to Cap. Smith. Colonies that hee had beene at their flaughter, and had divers vtenfills of theirs to flew) their carkaffes. wholly, &c. the differried bones of their and their Countrey mens fince murthered carkaffes, haue taken a mortall immortall possession, and being dead, speake, proclaime and cry, This our earth is truly English, and therefore this Land is suftly yours O English.

Thus have we discovered the English right by Discovery, Possession, Prascription; to which we to may adde, that none other Nation hath once adventured to fettle in those parts, nor scarce to view them ; yea the French and Spanish Plantations in Florida , Virginias Southerne neighbour, foone ended in bloudy mafficres, the Spanib cruelly " murthering the Fronth , under the conduct of Pedro Melendes, which An. 1567. was repaid them by Dominique de Gorques, the acquittance written with his f word in Spanife bloud : Florida euer fince expecting civilizing from her first difcouerers the English : which is further ratified by the former Spanish dilasters in the Expeditions of Pamphilo de Nauarez, 1527, and of Soio, 1537, into Florida: which two journeyes confumed neere one thouland men therein imployed : besides other Expeditions of Ponce de Leon and others mentioned by Vega and the Spanifle Authors.

Now for voluntary subjection of the Natiues, giving themselves and their lands to the Crown 30 of England, M. Ralph Lane hath testified for the first Colonie, that Menatonon their King by his feruicetoihe Mellinger, & with him twentie foure principal men fent from Okisko King of Weopomiok his Val- English. fall, formally acknowledged Her Maietty as servants and homagers to her, and under her to Sir W. R. For the lait Plantation by the present Patent of His Maiesty , Parpehay, one of their Kings fold valand for Copper, and Pombatan the chiefe Lord of all the Sauages, with thirty nine Werowances, have yeelded to more then formes and circumftances of homage; besides contributi- Right by buyon, having also actually sold for Copper by him received of Cap. John Smith, and made voluntary ing & selling : ceffion of as much as the English defired, going away with his people to leave it to the English and byceffion onely. This purchase was much increased by Sir Thomas Dale, and for whatsoever else which he Right by Forheld, hee accepted a Copper Crowne as Vaffall to His Maiesty: which also hee really performed feiture, To for a time, howioeuer ince they have beene perfidious. And this perfidiousnesse of theirs hath further warranted the English Title. Temperance and Iuftice had before kiffed each other, and feemed to bleffe the cohabitations of English and Indians in Virginia. But when Virginia was violently ranished by her owne ruler Natines , yea her Virgin cheekes dyed with the bloud of three Colonies (that of Sir R. Greenevile, that of Sir W. R. both confessed by themselves, and this last butchery intended to all, extended to so many hundreths, with so immaine, inhumane; doublish treachery) that I speake not of thousands otherwise mis-caring here and mis-carrying there, taking possession of Virginia by their facts, and fates, by so manifold losses adding to the price of Fatalloostes Virginias purchase : Temperance could not temper her selfe, yea the stupid Earth seemes distem. on, pered with such bloudy potions and cries that shee is ready to spue out her Inhabitants : Iustice ao civeth to G o D foe vengeance, and in his name adjureth Prudence and Fortitude to the

The Holy Patriarks had a promise of Canaan, yet held no possession but with their dead bodies; Heb, 11. Infeph by faith gaue charge concerning his bones : Virginia by fo many rights naturalized English, by first discouery, actuall possession, chargeable continuation, long prescription, voluntary subjection, delivery of feiun, naturall inheritance of English there borne, reall sale, legall cession, regall vasfallage; disloyall treason hath now confiscated whatsoeuer remainders of right the vnnaturall Naturalls had, and made both them and their Countrey wholly English, prouoking vs, if wee bee our owne, not base, degenerate, vnworthy the name of English; so that wee shall not have any thing left (like Danids Embaffadors, which thus abused, brought their Matter a inst title to Ammon, purchased by their digraces) to couer our nakednesse, till Virginia couer, reward, inrich & with a totall subjection at left, if not a farall revenge. And thus much for our right which God hath given vs : whose V regimian tribute is his glory, that hee may indeed be Alpha and Omega (as hath beene faid) of the Virginian Plantation : which if it hath not fatisfied the expectation hi-therro, no doubt that defect hath in great part proceeded from this. The end of a thing is the beginning, being first in intention though last in execution : the Word and end which Christians ought to ayme at is God, Doing all things in the name of our Lord lesses Workes ad-Christ, to the glory of God the Father, by the gracious guide and affiltance of the Holy Ghost. nanced by this Glory is, Frequens de aliquo fama cum laude , And beereby is our Father glorified, fayeth Plantation, Christ, if yee bring forth much fruite, and fo Shall yee be my Disciples. Loe here the scope of 60 Christians Plantations, to plant Christianity, to produce and multiply Christians, by our words Ic. 15. and works to further the knowledge of God in his Word and Workes. The workes of God glorifie their Creator : The Heavens, faith David, declare the glory of God, &c. I will triumph in the workes P/ 19.1. of thy hands. O Lord, how great are thy morkes ? and thy thoughts are very deepe. A bruitift man Pf. 9: 4.

knoweth not, neither doth a foole understand this. All creatures are inuited to praise the name of the 1314 Gods glory in his various works, Mynes not they great minds wealth, LIB. IX.

Mmmmmmm 2

P.118. 4. P. 16 & as 2.

Lord, for hee hath commanded and they were created : How much more should the tongue of man be the Pen of a readie writer, and as it is called, The glory of the man, fo imploy it felfe in feeting forth the glory of God, in his Workes of Creation, Prouidence, Redemption?

FC 1 The Worker of God is a Glorious Circle, whose Center is every where, his circumference no where : himselfe God and va is to himselfe is Circle and Circumference, the Ocean of Entitie, that very vbique, from whom to etie there feen whom (the Centre of vnicie) all divertified lines of varietie iffue and returne. And although we enery where feele his present Deitie, yet the difference of heavenly climate and influence, canfine fuch discording concord of dayes, nights, seasons; such varietie of meteors, elements, aliments. fuch noueltie in Beafts, Fishes, Fowles; such luxuriant plentie and admirable raritie of Trees, Shrubs, Hearbs : fuch fertilitie of loyle, infinuation of Seas, multiplicitie of Rivers, fafetie of 10 Ports, healthrulneffe of ayre, opportunities of habitation, materialis for action, obiects for contemplation, haps in prefent, hopes of future, worlds of varietie in that diverlified worlds doe quicken our mindes to apprehend, whet our tongues to declare, and fill both with arguments of ropagation of visite on the other fide confidering fo good a Country, fo bad people, having little of Humanitie but shape, ignorant of Civilitie, of Arts, of Religion; more brutish then the beaffe the Goipell: & they hunt, more wild and vinmanly then that vinmanned wild Country, which they range rather then inhabite; captinated also to Satans tyranny in foolish pieties, mad impieties, wicked idlenesse, butte and bloudy wickednesse : hence have wee fit objects of zeale and pitie, to deliner from the power of darknesse, that where it was faid, Tee are not my people, they may bee called the children of the lining God : that luttice may to proceed in rooting out those murtherers, that vet in inderment (initating Gods dealing with vs) wee may remember Mercy to fuch as their owne finnocence shall protect, and Hope shall in Charitie judge capable of Christian Faith. And lee men know that bee which connertesh a finner from the errour of his way, shall fane a foule from death. and Shall bide a multitude of finnes. And Saurours Shall thus come on Mount Zion to indoe the Mount of Elan, and the Kingdome (of Virginia) fall be Lord. Thus shall wee at once overcome both Men and Deuills, and espouse Virginia to one husband, presenting ber as a chast Virginia Christ. If the ene of Aduenturers were thus fingle , how loone and all the body should be light? But the louing our felues more then God, hath detained fo great bleffings from vs to Varginia, and from Obad. ult. 1.Cor.11.2. Matth.6,22 1.Tim.4.8.

Iam, f. 10.

O/e 2.

full to doe Gods will, he will be ready to doe ours. All the rich endowments of Unginia, her Virgin-portion from the creation nothing leffened. are wages for all this worke : God in wifedome having enriched the Sauage Countries, that those riches might be attractives for Christian luters, which there may fowe firituals and rease

Virginia to vs. Godlinelle bath the promises of this life, and that which is to come. And if wee be care-

Answeres to Objections : 8 first to the want of Gold and Siluer Mines.

temporals. But what are those riches, where we heare of no Gold nor Silver, and see more impouerished here then thence enriched, and for Mines we heare of none but Iron? Iron mindes! Iron age of the world! who gave Gold or Silver the Monopoly of wealth, or made them the Almighties fall uprites. Precious perils, specious punishments, whose originall is neerest hell, whose house is dark. neffe, which have no eye to fee the heavens, nor admit heavens eye (guilty malefactors) to fee 40 them; neuer produced to light but by violence, and continued, vpon records written in bloud, the occasioners of violence in the World; which have intected the surface of their native earth with deformity and iterality (these Mines being sit emblemes of mindes couetous, flored with want, and euer wanting their owne (tore) her bowels withdarknesse, damps, deaths, causing trouble to the neighbour Regions, and mischiefe to the remotest! Penurious mindes! Is there no riches but Gold Mines ! Are Iron Mines neglected, rejected for hopes of Silver! What, and who elfeis the Alchymift, and impostor, which turnes the World, and Men, and all into Iron ! And how much Iron-workes in Warres and Maffacres bath American Gold and Silver wrought thorow all Chriflendome? Neither speake I this, as it our hopes were blasted, and growne deplorate and desperate this way, the Country being fo little fearched, and the remote in-land-Mountaines vn- 50 knowne : but to shew the fordid tincture and base alloy of these Mine-mindes. Did not the Spanifb Iron (tell me you that contemne Iron-mines) draw to it the Indian Silver and Gold? I will not be a Prophet for Spaine from Virginia. But I cannot forget the wily apophthegme of the Pilots Boy in the Cacafaego, a great Ship laden with treasure taken in the South Sea, by Sit Francis Drake; who seeing the English Ordnance command such treasure from the Spanish Casafuego; Our Ship, faid he, Shall be called the Cacaplata, and the English may be named the Cacafuego. I will not be fo vimannerly to give you the homely English; it is enough that Engles Iron brought home the Spanish-Indian Silver and Gold, But let vs consult with the wifelt Councellour. Canaan. Abrahams promise, Ifraels inheritance, type of heaven, and ioy of the earth! What were her riches " were they not the Grapes of Efbed, the balme of Gilead, the Cedary neighbourhood 62 of Liberry, the paftury vale of Ierielo, the dewes of heaven, fertility of foile, temper of climat, the flowing (not with Golden Sands, but) with Milke and Hony (necessaries, and pleasures of life, not bottomeleile gulfes of luft) the commodious lcituation for two Seas, and other things like (in how many interiour?) to this of Virginia. What golden Country euer nourished with her naturall fore the hundreth part of men, in io imall a proportion of earth, as Danid there

CHAP.20. Virginia best in the best endowments of a Country. Cause of ill successes. 1815 mustered, being 1100000, of Ifrael, and 500000, of Inda, not reckoning the Tribes of Leni and Compare Beniamin, all able men for warres. And after him, in a little part of that little Ieboshapbat (More 2 Sam. 24, with I dare say then the Spaniards can finde in one hundred times so much, of their Mine lands, and 1 Chronal le choose their best in Pera, New Spaine, and the Ilands) the Scriptures containing an infallible my- feemes that ther-booke of 1160000, able Souldiers in his small territories

That then is the richelt Land which can feede most men, Man being a mortall God, the best bouctwo milpart of the best earth, and visible end of the visible World. What remarkeable Gold or Silver besides women Mines hath France, Belgia, Lumbardy, or other the richest peeces of Europe? what hath Baby- and children. lonis, Mauritania, or other the best of Afia and Africke? What this our fertile Mother England?

10 Aske our late Travellers which faw fo much of Spaine, the most famous part of Europe for Mynes of old, and inriched with the Mynes of the New World, if an Englishman needs to enuy a Spanier and, or prefer a Spanish life and happinesse to his owne. Their old Mynes made them the fernants of Rome and Carthage : and what their Mynes and mindes doe now I leave them to others. Once. as the Mynes are in barrennelt foyle, and couctous men have leaft, even when they are had of most money (medig vi Tantalus undis) fo I have heard that in Spaine is leffe Gold and Silver. then in other parts of Europe, (I dare not mention the proportions) from both Spanish and Eng-Wh relation: their vivall money also (to meddle with no more) is of hafe mettall, and their greateft fummes computed by Marandis leffe then our later tokens : except which (deutled for poorer vies of the poorest) England of long time knowes no bale monyes; and hath feene plentie of 30 Silver and Gold, of Wine and Oyle which (grow not in her) when Spaine, which produceth thefe, is fed with falads, and drinketh water, helped now and then with Hoppef-kinne vnfanonry Wine. The Indian Fountaines runne with golden and filuer streames (fie vos non vobis) not to themselves, but into that Spanish Cisterne; and these Cisternes are like those of the London Water-house, which hath the Conduit Pipes alway open in the bottome, fo that a thousand other Cifternes hold more water then it : fo may it be faid of the other; it is not Concha but Camalis . a Pipe rather then Cifterne, a Cash-keeper rather then Owner; and (which is spoken of better things) remaining poore, makes many rich. To proceed, are not Myners the most miserable of Slaues, toyled continually, and vnto manifeld deaths tired for others, in bringing to light those Treasures of darknesse, and living (if they live, or if that bee a life) in the suburbs of Hell; 30 to make others dreame of Heauen ! Yea Paradife, the modell of heauen, had in it no Minerals, ner was Adam in his innocency, or Noah after the Worlds resourcy, both Lords of all, employed in Mines, but (in those happy workes which Virginia inuiteth England vnto) in Vines, Gardening, and Husbandry. Neither let any man thinke that I pleade against the foureneffe of the Grapes, like the Foxe which could not reach them : but I feriously shew that they are calues and not men, which adore the golden Calfe, or Nabachadnezzars great golden flatue, as if the body were not more then raiment, and those things to be preferred to money, for whole take mony (the creature of man; base Idolatry where the Creator worships his creature!) was first ordained, and Rill hath both vie and being.

Doe we not fee in this respect, that the Silkes, Calicos, Drugges, and Spices of the East swal-40 low vp (not to mention the Belgian whirlepoole) all the Mines of the West ? and that one Carricke carrieth more Rials thither, then perhaps some whole Region in Spaine retaineth for vulgar vie? And whence are English, Partugals, or Dutchmen fitted for that commerce ? as if Amereca had ominously (for other inft reason there is none) beene called India, as if the West were but drudge and factor for the East. And what hath dispeopled the New World, not leaving in fome places one of Millions, but Auri faces fames, others killing them in the Mines, or they killing themselves to prevent the Mines! Let it be riches enough, that Sir Thomas Dale testified Vaginias high by Letters from thence, and after his returne to me that foure of the best Kingdomes of Christen- Valuation. dome were not for naturall endowments comparable to Virginia: and which I have heard of one which hath travelled in all the best Regions of Europe, and hath seene more of Virginia then perhaps any man elfe, and which needes not speake for any gaine there or thence gotten, as no reso puted fauourite or fauourer of that Society and their actions; that he hath feene no Country to be preferred for foile, nor for commodious Rivers to be compared. And if successe hath not beene correspondent to English hopes : who seeth not the sauses of Answer to the those diseasters?

Division that taile-headed Amphisheneand many-headed monster, deformed iffue of that diffor- successes and med old Serpent, in some of the Colony there & Copany here, hath from time to time thrust in her causesthercof, forged renomous tongue, wherby they have swolne with deadly poison of great thoughts of heart Ind. 516. (onely by pride doe men make contention) with blinde-staring eyes of felt-loue abounding in their own Proussalo. sense: whence surpicions, lealousies, factions, partialities to friends and dependants, wilfull ob-

60 ffinacies, and other farious pations have transported men from Virginian good and their owne, Couetoufnelle hath difforted others to minde earth and not heaven, in hastinesse of more then speedy returne and present gaine, forgetting that Godlineffe is the beft gaine, and that they are I Tim.6. planting a Colony, not reaping a haruest, for a publike and not (but in subordinate order) private wealth. A long time Virginia was thought to be much encombered with Englands excrements, fome vicious persons, as corrupt leuin sowring, or as plague fore; infecting others, and that Colony was maile a Port Exquiline for fuch as by ordure or vomit were by good order and physicke worthy to be enacusted from This Body: whence not only lazie drones did not further the Plantation, but wicked Walpes with sharking, and the worst, that is beggerly tyrants, frustrated and fupplanted the labours of others. Calum non animum mutant qui trans mare current. A prodicious

Mmmmmm 3

Producall here, is not eafily metamorpholed in a Virginian paliage to a thrifty Planter; nor can there neede wiler choise or more industrious course in any vndertaking, then is requisite in a Chrifrom Colonies plantation among it Infidels. Which Huppofe hath beene carefully by many Adpenturers practifed : and whatfoener faults happened by ignorance in the beginnings, negle& of uenturers practited and whattoener tants appeared in Gouernours or Gouernment, abuses of Mariners, to feafons, riot, fleath, occasionall wants of or in Gouernours or Gouernment, abuses of Mariners, to trechery of Fugitiues, and Sauages; and other difeates, which have in part attended all new the reitiur prifed with feare, reduced themselves almost from eighty to eight Plantations, where-a grieuous and generali ficknesse, which being increased by infection of some passengers tainted

cre. All which notwithstanding, there remaine, some haue if truely calculated and conicdured eighteene hundred persons : for whose security and proussion it hath pleased his Maiesty tohaue

a grieuous and general new men, in their Ship-pallage with corrupt Beere, there followed a mortality which confurmed about fine 20 hundred perions, belides three hundred and fifty or thereabouts murthered in that Sauage-Maffa-

Now that I may shew Virginia worthy those princely, honorable and industrious thoughts,

First Religion (as is before observed) inuiteth vs there to seeke the Kingdome of God sirst, and all go other things shall be ministrate to 1, and added as advantage to the bargaine: seeke the Kingdome 3

Secondly, Humanity and our common Nature forbids to turne our eyes from our owne flesh; yea of God, and fee an earthly Kingdome in recompence, as the earnest, and the heavenly Kingdome for our full paiment. Of glorifying God in his word and workes in this defigne is already commands vs to loue our neighbours as our felues, and to play the good Samaritan with these our neighbours (though of another Nation and Religion, as the wounded Iew was to him) to recover them if it be possible, as by Religion, from the power of Sathan to God; so by huCHAP.20. Spaines American greatnesse a motive for Englands Virginia.

vnto hafty fals. And before we come to Virginias particular probabilities for this Kingdomes good, we need Illustrated by not far fetched speculations, we have euidence from experience. Cafile (a Kingdome which now the Cafillan to floops to none, and which some of her flatterers advance about all, making it Catholike with out respect to Faith) grew from an almost nothing out of the Moorif deluge, to be but a petrie Something in comparison of others in Europe, till Ferdinands time who fent Columbia to Americe. And how poore abilities or probabilities had they for it, when Columbia upon falle grounds haung conceiued strong, strange hopes of the Eisterne Indies, stumbled vpon a Westerne World Vpon lisse whereof hee neuer dreamed, which therefore he called India, and Hiffaniola Ophir: to which probabilities, Expedition (neither founded on found reason, nor experience of former Discourries, when as vet the Mariners Art was but crept out of the Cradle, and bleffed only in the Euent) the flate of Callile was as poorely furnished as it feemes, eyther with money or credit, the Queene pawning part of her Iewels for 2000. Duckets, to fet Columbus forth with three poore Caruels for this 20 Discouery. Little was it then imagined, that in Hispaniola should be found (which happened in the taking of Domingo by Sir Francis Drake) a Spanish Scutchion with a Horse, whole hinder feet trod on the Globe, his fore-feet prauncing as it he would foot our another World (like Alexander hearing Philosophers discourse of other Worlds, weeping that hee had not yet finished the conquest of this) having this Mottoannexed, Non sufficit Orbis. Yea, but they found Gold and Silver in abundance: the Pockes they did ! and plagued all Europe with the great ones, See Ouled & with the did in all continuing of merica: and if they did fini Gold and Silver, how poore were the our fixth Book! proportions till the Mexican Discouery almost thirty yeeres, and that of Perm forty yeeres after their Indian plantation. And who knowes what Virginia in that space may produce by better Their greatest their Indian plantation. And who knowes what Originia in that space may produce by better benefit in Discouery of it, and further Discouery of parts adjoyning, whereof we have ten thousand times commodities, no more pregnant hopes, then they had in their first Expedition, by knowledge gathered from their notin Mines.

Besides, though Gold and Silver from thence hath enriched the Spanish Exchequer, yet the mon subject, Magazines haue found other and greater wealth, whereof Virginia is no leffe capeable, namely, the Countrey Commodities. What Mynes haue they, or at least, what doe they vie in Brafil, or in all the Ilands, where yet fo many wealthy Spaniards and Portugalls inhabit ? Their Ginger. Sugar, Hides, Tobacco and other Merchandize, I dare boldly affirme, yeeld far far more profit to the generalitie of the Spanish Subjects thorow that vast World, then the Mynes do or have done this last Age. Which I shall make apparant by honourable testimonie, in one of the last English Exploits on the Spanis Indies. The Right Honorable Earle of Cumberland in a Letter of his at-ac ter the aking of Port Rice, (chiefe Towne if not the greatest lland in those parts, and far short of Hispanuola and (uba) affirmeth, that if hee would have left the place, hee might have had by The Earle Had good account as much Sugar and Ginger in the Countrey, as was worth 500000, pounds. But purposed to he intended to keepe it, as the Key of the Indies, which who former possesses (I vie his owne words) leave Sir Iohn he intended to keepe it, as the Keyof the indies, which was journer property (vie his owner works) Barker with a may at his pleasure goe to any Chamber in the House, and see how they sleepe before hee be either sleeped Garrison to or descried: so as they must at enery doore keepe so great a force to guard them, as will consume a great hold it, but a part of their yeerely Reuenue; and fend it from place to place with fo great a waftage, as will caufe them great ficknette to curse their new Porter : for when they have done what they can , they shall beare his charge to their and mortalitie owne destructions, and still be loosing places both of strength and wealth. Thus that valorous and renowmed Earle, whole bloud ennobled his attempts, whose attempts added glory to his bloud, men, he was and noblenesse to his Nobilitie: which I rather recite that you might see the great wealth which forced tolerue 50 the Spaniards reape of Ginger and Sugar, to which that of Hides in that Iland holds fuch propor- the place, to

tion, that one inhabitant thereof named Chirigo, had no fewer then twelve thouland Beenes : bring home his where Beeues growing wild, it was tolerable to any llander to kill a beaft, if hee returned the I finds this in a skinne to the Owner : and what he speakes of a Key and a Porters advantage, Mutato nomine de written Exte, change the name, and if Uirginia and Summer Hands fall short some wayes, they will, more such of all the then equall it other wayes, in Cale! But I mult contains my felfe, left I purchase a Purchase Cale Ports, thipping mealing.

Now if any shall thinke that the many transplantations of people into thoseparts, would ex-which some hauft England, Spaine will answere that point also, now in their dayes complaying no more of times belongcept the expulsion of the Moores and Marans, have caused it) then when first they undertooke custious Gen-

60 scarcitie of people (notwithstanding their many and long Warres in so many parts of Europe, ex- ed to that inthose contuming valt Enterprizes, not of a Virginia, but of a World. And yet what in comparifon is Spane for multitudes of people, whose vastnesse is faid to yeeld (the King, Dukes, Mar- troller of the quelles and Earles only with their retinue excepted) from eighteene yeeres of age to fiftie, but Nauis.

Plantat ons, and confumed many: experience I hope by this time hath taught to preuent or remedy. The late barbarous Maffacre (bine ille lachryme) ftill bleedeth, and when things were reported to be in better forwardnesse then euer, in great part blassed those hopefull blossomes. nat been the chiefe cause of discontred the proceedings in the Iron workes, Vineyards, Mulberry plants; and in sudden shifte chiefe cause of discontred the proceedings in the Iron workes, Vineyards, Mulberry plants; and in sudden shifte later mileary for life, exposed them to manifold necessities; insomuch, that many of the Principals being flam. by peffered with multitude, and deflitute of Corne and other for faken necessaries, they incurred of 1800, Was presented of the Companie a Royall care, as I kewife the Honor ble Lords of his Maieslies priny Councell, besides the hoto the Lords of notable endeaours of the Councell and well affected members of that Society, which God almighthe Genncell. tv. the great Founder of Colonies, profper.

Argumentster I haue aduentured briefely to point out, rather then to paint out her beauty and attractme ortation, asbe- naments. in honorable. z.Religion.

s. Humanitie.

manity and civility from Barbariime and Sauageneffe to good manners and humaine polity. Thirdly, the Honour of our Nation enjoyeth va not balely to looie the glory of our fore- and fathers acts, which here have been shewed in King Henry the feuenth, King Honry the eight, King Edward the fixt, and Oneene Elizabeths times, all which illustrated their names by Discouery of Realmes remote, viknowne parts and ports (and the first, first of all Kings, and the last holding to the last) Discouering and possessing thele, and leaving them as just inheritance to his Maiesty. What shame to a degenerate posterity, to loose so honorable a claime, and gaine; yea, to neglect that which many English have purchased with doing and suffering to much, and not with their iweate alone, their care and coft, but with their deereft bloud and manifold deaths?

4. Honour of

Fourthly, wee may recken the Honour of our King, and his Royall posterity : to which, in time Virginia may performe as much with equall manuring as euer Britannia and Ireland could 50 promite when first they became knowne to the then civiller World. And were not comparisons odious ! I am fure I heard Sir Thomas Dale confidently and feriously exulting in private conference with me, in the hopes of future greatnesse from Virginia, to the English Crowne. And if the wife King wifely faid, the bonour of a King is in the multitude of his Subjects, loe here the way to preserve, employ, encrease them; and for his Maielly to reach his long royall armes to another World. The Roman Empire fowed Roman Colonies thorow the World, as the most naturalland artificiall way to win and hold the World Romaine.

.. Honor of the

Fifthly, the honour of the Kingdome, thus growing and multiplying into Kingdomes, that as Scotland and England feeme lifters, fo Virginia, New England, New found Land in the Continent already planted in part with English Colonies, together with Bermuds, and other oc llands may be the adopted and legall Daughters of England. An honorable defigne, to which Honor stretcheth her faire hand, the fine fingers whereof are adorned with such precious Rings, each enriched with invaluable lewels of Religion, Humanity, Inheritance, the King, the Kingdome | Honos alit artes, omnesque incenduntur ad findia gloria.

Arg. 7. from necelli, ie by our multitudes

1818

1125390. men of alliorts, as I have seene in an Extract of the Royall Muster-booke, which how much is it exceeded by the numerous excelle of people in this Iland, straitned in farre leffe roome. and wanting necessary employments, which almost exacteth a Virginian vent and adventure. For how much more convenient is a transmigration, into a fruitfull, large and wholesome Region. where the Countrie hath need of a Colonie to cultivate it, as well as those Colons and Inhabitants have need of a Countrie to inhabit rather then to breed a fulnes in This Bodie, which without some such euacuation either breeds matter for the pestilence and other Epidemicall Difeases. or at least for Dearth, Famine, Diforders, ouer-burthening the wealthier, opptesting the poorer. differieting both themselves and others, that I mention not the fatall hand of the Hapeman And thus you have Virginias hopes in generall propounded by Spanish example viged and enforced by our necessitie of feeking vent to fuch home-fulnesse. But looke voon Virginia; view her louely lookes (howfoeuer like a modeft Virgin she is now particular co- valied with wild Couerts and shadie Woods, expecting rather raufilment then Mariage from hee Natiue Sauages) furuay her Heauens, Elements, Situation ; her diuifions by armes of Baves and Rivers into fo goodly and well proportioned limmes and members; her Virgin portion nothing empaired, nay not yet improoued, in Natures best Legacies; the neighbouring Regions and Seas fo commodious and obsequious; her opportunities for offence and defence; and in all these you shall see, that she is worth the wooing and loues of the best Husband, First, for her Heavene and Climate, the with her Virgin Sifters hath the fame (being extended from 30, to 45, degrees of North latitude) with the beil parts of Europe, namely the fat of Grecia, Thracia, Spaine, Ita- 20 lie. Morea, Sicilia, (and if we will looke more Northward to the height of France and Britaine, there her Sifters New England, New Scotland, and New-found-land, promife hopefull and kinde entertainment to all Aduenturers. If you looke Southwards, you may parallel it with Barbarie. Egype, and the fertileit parts of Africke) and in Afra, all that Chner fone ffus, fometime the feate or foure thousand Cities, and so many Kingdomes, now called Natelia, with her Neighbours Antiochia, and other Regions of Syria, Damascu, Libanus, with Babylonia and the glorie of the Earth : and Types of Heauen, Indea and Paradife; the Silken Countries also of Persia, China in her best parts, and lapan, are in the elevation; and Virginia is Daughter of the same Heavens, which promife no leffe portion to this Virgin, then those Matrons had for the foundation-stock of their wealth and glory.

neffe.

v. The fime climate with beft Countries

Secondly, this Climate as it promifeth wealth, so it doth health also, enioying the temper of 2. Temperate. the most temperate parts, even of that in which Adam, Abraham, with the Prophets and Apoftles were bred in, and received as an Earthly priviledge; and in which Christ conversed in the 2. Large exflesh. And thirdly for extension, if conetousnesse gape wide, ten Indan, and a hundred Paradifes, may be equalled for quantitie in Virginia, whole mid-land Regions are wholly voknowne, till we arrive at that Nona Albion , which yeelded it felfe Englifb before the first Urreinian

